While agreeing with Professor Drummond upon this matter, we cannot but regard his main contention as distinctly unscriptural, and calculated to lead to most disastrous results. We give the following quotation as an example:—"It was irrational," he said, "for the missionary to carry the same message or the same form of message to every land." Separated from their connection, these words might seem to teach the innocent and even important lesson, that different methods of presenting the same Gospel must be adopted for different people. But read in their connection it is evident that they mean more than this, and seem to deny the universal suitability of the Gospel of Christ. In Paul's day the Gospel was declared to be "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." For cultured Greeks, for military Romans, for ritualistic Jews, for lying, gluttonous Cretans—for all, whether barbarian or civilised, bond or free—it was equally suitable, and equally efficacious. Professor Drummond's words not only appear to contradict the experience of the Apostles, but to be opposed to the great missionary commission given by our Lord Himself, which recognises that there is but one Gospel by which "all nations" are to be evangelised, and which is adapted to the needs of "every creature" in "all the world."

We have yet a more serious complaint to urge against this address. "There are two ways," says Professor Drummond, "in which men who went to the mission field regarded the world. The first view was that the world was lost and must be saved; the second that the world was sunken and must be raised. The first was the standpoint of popular evangelism, the second the view of Christian evolution. There was an advantage in speaking of the Christian evolution of the world instead of, or at least as a change from, the evangelisation of the world." "The missionary problem, so far from being a mere saving of promiscuous souls, was a most complex question of social evolution."

These sentences are useful as showing the wide distinction between the Gospel of the New Testament and that of so-called Christian evolution. The two are separated by an impassable gulf. They start with a different idea as to man's natural condition. According to the Gospel of Christ man is lost, dead, guilty, condemned, abiding under wrath; according to the gospel of evolution he is only "sunken." Nor is this all the difference. The one proposes to save men, to blot out their guilt, to give them peace of conscience, to make them accepted with God, to regenerate them; the other aims simply to "raise" them. The two are not different methods of stating the same Gospel, but essentially different Gospels, so that to accept one is to deny the other. If the Gospel were nothing more than Christian evolution, then there is no place for a sin-atoning Substitute; and the cross, instead of being an exhibition of the wisdom, and righteousness, and love of God, would be rather a monument of folly, unrighteousness, and cruelty. We are compelled very earnestly to utter our protest against teaching which seeks to reduce the Gospel to the level of a mere scheme of social reform. It is dishonouring to God, and must prove worthless and mischievous to men.

We regret deeply that such an address should have been delivered to a company of students whose future field of labour is to be the world. We trust that Principal Douglas who presided at this meeting does not endorse the sentiments of Professor Drummond. The College had better close its doors and dismiss its students, than send forth men to proclaim such a miserable gospel as this. The worst enemies of the cross of Christ are those who, while professing to preach it, practically deny the solemn significance which Scripture everywhere gives it.

LIFE, LIGHT, AND LOVE.

THE GOSPEL OF JOHN.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

THE SON OF MAN.

JOHN I. 51.

THIS chapter abounds in striking names and titles for our Lord. They are a study in themselves. The Word: the Light: the Life of Men: the only Begotten of the Father: the Christ: the Lamb of God: the Master: Son of God and King of Israel. But the climax, with which this marvellous enumeration closes, is as wonderful as any: The Son of Man. It occurs eighty times in the Gospels, and is always applied by our Lord to Himself.

It is a glorious word, brimful of hope to every member of the family of mankind. To be Son of David, or Son of Abraham, would limit Him to a family or race; but to be Son of Man is equivalent to being the second Adam, and to have a relationship to every man. He was the epitome of humanity, sin excepted. In Him all that is noblest in manhood, most attractive in womanhood, and most winsome in childhood, blended in complete unison. All can find a response in his nature. The one Man, the Man of men, the supreme flower and glory of the human family, the Divine Man—such was the Son of Man, who as such stands now amid the supernal glory of his Father's throne (Acts vii. 56).

The nature of our Lord Jesus is infinite in its extent. On the one hand it touches the heights of Godhead, on the other the depths of manhood. To use his own comparison (51), it resembles the mystic ladder, which, in the dreams of the wanderer, linked the far distant depths of sky, where, more brilliant than sun or moon, the light of the Shekinah shone, with the moorland strewn with huge boulders of stone, where he lay. At one end is the title, Son of God; at the other, Son of Man. And there is not one of the human family that is too frail or sinful to pass upward through the blessed Lord, his birth and death, his resurrection and ascension, from the lowest depths of degradation to the further heights of blessedness.

Here, probably for the first time, our Lord used this title of Himself. It is possible that its full meaning will only be disclosed long ages after we have entered the meridian light of eternity.

I. THE SON OF MAN ATTRACTING MEN.—He had just come victorious from his encounter with the devil. With an imperative of spiritual energy, which human lips had never addressed to the tempter before, He had made the prince of this world slink behind Him. The next step was to lay the foundation of a society, through which He might carry forward his victories, opposing the kingdom of darkness with a kingdom of light, until that has been realised for the race which He realised on the mountain brow for Himself.

In the Apocalypse, John beheld the completed city, New Jerusalem, descending out of heaven; and was able to study its foundations, as he could not have done had it been earth-born. They seemed like the breastplate of the high priest in colour, though greatly multiplied in extent. There was the blue sapphire, the green emerald, the dark-red sardonyx, the brilliant topaz, the hyacinth, and the amethyst. And on each the name of an Apostle. In this chapter we find the Master-builder quarrying the stones, which seem common enough in their origin, but which, under his touch, shall glisten as slabs of jewels in the foundations of his Church. There is no forecasting what will be the outcome for the simplest believer who once is willing to let Christ have his way with him.

Christ attracted men largely from the lower ranks.—Macaulay tells the story of the famous cathedral window, constructed by the apprentice from materials which his master threw away, and which was so much more beautiful than his that he made away with his life in jealousy. And it was out of those orders of society which the great men of the time held in contempt that Jesus began to construct the society against which the gates of hell cannot prevail. "The common people heard Him gladly." "Then drew near the publicans and sinners for to hear Him." The true David recruited his army from the lapsed and lost, and chose his officers from the ranks of publicans, and fishermen, and artisans (1 Sam. xxii. 2).

Christ attracted men of very different make.—In the Apostolic band there were at least three groups, besides minor varieties. The Boanergic, comprising those of largest gift and strength of character—Peter and Andrew, James and John. The Reflective, who were apt at questioning and slow to believe—Philip and Thomas, Nathanael (or Bartholomew) and Matthew. The Practical, who superintended the business arrangements of catering for the rest. All these varieties were attracted to Jesus. He needed them, and they Him.

Christ attracted men to Himself.—He published no manifesto, elaborated no system of doctrine, insisted on no theological examination. His person was his theology. He appealed to the craving of the human heart for love, and offered Himself to supply its needs, pledging Himself to lead his disciples from the "Come and see" of the first interview to the vision of "those greater things," which include the Sermon on the Mount, the Sacrificial Death, the Resurrection and Ascension, the Descent of the Holy Ghost, and which extend also to those marvellous discoveries of Divine truth which fill the Epistles. "Not the man through the doctrine; but the doctrine through the man." Not first the head and then the heart; but first the heart and then the head. The trust of the soul in One who gathers up our intellectual assent as He bears us forward into all the truth.

Men were attracted to Christ in very different ways.—Some by preaching, as when the Baptist proclaimed Him on the Jordan bank to the disciples standing beside him. Though that sermon failed on the first occasion, on the second it was the means of converting his entire audience: "And they followed Jesus."

Others by the agency of human relationship. God has bound us together as members of families, that these human relationships may become a very network of communicating wires, through which to send the sparks and impulses of his own love. The Bible does not say how many souls Andrew brought afterwards to Jesus, but it does say, he first found his own brother Simon. As boys they had played on the silver sands; as youths they had sailed the long night through in their father's yawl; as young men they had left their homes drawn by a common impulse to the Jordan. And when Andrew found Christ, he had an irresistible influence over Peter and won him. The little taper lit up the great light. Have we all used our home ties enough for the winning of souls to our Lord?

Others were brought by his direct influence. "He findeth Philip, and saith unto him, Follow Me." I love to think of the thousands who owe their all to the direct touch of the love of Christ, falling on them as the light of an infinitely distant star through the tube of the telescope, which photographs it for ever on the prepared paper. Far from the sound of the church-going bell, amid the deep silence of the night watch in the bush or on the prairie, or tossing on the bosom of the deep, the Love of God still finds men.

Others are brought to Christ by the call of friendship, following on long courses of previous preparation. Often must Philip have left the shores of his native lake, and crossed the hills for Cana, where Nathanael dwelt, and the two would earnestly discuss the signs of the times, the desperate straits of their country, the preaching of the Baptist, the advent of the King. And for long periods the guileless Israelite would be lost in deep reverie as he sat beneath his favourite fig-tree, pondering the things which Moses in the Law, and the Prophets, did write, and engaged in earnest prayer. It was not difficult to win such a one, when Philip broke in on his retirement with the news of his discovery.

Jesus Christ is God's magnet put down amongst men to attract them to Himself.

II. THE SON OF MAN READING AND REVEALING MEN.—The Spirit had been given to Him without measure, and by his indwelling He knew what was in man, read men as we read books, and interpreted them to themselves that they might know themselves and Him.

He knew the yearning for love that dwelt in the heart of John, who clearly was one of the two who first followed Him with timid footsteps, longing to know some of the secrets of his inner life: "Master, where dwellest Thou?"

He knew how timid and weak was the soul that lay beneath the burly form and impetuous self-assertion of Andrew's brother, and called him by a name which well became him, Simon Bar-Jona, the son of a timid dove.

He knew where to find Philip, the qualities which were worth finding in him, and the magnetic sentence which would bind him for ever to his side: "Follow Me."

He knew the guileless simplicity and purity with which Nathanael's soul was filled, untainted by the luxurious tastes with which the Romans were enervating his native land, and had seen the devout thoughts passing through his heart, before Philip called him. The tree has never grown which could conceal a soul from the eye of Jesus.

So He reads us still. He knows our down-sitting and our uprising, and understands our thoughts afar off. We lie before Him naked and opened, as the sacrificial victim before the priest. What though the sharp two-edged sword be in his hand, yet He is not a High Priest who cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities!

The Lord who dwells on high
Knows all, and loves us better than He knows.

III. THE SON OF MAN COMPLETING MEN.—Whatever we need most, we can find in Him. He is the all-sufficiency for all human need, the supply of every lack, the answer to every inquiry. Not his gifts, but Himself. Do we need purity? He does not simply give us purity, but He is in us that Holy Thing. Do we want life? He does not merely impart it, but He is Himself our life. Do we require strength? The Lord is the strength of our life. As the rest of a circle is the complement of a segment, however small, so is Jesus the complement of all who believe.

Andrew is always ranked with Peter, James, and John, yet he was excluded, not arbitrarily of course, from three memorable scenes, where the others witnessed the glory of their Lord. He reminds us of men of large gift, who yet fall short of the first rank by some defect in ardour, dash, enthusiasm. O ye Andrews of the Church, come to the Son of Man, that He may supply that missing link, breathe into you that lacking power, baptize you in his sacred fire, "so that ye come behind in no gift," waiting for his coming.

A very different man was Peter. Loving to gird himself; foremost to speak, to act, to deny; the born leader and spokesman of the rest; ardent in love, but sadly needing stability; essaying to walk the waves, and sinking; meeting with God-given answer the Master's challenge as to his nature, and within a few moments becoming an offence; flashing his sword in the moonbeams with terrible execution, and denying with oaths; plunging into the lake for the shore, where in the grey dawn the beloved form was standing, but presently silenced by "What is that to thee?" A strange mixture of strength and weakness, of ardour and inconstancy! Such are some of us. But when men like Peter come to the Son of Man, He completes them, and impregnates them with the strength of his own rock-like character, so that they become rock-men in their degree, as mossy nests are turned to stone beneath the drip of the limestone caves.

John's nature reminds us of the lakes, which, like his own Galilee, lie among the hills. On calm days the placid and pellucid waters mirror the curtains of the heavens, whether blue, or dark, or star-bespangled. But when the wild winds rush down on them, they are lashed into fury, and no boat can live. John was filled with an almost divine power of loving. This won the love of Jesus, and led him to lean on that sacred breast, and secured the trusteeship of the beloved mother, and enabled him to read the secrets of the Redeemer's character hidden from the rest. But, withal, he must sit on the right or left of the throne, and call for fire from heaven on offending villagers. Evidently, such a nature needs to be softened and toned, and taught how long-suffering, and forbearing, and pitiful Divine love can be. Some of us also need to take our love to Jesus that it may be rid of earthly elements, and attempered to his own.

Nathanael made use of such fragmentary hints as were within his reach, and arrived at one of the sublimest of conclusions; but there were great gaps which needed to be filled up, like the blanks in the maps of Africa some twenty years ago. He saw something. But he was capable of seeing more, and he was told that he should see greater things than any that had come within his ken. He recognised in Jesus the Son of God, the King of Israel: but he should know that Jacob's ladder was a sign of blessing beyovd the limits of his own children; that it was a type of Jesus the Son of God, who was not only King of Israel the nation, but Son of Man, the race.

This is Christ's invariable mode. There is always more to follow. On every blessing which He puts into our hands He writes this inscription, "Thou shalt see greater things than these." If conversion, adoption; if adoption, heirship; if heirship, the throne; if grace, glory.

I know not how many maimed and incomplete hearts may be reached by these words. But it may be that hundreds who will read them have been wearily conscious of heart-ache and heart-need, waiting for someone who never comes, watching for a light which never breaks, bemoaning a lack which lies at the bottom of the heart, saying Give, give, but is never satisfied. "Blessed are ye that hunger, for ye shall be filled." But the filling can come from no human or earthly source. In Christ alone can we be replenished and satisfied. Take the infirmity, the deficiency, the yearning, the sense of maimedness, to the Son of Man, whose nature will flow into yours, as an ocean into some new dock or reservoir, taking the shape of the receptacle, and filling it throughout. "Ye are complete [R.V. made full] in Him."

A DEVOTED AND FRUITFUL LIFE.

ON a headstone in the pretty cemetery at Kirkcaldy, in Fifeshire, there is the following pathetic inscription:—"Helen Lockhart, died February 16, 1888. The Cross of Christ was the glory of her life; the joy of the Lord the strength of her life; 'not weary in well-doing' the spirit of her life; turning many to righteousness the crown of her life. Erected by the members of her Sabbath-school, Bible-class, and old women's meeting; and by those who loved her for her graces, and esteemed her for her works."

These words are no empty laudation, but express in brief the story of a singularly devoted and fruitful life. Their subject was the wife of Rev. William Gibson, now F.C. minister of Lochgoilhead, who has written a deeply interesting memoir of his wife, under the title, "Not weary in well-doing" (2s. 6d. J. Menzies & Co.). We are glad to know that the book has reached its third edition, for it deserves the widest circulation and the most careful reading. Such women as Mrs. Gibson are the very salt of the earth, and we hope this story of her loving and unceasing labours for the good of others will be a spur to Christian young women everywhere to emulate such a splendid example of self-denying zeal.

DR. THAIN DAVIDSON'S last monthly sermon to young men, in Colebrooke-row Chapel, Islington, was based on Exod. ii. 11: "And it same to pass in those days, when Moses was grown, that he went out unto his brethren, and looked on their burdens." The deliverer of the Hebrews from Egyptian bondage was treated as a type of heroes who, by the strength of God, have wrought wonders for the good of mankind. One of these was General Booth (from whose recent book several passages were read). The preacher said: "General Booth believes in God. He believes in the old Gospel of redemption by the blood of Christ. He believes that what all men want is a radical change of heart, and that this only the Divine Spirit can effect. Ah! the three million who in this land are lying in the ditch, living in a moral cesspool, might be all lifted out, or, for that matter transported to another planet; and yet, if you have not the regenerating influences of true religion working in our midst, the gutter and the cesspool will soon be filled up again." The church was densely packed; the sermon was reported in full in The Islington Gazette of November 12.

A CALL FROM CHILI.

DEAR SIR,—I have to thank you for THE CHRISTIAN, which I receive regularly. In this far away land it is a most welcome visitor. I do hope some of the Christians of England will feel an interest in South America, and especially in this neglected country. Chili needs the Gospel. The Valparaiso Bible Society, (a branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society) has sown thousands of Bibles over the land and it is time some reaping were done.

I think one mistake that missionary societies make is not to support the native workers that God raises up. I know of instances where the money expended in the support of people who have no gift to acquire languages, would support five times as many native workers, each one of whom would be from five to ten times more effective; besides, native workers attract support quicker than foreigners. I am self-supporting, teaching school, devoting the time I have to spare to preaching in English and Spanish. How I wish I could devote all my time to Spanish Gospel work.

Rev. Francisco Jorquera, a native minister, ordained under the presbytery of Chili, but quite independent, is having marked spiritual success here, especially in his week-night meetings. Last night, a student of the Lycée, (Institute), who had been an infidel, spoke for the first time. If he had the means, he would prepare for the ministry, but neither Brother Jorquera nor myself has the means to support him, and he is one of many whose families are either Romanists or infidels and thus are prevented.

Chili is not, as some would think, peopled by half-savages; on the contrary the Chilians are the noblest Spanish American people. The mass of the people are Catholics. The ruling and wealthy class are infidels. They are, generally speaking, favourably inclined toward the Gospel, as an offset to Romanism, which they hate.

To illustrate to you the state of preparation of Chili for the Gospel, let me state that within the last ten days there have been two offers made of places in which to preach the Gospel, one in Tragein and another in Angol. The latter is one of the most important places in South Chili. The Alcalde of Angol has offered free the largest hall in the place, for Gospel services. While there are natives competent to fill these places, we have not the means to pay their expenses.

Our converts here are mostly poor men and women, made poorer by the ostracism and persecutions of their Catholic neighbours, but the Government officials are generally friendly to evangelisation, as a force operating against Romanism. No place, especially amongst Roman Catholic countries, presents a fairer field for missionary societies; will not some Society be moved to send someone here? If the Christians of England cannot link us on to some of their existing societies, at least let them remember us in their prayers, that God may give this thirsty land Gospel showers.—Yours in Christ, GEO. D. COLMAN.

Cassilla 89, Concepcion Chili, S. America.

IKEWEZI LAMACI MISSION.—News has been received from Rev. Samuel Aitchison that two tribes living near to Ikewezi had prepared for war, and were going to fight about 1½ miles from the Mission Station. Mr. Aitchison rode out amongst the people and was helpful in quieting them, and directing the mounted police with the magistrate as to the movements of the tribes. Mr. Aitchison had to close one school; but no serious harm had overtaken them up to the time of writing—he asks the earnest prayers of friends in England. Communications may be made to the Treasurer, Y.M.C.A., Birmingham.

Letters from Scotland.—3.

(BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THERE has been some discussion of late in certain quarters, as to whether the Y.M.C.A. has been a success or a failure. Into that large controversy I have neither the desire nor the right to enter. The same interrogatory might be put with reference to all our modern religious organisations; when the opposing answers had all been given, and the game of battledore and shuttlecock had ended, these agencies would remain pretty much where they were before. The truth most likely lies between the two extremes. No honest and earnest attempt to meet an evident need of humanity, can ever end in absolute failure; the very best of our human institutions is marked by so much imperfection that it cannot truthfully be said to have proved a complete success. Inside fraternal co-operation and counsel may do much to enhance success; outside criticism, I am afraid, will do little or nothing in that direction.

Leaving the general question of Y.M.C.A. success or failure, I am privileged to give your readers some particulars of the working of A NORTHERN Y.M.C.A.

The recent Conference of Scottish Associations at Aberdeen enabled me to renew my acquaintance with Mr. Charles Shirreffs, the universally esteemed secretary of the Association in that city. If there is anything very good going on in the Granite City, Mr. Shirreffs is sure to have a finger in the pie. I have visited Aberdeen at longer or shorter intervals, in order to chronicle special efforts of an evangelistic or a missionary kind, and I have always found my Y.M.C.A. friend well to the front. The excellent and well situated Institute in the middle of Union-street is a memorial of the first visit to the city of Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey, and the impulse then received by the workers does not appear to have died out.

From the particulars furnished to me in an interview with Mr. Shirreffs, I gather that a very genuine and steady, if quiet, work goes on among Aberdeen young men through the Y.M.C.A. This class of the community in the north-eastern capital is a specially migratory one. Every autumn, young men flock into the city to enter the University classes; they stay for a part of the year through the few sessions of their course, and then they scatter to all the points of the compass. Youths come from the country districts to gain some commercial experience, and then to "go south," with the unerring instinct of the pushing Scot. So the Y.M.C.A. clientèle in the north is a constantly shifting one.

I was glad to hear from Mr. Shirreffs that he begins with the boys. As one of the results of Mr. Moody's work, a boys' meeting was started in August, 1874, and it has since been continued without intermission every Friday evening. A regular course of Scripture study is arranged for the year, and these lads are drilled into a well-grounded acquaintance with the leading truths of revelation. Out of this boys' class not a few have grown active members of the Association or workers for Jesus Christ elsewhere.

Thoroughness seems to be the motto of all branches of the work. When a young man is proposed for membership, he is addressed by letter at his home or his lodging, and questions are submitted to him that require a written reply. He is therefore obliged, calmly and in the quietude of his seclusion, to consider the step he proposes to take, and to formulate the reasons that impel him to take it. In this way the genuine cases are sifted out, with corresponding benefit to the membership. During the past twelve months upwards of 500 young men have been in full association with the Aberdeen branch. Most of these are engaged in business houses, but there is also a sprinkling of students.

Some things can be done on behalf of young men coming to a city like Aberdeen that are scarcely feasible in the larger centres of population in the South. For instance, a neatly got-up booklet is issued by the Committee, entitled, and containing a full list of the churches in the town connected with all the Protestant denominations, with the names and residences of the ministers. Details of the Association engagements and advantages are given, and much useful information of a general character besides. A copy is handed to every student coming to the town, and to other young men, so far as they are known. Of course a lodging register is kept. Curiously enough, while my little talk with Mr. Shirreffs was in progress, a fresh and frank-looking youth was ushered into the secretarial office. He said he was about to join the Arts classes in the University, and wished to be directed to good lodgings. In giving the desired information the Secretary managed to extract from the young man some particulars as to his antecedents, to tender some friendly counsel, and to give him a cordial invitation to make use of the Y.M.C.A. rooms. That was an instance of how our friend, who is constantly on the watch, finds opportunities to benefit his younger brethren.

"INFORMATION FOR YOUNG MEN,"

Mr. Shirreffs moves with a very firm step along the old paths, and so the Bible-class is one of the mainstays of his work. He conducts it on the conversational plan; he seeks to draw out the latent thinking capacity of his members, rather than do all the thinking and the talking himself. The workers whom he has gathered around him are active in Gospel service. In addition to the weekly evangelistic service in the hall of the Institute, which holds 700, a similar service is held in Cooke's Circus on Sunday evenings. I observe from a recent issue of the local Free Press that another Gospel Sunday service has been undertaken by the Association in the Alhambra Music Hall. In the summer time open-air work is energetically sustained at a largely frequented street corner, and many an interesting button-hole conversation about spiritual things is held on the causeway. A portable organ, and a band of singers, help to draw and retain the careless crowd. Lodging-house visitation has been earnestly and regularly kept up for the past sixteen years, and much Gospel seed has been sown among the tramps who frequent these low-priced hostelries.

There are other agencies of an educational and spiritually profitable kind that I cannot stay to enumerate. It will be seen, however, that an aggressive spirit marks the Association, and that the flame is kept burning by the constant supply of the oil of prayer, fellowship, and the study of the Sacred Word. For a number of years past the Aberdeen Association has been

A MISSIONARY NURSERY.

If space permitted, I could give quite a lengthy list of the names of young men who had been connected with the Association, and who are now doing earnest and successful missionary work in the foreign fields of Africa, China, India, and elsewhere. There is a strong missionary band in connection with the Association, and it seems to be a frequently recurring thing that a section of that band should hive off and disperse itself in foreign lands as ambassadors of the cross of Christ. The walls of the secretary's office is adorned with many an interesting photographic group of these young missionary workers. At the monthly meetings of the band, all the absent members are remembered in prayer by name, as well as the societies to which they are attached. The missionary interest is further sustained by the reading of an occasional paper on some special field, or the work of some society.

At the instance of ex-Provost Henderson, who has himself just given a gifted daughter to the foreign mission service, a list was drawn up and recently revised of those who have, within the last generation or so, gone out from the northern district of Scotland, of which Aberdeen is the centre, to the mission fieeld of India, China, Africa, and elsewhere. That list, including the wives of missionaries, exceeds 130 in number. Of these workers the Y.M.C.A. has furnished quite its fair share.

Mr. Shirreffs, in the midst of his many other duties, is not indifferent to the power of the press. As the fruit of his study and wide experience he has compiled a most helpful little book of sixteen pages, called "Handy Words for Hearty Workers" (8d. per dozen), of which some ten thousand have been circulated. A somewhat larger brochure, "Notes on Dealing with Inquirers" (1d.), is full of wise and weighty suggestion as well as encouraging illustration. I am pleased to add here that the three addresses given at the recent Scottish Y.M.C.A. Conference by Dr. Marshall Lang, of Glasgow; Rev. John Smith, of Edinburgh; and Rev. John McNeill, of Regent-square, have been issued in pamphlet form by Mr. Shirreffs at the popular figure of one penny. It is entitled "The Evangelical Faith," and such a strong, combined testimony to the truth, the power, and the worth of the evangelical Gospel is seldom to be had within the same compass. It ought to be freely scattered about, especially among those who are afflicted with the modern disease of doubt. All these useful little works can be had of Mr. Shirreffs at the Y.M.C.A. Institute, Union-street, Aberdeen.

Even these cursory notes of the work of one Scottish Y.M.C.A., which is only typical of many others, will scarcely lead any candid mind to the conclusion that the great organisation of which it forms an integer, can be roundly called or considered a failure.

HOME FOR INEBRIATE WOMEN.

DURING the past six years a very real work has been carried on in a quiet way at the Home for Inebriate Women at Hounslow. Having watched it from the beginning it was with deep regret I heard the Committee were thinking of closing the home on account of lack of funds. I thought of the many weary, tempest-tossed souls to whom it has been a haven of rest, a safe retreat from their great enemy, the demon drink. Women of every rank in life are received—some well-born, delicately nurtured, highly educated, but now, alas! miserable wrecks both in body and mind.

I was deeply touched one day when, passing through one of the bedrooms, my eye rested on a photograph over the bed; it was a family group—father, mother and three or four children gathered round them. All was bright then; but a dark shadow has passed over them; they have lost their mother not by death but by the deadly drink. In his distress the father has brought her to West Holme, imploring that she may be rescued from the terrible degradation. The question is often asked: Is there any power that can lift such cases up and restore them to society as new creatures? Thank God, we can answer, Yes. Out of the 108 cases recived at West Holme forty have been restored to their home life or to service. Many letters full of gratitude have been received by Miss H. S. Pollock, the founder and president of the Home.

The question now pressing upon us is: Must the Home be closed to so many still sadly needing our sympathy and influence? Let me earnestly plead for your help, however small. The annual report, giving full particulars, will be gladly sent to any who may wish for it by Miss H. S. Pollock, Hanworth, Middlesex.

LOUISA CLAYTON.

Bishopsdown House, Tunbridge Wells.

A Cry from Persia.

Dear Sir,—As the following statement, which appears in The Christian of August 29, 1890, is calculated to give a very false idea of the openings for mission work in Persia, will you kindly allow me to make some remarks upon it?—"In some countries the medical mission is the sole means of overcoming the local prejudice against Europeans, particularly in Persia." (The italics are my own.)

There is no such local prejudice against Europeans among a very large proportion of the inhabitants of Persia, and invaluable as medical missions are as a means of drawing Mohammedans, as well as other heathen, within the influence of the Gospel, they are very far indeed from being the only means of doing so; indeed, I doubt very much that they are even the most valuable and effectual means for that purpose.

The accounts which have quite lately been issued in the publications of the C.M.S. and B. and F.B.S. of the itinerating journeys of my dear colleague, Rev. H. Carless, and of the colporteurs of the Bible Society, are quite sufficient to refute such a statement as the above, and to show that not only does no such prejudice against European and native evangelists exist, but that the visits of both are received in the most friendly spirit, and that there are many open doors and many weary souls hungering for the bread of life to be found in all parts of Persia.

Mr. Carless met with such a warm reception from the natives of Yezd, that he quite thought it was a call from God to open a branch mission there; and in many other places, notably Shiraz and Nirman, a similar spirit of friendliness towards the missionary and colporteur has been met with among a large portion of the inhabitants. A few brief notes on lately made by myself in company with my wife and daughter, will illustrate what I say. We left Julfa in search of health and recreation, not especially for work, on August 19, and returned on September 10. We visited thirteen Mohammedan and two Armenian villages, and were received most kindly and hospitably in all, but especially in the Mohammedan villages. With two exceptions the rooms given us were most clean and comfortable, and always the very best the head men of the village could give us.

A TOUR OF TWENTY-TWO DAYS,

One of these exceptions was a place of pilgrimage, reached by us on August 25, during a Mohammedan festival, when the place was crowded with pilgrims. The head man, who was a Seyyid and proprietor of the holy place, was most friendly, apologizing that he could not turn his guests out for us, and inviting us most warmly to come and see him at another time, when he would be able to make us more comfortable. I spent a delightful time with him and his guests, who listened most attentively to "the Words of Life."

The next village we visited was the property of a general in the Persian Army. Nothing could exceed the kindness and hospitality of our host and his family. We spent two days with them, and they pressed us to spend a fortnight. Here also I had blessed opportunities for mission work, and shall never forget the hour I spent with the chief Mutta of the village, who I feel sure "is not far from the Kingdom of God." After visiting four other villages, we passed on our return journey a camp of Persian soldiers, under the command of our late host, who had in the meantime removed from his private residence to his fine tent in the centre of the camp. My wife had gone on with the caravan to the village, where we intended to spend the night, about four miles distant; and my daughter and myself being on horseback, called to pay our late host a visit.

After we had paid quite a long visit a most amusing scene occurred. Three times I had a hand to hand fight with the general, who is a large, powerful man. Each time when I got up to leave, he seized me and dragged me back by main force into the tent; the third time I got the victory, and escaped his friendly grasp, and, on arriving at my destination, I found that he had sent off a horseman to bring my wife back, that he might have the pleasure of entertaining us all again. Our next march was one of twelve miles, to a village called Haiduri. Halfway we reached the residence of a colonel in the Persian army, who had visited me several times in Julfa. I called on him to pay a short visit, as I intended, but he would not hear of our passing by, and said a present of 500 tomans would not give him half the pleasure our visit did. Both in the zenana and in the men's quarters we had blessed opportunities of

SOWING THE GOOD SEED.

I will only mention one other village. We spent three days with the kindest and most liberal of hosts in Sarnan. Every morning and afternoon we went out and sat in some of the splendid vineyards or orchards, by which this lovely village is surrounded, and were always followed—not, as in some villages, by a crowd of people staring at the Europeans, but by a quiet, earnest, friendly group of inquirers, whose delight it was to hear all I could tell them of the way of salvation.

On a short and necessarily hasty tour like this—though I did give medicines to a few sick people, I really was often thankful to be able to say: "I am not a physician of bodies, and have a very small stock of medicines with me," for I saw that if I began to attend to all the bodily ailments of the people I should have no time left to minister to souls, which were much more in need of the Balm of Gilead than their bodies were in need of medicine. And there were no prejudices to be removed.

The one essential qualification for a missionary to Persia is that he be filled with the Holy Spirit, that he may show forth in his life his living, working faith in St. Augustine's creed: "A whole Christ for my salvation; a whole Bible for my staff; a whole Church (composed of all the members of the one body of our glorified Redeemer) for my fellowship; one whole world for my parish." That he "hold the unity of the Spirit," not the uniformity of outer organisation, "in the bond of peace."

The field which the missionaries of the Persian Mission are attempting to evangelise embraces an area of 500,000 square miles, and comprises three ancient kingdoms — Babylonia, Edom, and Persia, the whole of the Persian Gulf, and the northern half of Arabia. The whole staff of European missionaries at present in the field consists of one ordained and two lady missionaries in Baghdad, and two ordained missionaries in Julfa, Ispahan.

INVALUABLE WORK HAS BEEN DONE

by medical missionaries in Baghdad and Ispahan; and in large cities like these the work of a medical mission is of unspeakable value—not as the sole means of evangelisation, but as a most useful auxiliary to the other branches of mission work. There is a medical missionary attached to the Baghdad Mission, but he is at home at present, and there is no medical missionary in Ispahan. One of the two missionaries in Ispahan is employed in making a revision (or, rather, a new translation) of the whole Bible. Boys' and girls' schools with 370 pupils, a congregation with over 100 communicants, a theological class for training native labourers, an orphanage, and the other branches of mission work, such as preaching, training inquirers, visiting and receiving visitors, in addition to the work of translation, fully take up the time of the two missionaries at this important central station, and leave no time for itineration. We earnestly appeal to the churches in England to send us, without delay, a medical missionary for Ispahan, two ordained missionaries for itineration, and two lady missionaries to carry the glad tidings of salvation to the women of Persia.

By the time this letter reaches you, the Medical Mission, Dispensary and Hospital in Julfa, Ispahan, will have been more than 500 days, since October 27th, 1888, without the presence of a medical missionary. It is more than twenty-one years now, since God opened the door for our Mission in Persia, and that Saint of God, Rev. Henry Venn, said, with tears in his eyes: "I am so thankful for this opening; it is one of those things we looked for in times past in vain, but which God is giving us now." And to the present day the staff of European missionaries is barely sufficient (indeed, it is not sufficient) to keep up the work in the two central stations, Ispahan and Baghdad.

Our Heavenly Father has sent us very many trials this year, and they have led us to cast our whole trust on Him, and to devote our time more to the raising up native helpers for his work in this land. We have a most hopeful theological class, and our Sunday and day schools are larger and in better order than ever before. While we feel that these works and the translation of God's Word cannot be neglected, we look around us into the vast wilderness of this immense mission district of 500,000 square miles, and ask our Christian brethren and sisters at home to join with us in the cry—"O Lord of the harvest, the harvest truly is great and the labourers are few; thrust forth labourers into thy harvest, for Jesus' sake. Amen."—Yours faithfully in Christ,

Robert Bruce.

C.M.S., Julfa, Ispahan, Persia.

THE GOSPEL SHIPS.

My Dear Sir,—Your readers have kindly helped me in supplying the little bags in which thousands of Bibles, Testaments, Gospel Books, almanacks, illustrated papers, tracts, prayer cards, &c., have been freely destributed among our seamen, troops and fishermen in Portsmouth Harbour, and in the various ports round our coasts, also in French ports up the Seine to Paris, &c., &c. Something like 10,000 bags have been filled with an average of from ten to twenty books and papers in each bag for the perusal of the men on board their ships, also the Bibles and Testaments where needed; more particularly among the French, hitherto unreached along the banks and locks, villages, &c. on the Seine during the past year.

Since January last our two Gospel ships have been most successfully worked in different ports in England and France. About 30,000 persons have been drawn on board during our visits to France. Many have been convinced of sin, and have carried away with them the Word of God to read for themselves. God has richly blessed us in pointing many to Jesus.

At Penzance, in the Mystery, this last summer our work was owned in signal blessing among the fishermen, seamen, and many of the residents of that port.

Our mission schooner is now condemned as being literally unfit for further work, being in a very rotten condition throughout. Some of the Penzance friends contributed towards the amount needed for a new ship, which we feel led to ask for. Various friends of the work have given or promised £560. We need help to build this missionary steamship for the benefit of our seafaring fellow men.

Bibles, Testaments, Gospel books, illustrated papers, and book bags (8 inches by 7 inches), knitted overalls, comforters, vests, &c., are greatly needed.—Yours very sincerely,

Stoke-road, Gosport. Henry Cook.

PEACE SOCIETY.—It is recommended that the third Sunday in December be observed by ministers and churches as a Peace Sunday. In response to the application of the Peace Society, the Congregational and Baptist Unions have made similar recommendation.

Dublin Hospitals.

THE ADELAIDE HOSPITAL.

WE were very gratified by a recent visit to this institution, in Peter-street, Dublin, the fundamental principle of which is that it should remain essentially religious and Protestant. But though only Protestants are received as in-patients, all are eligible for the dispensary and the accident wards. It affords all the comforts of a home, the best nursing that can be procured, and that spiritual aid which is so consoling and edifying in hours of weakness and depression. During the autumn of 1889 the Committee were obliged to close thirty beds on account of the heavy debt which weighed on the hospital. By the end of the year that debt was, through extraordinary effort, reduced to about one-half. Independently of this special effort, the income has exceeded expenditure by about £100. But this result has not been arrived at without, to some extent, impairing the efficiency of the institution, by the closing of the beds.

Though the number of patients for 1889 was somewhat less than in the preceding year, there has been a very large amount of work done, and a large number of patients treated, comparing favourably with the results achieved a few years ago. During the year many letters, some with handsome donations, have been received from grateful patients. All the sources of income show a decided increase, from which the Committee thankfully infer that the hospital has not lost ground in public estimation, but that the beneficence of its work is becoming more widely known and more fully appreciated. We hope that this support will be maintained and increased. Those who desired to testify to their admiration and respect for the late Mr. J. Denham Smith, determined, as the best method of doing so, to maintain two beds in his name in this hospital. Donors generally would feel well repaid if they could but witness and realise the pleasure conferred on the sick by their thoughtful sympathy. The chaplain, Rev. J. D. Smylie, has shown constant solicitude and devotion to the spiritual welfare of patients.

HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES.

We also accompanied our good friend Mr. Fry and Miss Fry on a visit to the incurables, many of whose peaceful and even happy faces were sufficient evidence of the fact that, though beyond the skill of the earthly physician, they had been healed by Jehovah-Rophi.

It is gratifying to observe the improved accommodation and the many comforts which the new wards afford for the patients, through the completion, last July, of the "Victoria Jubilee Wing," which has also permitted much-needed reconstruction of the old building. The Countess of Zetland, who visited the Hospital on Christmas Eve, made an entry in the visitors' book, that it was "all most charming, the patients so comfortable and well cared for." The reports of the Board of Superintendence and the Visiting Committee, after inspection without notice, indicate the high state of efficiency which has been maintained. During the time that the structural changes were being effected, little or no inconvenience was felt by the patients, for the Lady Superintendent was unremitting in attention.

The Governors warmly invite strangers to visit the Hospital and see for themselves the work which is being done. Notwithstanding the transfer to the building fund of nearly all the bequests of the year, that fund is indebted £1331 to the bank; and £1200 will shortly be due to the contractors. A similar transfer was made in the previous year. The general account is also overdrawn £130. It is desirable to encroach no further upon the invested funds, as that would necessitate a reduction in the number of beds occupied. Having regard to the claims of this Institution upon the public, it is hoped that financial difficulties may not be permitted to impair its usefulness, but that additional funds may allow of an increase in the number of patients. The Hospital is in Donnybrook-road. It is pleasing also to know that access to the patients is granted to Christian friends solicitous of their spiritual welfare.

MINERS IN SOUTH WALES.

DEAR SIR,—Whilst there are many of our mining population as respectable as one can find in any class of society, there are a great number whose social condition is such as no Christian can contemplate without a desire to assist them to better lives and happier homes. My wife and I have for the last eight years worked among our own people by means of Bible-classes, cottage meetings, mothers' meetings, &c., giving as far as lies in our power a helping hand to the churches and chapels in the district. We have the assistance of an earnest Christian lady for cottage visitation, half of whose income is provided by the proprietors of these works, and for the other half of which we are responsible. The small reading-room which we use for meetings is quite inadequate for our wants, and we are endeavouring to raise about £600 to build a coffee-house, reading-room and mission-room, in which we shall be able to meet members of all denominations on neutral ground.

With regard to the work in which colliers are engaged, many erroneous ideas have been circulated. Undoubtedly the vocation entails many hardships and dangers, but it is by no means the worst class of labour, nor is it so injurious to health as many would believe. It is not the class of work that constitutes the evil; it is in the use the men make of their spare time. One great drawback to the collier is, that for the most part he works and lives only amongst his own class, persons of refinement preferring to live at a distance from pitmen's dwellings. Much spare time is spent in pandering to the lower appetites; the terrible drinking curse blights many a promising life. The very mention of a holiday makes one tremble for the consequences to our young men. Public-houses are crowded, and for the next two or three days a large number of men absent themselves from work, to their own serious loss, as well as that of their employers.

The occasional visit of a minister of the Gospel can do little in the way of influencing a class so much left to themselves. If we had such an institution as I have named, we should be able to invite them into a comfortable hall, where they would mix with other people, have lectures, especially chosen to benefit them, and hear of the Saviour's love. There would thus be every inducement to lead better lives and forsake the public-house, at present the only place to which they can resort.—Yours very truly, THO. HENRY BAILEY.

Pentrebach House, Merthyr Tydfil.

MRS. AHOK.—Prayer is being answered for Mrs. Ahok. Though in such great trial, increased by the carrying on of heathen worship and sacrificing to the dead in her house, contrary to her wishes, the Lord has not allowed her faith to fail, but has enabled her to take it all as his will for her.

SOLDIERS' HOME, FERMOY.—This Home was recently opened under very happy circumstances. Christians of all denominations met for prayer, and the house was dedicated to the service of God. Miss Alice Williamson, the foundress of the Home, explained how she was first led to take up work amongst soldiers, and how, on taking the house, it was found necessary to pull it down to the foundation and rebuild at a cost of £1600, including the fitting up. In the evening over sixty soldiers came in, and spent a happy time in singing hymns and listening to short addresses.

HOPPICKERS' MISSION.

THE Lord was pleased to visit us with the quickening power of His spirit during our mission among the hoppickers in this district. Many gipsies from the New Forest, travelling-van men, and others professed faith in Christ, and have since joined Christian churches. Mr. H. Fisher, evangelist, who is labouring in the New Forest, and has charge of a mission station there, has admitted to the fellowship of his flock nine adults, who have openly witnessed for Christ; some of them were desperate characters before conversion.

Mr. Fisher took charge of one of our mission tents last season, and since his return home a piece of ground has been offered, on which to erect an iron room to seat one hundred persons, in an isolated corner away from any place of worship, in which these people could be gathered on the Lord's Day. One hundred pounds will be required. I shall be glad to take charge of any contribution, and will see it properly applied, or it may be sent direct to Mr. H. Fisher, Evangelist, East End, Lymington, Hants.

Alton, Hants. S. CHINN.

MR. LANE AT LEIGHTON BUZZARD.

THE Gospel mission here, conducted by Mr. W. R. Lane, briefly noted in our last, was one of unusual power and interest. In the course of a lengthened report of the meetings, the local Observer says:—

"The mission must be classed among the most remarkable of events in connection with the religious history of the town, for nothing, apparently, could have been more successful. Mr. Lane's simple, fervid, and candid eloquence on the first night of the mission made a deep impression, and night by night the crowds, eager to hear him, became larger and larger, until the capacious hall was found insufficient for the multitude, and the large doors had to be thrown back for the crowd in the vestibule. Never, we should say, did a preacher of the Gospel of Christ succeed, in this town, in drawing together in one compact union, to contribute to his good work, such a numerous and united body of Christians of all denominations, drawn from all classes of society, and including people of all ages; and seldom, it is certain, has any religious movement been the means of attracting such crowded and attentive audiences. Such was the hold Mr. Lane obtained upon the people, that it mattered not at what time a meeting might be held—whether at seven in the morning, at three in the afternoon, or at half-past seven in the evening—the same enthusiasm was apparent. It will be admitted that there must have been some extraordinary influence brought to bear to get together from a hundred to (on one occasion) three hundred people at a public prayer-meeting at seven o'clock on a cold, dreary morning in November. The secret of all was Mr. Lane's sound Scriptural knowledge and doctrine, fearless yet affectionate appeal to conscience, and the easy, simple, yet vivid power of illustration employed in bringing home the truth."

Another writer says:—"Seldom has religious feeling been aroused among the people of Leighton to the extent that has been during the past week by the evangelistic services conducted by Mr. Lane. Many who entertained prejudices (founded upon past experience) against spasmodic efforts of this kind were, in the present instance, thoroughly convinced that the missioner was a power for good in our town, and heartily wished him and his helpers God-speed in the work."

Indian Widows.—Miss MACGREGOR, 17, Gunterstone-road, Kensington, W., would be glad to receive pairs of disused spectacles for a widows' class in connection with the C.E.Z.M. Mission, Amritzar, India.

H.M.S. SERPENT.

DEAR SIR,—A few words about the Serpent and her ship's company will no doubt interest your readers. The ship was commissioned at Devonport, and our workers have been constantly on board, distributing Blue Backs, Ashore and Afloat, and Gospel books. A large Temperance Committee was formed on board by the Captain's consent, and was working well. One of my old friends, Walter Stivey, chief carpenter's mate, took the lead in temperance and Christian work, and was a member of the "Royal Naval Christian Union." His love to Christ and simple faith were very beautiful. A dear little child, a member of a Band of Hope, whom W. Stivey used to address, burst into tears and said, "Mr. Stivey used to talk to us about Jesus; now he's gone to Him." True, indeed; but how sudden, in a moment, almost the twinkling of an eye, himself and one hundred and seventy-two officers and men swept into eternity.

Our Sailors' Rest at Devonport is besieged by broken-hearted and often destitute wives and mothers; I am relieving them to the best of my power. They are much touched by Her Majesty's message of sympathy, sent to H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh; may they turn for the highest sympathy to the Saviour who died for them.—Yours, in Christian sympathy,

Devonport. AGNES E. WESTON.

HOMES FOR THE AGED POOR.

THIS charity has just attained its majority. Twenty-one years ago the first Home was opened—a rented house containing eight rooms, and capable of accommodating ten or twelve persons. From this small beginning, great results have sprung; this year two new Homes have been opened, 41 and 43, Penge-road, South Norwood, making a total of ten Homes, containing 102 rooms and 132 inmates. Four of these houses are rented, but the remaining six are the property of the charity, a mortgage of £2500 now remaining to be paid off.

Surely the aged poor should have a portion of our care and sympathy; old age spent within the walls of a workhouse seems a sad termination of life to those whose chief fault is that they are past work, and in the struggle for daily bread have been unable to save sufficient for old age and infirmity. A room, rent free, is a priceless boon to many, and at the present time there are more than seventy applicants for this small benefit. While the charity is philanthropic in its object, the spiritual needs of the inmates are not forgotten. Bible-readings are held in the various Homes, and many an aged one has been led to seek and find a Saviour, and prepare for the better home. Many have long belonged to the household of faith, and are bright examples of happy old age.

During the winter season, an effort will be made to supply the aged with coal, warmth being essential to their comfort.

Further particulars of the work will be sent on application to the hon. secretaries, Misses E. G. and S. A. Harrison, 5, Grandacre-terrace, Anerley, S.E.

BLIND CHILDREN.—A blessed work in training blind little ones is carried on in the Home at Goldsmith's-place, Kilburn Priory, rather less than half the cost of maintenance being contributed by relatives. Answers to prayer have been seen in several of the inmates yielding their hearts to the Saviour, and the change is very manifest in their lives and faces. On behalf of the Home, a sale is to be held in the Kilburn Town Hall on the 27th and 28th inst. The Lady Superintendent is Miss Emma F. Newbery, 127, Portsdown-road, Maida Vale, W.

A Homeless Vagrant.

BY DR. BARNARDO.

TOM COMMONS made personal application at my door in Stepney for admission, stating that both his parents were dead, and that, since the death of his father had left him to front the world alone, he had earned his living by selling matches in the streets, generally sleeping in a shelter at Westminster. Investigation brought to light the whole facts of the story, which in the main bore out Tom's statement. A clergyman who knew well, and had occasionally helped him, gave him an excellent character for honesty and industry. When he came to my door in rags, without a shirt, and with his feet on the stones, it would have been difficult for anyone but a magician to discern in this poor street-waif the making of a fine, independent, hearty fellow, such as I hope, by God's blessing, he may turn out by and by. It was his strong desire to go to sea or "somewhere abroad," and I hope, in due course, that he will qualify himself for our "Colony-over-the-Sea," in Canada. Tom has been under good influences, having occasionally attended mission-halls and mission services while on the streets; and I verily believe that the best change of all in Tom's life will not be merely that of his external habiliments, but in the hidden man of the heart. In the course of our "divine drudgery of doing good" this greatest of all rewards often crowns our efforts—the salvation for Eternity of our rescued protégés, as well as their rescue for time.

TOM COMMONS (aged 17).

To-day, in the Homes, 3610 young people, of all ages, are being carefully trained in industrial ways and in the fear of God for the duties of life here and the joys of the better life beyond.

18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

FOLKESTONE TRAMPS' MISSION.—Gipsy William Smith, 19, Coolinge-road, Folkestone, wants help for his winter work among the tramps. He has a room where he holds a weekly meeting for them, and desires to be able to give them an occasional meal. The Lord has given him some remarkable trophies of his grace in saving these human wrecks. He found a man playing the piano in a public-house for a shilling a night and his beer, who had formerly been a stockbroker on the Exchange, but took to drink because he lost £20,000. After accepting Christ he was placed in a small business. Many of the lodging-house people have been helped with stock.

THE HIGHWAY AND HEDGEROW MISSION.—Mrs. Moorhouse, writing from Leiston, near Saxmundham, Suffolk, commends to Christian interest the welfare of the fishing folks in villages around the east coast. During the winter they are much at liberty, and earnest workers would be able to impress them for their lasting good. Mrs. Moorhouse says:—"I have just taken a lingering farewell of another band of fishermen and farm labourers in a lonely hamlet on the coast, where we have been gipsying in our vans all the summer. They have filled our travelling hall for months. Among the converts is one man who had long been the victim of drink, spending as much as £100 a fortnight. He now enjoys the peace of God. I have rented an empty room in the place, in order to afford a counter attraction to the public house. Help to furnish, warm, and light it, as well as a supply of books and games, would be welcome."

MR. GEORGE MÜLLER'S TRAVELS.

MRS. MÜLLER, writing from Berne, describes in interesting detail the protracted evangelistic tours in which she has accompanied her husband. They are now on their sixteenth missionary journey. The fifteenth included visits to Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Ceylon, and India, where they stayed fourteen months. It ended in March last, when London was reached after travelling 36,430 miles. After five months in England, devoted to labour at Bristol in connection with the Ashley Down Orphan Houses and the Scriptural Knowledge Institution, travels were again begun. On August 8 they left London to visit cities in Switzerland and Germany. Mrs. Müller writes:—At the Evangelical Chapel, Heidelberg, Mr. Müller held several meetings; at Stuttgart he preached many times to crowded audiences; at Schaffhausen he also conducted services, vast multitudes of people listening to him in the Great Johannes Kirche. At Zürich he spoke many times at the Vereins Haus, and in St. Ann's Chapel also to very large congregations; at Winterthur he had great numbers of hearers at one of the churches, and at Basel he preached fifteen times to large assemblies.

At Aarau, at Biel, and at Berne, too, my husband has conducted crowded meetings, which, with those already mentioned, were all in the German language. This brief account of his labours is given, in order that he may be specially upheld by the prayers of readers of THE CHRISTIAN. At Zürich, at Stuttgart, and at Basel, Mr. Müller delivered several lectures on the Second Coming of Christ, and specially addressed Christian workers. We have both given away numbers of Bibles and Testaments, and circulated tens of thousands of German, French, Italian, Spanish, and English tracts amongst persons who understood those languages. In all my husband has preached sixty-three times.

In the course of our travels during the last fifteen years, he has been so blessed with health and strength as to be able, even now, through God's kindness, to undertake more work for the Lord than many much younger men could accomplish. When leaving England we contemplated undertaking a tour of six or eight weeks only; but in consequence of the prevalent indifference and scepticism in Germany and Switzerland, Mr. Müller has been led to extend the journey this sixteenth tour. We set out on our first missionary tour on March 26, 1875, and from then to the close of this tour we shall have travelled more than 170,000 miles by land and sea.

Letters for Mr. Müller, containing invitations for him to hold meetings, should be directed to him at New Orphan House, No. 3, Ashley Down, Bristol, whence they will be duly forwarded.

BRAZIL.—Marshal Deodoro da Fonseca has done away with the last vestige of slavery in Brazil. On October 28, the anniversary of the issue of the emancipation laws of 1871 and 1885, hundreds of former slaves, still undergoing long sentences under the exceptional law of June 10, 1835, received a full amnesty.

BRIGHTON CONVENTION.—The Countess of Chichester presided at the first of a series of meetings for young ladies, held at the Brighton Pavilion last week, in connection with the recent convention. The attendance at the first was so large that it was necessary to have an overflow meeting in an adjoining room, and the whole series were well attended. Mrs. Tottenham and Miss Gollock addressed the meetings, taking for their subject, "The Life which is Life indeed," "Life a pilgrimage: the things to be met with on the way," and "How shall we know the way?" Very earnest appeals were made to those present to seek and find the true way of life in early youth, and, having found, to follow Jesus in the way. The addresses were given in a very bright, winsome manner, and were listened to with close attention.

A GOOD WORK AT SWINDON.

A large and enthusiastic gathering assembled at the Central Hall, Swindon, on November 13, for the eleventh anniversary of the Wiltshire branch of the Evangelistic Mission.

The hall was twice filled for tea, and was completely packed for the evening meeting, at which Mr. Thomas Harris, of Calne, presided. The good-will of other Christians in the town was proved by the presence of not a few pastors and others from the various denominations.

After prayer, earnest words were spoken by several friends, which were calculated to cheer and encourage the hearts of the workers. God has graciously blessed the work during past years among the poorer classes in Swindon, and especially among many of those engaged in the railway factory. The work is in full vigour, and the workers are full of hope for still greater things.

The local ministers have arranged to hold united Gospel meetings on Sunday evenings, in the large Mechanics' Institute, after the ordinary church and chapel services. The hall, at the first of these on Sunday last, was well filled, when Mr. Pugh preached.

CAMBRIDGE NOTES.

BY A GRADUATE.

Following closely on Miss Steel's endowment of theological studentships at Corpus comes the announcement of the Lady Kay scholarships at Jesus College; one is to be given every year, and is open to any member of the University who has taken a first or second class in any tripos, provided not more then two years have elapsed since then, and that the candidate intends to take holy orders. The value of the scholarships are from £40 to £60. This year the candidate will be chosen without any examination.

The last two Sundays the University sermons have been preached by Rev. H. C. G. Moule. In the first of these Mr. Moule said:—"It is this law, this constant spiritual fact, that Jesus Christ is the autocratic Owner of his followers, and then the resultant of it in his call to them to consent ex animo to his possessorship, to yield themselves out and out to the will of God in Christ, that I seek to hold up before you this afternoon. A more familiar truth in the abstract I could not lay before a Christian assembly. But is it not just one of those truths which mean practically next to nothing while they are entertained as it were in the air and at a distance, but which for many even convinced and devout Christians, need only to be ...translated into here and now, in order to become discoveries as of a new world, revolutions that bring in a new age in the history of the soul?"

The contributions of the University branch of the C.M.S. for 1890 amount to £295, the senior and junior members of the University about equally dividing this sum. Trinity with £54, Corpus with £39, and St. John's with £32, send in the largest amounts.

CHINA.—A telegram from Shanghai announces an outbreak of religious fanaticism in the province of Szechuen, resulting in a terrible massacre of native converts. During the recent Buddhist festival popular opinion became greatly excited against them, and organised mobs set out to attack the Christian villages, burning and looting in all directions. At least twenty native converts were killed, their bodies being thrown into the Yang Tse Kiang.

SABBATH OBSERVANCE.—In all four wards at the recent Newcastle-on-Tyne municipal elections, the candidates of the "Sunday music party" were defeated, and the candidates supported by the Newcastle Branch of the Lord's Day Observance Society were returned by large majorities. "For a quiet Christian Sunday 2979 votes were cast, while for the secular day 903 only were given.

AMONG THE COSTERS.

The work at Costermongers' Hall, Hoxton, goes unostentatiously forward, and, notwithstanding its growing comprehensiveness, the service carried on was never more effective than at present. Besides its great hall, capable of accommodating about 800 persons, Costers' Hall has thirty-two other rooms, so that many things can be carried on at the same time. The success attending the Gospel services, the Bible readings, and the prayer-meetings is very gratifying. From time to time conversions occur, and it is said that "a steady light always beams from the Word of God in the Sunday-schools and Bible-classes." On week nights evening classes, lectures, and the free use of an excellent library enable young persons especially to improve their education, while persons of all ages are provided with the means of wholesome recreation. Temperance and thrift receive a large share of attention. Nearly forty meetings of different kinds are held at the hall every week.

During the winter months the cocoa breakfasts to needy Board-school children will be continued. The Irish stew, sold at a nominal rate to the poor people, is also found to be an intensely appreciated boon. To meet all this expenditure, in addition to the ordinary expenses of the Mission, new supporters are needed. The Seaside Holiday Home will become an accomplished fact as soon as a suitable building can be found on the South Coast. The gifts of two friends have placed this scheme beyond the possibility of failure.

Another problem Mr. Orsman is trying to solve is, How to house the poorest of the wage-earning classes. The ordinary model dwellings are quite beyond the means of people who earn only about 10s. a week. Mr. Orsman proposes to secure from the London County Council a cleared space at the lowest charge, and then to erect an experimental building of 100 rooms. The total will cost £5500, towards which one friend has promised £2000.

Friends wishing for the new report should address Mr. W. J. Orsman, Milton House, Shacklewell-green, London, N.E.

SEAMEN'S REST, MARSEILLES.

Dear Sir,—On my return I found much to attend to. The annual report and statement of accounts will, I hope, be in the hands of friends early next month. We have had the joy of speeding several missionaries outward bound, and on each Wednesday since our return the weekly prayer-meeting has been a precious opportunity for counsel, praise, and prayer.

It would give us much joy, and prove, I trust, mutually helpful, if Christians passing through, whether missionaries or otherwise, would look us up, especially on Wednesday afternoons, when a prayer-meeting in French and English, followed by a cup of tea, affords a happy opportunity for pleading together and learning to know the varied needs of our respective work.

Rentals, always demanded here in advance, are overdue, besides other matters requiring immediate outlay; therefore intending donors will greatly help by sending in their gifts without waiting for the annual report. We shall value prayer that this winter's campaign may prove a time of great blessing.—Yours in the Master's service,

Charles E. Faithfull.

Quai du Port, 38, Marseilles.

GAMBLING.—Over two hundred ministers of various denominations have issued through The Yorkshire Post, an appeal on the subject of gambling and betting. They beg their fellow-townsmen to eschew these in all forms. Leeds, they declare, has been mentioned among the places where the evil is strongest. They ask that it may be named also for the hearty, manly, and successful resistance by which evil is encountered.

"WITH JESUS."

[Motto chosen by a missionary when beginning a fresh year of work.]

I am living my life "with Jesus,"
Close to Him day by day,
Walking with Him in communion sweet
Along the winding way.

"With Jesus" I walk in the sunshine,
When joys my pathway strew;
The shadows with Him I fear not—
He'll lead me safely through.

I am spending my time "with Jesus,"
Each hour of every day;
In work or waiting I feel Him near,
As the moments pass away.

I'm walking with Him in the city,
Through all the noise and din;
Holding his hand at the crossings,
Shielded by Him from sin.

I'm walking with Him in the pastures,
Beside the waters still;
'Tis there I hear his whispers of love,
'Tis there I learn his will.

"With Jesus" I'm fighting the battle—
Rather, He fights for me;
And in triumph sure He leadeth me,
With song of victory.

So "with Jesus" in joy or trial,
That is as He sees best;
In "perfect peace" I'm following on,
My heart in Him at rest.

S. M. A.

NOTES FROM BOURNEMOUTH.

On Monday of last week Mr. and Mrs. Booth-Tucker spoke at a drawing-room meeting at the house of Major-General Hutchinson in the afternoon, and at Shaftesbury Hall at night. One present at the former meeting says that he has not known a meeting marked by so manifest presence and power of the Holy Spirit, since the ever-memorable year 1859.

Mr. W. R. Lane has been holding an eight days' mission at the Y.M.C.A. here. The rooms are not large, and the weather and other circumstances were not favourable, but the work grew from day to day. The Bible-readings in the afternoon were highly instructive. The ensuing evangelistic meetings, for men only, deepened in interest as the week advanced, and at the close on Sunday night it was manifest that not only a considerable number of young fellows had decided for Christ, but that they had decided in a decisive way, which promises a valuable contingent of effective Christian workers.

Captain Dawson, whose health is not good, and with whom this town does not very well agree, nevertheless cleaves to his post like a good soldier of Jesus Christ; and will recommence his afternoon meetings in Shaftesbury Hall on Sunday week, 30th inst.

The new Congregational chapel rendered necessary by the numbers attracted to hear Rev. Ossian Davies, proceeds apace. Meanwhile the meetings are held in Shaftesbury Hall.

The West Cliff Tabernacle (Rev. George Wainwright) will provide, when finished, much-needed accommodation, in this rapidly increasing neighbourhood, for those who desire to walk in the old paths of Gospel truth. An aged clergyman has taken a hall at Westbourne, and fitted it up as a church, where he conducts the worship and preaches on evangelical lines; but the Bishop refused his licence.

CHRISTIAN UNION.—On Saturday evening, Nov. 8, the first of a series of meetings in connection with the recently formed Walthamstow Christian Union was held in the Free Methodist Iron Hall. Various denominations were represented and much joy was expressed at the exhibition of unity among those who hold the Head, even Christ. The addresses emphasised the fundamental points of Christian agreement, and showed a longing for combination in aggressive effort. On the following day, the Sabbath, the members of the Methodist Free Church joined the Salvation Army in an open-air demonstration in the morning. Members of other communions were also present. Other similar meetings are being arranged, and a definite plan of action will, it is hoped, soon be decided upon.

For the Young.

SUNSHINE.

I EXPECT numbers of you boys and girls have been hearing a great deal about Mr. Stanley, and reading accounts of his wonderful adventures. Some may have seen a picture of Mr. Stanley and many of the natives coming out of a terribly dark forest, with trees one hundred and eighty feet high, inhabited by cruel, savage dwarfs. How delighted they all looked to get out of that forest where they had been travelling for some weeks! The black servants, though grown-up men, laughed, jumped, and skipped at sight of the sunshine; they forgot all their troubles, and danced for joy.

They knew what a difference the light makes; now they could see their way, and know when enemies were coming near; the air was fresher and clearer; they felt happier, healthier, stronger now, with the light from the blue skies above streaming down to cheer and strengthen.

It makes a difference too, to some of us here in England if we do not see any sunshine for many days; and when, after a long winter, we get a little brightness, what a change comes over the face of the country—the flowers peep through the brown earth, the bare trees begin to bud, the birds to sing their hymns of praise.

I want to tell you about another kind of sunshine which ought to fill every home, every school, every child's heart, making boys and girls so happy they cannot help laughing, singing, and playing; for God loves all things He has made to be glad and full of joy.

Come with me, and I will show you the way to a home that has sunshine the darkest days in November. "What a pokey little place!" you would say to yourself, if you went for the first time. A four-post bed (taking up all space and light), a perambulator, round table, chairs—all crowded into this one room.

When I called last year, a hot day in June, a fire was burning in the grate, for it was tea-time, and in such homes as this the people eat, work, and sleep in one room. In one corner, lying on the bed, was "Willie"—a scrap of a boy for ten, with long, lean arms, pale face, and big, shining eyes. He had been too ill to taste food all day; his lips were fevered, his head aching intensely. On my way I had noticed rows of refreshing-looking strawberries. "Just the thing for that poor child," I thought; so I said nothing, but went off to make my purchase. Alas! they were very dear, I could only buy a few. Soon I was back, laid them by the side of the sick child, and hurried away, scarcely waiting to hear his pleased thanks. I paused, however, on the doorstep, for clearly I heard the little boy saying, "Mother, you must come and have some; they will do you so much good!" This wise little lad had learned early that pleasures are worth twice as much if shared with others.

The next time I called on the mother, the two younger children were ill, and Mrs. A—— afraid to leave them to go herself to the hospital. But Willie was being laden with bottles, and charged with many messages to the doctors, so that they should know what medicine to send. He was listening most attentively. "Will he not forget?" I asked, when he had gone. "Oh no!" said his mother, "he never forgets what I tell him, and always gives the right messages. He is used to going to the hospital for me."

Two months ago Willie's mother was laid up herself; the lodger from upstairs came in to help sometimes, but the little boy did the most, and was as willing, thoughtful, and unselfish as ever. Though the sun shone brightly outside, and he could hear other boys at their games, for a whole week he stayed in that hot, close room, waiting carefully on his mother, and never once asking to go into the street for a game.

He would boil the kettle, nurse the wee baby, and wash up the tea things as carefully as any grown-up person, always happy and contented. He is wonderfully kind and gentle to the younger ones, never scolds and cries, "I'll tell Mother," but persuades them to be good in the most coaxing way. With many little people what a trial it is going to bed early; just very often when the best fun of the day begins, nurse comes in with an aggravatingly cheerful face to say it is bed-time. Willie's little brothers have no nurse; but just now, though he does not like it very much, he goes to bed quite early, because he knows, if he is lying by their side, that then the younger ones will soon fall contentedly to sleep.

Can you guess the other kind of sunshine which filled Willie's heart, and brought brightness to his dark home? Just the sunshine of love, making him forget himself and think first of others. As the dewdrops on a summer's morning reflect the light of the sun, so many a child can reflect the light of the Sun of Righteousness, if like Willie they will turn to Jesus saying, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" and then in his strength strive to be loving, kind, and unselfish.

E. M.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Nov. 23, Exod. xl. 28—38; Mon., Nov. 24, Jas. i. 1—15; Tues., Nov. 25, Jas. i. 16—27; Wed., Nov. 26, Jas. ii. 1—13; Thurs., Nov. 27, Jas. ii. 14—26; Fri., Nov 28, Jas. iii. 1—18; Sat., Nov. 29, Jas. iv. 1—17.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Waterloo, Liverpool, Nov. 23 to Dec. 3. Mr. H. Hutchinson, Gorton, Manchester, Nov. 23—28; St. Chrysostom's, Liverpool, Nov. 29 to Dec. 5. Mr. James S. Tyler, Coupland-street, Greenheys, Manchester, Nov. 23—28. Mr. T. Lewes Sayer, Public Hall, Romford, to Nov. 25. Mr. E. T. M. Dennes, Brockley, to Nov. 21. Mr. George Goodman, St. Thomas' Schoolroom, Lambeth, Nov. 22—30. Mr. E. Hughes, St. James' School, Bermondsey, to Nov. 22. Mr. E. Collier, Trinity Hall, Battersea, Nov. 23—28.

MR. MACKAY'S DIARY.*

DURING the life of Mtesa the missionaries were at least protected from personal violence, and frequently were in favour, and permitted fully to carry on their work; but the old heathenism still kept its place in the hearts of the greater number of the chiefs, and, but for Mtesa's strong hand and superior judgment and sympathy with enlightenment and progress, would frequently have broken out into active hostility to the white men.

In October of 1884 Mtesa died, and his son, Mwanga, a weak, vain, and vicious man, a worse and altogether weaker man than Mtesa, came to the throne.

Shortly afterwards intelligence of the arrival of Bishop Hannington by way of Kavirondo reached the capital, and at once placed the missionaries in the greatest personal danger, from the long-standing fears of the Baganda that the appearance of white men from the east, and by what they called "the back-door of Uganda," was the sure precursor of conquest. It was this fear of coming danger, and not hatred to the Christian religion, that led the chiefs of Uganda, with Mwanga at their head, to demand the death of the bishop. When the deed was done, a greater fear took possession of Mwanga. He was in constant terror lest the power of England should be brought to bear to revenge the murder of the bishop. This fear, working in his barbarous heart, led to a chronic state of jealousy and suspicion against the Mission and its work, and roused the beast in him, till it led to an outbreak of the old heathen cruelty, which had abated, and in some of its violent forms ceased. The new religion forbids cruelty and murders, therefore Mwanga would be cruel and murderous; and then followed mutilations' strangling, burning, and unmentionable horrors, some of which are described in Mackay's letters home, but over which he for the most part draws the veil. He was afraid lest too much might be made of these so-called martyrdoms, yet he did not doubt the real piety of many of the sufferers.

"OUR FIRST MARTYRS

have won the martyr's crown. On January 30, 1885, three Christian lads were burnt alive, after being terribly mutilated, for their reception of, and adherence to, the faith of Jesus Christ. They were snatched from our very presence, accused of no crime but that they were learning from us, and first tortured, then roasted alive....

"Some young Christians are very bold, sometimes, I think, more courageous than prudent. While many of them have gone into hiding through natural alarm for their lives, others we have to urge to keep out of the way, knowing that they are in great danger. But whether their retirement has been voluntary or compulsory, I myself do not know of a single case in which anyone preferred to draw back and renounce Christianity.

"But you need not be anxious for us. We are, if possible, more especially in God's hands in time of trouble than in peace and prosperity. Even kings' hearts are turned by God. We know that we shall ever have your prayers, and hopes, and best wishes, and remembrances.

"Mwanga seems afraid, but we have seen no trace of repentance in him as yet, only increased suspicion and fear of us. We had to give him a valuable present of all our most valuable effects, to remove his dread that we meant revenge for the death of the bishop. His head page, a Christian man and most faithful servant, he ordered to be burned alive, for saying to him that it was wrong to kill the bishop, as his father Mtesa would not have done anything of the kind.

"WHAT DEEP ANXIETY

we ourselves have been in, I cannot describe. First, our bishop was condemned to death, and cruelly murdered; then we were under a similar sentence, but the good hand of the Lord has been upon us, and we are still spared. Then our converts were practically doomed, one good lad being burned to death, and others arrested and sentenced likewise, while no one was permitted to come near us under pain of execution....

"Mwanga's day has come. Uganda has rebelled, and the poor king has had to flee, getting into his canoe with some boys and women and paddling for dear life till he reached Magu, where he is being at present fleeced by the Arabs of all he has (only a few rifles) for food and clothing. After he has spent all he will learn to be in want. I have already sent for him to come here, that I may help him on the way to the coast, as if the Baganda come after him they will surely put him to death.

"I should willingly do my utmost to save the poor creature's life, in spite of all his cruelties and murders, even although I run no little risk in helping him, for the Arabs will try to make capital out of him, while the Baganda may complain that I stole away their king. He was afraid to come away from Magu with only my men, lest the Arabs should send after him and arrest him. He implores me to go to fetch him myself, and take him anywhere I like, or slay him if I like. Or he is ready to go with me to England, which he has heard is an asylum for deposed kings. But I am unwilling to risk going to Magu, lest Walker and Gordon might get into trouble in Uganda through any indiscretion of mine. I must try once more to send and persuade the timid fugitive to get away from the Arabs' clutches and come here, where I shall do what I can to help him on the road southwards."

* MACKAY OF UGANDA. By his Sister. 7s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton.

Melbourne Memoranda.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MODEL SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

THE Sunday-school buildings of the Presbyterian Union Memorial Church are situated in North Melbourne. All the arrangements for lessons, for visitation of scholars, and for keeping teacher and scholar "in touch" with one another, are most thorough. The teachers' preparation class is attended by teachers from the other denominations as well as those from other Presbyterian churches. The superintendent, Mr. William Howat, is an enthusiast in his work and a most thorough-going Christian abstainer. The teachers are a united and devoted band of workers kept together largely bythe spirit of genuine love which pervades the whole work.

CHILDREN'S SERVICES.

Although we have no Josiah Spiers or "Children's Bishop" here, the highest interests of the young of the colony are not overlooked. In many of our churches a few minutes during the Sunday services are devoted to special words for the little ones. Services are also held for several nights at a time at some central Sunday-school building or church, and great blessing is experienced, as the results testify. South Melbourne, Hawthorn, and Ballarat have had such times of refreshing somewhat recently. The societies of Christian Endeavour in several suburban districts are centres of practical instruction in the ways of righteousness.

OPEN-AIR WORK.

A few evenings ago, at Ballarat, I had the pleasure of meeting with a band of about thirty consecrated men and women who carry on regular open-air services in that handsome city. In and around Melbourne many are engaged in this branch of Christian effort. Since the beginning of the present strike one who attempted to preach Christ to a large assemblage was set upon by a number of roughs who scoffed at the name of Jesus. The preacher was hardly saved from violence by the intervention of a number of the police.

SABBATH MORNING FELLOWSHIP UNION

This Union of the Presbyterian Associations of Victoria has been a great success. It is two years since it was started, the second anniversary gathering having been held lately. Mr. Robert Gillespie, the veteran worker among young men, has been unanimously re-elected president. During the past year the Union lost two men of great usefulness in the Church and mission field, Rev. J. F. Ewing, of Toorak, and Rev. J. H. Davies, in Corea. The latter had not long started his work in that country when he was stricken down by smallpox. His sister, who was associated with him in missionary effort, has since returned to Victoria. Temperance is to be a more distinctive feature of the work of the Union in the future.

TRANSLATION.

A few weeks ago Rev. Thos. Nisbet (Presbyterian) was inducted into the charge at Hawthorn. Mr. Nisbet has done good service at Orange, in New South Wales, where he had been settled for about seven years. Though but a young man, he brings considerable experience to the work in this fresh field. His thorough, manly, evangelical preaching is much enjoyed.

TEMPERANCE.

Mr. Richard Coad, of the United Kingdom Alliance, has twice visited Melbourne of late. He preached on Sundays and lectured throughout the week. Great crowds were attracted by his quaint but genuine and able oratory. Many pledges were taken and much good done.

[1096]

Y.M.C.A.

A large new set of buildings for the Y.M.C.A. is in course of construction in Bourke-street. This is a good sign of growth. The seventeenth annual Christian Conference under its auspices was a good time. Meetings were held daily, Tuesday to Friday, August 5—8, to consider the subject of "Christian Service," the last meeting, a missionary one, taking place in the Melbourne Town Hall.

CHINA INLAND MISSION.

We have been highly privileged by a visit from the veteran pioneer of the China Inland Mission, our old and much-respected friend, Rev. J. Hudson Taylor. His beard has changed from brown to white in his Master's service; but his gentle, persuasive voice is still the same, and power accompanies his utterances as of old. By his moving words on his present heart-motto, "To Every Creature," Mr. Taylor has greatly stirred up believers; and the testimony of Messrs. Beauchamp and Whitehouse to the blessedness of the work among China's millions has excited the interest of many in this great enterprise, and recalls to us vividly the memorable lines by Rev. H. G. Guinness "A million a month in China dying without God."

SALVATION ARMY.

Perhaps nowhere in the whole world has this great organisation found itself so highly respected as in Victoria. Colonel Barker has made it a power for good in the colony, and it has spread with great rapidity throughout all Australasia. Few have had more opportunities of inquiring into the genuiness of its work in these lands than myself. Having known the founder when he carried on the Christian Mission in Whitechapel, I have watched with lively interest the rapid progress of the Army. In the chief cities of the colonies and in many an inland township, I have visited the Army quarters; have been present at their meetings in the open air and in the barrack-room; have tramped along with the country band from the Training Home when out on the warpath, and met the lonely outpost at his duty; have known something of the prison brigade work in the city; and have inspected the books of this great mission; have met the officers at all sorts of times and places, in their offices in the daytime, in their enthusiastic meetings in the evenings, and in the railway carriage, or out selling The War Cry. My testimony is that this great work is one of the most complete, aggressive, and useful agencies of these days for gathering in the non-church-going portions of our populations; for raising the fallen and outcast members of society, and for bringing into service those who are reclaimed, and thus largely preventing them from returning to their evil ways.

Colonel and Mrs. Barker are soon to leave Victoria for England, and their loss will be largely felt; for, under God, they have greatly contributed to the high position which the Army occupies in our midst. They are workers of the right sort, and the over-crowded farewell meetings in the largest available buildings in our large cities testify to the high esteem in which they are held by the outside public, as well as by the great masses of Salvationists themselves.

A WORKING GIRLS' INSTITUTE.—In connection with the Tent-street Mission, Brady-street, Bethnal-green, a Girls' Institute was recently formed. The age of admission is under fifteen. Instead of spending their leisure time at street corners, the girls now assemble in the mission-hall, where, besides receiving religious instruction in a bright, familiar style, they engage in sewing, knitting, singing, and the like. Since the Institute was opened, the girls have attended the mission services proper, with great regularity, and the marked improvement in their appearance and behaviour has been a source of gratitude to Mr. John Galt, the district missionary. The first public meeting, held on Wednesday evening of last week, was well attended.

EXPELLED FROM A CHINESE CITY.

MR. BLANDFORD and his wife have recently had painful experiences in China. In a letter home, Mrs. Blandford thus writes of Tsingngan Hsien, whence they were expelled after a residence of over three months:—

"The people were gathering round us, and the little children were coming in freely. A number came desiring to break off opium, from poor men to Yamán officials. It was a great day in Tsingngan when the first man knelt in prayer; indeed two knelt down the same evening.

"The people accused us of having two idols, one given to us by a convert, and the other my little baby organ (which, by the way, they had never heard or seen); the latter was supposed to have been the idol which had given them all the trouble, as it had so many teeth (the notes)! Three men have written a joint letter, in which they say they are continuing reading the Word, and prayer, and that to death they will not alter their minds that Jesus is true, and they will for ever believe the Gospel. This letter was a great joy and cheer to us. We notice as soon as some of these men confess the Lord Jesus, and testify for Him, they have nothing but trouble—persecution, or sickness, or sudden calamity.

"The scholars put up a notice calling on the students to turn us out, July 18. We let the magistrate know, and he sent two men to guard the 'Jesus Hall'; also spoke to the students collectively on the subject of not interfering with us. I went to the hall as usual on the 18th. Crowds of students gathered and saw me inside with the women and girls, but all was orderly. We afterwards heard that an attempt had been made to gather the rioters that morning; but it had failed, as some of the men expressed unwillingness to injure us. However, next day, just after I had returned from the hall, we heard tremendous cheering and banging of stones. This was a mob destroying the place. The inside doors in time were stoned and broken open, the rioters rushing into the courtyard shouting, 'Ts'eu!' ('Begone!')

"We were stoned on the street, and followed by part of the mob as they drove us out of the North Gate down to the ferry. After seeing us into the boat, they gave us this parting word, that if we returned that day they would beat us to death! After crossing the ferry and walking some way, we were followed by the landlord, who lent us 400 cash, and then another man came with 200, both men gave us their umbrellas and fans. After some hours' travelling we found the boat lying below Ngan-i. Three days later we were back at Wuch'en. We learned that after our departure a complete smash up was made of everything we had there. A bonfire was made of our Bibles, dictionaries, commentaries, and many valuable books both English and Chinese; also bedding of all kinds, clothes, &c., were committed to the flames. I feel very hopeful that this will turn out for the furtherance of the Gospel."

A MODEL MISSIONARY CHURCH.—The pastor of a church in Pennsylvania, remitting money in aid of mission work in Africa, writes on October 14:—"I have been privileged to send to Japan, China, and India, since January 1 this year, 1800 dollars (nearly £370) from the members and friends of my little church of some 250 active resident members, thus supporting about twenty-five native evangelists and Bible-readers. Many individual members of my church have their own representative in China and Japan. Others form bands or societies, and thus support a Bible-reader. The first young lady who asked for her own Bible-reader in Japan, about a year and a half ago, has just sailed for India, to be our own Zenana missionary there; she will still support her own representative in Japan. May the blessed work of the Spirit continue and abound among us and all churches more and more."

THE LATE

MAJOR GEORGE ORMONDE STONEY,

Christian Soldier.

OUR sketch this week has for its subject one who served God with no less diligence than he served his Queen and country. Officers in the military and naval service exercise a potent influence either for good or evil. It is a joy to find men in earthly authority showing true submission to heavenly authority; fighting in the battle against sin and the devil as well as maintaining peace at home and national honour abroad.

George Ormonde Stoney, of the King's Own Scottish Borderers, whose death, a few months ago, was deplored by all who knew him, was a son of Major-General G. Butler Stoney, widely known as a Christian officer. He was born in 1846, and brought up in a religious atmosphere. At an early age he entered the army, passing through Sandhurst after one year's study. So successful was he as a student at the military college that he obtained his commission without purchase, and was offered a choice of regiments. His subsequent advancement was rapid, and, on being sent to Canada in 1865, he was known as the "boy" adjutant.

While there he came to a knowledge of Christ. His conversion was in direct answer to prayer. The father was a member of an officers' prayer-meeting in Dublin, and one subject of petition twenty-five years ago was the spiritual condition of the young man in Canada. After a season of earnest prayer on the part of his friends in Ireland, the son wrote:—

> Ten days ago I was very anxious to be decided for Christ as my Saviour, but I thought the feeling would not last long. Such, however, is not the case. I am now a new creature in Christ; old things have passed away, and all things have become new. As a decided follower of the Lord Jesus, I shall have a hard battle against the world, but with God's help I am sure to overcome.

This letter was dated March 10, the very day the six officers were praying. Thus, while they were yet speaking, the gracious Lord answered, according to his promise. The young Christian soldier took as his motto 1 Cor. xv. 58, and those who knew him most intimately could not but observe that he aimed at "always abounding in the work of the Lord."

Mr. Stoney never lost an opportunity of witnessing for the Lord. In his regiment in Canada he had a weekly prayer-meeting; subsequently, while holding an appointment as adjutant of militia at Knaresborough, he held services in the poorhouse on Sundays, and visited those of the inmates who were too feeble to attend. As aide-de-camp for some time to General Russell, at Dover, Mr. (then Captain) Stoney found himself the friend of an officer who was a fellow worker in the cause of Christ.

The now extensively supported Soldiers' Institute in Dublin was first thought of by Captain Stoney in 1874. Seeing how much it was needed, he asked his friends to help in the scheme. Being ordered away on duty, he committed the charge to his father, whose labours have been rewarded by the signal success of the undertaking. In 1884, Major Stoney went to India, on his promotion, to join his regiment, and, early in the present year, was sent in command of the regiment on an expedition to Burmah. His health was sadly affected by the climate, and after a campaign—the Chin Lushai—attended by much hardship he was invalided home. He joined his wife and young family at Tübingen, Wurtemburg, in June, and died from inflammation of the lungs, supervening upon general bodily weakness. His remains were interred with military honours, and many expressions of sympathy for his family came from German officers and pastors. While in Burmah he sent a message to his father in these terms: "I am going on and on, and am quite happy. If I were not meant to be here, I should not be." This disclosed his unflagging confidence in God.

With Major Stoney providence was no meaningless word. Assured that he was doing his duty, he was without anxiety; moreover, he exerted himself to "be of good courage," and, in fact, downright cheerful in disposition. His last days were full of peace, and he witnessed a good confession on the bed of death. With beautiful appropriateness his family accompanied him in singing "Onward, Christian Soldier," and at the closing scene his children cheered his heart with "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." He would fain anticipate the glory of the coming dawn by joining in the melody; and while his heart was thus overflowing with joy he entered upon a realisation of the hope of the weary—"Sweetly my soul shall rest."

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Lombardi & Co., 15, Pall Mall East, S.W.)

Many army and navy officers have been widely known in the world of evangelisation because of their outside activity in the cause of Christ. Major Stoney's sphere was, for the most part, inside the service, among his own men. His fellow officers, even some who made no Christian profession, have testified of his high character as well as his military smartness. For the most part they respected him for his frank, outspoken earnestness. One of them, however, regularly scoffed at the Major's views on religious matters. On one occasion, when going on leave, this officer accepted a tract, and promised that he would read it. Need it be said that Major Stoney prayed that the message might be blessed to his brother officer? When the two met again the erstwhile scoffer said, "If that tract is true, I am lost." A conversation followed, with the result that a now well-known Christian worker was won for the Lord.

Major Stoney had a great love for children, and took a keen interest in those of his regiment, always conducting a class himself in the Sunday-school. One child, when dying, sent for the Major "to help her to sing." She fell asleep rejoicing in the Saviour. Her father, who had been a drunkard, was deeply affected, and became an abstainer, and a true disciple of Christ. The Major himself became a teetotaler because a private, when remonstrated with for drunkenness, promised to take the pledge "if 'the Captain' did!"

One who was long on intimate terms with Major Stoney writes:—

I first met him at the great meeting-place for Christians in Glasgow—Dr. (now Professor) A. R. Simpson's, twenty-five years ago, and we became warm friends at once. He was so very frank and cheerful in his manner, and so outspoken on the subject which was nearest his heart, that it was a treat to be in his society. Shortly after this the "King's Own Borderers" were quartered at Ayr, where I saw a great deal of him. He had his quiet work there amongst the men and children of the regiment, as he had elsewhere. I have good reason to know that his speaking so freely as he did in whatever society he was, was blessed to some of those with whom he came into contact. I well remember one Sunday afternoon, a number of us were seated on the grass together, when he took a "Forget me not" marker out of his Bible, and gave it to me, saying, "There, Jack; pick out the small 'm' and put in a big one—'Forget Me not.'" Then he went on about forgetting Christ, and how some people went to places where they had to leave Him at the door. What he said went home to the heart of a young lady present, who was thus brought to decision for Christ. He was very fond of hymns, and many were the "hymn parties" which we had—times of refreshing to all who took part in them.

While in India the Major was Acting-President of the Army Temperance Association, in the work of which he took much interest. He did his utmost to keep up regimental prayer-meetings, and to give a helping hand to every good work. A man beloved of his acquaintances has great opportunities of working for God and eternity. Major Stoney was held in high esteem; and he was not slow to speak candidly to his friends concerning their highest concerns. As a son, a husband, a father, and a brother, he was, in the fullest sense of the word, amiable and true. As a witness for Christ in the Army, he was one of a type of unostentatious workers, which we could wish were more numerous—telling forth the truth in love, and thus winning attention to the claims of God and the invitation of the Gospel.

CAUTION.—The public are warned against a man professing to be a persecuted Jew, and nephew of Aaron Matthews. He represents himself as having just reached England in quest of his uncle at Newcastle-on-Tyne, to which place he desires to borrow the railway fare. The man is an impostor who has really been in this country for some time.

SOUTHGATE.—The success of Mr. C. Wickerson's work in this place has been highly encouraging, from its beginning in connection with the Metropolitan Tabernacle Country Mission. A labouring man, speaking at a recent meeting, said: "You all know me as a once drunken reprobate; but, after twenty years of prayer for me, my mother sits by my side to praise God with me for his grace. I was put out of a public-house for making a disturbance, and, strange to say, felt an inclination to visit the Baptist chapel. What I heard led to a second visit, and the Lord saved my soul. My wife, too, has found peace through the services." The work is now carried on under difficulties. The population of Southgate is of a somewhat different character from that found in an ordinary country village; for tramps and rough characters abound, and, with many poor but more respectable attendants at the chapel, are brought under the good influence of Mr. Wickerson's ministrations. The people are unable, without help from outside, to erect the much-needed permanent brick building necessitated by the growing spiritual needs of the congregation, which is poor and has many very aged members. The conditions which would be imposed by the local board render the erection of a larger iron building undesirable. The land has cost £250, that sum being lent by Mr. Spurgeon; but, on being repaid, the whole amount will be given to the building fund. Mr. Wickerson resides at the Green, Winchmore-hill, N.

[1098]

Gathered Gold.

THE gift of prayer may have praise with men, but it is the grace of prayer that has power with God.—Dyer.

Sometimes when I go into my closet to pray, I find I cannot pray as I would. What do I then? Why, since I cannot speak to the Lord, I beg the Lord to speak to me, and therefore I open the Scriptures and read my portion. Then I find that the Lord gives me matter for prayer.—George Müller.

THE BELIEVER'S JOY.

The peculiar joy of the believer is the consciousness that he stands before God as Jesus stands; that he is a partaker of that love which God has for Jesus. So prayed Christ, "That the love wherewith Thou hast loved Me may be in them, and I in them."—Darby.

THE MORE EXCELLENT WAY.

Let Diotrephes say, It is good for me to have the pre-eminence. Let Judas say, It is good for me to bear the bag. Let Demas say, It is good for me to embrace the present world. But do thou, O my soul, say with David, It is good for me to draw near to God.—Arrowsmith.

JUDGE NOT.

Our Lord embodies the principle in a rule which, because it cannot be kept in the letter (say, by the juryman giving his verdict, the master who discharges a dishonest servant), forces us back upon the spirit. Briefly we may say: (1) Judge no man, unless it be a duty to do so; (2) as far as may be, judge the offence, and not the offender; (3) confine your judgment to the earthly side of faults, and leave their relation to God to Him who sees the heart; (4) never judge at all without remembering your own sinfulness, and the ignorance and infirmities which may extenuate the sinfulness of others.—Plumptre.

IT IS WRITTEN.

He that fights against Satan, in the strength of his own resolutions, constitutions, or education, will certainly fly and fall before him. The only way to stand, conquer, and triumph, is still to plead, "IT IS WRITTEN" (Matt. iv. 10). It is God that gives victory, and that should be every Christian's motto. There is no sword but the two-edged sword of the Spirit that will be found to be proof when a soul comes to engage against Satan; therefore when you are tempted to uncleanness, plead, it is written: "Be ye holy, as I am holy." If he tempt you to distrust God's providence and fatherly care of you, plead his promise, as it is written, "There is no want to them that fear Him" (Ps. xxxiv. 9). If he tempt you to fear that you shall faint and fall, and never be able to reach the end of the race set before you, plead, It is written, "The righteous shall hold on his way" (Ps. lxxxiv. 11; Job xvii. 9). It is written, "I will make an everlasting covenant with them" (Jer. xxxii. 40). It is written, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength" (Isa. xl. 31).—Thomas Brooks.

POOR JEWESSES IN JERUSALEM.

MRS. D. C. JOSEPH, of the Evangelical Mission to Israel, writes from the Holy City:—"Many of the Jewish refugees now flocking to their own land are accompanied by wives and children. We assemble the women once a week at our mission-house, and distribute garments among them. When completed, the things become the property of the women who make them. In the meantime I read the Scriptures, and so have an opportunity of pointing the women to the Messiah. We also visit them in their homes. Materials for making up, such as print, calico, flannel, &c., will be very welcome."

VILLAGE Y.M.C.A.'S.

MR. E. H. KERWIN'S recent paper in THE CHRISTIAN contains a most valuable suggestion as to "how we are to reach the masses of working men in our cities." I am desirous of pointing out the wisdom and necessity of attacking the evils we all acknowledge and deplore, before the subjects of them are massed together; while as young men they are living outside the fierce temptations peculiar to great numbers in small compass; while it is still possible to get them into touch with the powerful influence of individual sympathy and Christian example.

Our villages are the tributaries of that mighty stream of human life which is constantly adding to the already crowded city. If we can purify the tributary before it becomes part of the torrent to which it tends, we shall have done much to aid those who are endeavouring to grapple with its appalling condition of misery and baneful influence.

I know of no agency better calculated to achieve this than the Y.M.C.A. In saying this, I do not for one moment depreciate the brave efforts of our struggling village churches and mission bands of all denominations. But what is wanted is the banding together of the young Christian men of our villages, whatever section of the Church they may belong to, as young men, in a definite effort to promote the growth of Christian life and character and influence amongst other young men of the same place and neighbourhood. This may be done, not only without interfering with existing organisations, but to their infinite help. Information as to the best means of forming a Y.M.C.A. whether in a village or town, can always be obtained from Exeter Hall; and "the yellow paper" issued by the National Council is a most admirable code of suggestive methods. If my own experience in the matter would be of use to any wishing to start, or further a small work in a small place, it is most cordially at their service. FREDERIC HUNT.

Harmondsworth, Middlesex.

RESCUE WORK IN SPITALFIELDS.—In a booklet, "Hope for the Hopeless," Rev. J. H. Scott, rector of Spitalfields, gives some account of one department of the important work which he directs in East London. He says:—"Among those who have fallen there is a percentage who are yearning for redemption; and the work, though difficult and somewhat disappointing, is most blessed. It is our rule to work by day and by night, by means of a devoted band of Christians who, by house-to-house visitation, on the streets and through other rescue agencies, seek the fallen and the waifs and strays who have no home. Many young women and girls have been saved from a life of sin, and are now leading a new life with a better and a brighter hope before them. During the past year 230 cases have been dealt with, 110 of whom were below the age of twenty. 104 have been sent to Rescue Homes, 13 returned to their parents, and the remainder dealt with in a variety of ways." The pamphlet gives illustrative cases from the rescue register, and particulars of ways in which friends may help the work.

CONVENTION AT MANCHESTER.

The following brief report has been supplied by one of the brethren who took part in this Convention. Men whom we esteem very highly and love, for their work's sake, were among the speakers; but we cannot for ourselves regard the movement with unqualified approval, because the distinctive tenets of the leader (Mr. Sanford) are, as we believe, unscriptural, and have wrought separation between brethren, and always will.

A MOST delightful and profitable Holiness Convention has just been held at the Star Hall, Manchester, extending over the two Sabbaths—from November 9 to 16. Addresses on the Scriptural basis of holiness, and concerning the personal experience of this grace in its various practical aspects, were given by Revs. E. W. Moore, F. D. Sanford, Thomas Cook, Mr. J. G. Govan, Mr. Reader Harris, Mr. Garnett, Mrs. Watson, Miss Cowen, and Miss Leonard. Mr. F. W. Crossley presided.

The attendance was very good, and the interest increased from day to day. Very manifest evidence was given of the presence in power of the Holy Ghost in the numbers who sought the fulness of salvation at the penitents' form, and who gave joyful testimonies concerning his witness to their hearts that the work was done. Over one hundred and fifty persons gave their names as having been thus sealed by the Spirit of promise, and as having realised that "the blood of Jesus cleanseth from all sin."

At the last meeting on Sunday night the attendance was the largest of all, and the subject was "Full salvation," set forth so amply in our Lord's own words, "When thine eye is single, thy whole body also is full of light...If, therefore, thy whole body be full of light, having no part dark, it shall be wholly full of light" (R.V.). Deep solemnity pervaded the assembly, and many found their heart's desire. Altogether twenty-six meetings were held during the eight days. A full report of the convention will soon be printed, and will be obtainable from the secretary at the Star Hall.

HOME FOR EAST-END GIRLS.

IN 1886, the notorious Mitre House, Three Colt-street, Limehouse, E., was opened by Miss Forsaith for the purpose of rescuing poor lost girls. It was found that the health of the girls required some more active occupation than sewing, and a laundry was opened. In order to move the centre of the work from Limehouse, a house was secured at No. 1, Urswick-road, Hackney. The building had to be specially furnished for its present use. Behind is a large piece of ground, and here, a commodious laundry has been erected.

Last week there was a formal opening of the new premises. The larger compartment of the laundry was filled by ladies in hearty sympathy with Miss Forsaith and her work. Rev. F. Evelyn Gardiner, rector of Hackney, conducted the religious services. Rev. Dr. Reynolds, president of Cheshunt College, gave an eloquent exposition of the Christlike spirit which inspired such a Home as this. The Bishop of Bedford thought that legislation should intervene to protect the children of parents who were unable or unwilling to discharge their responsibilities, or were the corrupters of their offspring.

As heavy expenses have been incurred by Miss Forsaith in this new departure, about £150 is urgently needed at present.

"ANGLO-SAXONS IN INDIA."—Miss Amelia A. Wallinger, of the Church Zenana Mission, Ootacamund, South India, writes to us on the ignorance in which Eurasian children are growing up in India. In many cases, where they live in out-of-the-way places, the parents could pay elementary day-school fees, but no more. Miss Wallinger says:—"At last I have heard of a haven where a few such could be received on payment of eight rupees per month. It is in Madras. This is well, as far as it goes, but what a blessing it would be if here and there scattered over India, there were Christian hostels where Eurasian children could be received by an English lady, assisted probably by a country-born matron, where they would be trained in habits of practical godliness while attending the elementary day-schools of the station."

Obituary.

MISS MARGARET A. CRAIG.

THE death of this lady, of the A. P. Mission at Muree, calls for more than a passing notice. She came to India some twenty years ago, and never left the country for a change. A friend who knew her well writes of her:—"She was a most devoted worker whilst health lasted. She has been during the years of her illness most desirous of getting back into active work, and has been doing what she could in a quiet way, sending very acceptable contributions to the ladies' magazine. She has suffered intensely during the past eight months, but passed away quietly at last, giving evidence of a peaceful trust and a joyful hope."—Bombay Guardian.

REV DR. HANNAY.

Rev. Alexander Hannay, D.D., the highly respected Secretary of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, succumbed last week to an attack of congestion of the lungs. He had for a year or two been in weak health, but fatal consequences of a bad cold recently caught were not at all apprehended. Dr. Hannay entered the Congregational ministry in 1847, after training in the Glasgow Theological Hall. He held charges in Dundee, London, and Croydon, and was appointed to the secretariat of the Congregational Union in 1870. Great things were expected of him in this enlarged sphere of work, and during twenty years he justified the most sanguine hopes of his friends. He was an able administrator, and, with faculties specially fitting him for his work, he combined unbounded energy and a passion for the discharge of his duty to the Church of Christ and the Congregational principle of Church order.

PROFESSOR AUSTIN PHELPS.

This eminent writer on religious and literary subjects has passed away, after a long illness. He was born in West Brookfield, Mass., in 1820, and graduated at the University of Pennsylvania in 1837, studying at the Andover and Union Theological Seminaries. After six years as pastor of the Pine-street Congregational Church, in Boston, in 1848 he became Professor of Sacred Rhetoric at Andover, holding the chair until 1879. In 1869 he was elected president of Andover, and since 1879 he has been elected Professor-Emeritus. He had not been in good health since the famous Andover controversy, the excitement of which was a great strain upon him. His wife, Elizabeth Stuart, the author of several popular books, died in 1852. His daughter, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, the well-known writer, survives him, being the wife of Rev. Herbert D. Ward, son of Rev. Dr. William Hayes Ward, editor of The Independent.

MR. JAMES DALZIEL.

We recently noted the death of this earnest and well-known worker in Shanghai. A lady missionary in the city sends to us the following particulars:—

The missionary brotherhood and Christian community in Shanghai lately sustained a severe loss in the death of Mr. James Dalziel, at the age of forty-eight. For twelve years he and his wife dwelt in this settlement, first in connection with the China Inland Mission. For some years past Mr. Dalziel had held an important post and done most useful work as an agent of the American Bible Society. Continuing in China the warm interest in children which had made him for many years in London a district visitor of the Sunday School Union, he organised and managed as secretary several very successful branches of the Children's Scripture Reading Union among the Chinese. He long held in charge arrangements for the weekly missionary prayer meeting. His holy Christian walk and his remarkable kindliness of character and of bearing have won him affection and respect from all associated with him.

Mr. Dalziel was more severely hurt than any other in the fall of the scaffolding on which some 300 officers were placed for photographing during the late Missionary Conference. In addition to injuries to foot and shoulder, his constitution was weakened by the nervous shock, and an illness which attacked him in August found him bereft of rallying power. Sweet and bright was his Christian spirit to the close, and touching his consideration, notwithstanding acute suffering, for those around him.

MR. JOHN WESLEY LEWIS.

The Wesleyan Methodist Connexion is the poorer for the loss of Mr. John Wesley Lewis, of Nottingham. For many years he had taken an active part in every social, educational, and religious movement in the town; but in the Wesleyan body he exercised for more than forty years a powerful influence for good. He was the oldest local preacher on the plan of Broad-street chapel, a successful class leader, a trustee, and a circuit steward. He had attended Conference as a representative of the Nottingham and Derby District, and was held in high regard as a man of sterling character, lofty principle, and untiring zeal in aggressive Christian work.

REV. DR. SHERWOOD.

The American churches have lost a hard worker in Rev. James Sherwood, D.D. In early life he held several pastorates in the Presbyterian Church, but after losing his wife some years ago his health broke down; and owing to loss of voice, he had to give up pulpit duties. Henceforth he preached less frequently, but used his pen with remarkable activity, and to good purpose. He became successively editor of The National Preacher, The Biblical Repository, New York Evangelist, The Eclectic Magazine, and The Princeton Review. For the past ten years he has been the co-editor of The Homiletic Review, and for a shorter period of The Missionary Review of the World also, the former of which he founded and carried to a large success.

Besides many contributions to magazines and reviews, Dr. Sherwood wrote two large books, "The History of the Cross" and "The Life of John Brainerd," both of which are well known to scholars and theologians. He died suddenly. While preaching in the Trinity Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, he was stricken with paralysis and rendered unconscious. He lingered for five days, and then his busy life ended. He was aged seventy-seven, and had for many years contended with weakness and disease. As a teacher, he enjoyed a widespread confidence, while as a Christian he was deservedly held in high esteem.

REV. DR. JAMES BROWN.

By the death of Rev. James Brown, D.D., of Paisley, the United Presbyterian Church has lost one of its most accomplished ministers. He had long suffered from an affection of the heart, but the end came somewhat unexpectedly. Born in 1834, he was son of Rev. Robert Brown, of the United Secession Church, Cumnock. In early life he held a situation in a Glasgow bank, there acquiring that business aptitude which gave such a value to his services in ecclesiastical administration. During his career as student at Glasgow and Edinburgh, he was engaged in teaching and literary work. After labouring for short periods in London and Bannockburn, he accepted a call to Paisley, being ordained minister of the James-street Church in 1859. He soon became distinguished as a preacher, whilst as a pastor he greatly endeared himself to his congregation.

In the Church Courts he rendered important service, and was recognised as a leader in the U.P. community. From 1879 to within a few months ago, he discharged the duties of editor of The Missionary Record and among the books he wrote were: "The Scottish Probationer" (the life of Thomas Davidson) and biographies of Dr. Eadie and Dr. Robertson, of Irvine. His health broke down two years ago, but the congregation, which he faithfully served so long, hoped until the last that he would recover and resume his place as their friend and guide.

ROUEN SEAMEN'S INSTITUTE.—Mr. G. Edgar Heal, missionary, writing of the Seamen's Institute, 38, Rue Grand Pont, Rouen, France, says:—"Our work amongst the British Seamen is going on. We mean to strain every effort to make it a success. God only knows the evils to which our seamen are exposed. When they come here, they only have four things to choose from: the cabin, walk the streets, the public-house, and the Seamen's Institute. Those who know anything of ships and seamen know that the choice really lies between the public-house and the Institute. We are now preparing for a good winter's work; but, unfortunately, although we have good premises, we are sadly hampered for want of suitable tables and other necessary things. We have often seven, eight, and more, British ships here, with crews of from fifteen to twenty-five men each. Friends visiting Rouen will always be welcome. We have English services on the Sabbath at 11 and 6.30."

General Booth's Scheme.

Up to this stage the great social scheme of General Booth for uplifting the "sunken tenth" has been, so to speak, "in the air." Monday night's meeting at Exeter Hall may be said to have set it on the solid ground, and given good hope that it will run as fast and as far as the supplied resources will allow. The great audience to which the General had to address himself was not mainly of the usual enthusiastic Army type; but it cannot be said that it was not ready to approve and applaud when any good and telling point was made. The brief religious service at the beginning gave the proceedings the spiritual stamp of Army gatherings, but the larger part of the time was taken up with the statement of the General. For more than two and a half hours he was on his feet, so that he did not, at any rate, spare himself in his effort to interest the public in his gigantic plan of campaign. At the outset, he expressed diffidence in entering on the exposition of somewhat new lines of work, but he soon showed himself at home, and in much that he advanced there was a happy audacity and a confidence that boded well for the future developments of his scheme.

Assuming that all his hearers were to some extent familiar with the details of the scheme itself, Mr. Booth proceeded to account for the wonderful acceptance it had met with from all sorts and conditions of men. First of all, he contended that the facts it contained could not be gainsaid. He sketched pathetically the prevailing poverty and misery, and declared that his statements in the book on this head could be proved up to the hilt. Referring to the condition of the dockers, he showed from authoritative facts that a large proportion of the 22,500 employed were living on starvation wages; while there were probably 10,000 others, mostly married, not earning a penny. Mr. Booth went on to assert that his scheme was not only on the lines of humanity, but on the lines of possibility. Judging from the past efforts of the Army to raise the fallen and restore the outcast, whether man or woman, he had great faith in the feasibility of doing such work on the much larger scale now suggested. Something must certainly be done, and that quickly. His plan would be effective and cheap, and if the country did not take some steps in the direction he proposed, it would have to pay a heavy price.

In answer to some of the many criticisms that had been advanced, Mr. Booth said that while the scheme would be conducted on strictly Salvationist lines, there would be no religious compulsion exercised on the beneficiaries. At the same time, his people would doubtless "make it hot" for any who were outside the pale of Christianity. Some people regretted that the movement had not sprung up within the Church of England. As it had not, he hoped they would help him to carry it through. He disclaimed the idea of autocracy in his methods of government, and humorously compared it to the government of the cream—the cream rose to the top and governed, and the blue milk at the bottom would have it so. On the question of responsibility to the public for the money subscribed, he said that the funds and property of the social scheme would be kept separate from the general Army exchequer, and would be secured under a deed poll enrolled in Chancery. In this way any subscriber could at once ascertain if his money was not being properly used. He contended that having got the suitable leader to conduct the campaign, they ought to bind him, so that he would have to give a periodical account of his stewardship, and then give him a free hand. It would be impossible for him to please everybody, so he must have the power if he was to bear the responsibility. He believed God would take him home to heaven rather than allow him to do anything that would be dishonouring to the good cause. He asked them, therefore, to give him their confidence. Of course, he did not expect through the scheme to save everybody. It would build a bridge over which a certain number could march from misery to comfort, and he hoped also to the heavenly country. If they wanted a wider bridge, they must give more money. And surely this rich nation could give more, seeing that it spends 130 millions per annum in strong drink, and lays by 200 millions a year, much of which will only go to ruin posterity. There were many church members who could give the £100,000 needed, and never miss it.

Several economical questions bearing on the scheme were disposed of, and an answer given to the objection that his plan would not stop the supply of the sunken masses. He fervently wished they could blow up the distillery and brewery reefs on which so many are being wrecked; meantime, till this is done, he would try to get as many as possible out of the surging waters of destruction. If the scheme were given a fair and a patient trial, he predicted that in twenty years' time every able-bodied man and woman in England would have some work to do; all the enfeebled or disabled would be provided with the necessaries of life without the taint of pauperism; every orphan would have a home; and there would be a great reduction in the volume of vice and crime.

The last function performed by the General was to read the long list of donations received or promised. These included thirteen sums of £1000 each; two sums of £1500; one of £1200; while one friend has given £3000 and a farm. Several churches have contributed handsomely, and there were a number of individual gifts running into three figures. Mr. Booth was able to announce before the meeting closed that he had received up to that time upwards of £38,500.

PECKHAM Y.M.C.A.—The fifth annual meeting was held on Friday last in the Public Hall, Mr. Septimus R. Scott presiding. The report, read by Mr. J. Percy Marks, told of good work in various directions. Among those who delivered addresses were Revs. J. Seaver and J. T. Priscoe, and Mr. W. H. Mills, secretary to the National Council of the Y.M.C.A.

LONDON JEWS' SOCIETY.—There was a considerable gathering last Friday, at the Inns of Court Hotel, to take farewell of a party of the London Jews' Society's missionaries, proceeding to Palestine. Of these only one, Miss E. M. Birks, is going out for the first time, the rest—Rev. A. H. Kelt and family, and Miss L. Barlee—are returning after a well-earned rest. The Bishop of Bedford delivered the valedictory address, Taking for his text Heb. xiii. 8, he dwelt with much earnestness upon "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, and to-day, and for ever." He bade the missionaries take the God-man with them, bade them live in constant communion with Him, for hearts never yielded but to God. Mr. Kelk, who is at the head of the Society's Mission in Jerusalem, followed with a few words.

SOLDIERS' HOME, GOSPORT.—A drawing-room meeting was held in Oxford-square, London, W., on Nov. 12, when some interesting particulars were given of work in connection with Miss Ridout's Home for Soldiers at Gosport. Rev. Nevile Sherbrook presided. Miss Ridout gave a sketch of the work carried on by herself and her sister, in which they are much helped by the Christian soldiers. They visit the barracks, hospital, and troopships, and have the permission and approval of the officers and chaplains. These visits bring the men to the Home, which is a home in the true sense of the word. Many who came at first from curiosity have learnt to value the meetings that are held. Rev. T. D. Barnes, late chaplain to the forces in Egypt, Major Fawkes, R.A., and the Chairman spoke in approval of the work. The Home is in debt to the treasurer (Rev. George Ridout, rector of Sandhurst, Kent) to the amount of £90. Gifts of books, periodicals, &c., are much valued.

SPIRITUAL NEEDS IN MADRAS.

The Madras Missionary Conference, in "an open letter" addressed to the Churches of Europe and America last year, made the following statement in reference to the necessity of a spiritual agency to labour among the educated Hindus of South India:—

"In the city of Madras, and in other large educational centres in South India, are thousands of Hindus who have been educated in schools and colleges, and are more or less acquainted with Christianity though they have not formally embraced it, while even those not trained in mission schools, and not formally acquainted with Christianity, have imbibed much moral thought from their education which may be blessed by God's Spirit to be the path by which true light may come to them. While we desire Christian effort to continue and increase among the other classes, we appeal to you on behalf of these. They must certainly fill an influential position, and are destined to lead or largely mould Hindu opinion in the near future; hence they should receive special attention. European missionaries should be designated for this work. At present we know but of one such agent in the whole of South India. In Madras alone there is an ample field for several Europeans, who could find in this work abundant inspiration and scope for their very highest efforts. At least four experienced missionaries might be thus employed."

As no response to this statement and appeal has been made, I beg to bring it to the notice of those who read The Christian, with the hope that some young men may be found so fired with the love of Christ as to devote themselves to this important work in the city of Madras. In this great city, containing more than 400,000 souls, we have the largest Missionary College in India, with a teaching staff of eleven Europeans; four other Missionary Colleges, with missionaries at their head; and three Christian High Schools. We have also a large Government College, a large native College, and several native non-Christian High Schools. In addition, therefore, to the very large number of educated Hindus and Mohammedans residing in Madras, these colleges and schools turn out hundreds every year. At present there is no special agency to bring the Gospel to bear upon them. There is a special agency for preaching the Gospel to the masses in the vernacular; and, until we have such an agency to visit the educated in their homes, converse with them, pray with them, and distribute the Word of God and tracts among them, our evangelistic arrangements for Madras must remain exceedingly one-sided and incomplete.

Workers in connection with the various Missionary Societies conduct services in English on Sunday afternoons for educated Hindus when lectures are delivered on religious subjects. These meetings are fairly well attended and are doing some good. But much more should be done. Men full of Christian enthusiasm and of the Holy Ghost should consecrate their lives to this glorious work. Are there not such among the educated men of Christian England? I can assure them they would never have reason to regret having given themselves to this work. I have preached the Gospel to the Hindus in the vernacular for the last twenty-eight years. Do I regret it? It is my joy! And were it possible for me to begin life again I should begin it exactly where I did twenty-eight years ago. I appeal, then, to the Christian young men of England to come and help us in this great city.

Maurice Phillips.

Madras.

Evangelistic Mission.—A new branch of this Mission will be opened at Manor-park Recreation Hall, Romford-road, opposite Carlton-road, in the East of London on Sunday evening, Nov. 30. Mr. Ransome Wallis will preach, and similar services will be held every Sunday evening. The work at Bignold Hall, Forest Gate within easy distance of the above, is being much prospered of God.

NATAL EVANGELISTIC MISSION.

rs. Howe (late Mrs. Osborn, of Cape Town) ites:—My husband and I hope to leave ngland next spring for our new work in uth Africa, and to arrive in Natal at the ginning of the fine dry winter months, which hope to spend in evangelistic work in the fferent towns.

We purpose forming a railway mission in nnection with the Railway Mission in Eng- nd, and similar to the work organised by Mr. owe on the Cape railways. In both colonies have witnessed the lives and needs of the ployés and their families; the few oppor- nities they have of hearing the Gospel; the arth of literature. When holding meetings st year along the line in Natal, more than ce a messenger followed us after the close of meeting to say the people waited and wished r a repetition. Many having walked several iles wanted to make the most of the oppor- nity. On one occasion a mechanic was esent who had not attended a religious ser- ce for twenty-five years.

At Maritzburg, the headquarters, some ght hundred British soldiers are stationed. lady who could give all her time to the men nd their wives would find a wide field here, nd would have the cordial co-operation of the M.C.A. Evangelistic and temperance work being vigorously carried on by the Associa- on, special effort being made to induce sol- ers to attend the meetings, and with success. Maritzburg is also the headquarters of the atal Mounted Police. Our work amongst em, and the native police, a splendid body of en, will be a branch of the Christian Police ssociation in England.

The heathen Zulus in the Colony of Natal umber about 450,000. At Durban, the sea- ort, some thousands of the men are employed. hey leave their distant kraals, and come to is busy town for certain periods of service. eing located in barracks, and not scattered, ne opportunity to give them the Gospel is a rand one, and good use is being made of it by ev. Otto Witt, a missionary belonging to the wedish Free Mission.

A long experience gained in Zululand and perfect knowledge of the language, give Mr. Witt easy access to the natives. He has con- ented to co-operate with us, and to instruct in ne language any workers who may join us; nd also to give chosen native converts a issionary training. Whilst we shall encourage onverts to become self-supporting workers, we ope for some fitted ones who would give them- elves, without salaries, to itinerant work in ululand. These would need a simple, practical raining, in which a thorough knowledge of the criptures, would have the first place.

Unlike the convert in India or China, the eathen Zulu cannot read his own language. few month's training would, therefore, be bsolutely necessary. Some would be local orkers and self-supporting. To sustain a ative the cost need not exceed £8 to £14 a ear. More than one friend in England has ffered to meet the expenses of a worker dur- ng his period of training, and we are looking o the Lord of the harvest to call out and fit he men for His service.

Three years ago, after a conference at Sunderland, Mr. Olsen, a Norwegian, offered himself for South Africa, as a self-supporting missionary. For nearly two years he earned his living in Natal whilst acquainting himself with the Zulus and their language. He has now given himself entirely to them, and is tinerating in Zululand in company with Mr. Wettergreen, of the Swedish Free Mission, who trained under Mr. Moody, at Northfield. Mr. Olsen will be associated with us.

We shall have the valued assistance in Eng- land of Surgeon-General Robinson, who has consented to act as hon. treasurer. As principal medical officer to the forces during the last Zulu campaign, Dr. Robinson had exceptional opportunities for gaining an insight into the character and needs of the Zulus. During a lengthened residence in Natal, in the same position, he took an active interest in Christian work, and before leaving South Africa made a tour in order to acquaint himself with existing missions, and also the opening for further effort.

The address of Surgeon-General Robinson is Northfield, Eltham, Kent, and he, as well as Mr. Howe and myself, will be glad to give information about our future work where opportunities may offer. Our address is 27, Westbourne-terrace, West Brighton.

Personalia.

Mrs. John B. Gough is in a critical condition from spinal trouble, and is almost helpless.

Rev. Mark Guy Pearse has almost completed his arrangements for his forthcoming tour in Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand. He leaves about the third week in January.

Mr. Drysdale, says The Bombay Guardian, has obtained a situation at good salary outside of Indian Government service, where he will have full liberty to preach the Gospel.

Mr. James McGranahan.—Every reader will rejoice to know that this sweet singer, so long disabled by sickness, is improving in health, and that the prospect is good that he will be fully restored. —Chicago Record.

Mr. L. D. Wishard, who was in India anent Y.M.C.A. work last year, lately addressed a large company at Peking. It is expected that his visit will result in settling a Y.M.C.A. missionary for Peking and Tungchow.

Rev. G. H. Rouse, of Calcutta, has been ordered to give six months' rest to his eyes, his sight having become suddenly impaired. He will therefore devote himself for the next few months to itinerant evangelistic work, and discontinue translating and literary labours.

Rev. A. J. H. Harrison, B.D., is unwilling to sever his twenty years' connection with the Christian Evidence Society. The Church Parochial Mission Society, who have secured his services for twelve months, have kindly allowed him to give his spare time to the work of the Christian Evidence Society. He will continue, at every possible opportunity, to lecture as heretofore for the latter institution.

Elizabeth Comstock, the Quaker preacher, now in old age, has in her lifetime visited 122,000 prisoners, 195,000 sick and wounded soldiers, 85,000 inmates of poorhouses and almshouses on both sides of the water. For thirty years she toiled in this field, and during the last years has been one of the most beloved members of the W.C.T.U. She was in attendance recently at the Friends' Yearly Meeting at Richmond, Ind., and spoke repeatedly with her old-time vigour and wisdom.

Mr. W. J. Orsman.—Since he relinquished his position at the General Post-Office, and took his place on the London County Council, Mr. Orsman has become a more earnest philanthropist than ever. He lately succeeded in passing a resolution to the effect that the various committees should be instructed: "That as regards the employés attached to the asylums, schools, parks, fire-brigade, main-drainage stations, and other places where continuous service is absolutely necessary, the duties and hours of service shall be arranged so as to afford a reasonable relief from Sunday labour." The Christian members of the Council are evidently making their influence felt.

CHICAGO.—The experiment that Mr. Moody has desired for so many years to make in Chicago, of training women for practical city mission work has proved so successful that he now desires to enlarge the force of permanent as well as student workers. He has room for 100 now, and hopes this plea will come under the eye of 100 women or men, who would like to be represented in the Lord's work this year by sustaining one of these students or permenant workers, getting in return a report direct from the person sustained, so that it could be seen just what is done from month to month. Mr. Moody will be in Chicago from the middle of November to the end of December.

SALVATIONISTS FOR INDIA.

Commissioner and Mrs. Booth-Tucker are to sail from England to-morrow (Saturday), on their return to resume the command of the operations of the Salvation Army in India. They are being accompanied by a party of fifty new officers, young men and young women, who have volunteered, within the last few weeks, in memory of the late Mrs. Booth. A crowded and enthusiastic meeting was held in Exeter Hall on Thursday evening last week, to bid them farewell. General Booth presided, and the proceedings were largely of a devotional character.

Mr. Booth asked: How many missionaries are there in India? About a thousand. There ought to be a hundred thousand. The churches of this country could send ten thousand of their sons and daughters right away, if they would. A warm testimony to the transforming power of the Gospel was given by a dark-skinned Ceylonese convert, introduced as "Lord" Ratnapala, formerly for eight years a Buddhist priest. Major Musa Bhai, another Indian convert, followed with an eloquent appeal. Commissioner Booth-Tucker took farewell of his English friends in a short address, and heartily thanked them for the men and money they were sending to help on the work in India. The closing address was practical.

WORKING LADS' INSTITUTE.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the Working Lads' Institute, Whitechapel, E., was held on Monday evening, under very agreeable circumstances. Successive chief magistrates of the city take a lively interest in the important work which so many Christian people combine with the founder and hon. sec., Mr. Henry Hill, to promote; and the present Lord Mayor presided, not only as a well-wisher, but as an old supporter of the movement. The report was not so cheering as it might have been. There was a balance due to the treasurer of £560, besides a debt on the building of £4500. The enthusiasm of the workers demands admiration, but somehow it fails to excite the sympathy of some who could render welcome financial help, and free the many excellent agencies from the burden of debt.

The Lord Mayor spoke in high terms of the Institute, and expressed regret at the fact that lack of means should have hindered operations during the year. Addressing the lads, he spoke of Solomon, who, after surveying and taking into account all earthly experiences, concluded the best thing to be, as he thus expressed it, "Fear God and keep his commandments; for this is the whole man" (Eccles. xii. 13). It was pleasing to note that the Lord Mayor purposely quoted the passage thus, the correct form, rather than as in the A.V. "This is the whole duty of man." He added that true manhood consists in the attitude of fearing God and doing his will, without which all our anxieties and activities, physical and mental accomplishments, are nothing worth in the light of eternity.

Brief addresses were delivered by Mr. S. Montagu, M.P., Mr. Sheriff Farmer, Mr. F. A. Bevan, and Rev. J. B. Heard. The Lady Mayoress distributed the prizes for the evening and swimming classes, and the proceedings were made specially profitable by several promises of donations.

Build a full, firm fence of faith
All about to-day;
Fill it in with useful works,
And within it stay.
Look not through the sheltering bars
Anxious for to-morrow;
God will help, whatever comes,
Be it joy or sorrow.

The Temperance Cause.

The twenty-ninth series of winter meetings at Lambeth Baths was opened on Saturday week.

A strong movement is on foot in Monmouthshire to extend the operation of the Sunday Closing Act to that county.

Tynewydd, in South Wales, has a population of 2000. There is not a public-house in the place, no police-station, and no policeman.

Improved trade at Glasgow is sadly evidenced by an increase of intemperance. The police fines have risen £300 to £400 a month.

The Wesleyans at most of the great centres are intending to hold public meetings in connection with Temperance Sunday, Nov. 30.

Two out of every five people who are treated at the Hulme Dispensary go there because of the habits of drinking, either of themselves or their parents.

At the Capitol, Washington, U.S.A., notwithstanding a decision of the House of Representatives to the contrary, intoxicating drinks continue to be sold.

The Manchester Presbytery has by a large majority, protested against a licence being granted to the new Theatre of Varieties, Oxford-street, Manchester.

At the municipal election, Liverpool, out of fifteen contests, ten were won by candidates pledged to a reform of the Watch Committee, especially in relation to the drink traffic in the city.

Rev. F. Evans, of India, says the example of the English has done much to foster drinking habits among the people of that country, and is of the opinion that none but total abstainers should be sent there as missionaries.

The Bishop of Liverpool has addressed a circular letter to every beneficed clergyman in the diocese, fixing Sunday, January 24, 1891, as a special day for preaching in the interest of the Church of England Temperance Society.

There are about 8000 licensed places for the syle of spirituous liquors in Boston, U.S., or about one saloon for every thirty-five voters. In one year three-fifths of the primaries and political conventions of all parties were held in saloons.

Compulsory treatment in legalised retreats for alcoholic disease is warranted, as the following terse remark of an inebriate proves: "Why can't the Government, or somebody, keep me here till I am cured?"

The Duke of Devonshire has expressed his intention of closing in March next the only licensed house in the village of Pilsley, near Chatsworth, and he also recently reduced the licence of another house in the neighbourhood from seven to six days.

The increase of temperance sentiment in the Baptist Church in Wales is indicated by Rev. J. Davies, who says: "Of 500 Baptist ministers only 200 were total abstainers; but out of fifty-three students in the colleges only one was not included in the ranks of abstainers."

A special circular on temperance work in the Methodist churches has just been addressed to superintendents of circuits and others by Dr. Moulton, urging greater attention to this matter, and recommending the appointment of a temperance secretary in each circuit.

The secretary of the Church of England Temperance Society has written to five hundred members of the medical profession, asking them if they agreed with the principle that alcohol is unnecessary in the dietary of children. He has received three hundred answers in the affirmative.

Deplorable scenes of drunkenness and unpleasantness too often occur owing to the provision of beer at Christmas time for the paupers. At many workhouses the practice of giving intoxicants has been abandoned, and less objectional refreshments, such as fruit, tea, &c., have been substituted.

Licensed houses for the sale of intoxicating drink are excluded from certain districts of Toxteth by a clause in the building leases on the estate forbidding the use of premises for the sale of liquor. Consequently there is a decreasing amount of pauperism in these areas, with none of the chronic or hereditary class of paupers, who most of all burden the rates.

Inquiry through the United Kingdom Alliance shows that of English mayors elected last Monday week at least thirty-four, probably more, are total abstainers.

There entered a Camberwell public-house on a recent Sunday, between the hours of 8 and 10 p.m., 720 men, 182 women, and 108 couples — a total attendance of 1118.

A convention was held in Eastbrook School, Bradford, in connection with the Conference Temperance Committee and the Bradford Wesleyan Band of Hope. Rev. G. A. Bennetts, B.A., said that the prime secret of success in temperance work was the prayerful spirit.

During the past twelve months there has been an increase in the consumption of spirits in Ireland of 486,938 gallons, and of beer of 113,903 barrels, the total revenue from excise being £4,693,116. There is much illicit distillation in Ireland of which these figures take no account.

The Lords Justices in Ireland have authorised the circulation of an order by the Local Government Board, directing that no pauper shall consume any spirituous or fermented liquor or tobacco, except where it is ordered by the medical officer for any pauper of the sick, infirm, or lunatic classes.

The London Auxiliary of the United Kingdom Alliance have addressed an appeal to Lord Salisbury on the subject of the liquor traffic on the Congo, urging him to use his influence to prevent the decisions of the Brussels Conference becoming abortive through the refusal of Holland to ratify the same.

In the last report of the West London Mission, Rev. Hugh Price Hughes says: "Strong drink is the great curse. We cannot find words powerful enough to describe the extent and the intensity of the mischief which it works day by day. No Christian who knows as we know what the London liquor trade is really doing could either remain in it or support it for a single day."

The Illustrated Temperance Monthly for November begins a new series in a more convenient form, with increased number of pages and varied, attractive contents. Among these are a serial story by Rev. P. B. Power, points for speakers, and a series of biographies with portraits. It is issued at one penny by the Church of England Temperance Society, from 9, Bridge-street, Westminster.

SOUTH-AMERICAN MISSIONS.

Rev. E. C. Aspinall, well known in Y.M.C.A. circles, has been recently ordained at Buenos Ayres by the Bishop of the Falkland Islands, for the South-American Missionary Society. On his his return to Ooshooia, Terra-del-Fuego, a fatal epidemic of small-pox broke out amongst the Christian and heathen natives, and both as a doctor and a pastor Mr. Aspinall was kept incessantly occupied. When he wrote there had been nine deaths, and they had converted the largest building at the mission station into a hospital, where Mrs. Hemmings was devoting herself to the nursing of the sick, leaving Mrs. Hawkes in charge of the Orphanage.

In response to Mr. Aspinall's appeal for clothes, &c., Mr. J. Lawrence, returning after a brief holiday, is taking out money and clothing supplied by generous friends in England to replace that which had to be destroyed.

Mr. P. J. R. Walker, who has been labouring for the past six years as a seamen's missionary in the port of Pernambuco, Brazil, in the service of the South-American Missionary Society, has just been selected to fill that post in the crowded port of Buenos Ayres. Mr. Walker's place at Pernambuco will be filled by Mr. Holms, who has frequently assisted him in his arduous work, and occasionally acted as his substitute.

Mr. William Reade Gardiner, grandson of the late Captain Gardiner, is about to proceed as a volunteer to the South-American Missionary Society Station in Araucania, Chili, to devote himself to the work amongst the Indians there, for which he is medically and otherwise qualified.

THE PRUSSIAN BIBLE SOCIETY.—The seventy-sixth report of this Society states that last year's circulation was 98,010 Bibles and 42,515 New Testaments, a total considerably in excess of the previous year.

Evangelistic Notes.

Philadelphia.—One of the pastors of Bethan Church writes to us:—"We are doing a gre work in our city at present. Souls are coming in the kingdom at nearly every service."

Mr. Philip Cohen has conducted a missio attended with blessed results at Bedford, in co nection with the Wesleyan Forward Movemen He is now holding a Winter Gospel Mission Nottingham.

Kidderminster.—In connection with Baxt Church Young Men's Christian Band, a speci week's mission has been held by Mr. Lou Marks. The meetings were all well attended, a over fifty professed to find peace in believing.

Mr. E. H. Bartlett, of the Metropolita Tabernacle, recently conducted an eight day mission at the Seamen's Institute, 113, Boompj Rotterdam. Many Christians were refreshed, a had their zeal so quickened that they have beg to evangelise on the Dutch and German barges.

Ireland.—Three weeks' evangelistic servic have been held in Antrim by Mr. James Dickso of the Belfast City Mission. Several profess to have decided for Christ. Similar services ha been held in Magheragall Methodist Church Revs. H. Ball and George W. Thompson, Lisburn.

Upper Holloway.—Rev. R. Balgarnie h concluded his second mission at Upper Hollow Baptist Chapel. The attendance was large, a every night the vestries were frequented anxious inquirers. Mr. Balgarnie is this we engaged at the Baptist Chapel, Ealing, of whi Rev. W. T. Adey, is pastor.

Potterne.—The services in the Temperan Hall conducted by Mr. John Elliott have be blessed by God. Some, who have been the subje of many prayers, now profess to have been co verted. On Sundays the hall was packed, and week nights good congregations were drawn t gether.

Mr. Oscar Owers has during the past fi weeks conducted a mission at Miss Robinso Speedwell Gospel Hall, Portsmouth. The co gregations on Sundays have been very good, a several persons have expressed their desire to fi salvation. This work is now under the directi of Mr. T. Hogben, who has recently joined M Robinson at the Soldiers' Institute. A medic mission, mothers' meetings, and other helps to t poor and distressed of the neighbourhood, are no being arranged, and the workers are looking fo ward for much blessing during the coming wint

A profound religious impression h lately been created in the careless industrial pop lation of the city of Paterson, New Jersey. T improvement came through nineteen days of eva gelical work done by Rev. C. H. Yatman. Fo churches—Market-street Methodist and Embu Methodist, together with the Second and Thi Presbyterian churches—united to maintain the meetings. Immense crowds attended the servic It is estimated that from 700 to 800 people profess faith in Christ and an entrance upon the new li The churches are gathering up the results.

Mr. J. W. Moodie commenced a fortnight meetings in Elim Hall, Crosshill, Glasgow, on Su day, Nov. 2. At every meeting there were son who professed faith in the Lord Jesus. A striki feature of the work was the number of you people of both sexes who professed conversion. M Moodie has now gone to Saltcoats, where he followed by the prayers of his Christian frien in Crosshill. He has also lately concluded tw weeks' special meetings in the Seamen's Missio Hall, Ayr, N.B., which have been marked by co siderable blessing. Each night souls were dea with in the after-meeting, and a number mad profession of conversion.

The Finsbury Park Y.M.C.A. are holding a speci mission to young men in Finsbury Park Hall, Sev Sisters-road, every night this week. Mr. A. M. K gives the addresses The mission will close with "Praise and Purpose" meeting, at 7 p.m. Mr. G. Powell will preach on Sunday night.

STRANGERS' REST, RATCLIFF.—On Thur day, Nov. 13, a tea was given to about eigh sailors. Remarkable interest was shown whe Dick Sprag, a blacksmith, gave an account of h early life and of his conversion.

The Book World.

The Patriarch of Wemyss Bay.

Sir George Burns, Bart.; his Times and iends. By Edwin Hodder. 14s. Hodder & Stoughton. om many points of view the life of Sir George rns well deserved to be written down for the nefit of posterity. As one of the founders of e famous Cunard Company, he was a successful ig of commerce; he was a devoted and earnest ristian, and a man of strongly marked indiduality; he kept himself well in touch with, and lped on, many of the beneficent movements of day; and he was honoured with the friendship many who had risen to fame in varied walks of e. Mr. Hodder, the biographer, had the great vantage of a personal acquaintance with Sir orge, and therefore he has been able to produce a rk that gives a clear and fully rounded view of he patriarch of Wemyss Bay." As the sub-le indicates, there are many incidental glimpses Sir George's contemporaries, and the current cial, national, or religious life of the times. His se association with the late revered Earl of aftesbury forms the topic of a chapter brimful interest. The quiet evening tide of his busy e was beautifully lit up with the reflected light m the better shore, and his passing away was ly a falling on sleep. Mr. Hodder's volume ll do good service in keeping green the memory a truly noble Christian man.

Mr. Gladstone on the Bible.

The Impregnable Rock of Holy Scripre. By the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, M.P. 6d. Isbister. The essays lately contributed to od Words are here presented in a revised form, th some of the arguments amplified. The ope and character of Mr. Gladstone's defence of oly Writ from the attacks of sceptics and tionalistic critics are well known, for the rious articles have from time to time been printed and summarised in newspapers and views throughout the civilised world. These ges are, on the whole, a powerful enforcement the authority of Scripture. Facts and reasons e grasped and handled in a masterly manner, d abundant evidence is afforded of close observaon and wide reading. Though at the outset too uch is conceded to the modern critical school, as e work progresses it is shown that the conclusons of the critics will not stand examination the light of all the facts. As one closes the ok, rejoicing in the overwhelming arguments duced in support of the Word of Truth, the conction grows that Mr. Gladstone has well carried t his purpose, as thus tersely expressed at the tset:—"The present observations lead upwards d onwards to the idea that the Scriptures are ell called Holy Scriptures; and that though ssailed by camp, by battery, and by mine, they e nevertheless a house builded upon a rock, and at rock impregnable; that the weapon of fence which shall impair their efficiency for ding in the redemption of mankind has not yet een forged; that the Sacred Canon, which it ok (perhaps) two thousand years from the cumulations of Moses down to the acceptance of e Apocalypse to construct, is like to wear out the orms and the sunshine of the world, and all the ayward aberrations of humanity, not merely r a term as long, but until time shall be no ore."

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Story of the Fuh-Kien Mission of the hurch Missionary Society. By Eugene Stock. his is a compilation from the journals and letters f missionaries. It has reached a third edition, herein the story is brought up to date. There are any illustrations, also a map of the province. uch a publication ought to excite renewed interest mission work in China. (Church Missionary ouse.)

The Christmas volume of Little Folks (3s. 6d. nd 5s. Cassell & Co.) contains the half-year's numers of that most attractive periodical for the oung. It keeps well up to its high artistic and iterary standard of excellence. Subscribers for he January part are promised a "Little Folks' Diary and Note Book for 1891."—The volume of Bo-Peep (2s. 6d. and 3s. 6d.) is in truth a treasury f good things in picture, story, and verse for the ery little ones of the household.

Day Spring: A Story of the Time of William Tyndale. By Emma Marshall. 3s. 6d. "Home Words" Office. This is a second and cheaper edition of a capital story. Tyndale is exhibited as reformer, scholar, and martyr, and the interest is sustained throughout. This is a very instructive book, and we trust it will be widely circulated.

Wesley his own Biographer.—Mr. C. H. Kelly has issued the first part of this work, which consists of selections from the journals of Rev. John Wesley. The journals have a peculiar charm, and their publication in this form is a welcome incident to the centenary of Wesley's death. Many Methodists will be glad to possess themselves of this well illustrated edition of the work. (6d. each part.)

Messrs. Bagster & Co. have issued a "narrow edition" of the Bible in four vols.—the Pentateuch; the historical books; the devotional and prophetical books; and the New Testament. The volumes are very convenient in shape; the type is bold and clear, and the binding in red leatherette is extremely neat and tasteful. The volumes are put up in a handy leatherette case. The whole forms a valuable and acceptable Christmas or New Year's gift. (12s. and 16s.)

Mr. Herbert Ward, the African traveller, from his abundant knowledge and experiences, has told in Scribner's Magazine for November the "Tale of a Tusk of Ivory"—giving, in a vivid narrative, the history of a tusk from the trapping of the elephant to the sale of the ivory on the coast. All the iniquities of the traffic—the raids by Arab traders and the resulting slavery and ransom—are described. Mr. Frederic Villiers, who has spent much time in Africa, illustrates the article with spirited drawings.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress and Holy War. Messrs. Cassell & Co. have published, in one handsome volume, these two works of the immortal dreamer. There is prefixed a Life of Bunyan, by Rev. Dr. John Brown, and the text of the allegories is accompanied by comprehensive notes, by the late Rev. Dr. Maguire. Some 200 illustrations, by Selous, Priolo, and Friston, embellish the work. Admirably printed on good paper, this edition should find its way into many homes where the old Gospel is loved, and the Puritan interpretation revered. This will make a good presentation volume. 16s.

The Rights of Woman. By Mary Wollstonecraft. 7s. 6d. T. Fisher Unwin. This is a new edition of a famous "vindication" of woman's natural and moral rights, by one who had herself experienced some of the wrongs of her sex. The motif of the work, broadly stated, is that woman is meant to be the equal companion, and not the toy or plaything of man, and that her education ought to be such as will fit her for her true calling and destiny. The argument is worked out with great analytical skill, and is very powerful. Though public opinion as to woman's rights, and claims, and responsibilities has largely advanced since this work was written, nearly a hundred years ago, it is well worthy of a discreet study. Mrs. Henry Fawcett's introduction is earnest and sympathetic.

Mr. Spurgeon has published, in a neat shilling work, profusely illustrated, his two lectures on "Sermons in Candles" (Passmore & Alabaster). It is needless to say that the lectures are full of illuminating wisdom and grace, and are quite monumental in their ingenuity and cleverness. Light and heat break out on every page, and the whole Bodleian Library seems to have been put under tribute for contributions to the lustrous store of good things that are suggested by the subject. Of course, many a fiery ray of scorn flashes out on the down grade theologians, and probably most of it is well deserved; but we think the critical lecturer oversteps the bounds of Christian charity in charging those brethren who differ from him with dishonesty (v. p. 25).

Twixt Kiss and Lip; or, Under the Sword. By Rev. F. Harald Williams. 2s. 6d. Gardner & Co., Henrietta-street, Covent Garden. This remarkable volume contains about 40,000 lines of verse—a proof that the author keeps the fuel well piled up on the altar fires of his heart. A good many of the sparks seem to us to deserve no better fate than to be quenched; but in the steady glow of the larger poems we discern most unmistakable genius, both as to thought and expression. Mr. Williams, through his previous volume, "Women must Weep," has attained to the laureateship of the White Cross, and these pages embrace many a fiery blast of scorn and indignation directed to the damning sins of the age. The book, we think, would be more effective for any good purpose if it underwent a judicious weeding.

No more dainty or compact Christmas gift, in the publishing world, will be found this season than the "Finger" New Testament, published by the Oxford University Press. Uniform with the "Finger" Prayer Book, and printed on thin India paper, it is the essence of neatness and legibility. As to binding, ample variety is secured, and the prices range from 2s. to 10s. 6d.

Mr. T. Fisher Unwin has published a cheap edition (6d.) of Stops; or, How to Punctuate, a practical handbook by Paul Allardyce. At a like price he has brought out a new edition of English as She is Taught, in which are given many amusing answers to examination questions in public schools, with a commentary by Mark Twain.

Christmas Cards, Booklets, &c.—A pretty collection of these artistic souvenirs of the coming season may be found at the publishing house of Mr. Jas. Hawkins. Landscape is the prevailing subject of illustration in the booklets. "Cornish Coves and Corners," "Sea Breezes," "Country Breezes," "Tweedside," "Venetian Views," are all made most attractive to the eye by the harmony of the colour and the beauty of the sketching. The poetic extracts from various authors are fitly wedded to the pictures. "Sunshine for Life's Pathway" has comforting stanzas for every day in a month, and a clever illustration. on each page. "Heavenly Dew" and "Springs of Comfort" are also arranged for monthly reference. "Resting Places" is a collection of twelve pictorial brochures in a neat box.

Christmas and New Year Cards, Illustrated Booklets, &c. Messrs. Hildesheimer & Faulkner, 41, Jewin-street, E.C., have issued some choice cards. Among novelties, are several in the shape of autumn leaves, banjos, calendars, &c. For children there are cats and other objects of interest. The booklets include:—"Some Old Love Songs" (7s. 6d.), with charming illustrations in colour and monotint, by Alice Havers; "The Harvest Fields" (7s. 6d.), in monotint and colour, by Ernest Wilson; "Songs in the Snowdrifts" (1s.), in colour and monochrome, by Alice West; "London Sketches" (9d.), in monotint, by Percy Robertson; "Lady Pussycat's Ball" (6d.), poem by F. E. Weatherley, humorously illustrated by A. M. Lockyer. Among the "jewelled" souvenirs are: "Flower Thoughts," and "With the Season's Greetings" (1s. 6d. each), delicate in design and tasteful in execution. The assortment includes many very beautiful productions, the poetical selections being of a high order, and the artistic work equally praiseworthy.

Mr. J. G. Wheeler, of 88, Mildmay-park, N., has brought out some new "Ruby" publications. Floral designs, with carefully selected texts, are variously grouped. "Pearls" and "Treasures" are sixpence a packet of twelve; and "Pansies" and "Good Tidings" a shilling. These are all intended for use as Christmas tokens. The "Trust" series is of a more general character, suited for enclosing in letters (packets of twenty-four, sixpence).

The editor of Great Thoughts has made arrangements with the Countess of Meath to contribute a series of articles for the new volume of Great Thoughts which commences January 3, 1891.

Messrs. Horner's latest "Penny Stories for the People" are:—For Mother's Sake: A Story of the Demon Drink, by J. T. Allen; That Border Maiden: A Story of Washington's Times, by Sydney Watson; and Thrown to the Lions: A Tale of Old Rome, by W. L. T. W.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Messrs. J. Nisbet & Co.:—Once Hindu: now Christian The early life of Baba Padmauji. An autobiography. Edited by J. Murray Mitchell, LL.D. 2s.—"Come unto Me": Daily readings on the Sayings of Christ, by Mary Bradford Whiting. 1s. 6d.

Messrs. J. F. Shaw & Co.:—Eventide Light, by Emma Marshall. 5s.—The White Lady of Hazelwood, by Emily Sarah Holt. 3s. 6d.—Floss Silverthorn, by Agnes Giberne. 2s. 6d.—Two Little Boys, by L. Marston. 2s. 6d.—Bertie Clifton, by E. Everett Green. 2s.—Curley's Crystal, by Mrs. Marshall. 1s. 6d.—Hand in Hand, by J. Chappell. 1s. 6d.—Right about Face, by Emily Brodie. 1s.

Religious Tract Society:—A Yacht Voyage Round England, by William H. G. Kingston. 5s.—The Percivals, by Evelyn Everett Green. 3s. 6d.—Ida Hatherley at School, by Constance Evelyn. 3s. 6d.—Adopted. 2s. 6d.—Within Sight of the Snow, by Lily Watson. 1s. 6d.—Mr. Farrer's Big O's, by Emily Brodie. 1s. 6d.—Of All Degrees, by Leslie Keith. 3s. 6d.—The Twin Houses, and Other Stories, by Anne Beale. 2s. 6d.—His Young Neighbour, by Ellen Louisa Davis. 3s.—Peter's Sister, by Janet Eden. 3s.—Christie's Next Things, by the Author of "Mrs. Morse's Girls." 2s.—Dot-and-go-One, by M. Blanche Hayward. 2s.—When Jesus was here Among Men, by Mrs. Waterworth. 1s.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The Archbishop of Canterbury gives judgment in the Bishop of Lincoln case to-day (Friday).

The Queen has approved the appointment of Bishop Barry to be Canon of Windsor, in the room of Canon Eliot.

Rev. Canon Argles will succeed Dr. Stewart Perowne, Bishop Designate of Worcester, as Dean of Peterborough.

A special course of midday Christian Evidence Society addresses to men of business, artisans, &c., are being given every Thursday in Trinity Church, Salford.

The first of a special course of lectures, in connection with the Manchester branch of the Christian Evidence Society, was delivered last week in the nave of the cathedral.

The Bishop of London, presiding over a meeting of the East London Church Fund, said the fund at present maintains 144 additional clergy, but very many more clergymen are needed to deal with the masses of the poor.

BAPTIST.

The church at Kingstanley has celebrated its 250th anniversary.

The council of the Baptist Union have resolved to apply for powers to become a corporate body.

Special services have been held to celebrate the twenty-fourth year of Rev. G. Chandler's pastorate and the second anniversary of the new Baptist Chapel at Thurleigh, Beds. The debt of £114 was entirely cleared off.

Resignations. — Mr. R. C. Bardens, Strict Baptist Church, Cottenham.—Mr. F. S. Reynolds, Wattisham Strict Baptist Church.—Rev. W. Newell, Fishponds, near Bristol.

Calls Accepted.—Mr. T. T. Hughes, Aberduar, to Blaenau Festiniog, Calfaria.—Rev. W. Walters ("Talmai") to Pwll Church.—Rev. Frank Potter, Osborne, Nova Scotia, to Harston, Cambs.—Rev. J. Moffat Logan, Bromley, to Old King-street Baptist Chapel.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. J. G. Train and Rev. S. R. Macphail are this week conducting special Gospel missions in Liverpool and Manchester.

Exeter Hall has been selected as the place in which Rev. John McNeill will conduct popular services for the people on Sunday evenings.

A movement is on foot to erect a memorial to the late Jerman Jones, who laboured so faithfully as a missionary on Khassia mountain.

Through the influence of Professor McAlister, a Presbyterian Association of University men has been formed in connection with the Cambridge congregation. The Association meets on Sunday evenings after service, and discusses prominent questions of the hour.

Over one hundred Scotch farmers have settled in Essex, with their families and servants, on farms, and are doing well. These are Presbyterians, many of them being descendants of the Ayrshire Covenanters. At the suggestion of Sir George Bruce, the London Presbytery will send Mr. Stark, the evangelistic agent, to visit these farmers and see if anything is needed to be done for them spiritually.

Resignation.—Rev. Henry Osborne, Holywood, Ireland.

Calls Accepted.—Rev. Adam Wilson to Bridge of Weir. —Mr. J. W. Mulligan, Carrickfergus Presbytery, to Second Ray, Letterkenny, Ireland

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. G. Ernest Thorn has entered upon his work as deputation secretary of the Congregational Total Abstinence Society.

For the establishment of a college in Newcastle as a memorial of the late Dr. Rutherford, £5500 has already been subscribed.

Dr. R. W. Dale has introduced a modified Methodist class-meeting into his church at Birmingham. Meetings are held weekly, and the members give testimony on practical matters affecting their religious life.

At Prince's-street, Norwich, a system of visitation has been organised to look after the sick and absent. "Many," writes a correspondent, "have said it is the first time in their lives they have been so directly cared for."

Rev. Urijah Thomas, of Redland Park Chapel, invited Mrs. Booth-Tucker to his pulpit, on her recent visit to Bristol. Her discourse upon work in India made a deep impression, and the attendance, especially at the evening service, was overflowing.

Rev. J. R. Wood, of Upper Holloway, and his congregation, believing that many innocent persons are sentenced to terms of imprisonment through not being able to pay for legal assistance, are devising a scheme whereby the necessary assistance will be provided for the poor.

The London Congregational Board of Ministers, at its monthly meeting, entertained Rev. Dr. Oswald Dykes, who delivered an address on the "Modern Sermon in its relation to Public Worship." He condemned the demand for short and witty sermons, and claimed for the sermon a high place in Christian service.

Resignation.—Rev. W. Phillips, Harlech.

Calls Accepted.—Rev. H. G. Hastings to Rodborough Tabernacle, Stroud, Gloucester.—Rev. W. J. Robins, Woking, Surrey, to the pastorate at Cockfield and Thorpe, Suffolk.—Rev. Samuel King, West Norwood, to Westgate-on-Sea.—Mr. Samuel Roberts, Penarth, Llanfair, to Nant Welsh Church, near Wrexham.

SALVATION ARMY.

An Inter-State Congress was held last week in New York. Delegates from all parts of the United States were present.

The Queen of last week, and several issues of The Daily Graphic, had sketches of the Army rescue and social work in the East-end of London.

The latest movement of the Salvation Army in Toronto, Canada, is the establishment of a receiving home for discharged prisoners, with a waggon to call at the jail and convey prisoners direct to the home.

General Booth has written to Rev. J. C. Lambert, of Cathcart U.P. Church, Glasgow, stating that he intends to extend to Glasgow the scheme sketched in "Darkest England," as soon as he has the means and opportunity.

The Pall Mall Gazette describes a visit to the Salvation Army rescue establishment in Hanbury-street, Whitechapel, where men of all classes on the "down grade" are kept at work under cheerful management, are provided with good food and clean shelter, and are encouraged to strike out afresh in the world of honest independence.

METHODIST.

At George Yard, Hull, at a recent revival mission, there were over 100 professed converts.

A new chapel, to cost £3000, is to be built at St. Leonards. Upwards of £2400 has been raised.

It is proposed to establish a Rescue Home in connection with the Central Hall Mission at Manchester.

Moseley-road Chapel, Birmingham, is crowded on Sunday afternoons by working people to hear addresses on social and religious topics.

The Methodist Council of Nottingham has unanimously adopted a resolution urging upon the Town Council the total abolition of the race meeting on the Forest.

Methodism in Liverpool is active, especially in regard to all branches of social work. Throughout the district there is awakened interest on behalf of foreign missions.

Mr. Robert Davies, brother of the Lord-Lieutenant of Anglesey, announces his intention of contributiug £2000 to the foreign mission fund of the Calvinistic Methodist Association of Wales.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

The two hundredth anniversary of the death of George Fox, the founder of the Society of Friends, was observed last week.

Joseph G. Alexander (London) and Priscilla A. Fry (Bristol) on two successive Monday evenings have given able addresses on China in Cardiff Meeting-house, the former on the Opium Traffic, the latter on Christian Missions in China. Large audiences were deeply interested on both occasions, and the desire has been excited for further information on both subjects.

London Yearly Meeting, reckoning members and adherents, is smaller, perhaps, than Indiana, but with its manifold missions, and its 36,000 scholars in adult and juvenile schools, raising the number of those directly influenced for good to perhaps 60,000 people or more, may still be looked on as the first in importance existing. It is a remarkable fact that the money invested in the savings funds of Friends' adult schools amounts to £60,000, so that a scheme is on foot to centralise it, and also, if possible, to devise some form of life assurance for those connected with the schools.

Deeply interesting accounts of Indiana Yearly Meeting appeared in The Richmond Telegram, which indicate the presence of a reporter in the assemblies. The membership is 21,585, which is the largest of any yearly meeting in the world. This year showed an increase of 878. College reports were extremely encouraging. On the Sabbath of the yearly meeting there was "a high day in Israel" indeed. Probably thousands attended the Friends' services, and many of the pulpits in the city were ably filled with their ministers. Powerful evangelical sermons were preached by both men and women, especially by the latter. The Friends expect and receive blessing in their annual meetings.

NOTES FROM SCOTLAND.

A new mission-hall has been opened in Cumbernauld parish.

A friend of Mr. Quarrier's Homes has given £1000 to complete the Invalid Boys' Home.

The Children's Fresh-Air fortnight scheme in Aberdeen has done good service among the poor during the past season.

Dudhope Free Church, Dundee, has celebrated its jubilee. Rev. Andrew Inglis is the pastor. Dr. Andrew Bonar assisted in the services.

Rev. D. M. Ross, of Free St. John's Church, Dundee, is delivering a course of lectures embodying impressions gathered during a recent tour through Palestine.

Jubilee services have been held in connection with the Woodlands U.P. Church, Glasgow. Dr. Donald MacLeod, Professor Calderwood, and others took part.

Mr. Charles Cook writes that the meetings he is conducting at Carrubber's Close are growing in interest and numbers; many clear cases of conversion have been seen. The Saturday night meetings are crowded to the doors, and drunkards have been reclaimed.

Since the last meeting of the Synod of the United Presbyterian Church, death has cut off thirteen or fourteen U.P. ministers, including many distinguished fathers of the Church. On Nov. 8, Rev. W. F. Swan, senior minister of the United Presbyterian Church, Comrie, passed away.

At the third annual meeting of the Edinburgh Free Church Sunday-school Teachers' Association, Principal Rainy gave a short address, in which he adverted to the importance of the work of such an organisation, and the necessity there was for efficiency being maintained in the carrying on of all Christian enterprises.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

The Mission Committee of the Irish Presbyterian Church are making arrangements to send two or three young men to work as missionaries among the Jungle Tribes in India.

The Junior Ministers' Convention held its third annual gathering last week in Armagh. Earnest addresses on "Christian Work," "Holiness," "Amusements," "Prayer," &c., were delivered. Nearly all the junior ministers in Ireland were present.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rev. Archibald Gardner, Presbyterian Church, Prince's-road, Liverpool.—Rev. Richard Payne, honorary canon of Salisbury.—Rev. Richard Champenowe, rector of Darlington, near Totnes.—Rev. T. Fletcher, Market Rasen.—The Bishop of Rio de Janeiro.—Rev. Samuel Holmes, M.A., Canon Residentiary of Ripon Cathedral.—Rev. Dr. Dexter, Boston, U.S.A.—Rev. W. F. Powell, Prebendary of Hereford Cathedral.

ROMANISM IN AUSTRIA.

A CORRESPONDENT in Austria sends us the following translation of a ticket sold by Roman Catholics in the capital of a large province:—

"Ticket for the journey to paradise. Departure: At any hour. Arrival: When God will. Price of the places:—I. class (express): innocence, or martyrdom, or keeping the "evangelical counsels" (poverty, virtue, obedience). II. class (direct train): repentance, trust in God, and strict practice of good works (prayer, fasting, giving alms); III. class (ordinary train): keeping the commandments of God and the Church, and performance of the duties of one's station; IV. class (very seldom): conversion on a death-bed. Notice: (1) Return tickets are not issued; (2) excursion trains do not run; (3) little children who have not attained the age of reason are free if they are only in the bosom of the Mother, the Catholic Church; (4) passengers are requested to take no other luggage with them but good works, as they do not wish to miss the train, or to have an unpleasant delay at the last station but one (purgatory), where all other luggage must be left behind; (5) passengers are taken up at every station all along the journey; (6) each ticket must bear the stamp of the sanctifying grace; (7) every passenger can change during the journey from a lower to a higher class, but the changing from a higher to a lower, being dangerous, is positively forbidden."

Well may our correspondent say:—"The death of our Blessed Lord is entirely ignored. Let no English Christians believe that the teaching of this ticket is exceptional; it is the moral food offered to the starving souls, who are feeding on the husks of 'baptized heathenism.'"

In order to counteract such teaching, it is desired to circulate, by post, New Testaments, Gospels, and other Christian literature. Those who wish to help may communicate with Mr. Gawin Kirkham, 14, Duke-street, Adelphi, donations being specified as for "Gospel literature for Austria."

BRISTOL.—In Bristol there have of late been signs of a spiritual revival, and a desire is felt for united action among the churches in special evangelistic services. At a meeting attended by ministers and workers connected with all evangelical Nonconformist churches, it was decided that a series of meetings should be held in all parts of the city.

Ramsgate.—Lady workers are much needed for carrying on evangelistic efforts during the winter. Some Christian railway men meet weekly to pray, and they desire the help of a lady to conduct meetings in connection with the Railway Mission. The superintendent of the Y.W.C.A. Institute, lately opened, is also seeking the co-operation of ladies in meetings and classes. A night school usually opened for men who cannot read is not yet begun this winter for lack of ladies to teach in it. Young men recently converted are seeking help in learning to read the Bible, and there are Gospel services in mission rooms which need workers. Christian ladies can be received as boarders in a Workers' Rest if they will co-operate in some of these directions. Mrs. W. HATHAWAY, Finsbury House, Ramsgate.

TES ON DAILY READINGS.

se Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas rdson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E., of card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, ed by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope many r readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer n," and take its Monthly Notes, which of course are entirely ent from these.

SUNDAY, NOV. 23.—Song of Solomon V.

first verse belongs to the last section. In it is the close of the first half of the whole , here divided, as Hengstenberg expresses it, two parts, "the Union and the Re-union." If istian experience never knew anything of cold- deadness, sleepiness, wandering from God, this second part of the book would not be led; but as, alas! such experience is too com- , and the charge, "thou hast left thy first love," ot confined to Ephesus, we are, in the second of the "Song of Songs," instructed as to , when communion is lost, it is to be regained.

I sleep.—The commencement of all back- ing is disobedience to the exhortation, "Let us sleep as do others." The world with all its vity, mental and bodily, is, as to the things of l, asleep; but to the Christian "it is high time wake out of sleep" as his salvation is nearer n when he believed (Rom. xiii. 11). Yet, alas! hile the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered slept."

Ve have a clear reference to this scene in Rev. 20, where our Lord's words, "Behold, I stand at door, and knock," identify Him with the Bride- om here.

I have put off my coat; how shall I put it on? ave washed my feet; how shall I defile them?— e excuse of laziness; or, spiritually understood, is the soul's disinclination to "do the first ks" of repentance and faith, whereby alone an be restored to its first position.

The watchmen...smote me.—The soul that has its first love, and is seeking restoration, must r expect hard knocks from the ecclesiastical atchmen," who cannot enter into or understand h experience.

0. My Beloved is white and ruddy.—The two ours suggest the two aspects of Christ's person l work," Jesus Christ the righteous, and He is the pitiation for our sins."

MONDAY, NOV. 25.—Song of Solomon VI.

The Bride's rapturous description of the beauty her Lord attracts others to seek Him (1).

I am my Beloved's, and my Beloved is mine.—This ems Shulamith's exclamation on at last finding r Beloved. It is an acknowledgment of her sin not rising (v. 2-6) to admit Him, and is anticipation of New Testament language: "Ye e not your own, for ye are bought with a price." ark two other occurrences of similar language . 16 and vii. 10). The first may be called the nguage of justification, dwelling primarily on at He is to the soul, "My Beloved is mine," &c. his one (3) is rather the language of sanctifi- tion, putting first its obligation to Him who has ught it, "I am my Beloved's," &c., and in vii. 10 e thought of the final redemption of the body ems appropriate, followed, as the words are, by his desire is toward me," to which John xiv. 3 is a rallel, "I will come again, and receive you unto yself." See also Eph. v. 27, "That He might resent it to Himself a glorious church."

4. Thou art beautiful, &c.—Nowhere does the ord's grace so appear as in restoring the soul fter its wandering from Him by such assurance s this as to its beauty in his sight. The very epetition of images used before (comp. 5, 6 with v. 1, 2) testifies that he regards her as before.

13. As it were the company of two armies.— Modern scholars render this "the dance of Mahanaim," though differing very much amongst hemselves as to what is meant. We may, how- ver, well be satisfied with the old rendering, as it s that of the LXX. and Vulgate, and of Rabbinical ommentators. For the meaning see Gal. v. 17.

TUESDAY, NOV. 25.—Song of Solomon VII.

The praises of the Bride are now sounded forth y the chorus—the daughters of Jerusalem. Not ill ver. 6 does the King enter, his approach being ntimated in the last clause of the previous verse. In ver. 10 the Bride replies by the last of the three ssertions of their mutual interest in possession of ne another. She drops now the last clause (as in vi. 3), "and my Beloved is mine," and expresses instead only her being his possession, "I am my Beloved's, and his desire is towards me."

11. Come, my Beloved, let us go forth into the field.—This is the Bride's appeal, "antithetical to that of the King on the day of their espousals, in which He had asked her to forsake home and occupation for his sake. The Bride in her turn now invites her Beloved to re-visit in her company the lowly scenes of pastoral life, out of which his grace had raised her, and to which (though once forsaken at his bidding) her heart still innocently clings."—Sp. Com. It is, however, a question whether the word "innocently" should be used to describe her clinging to her home and its associations. A deeper view of the passage, and one, alas! more true to nature, sees in it the figurative description of that worldly spirit, which, under the specious pretext of bringing Christ into all our ordinary life, is in fact refusing to obey his command to "forget also thine own people and thy father's house." It is not for the Bride who has been invited to accompany the Bridegroom to the mountain tops (iv. 8) to choose for herself "the field" and "the villages" as the place where she will give Him her love (12). There is both self-will and worldliness here. We might say, as in Matt. xiii. 38, "the field is the world." But the mountain tops are those of Col. iii. 1-4.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 26.—Song of Solomon VIII.

1. O that Thou wert as my brother, &c.—The Spouse here evidently is not satisfied; she would have her Beloved to bear another relationship to her than that of husband. And the cause of her discontent is the desire not to be despised by them that are without when she manifests her love to Him. With the love of husband and wife no stranger intermeddleth; no one else can share that joy; each exclusively claims the other in a covenant which cannot be broken. Thus does Christ claim the believing soul; thus should the soul claim Him. But to do so brings reproach. The manifestation of such love causes us to be despised. "Let us therefore go forth unto Him, without the camp, bearing his reproach." But it is hard to bear, and the weak and failing heart, forgetful of the Saviour, of his good ointments, and of his love which is better than wine, cries out, "O that Thou wert as my brother, that sucked the breasts of my mother!" &c. "Oh that the bond between us were one of human nature, and not of Divine choice—one which would not cause me to be despised of them that are without! Such a representation of Christianity as makes God the Father of all men, and ignores the exclusive sense in which He is the Father only of his believing people—which makes Christ the Brother of us all, and denies that He is the Husband exclusively of his elect Church—is always popular. From platform and press the world eulogises those who profess such liberal sentiments; and they who know better are too often tempted to say, 'O that Thou wert as my brother,' &c. But the Bride goes further, 'I would lead Thee and bring Thee into my mother's house, who would instruct me.' Think for a moment of such a Bride leading such a Bridegroom! And whither? 'Into my mother's house' (see Ezek. xvi. 3, 'thy mother (was) a Hittite'), and yet this mother is to be her teacher!" See ver. 2.

5. Who is this that cometh up from the wilderness, leaning upon her Beloved?—In direct contrast to all that she has been saying, He thus reproves by a single word all her idle talk of all that she would do for Him. Then she leaned upon her Beloved, now she would lead Him. Then He brought her up from the wilderness, now she would bring Him into her mother's house. He puts Himself also into as direct contrast with her mother: "I raised thee up under the apple-tree: there thy mother brought thee forth." He had redeemed her from the place and condition in which her mother bare her.

6. Set me as a seal upon thine heart, &c.—It is far better to take these as the words of the Bridegroom than, as is commonly done, of the Bride. It is true the Masoretes make it spoken by the Bride, by making the pronouns masculine; but so they do also in ver. 5, which Delitzsch and other commentators pronounce to be wrong, and without scruple alter. The previous context points to the Bridegroom as the speaker. The jealous love of the husband might fairly be hurt by the bride's reference to her mother, and in contrast to this He might well say: "Set Me as a seal upon thine heart." "He that loveth father or mother more than Me is not worthy of Me."

8. We have a little sister.—Probably the earthly Israel, hereafter to be brought under the power of redemption (silver), and to be given "a new heart and a new spirit" (cedar, type of incorruptibility).

THE PROPHECIES OF ISAIAH.

Of his personal life we know little. His father's name was Amoz. His name, which means "God's Salvation," seemed to anticipate his mission. Because of the vividness of his portraiture of our Lord, he may well be called "the evangelic prophet." But besides dwelling on the sublime revelations of the future, he was one of the great statesmen of his time, and took a leading part in that great crisis of national history in which his lot was cast.

He tells us that he lived and prophesied in four reigns, and the various chapters of his book may be thus divided:—

The reign of Uzziah, i.-v.; of Jotham, vi.; of Ahaz, vii.-xiv. 27; the first half of Hezekiah's reign, xiv. 28-xxxv.; the second half of Hezekiah's reign, xxxvi.-lxvi.

His ministry, at the lowest estimate, must have extended over fifty years. Outwardly, under Uzziah and his successors, the nation was well organised and prosperous—the Philistines humbled, commerce flourishing, agriculture greatly improved. But, as we shall see, the grossest evils infected and undermined the State; for these judgment was imminent.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27.—Isaiah I.

This chapter contains the Book in miniature. It is shown that the judgments impending on Judah and Jerusalem were the result of the multiplied evils which were rampant throughout the state. In addition to this, a most urgent call is addressed to the whole nation that it should turn from its evil ways to the God who had done so much for them, and who even then was prepared to forgive all that had alienated his affections, averting judgment, and welcoming them back to Himself.

We have an indictment of sins (2-9); a declaration of the uselessness of outward ritual to atone for them (10-15); an appeal for repentance (16-23); and a glimpse of those better times which were to dawn on the Divine heritage (24-31). The whole chapter should be compared with Deut. xxvii.-xxxii.

2, 3. We sometimes speak of men falling to the level of the beasts, but they touch even lower depths. There is no sin we are quicker to notice than ingratitude, when shown to ourselves, and no sin to which we are more liable towards God.

5. Might be rendered, "Upon what part of the body can ye be stricken?" as if the whole body were covered with wales, and correction had gone to its furthest limit, without effect.

6. He who had smitten was most willing to heal them, if only they would return to Him (Deut. xxxii. 39; Hos. vi. 1). But this they would not do. Ah! how many sores and wounds do we all carry with us, festering, instead of exposing them, to his gentle touch.

9. We must not always address people as you but take our stand with them—us.

11. In days of judgment the temples are crowded. But it is easier to persuade people to part with their sacrifices than their sins. When the heart is withheld, God is nauseated by the mere performance of a pompous ceremonial ritual.

13. Even the solemn meeting with which the Feast of Tabernacles closed was ungodliness, because men went straight from its solemnities to their sins. Beware of having the form of godliness and denying the power.

18. What a conference is here! Scarlet and crimson are the fastest of colours, yet even these may be washed out.

27. Her converts—i.e., those who shall return from captivity.

29. The oak was the green tree beneath which the images were set up (2 Kings xvii. 10)—the gardens, those used for unholy rites.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 28.—Isaiah II.

The analysis of this chapter is easy. It begins with a prediction, repeated by Micah (iv. 1-3). Then follows a pitiful photograph of the state of the nation (6-9). And it closes with the coming judgment (10-22).

2. A blessed vision of the prevalence of true religion; and no doubt, also, of the ultimate restoration of the Jews, so that Jerusalem shall yet be the centre and rallying-point for the world. What the builders of Babel tried to do and failed shall be accomplished by Him who from his cross and throne draws all men to Himself.

4. These words must have sounded strange in Uzziah's days, "which were remarkable for weapons of war" (2 Chron. xxvi. 11-15). Jesus is our peace (Micah v. 5; Eph. ii. 14).

6. They imported soothsayers from the land of Balaam.

7. In distinct violation of Deut. xvii. 16, 17. To trust in these things is to apostatise from God (Hos. xiv. 3).

10. There is only one Rock in which sinners can be safe (Deut. xxxii. 4). "Would you fly from God, fly to God."

12. The day of the Lord is the day of national and individual judgment (Joel i. 15). And it was approaching in this case in the invasion of the King of Babylon.

13. The loftiest trees, the most noble mountains, the strongest fortifications are here used as symbols of the strength and pride of man.

16. Commerce and Art.

18. The Hebrew is very graphic, "shall flit away like the phantom of a dream."

19. What a contrast to the Rock (10).

21. This is used as imagery of a yet greater day of judgment (Rev. vi. 16).

22. We are all too prone to trust in each other, and in the great and strong. But what folly, when the mightiest holds his life on so slender a tenure as a breath! To cease from man is to enter upon the true possession of God.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29.—Isaiah III.

The people of Judah and Jerusalem seemed so secure in their circumstances, as to be able to ridicule the fear of coming judgment. So now the prophet declares with more minuteness the approaching fate of the mighty and wise (2-7), of the gay and beautiful (16-24). And the nation, deprived of its natural leaders, would stagger to ruin (8, &c.). Whenever God withdraws his presence from a people, anarchy and confusion follow.

6, 7. Such would be the desolation that men would shrink from positions of responsibility, which are generally sought after with the greatest eagerness.

8. What a remarkable expression "the eyes of glory!" And how terrible the sin which defiantly provokes them! (2 Chron. xvi. 9).

10. Well, eternally well! Let us believe that whatever befalls us, it is well, because permitted or ordered of God's love.

12. Women perverted even Solomon. She whose religious nature may be the inspiration of a home, when it is perverted becomes its bane and curse (Neh. xiii. 26).

14. God has ever constituted Himself the Guardian of the rights of the poor and down-trodden. Sweaters, beware!

16. These words were meant for the rebuke of the high-born ladies of Jerusalem, but they may have a secondary reference to the nation herself, whose pride and wantonness are thus allegorically described. What a contrast to 1 Pet. iii. 3-10. Inordinate care of dress, and dress of a certain sort, reveal pride, or even darker passions, hence the vehemence with which ostentation of this kind is denounced. This description of the dress should be compared with the R.V.

23. On the final fall of Jerusalem a medal was struck, in which she was represented as a woman sitting on the ground in an attitude of despair.

THE KHOND MISSION.—On Thursday, Nov. 13, Mr. Thomas Wood sailed for India in the Coromandel, to join Messrs. Wilkinson and Long, in work among the Khonds. He is the only son of a farmer of Biggar, N.B., and his parents freely give him up for the cause of Christ, and afford him means of support. A farewell meeting was held at Victoria Hall, Victoria Park, on Nov. 11, Mr. J. D. Link presiding. The hon. sec., Mr. W. T. Long, gave a brief report, showing how special providences had followed earnest prayer. He described the visit of the native magistrate, now a Christian; and the invitation of the townspeople to listen to the missionaries, who have been asked to select a site for mission purposes. Addresses were delivered by Revs. E. Thomas, J. S. Morris, W. Spensley, and Mr. W. George. The young missionary gave an account of his conversion and call to the work; how he had set his face like a flint, after counting the cost, to go out with the Gospel to this tiger jungle—to live or die for the glory of God. Every heart was moved, as the chairman took the hand of Mr. Wood, and in the name of the meeting, wished him "God-speed." Mr. Wood has gone through a course of study at Harley College, Bow. On the ship with him were some Orissa missionaries, who will help him with the language, on the voyage to Calcutta.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, November 30.

JESUS RISEN.—LUKE xxiv. 1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT: 1 COR. xv. 20.

THE aim of this lesson should be twofold; first, to make real the fact that Jesus rose from the dead, then to show the value of this fact. It will be unnecessary to spend too much time over the details. The last lesson brought us to the death of Jesus; the spear-thrust leaves no room for doubt concerning that (John xix. 34). Fill in the narrative: the burial in Joseph's tomb—not a hole dug in the earth, but a kind of cave cut in the rock. The stone, like a large mill-stone, fitting into a groove, is rolled to the mouth of the cave. This is done before the Sabbath begins; and the women, broken-hearted with grief, beheld the sepulchre (xxiii. 55).

1-4. These were the faithful women (10) who had followed Him from Galilee (viii. 2, 3), ministering to Him, and whose affection made them almost the last to leave the cross (xxiii. 49). They had left everything for Him, and now He is dead, and their cherished hopes concerning Him are disappointed. No wonder their grief was bitter. As they came from different parts of the city, they probably met as they neared the sepulchre (compare Matt. xxviii. 1 and Mark xvi. 1). Their desire to complete the embalming of the body (John xix. 39, 40) was a mistake, yet love brought them. It is a testimony to their piety that they tarried during the Sabbath (xxiii. 56), and to their zeal that they came "very early." "The stone" (2) had been remembered on their journey as a difficulty (Mark xvi. 3). But imagine their surprise to find it rolled away! God is ever removing stones of difficulty out of the way of true seekers. They did not know who had done it (Matt. xxviii. 2-4). Many angelic ministries are similarly unrecognised by us. "Found not the body" (3).—This was a still greater surprise. How, and by whom, had it been removed? They were "perplexed" (4). The thought of resurrection does not occur to them (John xx. 2). The priests were perplexed too. In spite of their caution the tomb is empty! Their foolish story (Matt. xxviii. 11-15) refutes itself.

4-7. Angels had been connected with the birth, temptation, and garden agony of Jesus. It is not wonderful that they should be connected with Him in his triumph. What a welcome surprise the presence of these shining ones ought to have been. Angels in the abode of death! Before they deliver their message, their very presence is a gospel. Who need fear the tomb, if lighted by their presence? "Afraid" (5)—the invariable effect upon man of contact with the supernatural; suggesting the absolute necessity of a spiritual and heavenly nature for enjoying fellowship with spiritual and heavenly things. In the angels' question (5) there is some measure of reproof. The abode of death is not the place to find the Living One (Acts ii. 24; Rev. i. 18). He had descended into the grave, not merely as a victim, but as a conqueror (Heb. ii. 14). The statement "He is risen" (6) only fulfils the prediction so frequently uttered (6, 7, ix. 22). Not only the testimony of the angels, but the word of Jesus becomes the ground of their faith. If the other parts of that word are fulfilled, it ought to be easy to believe this.

8-12. "They remembered" (8).—It was forgetfulness that caused their distress. There is always some word of his to meet our sorrow if we did but remember (6). They evidently believed, for their fear was accompanied by "great joy" (Matt. xxviii. 8); and they were made the first preachers of the resurrection. "Idle tales" (11). There is something remarkable in the persistent unbelief of the disciples. Yet we may be thankful that the early witnesses to this fact were so slow to believe it themselves. It was altogether outside their own thought; and even when mentioned to them it seemed too good to be true. Yet the evidence was sufficient to remove their doubts, and to fill them with such confidence that they were willing to face death in testifying to this fact. Peter's visit to the sepulchre (12) is narrated more particularly in John xx. 3-10. Note the orderly arrangement of the grave clothes, intimating that the body had not been violently removed, and that Jesus left the tomb, not in haste, but as a conqueror. "Now is Christ risen from the dead," Golden Text.

LESSONS.

Of what value is this fact? That it is of great importance is clear from the fact that it was the great theme of the Apostles' preaching. Without the resurrection they had no Gospel to p (1 Cor. xv. 13-19).

(1) Proves Him to be the Son of God (Rom. i. This was his claim (John v. 18, x. 30-33). promised one special sign (Matt. xii. 38-40; ii. 18-22). If He had not risen the Sanhe would have been right in charging Him blasphemy. He was no "deceiver," but in the Son of God.

(2) Evidences God's satisfaction with his wo Even a child may understand that Jesus on cross is bearing our sin, and being punished in stead (2 Cor. v. 21). But if God opens the pri and lets Him out, is not that the acquittal bot the substitute and of those for whom He st See Rom. iv. 25, viii. 34. For believers the "no condemnation"; but for those who r Jesus what an aggravation of guilt!

(3) Declares what our life may be.—Recall difference between the grub and the dragon- the one living under water, the other with br wings flying in the sunlight. Such the cha which union with Jesus in resurrection produc us (Rom. vi. 1-4). We learn to hate the si which we formerly lived, and which put Hi death, and to love Him who gave Himself fo (Gal. ii. 20; Col. iii. 1-3).

(4) Makes our resurrection certain (1 Cor. 22).—But there are two resurrections in the fu —one to everlasting life, the other to judgm and shame and everlasting contempt (John v. 28, Dan. xii. 2). Which resurrection will be yours

CONTINENTAL & FOREIGN NOTE

HAMBURG.—Revs. Messrs. Aston and Frank, P Presbyterian missionaries in Hamburg, are doin most admirable work among the Jews, of whom th are several thousands in that city. They have a S bath-school with about 250 scholars, and are inten in earnest and untiring in their efforts to reach the s of Abraham with the Gospels of Jesus Christ.

SPAIN.—The town of Villaescusa, in which for so time a very interesting Gospel work has been in p gress, is now provided with a Protestant church. opening services, at the beginning of the month, w attended by the magistrate and town council an large number of people. The pastor, Don Daniel, highly felicitated by the towspeople in general, an is hoped that greater things are ahead of the little b of evangelical witnesses than any of their past exp ences. Details of the work may be had from the offi of the Spanish Church Aid Society, 8, Adam-str Adelphi, W.C.

IN DARKEST ITALY.—Statistics recently publish throw a fierce light upon the miseries of life in cert parts of Italy. Over 200,000 persons reside in ab lutely unwholesome cellars; 9000 inhabit caves a hollows on rocks and mountain sides. In 1700 co munes bread is only tasted on festive occasions, and 4695 meat is never in demand. In 600 communes it impossible to secure medical aid, and 110,000 Itali suffer from pellagra—a disease caused by living maize, affected by a parasitic fungus. Finally, 63 p sons out of 100 cannot read or write. What has Romanism left undone in the beautiful land where has so long held sway?

JEWS AND THE NEW TESTAMENT.—The G man religious papers relate two remarkable conversio through reading the New Testament. A young Isra ite from the Crimea, well up in the traditions Judaism, made the acquaintance of some Christi families. Literary tastes suggested the idea of writi a story in which representatives of both religio should figure. In order to understand Christianity read the New Testament, with the result that he w convinced that Jesus was the Messiah of whom Mos and the prophets wrote. Another case was of a Ber painter, a Hebrew by race. He was led to read t New Testament in search of subjects for pictures. his studies he was so struck by the beauty of the mo character of Jesus, and afterwards was constrained see in Him the Son of God and the Saviour of t world. He has recently been baptized.

BAPTISM OF AN AFRICAN CHIEF.—M. D. Ellenberger, of the Massitissi station of the Lesson Mission, reports the baptism of an octogenarian chi Davida Kakoli. The details given in the Journal Missions Evangéliques, published by the Paris Society Evangelical Missions, are very interesting. Some the chief's sons and a party of his people, the Bathl koas, attended the ceremony. For the most part h subjects were displeased, and got up a counte attraction on the day of the baptism. The chief's confe sion was very clear and to this effect:—"People of Go I, a sinner, have thrown myself at the feet of Jesus be saved. I am truly conquered by the Gospel. Lon have I lived attached to earthly things. These I to-da renounce; I have given myself to God. Perhaps som of you, my children, will say, 'Our father has gon astray,' because I have entered the way of God. N indeed, I have not gone astray, but I am saved by th Son of God who died for me. Further, I know tha God will judge us, and that we shall have to give a count to Him of our life here: he that shall have don good will be honoured; but he that shall have done ev will be condemned. Bathlokoas! Follow me, and yo also shall live!"

TIONAL VIGILANCE ASSOCIATION.

FIFTH ANNUAL MEETING will be held in the EMORIAL HALL, Farringdon-street, E.C., on NESDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1890. The Chair will en at 7.30 p.m, by vill be supported by Rev. Canon Scott, Rev. Dr. Lunn, Mrs. Charles Mallet, Miss Blanche Lepon, Samuel Smith, Esq., M.P., H. J. Wilson, Esq., John McDougall, Esq., L.C.C., Percy W. Bunting, W. Anstis Bewes, Esq., W. T. Stead (Editor of the w of Reviews), and others. Tickets for the Meetan be had on application at the Offices of the Asson, 267, Strand, W.C. Reserved seat tickets One ng. WILLIAM ALEX. COOTE, Secretary.

PROFESSOR STUART, M.P.,

PEN-AIR MISSION.

REV. JAMES NEIL, M.A., rly Incumbent of Christ Church, Jerusalem, will Deliver ectures on Palestine,

ated by Coloured Pictures, Diagrams, &c., in the Library of Baptist Mission House, Furnival Street, Holborn (near Chancery-lane), as under :—

AY, NOVEMBER 21st—
"Strange Scenes of Farm Life."
Chairman, JOSEPH WEATHERLEY, Esq.

AY, NOVEMBER 28th—
"Strange Scenes of Home Life."
hairman, Lieut.-Gen. Sir ROBERT PHAYRE, K.C.B.

CHAIR WILL BE TAKEN EACH EVENING AT 7 O'CLOCK.
Admission Sixpence. Ladies are Invited.

N-AIR MISSION OFFICE, GAWIN KIRKHAM,
Duke-street, Adelphi, W.C. Secretary.

ONDON CITY MISSION

IVE HUNDRED Missionaries now employed in beseeching the masses in the Metropolis to be nciled to God through Jesus Christ our Lord. e to house visitation. Personal dealing. Work ly undenominational. Funds much needed. Comications to the Secretaries { T. S. HUTCHINSON, M.A. / R. DAWSON, B.A.

CE : 3, Bridewell Place, E.C.
ANKERS : Barclay, Bevan, Ransom & Co., 54, Lombard-st., E.C.

ripture Readers' Society FOR IRELAND.

INSTITUTED 1822.

unds greatly needed to extend the Itinerant work. he Scripture Readers are placed under carefully ted Superintendents, and not only located in Towns Cities, but also sent into remote districts where are generally well received by all denominations. sh speaking Readers are sent where required. ors in Seaports are visited, and Bethel Services e work is carried on in a spirit of love and not of roversy.

eports and all particulars sent post free on applicato Captain JAMES KEARNEY WHITE, Secretary, ees, 27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin, and 9, rnoster-row, London.
onations may be sent to the above addresses, or will eceived by the Proprietors of THE CHRISTIAN.
ase notice exact title of Society as above.

HE SABBATH FOR PARIS.

An earnest desire is expressed by the Comee of the

PARIS CITY MISSION

he appointment of a special qualified Missionary struct the people of that Sabbath-desecrating city e obligations, duties, and privileges of the Lord's Evangelistic work in Paris has created a spirit quiry about the right observance of the Day.

rticulars will be gladly supplied, and contributions ived, by the Hon. Secretary for England,

J. M. WEYLLAND.

, CARLTON HILL, ST. JOHN'S WOOD, N.W.

EVENINGS IN THE HOLY LAND.

ISS VON FINKELSTEIN
(MRS. MOUNTFORD)

pen to Lecturing Engagements both for Public s and Drawing-rooms. Also on Sundays. For s and particulars apply—
STMINSTER PALACE HOTEL, LONDON, S.W.

MISS WESTON'S
ATTRACTIVE
ALL ALMANACK
FOR 1891,

Price ONE PENNY; Post Free, Three-halfpence.
rmingly Illustrated, with a Text for Every Day.
Apply Editor "Ashore and Afloat," Sailors' Rest, Portsmouth.

MARYLEBONE MEDICAL MISSION,

12, Bell Street, Edgware Road, N.W.

Object.—To care for the Body and Soul after the example of the Lord Jesus when on earth.

AVERAGE NUMBER OF PATIENTS treated weekly, 300.

ALL PATIENTS receive Advice and Medicine FREE.

SIX GOSPEL SERVICES held weekly. Lending Library. Tract Distribution. Coal and Clothing Club.

The Destitute are provided with Food, Coal, &c.

The Attendance at the Meetings has largely increased.

Visitors are cordially invited to come and see the work for themselves. The best days are Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, at a quarter to 1 o'clock. Visitors will also be welcomed at the Bible-class on Monday, at 3.30 p.m., or to the Gospel Service on Sunday evening, at 7 o'clock.

FUNDS ARE MUCH NEEDED.

Contributions will be thankfully received by Dr. R. CHAMBERS, 12, Bell-street, Edgware-road, N.W.; by the Treasurer, Dr. E. PARKER YOUNG, 30, Westbourne-square, W.; also by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of THE CHRISTIAN, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.

Warm Clothing for the Poor is much needed.

ALL PARCELS should be sent to Dr. R. CHAMBERS, 12, Bell-street, Edgware-road, N.W.

HOPE for the HOPELESS

A SPECIAL and URGENT APPEAL is made for the FUNDS necessary to continue the RESCUE AND MISSION WORK IN SPITALFIELDS.

We have recently opened a Mission-room in Dorset-street, which now forms the centre of our Mission and Rescue work in that district, and is doing excellent work, which we are anxious to extend by taking the whole house, using it in part as a Crèche, and also as a TEMPORARY SHELTER FOR POOR GIRLS, whom we are obliged to house until we can secure their admission into Homes, or we have arranged to send them back to their friends.

WHO WILL HELP in this very necessary part of our work? We ask for £500 for this object.

Further details on application, Rev. J. H. SCOTT, M.A., Rectory, Spitalfields, London, E.

CHURCH PAROCHIAL MISSION SOCIETY,

7, ADAM STREET, ADELPHI, LONDON, W.C.

PATRONS.

The Archbishops of Canterbury and York, and the Bishops of London, Durham, Bath and Wells, Carlisle, Exeter, Gloucester and Bristol, Lichfield, Liverpool, Llandaff, Manchester, Newcastle, Oxford, Ripon, Rochester, Southwell, Truro, Wakefield, Sodor and Man, and Bedford.

The object of this Society is to promote Mission Work in the Church of England by supplying a Staff of Experienced Mission Preachers.

It is the earnest desire of the Committee to do a larger work in poor (town or country) districts, where without the aid of the Society a Mission could not otherwise be held, but they are unable to render such assistance from lack of money. THEY EARNESTLY, THEREFORE, APPEAL FOR FUNDS to enable them to meet this pressing necessity.

All applications and Contributions should be sent to Secretary, 7, Adam-street, Adelphi, London, W.C.

General Superintendent— Rev. W. A. HAY AITKEN, M.A.
Treasurer— EDWARD M. DENNY, Esq.
Secretary—Rev. HERBERT MUIR, M.A.

MIDNIGHT MEETING MOVEMENT

In addition to the usual DISTRICT MIDNIGHT MEETINGS of the Society, arrangements are now being made to CARRY THE GLAD TIDINGS OF SALVATION as far as possible to EVERY OUTCAST WOMAN in this GREAT METROPOLIS on the LAST NIGHTS of the YEAR.

Early associations are not easily effaced, even from the memories of Outcast Women—SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS and influences, HAPPY SABBATH DAYS, and even the transition from THE OLD YEAR to THE NEW YEAR—and the Committee are therefore arranging, by the circulation of special tracts, COPIES of the GOSPELS, and MIDNIGHT MEETINGS, to appeal to every Outcast Woman to REPENT and turn to GOD!

The Committee gratefully acknowledge the offer of help by NEW VOLUNTARY WORKERS, and would be thankful for FURTHER OFFERS OF AID for any SUBURBAN DISTRICT.

SPECIAL DONATIONS ARE EARNESTLY ENTREATED.

£5 DONATION will cover the expenses of a Meeting.

Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of "THE CHRISTIAN," will receive Donations.

J. H. L. CHRISTIEN, Organising Superintendent.
C. WILSON M'CREE, Secretary.

Office—8A, RED LION SQUARE, W.C.

HOMES OF HOPE,

4, 5, and 6, Regent-square, Gray's-inn-road, London, W.C.

THE COMMITTEE are very unwilling to press the claims of this Charity, but every day most painful applications are made for admission, and the thought of refusing a helping hand to any young woman struggling to get out of her miserable life is very distressing, especially in the case of those who have made a first false step downwards. Very sad tales of suffering and wrong are told by these young women, many of them the orphan daughters of parents who moved in a good position, but were left when young, friendless, and wholly unprovided for. We are quite sure if the readers could witness the distress and anguish in many cases of those who apply, it would give them pleasure to aid us in restoring them to positions of usefulness.

It has scarcely ever happened in the experience of the Committee that the mothers rescued have fallen a second time. We are in urgent need of FUNDS, and any help will be most opportune at the present time.

HENRY THOMPSON, Esq., Treasurer, 38, Mincing-lane, E.C.
W. HORNIBROOK, Secretary, 17, Bloomsbury-street, Oxford-street, W.C.

AMONG NATIVES IN BOMBAY.

THE good work which Mr. A. W. Prautch, of the American Methodist Episcopal Church, has been enabled to do among native residents in Bombay, has frequently been brought before our readers. Mr. James Kingsmill, writing from Bombay, says:—

"In addition to his regular work as a missionary, Mr. Prautch, with his assistants, visits systematically from house to house, and attends native fairs with the one object of selling books in the vernacular languages, in this way, and by personal conversation, bringing the Gospel to the natives. An encouraging feature of the work hitherto has been the readiness with which the natives have purchased. Mr. Prautch's marked success shows that he is eminently fitted for this work, and a few Christian friends out here are anxious to see his talent and tact in this sphere more fully utilised. Necessarily in such a work—the Bibles, Gospels, and tracts being sold at a low price—the expenditure is greater than the income, and to meet the recurring deficit, as well as to extend the work, help is needed. The sales by Mr. Prautch from January 1 to September 10 of this year were 102,380 tracts, 7,238 Gospels, 163 New Testaments, and 35 Bibles—all in the vernacular languages. The amount realised by these sales was 1,128.10.9 rupees, and the amount paid for Bibles, Gospels, and tracts, 1,686.2.3 rupees. Besides this, a considerable sum was paid to the native workers and for railway freight and fares.

"For some time Mr. Prautch bore the greater part of the loss out of his very limited income, and, had not a few friends helped him, the work could not have been carried on thus far. On a visit recently to the annual religious fair held at Pundrapur, near Poona, Mr. Prautch sold 8679 tracts, 2289 Gospels, and eight New Testaments, and had many opportunities of speaking to natives individually. Some who came from outlying districts had never heard the name of Jesus, and, when told about Him, bought copies of the Gospels to learn more of his character and work. Eternity will reveal the full results of this seed-sowing. During the thirty-one and a half years that I have resided on this side of India I have not seen the sale of Gospels and tracts so successfully carried on amongst the natives. It is a work which I would commend to hearty sympathy and help, and a work which may be very widely extended."

Notices.

COAST-GUARD LETTER MISSION.—Will Mr. A. J. Cadby, formerly of Eddington, near Canterbury, kindly forward his present address to Mr. W. A. GARRATT, Blackrock, co. Dublin.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—H.J.F. G.H. T.T.W. J.D. D.M.L. H.N. E.M. H.M. J.E. E.F. J.C.O. J.W.H. R.M.B. G.G. G.S. M.D. E.H. H.A.S. K.M.M. G.A.S. J.T.M. D.F.L. K.T.G. H.V. F.S. A.H. H.S.P. A.L.S. G.F.M. F.W.E. A.S. E.H.H. S.C. G.S.S. C.L.E. R.C. R.J.S. C.E.F. S.G.R. W.S. R.F.H. E.A.F. C.B. S.M. G.B.S. M.M. G.B. J.H.E. J.R. J.P. W.A.S. W.C.G. E. E.M.H. R.B. C.H. A.E.S. C.R.H. F.A.L. J.M. E.G.H. E.B. W.H. D.M. E.P. J.F.G. C.C. M.E. J.G.N. E.E.W. C.T. F.S. A.J.S. A.E.W. W.E.B. J.G. A.C. N.McG. J.F. E.S.W. J.V. E.R.H. T.F. H.E.S.S. J.B.B. L.P. H.R.B. T.N. J.P.M. J.X.B. B.S. A.C. F.H. H.P. S.G.P. A.J.F. C.V.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—Miss Potter, 2, Burnett-street, Auckland-street, Vauxhall; M. Smith, 110, Westminster-bridge-road, Lambeth; Mrs. Lewis, 7, Hanover-park, Peckham, S.E.; A. Wagon, 4, Melbourne-road, Lea-bridge-road, Leyton; C. Dobson, 18, Avenue-villas, Cricklewood, N.W.; Miss M. Vickers, 18, Balfour-road, Highbury New Park, N.; Miss S. Beale, 205, Oxford-street, W.; A. Allen, 4, Stockwell Orphanage, Clapham-road, S.W.; M. Ellis, 54, Coothurst-road, Crouch End, N.; Miss F. Cox, Lanarth, Talmouth, Cornwall; J. Chatham, 69, Harrogate-road, South Hackney, N.E.; Miss Hudson, 13, Leopold-street, Vauxhall, S.W.; F. Taylor, 48, Hatcham-park-road, New Cross, S.E.; Miss E. Wheatley, Hazelwood, Pinner, Middlesex; E. Owen, Clapham, Penmaenmawr; E. Hallett, 75, Arkley-road, South-grove, Walthamstow; E. Tyler, Mission House, Lour Valley, near Barnsley; S. Booty, 13, Loftus-road, Uxbridge-road, W.; Donald Macleod, care of Mrs. Lang, 6, Tillie-street, Glasgow; J. Derby, 8, Canova-street, Liverpool; H. Wilson, 512, Rutherglen-road, Glasgow.

[1108]

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 5, Crown-villas, Kennington Oval, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON AVENUE, E.C.—Services for young men, Tuesdays and Weds., 6.45 p.m. Bible-classes, King Edward's Institute, Suns., 3 and 7 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Nov. 23, 3 p.m., Mr. J. H. Kellaway; 7 p.m.. Mr. Robert Burn. Sun., 3 p.m., Tues., 8 p.m., and Wed., 9.30 p.m., young men's Bible-class.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand.—Sun., 3.45 p.m. (men only), Mr. E. J. Kennedy; 7.30 p.m. (public), Mr. W. A. Coote. Gospel meetings for men nightly at 8. Cheerful service (public), Sat. at 7.30. French Bible-class, Thurs. at 8. Lecture, Wed., Nov. 26, 8 p.m., Mr. J. Malden, on "Charles Dickens." Prayer-meeting daily (Sat. ex.) from 1 till 2 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., 186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Sat., Nov. 22, 3 p.m., Bible talk with young men, Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A. Sun., Nov. 23, 3.30 p.m., special address to young men by Rev. A. Boyd-Carpenter. Mon., Nov. 24, 8 p.m., Gospel addresses by Cambridge Undergraduates. Thurs., Nov. 27, 8.30 p.m., address to young men by Rev. Newman Hall.

Y.M.C.A., BURLINGTON HALL, 23, Savile-row, W.—Thurs., Nov. 20, 8 p.m., the Jubilee Singers. Fri., Nov. 21, 8.30 p.m., lecture by Mr. J. Kennedy, "The Plain of Shinar," with dissolving views.

WEST LONDON CENTRAL MISSION.—St. James's Hall, Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. M. Guy Pearse; 7 p.m., Rev. H. Price Hughes. Princes Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. W. Darlow Sarjeant. Fri., 12 noon, Rev. M. G. Pearse; 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes. Cleveland Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. T. M. Taylor.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr. Herbert W. Taylor, Suns. during Nov. at 11 and 7; Wed., 8 p.m., Burlington Hall, Savile-row, W.

TALBOT TABERNACLE, Talbot-road, Bayswater, W.—Sun., Nov. 23, Pastor Frank H. White, 11 a.m.; Mr. M. C. Leite-Rozas, 7 p.m.

PORTMAN-ROOMS, Baker-street, W.—Meetings for the deepening of the spiritual life, to-day, Fri. Nov. 28, Rev. Handley C. G. Moule, 3.30 p.m.

JEWS IN PALESTINE, 27, Grosvenor-square.—Thurs., Nov. 27, 3 p.m., lecture in aid of the work of the Society for Relief of Persecuted Jews, by Mrs. Finn, M.R.A.S. Subject—"The Jews and the Holy Land." Admission tickets may be obtained of Mrs. Finn, The Elms, Brook-green, W.

METROPOLITAN MUSIC HALL, Edgware-road, W.—Sun., Nov. 23, 6.30 p.m., Mr. R. Allsworth Elvey.

BAPTIST FORWARD MOVEMENT, John-street Chapel, Bedford-row.—Sun., Nov. 23, at 11, Rev. J. E. Shephard; 7 p.m., Rev. F. C. Spurr.

MERCHANTS' LECTURE, Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, E.C.—Nov. 25, 1 p.m., Rev. Edward White.

OPEN-AIR MISSION.—Rev. James Neil's third Palestine lecture, "Strange Scenes of Farm Life," Baptist Mission House, Furnival-street, Holborn, this (Fri.) evening, at 7.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay Park, N.—Sun., Nov. 23, 3.30 p.m., Colonel J. F. Morton; 7 p.m., Mr. P. S. Badenoch.

JEWS IN PALESTINE.—Valedictory meeting to Mr. Baron and Mr. Barnett before leaving for Jaffa, at Mildmay Conference Hall, Fri. Nov. 28, 7 p.m. Addresses by Rev. Dr. Edmond, Dr. H. Grattan Guinness, Dr. Sinclair Paterson, Pastor F. H. White, Rev. J. Stephens, Rev. J. Wilkinson, and others.

MONTHLY PROPHETIC CONFERENCE.—Mon., Nov. 24, from 10 to 12, Emmanuel Church Lecture Hall, Duckett-road, Harringay, N.

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL, N.W.—Sun. services at 11 and 7, conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer. Bible-class for Christian workers, Fridays, 8 p.m. (entrance opposite Portland-road Station).

HOUSE OF REST, 10, Finchley-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.—Fri., Dec. 5, meetings from 3 to 8.30 p.m.; tea, 6 p.m. Suns., 3.30 p.m., Bible-reading for ladies and gentlemen.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sun. next, Dr. Barnardo, 11 a.m.; 3 p.m., Rev. H. Bright; 7 p.m., Dr. H. Grattan Guinness.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun., Nov. 23, at 11 and 6.30, Rev. W. B. Culliss.

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff highway, E.—Thirteenth annual meeting, Fri. Dec. 5. Tea at 5.30; meeting at 6.30; Lord's supper, 8.30. Mr. James E. Mathieson will preside.

SAILORS' WELCOME HOME, 173, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Christian Lifeboat Crew, Tues., Dec. 2, 7 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Clapham-road, S.W.—Prayer-meeting every Friday at 4 p.m.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCO TO MONDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1890.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O.O not by stamps.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and the titles of the missions to which they wish their d tions to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Mo morning? Any amounts received afterwards wi acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, w remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to c them "City Bank"; this will effectually pre loss of same.

	£
Moab Mission (Mr. Lethaby)—Good Speed ...	0
Distressed Jews (Mrs. Finn)—Countless Benefits	1
Mr. D. C. Joseph's Work, Jerusalem—W.H. ...	2 1
Pastor Chiniquy's Work, Canada—E.M.	1
Rev. J. O'Connor's Work (R. Catholics, N.Y.)—E.M.	1
Bowen Memorial Church, Bombay—E.M.	1
Paris City Mission—E.M...	0 1
Y.M.C.A., Buenos Ayres—E.M.	0 1
Dr. Baedeker's Work (Siberian Prisoners)—H.W.M.	0 1
Society for Relief of Persecuted Jews—Matt. xxv. 40, £5; Anon, £5	10
Jaffa Agent for Oppressed Jews (Rev. J. Wilkinson)—H.W.M. 10s; E. £5; M.A. 5s; A.K. 10s 10d; Anon. £5...	11
Floods in N. China (C.I.M.)—J.J. 5s; Anon. £5	5
Moravian Missions (London Association)—J.D.B. £1; H.M.A.S. £1	2
Homes for Working Girls, London—M.S. £5 5s; H.M.A.S. 10s	5 1
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—A.R.E. 10s; F.K. £1; H.F.S. 1s; Self-denial, 5s; S.R.G. 10s; H.L. £5; Matt. xxv. 40, £5; Helen, 10s; F.C. 5s; P.B. 10s; H.M.A.S. £1; Anon. £5...	19 1
Mildmay Miss. to Jews—Good Speed, 5s; J.J. 14s	0 1
London Bible and Domestic Mission—Miss U.	0 1
St. Giles Christian Mission, &c.—Speranza, 10s 1d; J.D.B. £4; Anon. £5	9 1
Mr. Chorley's Home, Lancing—Countless Benefits	0 1
Gen. Booth's Scheme—Miss D. £1 1s; J.D.B. £2	3
Midnight Meeting Movemt.—D.T.S. £5; H.L. £1	6
Mrs. Meredith's Work, &c.—M.A.T.	0
Rev. A. G. Brown's Work—Thank-offering ...	0 1
London City Mission—S.R.G. 10s; J.D.B. £3...	3 1
Rev. J. G. Paton Fund—Leslie, 5s; M.A.Ll. £5	5
Hanley Salvation Mission—E.M. £1; H.L. £2	3
Friendless and Fallen—H.L. £3; J.D.B. £2; P.B. 10s; Anon. £5	10 1
Watercress, &c. (Misn., Orphanage, &c.)—F.G.W.	0 1
Church Mission to the Fallen—F.G.W...	0 1
London Cabmen's Mission—F.G.W.	0
Church of England's Homes for Waifs and Strays—F.G.W.	0
Bridge of Hope (Miss Steer)—Matt. xxv. 40, £3; J.D.B. £3	6
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—Matt. xxv. 40 ...	3
Homes for Aged Blind, Crouch-hill—Matt. xxv. 40, £3; J.D.B. £1	4
George Yard Mission—Matt. xxv. 40, £2; J.D.B. £1	3
Asylum for Fatherless Children, Reedham—Matt. xxv. 40	2
London Samaritan Society, &c.—Matt. xxv. 40, £2; J.J. 1s	2
Thames Church Mission—M.B.	0 1
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Homes—M.A.H. 5s; Anon. £5	5
Cow Cross Mission—M.A.H.	0
Food & Fuel for Poor (Rev. J. W. Atkinson)—K.	0
Gratuitous Circulation THE CHRISTIAN—J.B ...	1
Gray's Yard Ragged School, &c.—H.M.A.S. ...	1
Marylebone Medical Mission—H.M.A.S.	1
Miss Weston's Sailors' Rest—H.M.A.S.	0 1
London Female Penitentiary—H.M.A.S.	0 1
Tram and 'Bus Scripture Text Misn.—H.M.A.S.	0 1
Latymer-road Mission—J.D.B.	2
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, &c.—J.D.B....	1
Dock Labourers' Mission—W.P.	0
Zenana Medical College, St. George's-rd.—Anon.	10
	£151

[ADVERTISEMENT.]

Mrs. Meredith's Institutions—S.C. 5s.
St. Giles Christian Mission—T.H.B. £1.
Distress in North China—Consuello, 10s.
New Work at Jaffa—"A Lover of Israel," £20.
Home for Eurasian Children, Yokohama—Per F. S land, T. £5.

Bible-readings are held every Friday, at 2.30 Mr. and Mrs. Cheyne Brady's Villa, Châlet des Syrp Chemin du Petit-Juas, Cannes.

Home for Mothers and Babies, 9, Stanfield-r Brixton, S.W.—Mrs. Harries, the hon. sec. of this ful agency writes:—"Many destitute girls apply admission. So far we have refused none. Now, ever, the funds are quite exhausted."

FRENCH DRESSES.

JAQUES & JAQUES

Are French Dress Specialists,

AND THEIR

PATTERNS on approval are sent Post Free all over the World. The system is unique—every Pattern is bered. All orders are given from these numbers, and the erns are retained till the order is executed. The comparison afforded gives the purchaser absolute security against substi- on and deception.

LOVELY Novelties for the Autumn are in- cluded in each of the following Series, and they are equally plete in their choice and variety of plain and fancy Black sses, &c., as well as Coloured Fabrics.

THE SHILLING SERIES, which has now attained a wide reputation, consists of an immense variety of ss Materials at prices from SIXPENCE up to, but not exceeding E SHILLING per yard, and numbers hundreds of Patterns.

WRITE FOR PATTERNS, POST FREE.

THE NEW "WATERPROOF SERGES" form one of the most predominating features of our exhaustive rges Series" as we believe our Price List for these goods is the est in the trade. Our variety generally is extremely great, com- cing as low as 4¾d. per yard. Also the new Hygienic Waterproof tlings, 58 inches wide, at 5s. 6d. per yard.

THE HABIT CLOTH SERIES, comprising in the lower grades a pretty range of Double-Width British ds, measuring 48 inches made at ONE SHILLING per yard; the chief feature of this series lies in its magnificent ranges of ach Habit Cloths, at prices varying from 1s. 9d. to 4s. 6d. per d, both in Self Colours and Camel Hair-flaked Cloths, all the nier ranges being dyed by Hannart Frères.

WRITE FOR PATTERNS, POST FREE.

THE TWO SHILLING SERIES contains Dress Materials above ONE SHILLING, but not exceeding O SHILLINGS per yard, and is perfect for its variety of Plain Fancy Fabrics at moderate prices.

WRITE FOR PATTERNS, POST FREE.

LADIES can have one or more, or the com- plete range of Series, by kindly stating their requirements; also saying if black or coloured patterns are wanted, on post- l, letter, or telegram, addressed to

JAQUES AND JAQUES,

FRENCH DRESS HOUSE,

DARLINGTON.

ll orders Carriage Paid. Patterns (on approval) Post Free.

---

100 DRESS PATTERNS FREE.

THE Cheapest Dresses in England, comprising Tweeds at 3½d. yard, Serges at 4¾d. and 6d. yard. Double width, Habit Cloths at 8½d. yard; Dress Tweeds, 44 inches wide, 8¾d. yard; "Novelty" Habit Cloths, 48 inches wide, 1s. 3d. yard; "Superfine" and "Twill" Habit Cloths, 48 inches wide, 1s. 6d. yard; Plain and Fancy Black Cashmeres, Cheviots, Homespuns, Snowflakes, Soft Woollens, Flannels, &c., &c., in great variety. Any length cut and sent carriage paid to any address. The Patterns need not be returned, as they are given away to all who write for them and name this paper to THE DARLINGTON TRADING COMPANY, DARLINGTON.

BAZAARS, FANCY FAIRS, &c.

SWANAGE STRAW BASKETS.

Novel and useful, a 25s. crate for £1 1s. Tea Cosy, very hand- me, 3s. 11d. 5-o'clock do., 2s. 11d. Work Boxes, 2s. 6d. Work sket, 2s. Collar Box, 1s. Needle-book, 7d., all post free.

. A. COLLEAU, SWANAGE, DORSET.

POSTAL SHOPPING

H. PEASE & Co's SUCCESSORS

LADIES WRITE FOR PATTERNS OF ALL THE LATEST NOVELTIES IN DRESS MATERIALS AT MILL PRICES

SPINNERS & MANUFACTURERS

The Mills DARLINGTON

DRESSMAKING IN ALL ITS BRANCHES.

London Sale Room: 244, REGENT-ST., corner of Little Argyll-st.

GRAND GRANULAR TEA,

FOR INSTITUTIONS, SCHOOLS, &c.

Supplied wholesale, direct for cash, in 20 lb. Caddies, Price £1 1s. 8d. per caddy, carriage paid, London and suburbs; half carriage paid country. Of intense strength and good flavour. References to well-known Institutions.

SELECT CEYLON TEA AGENCY, 39, Lime-st., London.

FREE Send a Post Card, to-day, for a sample of Williamson & Sons' Broken-Leaf Tea at 1s. 5½d. per lb, and compare it with any 2s. 6d. Tea in the world. The greatest phenomenon of the age in Tea.

Kindly mention this paper.

WILLIAMSON & SONS
Wholesale Tea Blenders,
139, Upper Thames St.,
London, E.C.

TO ALL

Tea in Perfection.

From the Tea Plant to the Tea Cup, in its native purity. Untampered with. Shipped direct by and sold direct to the public at strictly wholesale prices. From 1/2 to 2/10 per lb. All middle profits saved. Free delivery to all parts of Great Britain.

ELLIS DAVIES & CO.,

E. D. & CO.'S FAMOUS SELECTIONS of the Pure Teas of India, China and Ceylon, are known in every Town and Village of the United Kingdom, and are guaranteed to be of the highest quality; and all who appreciate a Cup of really Fine Tea, possessing pungency, briskness, and flavour, are invited to write for Samples (which are sent free), and Contrast with other Teas.

ELLIS DAVIES & CO., 44, LORD STREET, LIVERPOOL.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER'S

Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS, POST FREE.

Children's	1/3	Hemstitched—
Ladies'	2/4½	Ladies'	2/11½ Per doz.
Gent's	3/6	Gent's	4/11½

Embroidered Handkerchiefs, in all the latest styles, from 1/ to 60/ each.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, Belfast.

PLEASE NAME THIS PAPER.

(Gratis and post free.)

Guy's Guide to Digestion.

Roast pork takes five hours and twenty minutes to digest, venison only one hour and thirty minutes, but fig seeds never digest. This clearly shows how important it is that all should pay attention to the digestibility of food. Guy's "Guide to Digestion" contains an interesting account of the time taken to digest nearly every article of food known, and when it is borne in mind how seriously business anxieties and harassing family cares interfere with the healthy activity of the stomach, it will be seen of what infinite consequence to happiness is this "Guide." A copy will be sent, gratis and post free, to any reader who, when writing, will mention THE CHRISTIAN, Guy's Tonic Company, 4, Ludgate Circus, London, E.C.

SYMINGTON'S PEA FLOUR

Gold Medal.

For Soups, &c. EASILY DIGESTED.

Sold in Packets and Tins by Grocers everywhere.

PATENTEES AND MANUFACTURERS—

BOWDEN STEAM MILLS, MARKET HARBORO'

CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS & ASTHMA.

I WILL demonstrate to the whole world, and to sufferers from these unfortunate maladies, how they can be permanently cured, by an entirely New Method of Treatment, without the chance of failure. All afflicted may write with full confidence to Mr. WILLIAMS, 11, Burwood-place, Norfolk-crescent, London, who will send full particulars to any person free of all charge.

ON

CONSUMPTION

AND ITS

SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT,

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, AND OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

NEW EDITION WITH

APPENDIX

CONTAINING A LARGE NUMBER OF

INTERESTING CASES.

POST FREE, ONE SHILLING.

From the AUTHOR,

MR. GEORGE THOS. CONGREVE,

Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E.

ONE RECENT CASE WILL BE GIVEN IN THIS JOURNAL EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

(THIRTY-FIFTH SERIES.)

CASE of a LITTLE BOY at MANCHESTER.

Mr. John Scott, whose case appeared last week, writing me October 25 last, says:—"I have given a portion of my medicine to a little boy ten years old, that the doctors were treating for inflammation of the lungs. When I saw him I did not think he had many days to live. I gave the parents a few doses to see if it would ease his breathing. It did so in a very short time. When I found him improving I gave the rest of what I had, not wanted by me now, and I am glad to say he is able to get about, and will be at school in a day or two. There has been a good demand for your books through my case being known. I have been applied to by ———, and have been glad to send them."

ASTHMA and CONGESTION of BOTH LUNGS —CASE at HILDENBORO', KENT.

Miss Harriett Woodman came to me some years ago, suffering acutely from bronchial irritation and congestion of both lungs, and occasional severe attacks of asthma (asthma was in the family). She was losing flesh and strength fast. I advised her, and she recovered fully.

Writing me for advice upon another case in October last, she sent me this testimonial:—

"I, Harriett Woodman, now Mrs. Sturt, some few years ago came to you, and was under your treatment for asthma. After taking three of your largest sized bottles I became quite well, for which I am very thankful.—H. STURT, STOCK'S GREEN, HILDENBORO', KENT."

NOTE. — Days of Consultation. — TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

FIVE GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

Goddard's Plate Powder

NON-MERCURIAL.

FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY this Powder has sustained an unrivalled reputation throughout the United Kingdom and Colonies as the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate. Sold in Boxes 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. each, by Grocers, Chemists, Ironmongers, &c.

Reckitt's Blue.

WARNING. Refuse all Substitutes!

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.

FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, GOLDSMITHS AND SILVERSMITHS, 2, GRACECHURCH-ST., near CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C. (Established 1772), beg respectfully to announce that they accurately value, or purchase for cash if desired, valuable Diamonds, Pearls, and other Jewels, also Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. Small parcels can be sent securely per registered post, and large ditto in absolute safety per rail, insured at the small cost of 3d. per every £25 in value.

INTERESTING

OBJECT LESSONS.

With Notes and Specimens. On Cards 6 by 5.

"NEEDLES" and How they are made .. .. 1s.
"PINS" and How they are made.. .. .. 1s.
"SEWING COTTON" and How it is made.. .. .. 1s.
"SILK" and How it is made 1s
"PENS" and How they are made .. .. 1s.
"PAPER" and How it is made .. .. 11 by 7½ 1s.
"LEAD PENCILS" and How they are made do. 1s.

Any of the above on Wall Cards, 12 by 18, with larger Specimens for Teachers' use, 2s. 6d. The Set of Seven, 15s. 6d.
Or the same size in Glass Case, each 7s. 6d. The set of Seven for 45s. [3672

COX & CO., 99, New Oxford-st., London.

Contractors to the London and other School Boards.

BEETHAM'S Glycerine & Cucumber.

Is invaluab
during t
Winter f
PRESERVIN
THE SKI from th effects o
FROST, COL
WINDS

HARD WATER, &c. It entirely removes and prevents all Roughness, Redness Chaps, Irritation, &c., and soon renders the skin SOFT, SMOOTH, and WHIT in the coldest weather.

It is the most perfect Emollient Milk for the Skin ever produced, and n lady should ever be without it, as for the Toilet and Nursery it is INVALUABLE

Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d., of all Chemists; free for 3d. extra by the

Sole Makers—M. BEETHAM & SON, Chemists, Cheltenham

LINDSAY'S IRISH LINENS

IRISH LINEN PILLOW SLIPS, made up, from 5s. 3d. per dozen. Frilled ditto, from 1s. 3d. each. LINEN SHEETS, made up, all sizes and qualities. DAMASK TABLE CLOTHS, NAPKINS, DIAPERS, SHEETINGS, TOWELLINGS, SHIRTINGS, SURPLICE LINENS, GLASS CLOTHS, and every description of HOUSE and TABLE LINENS, of Best Quality, at Lowest Wholesale Prices.

POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS

ESTABLISHED OVER SIXTY YEARS.

HEMMED READY FOR USE. DIRECT FROM OUR LOOMS.

CHILDREN'S BORDERED, from 1s 4½d doz.
LADIES' BORDERED from 1s 11½ doz.
GENTLEMEN'S BORDERED, from 3s. 9d. doz.
LADIES' HEMSTITCHED, from 3s. 9d. doz.
GENT'S HEMSTITCHED, from 5s. 11d. doz.
EMBROIDERED AND COLOURED BORDERED.

JAMES LINDSAY & Co., Limited, Manufacturers by Special Appointment to the Queen, BELFAST.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR

Is a Household Requisite of Constant Utility.

That BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR possesses very valuable qualities as a food for all classes, at all periods of life except earliest infancy, has been attested by eminent dietetic authorities, as well as by universal public experience during over thirty years.

Interested attempts to set aside these facts in favour of other foods can only appeal to ignorance and prejudice, and it remains true that no other kind of food can serve the special purposes of Corn Flour.

Borwick's Baking Powder.

"NIL DESPERANDUM."

"89, Main Street, Pollokshaws, Glasgow, October 1, 1890.—DEAR SIR,—For three years I had been fearfully troubled with Rheumatism, and had tried dozens of remedies and consulted several doctors without any benefit. About a year ago I was told about your Nervetonine, and called and got a 2s. 9d. Bottle. At that time I could only walk with a limp, my knuckle joints were swollen and painful, and for the whole world I could not have lifted my hands to my head. Well, after taking it (the Nervetonine) a week I felt a great deal better, and before the bottle was half done the pain and stiffness were entirely gone. I continued taking it till I finished the bottle, and from that day to this I have never had a touch of my old complaint. If it only does as much good to every one as it has done to me, it is indeed a precious remedy, and cannot be too widely known.

JOHN BEATON.

NERVETONINE can be had from the Sole Proprietor, M. F. THOMPSON, 17, GORDON STREET, GLASGOW, and 97, PRINCES STREET, EDINBURGH, in Bottles at 1s. 9d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. Postage, 2d. extra. Nervetonine is a positive, safe, and permanent cure for all Nervous Affections, Nervous Debility, Sleeplessness, Nerve Pains, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Gout, Sciatica, &c., and all derangements of the digestive System, Indigestion, Constipation, &c. For further particulars see M. F. THOMPSON'S concise guide, gratis to all who mention this Paper.

THE INLAND POSTAGE OF THIS ISSUE (WITH INSET) IS ONE PENNY. IF THE INSET BE OMITTED, ORDINARY POSTAGE ONLY.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life and Testimony; Evangelistic Effort, and Missionary Enterprise.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS.

Baptism and the Lord's Supper 8
THE LINCOLN JUDGMENT 8
Rev. J. T. BRISCOE (with Portrait) 9
Conditions of Power. By Rev. Dr. MACLAREN. 10
The First Miracle. By Rev. F. B. MEYER ..11
Poem—Memories and Hopes 12
The Gospel in Spain—3 13
Home of Industry Meeting 13
LETTERS FROM SCOTLAND.—4 14
Orphan Homes of Scotland 14
For the Young:—
The Day of Trouble 15
"Home Cripples" at Tea 15

[Rev. J. T. Briscoe.]

CONTENTS.

Dr. BAEDEKER'S Return 16
SAVE THE CHILDREN. By Dr. BARNARDO. 16
Mission Work in South Italy 19
Protestant Notes 19
Rev. THOMAS CONNELLAN 19
"THE QUEEN OF HEAVEN" 20
Young Men in Kimberley 20
"Is not this dreadful?" By Rev. W. HASLAM. 21
Mr. VARLEY in South Australia 22
The Temperance Cause 25
The Old Theatre, Cambridge 26
Bible Society Notes 26
Dr. PARKER'S Latest Volume 28

No. 1087.] FRIDAY, NOV. 28, 1890.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 2d.

READY ON MONDAY NEXT, DECEMBER 1.

Price THREEPENCE. Free by Post, 4d. Six Copies, Post Free, 1s. 7d.

AM I UNFIT?

BEING A VERBATIM REPORT OF

DR. BARNARDO'S SPEECHES IN DEFENCE

IN THE

RODDY CASE,

Delivered on Monday, Nov. 9; Tuesday, Nov. 10; Wednesday, Nov. 11, 1890;

BEFORE

Lord ESHER, Master of the Rolls; Lord Justice LINDLEY; and Lord Justice LOPES: Judges of the Court of Appeal.

WITH SUMMARY OF THEIR LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT, AND AN INTRODUCTION BY DR. BARNARDO.

Offices of the Homes: 18 to 26, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, LONDON, E.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with many thanks from "Anon," £1. Clothing from an "Unknown Friend."

Rations of Food to Hungry Children. The Infant Day Nursery. Day Ragged Schools. Evening Classes for Rough Street Boys. Band of Hope. Children's Services. Sunday Schools. Industrial Classes. Important Mission Work amongst Elder Girls and Young Women. Various Missionary Agencies at work amongst Lads and Young Men. Mission to Inebriate Women. Common Lodging House Services. Open-air Meetings. Evangelistic Services. Mothers' Meetings. Coal, Blanket, Boot, and Clothing Clubs. Shelter for Children. Training Home for Motherless Girls.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE SICK AND SORROWING. — Funds are urgently needed by the Committee of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, to provide nourishment, clothing, &c., for the afflicted patients. Contributions in money, coal tickets, warm garments, flannel, or any other material, are most earnestly solicited. Gratefully acknowledged, "Anonymous," a Parcel of Clothing.—ROSA PEARMAN, Vice-President.

MRS. MEREDITH'S

JERUSALEM DEACONESS HOUSE.

Women to train for Medical Mission work among women and children, and money for the support of the Missions, are both wanted most pressingly. Many places in the Holy Land are crying, "Come over and help us!" Contributions will be received by Miss LLOYD, 143, Clapham-road, crossed Union Bank, Charing Cross.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, College-avenue, Hackney; Branch for Incapable Blind, Palace Gates-road, N. Children are admitted from two years old without election. Both Homes are now full. Contributions are gratefully received by Miss RYE and Messrs. Morgan and Scott.

FUNDS ARE EARNESTLY SOLICITED for the poor adults and children of the Christian Gee-street Mission and Ragged Schools, which have been carried on for about 28 years to benefit the poor. Donations please address to Hon. Superintendent, HENRY RUDGLEY, Ground Floor, 29, Falcon-square; JOHN KIRK, Esq., Secretary, Ragged School Union, Exeter Hall, Strand; Messrs. BARCLAY, Bankers, 54, Lombard-street; Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Paternoster-buildings.

RICE LANE MISSION, LIVERPOOL. —Wanted, £100 for Building Fund. Donations requested. The Mission is in the midst of thousands of lost souls!—Rev. LEWIS WEAVER, 55, Rice-lane, Walton, Liverpool.

TO THE LORD'S STEWARDS.—Readers of THE CHRISTIAN should read "The Cow Cross Mission," 27th Annual Appeal. Will be sent post free.—Address WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, London.

AGED AND DISTRESSED GOVERNESSES.—Will any readers of THE CHRISTIAN kindly give to the Funds for Aged and Distressed Governesses. — Subscriptions or donations gratefully received by the Secretary, Miss DUCKETT, 10, Greenhill-park, Harlesden, N.W.

REV. W. LANCELOT HOLLAND, M.A., of All Saints', Hatcham, will (D.V.) give an address in Talbot Tabernacle, Talbot-road, Bayswater, on Monday, December 8, at 7.30 p.m. Subject: "How is Rome working for the conversion of England?"

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—A small Harmonium or American Organ is much needed for a Y.W.C.A. Institute. Will any-one interested in the Association give one, or sell one at a cheap rate? Also books for the young women's library will be gratefully received. Miss WRIGHT, Woodview, Wigginton, Tamworth.

SYSTEMATIC BIBLE TEACHING MISSION, 21, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row, E.C.—Definite Lessons for teaching Bible Religion in school and home. Parents, teachers, and Christian workers all need this.—Call or write, Manager, GEORGE STONEMAN.

Educational.

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Red Hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS receives the Daughters of Gentlemen to educate in a course of study which shall fit them for the higher duties of life. Languages, accomplishments, &c. Inclusive charges. Prospectus on application. References.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.—DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-park-road, W.

BURLTON HOUSE, READING. — High-class Ladies' School. Principal, Miss RATCLIFFE. Old-established. Thorough teaching. Modern educational advantages, examinations. Finishing masters. Careful Christian training, well appointed home. Inclusive terms. Highest references.

DESTITUTE CHILDREN'S DINNERS SOCIETY.—Funds are most urgently required for this old and deserving Charity in order that they may be enabled to keep their Dining Rooms open. Last season they gave 328,575 dinners. Subscriptions or Donations may be sent to Lord Kinnaird, 1, Pall Mall East; W. Fuller, Esq., Stoughton Grange, Stoke, Guildford; H. Morton Carr, Esq., Secretary, 89, St. George's Sq., S.W.; or to the Bankers, Messrs. Barclay, 1, Pall Mall East, S.W.

Now Ready, in Monthly Parts. One Penny.

PICTURE PORTIONS

BEING

THE GOSPEL OF LUKE.

Published under the above title, set in very large type, and Illustrated from original sketches made in the Holy Land. By H. A. HARPER and J. CLARK. Volume of Luke, attractively bound, will (D.V.) be ready middle of December, and will contain Thirty Large full-page Illustrations. Prices, post free, 2s. 6d. and 3s. 6d.

"The text is broken up in a manner which cannot but prove helpful to persons not accustomed to sustained reading. Book distributors will find these portions the best of all tracts."—The Christian.

Funds are urgently needed to circulate the Scriptures, in the above form, in the Hospitals and Infirmaries of our land.

W. WALTERS, SCRIPTURE GIFT MISSION, 79, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON, E.C.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS "The Christian" (PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under. the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

STANLEY HOUSE,

HIGH SCHOOL FOR BOYS,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Owing to increasing numbers fresh premises have been taken, which will be be opened in January.

The house stands in its own grounds, and having been built expressly for scholastic purposes, is fitted with every convenience, to accommodate 40 pupils.

There is a large cricket-field at the back. Gymnasium, workshops, and laboratory are provided for scientific and technical instruction.

The present premises will continue to be used as a Junior School for pupils under 10.

The Principal takes a personal interest in each boy committed to his charge, and no effort is spared to secure his well-being.

For prospectus, references to parents, &c., apply to A. E. COZENS, Stanley House, Margate.

HIGH-CLASS CHRISTIAN SCHOOL, for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Individual Christian influence. Home comforts. Efficient staff of professors and governesses. Language and music specialities. Large house and garden. Entire charge of pupils from abroad.—Principal, Miss PENN, St. John's, South View, Willingdon-road, Eastbourne.

GERMANY, Villa Valida, Gandersheim am Harz. — Comfortable Home for a few young Ladies. Thorough education. Travelling opportunities with Lady, now and at Christmas. References required.—Reply by letter to T., c/o Messrs. William Watson & Co., 27, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

DRESDEN.—Two German Ladies who receive a few young Ladies in their comfortable home will have a vacancy in January. French, German. Best professors attending for music, painting. Family life, English comforts. Highest references in England.

Frl. BECHER, Walpurgisstr. 15.

EDUCATION ABROAD. — Pupils would be received after Christmas into a good German School in a beautifully situated neighbourhood in the Hartz Mountains. Terms £40 inclusive. For prospectus and information, apply, Frl. O. BREMER, Halberstadt am Harz.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.

W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

MORAVIAN SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, FULNECK, NEAR LEEDS.

Principal: Miss L. VON SCHENCK.

Situation of school elevated and healthy, with beautiful prospect. Large playground, with gardens and tennis-ground. High-class teaching. Christian training.

WIDOW AND DAUGHTERS of Clergyman, experienced and accomplished, residing in a healthy locality near sea, with a small day school, wish to take charge of orphan children, or children of parents residing abroad, as Resident Pupils. Utmost care given to general education, and religious training. Good references. Strictly moderate terms.

Mrs. DENHAM, Kerr-street, Portrush, Ireland.

BOURNEMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—Principal, Miss BROAD. The School course meets the requirements of the Cambridge Local and Higher Local examinations. London Matriculation and Trinity College. A few Boarders received. Delicate girls have every care.

THE PRINCIPAL of a well-established School for Young Ladies, for many years singularly successful, holding testimonials of the highest order from parents, evangelical clergy, and others, has been solicited to place the advantages of earnest Christian training, combined with High School modes of instruction, within reach of parents of good social position, but limited resources, who are unable to meet the usual fees, which will be reduced to 30 or 40 guineas, and made inclusive. Preparation for all examinations. The staff is composed exclusively of Christian teachers, many taking University honours. Liberal diet. Spacious residence, replete with every modern appliance to ensure health and comfort. Delicate girls, and orphaned families, receive exceptional care.

GIRTON, 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.

High-class School for Young Ladies,

Carlton Mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.

Principal—Mrs. HALE, A.C.P., F.S.Sc., London.—Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters, resident certificated governesses, with careful personal supervision, and home comforts. Cambridge and other examinations. Special advantages for music and languages. House pleasantly situated in one of the healthiest suburbs of London, replete with every convenience and all modern sanitary improvements. Good garden and tennis. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, and Rev. D. McEwan, D.D.

LUNHAM HOUSE HOME SCHOOL, Lunham-road, Upper Norwood, S.E. High-class education and the comforts of family life. Careful Christian training. Autumn term commenced September 8.—Principal, Mrs. BRYANT.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, Tytherton, Chippenham, Wilts.—Christian education. Pupils prepared for Royal Academy and other Local exams. Moderate terms. Term commenced September 16.—Apply to PRINCIPAL.

KINDERGARTEN AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL, Fröbel House, 3, Liverpool-terrace, Worthing. Principals, Miss YERBURY and Miss WAITE. Thoroughly happy home for children from four years of age. Christian training. Close to sea.

CHRISTIAN PARENTS seeking YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL at the SEASIDE (South Coast), a short journey from London, where in addition to a thorough and first-class Education, domestic care and sound Gospel training are reckoned of paramount importance, are invited to write to Dr. THORN, Paddington, London (who is in no way connected with the school he recommends),

PARIS.—YOUNG LADIES' SCHOOL.—Principal, Mlle. VIÉNOT, 36, Avenue Victor Hugo, Parc des Princes, Boulogne-sur-Seine, Paris.—This School is cordially recommended by Mr. Gustave Monod, Agent for France of the British and Foreign Bible Society, and by Mr. William Soltau, of the McAll Mission, to parents desiring a first-rate education for their daughters, together with thoroughly Christian influence (Mlle. Viénot is sister of Monsieur Viénot, Missionary in Tahiti).

A PROTESTANT FAMILY in the suburbs of Paris receives two young Girls wishing to acquire French. Terms, 35s. a week.—M. G., 14, rue Victor Hugo, Courbevoie, near Paris.

OXFORD COLLEGE FOR YOUNG LADIES, Clacton-on-Sea, Essex. — Principals, The Misses BEARD.—Thorough education; every comfort, large house, south aspect. Highly qualified professors and mistresses in constant attendance. GOVERNESS-PUPIL (good) wanted at once, to assist with juniors' music. Advanced accomplishments given. Small premium required.

VACANCIES.—There will be three Vacancies after Christmas in a first-class Ladies' School in pleasant N.W. district seven miles from London. Instruction in English, French, German, drawing; painting in oils and water colours; piano, violin, singing and drilling. Inclusive terms, 120 guineas per annum. Masters attend. Resident French and German governesses. If arrangements are concluded at once, for entrance in January, 1891, ninety guineas would be charged, or for two sisters 170 guineas per annum.—For particulars address by letter, G. F. H., c/o Messrs. Relfe, 6, Charterhouse-buildings, Aldersgate-street, London, E.C.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION. — Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 45 guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal care. Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—85, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—Referees: Mrs. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton; Rev. H. Grattan Guinness, D.D., and Mrs. Guinness, Harley House, Bow-road, London; Rev. W. Haslam, 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

Huntingdon House School,

TEDDINGTON, Middlesex.

Thorough preparation for professional and business life and for examinations. Rev. Evan H. Hopkins, Richmond, Surrey, has "much pleasure in recommending this school to parents requiring sound training and a good education at a moderate cost."

Principal—Mr. GEO. CUMES, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

YOUR BOYS will have a Christian home, and sound education, with Mr. and Mrs. DIXON, Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames. Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. Established 1883. 18 to 30 guineas.

OXFORD COUNTY SCHOOL, Thame. Established 1840. High-class, home-like. Highly efficient. Perfect sanitation. Bracing air. Splendid premises and grounds. Excellent table. Exams., University Locals, Chamber of Commerce, &c. Special arrangements for young and delicate. 160 distinctions last two years. "Several of my friends have had sons at the OXFORD COUNTY SCHOOL, and have been highly pleased with the care and attention shown."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Sons of Gentlemen, at a very select and temperate South of England seaside health resort. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy.

Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Oakhurst, Oxted, Surrey.

BOURNEMOUTH. — The High School for Boys, Poole-road. Principal: Mr. E. C. DUCHESNE. Christmas term commenced Sept. 22. Prospectuses on application.

NORTHFIELD,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

A High-Class Educational Establishment for Sons of Gentlemen. Preparation for examinations.

Particulars on application to HEAD MASTER.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter. —Boys are prepared for business or professional life. Many matriculate at the various universities. During the past fifteen years pupils have obtained more than two hundred and sixty certificates (many passing in honours) in the Oxford, Cambridge, College of Preceptors', and London University Examinations. Special attention paid to juniors, who are taught by a lady. The Word of God is made the sole basis of a careful moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian teachers are employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.

Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION.—In a High-class School for Girls, where special attention is given to religious training and home comfort, there will be at Christmas a vacancy for a Student-Teacher. She will be expected to prepare for University Examinations, London or Cambridge, and adequate assistance will be given.—B. A., c/o Wilkes' Advertising Offices, 29, Ludgate-hill, London.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Superior ucation for Girls with Christian training. No ncing. Resident English and foreign gover- sses.—Principal, Mrs. JOHN BRETT, Fern Lea, pper London-road.

THE REV. H. J. CHANCELLOR
(Late of Forest Hill),
"CAMPERDOWN," Upper Lansdowne-road, Bournemouth, E.,
Assisted by several Masters, receives a limited mber of Pupils to Educate and Board.
For particulars, address THE PRINCIPAL.

FRENCH COUNTRY CLERGYMAN, A., B.Sc., B.D., desires to receive as Boarder, oung English Gentleman wishing to learn French. eferences exchanged.
Pasteur DOMBRE, Lacaze, Tarn, France.

FOR SALE to a Christian Lady or a ies, with good connection, or small income, the oodwill and solid household and school furniture a long-established PREPARATORY SCHOOL the healthy suburb of Blackheath. Inspection vited. References given and required.
WHITE, Post-office, The Grove, Ealing, W.

A CHRISTIAN LADY would receive ter Christmas, a Gentleman's Daughter as finish- g Pupil on half terms, 36 guineas. Every educa- onal advantage. Comfortable home. Highest ferences. — PRINCIPAL, Westhill, Newmarket- ad, Norwich.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.—choolmistress can receive a few Girls to educate nd train usefully. Kindest care. Healthy neigh- ourhood. Or Ladies of limited means accommo- ated.—The School House, Kelston, Bath.

BETHANY HOUSE SCHOOL.
GOUDHURST, KENT.
PRINCIPAL—REV. J. J. KENDON.
Careful religious training, combined with a thor- ughly sound commercial education. In the last ree years 150 of the pupils were passed in the ublic examinations at the College of Preceptors nd the Local examinations of the University of ambridge.

SOUTH OF FRANCE.—A French Protestant Minister would receive into his family a few young Englishmen as Boarders, to learn French. Other branches if required. Good refer- nces.—M. le Pasteur LÉON BOST, Salies de Béarn, Basses Pyrénées.

GOVERNESS (Senior English) esires re-engagement. University and L.L.A. ertificates. Nine years' experience. English thorough), advanced arithmetic, mathematics, Latin, drawing. References.—Miss HAMILTON, Hughenden, Westcombe-park, Blackheath, S.E.

GOVERNESS-PUPIL. — Situation vanted, after Christmas, by young Lady, 20. Pres- yterian. Edin. University Local Exams. certifi- cates. South of Scotland or North of England preferred.—EWING, Sea Houses, Chat-hill.

A CHRISTIAN GENTLEWOMAN vanted, with capital of not less than £800, to take he transfer of a high-class and thoroughly pros- perous School for the Daughters of Gentlemen.
G. A., 10, Sussex-villas, Kensington, W.

AS SCHOOLMISTRESS in an Orphanage. Appointment wanted at Christmas, by a Certificated Mistress.—H., Mrs. Creed, Montrose Villa, Carnarvon-road, High Barnet.

SCHOLASTIC. — Partnership vanted, possibly with a view to an early or deferred uccession, in a first-class preparatory school, by a Cambridge Graduate. Nine years' experience. Highest references. State capital required, which must be moderate.—M. A., c/o Housekeeper, 46, Fenchurch-street, London.

A FAMILY residing in the Hague, Holland, wants to engage an English Lady Gover- ness to take entire charge of two little girls, and assist the Lady of the house in household duties. A Clergyman's Daughter preferred, not under the age of 28, well domesticated. Excellent references wanted.—W. P. VAN STOCKUM & ZOON, Boek- handel, 8, Gravenhage, The Hague.

GOVERNESS wanted.—House for the Lord's Healing, 19 and 21, South-street, Worthing. Public services for the teaching of Scriptural Holiness and Divine Healing held on Lord's Day, at 11 a.m. and 6.30 p.m., also on Tuesdays and Thursdays, at 7.45 p.m. A vacancy in the house for a truly consecrated Christian Governess, to teach five little boys. Must accept Divine Healing.—State full particulars, with ac- quirements, to Mrs. BENTALL, at above address.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

ISAAC SKIDMORE, of the Southern Counties Evangelistic Crusade, is now open for special Mission work.—For terms, apply to the Hon. Sec., A. DANN, 200, Western-road, Brighton.

MR. F. W. MOXHAY (the Singing Evangelist), having concluded his mission work in Suffolk and Cheshire, is now open to conduct evangelistic Missions.
38, Blurton-road, Clapton-park, London.

A GENTLEMAN can with confi- dence recommend a Scripture Reader, who is an experienced Christian, a diligent visitor of the poor and afflicted, and a faithful teacher of God's Word. In addition to house to house visiting, he has been accustomed to conduct a Sunday-school, Bible- readings, and prayer-meetings, also school-room services for adults, and Band of Hope and temper- ance meetings. His wife and daughters are in entire sympathy with him in his work, and have helped him considerably.—Application may be made to Mr. WILLIAM HARRIS, Sykefield Leicester.

THE AUTHOR of several religious works that have proved highly successful, is open to undertake Editorship of magazine or journal.—Rev. ——, c/o George Stoneman, Sunshine Office, Warwick-lane, E.C.

PARTNERSHIP. — An active Christian Gentleman (age 48) desires Partnership with fellow Christian, in an established business in the City or provinces, where his services and £1,000 would meet with good return.
M. H. 575, Messrs. Deacon, Leadenhall-street.

PRINTER, of considerable experi- ence, wants Partnership in Printing business, that will bear investigation. Is open to purchase a busi- ness, but partnership preferred.
M., 29, Ashchurch Park-villas, Goldhawk-road, W.

BOOKKEEPER AND CONFIDENTIAL CLERK.—Would a Christian employer take the use of £50 and grant Advertiser employment? Christian man, thorough Bookkeeper and Clerk. Long in positions of trust and responsibility. Very highest testimonials.
F., 167, Turnpike-lane, Hornsey, N.

POSITION OF TRUST with respon- sible firm, wanted by experienced young Man. Shorthand writer. Could invest up to £1000 if required.—J. G., 26, Worcester-street, Gloucester.

A CHRISTIAN MARRIED MAN, aged 25, second class certificated, able to teach Latin and mathematics, earnestly desires post in school or other suitable employment.
W. FOOTE, Rye, Sussex.

AUSTRALIA. — Young Man, knowing the colonies, used to long voyages, and invalids, will give services in return for part passage money. Highly recommended.—M. C., Mr. Robin- son, 32, Blandford-square, Marylebone-road.

CHRISTIAN YOUNG MAN desires situation as Assistant in Coffee Tavern, Soldiers' Home, or management of Coffee Carriage. Can brew, and do general work. 12 months' character.
J. H., 51, Regent-street, Lambeth.

ESTATE AND HOUSE CARPENTER.—Situation wanted by married Man, age 33. No children. 6 years' character.
S., 4, Florence-villas, Perry-hill, Catford.

COACHMAN, OR GROOM AND COACHMAN. Christian and abstainer. Married, no family at home. Age 48. Four years' good character. Country preferred.—C. T., Woodlands Lodge, London-road, Redhill, Surrey.

GOOD MAN-SERVANT seeks situa- tion, with abstainers preferred. Twelve years in one situation. Can care for invalid. Does his work well. Tall, middle-aged, good address.
M., 57, Tything, Worcester.

AS GROOM OR GROOM AND VALET.—Can ride and drive. Good character. Age 20.
H. W., 2, Cape-terrace, Carshalton, Surrey.

AS CARMAN, PORTER, or any capacity. Left public house, seeks to live Christ- tian life. Wife used to offices.—FLETCHER, 21, Berthon-street, Church-street, Deptford.

A STEADY LAD, well-grown, nearly 16, seeks a situation, to have care of pony, help in garden and house.—Rev. A. B. VALPY, Stanford Dingley Rectory, Reading.

BOY.—A Lady wishes to recom- mend a steady, respectable Boy, nearly 15, for indoor work.—Mrs. WILLIAM SPICER, Sloperton Cottage, Chippenham.

AS EVANGELIST, Missionary, or Scripture Reader, by young Man. Age 27. Eight years' experience. Married. Highest references.—W. H., Hursley Cottage, Aberdeen-road, St. Denys, Southampton.

AN EARNEST CHRISTIAN WOMAN desires sphere of work for the Lord, either as Biblewoman, Visitor, &c. Baptist; would work on unsectarian principles.
E. P., 37, Queen Margaret's-grove, Mildmay, N.

EARNEST CHRISTIAN, age 31, without means, seeks employment in Mission work. Would give time for hospital training as Mission Nurse, to work amongst suffering poor.
B. B., 141, Bath-road, Bristol.

MATRON, SECRETARY, OR HOUSE-KEEPER.—Widow Lady, of good education and experience, seeks appointment. Accustomed to the management of children and servants. Excellent references.—V., 4, Clapton-square, Clapton, N.E.

MATRONSHIP wanted.—Experi- ence among children and adults. Middle-aged. Excellent correspondent, can undertake Secretary's duties. Kind disciplinarian. Bible teacher. Am- bulance certificate. Interview. References.
Y. Z., 42, Loftus-road, Shepherd's-bush, London.

LADY (elderly) seeks position (having had experience), where confidence is sought. Would undertake care of children. Daily engagement or otherwise. Christian, abstainer. English, good French, music, drawing, &c. Good references.—M. N., 302, Kennington-road, S.E.

AS HOUSEKEEPER, or Useful Companion to elderly lady, institution or parish work. Matron requires situation. Experienced. Widow. Good references.
S., 15, Edric-road, New Cross, S.E.

AS GOVERNESS-HOUSEKEEPER or Companion.—A Lady recommends a Lady, thoroughly domesticated, fond of children. No objection to widower's household. Comfortable home valued.
P., 45, Cambridge-road, Gunnersbury.

SISTER MARY, West London Mission, recommends useful or Sewing-Maid, 22. Good reference.—Apply,
F. H., 39, Spring-street, Paddington.

GIRL.—A Lady wishes to find situation in quiet family for a healthy Girl, 17, who has been trained as House-Parlourmaid.
Mrs. WILSON, Rivers Lodge, Harpenden, Herts.

YOUNG LADY desires engagement after Christmas as Useful Companion to elderly or delicate Lady. Musical, fond of reading aloud, writing, needlework, &c.—Miss GOODMAN, Angel- ton House, Bridgend, Glamorganshire.

AS ATTENDANT on Invalid, Matron, or Wardrobe-keeper. A Lady wishes to recommend a Christian person. Excellent qualifi- cations for position of trust. London or suburbs.
H. C., High-street, Brasted, Sevenoaks, Kent.

NURSE.—The daughter of a tradesman, who has been used to children all her life, is anxious to obtain a situation as Nurse to one or two young children. Country or seaside preferred.—K., 3, Vidal-road, Brixton.

NURSERY MAID.—A Lady wishes to find a light place for a Girl, aged 25, as Nursery Maid. Can do needlework. Character in last place honest and sober.
Miss F. COOKSON, 4, Kent-terrace, Regent's-park.

AS HEAD HOUSEMAID or Linen- maid for Institute, school, or any place of trust. Lady strongly recommends Christian Person. 2½ years' experience in Institute. Age 37.
M. O., 102, Westbourne-terrace, W.

A LADY DESIRES to recommend a trustworthy person for Washing or Charing in the neighbourhoods of Kilburn and Maida Vale.—Apply to Miss COOKSON, 4, Kent-terrace, Regent's- park; or to S. P., 40, Malvern-road, Kilburn, N.W.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

CHRISTIAN LADIES wanted, whole- hearted, for Mission work. No salary given, but board and lodging provided. — Apply by letter, addressed F. J., 70, Blisset-street, Greenwich, S.E.

MEDICAL MISSIONARY.—Wanted immediately, fully qualified Medical Man, under 30 years of age, member of the Church of England, to labour as Medical Missionary to the Jews at Safed. —Apply in writing, to SECRETARY, London Society for Promoting Christianity amongst the Jews, for particulars, 16, Lincoln Inn Fields, W.C.

AS SECRETARY for a Y.M.C.A. in an important town on the South Coast. A Chris- tian Gentleman wanted, of independent means, conversant with the work amongst young men, who would undertake the post voluntarily or at a small salary.—A. E. W., Office of National Council, 15, Exeter Hall, London.

NO SALARY.—Wanted in small country Institution, the help of an Evangelical Churchman. Total abstainer. Well up in his Bible, and enthusiastic in the Gospel history, with tact in the management of afflicted children. Travelling expenses paid, board, lodging, and laundry found.—M. A., c/o Mr. Stoneman, Systematic Bible Teaching Mission, Warwick-lane, E.C.

SCRIPTURE READER wanted, abstainer. Experienced. Musical. Church of England.
VICAR, Christ Church, Endell-street, W.C.

AN ORGANIST wanted, no salary. —Apply to Rev. A. LEES, St. George's Hall, Walham-green, S.W.

MISSION, CROYDON. — Wanted, Man and Wife, without family, Christians and abstainers, to take charge of Coffee Bar, open from 6 to 10 p.m., and Mission premises. Rent, gas, and coals as remuneration. Man free to do his own work during day.
FREDERIC WEBB. 64, Clyde-road, Croydon.

INTELLIGENT YOUTH.—Vacancy for, as Apprentice to the Hat and Hosiery business. Old established, better class trade. Comfortable home; decided Christian family.
L. FOSS & SON, Swindon.

A CHRISTIAN WIDOW LADY of experience wanted, to take charge of a Deaconess House. A very comfortable home provided.—Apply to HON. SECRETARY, 143, Clapham-road, by letter, to appoint interview.

HON. SUPERINTENDENT. — Re- quired, for the Ealing Y.W.C.A. Institute, a Lady as Hon. Superintendent. An earnest Christian worker, full of love for souls. Furnished rooms, servant, fire, and light are provided. Two sisters or friends would find this happy work.
Mrs. TULLOCH, 50, Grange-park, Ealing.

Y.W.C.A.—Will a young Lady offer to help the Lady Superintendent in small institute—correspondence, visiting, &c. Must help towards her board.
Miss E. RICHARDSON, Bessbrook, Co. Armagh.

CHRISTIAN YOUNG LADY wanted at once, as Clerk and Assistant.
ALPHA, 76, Adys-road, East Dulwich.

YOUNG WORKING MATRON wanted in Children's Home, to work under Lady Superin- tendent. Salary, and all found. Must be an earnest Christian.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Girls' Home, Shirley, near Southampton.

SUB-MATRON wanted, in small Rescue Home, London. One who can superintend work-room and cut out, and is thoroughly domes- ticated. Abstainer. Salary £20.—Mrs. RICHARD- SON, Forster House, Tottenham, N.

LAUNDRY MATRON wanted for a small Home of Rescue, well situated, near Dublin. About 15 inmates, and 30 to 40 washings. Wages £18 at first, with board and comfortable room.
L. R., 2, Northcote-avenue, Kingstown, Co. Dublin

TRUSTWORTHY CHRISTIAN NURSE wanted, to take charge of two children. A good needlewoman. Can any Lady recommend? Address first instance,
E. G., Mrs. Morley, 7, Crooms-hill, Greenwich.

MOTHER'S HELP. — Wanted at once, for business house (drapers), Evangelical Christian as Mother's Help, fond of and accustomed to children. Abstainer. Good reference from last place.—Mrs. FIELD, Market-place, Sidmouth.

SUPERIOR MAID.—Wanted for family about visiting St. Leonards for few months Superior Maid for four Girls, 8 to 12, and to do the needlework of the house and children's dresses. Must have held similar position. Not over 28. Christian and abstainer.
K., 6, Jeffreys-square, London, E.C.

SUPERIOR USEFUL HELP, to undertake work of small house. Good cook, assist- ance with washing. Also MOTHER'S HELP, another kept, for two little ones. Washing put out. Comfortable Christian homes.
Seaview, Tollesbury, Kelvedon, Essex.

NURSE. — Wanted, an "Agnes Jones." Salary £50: work hard, but a grand opportunity to ease suffering bodies and save perishing souls. Must be trained.—P., 224, Evering- road, Upper Clapton, London, N.E.

EXPERIENCED NURSE wanted, not under 22, for child of six months old. Personal character required. No beds.
M., 48, Sydenham-road, Croydon, Surrey.

NURSE WANTED immediately, for three little boys. Must be good-tempered. Wages £16, all found.
Mrs. A. HOLLAND, Rodgate, Haslemere.

NURSE wanted, experienced and trustworthy, one able to take entire charge of baby from the month. Needlewoman and abstainer. State age and full particulars.
Mrs. JOHN J. NORTON, Poole.

PARISH NURSE wanted, with some Hospital training. Salary £1 per month.
Hon. Mrs. ANSON, Cookham, Maidenhead.

TO TRAINED NURSES.—Wanted, immediately, Hospital trained Nurses (age 25 to 35), for private work among rich and poor.—Apply, with references and photo, LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Nurses' Home, Norwich.

COOK OR COOK-HOUSEKEEPER wanted. Age about 35. Wages £35 to £40. Kitchen and scullerymaids kept. Comfortable Christian home. Abstainer.
Miss HOOPER, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W.

HOUSEMAID.—PARLOURMAID.—Can any Lady recommend a good single-handed Housemaid and a Parlourmaid. Churchwomen. Total abstainers. Must thoroughly know their duties.—Mrs. T., Broxbourne, Herts.

A THOROUGH HOUSE-PARLOUR-MAID wanted (housemaid kept). Must understand her duties. A Christian much valued. One in fellowship with Open Brethren preferred.—Mrs. SIMMONS, Etherton Lawn, Speldhurst, Tunbridge Wells.

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted. Thoroughly competent. Good plate cleaner. Abstainer and Christian desired. Small family. Four servants.
Mrs. CALVERT, Broomleigh, Wimbledon.

PARLOURMAID WANTED. Age about 23. Wages £22, to rise. Small family. Comfortable Christian home.
Miss HOOPER, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W.

GENERAL SERVANT, who can cook plainly well. Wages £14 to £16. No washing beyond clothes. No beer. Age about 25.
Mrs. W., Milton-road, Harpenden.

GIRL. — Wanted at once, in a Clergyman's family, a cleanly and active young Girl, about 16, to assist in the housework and waiting, and be generally useful.
Mrs. O., Claremont, Ore, Hastings.

WANTED AT ONCE, good Cooks, House-Parlourmaids, Housemaids, Nurses, and good General Servants. Quiet situations. Good wages. This office can be well recommended as thoroughly reliable.—Miss MAULDEN (late mis- sionary), 153, Church-street, Paddington-green. Stamp for reply.

TWO GOOD STRONG COUNTRY GIRLS wanted, as General Servants, for plain cooking and housework. Ages about 20. Good home, good wages. Must have good characters.
Miss MAULDEN, as above.

DOMESTIC REGISTRY.—Servants' entire fee, 1s, 3d.; Ladies' entire fee, 2s., paid on registering; returned less 3d. if not suited. 300 Vacancies (Housekeepers to Generals) for all parts. Fresh bookings daily.—Mrs. RYDER, Central Registry, Narrow Wine-street, Bristol.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first- class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea, from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to
J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

W. TAVERNER, Temperance Hotel, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from G.N., Mid., and N.W. Rail- ways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Silent roadway now laid. One minute from Rev. John McNeill's Church, Regent-square. Testimo- nials.

BEDFORD HOTEL, London. — 93 and 95, Southampton-row, Russell-square.—Quiet family Hotel; central. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d.: plain breakfast or tea. 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to
THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, Meliora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. F. WAGSTAFFE and Mrs. LOCKE. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and rail.

BRIGHTON. — SUSSEX HOUSE BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 58, Old Steine, near to sea, Aquarium, piers, and Pavilion. Liberal table, with home comforts. First-class references.—Mr. and Mrs. BOX.

BRIGHTON.—Select Boarding House. Pleasant and healthy situation. Near West Pier and lawns. Rooms lofty and airy. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Special for permanency.
Moreland House, 116, Lansdowne-place, Hove.

PARIS, Pension de Famille.—Quiet, comfortable, and refined Home, healthy and convenient situation. French lessons. Moderate terms. References exchanged.—Miss GALLOWAY, 1, Rue d'Obligado, Avenue de la Grande Armée, Paris.

BRIGHTON.—High-class Private Boarding House. Close to sea-front and lawns. Large and lofty rooms, newly furnished with every comfort. Dinner 6.30. Terms moderate.
Sea Croft, 3, Holland-road.

BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE.—Brunswick Boarding House. Visitors received on very reduced terms for the winter months, or permanency. House nicely situated. Comfortable south drawing-room. Corridors heated in winter.
Miss PALMER.

HASTINGS BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 28, Cornwallis-gardens. Central position. Comfortable winter home. Liberal table, late dinner. Bath-room. Well recommended. Terms from 30s.—The Misses WOOD.

REV. F. WHITFIELD, HASTINGS, wishes to recommend a good Boarding House in St. Leonards; and also a comfortable Home for young men in London. Same management. Terms moderate. — Mrs. C. LANDSBERG, 21, Warrior-square, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

LITTLEHAMPTON.—Seaside Home of Rest for Christians. Freedom and ease of family life. Climate mild. Special arrangements during winter months. Board and lodging 12s. 6d. weekly. —Apply, enclosing stamped envelope,
Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, Croydon.

TORQUAY.—Home of Rest.—Sharon Home, Chelston, receives persons needing rest.—For particulars apply,
HON. SECRETARY, Chelston Manor.

CLIFTON, BRISTOL.—Board and Residence for Ladies and Gentlemen. Good central position, near the Downs and places of worship.—Miss HARRIS, Worcester House, Worcester-terrace, Clifton-park, Bristol.

SOUTH OF FRANCE. — A few visitors received in a private family, residing in a healthy part of Cannes. Terms moderate. References permitted to Rev. J. Du Pontet-de La Harpe, French Parsonage, Bayswater, W.

INTEMPERANCE. — Sanatorium for Ladies in a favourite winter Health Resort in the West of England, established in 1874, for the treatment of Alcoholism, Opium, Morphia, and Chloral habits. Separate and special arrangements for cases of nervous debility and hysteria. — MEDICUS, Messrs. Tayler, 104, Fleet-street, London.

EPILEPSY.—A married Man, with great experience, offers comfortable Home, with every care, kindness, and attention. Highest references to friends of former patients.—MEDICUS, c/o Messrs. Pascoe, 28, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

COMFORTABLE HOME for one or two Ladies or Gentlemen. 16s. to 21s. per week. Temporary or permanent. Convenient for City or West End.
LAWS, 39, Fouthill-road, Tollington-park, N.

BATH. — Cleveland Boarding House, near Abbey and baths. Open and central situation. Rooms lofty and airy. A home from home. South drawing room. Terms moderate.
12, Laura-place.

LADIES VISITING BRIGHTON for a few days or longer will find comfortable Residence on very reasonable terms at Engedi House, Eastern-road.—Apply, LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

EASTBOURNE.—Merevale Boarding Establishment, Wilmington Gardens. A comfortable winter home for Ladies and Gentlemen. Pleasantly situated near sea and downs. Moderate terms.—The Misses BEEBY.

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS. —Quiet and comfortable. Conveniently situated close to Mildmay. Terms, including board, from 25s. per week.—Address, enclosing stamp,
Miss LANKESTER, 41, Beresford-road, N.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION HOME, Gambleville, St. Mary Church-road, Torquay. Torre Station the nearest. Omnibus passes the house. Terms: board and lodging, 10s., 12s. 6d., and 15s. per week; or parts of weeks, 2s., 3s., and 4s. per night, to be paid in advance. Lady Superintendent, Miss James. Applications to be made to the Secretary, Miss JESSIE COOMBS. The Y.W.C.A. Institute, Torquay. Neither confirmed invalids, nor those recently exposed to infection, are received.

BONCHURCH, Isle of Wight.—To be Let, Furnished (or in Apartments), "Sunnyside," Bonchurch. South aspect. Close to church.
Address HOUSEKEEPER.

BOURNEMOUTH. — MELBOURNE, Knyveton-road, East Cliff.—Superior Boarding House, pleasantly situated among the pines, and near sea. Comfortable winter home. South aspect. Terms moderate.

HASTINGS, Ebenezer House, Priory-avenue, close to station. Good garden and sea view. Home from home for Christian workers. Terms moderate. Every comfort. From Saturday to Monday, 10s. 6d.

INVALIDS' HOME, with every comfort. Well-appointed house in healthiest suburb of London. Terms from 2 guineas, including separate room and trained Nursing. Excellent cuisine: massage, electricity, and pine baths. — LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Oakfield, Westbourne-road, Forest-hill, S.E.

GENTLEWOMEN OF LIMITED means are offered temporary home amidst lovely scenery. Pleasant autumn or winter residence. Terms moderate. References required.—Enclose stamp for reply, LADY HOUSEKEEPER, Oak Tree House, Matlock Bridge.

COMFORTS OF HOME.—Beautiful situation near the sea. Board and lodging, with nicely furnished (single or double) bedrooms, at 15s. per week, for Ladies of small means; also for rest and change for governesses, young ladies in business, and Christian workers, at the Young Women's Christian Institute, Holland-road, West Brighton. — President, Mr. G. T. CONGREVE; Secretary, Mrs. CONGREVE; 1, Third Avenue, West Brighton, to whom write for circular.

PRIVATE CONVALESCENT HOME for Ladies, Fulbeck House, Tunbridge Wells.—Terms 17s. to 30s. weekly during winter. Home comforts.—All particulars from Miss WOODFALL, 9, Mount Ephraim-road, Tunbridge Wells.

TO CHRISTIAN WORKERS.—For Sale or to be Let, a capital Freehold Family Residence, standing in its own grounds of about three acres. A large mission-hall on the grounds. Within 30 minutes' rail of London.
J. T., 28, Finsbury Pavement.

APARTMENTS. — Lady, having a quiet, genteel home in healthiest part of Brighton, offers same to Lady or Gentleman, on moderate terms.
BETA, c/o W. Tupper, 147, Church-road, Hove.

COMFORTABLY FURNISHED APARTMENTS. Bath-room. Open and healthy neighbourhood. Few minutes from tram and rail.
E. M. C., 9, Bethune-road, Stoke Newington, N.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Comfortably Furnished winter Apartments to Let, Sitting-room and two Bedrooms on same floor. Cheerful situation. Good cooking and attendance. Piano. Terms one guinea weekly.
Mrs. MATON, 54, Holdenhurst-road.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS. — Ladies' Convalescent Home, Stradbroke House, Upper Grosvenor-road, offers medical care and home comforts, with all the advantages pertaining to residence in this attractive town and neighbourhood. Private suites of apartments if desired. Friends of patients accommodated. Terms moderate. References exchanged.
Principal—Mr. C. G. READ, Surgeon.

CLIFTON, BRISTOL.—Apartments or Boarders. Healthy situation; near Downs. Comfortably and tastefully furnished. Good cooking and attendance. Drawing-room floor, 21s.—Mrs. WYATT, 24, Canynge-square. Recommended by Mrs. Luke, Brading.

SANDOWN, Isle of Wight.—To be Let furnished, for three months or longer, a comfortable House in a good situation. Three sitting-rooms, four bed-rooms. Rent moderate.
R. BRAIDNEY, Sandown.

WORTHING HOME OF REST for Christians. Close to but not facing sea. Every comfort. Liberal table. Winter residents. Terms £1 5s. to £2 2s. — LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing.

HASTINGS. — To Let, furnished, for three, six, or twelve months, a pleasantly situated nine-roomed House. Terms moderate.—B., 13, William-terrace, Hermitage-road, Finsbury-park, N.

SEA-SIDE. — In Clergyman's family, happy Home offered to young Lady for 10s. weekly, and some help rendered. Daily Bible readings.—Rev. WALTER BRADBURY, Claremont, Weston-super-Mare.

COUNTRY HEALTH RESORT.—Mild bracing air. Home comforts. Turkish bath. Electric and other treatment. Terms moderate and inclusive. — Mrs. BOYS, Dumpford House, near Petersfield, Hants.

HOME WITHOUT HOUSEKEEPING. —A Clergyman's Widow and Daughter offer the comforts and privileges of a thoroughly pleasant Christian home to an elderly Lady or Gentleman, or delicate person. Moderate terms.—DOMUS, Yarnell's Library, Lansdowne, Bournemouth.

MEDICAL MAN, in practice in St. Leonards, has facilities for taking Resident Patients. Any cases received, severe or slight. Patients convalescing will find a quiet, comfortable home, every attention and Christian kindness. Trained nursing if required.—SURGEON, 135, London-road.

CHRISTIAN WIDOW LADY, well connected, offers comfortable Home, with board. Bath hot and cold. Piano. Convenient locality, 'bus and rail. Terms moderate. Good references exchanged.—J., 77, Uxbridge-road, W.

A RESIDENT (one mile from the city of Bath) would be glad to hear of a Lady who requires a home for the winter months.
B., c/o Mrs. Cooper, 28, Milsom-street, Bath.

A COMFORTABLE CHRISTIAN HOME offered to a middle-aged or elderly Lady, with board. Companionship desired. Terms moderate.
H. A., c/o Crisp & Son., 22, High-street, Lowestoft.

A GOOD HOME offered, most reasonable terms, in a country place near Torquay. Every comfort. Pony and fourwheel if desired. Suitable for Children or Invalid. Good references. —Apply first,
SHAPCOTT, 19 and 20, Fleet-street, Torquay.

REV. W. LANGHORNE, Vicar St. Luke's, Hackney, and other clergy, highly recommend a Home for Gentlewomen of limited income. 13s. to 17s. weekly. Separate rooms. Healthy neighbourhood.
PRINCIPAL, 4, Clapton-square, London.

COMFORTABLE CHRISTIAN HOME for Lady in North London. Active service acceptable amongst young women.
B., 186, Aldersgate-street, E.C.

COMFORTABLE, REFINED, QUIET HOME offered Lady or Gentleman. 18s. to 21s. weekly (two sharing room, less). Temporary or permanent. Piano; bath-room. Convenient City. Mrs. ROGERS, Dalkeith, Leytonstone, nr. London.

COMFORTABLE, QUIET HOME offered to middle-aged Lady, with widow and daughter, near Bournemouth, the winter or longer. Private house. Terms moderate. References exchanged.
Mrs. PHILIP HILL, Longfleet, Poole, Dorset.

COMFORTABLE HOME. — Lady offers comfortable Home for winter months. Most reasonable terms to invalid or other. Would take one or two children, needing care and kindness. Good garden. Healthy position. Highest references.
M. E. G., The Hollies, Kidlington, Oxon.

COMFORTABLE HOME.—A Lady having a quiet, comfortable home in County Kildare, is anxious to meet with a Lady to reside with her, and who would help to meet expenses.
ALPHA, Clare Castle, Ireland.

HASTINGS Y.W.C.A. — Holiday Home for Business Young Ladies. The home is pleasantly situated. 8s. Single room, 12s. References.—THE MATRON, The Nest, Milward-crescent, Queen's-road, Hastings.

RAMSGATE. — Workers' Rest. — Ladies seeking to regain health by prolonged seaside residence, good food, and thorough rest, are welcomed by Mrs. W. HATHAWAY, Finsbury House. 15s. to 21s.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—EVANGELIST, Clapham, S.W. Isaiah xliv. 22.

NEWTOWN, HATFIELD, HERTS.—Early this month Mr. HENRY PALLETT commenced a Colportage Work in his native county. Prayer is earnestly requested of every faithful heart interested in making known the pure Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. Sixteen years he steadily laboured in the Union Hall Mission Work. He is now in no way connected with any Society.

ADVERTISER wishes to meet with a Christian young Man, with £30, to join in starting a Hair Cutting Room.
W. DUNN, The Elm, Hardwicke, Gloucester.

DISSOLVING VIEWS.—Buy of the manufacturers, Messrs. CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, London. Single Lanterns complete, 36s. Slides on hire (including new sets), 1s. dozen. Monthly second-hand catalogue gratis.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENTS almost certain of early improvement, paying now a clear 7¾ per cent., or 14 per cent. if two-thirds borrowed on mortgage at 5 per cent. House property always let, leases 99 years. A Building Society will advance nine-tenths if required. Well built and attractive houses with stone bays. 20 for £2,500, yielding after paying ground rent, taxes, and repairs, £196 4s., which can be shown, or 10 for £1,250. Taken under Mortgage from Builder's Bankrupt Estate. Roads taken over.—Full particulars from Mr. MOUNT, 5, The Broadway, Cann Hall-road, Leytonstone, E.

AMERICAN ORGAN. — "Smith" make, variety of stops, two knee swells. Bargain.—CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland, N.E.

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 75s. Organs from 85s. — Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary Open-Air Mission, writes:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments."
CHAS. YOUNG, 21, High-st., Kingsland, London.

CAPSICUM is strongly recommended in The Lancet (May 17 and 24, 1890) for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, &c. The most convenient application is Francis' Capsicum Leaves (Regd.) 6d. tins. Of Chemists. For 7 stamps from FRANCIS & CO., Leicester.

SCRAPS for first-class patchwork. —Figured materials. Please state if for crazy. 2s. per quarter lb., carriage free. Cash with order.
ADVERTISER, Ilkley, Yorkshire.

BEST BELLADONNA PLASTER.—Trade mark, "The Leicester." On stout Dowlais, yard tin, 2s. "The Leicester" improved Diachylon plaster, half-yard tin, 6d. Of Chemists.
For stamps, FRANCIS & CO., Leicester.

ARE YOU GOING ABROAD? Australia, India, New Zealand, South Africa, Canada, &c. Book your passage through a reliable agent, who gives benefit of personal experience and all information post free. No charges of any kind.—Apply, PLATT'S PASSENGER & SHIPPING AGENCY (J. P. Platt & Co.), 10, St. Mary-axe, London, E.C. Established 44 years.

CEYLON AND ITS TEA INDUSTR —A highly attractive and instructive Lectu profusely illustrated by magnificent dissolvi views specially painted for the purpose. Arran ments are now being made for this exhibiti throughout the country, the proceeds to be giv as desired by the clergyman or minister in char Applications will be considered in the order which they are received.—CINGALESE, c/o Mess S. Deacon & Co., 154, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

LOANS, AT TWO PER CENT. p annum interest, to Young Tradesmen in the seco or third year of their business, in the City of Londo or within five miles thereof. Loans of £100 £300 granted, upon unquestionable sureties bei provided.—Apply to WILLIAM PAYNE, Clerk Wilson's Trust, Chamber of London, Guildha E.C.

HELP FOR THE DEAF in parlou church, or chapel. Drums, Ear Trumpets, Speaki Tubes, &c. Call and see them. Advice free. Ho 11 to 4, Saturdays 11 to 1; or write for particula to Mr. E. J. SILVERTON, Imperial Buildin Ludgate-circus, London.

RED, BLUE, BLACK, AND WHIT lovely Enamelled Paper Letters for Church Tex Gothic or Roman or plain type, very distinct a effective. 6d. and 9d. per dozen. Straw Lette 1s. 6d. per dozen. Pattern Alphabets accurate cut in cardboard, 1s. 8d. List sent.
Ringrose, Malvern Link.

WASHING WANTED.—Every co venience and good reference. Van in town dail Established 1863.—Mrs. THOMAS, Newton Hous 27, Beethoven-street, Kilburn-lane, W.

WASHING WANTED by an e perienced Laundress, with every convenien Good reference. Terms moderate. Large dry grounds, open to the fields.
Mrs. WEBB, 1, Charles-place, East Acton.

A BEAUTIFUL HARDY CLIMBE —American Bellbind, grows 20 feet in a seaso festoons balconies, &c., covered enormous rose-pi trumpet-shaped blossoms all summer. Two stro roots, 1s., free. Now is best time to plant.
RAYNER, Avenue, Southampton.

WHITE EVENING PRIMROSE, ve drawf, spreading; immense blossoms; one of t loveliest of all hardy flowers. Three strong plan 1s., free. Now is best time to plant.
RAYNER, as above.

THE SCARLET COLUMBINE, di tinct and striking; the Yellow Columbine, wi long spurs, very elegant; well-rooted plants. Fo for 1s., free. Now is best time to plant.
RAYNER, as above.

A USEFUL CLOTH DRES LENGTH FOR 6/9.
PATTERNS FREE. DENTON'S, GLO'STE

LADIES OF SOCIAL POSITION a invited to become Agents for obtaining, among Friends, orders for Tea grown and manufactur on my estate, 10 lb. package 18s. 4d. Liber commission. — R. MORTON, c/o Major-Gene Morton, 2, Priory-parade, Cheltenham.

IDEAL UNDERCLOTHING f Winter and Summer wear, made of purest a softest natural and white wools, of English man facture, at reasonable prices. Every description garment for ladies, gentlemen, and children. descriptive Catalogue and Patterns of Webbin (sent free by post) should be in the hands of eve lady and gentleman who values health, freedo from chill, and perfect comfort. — HYGIEN HOSIERY WORKS, Castle Donington, viâ Derby.

AFRICAN LECTURE, entitle "Personal Experiences in West Africa," by DIXON, Esq. (formerly Missionary). A Bla Youth will sing and speak. Sunday Schools, & half terms. Intensely interesting. Syllabus application.
Birkenhead Avenue, Kingston-on-Thames.

6d.—THE WORLD OF SCRAPS. 20 sheets best coloured Scraps, suitable for Screen Scrap books, &c., price 6d. only, post free, sev stamps; 4 Sheets, 1s.; 100 Sheets, 2s. 3d. post fr M. C. ROBERTS, 145, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.
Soreness and dryness, tic ling and irritation, indu ing cough, and affectin the voice. For the symptoms use EPPS GLYCERINE JUJUBE In contact with the glan at the moment they a excited by the act of suc ing, the Glycerine in the agreeable confections b comes actively healin In tins, 1s. 1½d.; labell "JAMES EPPS & CO Homœopathic Chemists, LONDON.

UMBRELLAS RE-COVERED FROM 2S. EACH.
IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RE COVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Post Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Maker Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Goo strong twill, ladies', 2s., gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpac ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies 4s. 6d., gents', 5s. Patterns post free. Referen kindly permitted to the Rev. J. R. Hewerso Redhill.
☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale pric List free.

(Continued on Page 36.)

Some of the Works of Robert Brown

1. THE AWAKENING SOUL'S COMPLAINT, with Christ's loving Answer and the Soul's Surrender. 4d.

"Perhaps as useful a thing as you have written for the Master. Will be a 'word in season' to many, I doubt not."
From Editor of "Sabbath Hour."

2. SPIRITUAL BLESSING. 6d.

"One of the most admirable arrangements we have ever met with."—Church Association Monthly Intelligencer.

3. REAPING IN DUE SEASON. 1s. 6d.

"A record of skilful dealing with an individual soul."
The Same.

London: THE BOOK SOCIETY, 28, Paternoster-row.

4. THE HIDDEN MYSTERY; or, The Revelations of the Word. 10s. 6d.

"To many Biblical students, and those who delight in the teaching of types and symbols, the work will be of the highest value."—Word and Work. "We have great pleasure in recommending to our readers the volume before us, which is full of profitable instruction and great interest."—Gospel Truths or Old Paths. "A work of great ability and extensive practical application."—The Sun.

London: JAMES NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.

5. BABYLONIANISM. 6d.

"A most admirable treatise on the subject."—Gilead. "An able and timely exhibition of the impious abominations of Rome."—Christian Miscellany.

6. JESUITISM. 1s.

"One of the best synopses of the Romish controversy."—The Press and St. James' Gazette. "Contains many telling points."—Record. "We have never read a book on the subject which contained so much in so small a compass."—Voice of Warning.

London: Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

7. RITUALISM AT BARTON-ON-HUMBER, &c. 1s.

"An excellent and vigorous pamphlet against ritualistic innovations."—British Messenger. "Specially deserving of notice on account of its sterling merit."—The Rock.

London: MARLBOROUGH & Co., Old Bailey.

8. DEMONOLOGY AND WITCHCRAFT: with especial reference to modern "Spiritualism" so called; and the Doctrines of Demons. 5s.

"A masterly and comprehensive treatise on the subject."—The Rock. "A curiously interesting book, and one in which Sir Walter Scott would have delighted."—Public Opinion. "This work at present is one of the best on this somewhat difficult theme."—Brighouse and Rastrick Gazette. "His tenacious hold and his fearless declaration of the 'Old Gospel' is refreshing."—Christian.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row.

9. THE PERSONALITY AND HISTORY OF SATAN. 4s.

"A most valuable book, especially suited for our own times."—English Churchman. "The book is sound, scholarly, instructive, and spiritual."—Rock. "A very remarkable work on a deep and very important subject."—Gospel Advocate.

10. GLEANINGS FROM THE BOOK OF RUTH. 4s.

"An interesting and remarkable work."—Christian. "We have seldom read a book which more commends itself to our mind."—Silver Morn. "A very valuable contribution to sound, if not intensely strong, doctrinal literature."—Gospel Advocate.

11. OUTLINES OF PROPHETIC TRUTH; viewed practically and experimentally in the light of the Divine Word. 12s.

"The familiarity with Scripture it displays is marvellous."—Evangelical Christendom. "A valuable contribution to literature and prophecy."—Christian Progress. "Accurate in fact, Scriptural in doctrine, and persuasive to practical holiness."—Clergyman's Magazine. "His acquaintance with, and insight into the Word of God strike us in every page."—Record. "Ought to be called a Treasury of Prophetic Truth."—Life of Faith. "The entire work is an illustration of the vast comprehensiveness of Holy Writ."—The Sun.

12. OUTLINES OF PROPHETIC TRUTH: Second Series. From Redemption to the Final State. Lately published. 12s.

"Contains a vast amount of exposition of Scripture; . . . brings out clearly much precious truth regarding the present and future position of the believer."—Christian Progress. "Of this book we can say what Adam Clarke said of Richard Baxter's 'Christian Dictionary,' that 'it is impossible that any person can read it without having his understanding enlightened, and his heart affected by its weighty and solemn truths."
Christian.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.

IMPORTANT TO ALL BIBLE STUDENTS.

THE NEWBERRY BIBLE

Formerly known as "The Englishman's Bible." Edited by Thomas Newberry.

Comprising:—The English-Hebrew Bible and the English-Greek Testament, designed to give as far as practicable the Accuracy, Precision, and Certainty of the Original Hebrew and Greek Scriptures on the Page of the Authorised Version. Adapted both for the Biblical Student and for the Ordinary English Reader.

LARGE-TYPE HANDY REFERENCE EDITION.

21s.; 25s.; 35s.; and a very superior edition, in best Levant Yapp, kid lined, silk sewn, 60s.

PORTABLE EDITION.

On the OXFORD BEST INDIA PAPER, with Maps; extremely thin and light. Superior French Morocco Yapp, 18s.; Palestine Morocco Yapp, 28s.; Best Turkey Morocco Levant Yapp, 35s.

London: HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster-row.

LOYAL TO TRUTH. By SYDNEY WATSON. Crown 8vo., well Illustrated, Cloth extra, 1s. 6d.

ZIONWARD! Help on the Way to the Better Land. By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. Third Edition. Cloth, 1s.

ASSURANCE; or, How to Attain to Assurance of an Interest in Christ. By Mrs. ROBERT PEDDIE. Tinted covers, 6d.

YEARLY VOLUMES FOR 1890.

THE BRITISH MESSENGER. Price 1s. Also in Stiff Boards, with Lithographic Cover, 1s. 6d.

THE GOSPEL TRUMPET. Price 6d. Also in Stiff Boards, with Lithographic Cover, 1s.

GOOD NEWS. Price 4d., by post, 5d.

DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling.
London: S. W. PARRRIDGE & Co.

NOW READY.

GOLDEN BELLS;

OR, HYMNS FOR OUR CHILDREN.

A NEW HYMN BOOK FOR CHILDREN'S SERVICES, SUNDAY SCHOOLS, AND THE HOME CIRCLE.

This Collection contains 628 of the best and most suitable Hymns for Children and Young People, compiled by the Committee of the Children's Special Service Mission, and will, it is hoped, supply a long-felt want.

PRICES—Paper Covers, 2d.; Limp cloth, 3d.;
Cloth boards, 6d.; Cloth, gilt edges, 1s.

THE TUNE BOOK

Contains many new Tunes, with a large number of old favourites; the harmonies have been carefully revised, and the whole is printed in good readable type.

PRICES—Paper covers, 3s.; Limp cloth, 4s.;
Cloth gilt, bevelled boards, gilt edges, 5s.

A Reduction on quantities to Sunday-schools. Sunday-schools can have their name printed on cover at a small extra cost.

The First Edition of 50,000 has been all sold.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION,
13A, WARWICK LANE, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.
And may be ordered of all Booksellers.

SECOND EDITION. 3s. Cloth; 1s. 6d. Paper. 300 pp.
SUITABLE FOR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

Original Songs, Readings, and Recitations.

For Public Assemblies or Private Meditation.

By JOHN H. L. CHRISTIEN.

By the same Author. 1d., or 6s. per 100 nett.

WHAT IS A GENTLEMAN?

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., Paternoster-row.

NEW YEAR'S LETTER BOOKLET—1891.

D. 1 LET YOUR LIGHT SO SHINE.

By Rev. W. FRITH, Editor of Consecration.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row
And all Booksellers

THE BOOK SALOON,

9, PATERNOSTER ROW (Cheapside End).

ESTABLISHED 1860.

Contains one of the largest Collections of

Evangelical and General Literature,

Conveniently arranged for Selection.

In addition to S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S own Publications, the Works of most of the leading Publishers are kept in stock.

CHRISTMAS BOOKS & CARDS NOW READY.

EARLY INSPECTION INVITED.

Hours 9 till 6. Saturdays 9 till 2.
Catalogues Post Free.

9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, E.C.

MISS WESTON'S
ATTRACTIVE

WALL ALMANACK

FOR 1891,

Price ONE PENNY; Post Free, Three-halfpence.

Charmingly Illustrated, with a Text for Every Day.

Apply Editor "Ashore and Afloat," Sailors' Rest, Portsmouth.

Just Ready. Of all Booksellers.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S

Illustrated Monthly Magazines

for DECEMBER, 1890.

"All as good as they can be."

THE BRITISH WORKMAN contains a large full-page engraving, drawn by Frederic Burton. The Life-Line; To the Rescue; Lashed to the Wreck; Christmas Contrasts; Twenty Hours; "A Happy Christmas"; Uncle Tim on Going to Meeting; Dolly's Conquest. ONE PENNY.

THE BAND OF HOPE REVIEW contains a full-page picture, "Edie's Christmas Hymn," and an interesting story by Jennie Chappell: "And a Little Child shall Lead Them"; Chrissie's Lesson; The Water Cure; Prize Temperance Questions for 1890; "Strong Drink is Raging."
ONE HALFPENNY.

THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND is a Double Number, including the Christmas number called "The Christmas Chimes," and has fifteen illustrations. The contents are: Queen Madge; Christmas Music; Uncle Pooley's Guests; "I Just Skated On"; The Boys; Our Letter Box; Puzzles; Who was the Culprit? Light and Shadow; Winter; Aunt Hilda's Cuffs; The Closing Year; Music piece—Christmas Music.
TWOPENCE.
Delightful Magazine for Young Folks.

THE INFANTS' MAGAZINE, with charming picture stories for the Little Ones: A Private Peep; The New Governess; The Lost Lamb; The First Christmas; The Monkey Man; The Omnibus; Music piece—Little Jack Horner.
ONE PENNY.
An Invaluable Help in the Nursery.

THE FAMILY FRIEND, with Serial Story by Laura M. Lane: Mrs. Lupton's Lodgings. Without; Humility; Footsteps; The Value of Common Sense; The Open Window; Christmas Offerings; Hints for Mothers; Music piece—A Christmas Carol.
ONE PENNY.

THE FRIENDLY VISITOR, with Five Engravings, contains: A Child's Message; Christmas Gifts; Miss Muggleton's Present; The Brookes' Thanksgiving Supper; The Basement and the Building; Give Thyself Wholly to Them; A Christmas Carol.
ONE PENNY.

THE MOTHERS' COMPANION. Full of interesting reading for the Family Circle. Several Illustrations. Serial Story by P. A. Blyth. The Misses Brentham; "Good Tidings"; Mothers at Home (Our Husbands—How to Manage Them); Christmas Carols; "Weeds"; A Friend; Dress and Dressmaking. ONE PENNY.

A Specimen Packet, containing one of each of the above, will be sent, post free, by the publishers on receipt of 8d. in stamps.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row, E.C.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S

ILLUSTRATED ALMANACS for 1891.

ONE PENNY EACH.

BRITISH WORKMAN ALMANAC.

This Sheet Almanac, with splendid centre picture, "The Last Load," drawn by Frederick Burton, and other large Engravings, is intended for the walls of workshops, Cottages, &c. The "Daily Text" is specially commended to the notice of working men and their wives.

BAND OF HOPE ALMANAC.

This beautifully Illustrated Sheet Almanac is designed for the walls of Day and Sunday Schools, and for use by the Conductors of Bands of Hope.

EVERYONE'S ALMANAC.

This Sixteen-Page Almanac, with Daily Mottoes, Full-page Engravings, Domestic Recipes, &c., is for Family use, and should be in every home.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.'s New Illustrated Catalogue post free, on application. Also Specimen Packet of their Illustrated Periodicals and Magazines.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.

GOD'S JEWELS:

Their Dignity and Destiny.

By W. Y. FULLERTON.

Exquisitely bound in blue, and illustrated, 128 pp., 1s. 6d.

Rev. C. H. SPURGEON says:—

"Replete with interest. Everything about jewels which can be used for sacred service is turned to account. Mr. Fullerton has not hammered out gold leaf, but he has given solid gold—nuggets of it. Having studied this subject carefully, and having lectured upon it at considerable length, we are in the position of a qualified judge, and we award a first prize to this very beautiful book."
Sword and Trowel.

Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., says:—

"This book is a jewel about jewels, charming by the grace of its style, and the sparkle of its illustration. We are glad to see it, and would bespeak for it a wide circulation.—The Christian Treasury.

JUST OUT.

A FINGER-MARK IN MY BIBLE.

Seven Steps into Light: for Inquirers and Workers.

32 pp. One Penny. 7s. per 100, post free.

"I have seen some aids to the solemn and difficult work of the inquiry room, but nothing to compare with this."
Rev. JOHN DYMOCK, Aberdeen.

Published by PASSMORE & ALABASTER, Paternoster-bldgs.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The Special Attention of Bible Students is invited to the Series of Papers now appearing in the "Sunday at Home" on

"SOCIAL LIFE AMONG THE ASSYRIANS AND BABYLONIANS,"

By Professor Sayce, M.A., LL.D., Author of "Fresh Light from Ancient Monuments," &c.

1. The People.—2. How the People Lived.—3. Education.—4. Marriage and Death.—5. The Market; The Money-Lender; and the Tenant.—6. Slavery and the Agricultural Labourer.—7. Trades and Professions.—8. The Religion of the People.

 These Papers are the result of original research and of recent decipherments, and throw an interesting sidelight on portions of the Bible. A considerable part of the details is now published for the first time.

THE SUNDAY AT HOME FOR DECEMBER

IS THE SECOND MONTHLY PART OF A NEW VOLUME. SIXPENCE MONTHLY. ONE PENNY WEEKLY.

THE DECEMBER PART CONTAINS

A MONOTINT FRONTISPIECE—"THE LOST PIECE OF SILVER."

Catherine Booth. "The Mother of the Salvation Army." With Portrait.

A Story of Constance. Chapters VI.—IX. By D. ALCOCK. Author of "The Spanish Brothers," "The King's Service," &c. Illustrated by W. S. STACEY.

Suspense. With Illustration—"Twixt Life and Death." By J. C. GOTCH.

On Boots and Shoes. By IDA J. LEMON.

Faithful and Worthy of all Acceptation. By the Rev. R. WARDLAW THOMPSON.

The Story of a Picture.

Old Anne. By Mrs. MAYO. Author of "Not by Bread Alone."

The New Crusade.

As a Dream when One Awaketh. By EMILY H. HICKEY.

The Lost Piece of Silver. By MARY ROWLES JARVIS.

Christmas Bells. By the Rev. JOHN R. VERNON, M.A.

Social Life among the Assyrians and Babylonians. III. Education. By Professor SAYCE, LL.D. Author of "Fresh Light from the Ancient Monuments."

The Fearing Family. By LESLIE KEITH.

"Visiting Ladies," I., II. By RUTH LAMB. With Illustrations.

The Star in the East. With Illustration.

The Eldest. By MARCIA TYNDALE.

Lost in the Bush. A Leaf from the Diary of an Australian Clergyman.

Scripture Exercises.

Religious Record of the Month.

☞ NOW IS THE TIME FOR NEW SUBSCRIBERS TO COMMENCE TAKING THE MAGAZINE.

THE RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY'S NEW BOOKS.

EIGHT SHILLINGS EACH.

GREEK PICTURES: Drawn with Pen and Pencil. By J. P. MAHAFFY, M.A., D.D., Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, Author of "Social Life in Greece," "Greek Life and Thought," "Rambles and Studies in Greece," &c. With two Maps and many Illustrations. Imperial 8vo. EIGHT SHILLINGS, handsome cloth, gilt edges. "A very charming volume."—Saturday Review.

LONDON PICTURES: Drawn with Pen and Pencil. By the Rev. RICHARD LOVETT, M.A., Author of "Norwegian Pictures," "Irish Pictures," &c. Profusely Illustrated. Imperial 8vo. EIGHT SHILLINGS, handsome Cloth, gilt edges. "The handsome form of the book, with its admirable printing, is fully justified by the interesting nature of its contents."—The Times.

THE GIRL'S OWN INDOOR BOOK. Edited by CHARLES PETERS. 528 pages. With over 150 Illustrations. 8s., cloth, gilt.
"It has almost every characteristic of an encyclopædia, but its dryness."—Manchester Examiner.
"A complete repertory of female occupation."—Times.

INDOOR GAMES AND RECREATIONS. A popular Encyclopædia for Boys. Edited by G. A. HUTCHISON. Including chapters by J. N. MASKELYNE, Lieut.-Col. CUTHELL, Dr. GORDON STABLES, R.N., Rev. A. N. MALAN, M.A., Dr. STRADLING, and others. With many engravings. 8s., cloth, gilt edges.

THE BOY'S OWN ANNUAL for 1890. The Twelfth Volume of the BOY'S OWN PAPER. 832 pages. With 10 Coloured and upwards of 500 Wood Engravings. 8s., in handsome cloth.

THE GIRL'S OWN ANNUAL for 1890. The Eleventh Volume of the GIRL'S OWN PAPER. 832 pages. Profusely Illustrated. 8s., in handsome cloth.

SEVEN SHILLINGS EACH.

THE LEISURE HOUR ANNUAL for 1890. 856 pp. Imperial 8vo. Profusely Illustrated. A very attractive presentation Volume. 7s., in handsome cloth.

THE SUNDAY AT HOME ANNUAL for 1890. 828 pages. Imperial 8vo. Profusely Illustrated by Coloured and Wood Engravings. 7s., in handsome cloth.

FIVE SHILLINGS EACH.

BIBLICAL ATLAS AND SCRIPTURE GAZETTEER. New and Revised Edition. Maps by HENRY COURTIER, F.R.G.S. Royal 4to., 5s., cloth boards.

A YACHT VOYAGE ROUND ENGLAND. By WILLIAM H. G. KINGSTON. Profusely Illustrated. Cloth gilt.

NO CHOICE. A Story of the Unforeseen. By Rev. T. S. MILLINGTON. Illustrated. Cloth.

THREE AND SIXPENCE EACH.

THE ENGLISH REFORMATION OF THE SIXTEENTH CENTURY. With Chapters on Monastic England and the Wycliffite Reformation. Illustrated by Maps and Portraits. By the Rev. W. H. BECKETT. Church History Series, No. 7. Crown 8vo., 3s. 6d., cloth.

PIONEERS OF ELECTRICITY; or, Short Lives of the Great Electricians. By J. MUNRO, Author of "Electricity and its Uses." With Portraits. Crown 8vo., 3s. 6d., cloth boards.

ROMANCE OF REAL LIFE. True Incidents in the Lives of the Great and Good. With Illustrations. Large quarto, cloth gilt, 3s. 6d.

THREE AND SIXPENCE EACH.

OF ALL DEGREES. By LESLIE KEITH. Illustrated. Cloth, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

THE PERCIVALS; or, A Houseful of Girls. By EVELYN EVERETT GREEN. Illustrated. Cloth, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.

NOT BY BREAD ALONE. By ISABELLA FYVIE MAYO. Illustrated. Cloth, 3s. 6d.

A YOUNG OXFORD MAID IN THE DAYS OF THE KING AND THE PARLIAMENT. By SARAH TYTLER. Illustrated. Cloth, 3s. 6d.

TWO AND SIXPENCE EACH.

ANCIENT EPHESUS, MODERN DISCOVERIES ON THE SITE OF. By the late J. T. WOOD, F.S.A., Author of "Discoveries at Ephesus, including the Site and Remains of the Great Temple of Diana." By-paths of Bible Knowledge, No. 14. With Thirteen Illustrations. Crown 8vo. 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

EARLY BIBLE SONGS. By A. W. DRYSDALE, M.A. By-paths of Bible Knowledge, No. 15. Crown 8vo. 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

THE RITES AND WORSHIP OF THE JEWS. New and Revised Edition. With Illustrations. Crown 8vo. 2s. 6d., cloth boards.

ADOPTED; or, An Old Soldier's Embarrassments. By E. A. B. D. Illustrated. Cloth, 2s. 6d.

TOM DOUGLAS; or, A Marked Man. By E. A. B. D. Illustrated. Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.

CAPTAIN COOK: His Life, Voyages, and Discoveries. By W. H. G. KINGSTON. Cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.

POMPONIA; or, The Gospel in Cæsar's Household. By Mrs. WEBB. Cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

THE PILGRIM'S PROGRESS. By JOHN BUNYAN. With Illustrations. Cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

TWO SHILLINGS EACH.

HOW LONDON LIVES: The Feeding, Cleansing, Lighting, and Police of London. With Chapters on Post Office and other Institutions. By W. J. GORDON. The Leisure Hour Library, New Series, No. 1. With many Illustrations. Crown 8vo., 2s., cloth boards.

FOUNDRY, FORGE, AND FACTORY. By W. J. GORDON. The Leisure Hour Library, New Series, No. 2. With many Illustrations. Crown 8vo., 2s., cloth boards.

ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE EACH.

THE CHILD'S COMPANION AND JUVENILE INSTRUCTOR ANNUAL FOR 1890. 1s. 6d. in ornamental cover. 2s., cloth boards. 2s. 6d., cloth, gilt edges.

OUR LITTLE DOTS ANNUAL FOR 1890. Pretty Stories and Pictures for Little People. 1s. 6d. in ornamented cover. 2s., cloth boards. 2s. 6d., cloth, full gilt.

THE COTTAGER AND ARTISAN: The People's Own Annual for 1890. 144 large pages. Profusely Illustrated. 1s. 6d. in cover, printed in Oil Colours.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS, SCHOOL REWARDS, &c.—The Religious Tract Society has just issued upwards of 40 Stories at prices from One Penny to Five Shillings. Interesting Tales by popular writers, well printed and attractively bound. Please ask your Bookseller for them. They are specially prepared as Gift Books for youthful and for adult readers.

LONDON: 56, PATERNOSTER ROW, AND OF ALL BOOKSELLERS.

November 28, 1890.

The Christian.

☞ It is particularly requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan & Scott, and not to individual members. Communications for The Christian should be addressed to the Editor. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we purpose giving portrait and sketch of the late Rev. C. B. Lewis, Baptist Missionary, India.

Christmas appeals from workers among the poor have begun to reach us. It has been the appropriate custom in years past to signalise the return of the day popularly associated with the Saviour's birth by showing kindness to the needy. We hope our readers will show their fellowship with this effort, as in past years, by contributing to our Christmas fund.

Our correspondent (p. 14) quotes opinions he heard expressed in Scotland on the Dods and Bruce cases, to the effect that "some prominent advocates of the orthodox view have a good deal to learn in the matter of temper." Very likely. But the conditions of the two parties are not equal in this respect. A thoughtless, careless, or mischievous boy might enjoy himself in making ducks and drakes on the water with sovereigns from his father's cash-box. But the father could scarcely regard the urchin's amusement in a similar light-hearted spirit. His sense of loss might be expected to express itself in terms which the boy might regard as an ebullition of temper.

The Court of Appeal, consisting of the Master of the Rolls, Lord Justice Lindley, and Lord Justice Lopes, gave judgment last Tuesday on the appeal against the decision of the Court below in the action brought against Dr. Barnardo for the custody of the boy Roddy. That judgment, we regret to say, was adverse to Dr. Barnardo. The finding, of course, was based purely on the legal bearings of the case, and in the present state of the law any other result was scarcely to be expected. Dr. Barnardo, however, cannot regret having lodged the appeal, for the deliverances of the learned Judges, especially that of the Master of the Rolls, entirely removed from him the personal stigma implied in the strictures of the Lord Chief Justice in the Divisional Court. We cannot at the moment of going to press comment at any length on the decision; we purpose returning to it in our next issue. But every friend of Dr. Barnardo's work will be gratified to know that by this judgment he is fully rehabilitated in the public estimation, and that his institutions were spoken of in the highest terms.

We think it right to add, for the further assurance of Dr. Barnardo's many friends and supporters, that not a shilling contributed to the funds of the Homes or the Missions under his care is spent on the legal costs of any of the actions brought against him. For all this expense he has become personally responsible, and, in order to diminish that expense as far as possible, has himself conducted two appeals. There is therefore no ground whatever for criticism of his action on the score of wasting or misusing the money sent in for the support of the Homes. We trust that support will be ungrudging and unstinted in the trying circumstances in which our brother is placed, through his devotion to the welfare of the children committed to his care.

An Irish correspondent, recognising the wisdom of our abstinence from party politics, urges that such silence is decidedly in favour of one side: "The Rev. Price Hughes is reported to have said that the efforts of Christian ministers such as himself have been instrumental in leading thousands of voters to regard the support of 'Home Rule' as their Christian duty, and I fully believe he understates the fact." Our correspondent continues:—

"How is it that English Christians can do so without taking pains to account for the fact that in Ireland those who love Christ, and seek to win their countrymen for Him, are almost universally on the contrary side? It has not been a question of party politics here, though it is eminently so with you, for a large number—perhaps even a majority of Irish Christians—were politically attached to Mr. Gladstone up to the date of his fearful alliance with their determined adversaries. Is the conviction of those who are to be personally affected by his action to be despised by those who, for a time at least, would be sheltered from its results? Depend on it, Irish Christians are better judges of its nature than it is possible for those in England to be."

Speaking in London the other evening, Mrs. Fawcett stated that the Poor Law Guardians throughout England have 31,000 children under their care, the majority of whom are in the workhouses. What an amount of child misery there is behind these figures, few people, save those who are familiar with workhouse life, can conceive. It is difficult to understand why the boarding-out system is not generally adopted. Under it the children are far more likely to grow up into creditable members of society than they are under the workhouse training.

The Russo-Jewish Committee have published a pamphlet which is of much value at the present moment in regard to the discussion respecting the condition of Jews in Russia. It certainly presents a terrible picture of the oppression under which the Jewish subjects of the Czar exist, and it shows clearly the effect of the proposed extension of the restrictive laws. The Daily Telegraph says the restrictions "make up a system of organised cruelty which an Englishman will scarcely conceive to be possible, but unfortunately the text of the enactments forbids any doubt on the matter." There will be some ventilation of the subject on December 10, on the occasion of a representative meeting at the Mansion House upon the question.

A former Paris correspondent of The Guardian, who writes to that journal from Nice on November 13, must be held responsible for the following statement.. France is apparently meditating to begin the inevitable conflict by an attack on the Triple Alliance on its weakest point, and, by a sudden pounce upon Italy, to hold the northern provinces of that country as a material guarantee for the restoration of Alsace and Lorraine, or, at least, as a basis of negotiation. Nice is now the point of military concentration. Fatigue parties are seen in the streets returning from the country; drilling and marching are going on inside and outside of the city. Upon the Italian frontier the writer found large bodies of men with mountain artillery, drilling from morning till night; while the hills are being secured in every direction, and strategic lines of railroad are being completed. It may be presumed that a paper like The Guardian would not heedlessly give currency to such a communication.

The Times recently published a column and a half descriptive of Monte Carlo from the standpoint of a business concern, the total annual income from which is about £800,000. Although the writer does not discuss the moral bearings of the question, his account contains passages which are sufficient to justify all the protests that have been made against the existence of "one of the blots upon nineteenth century culture and civilisation." The Graphic, however, a fortnight ago contained a vivid picture of the scene round the Monte Carlo roulette table which speaks more eloquently, and withal more truly, than any words could do. The present Prince of Monaco has so far consulted the welfare of his own countrymen, and recognised the demoralising influence of the casino, as to make it a penal offence for a native to visit the saloons. Why should he continue to afford facilities for luring foreigners to destruction?

To judge from the correspondence which has been going on in one of the High Church journals, it would appear that we are soon to have the introduction of "holy water" into a large number of Protestant churches. A Roman Catholic journal, dealing with the topic, says that the Romanists will "be unaffectedly glad if it is adopted, and if some tens of thousands of Englishmen become thereby accustomed to yet another Catholic habit." At the same time it is urged that it will be "imitation, and not real holy water."

Many of the best Protestants will regret to learn that the antecedents of Canon Newbolt, the new Canon of St. Paul's, do not hold out much hope at this crisis. According to Rev. L. Holland, at the late meeting of the Church Association in Hull, he introduced to the Ely Theological College a book called, "Lesser Hours of the Sarum Breviary." The book contains the Feasts of Corpus Christi, of "Relics," of "St. Thomas of Canterbury"; also days to be kept in honour of Popes Clement and Sylvester, and which contains in an appendix a "Full Service of the Blessed Mary," with the words, "Holy Mother of God, ever Virgin Mary, intercede for us with the Lord our God." It is not to be wondered at that cries of "shame" greeted this statement in Hull.

Baptism and the Lord's Supper.

WE have received a number of letters on this subject for which we regret we have not space. They are, for the most part, in defence of Rev. F. B. Meyer, though "Inquirer's" position is also maintained by some.

No one will charge us with sacramentarianism. Neither Baptism, nor the Lord's Supper, is a sacrament, in the true sense of that word. Nevertheless, they are both very vivid and pregnant object-lessons. Baptism expresses the union of the believer with his Lord in death and resurrection, that he may walk in newness of life. It is possible to be baptized as a mere act of obedience, without any intelligent apprehension of the meaning of the rite. But often it is an occasion of great blessing, when the soul passes into a new and advanced experience, as led by the Spirit to perceive that he is not only saved by the death in his stead of his Surety and Saviour, but that he is buried, quickened, and raised together with Him, to live and walk in resurrection life.

In like manner the Lord's Supper, while a commemorative ordinance, is surely not merely commemorative. It looks onward as well as backward; it reaches forward to the glory as well as retrospectively to the cross: "Ye do shew the Lord's death till He come." It bears witness to God that we have once for all accepted his beloved Son; that we live by Him; that we are "looking for that blessed hope, the appearing of the glory of our great God and Saviour Jesus Christ." At the Lord's Table our fellowship with God and with one another is made manifest. It is the most significant occasion of the "assembling of ourselves together," which we are exhorted not to forsake; and it is the anticipation of the marriage supper of the Lamb, when He shall drink the fruit of the vine new with us in his Father's Kingdom.

In the two simple ordinances of the New Covenant, the only wise God our Saviour has embodied every provision of the Gospel of our salvation, the Gospel of the glory of the blessed God. Baptism and the Lord's Supper are a microcosm of revealed truth from the Fall to the endless ages: for the former shows forth our death in sin and to sin, and our risen life in Christ; in the latter we show forth his death till He come; and through future ages it will be true that, "as the living Father hath sent Me and I live by the Father, so He that eateth Me, even He shall live by Me."

As the Bible is milk for babes, food for men, and hidden riches in secret places for nobles of Berea, so these two pregnant symbolic ordinances are made to us what we are able to receive; and, as the Lord's Supper is the oft-repeated emblem of our union with our Lord and with each other, we think that Mr. Meyer did not assert too much in saying that it is "especially in the Lord's Supper that the inner life becomes replenished," though his words might be capable of a sacramentarian interpretation which he assuredly did not intend.

Prof. Drummond on Missions.

THE article thus entitled in our last was based upon a report in The Glasgow Herald. We are now assured that the report was condensed to one-fourth, and that the newspaper impression of the address is entirely false. If this be so, it is incumbent on Professor Drummond, not only for his own sake, but also on account of the missionary cause to which the address as reported must be prejudicial, to correct the misstatements in the columns of The Herald. We shall be pleased and thankful to publish such correction.

The Bishop of Lincoln Case.

The following is the substance of an article in Tuesday's Times on the Archbishop's judgment in the case of the Bishop of Lincoln. We regard this as particularly important as coming from the leading secular organ, rather than from a religious newspaper which might be supposed to be prejudiced on the one side or the other. After expressing sympathy with the Archbishop in his recent family bereavement—which we would sincerely re-echo—our contemporary says:—

THE Church has before it a judgment which, in addition to its official authority, will justly exert a great moral influence, and produce, in one way or another, a momentous effect. It may prove one of the turning points in the modern history of the English Church, and it will at least henceforth be one of the principal matters to be dealt with in the vital and enduring controversy by which it has been occasioned.

But it is necessary to imitate the Archbishop himself in not allowing our respect for a great judgment to debar us from independent consideration of the circumstances with which it deals, and its bearing upon them.... Broadly speaking, the judgment authorises the characteristic practices of the Bishop of Lincoln and his friends, but declares most positively and learnedly that they have no meaning or import whatever. The eastward position is declared to be legal throughout the Communion Service, but it has nothing whatever to do with the sacrificial aspect of the ordinance. Great and authoritative divines have said that it had, but they were mistaken; and no argument either for or against the practice can possibly be with fairness based on any doctrinal significance attached to it. The singing of the Agnus Dei after the act of Consecration has of recent years been both condemned and defended, as a matter of fact, on strictly doctrinal lines; but a fuller investigation of the history of the controversy in its earlier stages shows that the practice has no more significance than the old Protestant fashion of singing a long rhyme of Sternhold and Hopkins during the administration; and that thus, whether in its use or disuse, the Agnus Dei has no doctrinal significance of the kind supposed. So with the lights on the Holy Table. In tacit reversal of the judgment of the Privy Council, they are adjudged not illegal, but the increase in their use is treated as having merely gone along with an increased use of decoration, and it would be contrary to the history and interpretation of the two lights to connect them with erroneous and strange teaching as to the nature of the Sacrament. In short, the Ritualists are to have their way in the chief practices impunged—the sign of the Cross being a secondary matter in comparison—but the other party are diligently assured that there is no such significance as has hitherto been supposed in such practices. The Ritualists, in other words, are given the shells they have been fighting for, and the Evangelicals are consoled by the gravest assurances that there were no kernels inside them.

We are sorry to be unable to avoid the apprehension that this way of treating the matter leaves out of account, like the judgment itself, some weighty considerations which will make themselves heard. Whether such and such practices ought to mean what has been supposed, whether they would of themselves mean anything at all in the light of impartial common sense, is one thing. What they do practically mean at the present time is another thing, and it may be doubted whether any amount of learned exposition will explain away the associations of at least fifty years of controversy, and the practical evidence of men's eyes and of common knowledge...

Whatever the Ritualistic practices ought, or ought not, to mean, no plain man can doubt that they have the practical effect of assimilating the administration of the Holy Communion to the celebration of the Mass, and that they are, at the very least, intended as a repudiation of Protestant doctrine on the subject. Men of great ability and piety—for it is their virtues which render them formidable—avowedly desire to upset the work of the Reformation in some important respects, and the very term "Protestant," which was the pride of the highest of the High Church divines of the Old School, such as Cosin, is repudiated by them. The opposite school—less strong, perhaps, at present among the clergy than among the laity—is not less earnestly opposed to this tendency, and it includes resolute men who may be expected to maintain their opposition to the last extremity. The ground at present contested between them is that of the ceremonies and ornaments of the Church and its ministers, and every piece of that ground transferred by a judgment to one side or the other is a practical victory for one side or the other, whether it ought really to belong to either of them or not...

Either the history of this country is a great illusion, or there is a real and vital issue at stake between Roman and Protestant principles, and common sense must allow that a great point is won according as the most solemn and characteristic ceremonies of the Church are made practically to speak one language or the other. The difficulty unhappily in this case is not met by that toleration of diverse constructions which has gone far to solve some of the doctrinal controversies of the Church in the interpretation of the Articles. The thought of every member of a congregation are free in respect to the teaching of his clergyman; but if he goes to church at all, he is compelled to participate in the forms of worship adopted. If, indeed, he lives in a great town, he will probably have a choice of churches within reach and will find among them one or other at which he can worship with satisfaction. But in the country the liberty of the clergyman is the bondage of the congregation. Any country village may suddenly have a priest imposed upon it who will transform its familiar and simple form of worship into an approximation to that of Rome, and every parishioner must either submit to it or give up his Church altogether.

In the country, moreover, old traditions and associations linger very tenaciously, and practices which are comparatively inoffensive amidst the quickly changing ideas of town life may give great and mischievous irritation among countrymen. A reasonable degree of uniformity is a necessary condition for an Established Church; and if the limits are to be so extended as to include all variations between the Mass and the Puritan Communion, the bands of Establishment, at all events, will be in danger of snapping. In view of such considerations, it is, we fear, too much to hope that the Archbishop's judgment will be the last word on this controversy. The law of the Church, and in a peculiarly important degree its ceremonial law, supplies, as it were, the lists within which the champions of the various schools of thought have to engage, and within the limits of which the issues have to be decided; and if either side in so grave a struggle thinks that the lists are being improperly fixed it is difficult to dispute their right to challenge the ultimate judgment accessible to them.

Rev. JOHN T. BRISCOE,

President of the London Baptist Association.

WHATEVER the Church of Christ may lack at the present time, she assuredly has many able ministers filling varied offices as evangelists and pastors, teachers and counsellors. However these may be specially described, they are all in some degree stewards of the Gospel, and have one Master, even Christ. Here and there we find men who combine many qualifications in such a measure as to render them worthy of double honour. Such a minister—with his praise in all the churches of the Baptist denomination, for all-round practical usefulness—is the subject of our present sketch.

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Elliott & Fry, 55, Baker-street, W.)

John T. Briscoe was born of godly parents fifty-three years ago, and brought up with tender solicitude for his highest welfare. At the age of twelve he realised his need of a Saviour, and responded to the call of Christ — "Come unto Me." He at once recognised his duty as a disciple to serve the Master whom he followed, but he had to wait a while for equipment and opportunities. God's grace was not withheld, however, for in the path of filial duty the young man underwent the very training which would best fit him for the sphere he was destined to fill. His work for Christ lay near to his hand, and he did not hesitate to go at it. For years he had attended the Sunday-school connected with the Baptist Church, Lever-street, City-road. Now he became a teacher, and afterwards conductor of the young men's Bible-class. Little did he think that in days yet future he would be deacon, and subsequently pastor of that same church. He allied himself with the advocates of temperance, was an active tract distributor, and, associating himself with a Mission to the poorest in Chequer-alley, St. Luke's, took part in ragged-school work.

At the age of nineteen, Mr. Briscoe was baptized by Mr. Spurgeon at New Park-street, and for eighteen months was a member of the church worshipping there. Transferring himself to Lever-street, he became deacon, as already mentioned, and afterwards accepted a call to the pastorate. The church was a small one, and Mr. Briscoe was compelled to combine with preaching the business of a printer, in association with his father in Finsbury. It was, however, his earnest desire to devote his whole energy to work in which he had proved a blessing to many. His subsequent career has afforded abundant evidence that in acting upon his heart's resolve in this matter he was simply responding to the call of God.

Accepting an invitation to preside over the church worshipping at Meard's-street, Soho, Mr. Briscoe occupied a pulpit in which honoured men had preceded him. John Stevens, John Bloomfield, and W. H. Ibberson held the pastorate in days quite "palmy" in comparison with the present, when the movement of the population is ever outward, and city churches and chapels are becoming more and more desolate. A rare gift of attracting and holding his hearers, combined with a winning personality, did not effect all that Mr. Briscoe wished. The need of the neighbourhood was great, but the congregation was hardly able to hold together, to say nothing of prosecuting aggressive work. The surroundings were discouraging in the extreme, and our friend was compelled to seek a more congenial sphere. Soon afterwards the building was closed, but it has since, we are glad to say, been re-opened as a mission station in connection with Bloomsbury Chapel, and good work has been carried on within its walls.

Mr. Briscoe had by this time become well known as a preacher, and several churches desired his services. He accepted a call to his present sphere, Rye-lane, Peckham, and the result has shown that the Divine Head of the Church ordained his succession to the honoured Rev. G. Moyle. This was in 1877, and whereas the membership then was 120, now it is between 800 and 900. The growth of the church has been so rapid that during the first two years of the pastorate the congregation outgrew the building. Accordingly, the area of space was doubled, the schools rebuilt and class-rooms made more commodious. The cost of these undertakings—nearly £6000—was in a few years wiped off, and at present the chief regret is that the accommodation is not equal to the demands of the work. On Sunday evenings this is most felt, for then it is by no means unusual for the building to be so filled that every available space is occupied by attentive hearers. And what do the people assemble to hear? It is no new thing, but rather the old Gospel. True, the preacher has an impressive manner, but it is the truth that secures and sustains interest, and on no other basis has the Rye-lane Church been built up so rapidly and strongly.

An earnest man effects something by mere example. Mr. Briscoe's energy and fervour have been contagious, and his church has increased in spirituality and good works, as well as in outward strength and influence. There is a Sunday-school of about 900 children, with an efficient staff of forty-six teachers. The classes for young men and women have each nearly a hundred members. Two missions are affiliated, and many agencies in support of home and foreign effort are in active operation.

We gather from the church annual that the total receipts during 1889 amounted to no less than £1,611 18s. 7d. The number of members added in the same period was 103. This "annual" contains a report on every branch of work, together with an account of income and expenditure. It is prefaced by a spirited address from the pastor's pen, on "Unorganised Service."

This is a capital record of church work, and in it Mr. Briscoe has had a good hand as a minister of Christ. There have been trials and difficulties, but these have been faced and overcome. Not by academical prowess or oratorical discipline did he qualify for this ministry, but simply by doing that which was at hand, and following the leadings of Providence. He has attained a large measure of success. May others be encouraged by his example! Now he has been honoured by his London brethren electing him to the presidency of their Association. We sincerely trust that this accession of influence will help him in his general duty, and that his endeavours for the extension of the work of God will be blessed in his every point of contact with those whom he may be called upon to counsel or encourage.

Conditions of Power.*

BY REV. ALEXANDER MACLAREN, D.D.

THE conditions on which the exalted Lord works for and on his servants are two—faith and prayer. "He that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also." Faith, the simple act of loving trust in Jesus Christ, opens the door of our hearts and natures for the entrance of all his solemn Omnipotence, and makes us possessors of it. It is the condition, and the only condition, and plainly the indispensable condition, of possessing this Divine Christ's power, that we should trust ourselves to Him that gives it. And if we do, then we shall not trust in vain, but to us there will come power that will surpass our desire, and fill us with its own rejoicing and pure energy. Faith will make us like Christ. Faith is intensely practical. "He that believeth shall do." It is no mere cold assent to a creed which is utterly impotent to operate upon men's acts, no mere hysterical emotion which is utterly impotent to energise into nobilities of service and miracles of consecration; but it is the affiance of the whole nature, which spreads itself before Him and prays, "Fill my emptiness and vitalise me with thine own Spirit." That is the faith which is ever answered by the inrush of the Divine power, and the measure of our capacity of receiving is the measure of his gift to us.

So if Christian individuals and Christian communities are impotent, or all but impotent, there is no difficulty in understanding why. They have cut the connection, they have shut the tap. They lack faith; and so their power is weakness. "Why could we not cast him out?" said they, perplexed when they had no need to be. "Why could you not cast him out? Because you do not believe that I, working in you, can cast him out. That is why; and the only why." Let us learn that the secret of the Christian's weakness is the weakness of their Christian faith.

And the other condition is prayer. "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name I will do it," and He repeats it, for confirmation and for greater emphasis—"If ye shall ask anything in my name," or, as perhaps that clause ought to be read, with some versions, "If ye shall ask Me anything in my name, I will do it."

Three points may be named here. Our power depends upon our prayer. God's and Christ's fulness and willingness to communicate do not depend upon our prayer. But our capacity to receive of that fulness, and so the possibility of its communication to us, do depend upon our prayer. "We have not, because we ask not."

The power of our prayer depends upon our conscious oneness with the revealed Christ. "If ye shall ask in my name," says He. And people think they have fulfilled the condition when, in a mechanical and external manner, they say, as a formula at the end of petitions that have been all stuffed full of self-will and selfishness, "For Christ's sake. Amen!" And then they wonder they do not get them answered! Is that asking in Christ's name?

Christ's name is the revelation of Christ's character, and to do a thing in the name of another person is to do it as his representative, and as realising that in some deep and real sense—for the present purpose, at all events—we are one with Him. And it is when we know ourselves to be united to Christ and one with Him, and representative in a true fashion of Himself, as well as when, in humble reliance on his work for us and his loving heart, we draw near, that our prayer has power, as the old divines used to say, "to move the hand that moves the world," and to bring down a rush of blessing upon our heads. Prayer in the name of Christ is hard to offer. It needs much discipline and watchfulness; it excludes all self-will and selfishness. And if, as my text tells us, the end of the Son's working is the glory of the Father, that same end, and not our own ease or comfort, must be the end and object of all prayer which is offered in his name. When we so pray we get an answer. And the reason why such multitudes of prayers never travel higher than the roof, and bring no blessings to him who prays, is because they are not prayers in Christ's name.

Prayer in his name will pass into prayer to Him. As He not obscurely teaches us here, if we adopt the reading to which I have already referred, He has an ear to hear such requests, and He wields Divine power to answer. Surely it was not blasphemy nor any interruption of the worship due to God alone, when the dying martyr outside the city wall cried and said, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." Nor is it any departure from the solemnest obligations laid upon us by the unity of the Divine nature, nor are we bringing idolatrous petitions to another than the Father, when we draw near to Christ and ask Him to give us that which He gives as the Father's gift, and to work on us that which the Father that dwelleth in Him works through Him for us.

Trust yourselves to Christ, and let your desires be still to listen to his voice in you, and let that voice speak. And then we shall be lifted above ourselves, and strength will flow into us, and we shall be able to say, "I can do all things through the Christ that dwells in me and makes me strong." And just as the glad, sunny waters of the incoming tide fill the empty places of some oozy harbour, where all the ships are lying as if dead and the mud is festering in the sunshine, so into the slimy emptiness of our corrupt hearts there will pour the flashing sunlit wave, the ever-fresh rush of his power; and everything will live whithersoever it cometh, and we shall be able to say in all humility, and yet in glad recognition of Christ's faithfulness to this, his transcendent promise, "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me," because "the life which I live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God."

* From Sermon on John xiv. 12-14, "The Works of the Ascended Christ," in Dr. Maclaren's recent volume, THE HOLY OF HOLIES. 5s. Alexander & Shepheard.

MR. HENRY THORNE AT DARTFORD.

UNDER the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. in this historic town, a ten days' united Gospel mission has been concluded. It has been a season which will long live in the memories and be cherished in the hearts of God's people. Organised in every detail under the wise guidance of the missioner, a hearty, loving unity has been manifested in the churches, every possible effort being made by the ministers to co-operate with the mission committee. Services have been given up on the week evenings, enabling workers to concentrate their efforts in the one cause.

The largest available hall in the town was filled night after night (in spite of strong counter attractions), and the Gospel in all its fulness was preached with great power, resulting in the professed conversion of many, and in quickening the spiritual life of believers. The daily afternoon Bible-readings were well attended, and proved very helpful. The work was sustained throughout by daily prayer-meetings at noon and on each Sunday morning.

TROWBRIDGE Y.M.C.A.—Rev. F. B. Meyer has been holding meetings in connection with this Association in the Baptist Church and in the Town Hall with good results, many persons attending from surrounding villages. The cause of the Association was advocated, and the subject of abundant Christian life was pressed upon the attention of believers. There was also a meeting for men only upon social purity. Rev. W. J. Mayers assisted in the meetings, and also succeeded in stirring local interest in Dr. Barnardo's good work.

THE NATIONAL ANTI-GAMBLING LEAGUE held two crowded gatherings last week in Leeds and Manchester, the speakers being Dr. Thain Davidson and the new Dean of Manchester. A great meeting is to be held this week in Peterborough, under the presidency of Dr. Perowne, the Bishop designate of Worcester. The League has issued a small booklet by the Bishop of Manchester, entitled, "What is Gambling?" but its work is sadly limited by the lack of adequate support. The hon. sec. is Mr. E. Oscar Fold, 7, Adam-street, Adelphi, W.C.

LEEDS CHRISTIAN CONVENTION.—A Convention for the Deepening of Spiritual Life was held last week in the People's Hall, Albion-street, presided over by Mr. Robert Wilson, of Broughton Grange, Carlisle. There was a fairly large attendance at the morning sitting, and the afternoon and evening meetings drew still larger congregations, the assembly including a considerable number of local ministers. The Convention is felt by he promoters to have effected its object to a large tegree. A large number of people, at the invitation df the chairman, signified that they had been spiriually benefited.

Y.W.C.A., EDINBURGH.—The second day's sale in connection with the proposed central premises for the Young Women's Christian Association was opened by Lady Ashburton, in the Music Hall, Edinburgh. She said the lease of the premises in Shandwick-place, presently occupied by the Association, expire in May, and it is of the utmost importance that other premises should be acquired before that time. To that object £3000 had already been collected. The drawings for Saturday amounted to £597 14s., which, added to £609 11s. 1d. drawn on Friday, makes the total drawings for the two days £1207 5s. 1d.

LIFE, LIGHT, AND LOVE.

THE GOSPEL OF JOHN.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

THE FIRST MIRACLE.

JOHN II. 11.

THIS is one of those precious memories which the mother of our Lord pondered in her heart, and often recited in that home to which this Evangelist led her from the cross. Several incidents in this Gospel may be traced to that fellowship in love and sorrow which, until her death, must have linked the mother and the disciple whom Jesus loved.

Is it not wonderful that this was our Lord's first miracle? Had we been asked to select the one which seemed most appropriate to stand as the frontispiece of his earthly ministry, we should have selected the raising of Lazarus, the calming of the storm, the feeding of the hungry crowds; but who would have chosen this? The inventive genius of man would have conceived an introductory scene which combined the chief features of the Transfiguration and of the giving of the law. How different is the simplicity of this incident!

In the previous chapter we are told that the Apostles beheld in Jesus Christ the glory of the only-begotten of the Father, and when we ask one of those eye-witnesses to give a sample of its choicest manifestations, we are conducted to a little village in the highlands of Galilee, at the distance of an afternoon's walk from Nazareth, where the Master sits at a simple marriage feast amongst his friends, and makes wine out of water to supply their lack.

The miracles of this Gospel are signs (xx. 30), carefully selected as bearing upon the special characteristics of our Lord's person and work, which the Evangelist had set himself to portray. There was a distinct purpose in his performing this miracle as his first, and in its being set so prominently at the front of this narrative. We are told that He manifested forth his glory; and we reverently ask, How? As we strive to answer that question, may we again sit at his table, and hear Him speak.

I. IT WAS HIS GLORY TO SHOW THAT TRUE RELIGION IS CONSISTENT WITH ORDINARY LIFE.—There is a common tendency to associate the highest type of religion with rigorous austerity of life, as if the human were too common to be divine. We fancy that he whose thoughts commune most deeply with the Eternal must be a stern, silent, and solitary man. This type of the religious life was exemplified in the old prophets, who dwelt in the solitudes of unfrequented deserts and hills, withdrawn from the common joys and engagements and ties of human existence, only emerging now and again to pour on the ears of awestruck crowds the burning words of the living God. Such had been John the Baptist. The deserts, his home; the locust and wild honey, his fare; the camel's cloth, his dress. And we might have expected the Son of God to have been more rigorous still in his isolation; rearing Himself in severe and solitary grandeur, like the Jungfrau among Alps.

But no. His early years are spent, not in a desert, but a home. He comes eating and drinking. He moves freely amongst men as one of themselves. He interweaves his life with the life of the home, the market-place, and the street. In pursuance of this purpose, He wrought his first miracle at a peasant's wedding.

Travelling by easy stages from the Jordan valley, He had reached Galilee. Finding his mother gone from Nazareth, He followed her over the hills to Cana, and for her sake was invited with his six new-made followers to the simple feast. It was a time of simple-hearted enjoyment. The bridegroom crowned with flowers with which his mother had crowned him in the day of his espousals. The bride adorned with her jewels, sitting apart among the women. And though He was the Son of God, no cloud would veil his face or cast a restraining spell upon the guests.

This is the harder type.—Easier, like the anchorite, to be separated from the world, than, like the Saviour, to be in it and not of it. Easier to decline an invitation to the house of the great than to go there and behave as the Son of God. Easier to refuse the things of sense than to use them without abuse. Easier to maintain a life of prayer far from the haunts of men, than to enter their midst maintaining constant fellowship with God in the unruffled depths of the soul. Nothing but the grace of the Holy Spirit can suffice for this. But this is sufficient if daily and believingly sought.

It is most honouring to God.—The idea of the ascetic life is that every human feeling is a weakness, and every natural instinct a sin. No woman's caress, no childish voice, no tender love, none of the jewels or flowers of existence, may soften the rigours of that lot. But is not all this a libel on God's original creation? Has He made so great a mistake in creating us that we must thwart his ideal at every step, ere we can rise to our true manhood? Must we make ourselves other than men before we can be saints? Surely, to reason thus is to dishonour the wisdom and love of God in our original creation. And the Incarnation teaches us, as does this miracle, that God does not require an emasculated, but a fulfilled and purified humanity.

It is most useful to the world.—Of what use is salt, except in contact with the corrupting carcase? And that holiness which builds three tabernacles amid almost inaccessible rocks is of little help to the breaking hearts of devil-possessed men in the valley below. This, at least, is not our Saviour's message. "Go," says He, "to Jerusalem and Samaria, to the crowded cities and homes of men. Live amongst them, kindling them with the passion of your holiness. Suffer little children to come to you, publicans and sinners to draw near to you, crowds to follow you. All I ask is that whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, ye should do all to the glory of God."

II. IT WAS HIS GLORY TO TEACH THE BEAUTY OF WAITING MEEKLY FOR GOD.—If ever there was a being who might have claimed to act on the prompting of his own spirit, it had surely been our blessed Lord. But there never was one who lived in more absolute and entire dependence on the Father from the first. It comes out very clearly here.

His coming with his friends threatened the whole family with a disgrace which to the hospitable mind of the Jew would be irreparable. The wine ran short. Mary, who seems to have had considerable influence in the house, was made aware of the fact, and quickly guessed its cause. She could not endure the thought of inflicting, however unconsciously, so great a mortification on that kindly circle, and she suddenly conceived the hope of helping them through Him whom she had been wont to count her obedient son. Why should He not now assume the position which had been predicted from his birth? She could not have been deceived in all that had been told her, but it had been long and hard to wait. Yet surely that salutation of the Baptist and gathering of disciples were omens of an approaching change. Why should He not now blossom out into all that splendid glory with which Jewish anticipation invested the Messiah?

Her implied request must have appealed closely to the tender heart of Christ. All that she felt, He felt also. But He could not take his commands from her entreaty, or even from the warmth of his own emotions. He addressed her with a title consistent with the most perfect tenderness—indeed, He used it from his cross—and, waiving her suggestion with a common Aramaic expression, went on to announce that henceforth his eye would be, as it had ever been, fixed on the dial-plate of his Father's will, following the index-finger of his purpose, waiting till it should reach the hour, and the alarum for action should ring out. "Mine hour is not yet come."

It was so He waited or acted through his life. The Gospels abound in references to his hour. Before it struck He was calm and peaceful, however pressing might be the apparent need for action. When it struck He acted instantly and decisively. Afterwards, He returned unto his rest. This is almost the hardest lesson in Christian living. We listen to the advice of friend, the threatening of foe, the pressure of circumstance. We think we must do something. Like Saul, we force ourselves and offer the sacrifice. We pray hurriedly and throw ourselves into the breach, to discover, when too late, that we had run without being sent, and had defeated our own object by too much haste. "My soul, wait thou," might often be addressed to ourselves by ourselves. Not a moment behind God, but not a moment before Him. Ready for his hour to strike.

III. IT WAS HIS GLORY TO SHOW THE INWARDNESS OF TRUE RELIGION.—In the entrance-hall six stone waterpots were standing, "after the manner of the purifying of the Jews." Their superstitious dread of uncleanness made it necessary to have large supplies of water ever at hand. Without washing no one ate (Mark vii. 3). The feet of each guest were washed on arrival (Luke vii. 44). The washing of cups and jugs and bottles, says the "Talmud," went on all day. And in this we have a symbol of that religion which consists in external rites, and is content if only these are maintained.

But the Master turned the water of outward ceremonial washing into wine for inward drinking. Surely there is deep symbolical meaning here, in illustration of which we recall two sentences, the one from the Old Testament, the other from the New. "Thy love is better than wine," and "Whoso....drinketh my blood hath eternal life."

The most spiritual men in the old Jewish system were constantly emphasising the impotence of mere ritual to save and sanctify the soul. David felt it (Ps. li. 16). Isaiah felt it (Isa. i. 13). Micah brings it out in clear relief (Micah vi. 7). And here our Lord in this striking miracle seems to say, "The days of ceremonialism are past; the system which was sent to teach spiritual ideas by material substances and external rites is at an end; the tedious routine of outward ablutions, which has diverted men's attention from the inner life and the befitting garb of the soul, must be laid aside; but I am here to teach men to love, to live by faith, to array themselves in robes washed white in my blood, and to rise through close participation in my death to a life of stainless purity and flawless beauty. Not water, but blood. Not washing, but drinking. Not the outward cleanliness, however fair and right, but the purity of the heart, the deliverance of the spirit from the polluting taint of evil." We are not surprised to learn next that He cleansed the Temple, and that He told Nicodemus that even he must be born again.

IV. It was his Glory to awaken us to see the Divine Power in the ordinary Processes of Nature.—The world is full of miracles, but they are so gradual and quiet that we are often blinded to their wonderfulness, till the flash of a sudden "sign" awakens us from our strange neglect.

It seems doubtful whether the Lord changed all the contents of the six stone jars, or only that which was drawn from them. The latter would more resemble his way, who gives us, not granaries of grain, but daily bread, and who deals out supplies of daily strength. But, even if He had turned all the water into wine, there would be no obstacle to our faith. The sin of drunkenness was not the sin of Palestine, as it is of London, and therefore did not require the special methods of prevention which the principles of his Gospel now lead us to adopt. And we must remember that the light wines of the Galilean vintage were very different from the brandied intoxicants with which we are too familiar.

But this is the interesting point, that we see compressed into a single flash the same power that works throughout the wine-lands every summer, transforming the dew and rain into the juices that redden the drooping clusters of the vines. The superficial man looks at this miracle and cries, "O wondrous day that beheld so great a deed!" The spiritual man looks at it, and, whilst not underrating its marvel, walks the world with a new reverence, because he knows that the same Divine power is throbbing all around.

The power revealed in feeding the five thousand is required to cover the autumn fields with grain. The power needed to raise the dead shows how much is constantly demanded to keep us living. The power that quells the storm indicates how much is being exercised to maintain the stable equilibrium of the world.

This is the glory of the miracles of Jesus, that they have taught us to look on the world around us with new and opened eyes. We hear his voice in the summer wind, and amid the roar of the pitiless storm. We catch sight of his form awakening Nature from her wintry sleep by his touch, as once the daughter of Jairus from her couch. We stand spellbound before his power, as once they did who saw the wonderful works of his hands. He is the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever. In him all things consist. And as for this world, it teems with the miraculous:

> And every common bush afire with God;
> But only he who sees takes off his shoes.

V. It was his Glory to show the ascending Scale of God's Gifts.—The devil ever gives his best first, and when the appetite is somewhat palled, he puts on his worse, even to the worst. Gold at the crown, clay at the foot. Feasting with harlots, then famine with swine. Goshen with its pastures, followed by Egypt with its fetters. Ah! you who read this page, and are living a heartless, worldly life, make the most of it, it is the best you will ever have. After you have "well drunk," there will come coarser tastes, more depraved appetites. That which has satisfied will fail to satisfy; and in its stead will come forms of sin and temptation from which at the first you would have started back, crying, "Do you take me for a dog, that I should ever come to this!"

The Lord Jesus, on the other hand, is always giving something better. As the taste is being constantly refined, it is provided with more delicate and ravishing delights. That which you know of Him to-day is certainly better than that you tasted when first you sat down at his board. And so it will ever be. The angels, as his servants, have orders to bring in and set before the heirs of glory things which eye hath not seen, and man's heart has not conceived, but which are all prepared. The best of earth will be below the simplest fare of heaven. But what will heaven's best be? If wine in the peasant's house is so luscious, what will not be the new wine in the Father's kingdom? What may we not expect from the vintages of the celestial hills? What will it not be to sit at the marriage supper of the Lamb, not as guests, but as the Bride? Oh, hasten on, ye slow-moving days; be quick to depart, that we may taste that ravishment of bliss! But for ever and ever, as fresh revelations break on our glad souls, we shall look up to the Master of the feast and cry, "Thou hast kept the best until now."

BOW COMMON.—The friends at Blackthorn-street Chapel have taken another step forward in the direction of meeting a felt need in the neighbourhood, by the opening of a Home in Devon's-road, where working men will find a comfortable room, furnished with papers. It is open every evening in the week, and they are able to purchase good coffee at a reasonable figure. There will be a room devoted to young men, with library, games, classes, Gospel meetings, &c. On Sundays, men's, children's, and general mission services will be held, and it is believed that the Home will become the centre of a large amount of aggressive work, which will in time tell upon the vast numbers living all around. Illustrated papers and other suitable publications would be of great use.

WRITING TO MISSIONARIES.—A missionary's wife in Madagascar writes:—In The Christian for July 8, I observed a letter on the subject of "Writing to Missionaries," which thoroughly commends itself to me as a kind and helpful work. Of course we look first for letters from relations and intimate friends, but the sympathy of any thoughtful Christian friend conveyed by post is very helpful. I would say that writers should not be offended or discouraged should their letters remain unanswered; while some would be only too glad to reply to such communications, others may be hindered by press of work from doing so. Lonely workers should be first remembered, and missionaries' wives should not be forgotten by sisters at home. When letters are answered it is very desirable that communication should be kept up, if only yearly.

MEMORIES AND HOPES.

Our hands were joined together, and our hearts they beat as one; [the sun·
But all our hopes were earthly and on things beneath
Life seemed just like the cloudless morn of some fair summer day, [cares away
For the music made by marriage bells chased all its

We lived and loved together, and earth was still our rest; [cosy nest;
We never dreamt that death would e'er disturb our
And the voices of our children, as they shouted in their play, [away.
Seemed a charm too strong for sorrow, and kept it far

But, oh, how soon the storm-cloud o'er bluest sky will creep; [deep;
How soon will wild winds ruffle the calm bosom of the
One night our brave boy knelt beside his mother's knee to pray, [clay.
The next, our tears were falling on a form of lifeless

And then "Our Sis," the sweetest child God e'er to parents lent, [what she meant:
Told us she was going to "Charlie," and we both knew
We called upon an unknown God, and wildly did we pray, [child away.
But all in vain both tears and prayers, He took our

Life's sunshine now had vanished, earth's sweetest ties were riven; [first had given,
Nor could we bless the hand that took as that which
Till He who often makes alive those whom He seems to slay, [tears away.
Gave balm to heal our bleeding hearts and wiped our

But when we learnt in Paradise, beneath a Saviour's care, [us there,
Our own dear bairns were living still, and waiting for
As thoughts of them called forth our tears, would each to other say, [away."
"It is only till the day dawn and the shadows flee

But now a wilder sorrow my stricken soul must know,
And I, but for God's helping hand, had sunk beneath the blow. [might not stay,
Oh, it wrung my every heartstring when I knew she
Though she whispered, "Till the day dawn, and the shadows flee away."

And so she went without me, and beneath the willow shade, [form I laid.
Where our little ones are sleeping, her own precious
Every Sabbath do I visit them, and all the Sabbaths say, [away."
"It is only till the day dawn, and the shadows flee

John Edw. Linnell.

Pavenham Vicarage, Bedford.

AMERICAN WORKERS.

Mr. D. L. Moody has had a wonderful time at Buffalo, great crowds have been coming out to hear the Gospel, and many have been blessed. Mr. Charles Inglis is continuing the special meetings.

Mr. Leonard Weaver, who used to labour in the Bible-carriage work in England, has had great blessing at Owen Sound, in Canada, and is now holding meetings in Hamilton city.

Messrs. Inglis and Brandreth have been holding union meetings in the city of Sing-Sing; many have attended these meetings, and all classes have been influenced.

Dr. De Witt Talmage is giving addresses on the Holy Land every Sunday in the Academy of Music, New York. Thousands attend the services, and many are unable to gain admission.

Special efforts are being put forth by the Methodists of New York to reach the tramps of that city. Meetings are held nightly; many have attended the meetings, and a large number have been converted.

Mr. E. P. Telford has had successful missions in Patterson City, and is now holding a mission in Jersey City.

BALOLO MISSION.—The church at Parson's-hill, Woolwich, has contributed £63 19s. 11d. towards the support of their own missionary on the Congo, Mr. H. Gustav Haupt, during the year.

The Gospel in Spain.—3.

BY J. E. BUDGETT MEAKIN.

GIBRALTAR DISTRICT.

ALTHOUGH Gibraltar is a British possession, it is ill part of Spain, and a notice of the work nong its Spanish-speaking population comes stly within the range of my title, especially the part of Spanish territory surrounding it worked from that centre.

The oldest aggressive work here is that of the gents of the British and Foreign Bible Society, essrs. Watson and Moon. The latter is a cal tradesman, well acquainted with the ople and language; he often has opportnities for addressing the by-standers from e Society's book-stall, erected about a year go in the Casemate-square, the loitering place the Spanish wharf labourers and others. any are attracted by the tracts, texts, &c., posed for sale, and with these it is easy to nter into conversation on the all-important uestion. At the Soldiers' Home a Sunday ass has recently been commenced by Mr. arshall for Spanish children, at which nineen were present on the first occasion, sixteen them being Romanists. A goodly number of omanist children also attend the Band of ope meeting at the same place on Mondays, spite of the strenuous efforts of the priests to revent their doing so. On some occasions one these has posted himself at the street corner intercept little ones on their way thither.

The work at Algeciras is carried on, under ne direction of Mrs. Todd Osborne, by Mr. impson and four lady workers, who have not et been long enough on the spot to have rasped the language. Nevertheless, the priests re already alive to the danger in their midst, nd are busy at work against them. An inance of their modus operandi will be instructve. In February last Mr. Marshall gathered bout a dozen English residents together for a ervice at the Mission-house, the only English ervice in the place. A short time ago all uddenly discontinued their attendance, and Ir. Simpson, on making inquiries, ascertained nat each had received a letter from the riest, notifying them that if they continued o recognise and support the English mission y their presence on Sunday evenings, they ould be looked upon as enemies in the town; nd as they were employed in the public ervice, they should conform to the customs of he public. In addition to this the priests nduced a crowd of lads to gather round the ouse during service time to create a disturbnce, and throw stones, so that police protecion had to be applied for. Other details might e mentioned, but these are sufficient to give n idea of the sort of opposition to be met with ll over Spain.

One word, in passing, for the priests. As hristians, it is our duty to treat our bitterest nemies with the strictest impartiality. Let s, therefore, give the priest his due. rotestants are very apt to record and hold up o execration deeds of their opponents, the xact parallels to which they do not hesitate o practise themselves whenever possible. ake that priest who waylaid the children. hile it is our duty to endeavour to meet nd guard against such tactics, do not let us ondemn in him as mean what we should eartily commend if it were the action of a hilanthropist to keep them out of a publicouse. Some, many, of the methods employed y the priests are certainly most despicable rom any honest point of view—such as the tirring up of a tumult to interrupt services; et us confine our indignation to these, and not nly recognise, but appreciate, while opposing, he efforts of those who act honestly. Our veapons are not carnal, and the less ill-feeling ve stir up against the priests themselves the nore chance we shall have of seeing souls among them brought to Christ. Many of their number have become prominent evangelical workers, and who more fitted for such a task? Let us then, rather, cultivate a better feeling towards this class personally, and miss no opportunity of enlightening these blind leaders of the blind.

I am sure that a good deal of the persecution endured by some of our missionaries abroad is due to their bellicose bearing and spirit, as much as to the natural desire of their opponents to frustrate their work.

Would it be anything extraordinary for a Romish priest who opened a school and chapel in a Cornish village, and sought day and night to entrap the children and young people, if not their parents, to arouse such indignation that the lads of the place should try to duck him in the horsepond. Such treatment is not altogether unknown in England. We must not think too hardly of the Spaniards because they oppose the spread of the Gospel at the instigation of their priests, but encourage our workers to push on undaunted, strong in the Lord.

Madrid.

GOSPEL MISSION AT CHARLBURY.

THE little town of Charlbury, Oxon, has been the scene of some much-blessed revival meetings. The mission was undertaken by a committee composed of members of the different denominations in the town. Rev. A. E. Foster, whose successful work in Hastings is so well known, was the missioner, and he was accompanied by our old fellow townsman Mr. S. Beck, now one of his neighbours at Hastings. During the earlier parts of most days of the mission visits were paid by both gentlemen to the schools, the sick, the lonely, and others in special need of help and sympathy. The town was well portioned out among the mission district visitors, who belonged largely to the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. All denominations were well represented at all the meetings, which were held in the Town Hall. It was pleasant to see how regular Rev. C. F. C. West (vicar), and Rev. W. Kelsey (Baptist minister), and others were in their attendance. Rev. W. Price (Wesleyan minister) also shortened his service on the Wednesday, in order to attend. Mr. Foster steered clear of controversial subjects, and dwelt very ably with the great fundamental facts and truths of Christianity. On Thursday morning he attended the usual Friends' Meeting and preached. The after-meetings held every evening were very quietly conducted. Many stayed on the first evening, and there was no night on which it could not be thankfully recorded that souls were blessed. The meetings steadily deepened in interest, and when in the concluding meeting those were asked to rise who had received blessing during the meetings, over forty stood on their feet. The invitation, "Tell us how God has blessed you," brought forth a glad stream of testimony.

The friends look forward with hope and pleasure to welcoming Mr. Foster again in a few weeks' time on his return from a mission at Christ-church, Coventry.

UNION HALL MISSION.—The recently destroyed tents were used to spiritual profit in several places, in the early summer months. The open-air work has also been richly owned of the Lord, in the localities of the five halls, in each of which the work has continued to prosper; and many of the best helpers are those who have been blessed in the Sunday-schools. While gracious help has been afforded in replacing the tents, it has told heavily on the income for the general purposes of the work. The winter work includes alleviation of hunger and want, and thus an entrance is obtained to the homes of the poor, the sick, and dying. The work is superintended by Mr. Robert Bilke, Abergeldie, Greenhill-park, Harlesden, N.W.

HOME OF INDUSTRY.

THE spirit of thankfulness and praise prevailed at the monthly meeting for workers last week, for Miss Macpherson's inspiriting presence once more brightened the scene, after months of absence. Some of the rescued little ones marched about the tea-room among the company, and were informally put through a short Bible lesson. It did one's heart good to see their comfortably clad forms, and bright, intelligent faces, and to hear their cheery song. The colporteur's recital of experiences with his Bible-truck in East-end streets engrossed the attention of all who eagerly gathered round to hear.

When the company were seated in the upper room, Mr. JAMES E. MATHIESON spoke of some of the things which follow faith. "I believe God, that it shall be even as it was told me," was, perhaps, the best definition of faith. It was, in conversion, always associated with true repentance and its fruits. The Epistle of James insists that justification before God, by faith, must be followed by justification before men, by works. The spirit of praise, words of testimony, brotherly love, and the offence of the cross were also briefly touched upon, as among the sequences of faith.

A Christian brother from Norway brought encouraging news of hunger in that land for the Word of God. Then Miss MACPHERSON rose to testify to God's loving kindness and tender mercy in her journey of ten thousand miles, in much bodily weakness, to Canada and the prairies. A physician had ordered her to Scotland, whence she was summoned to the prairies by a cablegram from Mr. Merry, to take counsel as to an offered gift of land which, however, was refused, after inspection. The opportunity was taken for a visit to the growing home farm, connected with Miss Macpherson's emigration-work, where steady progress is being made. The virgin soil and its capability for producing all kinds of grain compensates for the difficulties experienced by the family of eleven (including head workers) in raising, upon the bare prairie, the farm and its machinery. The four cottages upon the land, which have cost £120 each, would soon be furnished through the sale of the grain which the young men had just reaped off their eighty acres. Another year, judging from the condition of the land so far ploughed, the income of the young farmers will, with God's blessing, be much increased; and another half-dozen young men will take their places in the home farm, learn the mode of farming, and start on their own responsibility.

The incidents narrated by our devoted sister included many opportunities for the exercise of that faith upon which the former speaker had descanted. These occasions were found on board ship in heavy seas, in a "blizzard" on land, while the traveller was being taken by a lady driver through sloughs of mud, on return from a visit to cheer a discouraged clergyman and his wife in a wild region among "half breeds." The story closed with a word suggesting that workers who have "good times" in West-end meetings should come and communicate the blessing to some of the poor East-end widows.

Mr. MERRY'S remarks were much on the same lines as those we have recorded. He also expressed the joy which was brought to his spirit in once more coming face to face with the Lord's workers at home. Thus the happy meeting was brought to a close.

A NEW MONTHLY MISSIONARY PAPER for plain and uninformed persons, such as cottagers, factory hands, &c., will be issued in January by the Church Missionary Society. It will be entitled Awake! and will be published at ½d. A specimen copy of No. 1 forwarded to us is finely illustrated and full of living interest. The Intelligencer, Missionary Gleaner, and Juvenile Instructor will continue to be published; although the Intelligencer and Instructor will be enlarged, the latter for the future appearing as The Children's World.

Letters from Scotland—4.

(BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

ABERDEENSHIRE NOTES.

I OMITTED to state in my last letter that a noon prayer-meeting is regularly held every working day on the premises of the Y.M.C.A. This daily hour for prayer has been kept up in Aberdeen, in some form or another, for upwards of thirty years; it is therefore one of the oldest, if not the oldest, of its kind in this country. In my conversation with Mr. Shirreffs I gleaned a few particulars of some of the other that are sustained in the city. Dr. Farquhar, a retired army doctor, is the moving spirit in the Sunday morning free breakfasts. About 100 tramps and very poor people of both sexes are gathered in West North-street every Lord's Day morning, and receive bodily refreshment; not, however, on a luxurious scale. A capital choir discourses sacred song, and some city minister or Y.M.C.A. workers, with an occasional visitor, give short Gospel addresses.

GOSPEL AND PHILANTHROPIC EFFORTS

The Gordon Mission is another endeavour to carry the Gospel to the people. It was founded in memory of the late Mr. Gordon of Parkhill. Organised at first for the city only, it has now extended largely to the rural districts. During the past summer four tents were planted, and a good solid evangelising work was carried on. I could not discover that the Salvation Army have made much headway in the town; indeed this may be said of most of the smaller places I visited in different parts of Scotland. Their methods, and especially their teaching, have scarcely the solidity that commends itself to the Scottish mind, and my inquiries led me to the conclusion that in many places the Army organisation is in a languishing condition.

It is somewhat invidious to single out for mention any of the ordinary church work going on in the town. There is, no doubt, a fair supply of earnest preaching in Aberdeen as compared with other towns, but it is difficult to get ministers or people out of the well-established routine of Sabbath services. Rev. John Duncan, Congregationalist, has for a long period been popular among the middle classes; especially with his Sabbath evening lectures. These are not, however, of a strictly evangelistic character. Rev. G. H. C. Macgregor, the young pastor of the Free East Church, has been several times alluded to in my communications from Scotland, and I was glad to hear on all hands that he is doing splendid work. His congregation and membership have largely increased during the two years of his ministry.

FREE CHURCH MINISTERS AND SPIRITUAL LIFE.

One could not move about in religious circles in the North without hearing a good deal of the "Dods and Bruce case," and its probable effect on the life and teaching of the younger ministers of the Free Church. I cannot pretend to have made any exhaustive inquiry on the point; but I took the opportunity of conversing on the matter with Free Church pastors whenever it presented itself. One well-known Highland minister told me he thought there must be considerable freedom given in dealing with theories of Scriptural inspiration; but he was very severe on the loose way in which such a vital doctrine as that of the Atonement is treated by the advanced school. A very able and influential Glasgow pastor maintained that critical investigation as to the literary form of the Scriptures must be allowed to go on; at the same time he admitted that the evangelical doctrine, as generally understood, is the only teaching that has met, or can successfully grapple with, the needs of fallen humanity. He thought that the orthodox faith would be none the less effective if it were refined somewhat in its presentation. It was represented to me in various quarters that there is very little likelihood of the decision of the last Free Church Assembly on the Dods and Bruce controversy being reversed; that both sides have something to learn in the matter of incautious statement; and that some prominent advocates of the orthodox view have a good deal to learn in the matter of temper. I am only repeating what I heard; I have had no means of judging.

In view of this rather mixed condition of things, it was with unusual pleasure that I heard of a movement among the members of the Free Church Synod of Aberdeenshire, in the direction of fostering the spiritual life of the pastors. It began among some of the younger pastors, in the city of Aberdeen, who met weekly for mutual fellowship and prayer, and the deepening of spiritual consecration in their own lives. The wave of revived life reached the wider area of the county Synod, and at its April gathering there was an extra synodical session, when such subjects as "Shortcomings," and "The Power of the Holy Ghost for Life and Service" were taken up and considered. So much interest was awakened that it was decided to have a similar meeting at the autumn meeting of the Synod. This meeting, held last month, was a great success. The first hour was taken up with a conference on "Christ's teaching on Prayer," and the second with the consideration of "The place of prayer in the spiritual life." There was a large representation of ministers. An African missionary who was present afterwards observed that the meeting was one of the most remarkable he had ever attended.

I am assured also that a strong feeling is spreading among the more earnest pastors as to the need of more personal dealing between pastors and people. Drawing a long bow in the pulpit is not so fruitful in results as could be desired. I heard of one minister who has put this personal method somewhat extensively into practice, and he is happily surprised at the way in which his efforts have been welcomed. The classes for the examination of candidates for membership sometimes reveal strange facts. One pastor told me that at his classes held previous to the recent autumn communion, quite a number of young people told him it was only then they had been brought to real spiritual decision and personal acceptance of salvation. The "locked lip," that is characteristic of so many dwellers in the North in relation to spiritual matters, is one of the main hindrances to decision for Christ, and this growth of personal dealing is a thing most heartily to be welcomed. Many of the churches, too, have been making considerable arrangements for special evangelistic effort during the winter. A conference, on the Keswick lines, is to take place in Aberdeen in the spring, and monthly meetings for the deepening of the spiritual life are now being held in the city by way of preparation.

All these things happily indicate that there is a growing desire for a revived spiritual life in individuals and in churches; it is in this direction, rather than through controversial channels, that a bulwark will be raised against departures from the faith. One friend with whom I spoke remarked that what is needed by ministers is more prayer and less criticism; in this opinion I cordially concur.

HELPING THE POOR.—A lady correspondent writes:—"We have opened a soup kitchen on a very small scale; other ladies may take the hint, and do likewise. On Tuesday morning we have a pot holding about 6 gallons placed near the fire. In it we put the remains of our Saturday, Sunday, and Monday's dinners, and anything else that will help to make good soup. On the Wednesday we add the remains of Tuesday's dinner, and so on, until Friday evening. By that time, the pot is full of really delicious soup. We limit ourselves to six families, all of whom are very poor, and so grateful. Of course we do not confine ourselves to soup. Only having a few to look after, we become personally acquainted with our poor friends, and can supply some of their other needs as well."

ORPHAN HOMES OF SCOTLAND.

THE annual meeting of these Homes was held in the Christian Institute, Glasgow, last week Mr. J. CAMPBELL WHITE, chairman, said that one was inclined, notwithstanding all that had been heard during the past fortnight about "Darkest England," to lay our hands down against such an overwhelming sea of misery, sin, and vice as seemed to be increasing as the centuries went on. Mr. Quarrier had a distinctive aim before him, and he thought the people should concentrate their energies more than they did. Sufficient stress was not laid upon the work among children.

The financial statement showed the income for the year to be £10,630, and the expenditure £10,150, leaving about a fortnight's supply with which to begin the year.

Mr. CAMERON CORBETT, M.P., said one of the most gratifying things was the way in which the children themselves had come forward to help in the work at the Home in Canada. That would be a source of increasing strength to the work. Those who themselves had been reclaimed from poverty, as they went on prospering, he hoped would increasingly show their interest in the work, and help it forward. He thought it was the greatest strength and glory of the work and a splendid tribute to the spirit in which it was carried on that its needs were constantly supplied. There was no other work which had a stronger appeal to the minds of Christian people than this. Our greatest hope must ever be with the children; and the most helpful way of dealing with the children must ever be to take them away from their old associations to a new country, where they could not only try to help themselves, but where they would be of greatest service to the community to which they go.

Mr. JAMES CAMPBELL said that when he looked at the very small balance which Mr. Quarrier had of only a fortnight between him and starvation, he thought the public in Glasgow ought to take into serious consideration the benefit Mr. Quarrier was conferring on them by diminishing the taxes which were created by criminals.

Mr. QUARRIER said that, looking at the report, it seemed to him that they had carried the battle to the gate. The year began with 690 children and 70 workers. The number received was 452, making a total of 1142 children who had passed through the Homes during the year. The money received during the last five years was £18,682 yearly on an average, or about £100,000 altogether, and since the work began about a quarter of a million. He had never once asked for a penny, yet it had come in not a day too soon or a day too late. He did not want to have a balance in the bank. Sometimes his last pound was drawn, but he paid all he was owing, and that was all that was needed. What would the Homes do when he was gone? had often been asked. He believed they would go on by the same influence as before. He had been away in Canada, and when he went he had only a balance of £9 in the bank. But when he was away the money still came in, and on reaching home again there still remained the same balance. There is a lot of talk about social reform, and the captain of the police recently made up a list of abuses to be stopped. That list included gambling clubs and other things, but children were overlooked again. He believed a union of the churches would accomplish what was wanted, but we must get rid of our sectarianism. Some of the children he had sent out, who had formerly been outcasts in the streets, now occupied pulpits. To carry on his work he still wanted seven more houses, so as to accommodate 14,000 children.

Dolls for Hospitals.—Mrs. F. H. YOUNG, Trinity Vicarage, Henley-on-Thames, writes:—"Dear Sir,—I have a great number of dolls of all prices, very nicely dressed, from one shilling and upwards, which I shall be glad to dispose of for the benefit of the enlargement of church in a very poor and rapidly increasing parish."

For the Young.

HER "DAY OF TROUBLE."

It was a day of trouble to Ethel Burton! She had to mind Baby all the evening, and he was so cross and fractious that she could not manage to get a quiet moment. All her next day's lessons were unlearnt, and she knew the hour of nine was fast approaching, when her father's inexorable law sentenced her to bed. What should she do? Would baby Willie never close those wide-open eyes and let her little weary arms rest, and those haunting lessons be learnt? Impatient thoughts crowded into her heart, and cross words upon her lips; but like an echo in her heart sounded her morning's text, "Call upon Me in the day of trouble: I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify Me."

"But surely," she said to herself, "that means big troubles; it means when people are sick and die, or when something happens. Would Jesus call my lessons a day of trouble, and may I really ask Him to help me?" Again came the cheering thought, "It is a trouble to me, and He has promised to help me; I will just tell Him all about it." And so she lifted up her heart, for she could not kneel, and just prayed this little prayer: "O dear Lord Jesus, I am so troubled! Baby won't sleep, and I have no time to learn my lessons for to-morrow if he doesn't; do make him, please, and help me in my trouble, as Thou hast promised"; and, as the Lord Jesus always hears prayer and does what He says, no sooner did she re-commence her walk with Willie in her arms than she saw the eyelids drooping heavily, heard the soft low baby-breath deepening, and knew that at last Willie was asleep, and she was free. The lessons never seemed so easy as on that night; French verbs resolved themselves into right tenses like magic, and, to her great astonishment, father popped his head in to say that, as baby had been so troublesome, Ethel might for once be allowed an extra half hour to learn her lessons. She realised, indeed, how fully the Lord had delivered her from her little trouble, and thanked Him for it. Ethel did not like to go to school with lessons unprepared or carelessly learnt; for she was a little Christian, and loved to honour her Master by attention to every duty, and could not have borne that one of his professed followers should have been seen often in disgrace, or known as an idle girl in the school.

But she remembered well the ending of her morning's text, "Thou shalt glorify Me." She took that to mean that when the Lord helps us out of trouble, we are not to be ashamed to say He did it; and I think Ethel was right. So it happened the next day that when the master praised her, and said, "Miss Ethel Burton deserves great praise, her lessons are invariably well learned," she found courage to say, even though her face burned with confusion, "Sir, it was not me, it was the Lord Jesus did it!"

"How so?" said her master, looking at her curiously; "explain how, child."

It was no easy task for Ethel to tell her simple story; but, remembering that she was bound to give credit to the Lord who had helped her, she spoke, and as she finished, raising her down-cast eyes, she fancied she saw something like a tear glistening in Mr. Haldane's eyes, though, as he turned away so hastily, she could not be sure. Ethel, "the saint," got a good deal of teasing and mockery that day, but her heart was too light to care much. With Jesus as a real friend, for school, for home, for life, she could afford to stand something for his sake. She had proved Him, and now she would glorify Him.

Don't we learn something from Ethel? What one little girl can do another can learn to do. First trust in Jesus; don't wait to grow older; take Him as your friend for every time and everywhere. Then prove the truth of his promises. Try his grace, and don't think anything too little to call upon Himfor. And don't forget your part, and that is to acknowledge the help and guidance He has given you. In all his promises there is a precept for you, enrolled as it were in its very heart. If you want true joy of heart, not only believe his promises, but obey his commands.

EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE.

"HOME CRIPPLES" AT TEA.

"What are 'home cripples'?" you will ask. They are poor crippled children, ranging from three to sixteen years of age, who, on account of their affliction, are unable to join with other boys and girls in their play, and who rarely move—or are moved—from their one room, which, in too many cases, is breakfast-parlour, dining-room, drawing-room, and bedroom combined. These poor cripples have found a friend in Mr. C. L. BOYER, who two years ago commenced work amongst the poorest children of the East-end of London, gathering them from time to time on purpose to tell them of

A Friend for little children,
Above the bright blue sky.

While engaged in his work, he discovered from seventy to eighty boys and girls thus shut up at home. He has taken a great interest in them, and is doing all he can to make their lives cheerful and happy.

One evening recently these cripples and their friends were entertained at tea in the Stepney Meeting-house, East London. At three long tables were seated about 120 persons—mostly young—whose faces, with a few exceptions, were as cheerful as could be. But these exceptions were sad cases. One lad, whom we will call about seventeen years of age, could neither see, hear, speak, nor walk. His sister was taking care of him; and she was the only person in the room whom he could understand. In speaking to him, she took his right hand in hers, and made the dumb signs upon the palm of his hand and upon the tips of his fingers. What patience and what grace must be needed in the home of that lad! There were other cases similar to that of William; but I think his was the worst of this kind.

"WILLIAM,"

"LITTLE NELLIE"

was the name of a very sunny-faced girl of about twelve years of age, but who, having a diseased hip, has not walked for some years. She was wheeled to the meeting in an invalid chair, remained in it for tea, and was wheeled home again after the meeting. Her mother died long since; her father, I am sorry to say, is a drunkard; and her guardian is a sister two years younger than herself.

"POOR SALLY"

is thirteen years of age. She is one of twins; both are consumptive. Sally has a diseased leg, and has not walked since she was eighteen months old, just when she had learned to toddle about alone. The doctors are afraid that her leg will have to be taken off. In addition to this, she has been blind for some months, and at the tea-table she sat with a bandage over her eyes. She sometimes says she would rather go to be with Jesus than suffer here; still the doctors and her friends tell how patient she is in all her pain.

There are many more about whom I could write, did space permit; but these must serve as representative cases, and truly they tell a very sad tale. Mr. Boyer has recently appointed a visitor for these cripples—this visitor, by the way, is a blind lady, but a bright, happy Christian. Some day, perhaps, I will tell you the circumstances under which this lady commenced her work.

Perhaps some of our youthful readers could forward old scrap-books or toys for the use of these afflicted ones; or, better still, some might find a real pleasure in practising a little self-denial, and purchasing some picture-books and toys, and thus enjoy the blessedness of giving, which is certainly greater than that of receiving. Parcels for this purpose should be directed to Mr. C. L. Boyer, 52, Arlington-road, Bow, London, E.

F. T. W.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Nov. 30, Jas. v. 1—20; Mon., Dec. 1, Isa. i. 1—17; Tues., Dec. 2, Isa. i. 18—31; Wed., Dec. 3, Isa. ii. 1—11; Thurs., Dec. 4, Isa. v. 1—7; Fri., Dec. 5, Isa. v. 11—25; Sat., Dec. 6, Isa. vi. 1—13.

BOLTON.—A week's mission for young people has been conducted here at St. George's Schools, by Mr. Jas. S. Tyler. On each evening there was an attendance of about 400 children. During the after-meeting on the closing night, one after another told the workers present that they had decided for Christ. The superintendents and teachers have arranged to continue the work, by holding a weekly service for the children. There is a good branch of the Scripture Union here, superintended by Alderman Nicholson.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Alexandra Assembly Rooms, Blundell Sands, Liverpool, till Dec. 3. Mr. H. Hutchinson, Gorton, Manchester, to Nov. 28; St. Chrysostom's, Liverpool, Nov. 29 to Dec. 5; Newcastle, Staffordshire, to Dec. 10. Mr. James S. Tyler, Coupland-street, Greenheys, Manchester, to Nov. 28. Mr. George Goodman, St. Thomas' School-room, Lambeth, to Nov. 30. Mr. E. Collier, Trinity Hall, Battersea, to Nov. 28. Mr. T. L. Sayer, Public Hall, Romford, to Nov. 28.

REV. THOS. LEWIS JOHNSON will arrive in England early in the new year, from America, on a second visit to Africa. His method is to educate the coloured people and send them out to Africa, because they can endure the climate better than the white man. Any communication to him may be addressed Shalom House, 134, Upper Parliament-street, Liverpool.

MOUNT HERMON SCHOOL, with its 300 pupils, is making a superb record under the new Principal, H. F. Cutler. The design of Mr. Moody to make this Institution a place where manly boys are trained to be manly men, to go out fitted for any college, prepared to enter fully equipped with a solid Christian education into any work that unfolds before its graduates, is being carried out by the enthusiastic corps of teachers. Chicago, Baltimore, and other cities are employing men in evangelistic and pastoral work who have gone out from this school on the hillside of Mount Hermon.

S. E. B.

SOLDIERS ABROAD.—Some eighty or ninety men, who have left England on foreign service in the late outgoing troopships, having signified through the Transport Army Reader to Mrs. Evered Poole their desire to receive religious literature and occasional kindly letters from English friends while abroad, Mrs. Evered Poole appeals for such Christian friends for the men. Any such desiring a soldier's name and address to be sent to them, and willing prayerfully and earnestly to take up the work of helping the young soldier in his new life in India, China, or at the Cape, &c., can obtain further information by writing to Mrs. Evered Poole, Rockholme, Southampton.

OUR SONS.—Mr. C. F. Dowsett left England on Saturday last to inspect some lands in California. At Merced he will inspect the rich soil lands which are for sale, and which are suited for the growth of the fruits for which California is so famous. He expects to return about Christmas or soon after, and he will offer the land for sale, in sections of twenty acres and upwards. A twenty acre section and a little money would give a young gentleman a good start in life, and thus prove an answer to the question—"What to do with our sons?" Gentlemen wishing a start in life for themselves or their sons are invited to call upon Mr. Dowsett, "Land Roll" Offices, 3, Lincoln's Inn-fields, in January, to see the plans and maps, and learn detailed particulars from him of the estate, which from his personal inspection he will be able to give.

DR. BAEDEKER'S RETURN.

I HOPE soon to land in England once more, after my prolonged journey through Siberia to Saghalien, and back by Japan, China, Straits Settlements, &c., to this place. Surely the Lord has answered prayer far beyond our expectations, and hitherto He has help us indeed. I am a debtor to many of God's servants, who have been on the mount whilst I and my companions have reaped the benefit of their prayers. All the way we have been borne as on eagles' wings; health and energy have not failed; wind and weather have been favourable; my sixty-seven years of age have not been a hindrance to enduring hardness. "He giveth strength to the weary, and to them that have no might He increaseth strength," has proved a still unexhausted promise.

We have had the joy of giving about 12,000 Holy Scriptures, mostly New Testaments in the various languages, to the prisoners in Siberia, and of speaking the Gospel to more than 40,000, winding up with the prison-island Saghalien. Not only have we found a wide open door in all the prisons of the vast Russian Empire, but we have also met with every encouragement on the part of officials from the governors downwards, and from the prisoners themselves.

All prisoners who were able to read have been supplied with books, with the exception of some Poles, Jews, and Caucasians, for whom our stock of books in their languages proved insufficient. After leaving Siberia our visits to several mission stations have been a great joy.

I would wish to express my warm gratitude to the Lord's remembrancers, who have held up holy hands on my behalf, also to those who have shown sympathy by ministering of their substance, and very specially to the committee and the agents of the British and Foreign Bible Society for their generous help in supplying the books at a very much reduced cost, indeed at a minimum charge.

Above all, I would request praise and thanksgiving to be rendered to our adorable Lord and Redeemer for his mercy which endureth for ever. "Forget not all his benefits."

F. W. BAEDEKER.

Port Said, November 16.

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS.—Mrs. C. F. Ryffel directress of the Home for Foreign Governesses, Bienvenue, 3, Colville Houses, Talbot-road, London, W., writes to say she is ready to receive applications from families requiring foreign governesses for the approaching Christmas holidays.

LONDON CITY MISSION. — The library, free reading-room for men, and adult classes, at Shaftesbury Hall, Union-street, Borough, were opened on Saturday, November 15, by Mr. R. K. Causton, M.P. Mr. J. B. Braithwaite gave an address on "Adult Schools." The school was started on Sunday with a membership of eight.

A THEATRICAL TEA.—Last week a large party of theatrical employés, largely recruited from the Alhambra and Empire Theatres, assembled at a tea given by Mr. William Forbes at the Bloomsbury Chapel Lecture Hall. Rev. James Baillie, who had kindly lent the hall, gave his visitors a cordial invitation to come again. Mrs. Baillie spoke in her quiet, womanly way, and the party broke up about seven, each member taking with her a bouquet of chrysanthemums as a remembrance of friends and a very pleasant evening.—Echo.

A CONVENTION for the Deepening of Spiritual Life has been held in the city of Minneapolis. The topics presented had relation to the Word, the Spirit, revivals, and missions. Mr. William Blackstone lectured to large audiences on the missions of the world, and also on the Jews. The amount of information given, and illustrated with a complete set of missionary maps, stirred the people with zeal for world-wide evangelism. Dr. Goodwin, of Chicago, reported over 2000 churches at our doors barren of results. This alarming fact formed the basis of an ardent address on the great need of spiritual enduement. Mr. George C. Needham gave an address on Christian Conventions, their history and their utility.

Save the Children.

BY J. T. BARNARDO, F.R.C.S.E.

JUST now the air is full of new schemes of usefulness, and many people are so influenced by what is new, merely because it is new, that the old and tried often fail of due support.

I rejoice in all fresh activities for the benefit of the poor, and wish them success; but I must not forget that "The City Colony," "The Farm Colony," "The Ship," and "The Colony over the Sea," of which we hear so much just now, are, and have been for many years, all integral parts of the work in my hands. General Booth has simply lifted our methods into his book with a laudable desire to apply the same to the adult poor. I wish him all prosperity and the plan all success but I venture to believe that when he comes to the actual working thereof, he will find, as I have done, that the most sure and certain method of dealing with the "submerged tenth" is to begin with the children of the slums. There the ground is firm under our feet. Lift these children, while young enough, out of their awful environments; surround them with wise, gracious, and suitable influences; keep them long enough in training, and then, but not till then, plant them out abroad. Let this be done promptly, efficiently, and in no niggard spirit, and a single generation will witness marvellous changes among the masses still at home. With a sum of £15,000 or £20,000 in hand to be devoted solely to the rescue, training, and emigration of the young, the efficient and tried organisation already at work might treble its usefulness and power.

Take the case of a girl whose photograph I have engraved and show you here. "Wee Sally" has by no means an uninteresting face to those who know her sad history, which illustrates a dark, and, alas, an oft-recurring story of sin and shame. The child is only seven; but her story is overshadowed by her mother's errors, which were committed at least twelve years ago. That mother was herself left an orphan at a very early age. She tried to obtain her living honestly, though poorly enough, by selling buttons, cottons, and other oddments on the streets of London. But temptation dogged her steps, and she fell. While still really a child in years, she formed the acquaintance of a man who promised to marry her, and with him she lived several years, when he abandoned her and the two daughters she had borne him. One of the latter was, happily for the poor child, adopted by a lady who heard of the case.

With only poor Wee Sally now left, the mother, thus abandoned, again took to the streets, selling buttons for a livelihood, and sleeping generally, when she had the requisite pence, in lodging-houses in Spitalfields. In the summer-time she betook herself to tramping. Last year she wandered in this way with Sally as far as to Norfolk, and then she fell into the company of a class or gang of similar trampers, who lived by theft. In their companionship she sank lower and lower, and at length became addicted to drink. The rest of her story I can hardly detail in this place; it is merely a black record of the vices and of the degradation to which humanity can fall. Her history, however, even at its worst, shows how often "man's extremity is God's opportunity"; for, sunk to her very lowest, and when almost yielding to hopeless despair, she and her child attracted the notice of some poor but godly souls, whose hearts were moved with Christian pity towards the degraded, unhappy mother.

Eventually application was made at my door for a home for Wee Sally. Poor little maid! she has much to unlearn, and a sad childhood to look back upon. But experience has taught me that the buoyancy and hopefulness of childhood soon enable it to emerge from the shadows of even the darkest influences, and the heart and nature of a street child, hitherto perhaps a stranger to love, soon responds to the Christian affection, wise discipline, and motherly control of our Village Home.

Doubtless, by and by, Wee Sally will find, through our "Colony over the Sea," that happy earthly home and that circle of friendly hearts where her final lot is to be cast.

Oh! that we had the means to do this work upon a scale commensurate with the need, and as is warranted by the success already experienced.

18, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

AMERICA AND CHINA.—Mr. F. A. Steven, of the China Inland Mission, has arrived in Canada. He and his devoted wife will remain about a year, to present China's needs both in Canada and the United States. Five young men have recently started for China viâ Vancouver, and there are many "more to follow."

THE SCRIPTURE READERS' SOCIETY FOR IRELAND continues to lovingly bring the Word of God before the humbler classes in that land. The Society has, for many years, maintained in Belfast, a branch of its quiet, earnest operations, under the superintendence of several of the parochial clergy, one of whom, in reporting the death of the reader under his supervision, writes:—"Our friend, who was a faithful servant of the Lord Jesus, a diligent workman in his vineyard, and a humble follower of the Lamb, has been called home. He is generally lamented by the people among whom he laboured for thirty years. The Lord gave him many seals in saved souls. His loss to me is very great." The Secretary, Captain J. Kearney White (27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin), can furnish many similar testimonies to the work of this Society.

AFRICAN MISSIONS AND THE SLAVE TRADE.—Dr. Kerr Cross, of the Livingstonia Mission, Central Africa, last week delivered a lecture on "African Missions and the Slave Trade," in the hall of Free St. Leonard's Church, Perth. The lecturer, in a general survey of the mission field, said that the geographical problem was almost completed, and now all true-hearted men who acknowledged the command of Jesus Christ had to set their faces to the greater problem of the raising of their poor degraded brothers and sisters in that dark Continent. By a number of illustrations, and a narrative extending over an hour in length, Dr. Cross gave the audience many proofs of the gradually spreading influence of the missionary, and declared that the two men who would do most to Christianise Africa would be the doctor and the engineer. Dr. Cross proceeded to depict the horrors of the slave trade, as it was carried on at the present moment, giving instances of the bloodthirstiness of the Arab slavedealers that had come under his personal observation. He said that there were sad, sad things he dared not mention going on at present in darkest Africa.

NEW BOOKS AND NEW EDITIONS:

PUBLISHED BY

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, London, E.C.

And may be Ordered of any Bookseller in the Kingdom.

JUST PUBLISHED.

NEW BOOK BY
REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.;
Presentation Edition:
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

Joseph:

Beloved—Hated—Exalted.

WITH NINE ILLUSTRATIONS,
SPECIALLY ENGRAVED AND PRINTED ON TONED PAPER.

Contents.

Early Days
The Pit
In the House of Potiphar
The Secret of Purity
Misunderstood and Imprisoned
The Steps of the Throne
Joseph's First Interview with his Brethren
Joseph's Second Interview with his Brethren
Joseph Making Himself Known
Joseph's Administration of Egypt
Joseph's Father
Joseph at the Death-bed of Jacob
The Secret of Fruitfulness
The Secret of Strength
The Secret of Blessedness
Joseph's Last Days and Death

In the present volume Mr. MEYER re-tells with skill and pathos the old-world story of the Israelitish youth who rose through pit and prison to the post of Premier of Egypt: a story of undying interest and worth, not only as a true tale of Eastern romance, but as a unique example of the value of piety, purity of life, and fidelity in service. The artistically finished engravings tell their own thrilling story almost without the aid of the accompanying letter-press.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

JOSEPH MAKING HIMSELF KNOWN
JOSEPH SENT BY HIS FATHER TO DOTHAN
JOSEPH SOLD BY HIS BRETHREN
JOSEPH IN PRISON
INTERPRETING PHARAOH'S DREAM
JOSEPH'S TRIUMPH
JACOB SENDING HIS SONS TO BUY CORN
THE CUP FOUND IN BENJAMIN'S SACK
JOSEPH'S LAST CHARGE

JOSEPH SENT TO DOTHAN.

19th THOUSAND.

The Shepherd Psalm.

Meditations on the 23rd Psalm.

BY
Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Cloth Boards, 1s.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s. 6d.

"We have never read anything so charming on the Twenty-third Psalm as this volume from the pen of Mr. MEYER. It is full of beauty and poetry. Anything that this gifted and spiritual author writes requires no recommendation, as he is well-known to the Christian public. The present volume is charming in the depth of spiritual tone pervading it. The devout reader will find it one of the most comforting, cheering, and inspiring books he can read."—Irish Congregational Magazine.

"A piece of choice exposition, in which the teaching of the Psalm is faithfully and clearly exhibited, while the spirit of the Psalm pervades the whole book."—Footsteps of Truth.

21st THOUSAND.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

BY
Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Cloth Boards, 1s.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s. 6d.

"Mr. MEYER'S monitory word is most helpful. The hints he throws out are eminently practical; and the accent of conviction, derived from personal experience in utilising the truth of the Master's constant nearness, invests this little treatise with a contagious spiritual energy. Seldom are we able to recommend a work of this class with such unqualified confidence."
Christian Leader.

"This is a healthful and helpful little volume, containing experimental teaching in regard to some of the blessed assurances of Holy Scripture. We commend the book as one that cannot fail to be read with profit."—Evangelical Christendom.

"A gem, about the size of a birthday text-book; and brimful of spiritual life. Just the book that a Christian lady would prize."
Methodist New Connexion Magazine.

ALSO BY REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

'Tried by Fire:'

Second Edition.
7th Thousand.

Expositions of the First Epistle of Peter.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"Since the commentary of Archbishop Leighton has almost monopolized the field of spiritual exposition few have attempted to tread precisely the same ground as that heavenly-minded expounder in his treatment of this Epistle. His commentary has one defect from which Mr. MEYER'S exposition is free—viz., diffusiveness of style and quantity of matter. Indeed, we doubt whether any work has appeared since the time of Leighton, on the same subject, which equals the one before us. The text is expounded with grammatical precision, and a graceful use of exegesis is made to bring out some underlying thought. Mr. MEYER'S estimation of character is fair and neatly balanced, and his illustrations rich in the emphasis which they give to peculiar truths. The author raises the standard of holiness high upon the pedestal of the Gospel. Nor can it be lowered without grave consequences, in an age when soundness in the faith is made a substitute for sanctification of life. This handsome volume exactly answers to our idea of what a good exposition ought to be."—The Rock.

"These expositions of one of the richest of the Epistles are brightly and beautifully written, and infused by a lofty and evangelical Christian spirit. The author's application of Scripture truth to the various needs of the soul is exceedingly searching and pointed. This is indeed his strong point; and without attempting to untie any exegetical knots, or entering into the intricacies of exposition, he seeks to furnish food and stimulus to the devout Christian."—Primitive Methodist.

"A devotional and practical commentary; full of good matter, and as fresh and vigorous as it is profoundly spiritual. A great treasure to any preacher or Bible student."—Preacher's Magazine.

"Mr. MEYER always writes to edification. His doctrine is deeply practical, and its tendency is to lead the soul nearer to God. This exposition is plain, practical, and gracious."—Sword and Trowel.

20th THOUSAND.

Christian Living.

BY
Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Cloth Boards, 1s.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s. 6d.

"A choice little book of nine chapters, into which is condensed a mass of helpful instruction and wise practical counsel on various topics relating to the Christian Life."
Footsteps of Truth.

"Full of sweetness and light. No Christian can read it with a docile spirit and fail to receive stimulus in the direction whither the true-hearted would go. Its light will make clear the path to higher joys and a worthier service."
Cambridgeshire Congregational Magazine.

"Clear, attractive, sympathetic, living, and above all clothed with 'unction,' we feel sure these words will bring light and blessing to their readers."
Divine Life.

THE LATEST AND COMPLETE EDITIONS.

Sacred Songs and Solos:

WITH STANDARD HYMNS COMBINED.

CONTAINING 750 PIECES IN ONE VOLUME.

COMPILED AND SUNG BY Ira D. Sankey.

MUSIC AND WORDS.

Old Notation.

		s.	d.
FF 1.	Tinted Covers	3	6
FF 2.	Cloth Limp	4	6
FF 3.	Cloth Boards	5	6
FF 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	6	6
FF 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	10	6
FF 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	14	6

Old Notation.

(SMALLER SIZE.)

HH 1.	Tinted Covers	2	6
HH 2.	Cloth Limp	3	0
HH 3.	Cloth Boards	3	6
HH 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	4	0
HH 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	6	6
HH 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	9	6

Tonic Sol-fa.

RR 1.	Tinted Covers	2	6
RR 2.	Cloth Limp	3	0
RR 3.	Cloth Boards	3	6
RR 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	4	0
RR 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	6	6
RR 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	9	6

WORDS ONLY.

Small Type.

		s.	d.
AA 1.	Tinted Covers	0	2
AA 2.	Blocked Cloth	0	3

Nonpareil Edition.

BB 1.	Tinted Covers	0	4½
BB 2.	Blocked Cloth	0	6

Pocket Edition.

CC 1.	Cloth Limp	0	9
CC 2.	Cloth Boards	1	0
CC 3.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	1	6
CC 4.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	3	0
CC 5.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	4	6

Large Type.

DD 1.	Tinted Covers	1	0
DD 2.	Cloth Limp	1	6
DD 3.	Cloth Boards	2	0
DD 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	2	6
DD 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	4	6

Extra Large Type.

EE 1.	Tinted Covers	2	0
EE 2.	Cloth Limp	2	6
EE 3.	Cloth Boards	3	0
EE 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	3	6
EE 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	6	6
EE 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	9	6

QUARTO EDITIONS:

For use at the Piano, Harmonium, or Organ.

	s.	d.
Cloth Boards	7	6
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	9	6
Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	17	6
Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	25	0

A COMPLETE LIST of the Editions of SONGS & SOLOS with Specimens of Type may be had on application to the Publishers.

MORGAN & SCOTT'S UNABRIDGED EDITIONS OF

Cruden's Concordance to the Old and New Testaments.

All the Editions described below contain 757 pages, 2270 closely-printed columns, and about 250,000 references. A special feature is The List of Proper Names, newly translated by Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A. This portion of the work is strictly copyright, and can only appear in Morgan and Scott's Editions.

Respecting the New

List of Proper Names,

The Baptist Magazine says:

"A valuable Appendix: in which we have, first, a list of all the Proper Names of the Bible in Alphabetical Order, with their meanings in the original; and, second, mention of the various places in which they are found. This Appendix has been supplied by Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A., and is scholarly and trustworthy. It will greatly increase the usefulness of this valuable work."

Respecting MORGAN AND SCOTT'S

Cheap Portable Edition,

Rev. C. H. SPURGEON says:

"Messrs. Morgan and Scott are resolved not to be beaten, and so they have produced a portable edition of 'Cruden's Concordance' for 3s. 6d. Nobody should now be without a Concordance: which is to the Bible-reader what a foot-rule is to a carpenter, or a chain to a land-surveyor. For the sake of all the poor parsons in the three kingdoms, we feel grateful to Messrs. Morgan and Scott. How they can issue such a book at such a price we cannot tell."

Reduced Fac-simile of MORGAN AND SCOTT'S EDITION.

Rev. Dr. J. L. PORTER, Professor of Biblical Criticism, Belfast, speaking of the Engravings, says:

"I have examined with care the views for Biblical Illustration. The Engravings are very beautiful. In clearness, accuracy, and general effect they surpass, I think, any I have seen."

PRICES.

PORTABLE EDITION.	s.	d.
Cloth Boards	3	6
Half Calf, Marbled Edges	7	6

POPULAR EDITION.	s.	d.
Printed on Superior Paper, Cloth Boards	5	0

PRESENTATION EDITION.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Top	7	6

LIBRARY EDITION.
Strongly Half Bound in Leather	10	6

ILLUSTRATED EDITION.
With Twelve Exquisite Steel Plate Engravings, and Six Beautiful Coloured Maps.
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Top .. 10s. 6d.

 In ordering it will always be necessary to specify MORGAN & SCOTT'S EDITION.

Searching the Scriptures:

By Dr. J. ANDERSON, M.R.C.S.

In Order to Abiding Communion with God.

ALSO SUGGESTIONS FOR BIBLE READING AND STUDY, AND A PLAN FOR CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING.

PRICES:	s.	d.
Tinted Covers	1	6
Cloth Boards	2	6
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges	3	6

"A scholarly, accurate, suggestive, and wise work on the Study of the Books of the Bible: how best to get at their teaching, and how best to turn that teaching to practical account. Preachers and teachers will find it a treasury of thought, beautiful expositions, and fruitful suggestions. The volume is nicely got up, and is suitable for a prize or a present."

Oldham Chronicle.

The Bible Remembrancer:

A Hand-book to the Old & New Testaments.

PRICES:	s.	d.
Tinted Covers	1	0
Cloth Boards	1	6
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges	2	6

WITH STEEL FRONTISPIECE.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS:

AN ANALYSIS OF THE WHOLE BIBLE, by which any Event can be readily referred to:

A SCRIPTURE ATLAS of 12 Coloured Maps
ALPHABETICAL INDEX TO THE PSALMS
SCRIPTURE NUMERATION
KEY TO THE PROMISES
THE PROPHETS, IN CHRONOLOGICAL ORDER
IMPROVED READINGS OF SCRIPTURE WORDS AND PHRASES REMARKABLE SCRIPTURE CHARACTERS DIFFICULT TEXTS EXPLAINED
PRAYERS RECORDED IN SCRIPTURE
And a large amount of VALUABLE BIBLICAL INFORMATION.

"We do not know a more useful handbook for Bible readers and Bible students. It seems to embody nearly everything necessary in such a book."—Christian Commonwealth.

"Full of instructive matter from beginning to end; well arranged; and most suitable for those who desire either to understand for themselves, or to help others to understand, the Holy Book."

Irish Congregational Magazine.

The Bible Interpreter.

An Illustrated Dictionary of the Holy Scriptures.

WITH STEEL FRONTISPIECE.

	s.	d.
Tinted Covers	1	0
Cloth Boards	1	6
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges	2	6

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS:

An Explanation of Eighteen Hundred Scripture Words and Phrases:

PRAYERS RECORDED IN SCRIPTURE
A TABLE OF THE REIGNS OF THE KINGS OF JUDAH AND ISRAEL
A TABLE OF THE ORDER AND DATES OF THE BOOKS OF THE BIBLE
MIRACLES RECORDED IN SCRIPTURE
A TABLE OF SCRIPTURAL PROPER NAMES
A LIST OF PARABLES RECORDED IN THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS

"A compact and handy manual of reference, which will be found useful by all students of the Bible. It is especially designed to meet the requirements of Sabbath-school teachers, and others who are unable to procure the larger and more expensive works of this class. The pages are interspersed with numerous engravings illustrating the text, as well as views of places famous in Biblical history."

Literary World.

A CAPITAL GIFT-BOOK.

THE

Herald of Mercy

ANNUAL VOLUME.

Attractively Bound in Illustrated Boards, and Containing

FIFTY-TWO ENGRAVINGS.

1/-

The Sword and the Trowel says:

"Most excellent. Well written, well drawn. One Shilling."

THE HERALD OF MERCY ANNUAL VOLUME. | ONE SHILLING.

The Baptist Messenger says:

"It has always been a favourite with us. Its sound Gospel teachings, apt illustrations, and beautiful pictures, are bright and charming."

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the Kingdom.

MISSION WORK IN SOUTH ITALY.

On a spur of the Lower Apennines, between Pagani and Nocera, not far from Salerno, and rising above two towns and some villages, stands Villa Pantaleone—a house once the summer residence of a Papal archbishop. It has still the chapel where mass was wont to be celebrated. After Italy became a united nation, a law was passed abolishing religious corporations, and such property passed into the hands of the Government, who gave in return pensions to monks and priests. When the law was brought into operation, the Pope excommunicated all who dared to purchase Church property from the Government, and pronounced a malediction upon it.

A gentleman who bought the Villa for business purposes was not able to clear his debt, so he was turned out with a loss to him of about £2000. Put up again for sale, the property was bought by Signor Tuccillo, a convert from Romanism, and a most earnest student of the Scriptures. He and his English wife are most desirous to make the place a centre of evangelical mission work. Few could believe what trouble the Signor has passed through from the persecution and persistent opposition he has met with from the priests, and those they have instigated to harass him. He could not get people to work their ground as others did, and the few who did venture were paid double. Notwithstanding great trials and endless worries and difficulties for the last seven years, Signor Tuccillo has at last the joy of seeing Christian work begun by two English ladies. Men, youths, and boys flock to hear the word of God and to sing hymns, which tell of redeeming love such as they never heard before. If Signor Tuccillo could clear off the debt he still owes to the Government, he would be in a better position to do this, and to deal with those about him. £500 would clear him at once, secured for a time on the house and grounds, which are worth more than £4000. The Jesuits wish to get possession of the property to turn it into a miracle-working place, and because it is named St. Pantaleone. He is reported to have been famed for his cures, and the place might be made a great resort for pilgrims, and bring much gain to the priests. They have tried to force Signor Tuccillo to sell, and offered him a very liberal price, but he is resolved to stand firm and to open the chapel by the side of the large hall, that the Gospel may be fully preached and miracles of grace be performed. The former owner was also a Protestant, and when he saw the chapel he removed part of the altar. The people went down and told the priests what he had done; then the answer was, "Leave him alone, he will soon come to ruin, because he has dared to touch the altar." Unhappily he did fail in business, and had to leave. When Signor Tuccillo took possession he told his workmen to demolish the altar but they refused to touch it. The Signor had himself to do the work. On the one hand his ruin has been foretold, and on the other he has been blamed for not opening the place as a shrine. Nothing would so successfully thwart the designs of the priests as the freedom of the place from debt, in order to permanent use for Gospel purposes.

The Signor had devoted the place to work for the Lord. This Home is suitable for all the year round, as it is on the top of a mountain, and yet in this mild climate he has resolved that it shall be either a pension for Christian workers, or a health resort for the worn-out ones. Such an institution might exercise a powerful moral influence amongst the poor ignorant people around. One of the ladies who is helping, writes:—"God is signally blessing us. We are always having something to give thanks for. On Sunday afternoons, and on 'Festa-day,' the large old hall downstairs is literally filled with men and lads who toil all up the mountain, and crowd in just to hear and read God's Word, and sing hymns with us. On Sunday evenings we have Bible-readings in English, and sing Sankey's hymns. The ground up here is planted with young trees, which are yearly increasing in value. It would be terrible waste to cut them before the proper time, and then they will bring in far more money than the Signor needs to borrow. They come to maturity much sooner than in England. There is no end of work to be done either in French or Italian, amongst Protestants as well as Roman Catholics, and amongst Swiss children, who belong to a flax factory down below, between Pagani and Nocera." Perhaps workers might be induced to come here.

Miss Langham, 19, Linton-crescent, Hastings, will be pleased to give any information desired.

"The Seal of Confession."

One of the newest societies of the Ritualists is about to observe the feast of its patron "Saint." The "Society of St. Osmund," by which title it is known to the public, is named after one Osmund, Bishop of Salisbury, who was the author of the Sarum Missal. The method of working adopted by this new Society is one of more than ordinary subtlety. It is to restore in the Church of England what is termed "Sarum Use," under the plea that it is English and anti-Roman. In this way its promoters hope to gain the sympathy and help of moderate High Churchmen, and in order that they may secure their wishes they keep carefully out of the sight of the public the fact that this Sarum Use is just as Romish, and has been as fully sanctioned by the Papacy, as what is termed "Roman Use." Both Sarum and Roman rituals are intended to teach the doctrines of the Real Presence and the Sacrifice of the Mass. At the last anniversary service of the Society of St. Osmund, held in St. Cuthbert's, Philbeach-gardens, the intercession of the saints was publicly asked.

There has been a good deal of discussion lately, in some of the daily papers, about the "seal of the confessional." In the Church of Rome the confessor, as is well known, is absolutely forbidden to reveal anything told to him in confession, no matter what the consequences may be. The Ritualists also teach that the "seal of confession" must be respected by the confessor, but at the same time they make things easy for the confessor, when questioned as to anything he may have heard in the confessional. On this point, Ritualistic priests are largely guided by the "Manual for Confessors," edited by the late Dr. Pusey, which unblushingly recommends what ordinary Christians would term lying and perjury, in order that the confessor may thus protect himself and his penitent from the consequences of that being made known in public which has been related in the confessional. Here, then, is Dr. Pusey's advice to Anglican confessors on the "seal of confession": "No confessor should ever give the slightest suspicion that he is alluding to what he has heard in the tribunal; but he should remember the canonical warning, 'What I know through confession I know less than what I do not know.' Pope Eugenius says that whatever a confessor knows in this way, he knows it 'ut Deus'; while out of confession he is only speaking 'ut homo,' so that 'as man' he can say that he does not know that which he has learned as God's representative. I go further still: 'As man, he may SWEAR with a clear conscience that he knows not, what he knows only as God.'" ("Manual for Confessors," page 402.) The italics are ours. But who, it may be asked, has given the Ritualistic confessor permission to tell lies and swear falsely in this fashion? There is no dispensation for lying and perjury, under any circumstances, to be found in the Word of God. We could respect a man who, when asked about what he heard in confidence, refused to divulge anything, and bravely took the consequences; but when he turns coward, under Dr. Pusey's advice, and protects himself and the so-called "seal of confession" by deliberate and cool-headed perjury, he is fit only for the pity and contempt of all lovers of truth and uprightness.

REV. THOMAS CONNELLAN.

This earnest worker has recently addressed a series of meetings in Dublin and its suburbs. Although no special announcement was made, they were largely attended by persons of all classes and denominations, and the simple, earnest addresses of Mr. Connellan, free from controversial bitterness, were much appreciated by those who heard him. His testimony to his own spiritual conversion was clear and decided. He pointed out how irrational and unscriptural were such doctrines as priestly absolution, purgatory, Papal infallibility, and the discouragement given to the study of Holy Scripture by the Church of Rome.

He stated that his own difficulties had first arisen in connection with the doctrine of transubstantiation. Since his conversion he had spoken to a great number who had either left the Church of Rome, or were hesitating as to their duty in relation to it, and he found that in the great majority of cases their difficulties had arisen in connection with the same unscriptural dogma. He set forth the New Testament doctrine of free salvation through the finished work of Christ, and expressed his thanks to God that he had been enabled to grasp the precious truth. He urged his hearers to a holy and consistent life, that they might thus commend to those around them the religion they professed.

The Gospel which Mr. Connellan preaches is the old evangelical Gospel which is the common heritage of all evangelical Churches, and his words have already been blessed to many. The modesty and appropriateness of his addresses, characterised at the same time by clearness and vigour, makes a favourable impression upon his audience, and we have no doubt that under God's blessing a future of much usefulness is before him. Well would it be for Ireland if its priesthood would follow the example of this brave man, throw off the fetters of mediæval superstition, and embrace the simple Gospel preached by our Lord and his Apostles. On no other foundation can that true spiritual union of classes and parties, north and south, which is the pressing need of our country and time, be realised.

The mission was organised by the Council of the Irish Branch of the Evangelical Alliance, and clergymen of all Protestant denominations cordially co-operated in the meetings.

EUROPEANS IN SOUTH AFRICA.—An Aberdonian in business in South Africa, and a man whose testimony may be accepted as unimpeachable, writes:—No wonder our missionaries make but slow progress in South Africa, seeing the sort of opposition they meet with, and in the most systematic manner. I am thoroughly ashamed and disgusted with my countrymen in their treatment of the natives. They do not in so many words deny that the black is human, and has a soul to be saved or lost, but their actions towards him imply as much. Most of the Britishers treat their horses and dogs far better than they treat their Kaffir servants. There is some talk of the institution of a compulsory labour law, which would practically reduce the natives to the condition of slaves; surely the Home Government will never consent to anything of the kind. I am gathering all the information and facts I can upon the subject; and if I am spared to return I will lay bare such a state of things as no one who has not been an eye-witness to the facts could have dreamed could exist among people, or in a colony, sprung from a nation that claims to be the first in the cause of freedom, civilisation, and Christianity.

"The Queen of Heaven."

THE Queen of Heaven is worshipped by the Romish Church under the name of the "Virgin Mary"; and the way is being paved for the re-introduction of her worship into the Church of England, all over the country.

I have lately been at Salisbury, and find that, during the last twenty years, the West front of the Cathedral has been covered with images, pretending to represent angels, apostles, Romish saints, &c. One or two have old bodies and new heads, but most of them are altogether new.

Over the West door is the accompanying representation of the Virgin and Child. It is said to be a restoration, but is entirely new:—

VIRGIN OVER WEST DOOR, SALISBURY CATHEDRAL.

This is not all. Just outside the Cathedral Close stands the chapel of the Theological College, built only one year ago; it is a plain, ugly building, with only one ornament visible on the outside, and that is a statue of the Virgin and Child!

NEW VIRGIN AT THE CHAPEL OF THE THEOLOGICAL COLLEGE, SALISBURY.

[1120]

It may be said that, as the seal of the Chapter of Salisbury is the Virgin, crowned and enthroned, therefore, there is an excuse for multiplying statues to her honour. This statement amounts to saying that if God has been dishonoured in times past, He ought to be dishonoured now.

It may help to open people's eyes if they will compare the accompanying sketch of the "Mexican Diana" with that of the "seal of the Salisbury chapter," and they will scarcely fail to be struck by the fact that the cross, the crescent moon, and the star, are identical in each.

SEAL OF CHAPTER, SALISBURY.

I would also invite attention to the fact that the "Virgin of Rome" does not in the least resemble the "Virgin of the Bible," while she is the counterpart of the heathen "Queen of Heaven," especially in her patronage of wicked people. (See "Glories of Mary," approved by Cardinal Manning.)

If Satan, through his faithful agents the Jesuits, succeeds in re-establishing the blasphemous worship of the "Queen of Heaven" in England, we may expect the judgments of God to fall on the nation. In the thirty-third verse of the second book of Chronicles we read that "Manasseh built altars for all the host of heaven in the two courts of the house of the Lord...he set the graven image of the idol which he had made in the house of God...and the Lord spake to Manasseh and to his people, but they gave no heed...wherefore the Lord...carried him to Babylon."

MEXICAN DIANA.

May our people take warning, and, looking to God for help, boldly take their stand against everything not sanctioned by the Word. Let us determine to have no compromise with evil, and leave results with Him who has said, "Them that honour Me, I will honour" (1 Sam. ii. 30).

W. P. PARTRIDGE,
Deputy Surgeon-General.

Beckenham.

THE FAITH OF MOSES (Heb. xi.).

Ver. 24.—Faith's refusal: "To be called," &c.
25.—Faith's choice: "Choosing rather."
26.—Faith's estimation: "Reproach for Christ."
26.—Faith's respect to the future: "Reward."
27.—Faith's activity: "He forsook Egypt."
27.—Faith's courage: "Did not fear the King."
28.—Faith's enduring: "Seeing the Unseen."

HERBERT R. FRANCIS.

YOUNG MEN IN KIMBERLEY.

THERE are in Kimberley temptations to which, unfortunately, a good many young Englishmen yield. There are no home comforts here, and as the population consists largely of young men, and married men whose wives and children are in the mother country, the evenings are spent by a very great number in the public-house, the theatre, or the public gardens. Under the circumstances, it is a blessing to find such a man as Rev. James Hughes, the Baptist minister of Kimberley, who throws himself fully into the work of trying to keep the young people from sinful allurements. He visits the young men in their lodgings, calls upon them at their places of business, and speaks kindly to them when he meets them in the streets. More than that, he opens his house every Friday evening to all comers, and invites young people, irrespective of creed, to spend the evening with him and his wife and family. I have been to his house often when the sitting-room, the study, and even the verandah have been crowded with young people; and very many happy conversations we have had about the old country and the loved ones left behind.

Mr. Hughes interests himself in the temporal and spiritual welfare of the people generally, spending much time in seeking employment for young men; in this he generally succeeds, for he is very highly respected. When he has not been able to find at once what is required, I have known him say, "Well, my friend, cheer up; you will succeed ere long. Resist temptation, trust in God, and do the right; and if you want assistance in any way, come to me, and I will see what can be done." By such kind conduct he has saved many from despair and ruin. Scarcely a day passes without four or five persons calling upon him for help, and seldom is anyone allowed to go away without some assistance. Some time ago a poor woman, who had passed the meridian of life, was abandoned by her husband. Mr. Hughes raised the necessary money, and sent her back to her friends in England. He is often made arbitrator in cases of dispute, great confidence being placed in his judgment. He is now interesting himself in trying to establish a coffee palace, where there shall be a large room for a Young Men's Christian Association, and accommodation for innocent recreation, with a library, by which means he hopes to counteract the influence of the hotel and canteen. I am only echoing the feelings of hundreds in Kimberley when I wish him God-speed in this. Mr. Hughes' church is always well filled, being crowded to excess on Sunday evenings. It is a common saying that "Mr. Hughes is a friend to everybody, and everybody seems to be a friend to him." His delight is to be at high pressure for the glory of God and the good of his fellow-creatures. We hope his life will long be spared, for he is, indeed, the right man in the right place.

GODFREY B. WALKER.

Kimberley, South Africa.

"ONWARD AND UPWARD" is a new magazine about to be issued as the organ of the Haddo House Association. It is satisfactory to learn that the scope of this useful Society has become so enlarged as to justify and require this new development. The Association now numbers (including members, associates, and married associates) about 3000. The Countess of Aberdeen, as editor, may be trusted to secure that the matter shall be readable and attractive, as well as instructive, while the religious element, which has always formed an essential feature in the operations of the Association, is now to be well maintained. The list of those from whose pen contributions have been promised already contain some well-known popular names. The magazine (which will be illustrated) is to be published by Messrs. Wyllie & Son, Aberdeen, and Messrs. Macniven & Wallace, Edinburgh at the price of one penny.

"Is not this Dreadful?"

BY REV. W. HASLAM, M.A.

THE Welsh people are something like the Cornish. They get stirred up in their souls in a way that people in other parts of Great Britain do not. At an evangelistic meeting in Wales, I had been preaching to an attentive congregation. After the address, I discovered a Cornish friend, and called upon him to pray. He began forthwith, at first quietly, and then louder, then faster and faster, until his soul was mounted up on stronger wings than ever I had known before. He was lifted up in the spirit of prayer, until he came into an agony for souls. It was like the anguish which says, "Give me souls, or I die!"

"Amens" were resounding all over the place, the Cornishman's voice leading, and the multitude following close upon him. The fire spread, and broke out in a blaze of no ordinary kind. I cannot tell the number of sinners who were bowed down under the Spirit of God upon this occasion.

Before my friend's prayer came to a close, there may have been twenty to forty persons crying out for mercy, and as many, if not more, believers rejoicing and praising God.

There were a number of workers present, so I kept at my end of the building, dealing with anxious souls immediately round me. It was difficult to move about, for people were kneeling in all directions.

The lady who presided at the harmonium was on her knees. Seeing this, I tried to make my way to her; but before I could reach the place, I saw she had gone. I observed her soon afterwards in another part of the hall. A second time I made an effort to get to her, but she was off again. It was clear that she was avoiding me, trying to keep out of my way, and I suspected why.

At last I made towards the door of the building; but she was more nimble in moving amongst the women who were kneeling about than I could be, and so managed to reach the door first, and made her escape. I was sorry to miss this opportunity of speaking to her; but as I could easily call upon her the next morning, I contented myself for the present.

It appeared afterwards, that when she passed out of the door, she met a friend standing in the porch, shivering in the cold, who said to her: "Is not this dreadful?" "Oh! it is dreadful!" she replied; "what can we do?"

The young lady could not get into her own house, for it was locked up, as the household were all at the meeting, and her mother had the key. "Let us run," she said to her friend, "and hear Mr. A—— at St. John's." No sooner said than done. They were willing to flee anywhere to get away from the "dreadful" place. They had nearly two miles to go in the dark night, with muddy lanes and puddles to pass through, but their agitation was such that they went on without noticing these things. They reached their destination at nine o'clock, just as the congregation was coming out of church, and the people were pouring into the school-room for an after-meeting.

They had scarcely come to the door when Mr. A—— met them, and seizing hold of the young lady's arm, he said, "Come here, my child, you do not look happy!" He led her into the room, and straight up to a bench, where he made her kneel down by his side. He prayed for her, and then bid her pray for herself. She let out her voice as she was told in prayer, and did not stop until she found peace with God.

Then she rose up, and made all the haste she could homeward, running and rejoicing. She was so late in getting back that her mother was most anxious, not knowing what had become of her. However, when at last she returned, praising God, her mother's fears speedily vanished.

The next morning I looked up my runaway organist, and instead of finding her, as I expected, in a condition of anxiety, or perhaps contention, I saw she was rejoicing.

She told me how much she was frightened at my meeting, and how she had escaped. "But what do you think?" she added; "I fell into the hands of Mr. A—— himself, and, as you can imagine, I was more frightened than before; but he held me, and made me kneel down and pray. Then I found peace, and I do thank God for his goodness to me."

"And what about your friend?" I inquired.

"Oh, I cannot tell you anything about her, for when she saw that I was caught, she ran away, and I lost sight of her in the dark and in the crowd."

"Let us go and find her," I said, and we at once set out together. We found her at home, and in great distress of mind. I said to the young lady who had so recently been brought to God, "Now begin and deal with your friend, and bring her to Jesus."

"Oh, no," she answered, "I cannot do that, I do not know how."

"I daresay not," I said, "but tell her what you know, and as far as you know. Ask God to teach and use you. You are not required to do more than you are able. Tell her what you know, and trust God to lead you on."

Without more pressing, she began at once to speak to her friend, and then prayed with her. Before very long, and without much help from me, she was enabled to bring her to Jesus, and to rejoice over her first convert.

"Thank God for you both," I said. "How wonderful it is to think, that a little more than twelve hours ago you two were running away from the Lord, and now you are captured by Him, and brought in."

The next evening I had two additional workers who could stand fire, and were not afraid of a little noise; moreover, they were not bewildered, as they had been the night before, with what they thought was mere confusion and excitement.

When people's hearts are stirred they cannot help giving expression to their feelings; particularly so when their souls are at liberty. But if they are not at liberty, then they allow many considerations to stand in their way; they are restrained with ideas of propriety, and cannot forget themselves.

One lady came to me with the old threadbare objection to the noise and "disorder," as she called it; and said "God is not deaf, and there is no need for such an outcry—people may be saved, I should think, without all this demonstration."

"Certainly, madam," I replied, "there may be a still, small voice, as well as a mighty tempest. God may work with one as well as the other. But as long as He does work, we should be glad and rejoice that souls are saved. If your son were converted in a noisy revival would you object to it? Then why not let other people's sons and daughters receive God's blessing in any way it pleases Him to send it?

"You know," I continued, "how excited and noisy people become at a boat-race, or a horse-race, or even at an election. This is not accounted unreasonable; indeed, the affair would be considered very tame without the excitement. But when events which are of infinitely more importance stir the soul, why is it that people are expected to be mute?"

A person once came to tell a lady of influence what noise and excitement there was at a meeting in her neighbourhood. The lady answered quietly, "And is not that far better than the stillness of death?" For myself, I must say the same. I think that too many of us need more liberty of soul, and liberty of utterance also. There is much written in Scripture about shouting, and praising God with great joy, and even with loud voices!

OPEN DOORS IN BELGIUM.

The following is from a letter by Miss A. Clarke, of 7, The Paragon, Ramsgate:—

A GOOD work is going on in some Roman Catholic villages in Belgium. It is about thirty years since the first Protestant went to settle in the village of I——; he was so persecuted that he was forced soon to leave, reduced almost to starvation. He had, however, left a New Testament with a former schoolfellow, who was living in the place. He returned again after some years, and found, to his joy, that his friend F—— had, by God's Word, been led into the light. They then applied for a pastor to visit them, and one was sent every month. Gradually the neighbours came to listen, and soon a little church was formed. These meetings sometimes lasted till past midnight, and the little community met together by themselves in the interval between the pastor's visits. F—— underwent the most cruel persecutions from his wife and her parents, but he met this unkindness with the utmost forbearance. There was a plot to kill him, but God interposed. The parents were suddenly stricken with a fever, the wife went to nurse them, and all three died in a few days.

A few years later this F—— inherited a small sum of money, and determined to build a little church, and a small house for himself. Nothing vexes him more than to be praised for what he has done. He answers, "I did not do it for you nor for myself, but for God." We had the pleasure of worshipping in this little building. It was quite full, about seventy or eighty working people being present.

Souls are constantly being added to the church by F——'s bright example and zeal. During his dinner-hour he reads the Bible to his fellow workmen, who are chiefly Roman Catholics. He is full of trust and praise. Someone was pitying him that he could not go to a fête. He replied that he had a fête all day, in communion with his Saviour. As he thus spoke, while going up and down a little railroad with trucks of sand, it was clear that in every path of life God may be glorified. His step-father was a confirmed drunkard, and the little church received him somewhat coldly, when he began to attend, but for years he has entirely given up drink, and his holy walk is a living witness to God's grace.

Another village shares with this one the labours of an earnest young evangelist. There, too, is the same devotion and zeal. The congregation is a few years older, and numbers two hundred Christian Protestants. They subject all who join their church to a very strict examination of life and doctrine. Most of the men have been notorious drunkards. Drink is a fearful temptation to the Belgians, as it is sold in every third or fourth house in their villages.

Last June their little church was burnt down. One of them said he was sure that God had sent the fire, for the church was next door to a public-house, which was a great source of inconvenience. They have borrowed a room, but it only holds ninety, and at a service we attended it was packed. They felt that they ought in faith to begin to build a new church, though they had not all the means required, and it is nearly completed—a simple little building, capable of holding about four hundred. The congregation have contributed £36, all that they could possibly spare. The whole cost is £160. They are in urgent need of £70, and have £100 to make up altogether.

Except for this one difficulty they do not seek for outside help. They lend their kitchens for Sunday-schools, prayer-meetings, &c., and collect among themselves several pounds for their annual Christmas tree. Hundreds of Roman Catholics are attracted by this novelty. Their prejudices and foolish superstitions against Protestantism are removed. The opportunity is always made use of to preach to them the Gospel, with the invariable result that inquirers after the truth are found. A small shopkeeper, who is hard at work all the week, from five or six in the morning till eleven or twelve at night, goes long distances on Sunday to teach twice in the schools, and then visits the sick: most of the people who come to her shop are spoken to about their souls. The love these dear people show strangers for the Lord's sake is very touching. M. d'Aubigné, son of the noted Christian author, is labouring in a neighbouring village.

There are two societies seeking to evangelise Belgium: the Société Evangélique Belge, the secretary of which is Mr. Kennedy Anet, Pasteur, 123, Chaussée d'Ixelles, Brussels; and the Eglise Evangélique Synodale, under Pasteur E. Rochedieu, 1, Place du Musée, Brussels. The people themselves, as soon as they receive the truth, begin working, so that our pastor is able to serve several villages. At Dinant, a place of 6000 inhabitants, there is no pastor. At a visitors' Bible-reading, nine assembled, and asked for further instruction; the next evening, after their work, about thirty attended. The following night there were more than forty present, several standing outside the door for want of room. The Société Evangélique has promised to send them a pastor occasionally. There is no difficulty in finding earnest, devoted men willing to work for a very small salary. The nation is beginning to see the errors of Romanism, and, as they throw off the yoke, they lapse into infidelity, unless they are provided with that which really satisfies them.

Mr. Varley in South Australia.

HAVING recently returned from a three months' visit to South Australia, some particulars of the work may be interesting to your readers. The bulk of the time was spent in Adelaide and its beautiful suburbs. The situation of the city is remarkable, lying six miles inland from the port and bay, and upon a large and extended plain. The city is four-square, and from the heights of the Mount Lofty ranges looks very picturesque. Its towers, public buildings, churches, and wide streets filled with noble banks and business houses everywhere, surrounded by a wide belt of "park lands," is a sight pleasant to behold.

The streets and roadways are amongst the best in the whole of the Australian Colonies, a peculiarly hard kind of road metal making the surfaces almost perfect in smoothness and very enduring. The Mount Lofty ranges run mainly north and south, and form a background of varying heights which are simply wonderful. Between the city and the hills a number of the suburbs are found, which for verdure, fruitfulness, and beauty of situation could hardly be surpassed.

The orange groves, the lemon, almond, fig, and lonquartz trees abound, while almost every variety of English fruits grows with remarkable rapidity and prodigious quantity. The vines are simply extraordinary, and the flowers not unlike an earthly paradise. This being the spring season the scenes are little less than enchanting. The drives for scores of miles, the bright cool air, the brilliant sunshine, the gradual ascents in various directions for nearly 2000 feet, and which skirt the sides of the magnificent mountain ranges, make the situation and scenery unsurpassed.

The railway gradually climbs the heights by taking a circuitous route of about twenty-five miles. The views therefrom are glorious, and hundreds of beautiful homes nestling in the hills with their fruitful gardens, fashioned terraces, English grasses and luxuriant flowers, present a panorama of surpassing freshness and beauty. To look down upon the city as the train gradually, and of its own weight, descends, and as in almost endless circuits you come upon fresh peeps of the wide valley below, the scene is simply glorious. The whole plain is a picture of verdure and spring brightness. At night thousands of lights illumine large parts of the intervening space. The port and bay beyond shine as a sea of glass, as the brilliant sunshine rests upon the blue waters that lie in the distance. Lord Hopetoun, the governor of Victoria, might well say "that he had seen nothing more beautiful than the city of Adelaide."

But I must desist from description, and tell of work done for our Lord. He it is whom we would exalt.

The bulk of the meetings were held in connection with the Y.M.C.A., which in Adelaide not only possesses a noble suite of buildings, but is a vigorous and live institution. The secretary, Mr. John Vigo, is a young man of enthusiastic devotion, and, therefore, a great centre of attraction to large numbers of young men who frequent the institution. Possessed of a fine voice, genial manner, and out and out for Christ, he has been successful in gathering together some hundreds of energetic, intelligent associates and members.

Briefly stated, it may be said that the meetings and work as a whole were really successful. Despite much wet and stormy weather the attendances were large, and some of the meetings very crowded. The lectures to men only by many hundreds will never be forgotten. A definite and marked increase of spiritual life amongst believers may be mentioned as a chief result; next to this, the arousing in large numbers of an interest in spiritual things, and the confession by many that Christ had been received, and that the passing "from death unto life" had taken place. Quite a number of backsliders have been restored, as also a goodly number of young people brought to Christ.

The Bible readings have been well attended, and a deep regard for the study of the Scriptures induced. The truth of the second coming of Christ became exceedingly attractive, as, day after day, the study of prophetic Scripture engaged our attention. The all-day conference on this great theme, held on the 1st inst., proved to be a memorable season. Striking cases of conversion, or rather regeneration, took place, and in every place deep and, we trust,

LASTING WORK WAS DONE.

It has been a great joy to come into contact with many brought to Christ when I was in this city in 1878.

The members of the Y.M.C.A. speak of special blessing received, numbers of the young men being filled with the joy and strength of the Lord. The truth in Col. ii. 6—8 has been strongly enforced: "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in Him: rooted and built up in Him, and established in the faith, abounding therein with thanksgiving." The truth of the indwelling Christ has proved to be a new revelation, or rather, something beyond the former knowledge of some who have long been believers in Jesus. This "strengthening with might by by his Spirit in the inner man" is proving a wonderful blessing. Alas! how little we possess of his mighty working, as compared with that we may know.

Visiting the suburbs, one came in contact with thousands of the people, and had the great joy of preaching Christ to them, and of seeing many who were already partakers of his grace. Adelaide appears to be in advance of either Sydney or Melbourne, spiritually and morally considered. The ministers, as a whole, are men of God, whom it is a joy to know, and a pleasure to work with.

I paid a visit to Broken Hill, which is remarkable as an illustration of the great mining wealth which exists in certain parts of these extraordinary colonies. The plain where one shepherd's hut stood five years since is now a town of 18,000 persons, with at least 7000 men engaged in mining operations. Lead and oxide of silver exist in enormous quantities, and the whole locality is said to contain mineral wealth sufficient to employ many thousands for thirty years to come. Here the meetings were well attended, the Sunday gatherings at the theatre being crowded to excess.

One very interesting case may be mentioned. An American was, at the close of one of the meetings, evidently very deeply impressed. "I'm all wrong, all wrong. I don't know what induced me to come here to-night. I came to hear a man who had been represented to me as a religious humbug. Excuse me, I mean no offence. Just think of it! I was up this morning till two o'clock gambling at cards. Yes, playing 'poker' for money. Gambling or racing are to me a complete fascination; but it's over now; from to-night, by the grace of God, it is all done with. I am staying at the Coffee Palace Hotel, where you are; to-morrow morning I will bring you my idols. Thank God I came here to-night! I shall never forget what I have heard." The morning came, and brought

"MY FRIEND AND HIS IDOLS."

They comprised a set of books for betting purposes carefully and accurately kept. "There, sir," said my visitor, "take them, burn them, do anything you like with them." I was interested to note how every horse which has been identified with Colonial racing for the past eight or ten years was entered: its history, pedigree, weights, riders, the jockeys, the winnings, &c. "I have won £900," said my friend, "on the 'Melbourne Cup' the past three years, but from this hour I am a free man." It was indeed a time of remarkable interest. Surely He who opened the heart of Lydia at Philippi was with us at Broken-hill, and that morning, as we prayed together, the sinner and the Saviour met. Will your readers bear before God in prayer this interesting case?

Another instance was that of a commercial traveller. This man literally trembled under conviction of sin. His experience was one of terrible sin, but here also the Lord was found, who gave forgiveness and deliverance. This gentleman a few days afterwards brought his wife, and at almost the last meeting she confessed Christ Jesus as Saviour and Lord.

I am once more in Melbourne. Last Sunday the Theatre Royal was again crowded with hundreds of people, the great majority being men. I shall in all probability continue these services until the summer heat arrives.

Our beloved friend Hudson Taylor has been here. His testimony, and that of the brethren with him, has aroused much interest not only in mission work but in personal spiritual life. He is now in Adelaide, and will return to Melbourne about ten days hence. I believe that more than thirty have already volunteered for the China Inland Mission.

The change has been very beneficial to my chest. The tendency to bronchitis has almost disappeared, and certainly I never felt stronger in my life. Truly our Lord's service is perfect freedom. I contemplate visiting Tasmania and New Zealand before going to Queensland, and returning to England in the spring of the coming year.

May I say, in conclusion, how greatly THE CHRISTIAN is valued by believers in these Colonies. Its faithful adherence to the truth "once for all delivered to the saints"; its splendid world-wide record of missionary and evangelical effort; its capital conference reports, able articles, and kindly maintenance in truth and love of the unity of the Church of Christ—these items, and many others which I could name, have given THE CHRISTIAN a deep and deserved regard amongst the Lord's people throughout these Colonies. I rejoice to bear this testimony.

Melbourne, October 6. HENRY VARLEY.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Dr. Adolph Saphir is at present preaching at the Presbyterian Church. The text on two recent Lord's days was "Behold the Lamb of God!" How thankful we should be if in every professedly evangelical pulpit such a testimony were given to the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the saving power of the Gospel.

SCRIPTURE BIOGRAPHIES.

Abraham: or, The Obedience of Faith.

10th THOUSAND.

WITH NINE ILLUSTRATIONS, SPECIALLY ENGRAVED, AND PRINTED ON TONED PAPER.

BY
Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"A book we should very heartily commend to those who desire to make progress in Christian life and experience; each will find it helpful and suggestive, shedding new light upon many a well-known narrative. The binding is artistic and beautiful."—Christian Progress.

"Mr. MEYER is a meditative writer, keen to observe the spiritual suggestions of Bible narrative: and the contents of the volume before us are such that no one can rise from their perusal without feeling consciously strengthened in God, and inspired afresh for the godly life. Our teachers may learn from this biography how to draw out the spiritual lessons of the Sacred Word. The volume is beautifully illustrated, and so tastefully bound as to be a most acceptable gift-book."
Sunday School Chronicle.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

- ABRAHAM VIEWING THE STARS
- ABRAHAM LEAVING HIS NATIVE COUNTRY
- ABRAHAM OFFERING SACRIFICE
- ABRAHAM AND LOT
- THE MEETING OF ABRAHAM AND MELCHIZEDECK
- THE DISMISSAL OF HAGAR
- ABRAHAM AND ISAAC ASCENDING MOUNT MORIAH
- THE BARGAIN WITH EPHRON
- THE FIRST BURIAL AT MACHPELAH

"Really a very beautiful work, which will be read with delight by many a fireside. After all, this homiletic treatment of Scripture biography, with the object of bringing out the spiritual lessons is amongst the highest and most profitable of studies."
The Freeman.

ABRAHAM AND LOT.

Elijah: and the Secret of his Power.

15th THOUSAND.

WITH NINE ILLUSTRATIONS, SPECIALLY ENGRAVED FOR THIS VOLUME.

BY
Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"The leading object of this volume is to show that Elijah's God is our God; and how a like power may be ours if our dependence is in the living God. It is encouraging and stimulating; yet full of solemn warnings. Some parts are grandly written, and of thrilling interest. We would commend the book to all, especially to Christian workers."—Footsteps of Truth.

"Good, exceedingly good! Mr. MEYER is a great gain to the armies of evangelical truth; for his tone, spirit, and aspirations are all of a fine Gospel sort. This work is nicely got up: and will be a good exchange for half-a-crown."
Sword and Trowel.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

- ELIJAH ON CARMEL
- HIDING BY CHERITH
- THE WIDOW OF ZAREPHATH
- RAISING THE WIDOW'S SON
- UNDER A JUNIPER TREE
- THE CAVE AT HOREB
- THE CALL OF ELISHA
- DENOUNCING AHAB
- TRANSLATION OF ELIJAH

Israel: A Prince with God.

13th THOUSAND.

WITH NINE ILLUSTRATIONS, SPECIALLY ENGRAVED FOR THIS VOLUME.

BY
Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"Mr. MEYER has great descriptive power. He can tell a narrative well. This subject in his hand glows with life, and the scenes and events in the history of his hero pass vividly before you: and are ever being used to force home some important principle."—British Messenger.

"This biography of Jacob might have been written as a memoir: it is so unbroken in interest, vivid in delineation of character, and comprehensive in criticism and comment. With a keen moral insight, and a deep spiritual sympathy, he describes the piety and weakness of the best-beloved of the Patriarchs."—Christian Leader.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

- JACOB BEFORE PHARAOH
- STARTING FOR HARAN
- BETHEL
- RACHEL AT THE WELL
- MEETING OF ESAU AND JACOB
- DINAH
- THE BLOOD-STAINED COAT OF MANY COLOURS
- MEETING OF FATHER AND SON IN GOSHEN
- EPHRAIM AND MANASSEH BLESSED

John, whom Jesus Loved.

7th THOUSAND.

WITH EIGHT ILLUSTRATIONS, ARTISTICALLY PRINTED IN COLOURS.

BY
Rev. J. CULROSS, A.M., D.D.
President of Bristol Baptist College.

	s.	d.
Tinted Covers	2	0
Cloth Boards	2	6
PRESENTATION EDITION:
Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges	3	6

"Preachers abound; but divines are few. The printing press pours forth a mass of matter; but a real book is a phenomenon. We count ourselves happy, for we have met with a divine in Dr. JAMES CULROSS; and in his work entitled 'JOHN, WHOM JESUS LOVED,' we have found a book. Many writers are mere echoes of other men's voices; they imitate the good steward in bringing forth things old, but things new are quite out of their way. One of the excellences of Dr. CULROSS is the freshness of his thought. His mind allows young flowers to break through its soil after their own fashion, and to blossom in their own sweet way. It is altogether without reserve that we commend the work before us. It is not a bottle of milk for babes, but a portion of meat for men. A half-dozen readings will only make it more interesting to those who meditate upon what they read."—The Sword and Trowel.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

- THE SEA OF GALILEE
- SITE OF BETHSAIDA
- JERUSALEM
- THE RIVER JORDAN
- SITE OF CAPERNAUM
- BETHANY
- RUINS OF SAMARIA
- PATMOS

BOOKS USEFUL TO BIBLE STUDENTS.

"The Christian" Bible Readings.

GENESIS.
EXODUS.
LEVITICUS.
NUMBERS.
DEUTERONOMY.

NOTES AND READINGS ON THE FIVE BOOKS OF MOSES.

	s.	d.
Tinted Covers	1	0
Cloth Limp ..	1	6
Presentation Editions:
Cloth Boards	2	0
Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges	2	6

"A series of useful notes to accompany the reading of the Pentateuch. If any of our Bible-class friends should be thinking of studying this part of God's Word, they cannot do better than accept the guidance proffered them in this volume."—The Quiver.

Christ and the Scriptures.

BY
Rev. ADOLPH SAPHIR, D.D.

THE LIVING WORD AND THE WRITTEN WORD OF GOD.

	s.	d.
Tinted Covers	1	0
Cloth	1	6
PRESENTATION EDITIONS:
Cloth Boards	3	0
Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges	3	6

"A book marked by freshness of thought, along with firm adherence to old truths; indicating a mind awake to the great vital questions of the present day, and viewing these with a most intelligent eye from the standpoint of established faith.'
British Messenger.

Many Infallible Proofs.

THE EVIDENCES OF CHRISTIANITY;

OR, THE WRITTEN AND THE LIVING WORD OF GOD.

BY
Rev. A. T. PIERSON, D.D.

	s.	d.
Tinted Covers	2	0
Cloth Boards	2	6
PRESENTATION EDITION:
Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges ..	3	6

"For half-a-crown any one may obtain here all that is best in the way of fact and argument on prophecy and miracles: on the scientific accuracy and the ethical beauty and sublimity of the Bible; and on the Person and teaching of Christ."—Methodist Recorder.

In the Volume of the Book.

OR, THE PLEASURE AND PROFIT OF BIBLE STUDY.

BY
Rev. G. F. PENTECOST.

Being an Introduction to the Study of the Holy Scriptures.

	s.	d.
Tinted Covers	1	6
Cloth Limp ..	2	0
Cloth Boards	2	6

"No one can read this almost unique volume without being stimulated to a more diligent study of THE BOOK. It is not, strictly speaking, evidential; yet the key to valuable Scripture evidence is to be found within. It is not exegetical; but the careful reader will be taught thereby a sound method of exposition. It is not homiletical; although the seed-corn for dozens of addresses are contained in its brief compass. Buy it, we can say to all; read it with your Bible open and a common-place book to hand, ready to catch up and store away the many precious things so lavishly scattered throughout its pages."
Night and Day.

The Gift of God.

A SERIES OF ADDRESSES.

BY THEODORE MONOD.

	s.	d.
Tinted Covers	1	0
Cloth Boards	2	6

"Sweet, spiritual, and simple. If all holiness addresses had been like these, there would have been more holiness and less boast about it. Their precious savour of Christ must have made these words of Mr. MONOD very fragrant to those who heard them; and they will be refreshing to readers now that they are given to the press."
The Sword and Trowel.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the Kingdom.

The ANALYST, comparing the flesh-forming ingredients in Cocoas, gives the following average:—

"Flesh-forming ingredients in Natural Cocoa Nibs ... ... 13·00"
" ditto ditto in thebest Commercial Cocoa, with added Starch and Sugar ... 6·00"
" ditto ditto in Cadbury's Cocoa, the standard English article ... ... 21·00"

"The process of preparation concentrates the nourishing and stimulating principles of the Cocoa-bean.

"Cadbury's Cocoa being Absolutely Pure is therefore the best Cocoa."

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY.

ALL NIGHT WORK OF RESCUE.

THIS work was resumed for the winter on the first week in October, in our Mission Hall, Thrawl-street, Spitalfields. We were in hopes of there being less need for the shelter than in past years; but to our great surprise on the first night over seventy poor homeless, penniless men were glad to avail themselves of the shelter. Since then the numbers have increased to over two hundred nightly, while scores have been turned away for want of accommodation; pleading for admission was such as to touch the hardest heart. The limitations of space left no choice but to send them upon the streets to tramp the rest of the dreary night. A good wash, a sound sleep, and a hearty breakfast dispose these poor fellows to listen to the Gospel message in the morning. At the close such as desire advice and help are invited to state their cases, and they are assisted to the utmost of our ability. Some have been started in a small way of business, others have been sent to their friends, to sea, or secured work, or by their tools being taken out of pawn; the only limitation to this sort of aid is the lack of means. There is no diminution in the numbers of the poor and homeless but rather an increase. Any who are sceptical as to the state of affairs should visit Trawl-street on Saturday night or Sunday morning and see for themselves.

JAS. ATKINSON, Secretary.

28, Enfield-road, Kingsland, London, N.

MINISTERS' MONDAY MEETINGS.

IN The Free Church of Scotland Monthly Dr. Norman Walker gives a very interesting account of his visit to Salt Lake City. He was gratified to find the cause of evangelical religion so prosperous among all the denominations. He adds:—

"The evangelical pastors are working with each other without the slightest professional jealousy. I had this brought before me in a very impressive way at the Monday Ministers' Meeting, which seems quite an institution in the States, and which I found existing here as well as elsewhere. The pastors met in the study of Dr. M'Neice (Presbyterian), and the conference was attended by ten men. The subjects arranged for were "Vacation Experiences" and "Prospects of Work for the Coming Season." On this last topic all spoke out with a delightful frankness, and all seemed to rejoice in the success with which any one had been attended. The devotional exercises were very tender; and Dr. M'Neice, who seems a very earnest and large-hearted man, announced that he was beginning his winter's work with more hope of blessing than he had experienced for years. I should have mentioned that at the outset each minister told what he had preached about on the previous Sunday. I wish we could see among ourselves such Monday meetings. They would certainly be promotive of brotherly feeling, and might help to give an impulse to our work.

MISS ANSTEY, of the Faith Mission Orphanage, Kolar, has made all her interests in that work over to the Methodist Episcopal Church, together with property valued at 30,000 reals, a number of trained helpers, and a numerous Christian community. Miss Anstey felt that the work had grown to such proportions that she would prefer seeing some regular society assume the responsibility of its further devolpment.—Indian Witness.

A NEW LEAGUE.—At an influential meeting held a few days ago at the Westminster Palace Hotel, under the presidency of Canon Holland, the following resolution was passed:—"That the responsibility for the terrible evils revealed by the recent inquiry into the sweating system rests largely with buyers; and that, therefore, it is the duty of buyers to find out under what conditions the articles which they purchase are produced, and to insist that these conditions shall be fair." The result of the meeting will be the formation of a Consumers' League to consist of persons who will "give the employer a chance to succeed in the competitive market without dealing in injustice."

A MISSION IN HOLLOWAY.

THE twenty-fourth anniversary of the Holloway Evangelistic and Open-air Mission was held in Warlter's-road School-room on Tuesday, Nov. 18, Mr. Robert Paton presiding. The report stated that in addition to the regular meetings in the Mission Hall and Warlter's-road School, 165 open-air services had been held. Many free meals were given last winter. Numerous visits were made to the common lodging-houses in the neighbourhood; the poor, sick, and dying were visited and relieved so far as means would permit. Several interesting cases were mentioned of men who had been brought from the lowest depths of sin and shame to rejoice in the knowledge of sins forgiven. The maintenance and extension of this work in Holloway are dependent upon the generosity of Christian friends, and an appeal was made for help to carry on the work. This will be thankfully received by Mr. H. Putterill, superintendent, 28, Wray-crescent, N.

Addresses were delivered by Rev. W. G. Elliott (St. George's, Tufnell-Park), Rev. G. H. Turner (Methodist Free Church), and other friends.

THE MISSIONARY BUREAU.

ABOUT four years ago this bureau was started as an agency to help candidates for missionary service. It aims at finding suitable spheres of labour, and also at providing, under certain conditions, passages for such as are able to support themselves, or for whom support is guaranteed by friends. With the blessing of God the agency has already proved very helpful to many.

During the past twelve months about three thousand letters have been received by the secretary, and more than 250 candidates have, during the same period, sent in applications for service in heathen lands. Spheres have been found this year for more than fifty of these, and it is hoped that on December 16 next three young men will sail for Eastern Bengal, to work among the Aborigines there. Passages have also been taken for two workers to Japan, to sail on December 25. One is now on the way to Mexico, and another leaves shortly for Kashmire.

Among the most pressing wants of the Bureau at the present time are school teachers for Coimbatore and Coonoor and trained nurses, or ladies with medical knowledge, for Burmah, India, and Syria. The secretary will be glad to receive applications for these vacant positions. Letters should be addressed to the Missionary Bureau, 186, Aldersgate-street, London, E.C.

BIBLE STUDY IN AMERICA.—At a meeting held in Chicago, last May, a society was organised, to be known as The Baptist Conference for Bible Study. Rev. Dr. A. J. Gordon was elected President. The Society is to consist of Baptists who believe and advocate the premillennial coming of our Lord. The object of the Society is to discuss and to disseminate information concerning the above-named and other Bible topics. The first conference of the Society was to be held in The Centennial Baptist Church, Brooklyn, on November 18.

BEREHAVEN, IRELAND.—We have received a trustworthy and strong commendation of the work carried on by the rector, Rev. John Halahan, and his curate, Rev. Z. B. Miller, in a wild, mountainous, and poverty-stricken peninsula, beyond Bantry Bay. The four parish churches are so far apart as to necessitate a Sunday drive of twenty miles by each of these faithful and hard-working men, who preach to the people of this remote part of Ireland in the native tongue. As Berehaven, to which Mr. Halahan was ordained curate in 1846, is now a centre of the mackerel fishery, it is needful to enlarge the church, in the spiritual interest of hundreds of English fishermen and buyers, who annually visit the place. The two hundred Protestant residents, chiefly small farmers and fishermen, cannot add to their self-denying contributions, which amount to £500. A quiet but successful work is also being done among the Roman Catholics. For the re-roofing and enlargement of the church at Castletown, Berehaven, £1000 are still required.

The Temperance Cause.

The Bishop of London has written the New Year's tract for the British Temperance League.

Fifty-four American railway companies enforce abstinence while their employés are on duty; others make it essential to promotion.

Some of the Scottish benches of licensing magistrates are being exercised as to the evils that arise in connection with the granting of special licences.

The City of London Total Abstainers' Union has secured a strong list of speakers for the first half of the winter series of meetings in the workhouses.

Mr. J. C. Stevenson, M.P., has announced his intention of again introducing the English Sunday Closing Bill as early as possible in the coming session.

A bazaar to raise £3000 is proposed by the Lancashire Band of Hope Union. One of the chief objects is the promotion of scientific temperance instruction in day schools.

The Sanitary Board of Vienna has declared against the establishment of asylums for inebriates, and in favour of all drunkards being, as public dangers, sentenced to periods of hard labour.

In twelve months the arrests for drunkenness in England and Wales numbered 174,331, assault cases brings the total to 251,224, but only a small percentage of drunken persons are arrested.

Large audiences attend Saturday night temperance gatherings in Barry-road Wesleyan Chapel, Peckham-rye. One penny is charged for admission, but a cup of coffee and a bun are provided for each person present.

A London minister lately returning from a brief tour in the North of England was the only male passenger in a compartment in which were six ladies. All seemed respectable, and each was provided with, and used, a spirit flask.

In the city of Lucknow, in 1889, there were thirty distilleries of native spirits, two hundred and one liquor-shops, twenty-four opium dens, and ninety-two shops for bhang, churras, and other maddening and intoxicating drugs.

It is understood that Lord Provost Muir has declined to grant a license to the forthcoming East End Exhibition in Glasgow, as he considers that it will be in the interests of the exhibition and of the public that the undertaking should be conducted on temperance principles.

The record of temperance work carried on by the Free Church of Scotland Temperance Society for the past year has just been published. It indicates much earnest, aggressive congregational work, and a deepening Christian temperance sentiment in all parts of the Church.

At the annual soirée of the members and friends of the Scottish Temperance League, Bishop Harrison said if some friend would endow free public libraries, and provide something more attractive than the public-houses, there would be some chance of drawing the people away from them.

Miss Ackerman, the World Missionary of the W.C.T.U., has been again in Sydney, and met with a warm reception on her return, after an adventurous tour through Japan, China, Siam, &c., in which countries the temperance cause is reported to find much favour amongst the women. Miss Ackerman will spend some months in New South Wales, further extending and organising the work of the Union in that colony.

Of 2710 ministers, Congregational, over 1600 are known to be abstainers, and 320 of 361 students. The Baptists report 1315 abstaining ministers among 1,865, and 205 among 214 students. In the Primitive Methodist, the Methodist Free Church, and the New Connexion Colleges, all the students are abstainers without exception, and about 90 per cent of the ordained ministers. The Salvation Army has 2129 "officers," all of whom are abstainers, a fact which also applies to the still larger number of soldiers.

The Manchester Wesleyan District Council has unanimously passed a resolution to oppose any attempt to obtain a music, theatrical, or drinking licence for the proposed Palace Theatre of Varieties in Oxford-road. Rev. B. Yates said if they could see the young men who came into Manchester each evening they would feel there was no necessity for any additional temptations in that city. Rev. M. Randles thought they would succeed in their opposition, but whatever the result was they were educating public opinion on the subject.

THE OLD THEATRE, CAMBRIDGE.

THE work of God continues to prosper in this quondam place of amusement situated in Barnwell, a populous and needy district of Cambridge. It is just twelve years ago that the building was transformed and its interior crowned with the motto, in fine bold characters, "Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound." The declaration was then made in faith; every succeeding year has since established its truth.

On Thursday, last week, the twelfth anniversary was held amid the general rejoicings of the large company met together. The theatre in its worldly associations may give momentary happiness to some, but nothing short of change of heart and life could account for all the bright, happy faces present at that meeting. Let anyone who fancies the religion of Christ to be a joyless thing attend such a gathering, and explain, if he can, the gladness possessing those to whom in days gone by the world brought nought but sorrow, or passing mirth at the best.

There are railway-men who have been converted here whose faces "declare the glory of God," before they have a chance to tell with their lips what the Lord has done for their souls. There are others, belonging to various walks in life—men, women, and young folks, a vast company—who will joyfully testify that it was here they found the Lord; and many are passed within the vail who formerly sang the Saviour's praise within these walls.

A strong feature of the work has ever been the goodwill in which it is held by all the evangelical ministers of the town. Episcopal, Congregational, Baptist, and Methodist, stand side by side on the stage to bear testimony to the changes wrought in the entire district since the theatre was opened under its present auspices. From its commencement up to the time of his death the Hon. Ion Keith Falconer took a practical and substantial interest in the work, and the missionary now employed is supported by his widow.

The year's report was full of encouragement. Never were the workers more closely united in the labour of love, and God has honoured this harmony by giving them souls for their hire. The preachers for the two Sunday services throughout the year have been largely supplied by the Evangelisation Society, whose aid in this respect is invaluable. Local ministers and other friends have preached on the remaining Sabbaths. The theatre is open for meetings of various kinds every evening, and proves a heavy tax upon the spare time of the energetic superintendent, Mr. W. K. Vawser; but he has a band of willing helpers to carry out the details, and the recent addition of a missionary, for visitation, &c., supplies another strong link in the chain.

The local ministers, with the vicar of the parish at their head, mustered well at the anniversary, expressing their sympathy and interest, as well as giving sound words of counsel and cheer. Addresses were also given by the following friends from London:—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Rev. W. R. Mowll, M.A., Mr. G. E. Morgan, M.A., and Mr. William Taylor, of the Evangelisation Society. Friends willing to aid the work in any way—and such interest will be greatly valued—will find a ready response from Mr. Vawser, The Cury, Cambridge.

REFUSAL OF LICENCES IN SCOTLAND.—A Parliamentary return has been issued of the number of licences the renewal of which was refused in Scotland during 1889 and the four preceding years. In Edinburgh, Leith, Glasgow, Dundee, and Aberdeen a number of hotel, grocers, and public-house licences have been taken away during that period without any hint of compensation.

[1124]

MISSION WORK IN CHINA.

WRITING from Hankow, China, Mr. W. S. Johnston expresses thanks for the receipt of this paper, and says:—

One has met with much encouragement in seeing the power of the Gospel over individual lives, but not much that indicates a speedy conquest of these myriads of souls. Opposition, strong and determined, is still met with. But there are bright places here and there. Having severed my connection with the C.I.M. in the early part of this year, I have since had the privilege of journeying in Hupeh Province, in the districts surrounding Hankow; there I came into contact with the London Missionary Society and Wesleyan Society's extension work. They seem to go in for the definite evangelisation of districts by constant visitation and establishing chapels where converts have been made. The result is most encouraging; churches established through native agency, but under foreign superintendence, are found for about two hundred miles north of Hankow, within a day's journey of each other. The familiar names of Dr. John, Dr. Gillison (M.D.), Mr. Hill, &c., are met with, and are referred to by the natives in such a way as shows pleasurable recollections of their labours.

The spirit of union manifested at the recent Shanghai Conference by the several denominations represented is a good omen, I trust, for what we may expect in aggressive work during the next decade.

DESTITUTE CHILDREN IN EDINBURGH.—The committee for feeding and clothing destitute children have issued their annual report. The object is to aid the School Board in securing the attendance at school of very poor and neglected children. Every effort is made to ensure that in giving help to these children nothing shall be done to encourage parental neglect. The committee appeal for funds to carry on their work, as help given to the poorest school children in the city is a necessary supplement to the compulsory provisions of the Education Act.

A SERMON FROM THE GERMAN EMPEROR.—The Kreuz Zeitung states that when the recruits for the Guards, stationed in the city, had taken the oath, the Emperor William addressed them, and, after referring to the peaceful outlook abroad, pointed out that an enemy existed within the country who could only be overcome by the principles of Christianity. No one could be a good soldier if he were not also a good Christian. The recruits who had taken the oath of allegiance to him as their earthly master should therefore before all things remain faithful to their heavenly Lord and Saviour.

TYRANNY IN RUSSIA.—A Continental correspondent of The Glasgow Herald writes:—The accounts which come from Finland, from Poland, and now and then from Siberia, are revolting. The Czar appears to have become imbued with a religious fanaticism which sticks at nothing. He is extirpating Protestantism from among the Finns, Catholicism from among the Poles, and Judaism wherever it can be found. He has confiscated all the privileges of the Zemstvoes or provincial councils, abolished trial by jury, and reorganised the universities under codes of rules which leave the severity of military discipline a long way behind. They are in truth rules like those which govern convict establishments. Meanwhile, arbitrary transportation to Siberia and corporal punishment by police orders have been revived on a larger scale than in the days of Nicholas. The birch is plied freely upon offenders of all degrees, and is often used as a means of extracting confessions. Women are no more exempt from it than men. In Poland especially women have been whipped within the last month for endeavouring to emigrate to Brazil. Let us be told the truth about all these things, in order that if they be true the oppressors of the Russian people may no longer do their work in the dark. The Czar is not the first ponderous creature who has tried the experiment of shutting up steam by sitting on the safety valve, and he is not likely to be more exempt than another from the usual consequence of such a proceeding.

BIBLE SOCIETY NOTES.

REV. J. BARTON, vicar of Holy Trinity, Cambridge—who has returned from a year's special embassy for the C.M.S. in Tinnevelly—wrote recently to the President of the Society's Cambridge Auxiliary:—"I love the Bible Society with all my heart, and have the fullest confidence in its working.....What could the native church of Tinnevelly, or of any other of our missions do without the Bible Society? You will be glad to hear that if there is one part of the mission field more than another where the Bible is read, and loved, and honoured, it is Tinnevelly. It is their one book of devotion—their (almost) sole theological library. And, though ignorant of many things, they are certainly not ignorant of their Bible. That God may prosper the Society's efforts more and more is my sincere prayer."

A young Italian has recently been associated with the Society's colportage work in his native land under interesting circumstances. Some years ago he was, like too many others, ignorant of evangelical truth. But one day he met one of the colporteurs who sold him a New Testament—the first copy he ever had. He found his way soon to a church where the Gospel was faithfully preached. Later he became a soldier and joined the Waldensian Church; and now he is under training for service among the men from one of whom he had the message of peace. It is a pleasant beginning to what will, it is hoped, prove a career of signal usefulness.

Here is an interesting glimpse of the Society's work among the glens of Norway. The extract is from a journal of one of the colporteurs:—"As there are few Christian-minded people in this district, and they live far apart, it was best to see first of all the clergyman, who received me with the greatest heartiness, and expressed his gladness that I was about to visit his people. Christian life had been declining here, and there was no great demand for Bibles Some of the Christian-minded people, however, highly prized the Word of God, and strongly desired that each of their children in the house, from the youngest to the oldest, should have a copy. It was touching to see many weep for gladness because they also had been visited by the Society's messenger, although they dwelt so high up among the hills. During my stay I sold some forty-three copies."

Mr. Mackintosh, the Society's agent in Tangier, sends an incident which, with several others known to him, leads him to hope "that in some cases the tender blade may be trying to push through the hard dry soil of Morocco." The Society's colporteur had got a copy of the Gospel into the hands of a man from an inaccessible town in the mountains. That man gave it to a Sharîf from the same town. Afterwards he was told that this Sharîf has so much reverence for the book that, before opening it to read, he has been in the habit of first sweeping and cleaning his house, and arranging neatly everything in it. It is only after this reverent preparation that he begins to read the Word of God. Mr. Mackintosh concludes: "Let us pray that the quickening Spirit of God may manifestly work so that no other power may be able to hinder."

NATAL EVANGELISTIC MISSION.—Mrs. Howe (late Mrs. Osborn) desires to make known that the title of her work in Africa should be, "The South-east African Evangelistic Mission," instead of "Natal Evangelistic Mission," its sphere being wider than was originally intended.

CHICAGO.—There has been maintained in this city, since 1857, a prayer-meeting where Christians have met for song and prayer and testimony every week-day at noon. This meeting grew out of the revival of 1857-58, and was first established by the pastors of the city in the Metropolitan Hall. In 1858 it was removed to a room where the Y.M.C.A. was organised at that time. The noon meeting was then placed in their charge, and has been held under their guidance for thirty-three years. For some time, however, the general policy of the Association has been to concentrate their efforts to the definite work of "young men for young men," and have gradually discontinued their mixed meetings. Many Christian friends regret the loss of a daily union meeting, and it has been decided to re-organise the noon meeting on the old lines, and Lincoln Hall has been chosen for its new quarters. Christians everywhere are asked to unite in prayer for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit on Chicago.

CAMBRIDGE NOTES.

BY A GRADUATE.

MR. KRISHMAMMA, a converted Brahmin, and Mr. Carlile, the founder of the Church Army, have both spoken recently at Ridley Hall. The latter said the three watchwords of the Church Army were Conversion, Consecration, and Churchmanship. The work among the tramps and roughs he particularly mentioned, and announced the Church Army had a scheme to bring forward for reaching the lapsed masses as soon as General Booth's plan had been fairly laid before the public.

Rev. H. C. G. Moule, in his second University sermon, spoke from the words, "Thou shalt hide them in the secret of thy presence." The preacher said: "There is a Presence that makes at life's centre a stillness, pregnant with positive and active blessing. There is a ful-filling that can counterwork the fulness of the thronging hours, and enable men in the stress of real life to live behind it all for Jesus Christ, while they are all the while alert and attentive for the next call of duty, and the next." Again, later on: "It is a wonderful thing to be permitted to watch a life you have reason to know is hid in the secret of the Presence of the Lord. Some few years ago I met a good man, humble and gentle, a missionary to Eastern Africa...the secret of the Presence was as surely with him then as when he had lain quietly down to sleep in his tent on the lonely field, to be roused only by the sound of the lion's paw, as it rent the earth at the open door."

Dr. C. Harford-Battersby, who has recently returned from the Niger, spoke a few days ago at Ridley on his work, and the openings there afforded for men. He had found the strongest Mohammedans confessing in secret that they knew their religion was not the true. He had seen, too, how medical aid had frequently gained him admission to homes into which otherwise he would have sought in vain to enter.

At a recent meeting of the C. U. Church Society, a paper was read on the "Limits of Ritual." In this, stress was laid that the revival of Ritual was merely intended to revive the solemnity and grandeur of the Church; the writer looked upon Ritual simply as historical, where it was not this it was useless.

Last Friday a most interesting meeting was held in the Alexandra Hall, to give an account of the seaside services. Rev. James Outram gave some very valuable hints on organisation. His well-worked branch contains 750 members. Mr. E. Arrowsmith, in a very lively speech, stated the sort of workers that were needed—whole-hearted men—and the crying need for work among boys and among the often ignorant higher classes. Mr. Hutchinson urged the wants of the Mission, younger men being needed in greater numbers, that the older might devote themselves to the girls. Mr. Heywood appealed for greater support for the magazine (O.B.M.), particularly literary contributions. Mr. Rouse spoke on the blessing to the worker; Mr. De Candole on the room for men of every kind of capability, since not only speakers but workers were wanted. He also urged the influence that University men exercised over boys. Mr. Moule, who took the chair, pressed home the claims of the work, but advised young men for their own sake and the sake of those among whom they worked to confine themselves to the boys.

At a most interesting meeting held last Monday evening, Rev. H. E. Noyes spoke on the Spanish and Portuguese Reform movements. He gave a brief sketch of its rise, and remarked how the desire for the Gospel arose within the Roman Church, owing to the corruption of the clergy, and not in consequence of proselytising from without. The spiritual life of those who have come out from Romish darkness is exceptionally intense, and he, in a visit to these countries, was struck by the great enthusiasm and love displayed by the congregations. Of these, there are now thirty scattered throughout the land.

THE DRIFT CHILDRENS' MISSION, conducted by Mr. C. L. Boyer, which has worked in friendly co-operation with the Ragged School Union, has now become a branch of the work of the Union. It is hoped that the friends already interested will continue their sympathy. Letters to Mr. Boyer may be addressed Exeter Hall, Strand.

Obituary.

MR. FOUNTAIN J. HARTLEY.

THE sudden death is announced of Mr. Fountain J. Hartley, at his residence, Stamford Hill, at the age of seventy-three. Mr. Hartley has for many years been known as one of the hon. secretaries of the Sunday School Union. He has also been an active member of the committee of the Congregational Union of England and Wales.

REV. DR. ADAM.

The death is announced of Rev. Dr. John Adam, one of the leaders of the Free Church of Scotland. It was the result of an accident, sustained about a month ago. Dr. Adam was trying to reach a tramcar in St. Vincent-street, Glasgow, when he was knocked down by a passing lorry. Born at Kirkintilloch, in 1816, he was a probationer at the time of the Disruption, and held charges at Alloa and Aberdeen. About twenty-four years ago he wrote a commentary on the Epistle of St. James. This brought him into prominence, and about the same time he succeeded Rev. Dr. Parker as pastor of the Well Park Free Church, Glasgow. A few years ago he was elected to the office of Home Mission secretary, and, though he then retired from the active work of the ministry, he retained until the last his position as senior pastor of Well Park Church. He was a sagacious man, of great business capacity, and brilliant in debate. In recent controversies he took a prominent part, but was respected by men of all shades of opinion for his genial disposition and Christian courtesy.

MRS. BAYLEY.

On Sunday week, after a few days' illness, one of the most beautiful lives I ever knew came to its earthly end at Les Platanes, Clarens, Canton de Vaud. Mrs. Bayley, aged 81 years on May 24, has lived in Switzerland for between fifty and sixty years, and has been equally the property of the Swiss and English colonies of the place. Mr. Bayley died about ten years ago. Frederika Bremer, visiting the place about twenty-five years ago, said she should always "think of them both as the ministering spirits of Lake Leman, doing good to the souls and bodies of all with whom they were brought in contact."

Hundreds of hearts all over the world will grieve when they hear the news of Mrs. Bayley's removal. Her fund of sympathy was always ready; and her purse was like the widow's cruse. It had but little in it at the best of times, yet was never empty when a "prophet," or a mission, or a tramp was in need. Every mission work had Mrs. Bayley's warm sympathy and, generally, her help; and her last letter to me, dated October 2, speaking of the opium trade, and sending her subscription for the Christian Union for its suppression, says: "If I were a man, I would fight that evil!"

A. R. BUTLER.

MR. W. HAKE.

On Tuesday morning, November 4, my beloved fellow-labourer, W. Hake, joined us at our early breakfast hour, 7 a.m.; in the afternoon he rendered loving service by bearing me and others company to the station, to cheer a visitor. We returned together, held our usual Tuesday afternoon meeting of prayer in my room, in which Brother Hake took fully his part. We had a goodly company at our tea-table of young disciples of Christ, to whom Brother Hake spoke joyfully of "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you." The meeting after tea began with—

> We go with the redeemed to taste
> Of joy supreme that never dies.

All who sang felt the singing heavenly, the deep bass of the dear aged one perfecting the harmony. After prayer, the first Psalm was read; Brother Hake took occasion to draw contrasts with the standing, walking, and sitting of the first verse: "Enoch walked with God—Elijah stood before the Lord—David sat before the Lord."

After he had thus for about an hour been the brightness of the assembly, his speech failed, but with support he walked to his bedroom.

A young brother sat up with him, and had tender words from him; I joined them about four in the morning. Brother Hake grasped my hand and held it, until he could hold it no longer, and breathed out his spirit to the Lord at 7.10 a.m.

His beloved daughter is sustained of God; surely our God is the Father of mercies and God of all comfort. He is wonderful in counsel and excellent in working.

R. C. CHAPMAN.

DR. LIND, ELGIN.

Rev. Dr. Lind, senior pastor of Moss-street, U.P. congregation, died last week at his residence in Elgin. A native of the Buchan district of Aberdeenshire, he entered the ministry rather late in life, and in 1836 was ordained to the pastorate of the Moss-street U.P. Church. Here he has spent the whole of his ministerial life. When in the prime of life the late Doctor was noted all over the North for his pulpit abilities, and was looked up to as a leader in his Church, and as a man of wide influence in the community generally. He took his share in public work, being for many years a member of the Elgin Burgh School Board, where his able business capacities came prominently to the front.

THE CRIMINAL LAW AMENDMENT BILL is, it is believed, now before the Legislative Assembly of Victoria. We have reason to believe, says The Vigilance Record, that through our representations, and through those of Miss Bear, who is on the spot, great improvements have been introduced by the Government into their proposed Bill.

TEMPERANCE SUNDAY AND SUNDAY CLOSING.—DEAR SIR,—Will your readers bear in mind on Temperance Sunday the movement for the closing of public-houses on Sunday in England. We earnestly hope all ministers of religion will give this important subject a prominent place in their temperance sermons; and that they and their hearers will do all they can by prayer and effort to secure the passing of the English Sunday Closing Bill during the coming year.—Yours truly,

ROBERT WHITWORTH,
T. A. STOWELL, M.A.,
EDWARD WHITWELL, } Hon. Secs.

PERSECUTION IN OOROMIAH.—In a letter, dated September last, Pastor Jacob, of Ooromiah, writes:—You will be pleased to hear that another member has been added to our church. He was baptized; and it was at once circulated among his friends that he had become a Christian. There has been great discussion among them as to what is to be done with him. They went together and assaulted him at his house, but he stood up firmly, and answered them that he had accepted the Gospel of Christ. He said, "If you wish to do me harm, go and inform your priests and the Government. If they decide to kill me, let them kill me; I am quite willing to die for the sake of Christ." Many other cruel things have been done to him. His family have taken away all his property, and turned him out of doors. He is about fifty, and is left penniless. Pray for him.

THE CENTRAL VIGILANCE SOCIETY is able to record a largely increased activity in its work during the past few months, not only in the repression of houses of ill-fame, but in the protection and reclamation of the young and fallen. In the former branch of work, several important convictions have lately been obtained, resulting in sentences of imprisonment with hard labour, without the option of fines. This has a very salutary effect upon offenders of this particular class. At the present time, four well-known proprietors of houses where the nefarious and illegal traffic has been carried on, are undergoing terms of imprisonment. This work necessitates a very considerable outlay, and the Society is prevented from launching into the expense of prosecuting several very important cases, owing to the lack of funds. The secretary is Mr. T. F. Myers, 15, York-buildings, Adelphi, W.C.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on the following:—Mission by Mr. William Forbes at Rhyl, to begin on Sunday, Nov. 30.——A mission at Whenchendon, near Aylesbury, Bucks., by Mr. W. Monro Collings.——Gospel mission by Mr. George Back, in Baptist Chapel, Higham, Suffolk.——A meeting for young women at Erith, Dec. 1.——A mission at Uttoxeter, Staffordshire, from Nov. 30 to Dec. 21, by Mr. J. Brown, of the Evangelisation Society.——Services next Sunday and Monday, by Mr. Opie Rodway, at the Primitive Methodist Chapel, Torquay.——A mission at Plymouth, from Dec. 1, by Mr. Charles Cook.——That the Netherlands representative of the Brussels Anti-slavery Conference may be induced to sign the General Act, to which all the other Powers have agreed, and thus bring the deliberations of the Conference to a termination favourable to righteousness and humanity.——PRAISE: For many mercies given during a mission in Pewsey, by Mr. Walter Notman, of the Evangelisation Society.

[1125]

Evangelistic Notes.

Bristol.—The Lord has answered prayer on behalf of services here by Mr. Opie Rodway. There were many anxious ones, for which the workers desire was to praise God.

Chelmsford Y.M.C.A.—Mr. Rowland Sturt, of the Evangelisation Society, 21, Surrey-street, Strand, has held a fourteen days' mission here. At the close a large number testified to the blessing received.

Messrs. Fullerton and Smith.—A series of services was brought to a close on Sunday week in New Court Chapel, Tollington-park. The attendance increased day by day, till at last the capacious chapel proved inadequate, and a large overflow meeting was carried on simultaneously in the schoolroom.

Bedford. — The Roise - street Schoolroom, Bedford, was opened for mission services on November 2, when Mr. P. Cohen commenced an eight days' mission. Many, we believe, were led to give up their sins and turn to Christ. Mr. Cohen is well adapted for evangelistic work.

RICHARD BLACK, Secretary.

Ireland.—A most gracious revival has taken place in connection with Crumlin-road Methodist Church, Belfast. There has been nearly three hundred professed conversions. A fifteen days' Gospel mission has been held at Comber by Mr. Hugh Brandon, of Canada, during which a large number of persons were led to decide for Christ.

Artillery-lane Mission.—An eight days' special mission has been held amongst the poor of Spitalfields, a cup of tea being given them each evening before the meeting. The hall has been crowded, and many have professed conversion. Any help for the work that may be sent will be thankfully received by Mrs. Finn, Talbot-place, Stamford-hill, N.

Lacock, Wiltshire.—The Devizes and Wiltshire Gazette of November 20 says:—Quite a stir is being made in this village by the nightly services being held in the Oddfellows Hall by Mr. James Sprunt, of London. The evangelist, with his tenor voice, leads the singing, and occasionally sings a solo. The addresses are not so much sermons as Bible talks.

Crieff Evangelistic Mission. — A three weeks' special mission has just been conducted here by Mr. John Anderson, which has been attended with much blessing. There is reason to believe that several passed from darkness into light. Some for the first time openly confessed Christ. Besides the evangelistic meetings, Mr. Anderson had Bible-readings, which were generally crowded, and with the very best results. Mr. Anderson has left Crieff to hold a series of evangelistic meetings in Forres.

Devon.—Westleigh and Holcombe have been visited for three weeks by Mr. Chatworthy, from the Evangelisation Society. Meetings were held in the Congregational Chapel here, and at Holcombe Baptist Chapel, and many were drawn night after night to listen to the Word, and souls have been blessed. We are glad of any help in the country, and trust that the funds of the Evangelisation Society will enable them to send men to assist those already engaged in the poorer districts in the work of evangelisation.

Westleigh, Wellington. WILLIAM GREEN.

Shrewsbury.—Meetings in connection with the Church Parochial Mission Society have been conducted in ten churches in this town. Rev. A. R. D'Arcy, assisted by Rev. J. W. Johnson, was the missioners in the parish of St. Alkmond. The ten parish churches have been crowded every evening, and all the services grew in interest and attendance throughout the sixteen days. Men and women who were "far off" have been led to a saving knowledge of Christ, and many Christian have been stirred to more direct work for God.

Bristol.—The evangelical Nonconformist churches of Bristol are arranging for a series of united Gospel services in all parts of the city.

Iron Church, Bexley.—Mr. Peters, the incumbent of this Episcopal Church, is about to enter a larger sphere of service, and there will be a vacancy for a clergyman of earnest evangelical views. The churchwardens are Messrs. S. CANNON and H. J. BRISTOW, Bexley, Kent.

The Book World.

Mr. Meyer's New Book.

JOSEPH: Beloved—Hated—Exalted. By Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A. Another study in Scripture biography from the pen of an esteemed contributor to these pages. In some introductory words, Mr. Meyer says that Joseph's life has had a special charm to him, "not only for its intrinsic beauty, but because of its vivid anticipations of the Life that lights all lives." These words forcibly echo the experience of many students of God's Word, to whom these graphic chapters may be commended with confidence as exhibiting in a high degree those features which have made the author's previous books so instructive and stimulating. The narrative of Joseph shows with peculiar power the workings of Divine providence, often mysterious, but always for the highest good of such as trust in the Living God. The story, with its light and shade, is told and expounded in these pages; and while the incidents are made to stand out for the mind to grasp them, the spiritual interpretation and practical lessons are presented with Mr. Meyer's characteristic freshness and force. The fact that Joseph's career is typical of Christian experience is never lost sight of. In the preface a hope is expressed that the book may prove of special interest and use to the young; but, as the maturest Christian cannot but profit by godly warnings and counsels, we trust this welcome volume will find readers in all ranks and classes, among old as well as young, and will perform a blessed ministry of help and guidance in the life which is life indeed. (Cloth boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth bevelled boards, gilt edges, 3s. 6d. Morgan & Scott.)

Dr. Parker's Latest Volume.

THE PEOPLE'S BIBLE. VOL. xiii. THE BOOK OF PROVERBS. By Rev. Joseph Parker, D.D. 8s. Hodder & Stoughton. Everyone who knows Dr. Parker's style will understand that he has a congenial task in dealing with this book. His special gift is that of enforcing the practice of Christian living. He can look beneath the outward appearance of things, and can discern their inner character. For example, he thus defines cruelty:—"It does not always show itself in the same way, by harsh blows or by cold neglect...He is cruel who does not speak the right word on behalf of the speechless and downtrodden; he is cruel who withholds help when he can give it to deserving causes; he is cruel who selfishly seeks slumber for himself, whilst others are sitting all night long in coldness and pain, and expectation that is full of torment" (page 134). In the following words he exposes what may be described as selfish benevolence:—"Some crafty persons will even give subscriptions to societies which they would gladly sink to the bottom of the sea, because these subscriptions come back to them in the way of patronage. Their donations are investments. Their charities are speculations. They turn benevolence itself into merchandise; they yoke generosity to the chariot of Mammon" (page 140). Such a gift of insight as the Doctor possesses is needed to the right interpretation and practical application of the Proverbs.

The style is, of course, Dr. Parker's own. It is occasionally extravagant, sometimes humorous, but frequently strong and bold, and never wanting in tenderness which expresses the author's sympathy for the oppressed and suffering.

The prayers do not in our judgment add to the value of the book. The two qualities of naturalness and simplicity, which should mark our intercourse with God, seem to be absent from these somewhat elaborate and decidedly beautiful compositions.

We are glad to note the reverent manner in which Dr. Parker refers to the solemn threatenings of Wisdom in chap. i. 24-33. The following words not only express the truth of Scripture, but breathe the spirit in which the subject of the doom of the wicked should be considered. "Whatever may be the doom which awaits the sinner, whatever theory of the future may be adopted by speculative thinkers, no man can peruse the Bible without being made to feel that the penalty which follows sin is appalling, not only beyond expression, but beyond imagination. It may be that Calvary can only be fully explained by perdition. The Son of God did not die to save men simply from the sleep of unconsciousness, or from the insignificant ruin of oblivion. Men should tread the sacred ground which relates to the future of sin with trembling feet. He who makes light of the doom of the sinner makes light of the whole of the priesthood of Jesus Christ" (page 17).

We commend the volume as a valuable addition to the People's Bible, and as calculated to make the Book of Proverbs practically useful as a guide for daily life.

Two Americans.

Messrs. Funk & Wagnalls, the New York publishers, send to us from their Fleet-street branch two volumes of great interest—the avant couriers of a series of twelve biographies of "American Reformers." They are HORACE GREELEY, THE EDITOR; and WENDELL PHILLIPS, THE AGITATOR. Both of these illustrious men were born in 1811, and both have now passed away; but each has left a decided mark on the history and character of their nation. Greeley founded The New York Tribune, and in his palmy days he was a great power for good in the land. He was an ardent politician, and very nearly scaled the topmost rung of the political ladder. Phillips was one of the greatest orators and social reformers of this or any other generation, and his services during the Abolitionist controversy can never be forgotten by the friends of individual and national freedom. The biographies are excellently done, and present vivid pictures of the two noted reformers. The price of each volume is 6s.

Helps to the Study of the Gospels.

WHY FOUR GOSPELS? or, The Gospel for all the World. By D. S. Gregory, D.D. 5s. Funk & Wagnalls. Designed to promote a better understanding of the Gospels, this is a very useful book, although in regard to archæological information it is hardly up to date. The author maintains that Divine wisdom ordained the arrangement that the Evangel should be four-fold, the essential and fundamental Gospel truth being brought by Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John favourably before the minds of the Jew, Roman, Greek, and Christian, each and all commending Jesus of Nazareth to notice as the Saviour of the world. There is nothing original in this explanation, but the lucid statement of the peculiarities of the several Gospels gives the volume a value which students of the Bible will not be slow to perceive.

THE FOURFOLD GOSPEL. The four Gospels consolidated, without alteration, in a continuous narrative, presenting the Life of Christ in the order of all events. By J. Glentworth Butler, D.D. 3s. Funk & Wagnalls. Many have attempted an arrangement of this kind, and as a rule the result does little more than demonstrate the peculiar difficulty of fusing what God has assuredly made distinct. Nevertheless, the reading of such a combination is helpful to careful students.

THE ONE GOSPEL; or, The Combination of the Narratives of the Four Evangelists in One Complete Record. Edited by Arthur T. Pierson, D.D. 3s. 6d. J. Nisbet & Co. Two or three sentences from the preface will describe this book:—"We have sought to blend all the various features of the four narratives into one, without losing whatever is distinctive in each. Paragraph divisions, as determined by the plain sense of each passage, have been adopted, to avoid the loss of connection and continuity." Without taking the place of the Four Gospels, this book may be an aid to their study, a commentary wholly Biblical, whereby the reader may, at one view, see the complete and harmonious testimony of four independent witnesses." The work has evidently been the subject of much thought, and may be unhesitatingly commended as a successful elaboration of the editor's design.

ANNUAL VOLUMES.

The little ones will wish to know all about the dainty volume of THE MOTHER'S FRIEND (1s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton), when they catch sight of Little Redcap and her brown doggie on the front cover There are more pictures inside, and the editor, Mrs. G. S. Reaney, has filled the book with stories, paragraphs, and verse, of a kind to be readily listened to by children, and likely to do good to heart and mind.

GOOD WORDS for 1890, edited by Dr. Donald Macleod, is a volume of special interest. Chief among the contents are Mr. Gladstone's articles on "The Impregnable Rock of Holy Scripture." These give the volume a peculiar value, but there are many other very instructive papers. The serials include "Basil and Annette," by B. L. Farjeon; and "The Last of the Fenwickes," by Helen Shipton. The Sunday readings are some of them well worth reading. There are many excel-ent engravings, those relating to the papers on ravel being in every way admirable. Professor Flint, D.D., LL.D., contributes seven articles on "Socialism." (7s. 6d. Isbister & Co.)

OUR OWN GAZETTE, Vol. VII. This magazine, edited by Mrs. Stephen Menzies, is intended especially for girls and young women, and is distinctly evangelical in tone. The volume contains seven complete stories, articles on domestic economy, history, and travel; and papers such as cannot fail to afford profit as well as pleasure in the reading. The editor's monthly letter has an all-round interest, and her excellent taste and sound judgment are seen in every number. The influence for good of this organ of the Y.W.C.A. cannot be over-estimated. We trust the circulation and good influence will continue to increase. (1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. Partridge & Co.)

THE SUNDAY MAGAZINE for 1890, edited by Rev. Benjamin Waugh, has many very attractive features. The principal serial is "Maitland of Laurieston," by Annie S. Swan. There are Biblical papers by well-known scholars, and some capital articles of a biographical character. These latter include illustrated sketches of Dr. Barnardo, Mr. Leonard K. Shaw, and Dr. Bowman Stephenson. The cause of theatre children is pleaded, and there are other interesting philanthropic items. "The Business of Life," is the title of several articles by Rev. G. J. Hardy, M.A. The doctrinal drift of the pages for the young is sometimes unsatisfactory. Canon Farrar writes on "Saints and Worthies of the Middle Ages," and Rev. H. N. Hutchinson, B.A., on "The Pharaoh of the Oppression." (7s. 6d. Isbister & Co.)

The smaller periodicals of Messrs. Partridge & Co. make handsome volumes. THE MOTHER'S COMPANION well answers to its title, the contents including serial stories and papers upon domestic management. THE BRITISH WORKMAN is as popular as ever; religion, temperance, and thrift being ably advocated. THE FAMILY FRIEND has for twenty years been a favourite magazine for the home circle, and is worthy of extensive circulation. THE FRIENDLY VISITOR, in large type and finely illustrated, is made up of Gospel stories and poems. THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND and THE INFANTS' MAGAZINE, replete with bright pictures and pleasant reading, are not excelled by any competitors of their class. All these volumes are published at 1s. 6d., in picture boards; in cloth, 2s.; cloth, gilt edges, 2s. 6d. Another capital volume is THE BAND OF HOPE REVIEW, a temperance magazine for young people. 1s. and 2s.

MESSRS. J. F. SHAW & CO.

EVENTIDE LIGHT. By Emma Marshall. 5s. These "passages in the life of Dame Margaret Hoby, only child and sole heiress of Sir Arthur Dakyns, Kt., of Hackness, near to Scarborough," are well worth reading. Based on contemporary records, and cleverly brought into relief by the introduction of imaginary scenes and characters, the story gives a good idea of the "wheels within wheels" which were set in motion in the days of "Good Queen Bess," when the hand of an heiress of broad lands was sought in marriage. In matters matrimonial the past times cannot be commended when compared with the present; for, happily, it is no longer the rule for ladies to be treated as mere "chattels," or for the claims of importunate suitors to be pressed by those holding high positions in the State and society. These well-written pages should find many readers.

THE WHITE LADY OF HAZELWOOD: A Tale of the Fourteenth Century. By Emily Sarah Holt. 3s. 6d. A capital story from a favourite pen. Recent historical research has shown that after laying down the sword with which she defended her son's dominion in Brittany, the heroic Countess of Montfort lived and died a prisoner in England. In the royal home of the Duke of Brittany there was no room for her but for whose love and care he would have been a homeless fugitive. Miss Holt invests the last days of the Countess with a pathetic interest, and at the same time draws a charming picture of town and country life in England five hundred years ago. The more sad portions of the story are agreeably relieved by vivacious dialogue and incident, and the result is an entertaining book of the instructive type which we always take a special pleasure in commending.

FLOSS SILVERTHORN; or, the Master's Little Handmaid. By Agnes Giberne. 2s. 6d. Illustrative of juvenile devotion to Christ, these pages are simple and attractive.—TWO LITTLE BOYS; or, I'd Like to Please Him. By Louise Marston. 2s. 6d. The little ones were stolen; but they had learned of "the Good Shepherd," in whom they rejoiced as "the Friend of little children."—BERTIE CLIFTON; or, Paul's Little Schoolfellow. By Evelyn Everett Green. 2s. The sayings and doings of the children who figure in these pages are entertaining while pointing obvious morals.—CURLEY'S CRYSTAL; or, A Light Heart Lives Long, by Emma Marshall; and HAND IN HAND; or, Radiance at Beechdale, by Jennie Chappell (1s. 6d. each), are readable narratives forming the vehicle of good thought as to life and its duties. RIGHT ABOUT FACE; or, Ben the Gordon Boy. By Emily Brodie. 1s. This is, in effect, a testimonial to the good influence of the Gordon Boys' Home. The story will be read with pleasure, and doubtless enlist new sympathy in the interesting memorial institution at Chobham, near Woking.

MESSRS. PARTRIDGE & CO.

Emma Marshall enjoys a high reputation as the writer of wholesome stories. FINE GOLD; OR, RAVENSWOOD COURTENAY (1s. 6d.), well illustrates the truth that all things work together for good to those whose trust is in God.—GERALD'S DILEMMA (1s. 6d.), by Emma Leslie, tells of a young medical practitioner who, having chosen the path of duty, enjoyed the favour of God, and proved a blessing to his neighbours. THE MOTHER'S CHAINS; OR, THE BROKEN LINK (1s.), by Emma Marshall, is a tale of family trials and joys.—JEMMY LAWSON; OR, BEWARE OF CROOKED WAYS (1s.), by E. C. Kenyon, points a moral which young and old would do well to heed.—MARION AND AUGUSTA; OR, LOVE AND SELFISHNESS (1s.), by Emma Leslie, has attractions and important lessons for girls.—CHINE CABIN, by Mrs. M. S. Haycraft, and DULCIE DELIGHT, by Jennie Chappell (1s. each), are filled with homely scenes, described by practised pens. These volumes are all well illustrated. Others, very attractive though smaller, are: BEN'S BOYHOOD, by Mrs. C. E. Bowen; COUSIN BESSIE, by Mrs. C. L. Balfour; and ROSA, OR THE TWO CASTLES, by Eliza Weaver Bradburn (9d. each).

Messrs. Partridge have brought out two good booklets by Laura A. Barter:—JESUS DOES SATISFY (6d. per doz.), and WE WOULD SEE JESUS (1d. each).

BOURNEMOUTH MISSION HYMNS. By Mansell Ramsey. 3d. J. Curwen & Sons. Five original hymns suitable for mission services; tuneful and telling.

BROTHERS AND SISTERS, the quarterly serial issued in connection with the Church of England Central Society for Providing Homes for Waifs and Strays, is a bright and readable paper for the young.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER'S POCKET-BOOK FOR 1891 contains diary, class-register, almanac, and other information, and cannot but prove a very useful vade mecum to Sunday-school teachers. (2s. Sunday School Union.)

HEALED AND SAVED (1d. 2, Adelphi-terrace, W.C.) is a well-told story of the Lucknow Medical Mission, illustrative of the good done in heathen lands by the two-fold Gospel of healing for the body and the soul. It is issued in connection with the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission.

THE THEATRE AS IT IS. By W. Burns Thomson. A booklet that should be widely circulated. The author, a medical missionary, speaks from experience when he describes the evils which follow in the train of theatre-going on the part of young people. (John G. Wheeler, 88, Mildmay-park, N.)

The Religious Tract Society has published some very attractive Christmas and New Year Cards. Those with floral and landscape designs, by Marie von Beckendorff and L. J. and F. Corbyn Price are very chaste. Some in monotint, with designs by Henry Bright, are among those specially worthy of mention.

LIGHT, LOVE, AND TRUTH is the title of a monthly edited by Pastor A. E. Clarke, B.A., of the Coupland-street Baptist Church, Manchester. Such pages are calculated to promote the life and mission of any church. The contents are varied and sound, items of news being combined with Christian doctrine and experimental truth.

"THE CHURCHMAN'S ACROSTIC BIBLE-SEARCHING ALMANAC for 1891." Sold by M. A. E. B., Helmingham Rectory, Stonham, Suffolk. 1d. The object of this neat almanac is to make members of the Established Church interested in the appointed Psalms and Lessons of each Sunday. Good for use in Sunday-schools, classes, and families. Sold in aid of work among factory girls.

Mr. Samuel Van Tassel, of the North African Mission, will be glad to give addresses on his experience in North Arabia wherever he may be invited.—Address, care of Mr. E. H. Glenny, 21, Linton-road, Barking, E.

Papers for Soldiers.—Mr. CECIL SMITH, 37, Old Market-street, Bristol, writes to say that, as he has been accepted by the China Inland Mission for work in that country, he is handing over the secretaryship of the Bristol Soldiers' Christian Association to Mr. Lionel Hunt, Devonshire Cottage, Dean-lane, Bedminster, Bristol. Friends who have received soldiers' names, to whom they send THE CHRISTIAN, &c., would write to Mr. Hunt as soon as possible, giving their names and addresses, and also the names and addresses of the soldiers receiving the papers.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The Nyanza Steamer Fund has reached the sum needed, and is now closed.

A twelve days' general Church mission has been held in Keighley and the neighbourhood.

The thirteenth Protestant Episcopal Congress held its sittings at Philadelphia last week.

Two more City churches are doomed—St. Michael's, Wood-street, and All Hallows', Lombard-street.

Owing to the failure of the Cape of Good Hope Bank, the funds of most of the South African dioceses have been most seriously affected.

A ten days' mission was commenced on Saturday evening in connection with the churches of St. Michael and Holy Innocents', Tonge-cum-Alkrington, Middleton.

Dr. Talbot, vicar of Leeds, declaimed strongly against betting and gambling in a sermon last Sunday evening. He said the law of temperance, the law of labour, and the law of love alike condemned them.

Long-continued ill-health has compelled Rev. Wilson Carlile, the founder and "general" of the Church Army, to relinquish the management of that organisation, and to accept a quiet country living. His loss will be deeply felt.

The Church Missionary Society has tidings from the heart of Africa in a letter from Mr. Deekes, who writes from Usambiro, under date August 18. Mackay's printing-press appears to be still busy, and has thrown off five hundred copies of the reading sheets. General Haig has reached Souakim safely.

Simultaneous missionary addresses and sermons will be delivered next (Advent) Sunday, as arranged by the Islington Association of the Church Missionary Society. A meeting for prayer in connection with this effort is to be held in the New Memorial Hall, Upper-street, Islington, to-morrow (Saturday) evening, at 7.30.

The Bishop of Lincoln has been practically victorious in the suit decided on Friday. The decision is, in fact, a victory for the Ritualists. Each side has to pay its own costs, which are very heavy. The expenses of the Bishop of Lincoln will be between £8000 and £10,000, but they will be defrayed by the English Church Union.

At a Conference of the Church of England Sunday-school Institute, held at Sion College, Victoria Embankment, Rev. Dr. Ridgeway said the subject touched two sections of child-life, the work of the Sunday-school and the work of temperance. The one held in its hands the key to the other. Intemperance had the power of marring Sunday-school work; and the two agencies should be carried on jointly.

The special Sunday evening discourses on "The Chief Essential Doctrines of Man's Personal Salvation" commenced on Trinity Sunday by Rev. J. Henry Skewes, vicar of Holy Trinity, St. Anne-street, have been concluded. Several of them have, by request, been delivered by the rev. gentleman in his parochial mission-hall before the Men's Tuesday Evening Biblical and Religious Society. Deeply interesting conversations followed.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. J. Knowles and Mrs. Knowles, of the London Missionary Society, sail for South India on the 11th proximo.

Rev. Dr. J. B. Paton has so far recovered from his prolonged illness as to be able to resume his duties as Principal of the Congregational Institute, Nottingham.

A series of Pleasant Sunday Afternoons has been carried on for some time in Shodfriars Hall, Boston. The work includes week-evening classes, a savings bank, a library, and book club.

Seven of the eighteen members of the Bournemouth Corporation are Congregationalists. The first mayor, who has just been elected, is a deacon of Richmond-hill Congregational Church, of which Rev. J. Ossian Davies is the pastor.

Mr. Shaw, the London Missionary Society's agent at Urambo, reports the destruction by incendiarism of the mission house, whereby he has lost MS. translations of the Gospels of Mark and Luke. The steamer Good News, wrecked last year on Lake Tanganyika, has been got off and is undergoing repair.

It was suggested at the recent meeting of the London Congregational Board that Nonconformists should unite to provide for London a series of sermons by eminent ministers on subjects of the day. The names of Drs. Dale, Parker, Maclaren, Dods, Cairns, Fairbairn, and Mr. Spurgeon have been mentioned.

Sion Church, in Whitechapel-road, which owes its commencement to Selina, Countess of Huntingdon, is celebrating its centenary this year; and an effort is being made to liquidate the heavy debt on the building erected some years ago. The work is among the poor, and directed with commendable zeal by Rev. Robert Mackay.

Resignation.—Rev. G. Major, Kineton.

Calls Accepted.—Rev. B. W. Jackson, Wendover, to Queen's-road, Dalston.—Rev. J. D. Rayment, Wakefield, to Haslingden.—Rev. J. P. Noble, Dundee, to Lister-hill Chapel, Bradford.—Rev. Alex. Mann, Innerleithen, to Oban.—Mr. Horatio Pack, senior student, Hackney College, to Weybridge Church.—Rev. J. C. Jones, Gorris, Merionethshire, to Pendref, Ruthin.—Rev. Wm. Rose, Theological Hall, Edinburgh, to Inverurie.—Rev. B. Tonkin, Ridgewell, to Yapton, near Littlehampton.—Rev. J. Hywel Parry, Pendref, Llanfyllin, to the Welsh Church at Llansamlet, near Swansea.—From Haverford-west College the following students have lately settled:—Rev. M. Isaac, Llanfaer; J. Jenkins, Pentyrch, Cardiff; R. D. Phillips, Clydach; W. M. Morris, Pisgah (Pem.). Mr. George Hughes has gone to India to join two other students of the College who went last year. Mr. Thomas Hughes, Ffestiniog (January). Mr. J. A. Thomas, of Carmarthen, Nantgwyn, Radnorshire, and Mr. W. Reynolds, Myrtlehoy.

SALVATION ARMY.

"Mother" Webb, the Salvation Army Slum Pioneer, died last week.

The Pictorial World of November 27 will contain a double-page portrait of General Booth, with an illustrated article on his life, work, and proposals.

Mrs. De Noe Walker, of 224, Evering-road, Clapton, E., will gladly meet visitors to London, and conduct them over the East-end Shelters of the Salvation Army.

A clergyman who has been for some years in the ministry in the sister island has lately expressed his surprise that a greater effort is not made in Ireland by the Salvation Army. "Ireland is nearer than India," he said, "and in some districts needs the Gospel as much, if not more."

General Booth spoke upon his social reform scheme to a crowded meeting in the Manchester Free Trade Hall last week. He said the project had been favourably received, because of its simplicity and recognition of admitted facts. The chairman, Mr. Alexander Thompson, said the General had a better chance of success in solving the social problem than any other man in England.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Another weekly paper, The Enterprise, has just been started at Richmond, Indiana, and is edited by Daniel Hill. "It will encourage the good, and condemn evil wherever found."

A new Yearly Meeting in America is to be opened, and is receiving the sanction of those existing, and Indiana's action is approved in setting it off. Committees are being appointed to inaugurate it.

Lisburn Monthly Meeting, Ireland, has appointed a large committee to carry on mission work within its bounds, and last Sunday a week's mission was commenced at Brookfield, to be carried on by the committee.

A scheme is on foot to centralise a large sum of money, amounting, in fact, to over £60,000, invested in the saving funds of the Society of Friends' adult schools, so as by some system of life assurance to benefit those associated therewith.

"A Plea for Orthodoxy," by Dr. Douglas Clark, which appears in The Christian Worker, October 30, is a very able and comprehensive address to students, and might well be reprinted in England. It was delivered to the Bible Department of Earlham College, U.S.A.

Friends of Bradford and Birmingham and other northern towns are endorsing and rendering help to General Booth's great scheme for "the submerged tenth." The adult school and other movements of Friends have all been in the same direction, and their sympathy for anything practical is consequently both natural and certain.

BAPTIST.

The churches of Cardiff and Penarth have contributed during the year ending March 31, for the Baptist Missionary Society, £469 16s. 6d., and for Zenana Missions, £109 7s., making a total of £579 3s. 6d.

Rev. G. F. Owen has commenced a series of Sunday evening services in the Town Hall, Salcombe, for the purpose of attracting non-attendants at places of worship. The first meeting was held on Sunday evening last, and was very promising for the future.

Principal Edwards, of Pontypool College, inaugurated a new "forward movement" last week by convening a meeting for discussing the interests of the Baptist churches, and particularly of the weaker ones, in Monmouthshire. The tutors and the students have resolved to visit the poor, hold cottage meetings, and in other ways help the churches in their work. Of the 110 churches in the county, 29 require financial assistance. A committee was appointed to draw up a scheme.

Rev. John Robertson, of Edinburgh, preached to immense crowds at the Metropolitan Tabernacle on Sunday last. The forenoon discourse was a very impressive one, founded on Rev. i. 5, 6, "Unto Him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood," &c. The illustrative incidents were numerous, homely, and pathetic, and the vast congregation listened attentively for nearly an hour. Mr. Robertson read a brief letter from Mr. Spurgeon, dated Mentone, November 20:—"I have been in great pain day and night all this week. I earnestly entreat your prayers, for I am brought very low." A later telegram, despatched at 2.30 p.m. on Saturday, stated that he was mending, but still asked for prayer. Mr. Robertson prayed very earnestly that recovery of strength and refreshment of spirit might be granted to the beloved pastor. Many in the congregation were visibly affected.

Resignations.—Rev. Edward Parry, Zion Church, Ffestiniog.—Rev. E. S. Neale, James-grove, Peckham.—Rev. J. P. Clark, Lewin-road, Streatham.

Calls Accepted.—Rev. H. R. Passmore to Whitstable-on-Sea.—Rev. J. S. Wyard, of Reading, to Avenue-road, Gosport.—Rev. J. Crook to Lewisham.—Rev. G. H. Jones, Histon, to Sandy, Beds.—Mr. J. John, Rhoshirwaen, Carnarvonshire, to churches at Staylittle, Tanylan, and Dylife, Montgomery.—Rev. G. P. Crase, Largo, to Broughty Ferry.—Rev. B. W. Jackson, Wendover, to Queen's-road, Dalston.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. Dr. Monro Gibson, of St. John's Wood, has been chosen Moderator of the next English Presbyterian Synod.

Next spring the following missionaries are expected home on furlough:—Revs. H. L. Mackenzie, J. C. Gibson, and Dr. Cresland, from Swatow, and Rev. T. Barclay from Formosa.

[1128]

The London correspondent of The Scotsman believes the arrangement under which Rev. John M'Neill is to preach in the evenings in Westminster Chapel in December, and in Exeter Hall in January, is not viewed with much favour by the Regent-square congregation. Mr. M'Neill is to have an assistant, and while the arrangement may work for a time, it is not thought it can be permanent without injuring his own congregation.

METHODIST.

The Duke of Northumberland has presented a site to the Wesleyan Methodists of Alnmouth.

A Forward Movement Association has been organised at Castle Bytham for mission purposes during the winter.

The claims of the London Wesleyan Mission were advocated at a meeting in Kirkgate Chapel, Bradford, last week.

As far as can be ascertained, there are 85,000 enrolled church members in Lancashire belonging to the several sections of Methodism.

In five months' work with the "Jubilee Car" of the United Methodist Free Church upwards of 40,000 books, 558 Bibles, and 4609 Testaments have been sold, making a total of more than 46,000 publications.

Rev. Thomas Waugh has been missioning at Darlington, and there have been 240 inquirers. Gipsy Smith has also been doing similar work at Norwich (St. Peter's), and during ten days there were nearly 200 converts.

It is announced in The Methodist Recorder that Mr. Champness has difficulty in maintaining his present staff of Joyful News agents, and has thought it right to give an instruction to his men that in certain eventualities he will give them all a month's notice.

A circuit scheme, which will involve an outlay of £10,000 in the course of three years, is in progress among the Wesleyans at Haworth and Oakworth. Mr. Isaac Holden, M.P., gives £1000, and Mr. J. Redman £500. The scheme includes new schools at Bridge-house, costing £4000.

The mission services held by Rev. J. Tolfere Parr, at Mayfield-grove, Nottingham, are becoming an increased force. Through his powerful address against betting and gambling, a resolution about to be moved in the Town Council, to hand the race-course over to a racing syndicate, was withdrawn. At an evening service, after a season of silent devotion, about forty men and women came forward for salvation.

Rev. Mark Guy Pearse, of the West London Mission, is expected to leave this country in the third week in January for a tour in Australia and New Zealand. His place in his absence will be filled by Rev. Darlow Sargeant, the newly appointed assistant missioner. Mr. Pearse hopes by his tour to promote the erection of a suitable central hall in the West-end of London, in which the work of the Mission can be carried on. Nothing less than a building to cost £50,000, it is felt, will meet the necessities of the case.

The powerful organisation which has recently been created to advance the interests of Wesleyan Methodism in London is already engaged in the consideration of subjects with which it proposes to deal, and its action is likely to be largely shaped by Dr. Rigg and others. One of the earliest questions which will engage attention is (says the London correspondent of The Manchester Guardian) that of new chapels needed in certain neighbourhoods which are situated on the outskirts of circuits, and in some instances between London Methodist districts. The claims of the Wesleyan Toynbee Settlement in South-east London will also be strongly urged upon the Council.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

The Ulster Female Penitentiary continues to do a good work.

An interesting missionary conference was held last week in the Presbyterian Church, Ballymoney, co. Antrim.

A book society, which is likely to prove very helpful to its members, has been formed by the junior Methodist ministers in Ireland.

NOTES FROM SCOTLAND.

Prayer-meetings are being held in Edinburgh in connection with Dr. Pentecost's mission in India.

Mr. Leng, M.P., promises to introduce a Bill proposing that in the case of wrecked vessels the crew shall be paid as if the voyage had been completed.

Rev. Robert Howie, of Govan, has issued in pamphlet form a "Reply to Letter of Professor Blaikie, D.D., to Rev. Andrew A. Bonar, D.D., on his statement issued on the Dods and Bruce cases."

From a correspondence between a Dumfries minister and Mr. R. T. Reid, M.A., it appears that the Voluntary Presbyterian Churches in Scotland, though less wealthy, contributed considerably more in proportion than the Established Church.

A handsome cottage hospital has been erected at Kirkcaldy by the munificence of Mr. Nairn, floorcloth and linoleum manufacturer. It contains male and female wards, a children's ward, operating room, and matron's and nurses' accommodation, heating chambers, &c. The cost is over £3000, in addition to the site and surrounding grounds.

Rev. John Robertson, M'Crie-Roxburgh Free Church, Edinburgh, who preached in Mr. Spurgeon's Tabernacle on Sunday, has received a call from Gorbals Free Church, Glasgow, and it is the opinion of his friends that he will accept it. In the event of his doing so, the new halls near the church, capable of holding 2000 people, are to be secured for the evening services.

It was intended to have nominated the late Dr. Adam as Moderator for next Free Church Assembly, but the nomination will now be deferred till March. Dr McGregor, of Edinburgh, is nominated Moderator of the Established Church Assembly.

Rev. Mr. Barbour, of Bonskeid, who was appointed along with Professor Calderwood, to conduct during this session the work of Church History in the U.P. College, has been reluctantly compelled to decline the work in consequence of the state of his health.

At a meeting in Glasgow, last week, of the Scottish Navvy Mission Society, Sir James King said there are now more workers on our railway systems than there are seamen in our ships. It is proposed to extend the work of the Scottish branch to the West Highland Railway.

The Congregational Church at Dumfries have resolved to present a call to Rev. Robert Mackintosh, assistant minister at Withington Presbyterian Church, Manchester. This is the third occasion during the past twelve months on which a Congregational Church has addressed a call to a Presbyterian probationer.

The Methodist Forward Movement in Glasgow has taken up Gospel temperance meetings and men's Bible-classes. A deputation of leading men from Partick visited the men's Bible-class at Great Wellington-street recently, and a start has been made at Partick, the conductor of the successful class being invited to give the inaugural address.

About 150 persons attended the annual meeting in Edinburgh, last week, of the Free Church Defence Association. Rev. W. Balfour, Rev. W. Macaskill, and others spoke strongly on the Dods and Bruce cases. Mr. Macaskill declared his opinion that the Free Church is as thoroughly honeycombed with error of every possible kind as any Church has ever been.

The opening lecture for the session of the Edinburgh class of the Protestant Institute of Scotland was delivered by Rev. C. A. Salmond. He took for his subject the question, "Why should we study Romanism?" and proceeded to state that Popery was worthy of study as an exercise for the mind, and from patriotic and Christian motives. The policy of Rome in Britain since 1829 had been steadily directed to the breaking down of the Reformation settlement, and Cardinal Manning was now at the head of a thoroughly equipped organisation, whose aim was Romish supremacy. They should fight against a system so seducive and ruinous.

At the annual meeting of the workers in connection with Willison Free Church, Dundee, it was said that the Sabbath morning fellowship meeting, the Bible-class, the Sabbath-school, the Band of Hope, and other agencies are in a very flourishing condition. A most gratifying report was given of the Overgate Mission, where the work is being carried on with great success. The mission-hall is now found to be inadequate to accommodate all who wished to attend, and arrangements were in progress for larger premises. Since Mr. Inch was inducted to Willison Church, rather less than a year ago, the number of members on the roll has increased between 80 and 90.

Sheriff Dundas, of Berwickshire, has repeatedly of late had occasion to publicly deplore the alarmingly loose morality which prevails amongst young people, and especially farm servants, in the county. In a recent case he said:—"I do not know what steps the clergy are taking to root out this canker, which I fear is spreading. I am equally ignorant of what precautions farmers and their wives are taking in order to secure that the morality of their young workers should be in some small degree superior to that of the average savage. I only know that their efforts hitherto, if they have made any, have resulted in nothing, while the state of matters which prevails, especially among farm workers, is a disgrace to the county."

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Mrs. Abraham, wife of Rev. Thomas Abraham, Methodist minister, Aughnaoloy.—Mrs. Duncan, widow of Rev. John Duncan, Methodist minister, Dublin.—Rev. William Smolden, pastor of the Baptist Church, Lochee.—Mr. John Bradburn, a deacon for forty years at Berwick-street Baptist Church, Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Rev. J. Wolfendale, Tutbury, Staffs.—Mr. Edwin Marriott, of Commercial-street Congregational Church, Northampton.—Alderman Sergeant, of Southport.—Rev. George Burgess, first pastor of East Cliff, Congregational Church, Bournemouth.—Mr. W. S. Chamberlain, Ramsbury, Wilts.—Rev. J. E. Kelly (Congregational), of Angaston, South Australia.—Rev. E. S. Whitbread, rector of the parishes of Strumpsham and Bradeston, Norfolk.—Rev. N. Haly, vicar of Laneast.—Rev. G. G. Gardiner, rector of the parish church, St. Leonard's.—Rev. Benjamin Thomas, of the Congregational Church, Gurnos, Swansea Valley.—Rev. John Clelland, late of Leeds, at Ayr.—Rev. James Lewis, Carmel Baptist Church, Troedyrhiw.—Rev. Samuel Cooke, Redcar, who was in the Wesleyan ministry for fifty-four years.—Mr. James Sword, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Leith.—Rev. James Nelson, East United Presbyterian Church, Haddington.

Protestant Action.—A branch of the Protestant Alliance is being formed for North London. The following lectures have been arranged, tickets for which can be obtained from me upon receipt of stamped addressed envelopes—Nov. 28, Rev. W. L. Holland, on "Romanism," lantern views, Finsbury Park Congregational Chapel, Seven Sisters-road, 7.45 p.m.; Dec. 5, Rev. J. B. Daly, "Inside Romanism," Hornsey Rise Baptist Chapel; Dec. 12, Mr. Mark Knowles, "Ritualism," Finsbury Park Congregational Chapel; Dec. 19, Rev. A. Roger, "Protestantism," Y.M.C.A., Finsbury Park Hall.—Mr. SAMUEL RICHARDSON, 123, Seven Sisters-road, Holloway, N.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas Richardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road. London, E., of whom card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, prepared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope many of our readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," and take its Monthly Notes, which of course are entirely different from these.

SUNDAY, NOV. 30.—Isaiah IV.

AT the end of the previous chapter we have a picture of approaching judgment. And here, in the opening verse, there is one final touch, in which the havoc wrought by war and pestilence is clearly brought out in the utter decimation of the men. But this vision is succeeded by a delineation of coming blessedness and glory.

2. "The branch of the Lord" is the word in Jer. xxiii. 5, Zech. iii. 8, used of the Messiah. It denotes a budding or springing plant. "... shall be for ornament and for glory, and the fruit of the earth for majesty and for beauty." The words "glory and beauty" are used of the priestly robes in Exod. ii. 40.

Delitzsch says: "Christ was the grain of wheat which redeeming love sowed in the earth on Good Friday, which began to break through the ground and grow toward heaven on Easter Sunday, whose golden blade ascended heavenward on Ascension Day, whose myriad-fold ear bent down to the earth on the day of Pentecost, and poured out the grains from which the holy Church not only was born, but still continues to be born."

3. The citizens of the Holy City must, like the high priest, wear as a frontlet, "Holiness to the Lord."

4. Here, surely, is the winnowing-fan and the baptism of fire of which John the Baptist spoke.

5. Of old, the cloud of fire rested only on the Tabernacle; but when sin is put away, it may be looked for on every home. In other words, the presence of God is not confined to places, but to twos and threes gathered together in his name (Matt. xviii. 19).

6. Booth, or pavilion. Nearly the same words are used of the man, who is the Righteous King (xxxii. 2). The Branch of the Lord is the Tabernacle of the Lord: and Christ Himself is the Shadow, the Refuge, and the Covert of the soul. Hide thee there, and be at peace.

MONDAY, DEC. 1.—Isaiah V.

We have here a parable (1-7); a succession of woes, reminding us of those with which our Lord followed his parable of the vineyard in Matt. xxiii. 8-23; the impending judgment and its executioners (24-30).

1-7. The advantages of the Jewish people were immense. Planted in a fruitful land; hedged in from idolatrous nations by the law; delivered from the presence of evil things, which, like stones, might have made them barren; Zion for tower; the temple for winepress; the eager expectation for fruit as stimulus and reward. When God gives special privileges, He demands special fruit. A bare profession, of bloom or leaves, is not enough. He comes, as of old, seeking fruit (Matt. xxi. 19; Luke xiii. 7). And when there is none, the dews of his grace are withheld. The sin of barrenness is punished by the curse of barrenness. This was accomplished in the sack of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans; and receives perpetual illustration in the withdrawal of Gospel privilege from individuals and communities, who have misused it.

8-23. It is a miserable sin to seek one's own aggrandisement, without regard to others, buying up all houses, and shops, and acres, in the near neighbourhood, so as to evict the inmates, and secure a selfish isolation. This was one of the sins of that time, as it is of our own. Drunkenness also was rife, and it was heavily punished (11-17). However high men are, sensual indulgence will drag them down; and will debase even the lowest. All such are smitten with an insatiable thirst (13). What a picture is here of a Bacchanalian procession, with music and flowers descending into the open gates of Hades (Prov. xxvii. 20). Men begin sinning as with a thread, but the thread draws in the rope, and the rope the cable, with which they are bound hand and foot. It is also a desperate sin to confuse the primal distinctions of right and wrong; and to prefer our reasonings to the dictates of God's truth. The bath spoken of (10) contained about 8 gals.; a homer 8 bushels; an ephah was the tenth part of the homer.

24-30. Men who make themselves as stubble in their unfruitfulness should not complain if they are treated as such, and consumed. Men must cast away God's law, before they are cast away by God. The messengers of Divine justice come from far, and they do their work efficiently. When God is against us, we can find no help anywhere in his creation; when God is for us, we are independent of all besides.

TUESDAY, DEC. 2.—Isaiah VI.

One of the sublimest chapters in the Bible. When kings die, and, amid all changes in earthly politics, it is well to look up and see the unchanging Lord. We know that the reference is to our Lord Jesus, because of John xii. 41. He is called Adonai, as supreme Ruler and Judge. The date is fixed as 758 B.C. It was the jubilee year. We are reminded of St. Paul's vision, when he, too, was praying in the temple (Acts xxii. 17, 18). This was the temple profaned by Uzziah, and by heartless ritual. But how great the change, when seen by purged and spiritual eyes. The veils drawn aside, and in the place where the Shekinah had shone between the bending forms of the cherubim, the King of Glory Himself surrounded by the mysterious attendants of his presence-chamber, seraphim, or sons of fire, God's skirts of light fill the Church of God.

THE HEAVENLY WORSHIP AND SERVICE (2-4).—Six wings, two for adoring wonder, two for humility, two for service. Service should be a third of our whole life. One incited the others; their worship was antiphonal; and, if for a moment it flagged, one or other of them would stir it afresh. The song is ever the same through the ages, yet always new (Rev. iv. 8). The threefold repetition refers to the Divine Trinity, and the chief burden of heavenly worship is the supreme holiness of God. Notice how the seraph did not need to be bidden to perform the office for the prophet, but came spontaneously, as if he were possessed by the Spirit of the most Most High, fusing his innermost being into a complete sympathy with the King.

THE HUMAN CONFESSION AND EQUIPMENT (5-7).—There is nothing that will sooner convince us of sin than a glimpse of the holiness of God. If material things, like Sinai of old, tremble, as these door-posts did, how much more should we. Isaiah had uttered six woes in the previous chapter against others, but his seventh and sorest woe is against himself. The leper was to put a covering on his lips, and cry, Unclean (Lev. xiii. 45). Uzziah had been compelled to adopt that cry, for violating the temple. But now the prophet adopts it voluntarily. The altar must here represent the sacrifice of expiation of sin, and coals from it symbolise the communication of forgiveness, and cleansing, and a baptism with the Divine fire of love that prompted the sacrifice for us. Let us not seek for strange fire, but wait till our lips are cleansed, and touched, and kindled, so as to speak God's messages in God's love. Then, forgiven, cleansed, fire-touched, we shall give our service to God without reserve.

THE MESSAGE OF JUDGMENT AND MERCY (9-13).—This awful passage is referred to six times in the N.T. When men deliberately refuse the message of God's love, its perpetual reiteration only hardens and makes them more obtuse (2 Cor. ii. 16). It is not the fault of sunshine, but the nature of clay, which makes it harder in proportion as it is shone upon. Yet there is always a remnant. The life of the terebinth and oak, in winter, may seem to be extinct, but it is only hidden, awaiting the summons of spring. Christ and his own are hidden now (Col. iii. 2); but in the coming spring they shall be manifested.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 3.—Isaiah VII.

For fifteen years Isaiah had given no written prophecy. A new cycle of prophecy therefore begins here, covering the reign of Ahaz, and probably extending to chap. xiv. Ahaz was alarmed at the combination of the kings of Ephraim and Syria, who plotted to overthrow the Davidic succession. The prophet foretold that the confederacy should not endure, and that the very kingdoms which now plotted in their pride should be submerged in the tide of Assyrian invasion.

1-9. We are told that this invasion was prompted by God (2 Kings xv. 37), because of the evil beginning of the reign of Ahaz (2 Chron. xxviii. 5). The invaders were at first successful, but could not succeed against Jerusalem; our enemies cannot go beyond a certain range (Job i. 12). God still breaks in on us when our hearts are troubled, and we are tempted, like Ahaz, to avail ourselves of worldly and dangerous alliances. He bids us take heed lest we fear the wrath of a smoking firebrand and ignore Himself (2 Kings xvi. 7; Jer. ii. 13). Be quiet, troubled heart, God is with us. The heads of hostile powers are only men at the best. Believe, and you shall be established.

10-16. Secret disaffection to God is sometimes marked by an appearance of respect; but nothing is so distasteful as pride under the guise of humility. It has been thought that there is a reference here to a literal child, which was to be born of a woman, then unmarried, at that time. But if this were so, the prediction was only realised in its fulness in our Lord Jesus, to whom it is expressly applied (Matt. i. 21-23). What comfort lies for each of us in the name Emmanuel! If God be for us and with us, who can be against us?

17-25. The king whom Ahaz invoked for his deliverance should become his unmitigated curse (2 Chron. xxviii. 20). The devastation would be so great that the scanty flocks left would find unlimited pasture, and vineyards would be sown with briars. But even then some hills "should be hoed with the hoe" (25), perhaps by those who remained true to God, in extirpating the moral weeds from the soil of their hearts, and these would be left free from briars and thorns, when their reign was almost universal.

THURSDAY, DEC. 4.—Isaiah VIII.

1-4. The prophet's new-born son received a significant name, which told of the near approach of the dreaded Assyrian on the two kings which were threatening Judah. Their fall must take place within a year or two. A child can lisp its parents' names in its second year, and Pekah was assassinated in the fourth year of the reign of Ahaz (2 Kings xv. 30). The invasion of Tiglath-pileser probably took place at that time.

5-10. There seems to have been a section of the political world at Jerusalem which favoured the designs of the invaders from Samaria and Damascus. They may have urged the plan of a triple alliance to resist the growing power of the king of Assyria; their one motto was "A Confederacy." In this they deserted the protection of God, so often compared in Scripture to a river (6; Ps. xlvi. 4). But no alliance should withstand Assyria's inevitable advance; though Jerusalem, as the head of the land, should not be submerged.

11-15. Instead of fearing the rage of man, let God's servants fear to do aught to grieve Him, and He will become their Sanctuary. There is still a spot in Westminster Abbey known by this name, where debtors and criminals used to be secure.

16-22. The Spirit of Christ is speaking through the prophet, therefore these words may be fitly applied to Christ (18; Heb. ii. 13). Amid the darkness of coming troubles, when men shall turn to necromancy and spirit-rapping, only adding to their sorrows, let us keep inflexibly loyal to God and his truth, which is a light shining in a dark place (2 Pet. i. 19).

FRIDAY, DEC. 5.—Isaiah IX.

1-7. These verses should be read in R.V. They are closely related to the close of the previous chapter. There should be no interval or break. Darkness does not last always. And, though the land of Galilee should be the scene of the sore trials already described, better days would shed their light upon its mountains, lakes, and vales. This was literally fulfilled (Matt. iv. 13-16). Take heart, dwellers in darkness; the dawn hastens. Not in the third verse should be rendered to it; see margin. As it was with Midian, so with Assyria—the blow that shattered their power came in a single night. The accoutrements of their warfare, strewing the ground, were as fuel for peasant's fires.

What titles for that wondrous Babe, of whom we have already heard! Wonderful (1 Tim. iii. 15). Counsellor (Micah iv. 9). Mighty God (Jer. xxxii. 18). Father of Eternity. Prince of Peace (John xx. 19). The increase of his government in heart and life is always followed by an increase of peace.

8-21. The previous sins of Israel are enumerated. Their defiance of God (9, 10); their refusal to repent (13); their abounding profanity (16, 17). Their judgments were to be widespread and terrible, and so it befell (2 Kings xv.). The stoutest sinner must bend or break. When God enters into conflict He must be victor. And so long as the sinner's heart remains obdurate it must reel under repeated strokes of the Divine hand.

The opening verses of the next chapter belong to this, and should be read with it (1-4). These are searching questions. And the whole paragraph is in striking contrast to the blessings of the reign of the Blessed Child.

SATURDAY, DEC. 6.—Isaiah X.

The main object of this chapter is the Assyrian invasion. In its pride, Assyria forgot its dependence on God, and it is reminded that at the best it is but a rod, a staff, an axe, or a saw (5, 15), and was only fulfilling the Divine behest. When our proudest foes vaunt themselves against us, let us be calm and happy in the knowledge that they are only able to go as far as God permits and employs them. They serve a useful purpose as purifying agents, and then are laid aside.

9. The confident calculation of the Assyrian was that the tide of victory would not desert him, and that the cities against which he directed his arms would fall as easily into his hands as others had done in the past.

16-19. What a graphic description of the coming destruction. The light of Israel will be as fire for Israel's defence, catching first in the thorns and briars, and so spreading to the noble forest trees; and the Assyrian should be made to give back, as a rank of soldiers when the standard-bearer is suddenly cut down.

20-27. The invasion of Sennacherib was followed by a blessed spiritual revival (2 Chron. xxx. 6). St. Paul says that in these verses Isaiah crieth (Rom. ix. 27). The Spirit of Adoption cried in him. We need not fear our foes; their wrath is for but a little while, and there is an Anointed High Priest, who ever liveth to intercede (27).

28-34. Here is a vivid description of the advance of the Assyrian army along the great northern road. The terror of the successive villages is graphically described. And then the sudden collapse of the invader, his branches lopped off by the axe of the Divine Defender of his people.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, December 7.

THE WALK TO EMMAUS.—LUKE xxiv. 13-27.

GOLDEN TEXT: Verse 26.

FOR a summary of this interesting incident, see Mark xvi. 12, 13.

I. A sorrowful journey (13, 14).—It is the afternoon of the day of our Lord's resurrection. The story of the empty sepulchre and the angels' message has been given to the bereaved disciples (9-12), but they have not received it. "Two of them" (13)—not Apostles (33), but among "the rest" (9). The name of one was Cleopas (18)—not the same name as Cleophas (John xix. 25), who is elsewhere called Alphæus (Luke vi. 15; Acts i. 13). Of Cleopas nothing is known except the name. It is conjectured that the other was Luke himself. "Emmaus"—either their permanent abode, or their abode during the Feast. Its exact locality is uncertain. Josephus speaks of a village called Ommaus, where Titus formed a colony with 800 of his veterans, and which is still called Kolonieh. It is exactly 60 furlongs—about 7½ miles—from Jerusalem. Probably it was to this village the two disciples journeyed. "They talked together" (14).—One subject engrossed their thoughts, and, though they were greatly mistaken concerning it, they could not have chosen a better. Is it the one interesting subject to us? They were sad (17), and no wonder. Jesus had become everything to them; they had left all for Him; all their hopes centred in Him; and, now He has gone from them, their hearts feel a want which no other can fill. Do you know anything of heart sadness for the want of Jesus? There were hundreds of people in Jerusalem at that time who were merry enough without Him. It is better to be sad with these than to be merry with them.

II. A mysterious Stranger (15-17).—There He stood before them, waiting for them by the way. They do not know Him; for grief blinds them, and "their eyes were holden" from identifying Him. Besides which, He "appeared in another form" (Mark xvi. 12). Why not make Himself known, and at once remove their sadness? Because their sadness results not from the fact of his death, but from their own unbelief. Neither his own prediction, nor the angels' message (4-7), has been received. Their first need is, not a vision of the Risen Saviour, but a readiness to believe. The Christian life begins, and is continued, by faith, not by sight (John xx. 29). Perhaps at first they did not welcome the Stranger. In answer to his question, "they stood still, looking sad" (17, R.V.). It is possible for Jesus to be near, yet unrecognised. See Matt. xiv. 26; John xx. 15. Learn that Jesus comes to his people when they are sad, and when their hearts are filled with desires after Him. Near at all times, He is especially near in trouble (Ps. xlvi. 1).

III. A sad story (19-24).—Though the Stranger was unknown, He soon won their confidence, and they poured into his ear the tale of their grief. Have you felt the want of a Friend to tell your trouble to? You could not have a better than Jesus. It was some relief to these two to find one willing to hear their story with such patience and sympathy. What a strange mingling of faith and unbelief their story contained. In spite of the action of the Sanhedrim (20), Jesus was still to them "a prophet," &c. (19). They remembered the might of his deeds and his words. Doing and teaching (Acts i. 1) were combined in Him. His death has not made them doubt this fact concerning Him. "We trusted," &c. (21).—This mistaken expectation misled them. Their hearts were so set upon an earthly deliverance from the Roman yoke that they had no eye to see either death or resurrection. "Him they saw not" (24).—With this despairing word their story closed. The message of the women (22), the vision of angels (23), the verifying of the women's message by the visit of Peter and John (24), were all insufficient to remove their sorrow, if they did not find Him.

IV. An unexampled Teacher (25-27).—"O fools," or foolish men (25, R.V.). This is not a contemptuous term, as in Matt. v. 22. It refers to their dulness, and unreadiness to receive convincing testimony. It was a gentle, yet well-merited rebuke for their unbelief "after" (R.V. margin) "all the prophets had spoken." Jesus touches by this rebuke the real cause for their grief. "Ought not," &c. (26).—The very facts which led them to doubt were necessary to the fulfilment of those Scriptures in which they believed. Suffering was the way into glory (Acts xvii. 3; 1 Peter i. 11). Then He gave them a Bible lesson (27), of which He Himself was the subject. Was it dull and uninteresting? See ver. 32. How swiftly the time passed, and how their hearts thrilled as they heard Him speak of the bruised heel of the Woman's Seed (Gen. iii.); the slain lamb of the Passover (Exod. xii.); the day of atonement (Lev. xvi.); the Psalm of the Cross (xxii.); and Isaiah's vivid picture of the rejected Messiah (liii.)! It was evidently more important that they should know and believe the Scriptures than that they should see the Risen Saviour. Faith must build upon what God has said.

APPLICATION.

The lessons of this narrative may gather round the thought of THE COMPANIONSHIP OF JESUS.

(1) To whom does He come?—Not merely to the chief Apostles, but to humble and obscure disciples. To any who want Him, who are sad without Him, and who make Him the theme of their heart communion.

(2) How should we treat Him?—Tell Him everything. Nothing is hidden from Him; but until the heart is emptied by confession He cannot fill it. The best way to get difficulties and doubts removed is to tell them to Jesus.

(3) What will be the effect of his companionship?—Increased knowledge of and delight in the Word as a revelation of Himself, and as the warrant of our faith. And, especially, recognition of the necessity of the atonement (Golden Text). Why ought He to have suffered? Not only to fulfil Scripture, but to put away sin. Is it anything to us?

MEDICAL MISSION, AGRA.—Dr. Valentine writes:—"We have closed another successful session. All our students have passed their examinations, and several of them have taken high positions and Government scholarships. In April, 1891, we hope to send six more fully-qualified men into the mission field."

PROTESTANT INDIANS IN CANADA.—A very unpleasant episode has been ended by a retractation on the part of the Dominion Government. Some years ago the greater part of a band of Iroquois Indians at Oka, between Ottawa and Montreal, became Protestants. The Roman Catholic Church authorities, who claim more than "seigniorial" rights to the land, did not go so far as to try a wholesale eviction, but did their best to get rid of the Indians. In this they were assisted by the Government, and when a majority of the Protestants refused to quit their farms on the terms offered, the Indian Superintendent (a Cabinet Minister) wrote that when the yearly alms of one hundred dollars and blankets came to be given to the poor Indians of that band the Protestants would get nothing. There was a great outcry at such a religious persecution; and when it came to the point the hon. gentleman's threatening letter was declared to be "a mistake," and the money and blankets were distributed as usual.

HIS POEM ARE WE.

EPH. ii. 10.

'TIS written in the Book which cannot lie,
And will our beacon be,
While lesser lights of earth must droop and die—
"Poem of God are we;"
Made to express the greatness of the plan,
The image sure of Him,
Divinity, that hath a home in man,
However it be dim;
Meant for a witness to the Truth, that yet
Is the long ages' cry,
And our God's being, who in hearts hath set
His own eternity.

Am I "his poem," reflex of the Will,
All-gentle and all-just?
And do my wishes his re-echo still,
In simple child-like trust?
Ah! do my hands, that often fret and strain,
With his grand working rhyme,
And evermore beat out (if even through pain)
The old sweet heavenly chime?
And do my wayward steps delight to be
One, up the Calvary slope,
With his who richly there has wrought for me
A future and a hope?

God is the Poet, and He works in us
To walk his glorious ways,
To think and do his righteousness, and thus
Bring in the better days;
He builds us up high in the eternal scheme,
Word joined to living word,
Each in his place part of the song supreme,
By the pure spirit heard;
Verse matched with verse, in loving order laid
To shape a holy shrine—
Precept on jewelled precept strongly stayed,
Line upon golden line.

Oh, daily would He polish me, and bright
And brighter make my track,
Who gives a lustre in the darkest night,
To lead his wanderers back;
And hourly doth He mould me to the form
Of the fair final grace,
By iron strokes of the distressful storm,
That veils a Father's face;
Till purified by loss, my soul He draws
In a yet tenderer tie,
"His poem" breathing but his perfect laws—
Poem that cannot die.

F. HARALD WILLIAMS.

CROSS-ROW MISSION, DUNDEE.—The first year's work of this Mission was reviewed at a recent social meeting of Christian workers. This Mission is the outcome of the desire of two devoted working men to tell their neighbours of the Saviour. Most blessed results have followed. The president, Thomas Smith, was able to tell of cases of professed conversion, some of which have had very remarkable features.

MEDICAL MISSIONS, BANGALORE.—Miss Thom, late of the C.E.Z.M., Bangalore, writes in Medical Missions at Home and Abroad, respecting work in that place. Amongst the women, she says, a good work has been carried on for the last three or four years in connection with the Church of England Zenana Mission. But for their husbands and brothers nothing is done, whilst their prejudices against Christianity are being strengthened by seeing it in a corrupt form. A large Roman Catholic church overlooks the square of the chief market-place. There are schools for boys and girls; and a fine hospital will soon be finished. More than this, the entire charge of the large Government Hospital in the English civil and military station has been given over to the Roman Catholic Nursing Sisters. All this has caused much anxiety to the missionary bodies in the place. But none of them seem able to organise any medical mission work of their own. The urgent necessity of the moment is a small hospital for the Mohammedan women. These almost wholly decline to go near the Government hospital. The various evangelical missions in the province whose native Christians would benefit so largely by having a Christian refuge in times of sickness might afford each their quota of help. Heathens and Mohammedans alike would see that others beside Romanists care to bring them healing both for body and soul. Any offers of help will gladly be received by Dr. Maxwell, 49, Highbury-park, London, N.

HODDER & STOUGHTON'S LIST.

Now Ready. Crown 8vo., Cloth, 1s. 6d.

LIFE AMONG THE CLOSE BRETHREN.

CONTENTS:—The Close Brethren as seen by an Outsider; A Nearer View; The Saints at L— M— Gardens; A Surprising Discovery; More about Bethesda; Proselytising; Mr. Darby's False Teaching; Disenchantment; The Great Schism of 1880; From Without the Fold.

SECOND EDITION, WITH NEW INDEX. Now Ready. Crown 8vo., cloth, 7s. 6d.

THE MIRACLES OF OUR LORD. Expository and Homiletic. By the Rev. JOHN LAIDLAW, D.D., Professor of Theology, New College, Edinburgh.

"One of the most suggestive books we have seen lately on the study of the Gospels."—Methodist Recorder.

Fifth Thousand. Crown 8vo., cloth, 7s. 6d.

A. M. MACKAY, Pioneer Missionary of the Church Missionary Society to Uganda. By HIS SISTER. With Etched Portrait by H. Manesse.

"Few more engrossing or impressive works have ever been issued."—Record.

"Replete with thrilling incident, and permeated with a deeply spiritual tone."—Christian.

Now Ready. Crown 8vo., cloth, 6s.

THE VISIBLE GOD, and Our Relation to Him in Creation and Redemption.

Crown 8vo., cloth, 3s. 6d.

A GOOD START: A Book for Young Men. By J. THAIN DAVIDSON, D.D., Author of "Talks with Young Men," &c.

"Bright, winning, and stimulating in style, with a good command of illustration and anecdote; his volume will help all young men who read it to make what is so essential—'a good start.'"—Baptist.

Now ready. Fcap. 8vo., cloth, 1s. 6d. With Frontispiece.

ECHOES OF TWO LITTLE VOICES. By G. M. S. With an Introduction by the Rev. J. H. WILSON, D.D., Barclay Church, Edinburgh.

Third Thousand. Crown 8vo., cloth, 6s.

THE LIVING CHRIST AND THE FOUR GOSPELS. By R. W. DALE, LL.D., Birmingham.

"An unanswerable argument for the verity of the Christian religion. We cordially commend the volume as calculated to deepen faith in the living Christ, and strengthen confidence in the historical trustworthiness of the story of His earthly ministry as set forth in the four Gospels."—Christian.

Now ready. Crown 8vo., cloth, 7s. 6d.

A Commentary on St. Paul's

EPISTLES TO EPHESIANS, PHILIPPIANS, COLOSSIANS, AND TO PHILEMON. By Rev. JOSEPH AGAR BEET, Author of Commentaries on Romans, Corinthians, Galatians, &c.

New Volume now Ready. With Illustrations, Illuminated boards, 1s. 6d.; cloth, 2s.

THE MOTHER'S FRIEND. Edited by Mrs. G. S. REANEY. Volume for 1890.

Now Ready. Crown 8vo., cloth, 3s. 6d.

SHARPENED ARROWS AND POLISHED STONES. A Collection of Scripture Texts and Illustrations for the Christian Worker and the Home. By C. W. BIBB. With an Introduction by the Rev. A. J. GORDON, D.D.

Nearly ready. Cloth, 2s. Roan, 3s.

THE MINISTER'S POCKET DIARY, and Clerical Vade Mecum for 1891. Cloth Edition, with pocket and elastic band, 2s. Roan Tuck, with pockets, gilt edges, 3s.

HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster-row.

TEA AND COFFEE
5.30 to 6.30.

—:o:—

ADDRESSES

BY

REV. BURMAN CASSIN, M.A.
(St. George's, Southwark),

REV. PETER THOMPSON
(East Wesleyan Mission),

REV. JAMES THOMAS
(B. and F. Bible Society),

AND

REV. J. R. WOOD
(Upper Holloway).

—:o:—

THE LORD'S SUPPER
At 8.30.

STRANGERS' REST FOR SAILORS,

163, ST. GEORGE'S STREET, RATCLIFF HIGHWAY, E.

THE THIRTEENTH

ANNUAL MEETING

WILL BE HELD (D.V.)

On FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1890.

THE CHAIR WILL BE TAKEN AT 6.30, BY

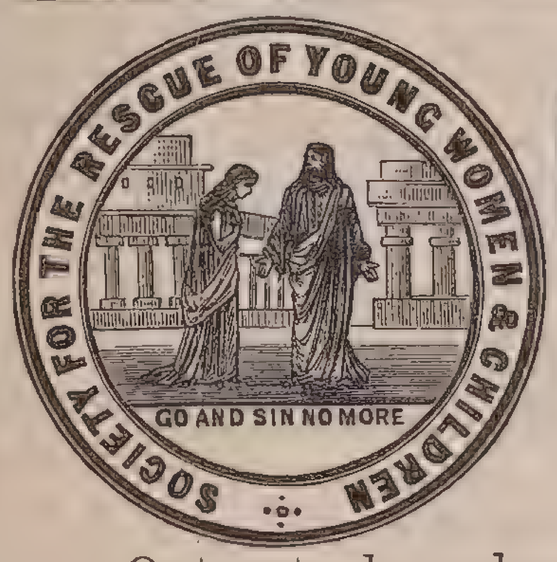
JAMES E. MATHIESON, ESQ.,

Supported, amongst others, by

H. W. MAYNARD, R. C. MORGAN, ROBERT PATON, W. H. SEAGRAM, Esqs., and DR. ZIEMANN.

The "REST" is ten minutes' walk from Shadwell, East London Line; Leman Street. Fenchurch Street Line; and fifteen minutes' walk from Aldgate and Mark Lane Stations, Metropolitan Railway. Cab Fare from Aldgate. One Shilling.

Cards can be had on application to MR. J. THEO. ISAAC, Hon. Secretary, enclosing stamped envelope.



THE

RESCUE SOCIETY

79, FINSBURY PAVEMENT,

LONDON, E.C.

Outcast, homeless, and destitute young women tired of a life of sin seek shelter in our Homes.

SHALL THEY SEEK IN VAIN?

The degraded, desponding, and forsaken, who are often tempted to commit suicide, beg to be helped.

SHALL THEY BE REFUSED?

Broken-hearted mothers beseech our aid to save their wayward, self-willed, and reckless girls on the brink of ruin.

SHALL THEY BE TURNED AWAY?

Friendless girls whose health has failed; country lasses, penniless in the world's richest city, in danger of a fate worse than death; and a great company, whose circumstances are too varied to describe, entreat our help.

SHALL THEY BE LEFT TO THEIR FATE?

Dear Reader, with your help we can and will receive them. 15,000 have already been welcomed to our Homes since 1853.

EIGHT HOMES, a LOCK HOSPITAL, and a MATERNITY HOME are maintained, and the INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT is in full working order.

FUNDS ARE GREATLY NEEDED.

CONTRIBUTIONS may be sent to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT; to the Bankers, Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN & Co., 54, Lombard Street, E.C.; or will be gratefully acknowledged if sent to the Secretary,

79, FINSBURY PAVEMENT,
LONDON, E.C.

C. Stuart Thorpe.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY wil[1] send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 5, Crown-villas, Kennington Oval, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON AVENUE, E.C.—Bible-readings in Nehemiah, conducted by Mr. W. R. Lane, Weds., Dec. 3 and 10, 6.30 p.m. Annual meeting, Banks' Prayer Union, Tues., Dec. 9, 6 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Nov. 30, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. William Endersby. Meetings for prayer, Sun., 7.45 a.m., Weds., Fridays, and Sats., 7.30 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand.—Sun., 3.45 p.m. (men only), Mr. E. J. Kennedy; 7.30 p.m. (public), Sir Robert Phayre. Gospel meetings for men, nightly at 8. Cheerful service, Sat. at 8. French Bible-class, Thurs. at 8. Recitations by Rev. Canon Fleming, Wed., Dec. 3, at 8. Prayer-meeting daily (Sat. ex.) from 1 till 2.

Y.M.C.A., 186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Sat., Nov. 29, 3 p.m., Bible talk, Rev. F. B. Meyer. Sun., Nov. 30, 3.30 p.m., address to young men, Rev. Thomas Evans. Mon., Dec. 1, 8 p.m., Gospel address to young men, Mr. W. H. Seagram. Wed., Dec. 3, 8 p.m., lecture by Rev. J. H. Ridette, on "The Transvaal; its People, Resources, Gold Fields," illustrated with dissolving views. Thurs., Dec. 4, 8.30 p.m., address to young men, Rev. James Pearce.

Y.M.C.A., STAFFORD ROOMS, Tichborne-street, Edgware-road, W.—Fri., Nov. 28, 8.30 p.m., address by Mr. H. W. Maynard. Sun., Nov. 30, 3.15 p.m., address by Mr. W. T. Paton.

Y.W.C.A., PRINCESS HOUSE, 106 and 108, Brompton-road, S.W.—Address by Mrs. Smith, on "The Spiritual Life," Sat., Nov. 29, 3 p.m. Free to all.

WEST LONDON CENTRAL MISSION.—St. James's Hall, Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. M. Guy Pearse; 7 p.m., Rev. H. Price Hughes. Princes Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. W. Darlow Sarjeant. Fri., 12 noon, Rev. M. G. Pearse; 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes. Cleveland Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. T. M. Taylor.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr. Herbert W. Taylor, Suns. during Nov. at 11 and 7; Wed., 8 p.m., Burlington Hall, Savile-row, W.

TALBOT TABERNACLE, Talbot-road, Bayswater, W.—Sun., Nov. 30, Pastor Frank H. White, 11 a.m.; Mr. Warner, of Dublin, 7 p.m. Mon., Dec. 8, 7.30 p.m., Rev. W. Lancelot-Holland, of All Saints', Hatcham, will give an address on "How is Rome Working for the 'Conversion of England?'"

METROPOLITAN MUSIC HALL, Edgware-road, W.—Sun., Nov. 30, 6 30 p.m., Mr. Charles Cook.

PORTMAN-ROOMS, Baker-street, W.—Meetings for the deepening of the spiritual life, to-day, Fri. Nov. 28, Rev. Handley C. G. Moule, 3.30 p.m. Dec. 5, Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe.

CONFERENCE HALL, Clapham-road, S.W.—Jerusalem prayer-meeting every Friday, 4 p.m.

LADIES' PRAYER MEETING.—Wed., Dec. 3, 2.30 p.m., Lecture Hall, 186, Aldersgate-street, Mrs. Tottenham will give address. Fri., Dec. 5, 11.15 a.m., ladies' meeting; 11.15 a.m., young men's parlour.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS' CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 185, Aldersgate-street.—Sat., Nov. 29, meeting for praise and prayer. Short address by Mr. J. E. Jack. Hearty welcome to all business men.

NATIONAL VIGILANCE ASSOCIATION.—Annual meeting, Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, E.C., Wed., Nov. 26, 7.30 p.m., Professor Stuart, M.P., presiding. Among those on the platform will be Dr. Lunn, Mr. Samuel Smith, M.P., Mr. H. J. Wilson, M.P., Mr. Percy W. Bunting, Mr. W. T. Stead, &c.

MERCHANTS' LECTURE, Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, E.C.—Dec. 2, 1 p.m., Rev. Edward White.

BAPTIST FORWARD MOVEMENT, John-street Chapel, Bedford-row.—Sun., Dec. 7, at 11, Rev. F. C. Spurr; 7 p.m., Rev. J. E. Shephard.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay Park, N.—Sun., Nov. 30, 3.30 and 7 p.m., Mr. J. De Burgh Rochfort. Tues., Dec. 2, 7.30 p.m., Gospel Work and Literature in Norway. Address by Pastor Hübert, of Christiania. Wed., Dec. 3, 12 noon, prayer for the suppression of the opium trade.

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL, N.W.—Sun. services at 11 and 7, conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer. Bible-class for Christian workers, Fridays, 8 p.m. (entrance opposite Portland-road Station).

DR. BARNARDO will give an account of the rescue of slum children in Hare Court Congregational Church, Sun., Nov. 30, 3 p.m.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sun. next, Dr. Barnardo, 11 a.m.; Rev. H. Bright, 3 p.m.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun., Nov. 30, at 11 and 6.30, Rev. W. B. Culliss.

HOUSE OF REST, 10, Finchley-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.—Fri., Dec. 5, Rev. W. Fuller Gooch, 3 p.m.; tea, 6 p.m.; Mr. Reader Harris, 7 p.m. Suns., 3.30 p.m., Bible-reading for ladies and gentlemen.

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Thirteenth annual meeting, Fri. Dec. 5. Tea at 5.30; meeting at 6.30; Lord's supper, 8.30. Mr. James E. Mathieson will preside.

SAILORS' WELCOME HOME, 173, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Christian Lifeboat Crew, Tues., Dec. 2, 7 p.m.

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1890.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O.Orders, not by stamps.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank"; this will effectually prevent loss of same.

	£	s.	d.
"H.F." £20.—Kindly say for which Mission.
North Africa Mission—S.N.	10	0	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—S.N. £1; "Of Thine Own," £5	6	0	0
McAll Mission—S.N.	1	0	0
Kerak Misn., &c. (Mr. Lethaby)—G.E. & W.H.N. £1; A.E. 10s	1	10	0
Pastor Rodriguez's Figueras Mission—G.E. & W.H.N. £1; A.G.S. 10s; M.S. £3 3s	4	13	0
Barotse Mission (M. Coillard)—G.E & W.H.N.	1	0	0
Central Africa Mission (Mr. Arnot)—G.E. & W.H.N. £1; A.G.S. £1	2	0	0
Poor Jews, Jerusalem (Mrs. Finn)—G.E. & W.H.N.	1	0	0
Zenana Bible and Medical Mission—T.N., Creetown	0	3	0
Floods in North China (C.I.M.)—Matt. xxv. 42, 5s; W. 4s	0	9	0
Cape General Mission—E.Y.	0	10	0
Pastor Chiniquy's Work—C.B. £2; A.G.S. £1	3	0	0
Jaffa Agent for Oppressed Jews—K.S.T.	1	9	8
Work among the Blind, Pekin (Mr. Murray)—Misses C.	1	0	0
Australian Aborigines (Mr. J. B. Gribble)—A.G.S.	0	10	0
Gibraltar Soldiers' Institute—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Pastor Jacob, Oroomiah—A.G.S.	1	0	0
Pastor Lecoat's Work, Brittany—A.G.S.	1	0	0
Count Campello's Work—A.G.S.	1	0	0
China Inland Mission—A.G.S. 10s; M.F.M. £20	20	10	0
Work in Corsica (Miss Grant Brown)—A.G.S.	0	10	0
Mrs. Ahok's Work, China—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Lepers in India—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Mr. Eoll's Work, Port Said—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Maloga Aboriginal Misn. (Mr. Matthews)—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Scutari Medical Misn. (Dr. Alexandrian)—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Rev. J. O'Connor's Work (R. Catholics, N.Y.)—A.G.S.	0	10	0
Relief for Persecuted Jews, Russia—A.G.S.	0	10	0
Jewish Mission, Ghetto, Rome—A.G.S.	5	0	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—Long Town, 10s; S.E. 5s	0	15	0
General Booth's Scheme—E.Y. £1; E.T. 5s	1	5	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—Long Town, 10s; L.W. 16s 6d; C.M., Exeter, 5s; Chas.E. 10s; Brighton, £2; A.G.S. £1; "Sympathy," £5	10	1	6
Miss Mittendorff's Homes—S.N.	1	0	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—S.N. 10s; A.G.S. £1	1	10	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Homes—S.N. £1; E.C. £1; A.G.S. £1	3	0	0
George Yard Mission—S.N. 10s; Trust, 2s; M.S. £5 5s	5	17	0
Home of Industry—T.N., Creetown, 3s; "Sympathy," £5; M.S. £20	25	3	0
Bridge of Hope (Miss Steer)—H.F. £25; "Sympathy," £5	30	0	0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison Mission, &c.—H.F. £5; A.G.S. 5s	5	5	0
London City Mission—F.G.H. £1; M.F.M. £5	6	0	0
St. Giles Christian Mission—S.E.	0	5	0
Garscube Hall, Glasgow (Mr. D. J. Findlay)—"Of Thine Own"	10	0	0
Mrs. Fisher's Work (Young Women)—"Of Thine Own"	5	0	0
Rev. A. G. Brown's Work—"Of Thine Own"	5	0	0
National Vigilance Assocn.—"Of Thine Own"	10	0	0
Gospel Purity Association—"Of Thine Own"	10	0	0
Sailors' Welcome Home (Miss Child)—"Of Thine Own"	5	0	0
Salvation Army—Burnham	0	2	0
Rev. C. H. Spurgeon's Work—Burnham	0	2	0
Home for Aged Blind, Crouch-hill—Elitta	0	5	0
Convt. Home for Blind, St. Leonard's—Elitta	0	5	0
Mrs. Wilke's Rescue Work, Poplar—Ellitta	0	4	0
West London Wesleyan Mission—J.H.C.	0	5	0
Rev. J. G. Paton Fund—Trust	0	2	0
Haverstock-hill Working Schools—M.S.	5	5	0
Homes for Little Boys, Farningham—M.S.	5	0	0
Miss Robinson's Soldiers' Institute—A.W.	1	0	0
Anti-Sunday Travelling Union—K.M.F.	0	4	6
Rev. Jackson Wray's Tabernacle—B.H. 2s 6d; C.M. 2s 6d	0	5	0
Miss Weston's Work (R. Navy)—B.H. 2s 6d; C.M. 2s 6d	0	5	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—B.H. 2s 6d; C.M. 2s 6d	0	5	0
Evangelistic Mission (Mr. R. Hurditch)—Brighton, £1; M.S. £5	6	0	0
Miss Daniell's Work, Aldershot—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Rev. T. Connellan's Work—A.G.S.	1	0	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Mr. Toye's Orphanage—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Mrs. Smyly's Work, Dublin—A.G.S.	0	5	0
Deaf and Dumb, Dublin—M.S.	1	0	0
Evangelical Alliance—M.S.	2	2	0
Friendless and Fallen—M.S.	10	10	0
Society for Free Distribution of Scriptures—M.S.	1	1	0
Fresh-air Mission—M.S.	2	2	0
Mrs. Ginever's Orphans' Home—M.S.	5	0	0
Gray's Yard Ragged Schools, &c.—M.S.	3	3	0
Ham-yard Soup Kitchen—M.S.	1	1	0
Home Teaching Society for Blind—M.S.	1	0	0
Homes of Hope Regent-square—M.S.	5	0	0
Hitchen Colportage Society—M.S.	0	10	6
Mrs. Harrier's Rescue Work, Brixton—M.S.	1	1	0
Hospital for Women, Soho-square—M.S.	1	1	0
Indigent Blind Visiting Society—M.S.	1	1	0
Cow Cross Mission—M.S.	5	0	0
National Truss Society—M.S.	0	10	6
Camberwell Mission and Ragged Schools (Mr. J. Kirk)—M.S.	2	0	0
Cage-lane Mission—M.S.	2	2	0
Mission Work among Factory Girls (Miss Karr)—M.S.	1	10	0
	£269	0	8

[ADVERTISEMENT.]

London Samaritan Society (Free Meals)—B. 5s; H. 2s; M. 2s 6d C.P. 5s.

Notices.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—G.G.W. R.B. W.D. R.C.C. G.M.S. C.F.D. S.E.M. E.J.P. C.S. M.J.G. L.A.B. J.W. A.E.W. J.B.W. H.M.A. J.C.W. E.P. J.E.L. J.A.B. H.E.S. W.F. D.E.C. F.C. R.C. G.C. L.G.D. A.C.S. J.E.C. R.M.P. W.O.L. W.A. A.J.K. J.B. W.M.C. M.H. F.L. D.O.L. J.T.H. J.P. L.M. C.T. T.A. C.F.H. T.W.B. S.E.B. A.N. K.P.M. K.K. W.F. W.G. J.T. E.W. J.A. W.H.B. E.H.K. I.G. L.W.P. G.P. L.A. S.W. C.H.J. J.G.M. S.W.N. W.H.D. G.C.N. S.D. J.L. M.C.P. A.J.B. J.S. A.E. O.R. H.E.B. S.P. M.J.G. C.McC. H.R.F.B. M.B.G. R.J.Y. M.F.W. M.A.G. A.A. C.M. J.A. F.W.B. J.G.C.I. A.S.H. A.M.P. S.F. H.O.M. A.M.O. J.G.M M.C. C.H.J. J.B.M. J.P.C. M.T. G.L. E.E.E. W.D. E.H.F. E.J.E. G.H. M.H.B. S.T.F. J.W.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—E. Arthur, Sunnyside, Horrabridge, Devonshire; Mrs. Pengelly, district visitor, Camelford, Cornwall; W. Walters, 55, North-hill-street, Toxteth-park, Liverpool; C. Pakeman, Stoneleigh, Frederick-road, Gravelly-hill, Birmingham; A. Treasure, 9, High-street, Cardiff; Miss Provost, 44, Downs-park-road, N.E.; W. Eatherley, Bridge-street, Peterborough; Miss Cooper, 82, South-road, Burdett-road, Mile End, E.; H. Wiseman, 58, Richmond-road, Queen's-road, Dalston, E.; J. Poate, James Villa, Farnborough, Hampshire; H. Randall, c/o Mr. Hall, 75, Malpas-road, Brockley, S.E.; E. Ford, Daisy Cottage, Eastleigh, near Southampton; Miss B. Kennedy, The Murray, Perth, N.B.; R. Waugh, 8, Battery-green, Lowestoft; D. Lane, 1, Holly-terrace, Wanstead Flats, Leytonstone, E.; J. Browne, 17, Oliver-grove, South Norwood, S.E.; P. Grant, Dreghorn, Ayrshire, N.B.; J. Wintle, Pontymoil, near Pontypool; E. Roper, 14, Ormond-row, Smith-street, Chelsea; J. Rimmer, 44, Craven-street, Birkenhead; A. Hartley, 1, Jacob-street, Camp-road, Leeds; J. While, 1, Church-cottages, St. George's-place, Birmingham; Miss E. Wallis, Risehow Cottage, Maryport.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away.]

Appeals.

King's Cross Y.M.C.A.—£100 is required that the financial year may be closed free of debt.—The SECRETARY, 91, Euston-road, N.W.

Mr. G. Fuller, superintendent of the East-end Gospel and Children's Friend Mission, writes, appealing for much-needed help towards the working of the Mission. His address is Brunswick Hall, Branswick-road, Poplar, E.

Rice Lane Congregational Mission, begun in August, 1889, is in the midst of 40,000 of the working classes. There is urgent need for a larger room for the services, Sunday-school, mothers' meetings, &c. To alter the building and provide a suitable preparatory hall, £120 is needed.—Rev. LEWIS WEAVER, 55, Rice-lane, Walton, Liverpool.

Dock Labourers' Mission—A great number of new hands have been taken on to work in the various docks, the poor old men, who before could earn a little, are now thrust out into the cold to starve with their families. Funds are urgently needed with which to feed them.—Messrs. C. COLEMAN and F. JACOBS, 32, Chamber-street, London Docks, E.

St. George's-in-the-East.—Help is just now greatly needed in our work amongst the poor. For the sick we need letters for the "Victoria Park" and "London" hospitals, also for the "Children's Hospital," Shadwell. For the naked, left-off clothing, boots, and shoes; for the hungry and cold, funds to provide food and coals.—Rev. B. SACKETT, pastor, Ebenezer Chapel, 14, Albert-square, E.

FRIENDLESS & FALLEN. 33rd ANNUAL APPEAL FOR DONATIONS

A HOME DINING HALL.

MEALS PROVIDED FOR INMATES OF THE HOMES.

DAILY	940
WEEKLY	6,580
ANNUALLY	343,100

No good thing has failed these 33 years.
Daily wants have been wondrously supplied by Daily Donations.

DESCRIPTION OF CASES ADMITTED TO THE HOMES.

Friendless girls in their teens who need training for service.
Virtuous young women when in danger of falling into the sin of immorality through adverse circumstances.
Fallen young women who desire to forsake their evil ways.

Last year all the HOMES, as follows, together with the OPEN ALL NIGHT REFUGE were sustained by

3,262 CONTRIBUTIONS.

Preventive Homes.

Especially for Friendless Girls in their Teens—	No of Inmates.
The Jubilee Home, 7, Parson's Green, S.W.....	50
For Respectable Young Servants—
195, Hampstead Rd., N.W. ..	18
459, Holloway Road, N.....	30
Total	98

Reformatory Homes.

	No. of Inmates.
200, Euston Road, N.W.....	24
35, Eden Grove, Holloway ..	33
Milton House, Brompton ..	30
The Holt-Yates Memorial Home, 5, Parson's Green..	30
Total	117

Open All Night Refuge.

87, Manchester Street, W.C. (Visited Every Morning to arrange Permanent Help to New Comers	20

Total number of Inmates to Maintain, 235.

ONE THOUSAND DONATIONS OR COLLECTIONS AVERAGING 21s. REQUIRED BY DECEMBER 31.

DURING 1889
51 Ladies and 17 Gentlemen collected £264 11s. 1d., and nearly the whole of this amount was gathered in by

COLLECTING CARDS.

Reader, kindly contribute or collect in aid of this PREVENTIVE AND RESCUE MISSION.

Collecting Cards sent to any address on application.

MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT, Offices of THE CHRISTIAN, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C., will receive donations.

Edward W. Thomas.

OFFICES—CENTRAL HOME, 200, EUSTON-ROAD, N.W.

St. Giles' Christian Mission

WORK AMONG DISCHARGED PRISONERS.

TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN."

The Work among Discharged Prisoners at the Prison Gates and elsewhere, which has been carried on by this Mission for more than thirteen years, is daily increasing in scope and usefulness.

Some 8,000 men and boys were last year placed in the way of earning an honest living.

The work amongst boys charged with their first offence, and saved from a first conviction through the aid of the Mission, has so rapidly increased, that we have now three homes for their accommodation.

The next Supper for the Criminal Classes will take place on Monday, December 1, when the Lord Mayor will preside. We shall be most happy to send tickets of admission to anyone interested in the work.

The generous response made to our very urgent appeal in the spring, enabled us to tide over our difficulty at that time, and to meet all necessary expenses. The summer receipts, however, have been sadly disappointing, several large subscriptions not having come to hand, and we are again in sore straits to find the means to carry on our many-sided work. £1,500 is urgently needed to meet expenses to the end of the present year, and if that sum can be raised, it will greatly cheer Mr. Wheatley and myself.

We are loth to relinquish any part of our work without making an earnest effort to carry it on in its entirety, and now place ourselves in the hands of our loving Father, knowing that He will clearly guide us in the course we are to take.

Donations will be most thankfully acknowledged, if sent to our Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; to our Secretary, Mr. WHEATLEY, 29, Brooke-street, Holborn; or, to

Yours sincerely, Geo. Hatton,

4, AMPTON-STREET, REGENT-SQUARE, W.C. Superintendent of St. Giles' Christian Mission.

(Continued from page 4.)

GIVEN AWAY!
Your Nickel Silver Pen and Pencil Case
With your NAME in RUBBER,
COMPLETE, 7½d. in Stamps,
Or for your Rubber Stamp, elegantly mounted, Name in full, or Monogram, for Marking Linen or Stamping Paper,
Enclose 3½d. in Stamps for Postage, &c., mention this Paper, and address:
CRYSTAL PALACE (JOHN BOND'S) GOLD MEDAL MARKING INK WORKS,
Caution, "The Original and Genuine."
75, SOUTHGATE ROAD, LONDON, N.

Publications.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Please note change of address. Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, for New List for 1888. Cheapest English, 1s. 6d. 100; foreign, 1s. per 100; or to E. KAUFMANN, 30, Paternoster-square.

HIGH-CLASS CHRISTMAS CARDS, which admit of any desired greeting, together with sender's name and address. These beautiful Cards are supplied at inclusive and moderate cost, in quantities of 12 and upwards. Descriptive price list of large and choice assortment, post free. PENMAN & CO., 33, Furnival-street, London, E.C.

SPECIAL OFFER.—A 5s. parcel of Scripture Cards for Christmas and general distribution, will be sent on receipt of 2s. 6d., and money returned (less postage) where parcel fails to give satisfaction.—R. J. MASTERS, 32, Wilton-road, Victoria Station, S.W.

MOTTO CARDS FOR 1891, suitable for all Christian organisations. Supplied with own selected motto, name, &c., at moderate cost. Various designs. Particulars post free.—PENMAN & CO., 33, Furnival-street, London, E.C.

TRACT DISTRIBUTION at small cost. Gospel Tracts and Leaflets, bright, attractive, good, cheap (from 1s. per thousand). Suitable for every occasion, and for advertising Evangelistic and other meetings. Specimen Packet free.—PENMAN & Co., 33, Furnival-street, Holborn, London, E.C.

1s. 6d. per year, post free.
"THE WITNESS." An unfettered monthly Journal of Biblical literature, questions and answers, mission reports, &c. Edited by John R. CALDWELL. Motto: "All the Word of God for all the people of God."
Witness Office, Buchanan-street, Glasgow.

22nd Edition. Enlarged. 98 pp., post free. 1s.
DR. WATTS on ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A practical Treatise on the most Successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., M.A., M.R.C.S., &c.—London: C. MITCHELL & CO., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street; and SIMPKIN & CO., Stationers' Hall court.

ALL THE WORLD.

Just Out.
Price ONE PENNY. 7s. per 100.
THE
REVISED VERSION ALMANACK.
Compiled by MISS F. BERNARD.
MARSHALL BROTHERS, 10, Paternoster-row.

PRIVATE CHRISTMAS CARDS.
(SAMPLE BOOKS NOW READY.)
Supplied with your own name and address, and any other wording required, tastefully printed in gold.
A great variety of beautiful and novel designs at low prices. Send for Catalogue (post free) from
A. SHARP WALKER,
332, HARROW ROAD, LONDON, W.

IRISH LINEN COLLARS. Gent's 4-fold all pure Linen Collars, all sizes and shapes, 4/6 per dozen. Sample White SHIRT. Linen Fittings, 3/9, 4/9, 5/9, and 6/9 each, post free. FISH NAPKINS, 2/6 and 3/6 per dozen. DINNER NAPKINS, 4/6 and 5/6 per dozen.

IRISH DAMASK TABLE CLOTHS. 2 yards square, 2/11 each. NURSERY DIAPER, all pure flax, 4½d. per yard. Real Irish Linen SHEETING, fully bleached, 2 yards wide, 1/11 per yard. SURPLICE LINEN, yard wide, 7d. per yard. Huckaback TOWELS, 4/6 per dozen.

IRISH CAMBRIC POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS.
Guaranteed all pure flax. Ladies' size, 2/3. Hemstitched 2/11 per dozen. Gent's size, 3/6. Hemstitched 4/11 per dozen.

Samples and Price Lists Free to all Parts.
Carriage Paid on All Parcels over 10s. in the United Kingdom.

IRISH TWEEDS, All pure Wool, unsurpassed for strength, durability, and style. New patterns now ready.
Please say if for Ladies' or Gentlemen's wear.
G. R. HUTTON & Co., LARNE, BELFAST.

CHOTA HAZRI TEAS
1s. 4d. and 1s. 6d. per lb. Sample lb. tin, post free for 2d. extra. 10 lbs. carriage free. 5 lbs. carriage paid for 4d. extra.
1/4 PURE INDIAN Best value in the world.—The CHOTA HAZRI TEA COMPANY, 17, Lawrence-lane, Cheapside, London.

ESTABLISHED 1825.
NEAVE'S FOOD.
BEST AND CHEAPEST.

BAGSTER'S COMPREHENSIVE TEACHERS' BIBLE,
Prices from 4s. Of all Booksellers.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, E.C.

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS, LONDON.
The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch.
32, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 365, Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C.
Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST.

HELP WANTED for the ANNUAL SALE ON BEHALF OF

DR. BARNARDO'S HOMES FOR DESTITUTE CHILDREN,

NOW SHELTERING, EDUCATING, AND TRAINING OVER 3,500 POOR WAIFS AND STRAYS.

Will all who are preparing gifts for the ANNUAL SALE on behalf of these Homes

KINDLY SEND THEM IN AT ONCE?

Will those whose busy fingers are at work for the Sale remember that crochet shawls, really fine underclothing for ladies and children, shirts for boys and men, suits for little boys, aprons and pinafores for girls, and sets of baby clothing, are particularly valuable additions, being much asked for and readily sold? Well-made woollen shawls are frequently asked for, and, indeed women's garments of all kinds would be especially useful. Of course, besides these jewellery, old coins, old china, curios, musical instruments, and fancy work, trinkets, articles of vertu, books, drawings, bric-a-brac, and other examples of the thousand-and-one tasteful ornaments which are sought for by purchasers, will be very gratefully received and acknowledged. Valuable help would be afforded if donors of gifts of old china, foreign goods, articles of vertu, &c., WOULD KINDLY MARK ON THEM THEIR VALUE, or indicate the price which is likely to be obtained.

The SALE will this year be of the SAME CHARACTER as for the LAST FEW YEARS; that is to say, instead of holding a Public Bazaar at the West End of London during the month of December, as formerly, all the goods received will be made up into

£5 and £10 Boxes. These Boxes will each contain a very excellent selection, of at least the value of £6 and £12 respectively, and will be sent to any part of the country on receipt of P.O. Order or Cheque made payable to Mr. J. T. Page.

Friends willing to order these Boxes confer a great benefit on the "Homes"; for by this easy method all the articles received may be disposed of without any loss in the way of such expenses as are usually incurred by holding a Bazaar at the West End.

Many kind-hearted sympathisers have repeatedly expressed warm approval of this plan, and have promised to purchase Boxes, with the contents of which they propose to hold

SPECIAL LOCAL BAZAARS

IN THEIR OWN HOUSES, to which their personal friends can be invited during the winter season.

If there be many articles left over unsold, they will be disposed of in the last week of January (D.V.), in the Large Gymnasium of the Boys' Home in Stepney, E.

DR. BARNARDO earnestly invites all who love poor children to co-operate with him in this effective plan to increase the funds of the "Homes," by which, too, all the wearying, disappointing, and expensive drawbacks of a public Bazaar may be avoided.

The Boxes, carefully lined and packed ready for transmission, can be despatched on receipt of remittance to any railway station in the Kingdom. Applications (PREPAID), with full instructions as to conveyance, &c., should be sent in as soon as possible, addressed to

THE SECRETARY, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

18 TO 26, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, LONDON, E., November, 1890.

LONDON CITY MISSION

FIVE HUNDRED Missionaries now employed in beseeching the masses in the Metropolis to be reconciled to God through Jesus Christ our Lord. House to house visitation. Personal dealing. Work purely undenominational. Funds much needed. Communications to the Secretaries { T. S. HUTCHINSON, M.A. R. DAWSON, B.A.

OFFICE: 3, Bridewell Place, E.C.
BANKERS: Barclay, Bevan, Ransom & Co., 54, Lombard-st., E.C.

Scripture Readers' Society
FOR IRELAND.

INSTITUTED 1822.

Funds greatly needed to extend the Itinerant work.

The Scripture Readers are placed under carefully selected Superintendents, and not only located in Towns and Cities, but also sent into remote districts where they are generally well received by all denominations.

Irish speaking Readers are sent where required. Sailors in Seaports are visited, and Bethel Services held.

The work is carried on in a spirit of love and not of controversy.

Reports and all particulars sent post free on application to Captain JAMES KEARNEY WHITE, Secretary, Offices, 27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin, and 9, Paternoster-row, London.

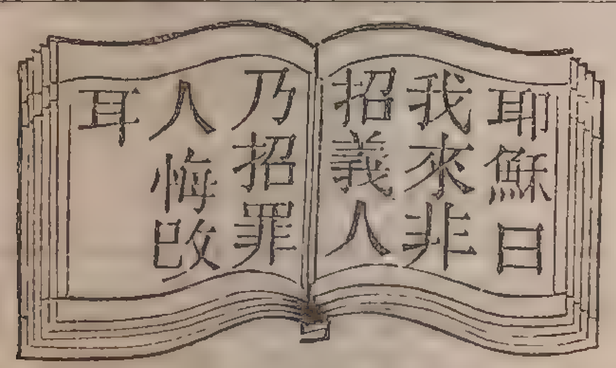
Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of THE CHRISTIAN.

Please notice exact title of Society as above.

EVENINGS IN THE HOLY LAND.

MISS VON FINKELSTEIN
(MRS. MOUNTFORD)

Is open to Lecturing Engagements both for Public Halls and Drawing-rooms. Also on Sundays. For terms and particulars apply—
WESTMINSTER PALACE HOTEL, LONDON, S.W.



Jesus said, "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."

THE CENTRAL CHINA RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY.

Established in 1876. Head-quarters, HANKOW.

Presidents.—Rev. GRIFFITH JOHN, D.D., and Rev. DAVID HILL.

Circulation in 1889—1,026,305 Books and Tracts.

In this vast Empire, so densely populated with an intelligent people largely able to read, and full of curiosity, the press affords one of the readiest means of making known the way of Salvation. The extent to which it might be used is limited only by the funds available. One Pound will circulate 500 books; £100 will circulate 50,000. Further aid is urgently needed to enable this Society to meet the immense demand now being made on it for Christian literature.

Contributions may be sent to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings, London, E.C.

THE PROBLEM OF THE POOR.

A MANY-SIDED WORK is carried on by the N.E. London Gospel Missions amongst the suffering poor, large numbers of whom are on the verge of "submersion," struggling to live decently and honestly. The paucity of help received of late gives reason for fearing how far we may continue this grateful work.

The Seaside Home for the Ailing Poor is at Lancing-on-Sea, near Worthing There are eight Gospel Halls and Rooms, two Institutes for Rough Factory Girls, and one for Ragged Youths. About 2,000 children and young people attend the Sunday-schools.

Help in any form would be thankfully received by the EDITORS; or Mrs. F. A BEVAN, 59, Princes-gate, South Kensington, S.W.; or may be sent to the Director—

WILLIAM CHORLEY.

2, Marquess-grove, Canonbury, N.

Parcels to the last address only. Bankers: Messrs. Barclay, Bevan, Ransom & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

STORIES WITH MUSIC.

PUBLISHED BY

J. CURWEN & SONS,

8 & 9, Warwick Lane, London, E.C.

On the North Sea	Only a Gipsy
Dot and her Treasures	Terrible Red Dwarf
May's Sixpence	Harry Beckwith
Fireman's Little Maid	The Little Captain
Froggy's Little Brother	The Flower Mission
His Mother's Book	Careless Charlie
Laddie	Out of the Depths

Price 4d. each, either notation. Half-price for 50.

A Special Appeal.

THE EVANGELISTIC MISSION.

OFFICE—164, ALEXANDRA ROAD, N.W.

THE LATE (SEVENTH) EARL OF SHAFTESBURY, K.G., one of the warmest supporters of this Mission from its commencement, thus testified shortly before his decease, on the work of this Mission:—

"OF ALL THE ASSOCIATIONS IN LONDON, I DO NOT KNOW OF ONE MORE DESERVING OF COMMENDATION AND SUPPORT."—Vide Speech, Kensington Town Hall.

☞ A VERY URGENT NEED for Funds for this long-established Mission exists at the Present time, the receipts during the past few months having fallen considerably short of the usual requirements. Several hundred pounds are needed to enable us to meet current expenses to the close of the year, whilst CHRISTMAS will bring with it the usual special claims for the relief of the aged, the infirm, the widow, and the orphan, which in a Mission like this amounts to a considerable sum.

We earnestly appeal to all lovers of the Gospel to assist us just now, in order to prevent the closing of any of the branches of this work, which has been so abundantly blessed in the winning of souls during the past quarter of a century.

Contributions will be gratefully received towards the following Funds:—

I. For the GENERAL EXPENSES of the LONDON MISSION, embracing Evangelistic Work carried on in HALLS, THEATRES, TENTS, &C.
II. EVANGELISTIC WORK in COUNTRY TOWNS and VILLAGES, and ABROAD.
III. BUILDING FUND for the Erection of Halls in Needy Districts.
IV. HOUSE OF REST FOR CHRISTIAN WORKERS IN THE HOME AND FOREIGN MISSION FIELDS (Wilton House, St. Leonards).
V. DORCAS, COAL, and GENERAL RELIEF CHRISTMAS FUND.
VI. COLPORTAGE MISSION for Circulating the Scriptures and Christian Literature, with BIBLE CARRIAGE, &c.
VII. FREE DISTRIBUTION of TRACTS and GOSPEL PAPERS.
VIII. PROPOSED NEW HOME FOR FALLEN GIRLS.

Cheques should be crossed "London and County Bank" and Post Office Orders made payable at the General Post Office.

C. RUSSELL HURDITCH.

164, Alexandra-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.

INTERNATIONAL BIBLE READING ASSOCIATION.

THE DAILY READINGS provided by this Association are topical, the subject for each week being the "International Lesson" for the following Sunday. Branches are formed in 3,000 Churches and Sunday-schools in the United Kingdom, and many others in the Colonies and other countries of the world. The subscription for members of a "Branch" is one penny each annually. In addition to the card of membership, monthly hints on the Readings and quarterly circular letters are sent post free. Sunday-school teachers and Christian workers in any part of the world are invited to send for circulars, &c., to the Hon. Secretary,

Mr. C. H. WATERS, 56, Old Bailey, London, E.C.

WORKING MEN'S MISSION,
Collingwood-street, New Cut.

WORK AMONG THE DESTITUTE.

TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN":—

The work among the Poor of the New Cut compels us again to appeal for help. For the past thirteen years we have been labouring for the spiritual and temporal good of the poor of this very needy part of the metropolis. Our winter work is now in full operation, and thousands are relieved weekly by our Soup Kitchen, and we need the sum of £500 to meet all the expenses of the two Mission Halls.

Donations will be gratefully received by our Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or, the Superintendents, T. and J. YOUNG, Gordon House, 1B, Vowler-street, Deacon-street, Walworth-road, S.E.; or, to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

A LETTER FROM REV. C. H. SPURGEON.

"The work done by our gracious God, through the Brothers Young and their warm-hearted friends, is one that causes me great joy. Theirs has been a real Working Men's Mission, and it has actually reached the persons aimed at; indeed, it sprang up amongst the working people.

"It is a movement that aims at no creation of division, or opposing existing churches; but we all welcome it, and wish it the richest prosperity.

"It is with particular pleasure that I commend the work in Collingwood-street, New Cut, to the generous help of all Christian people."

"ELECTRICITY IS LIFE."

(TRADE MARK.)

PULVERMACHER'S

WORLD-FAMED

GALVANIC BELTS,

FOR the CURE of NERVOUS DISEASES,

HAVE RECEIVED TESTIMONIALS from over FIFTY MEMBERS of the ROYAL COLLEGE of PHYSICIANS of LONDON, including THREE PHYSICIANS to HER MAJESTY the QUEEN.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

GALVANISM v. LOCAL WEAKNESS.

Woking, Surrey, November 10, 1890.

Dear Sir,—I am most happy to say that your valuable Galvanic Appliance has completely restored my muscular power, which I had entirely lost. I feel I cannot thank you sufficiently for the marvellous good your treatment has done me in restoring my vital energy and nerve power, which I thought was lost beyond recovery. My case was as bad as it could be, and greatly owing to my own folly; but I am now in a position to recommend your treatment as a complete cure for local weakness and nervous debility. You may give my full name and address to any honest inquirer.—Faithfully yours, G. B.

J. L. Pulvermacher, Esq., 194, Regent-street, W.

GALVANISM v. INDIGESTION.

7, Herbert Terrace, Clevedon, November 6, 1890.

Dear Sir,—I am glad to be able to tell you that my nerves are much stronger, and the indigestion that I suffered from is quite cured, in fact, I am a different person altogether.—Believe me, yours truly, (Miss) R. L. Parsley.

Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent-street, W.

GALVANISM v. LUMBAGO.

147, Avenue Parade, Accrington, November 4, 1890.

Gentlemen,—You will be pleased to hear that the Galvanic Band I purchased from you some time ago completely cured me, and I have had no relapse.—Yours truly, Thomas Sidgreaves.

Messrs. J. L. Pulvermacher & Co., 194, Regent-st., W.

GALVANISM v. INDIGESTION, NEURALGIA, and RHEUMATISM.

Christ Church, Dudley, October 27, 1890.

Gentlemen,—I am pleased to say that I have known something of your Galvanic Appliances for twenty years past, and have often recommended them to sufferers. Your combined band for indigestion made a new man of me. I also have your galvanic battery, by means of which I have cured many cases of neuralgia, and several cases of rheumatism.—Yours faithfully, (Rev.) I. Henderson.

Messrs. J. L. Pulvermacher & Co., 194, Regent-st., W.

GALVANISM v. NERVOUS EXHAUSTION and DEBILITY.

39, Union-street, Tranmere, Birkenhead, October 19, 1890.

Dear Sir,—I believe it is twelve months ago this morning since I first put on your Galvanic Belt, which proved, by the blessing of Almighty God, such a great boon to myself in two or three months that it restored me to perfect health and vigour, such as I have not experienced for years. I feel quite young again, and am so grateful for the marvellous change, and when I picture to myself what I was twelve months ago compared with my present condition, I should like the world to know the value of your appliances, and nothing shall be wanting on my part to publish the same. —Yours very truly, John Phillips.

J. L. Pulvermacher, Esq., 194, Regent Street, W.

IF YOU ARE SUFFERING from any NERVOUS or WASTING DISEASE, that threatens CONSUMPTION or PARALYSIS, write, in the fullest confidence, to Mr. J. L. PULVERMACHER, 194, Regent-street, London, W., whose name has been blessed by thousands of sufferers during the past thirty years.

ADVICE PERSONALLY, or by LETTER, free of charge.

FOR FURTHER TESTIMONIALS, both Medical and Private, see new Pamphlet "GALVANISM: NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER of IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY," post free on application to

J. L. PULVERMACHER & CO., GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W. Established over Forty Years.

THE MISSIONS TO SEAMEN SOCIETY

Patron: Admiral H.R.H. the Duke of EDINBURGH, K.G. — labours afloat and ashore, at home and abroad, among seamen of all classes and nations, fishermen, bargemen, and emigrants. Fifty-three harbours are occupied. INCREASED CONTRIBUTIONS and OFFERTORIES, urgently NEEDED, should be forwarded to the Secretary, Commander W. Dawson, R.N., 11, Buckingham-street, Strand, London, W.C.

FASHIONABLE SKIRTS.

Special Bargains for hard country wear, bodice length if desired. "QUEEN" (full gathers or box pleats) of our matchless DREADNOUGHT SERGE, Black or Navy, 13/9; ESTAMENE (fast dye), from 14/9; WINTER BLANKET SERGE (Double width, all wool, flannelly, everlasting), Black or Navy only, from 19/6 (worth 30/-). Draped styles extra. Tweeds, plain and checked cloths, &c.; Illustrations; Patterns. If urgent, send P.O., with measures—waist, hips, front length without band.—

C. H. GIRAUD ET CIE., 30, GREAT PORTLAND ST., LONDON, W.

Cheapest French Dressmaking in England.

GOWNS from 42/-

"QUEEN."

The Gigantic Sale of the "Queen's Royal" Household

HEARTHRUGS (Regd.)

Carriage free, 2/6

IN Reversible Rich Turkey Patterns, measuring 6ft. long and 3ft. wide. These Hearthrugs have gained a world-wide reputation for magnificence, cheapness, and utility, having no equal. Registered designs, and considered works of Art. Thousands of repeat orders received, including undermentioned, giving the highest satisfaction. SPECIAL OFFER—Three for 7s., Six for 13s. 6d., Twelve for 26s. Carriage Free.

Registered Design, 130,394.

"The Elms, West End, West Hampstead, "Jan. 4.

Sir Wm. Onslow, Bart., writes:—"I was much pleased with the 'Queen's Royal' Carpet and Rugs which I had from you a short time ago. Please send me another, 12 by 18 feet. 42s., with three Hearthrugs to match. Cheque enclosed."

"Sunningdale, Berks, July 5.

Sir Frederick A. Milbank, Bart., writes:—"Please supply me with another 'Queen's Royal' Carpet, 12 by 21 feet, 49s. 3d., for a dining-room for my shooting residence at Barningham Park, similar terra-cotta and gold colours as supplied for my drawing-room last year."

Trade Mark on all goods.

Beware of Imitations.

Please mention this Paper.

The "Queen's Royal" Household Reversible Rich Turkey Pattern

CARPETS (Regd.)

Admittedly the Cheapest in the world. Woven without a seam, superior quality, with handsome border to correspond; a marvel of excellence and beauty.

6 ft. by 9 ft., price	Carriage free	11s. 9d.	10½ ft. by 12 ft., price	Carriage free	25s. 9d.
8 ft. by 9 ft. "		12s. 6d.	9 ft. by 15 ft. "		27s. 9d.
6 ft. by 12 ft. "		15s. 6d.	12 ft. by 12 ft. "		27s. 9d.
9 ft. by 9 ft. "		17s. 9d.	12 ft. by 13½ ft. "		31s. 3d.
9 ft. by 10½ ft. "		20s. 9d.	12 ft. by 15 ft. "		34s. 9d.
9 ft. by 12 ft. "		22s. 9d.	12 ft. by 18 ft. "		42s. 0d.
9 ft. by 13½ ft. "		25s. 9d.	12 ft. by 21 ft. "		49s. 3d.

THE WORLD'S WONDER

"ECLIPSE" CARPETS.

The Largest ever Sold at the Price. (Reg.)

Carriage Free. 4/9

I WILL forward, direct from the Looms, to any address, on receipt of amount. A GENUINE WOVEN REVERSIBLE CARPET, suitable for Sitting-room, Bedroom, bordered and woven in art shades, large enough to cover any ordinary-sized room. A RUG sent with Carpet, 1s. 6d. extra, or 2 Carpets and 2 Rugs for 10s. 6d., or 4 Carpets and 4 Rugs, 20s., carriage paid. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. Do not miss this opportunity. To readers of THE CHRISTIAN all goods sent Carriage Free. Cheques and P.O.O.'s payable to

F. HODGSON, Woodsley Road, Leeds.

NOTE.—The above goods can only be had direct. No agents appointed.

CAUTION.—All my goods are sent Carriage Paid. By purchasing of me you ensure yourself against having to pay heavy charges for carriage.

THE BENEVOLENT OR

STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.; J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman. Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

Funds are especially needed at this Season.

This Society has been in active operation for 104 years. Its 240 Christian voluntary agents pay, on an average, 2,000 visits monthly in relieving the sick poor of London. Kindly remember the work in testamentary arrangements.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

CHRISTMAS CARDS,

WITH VERSES BY

FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL, FAITH CHILTERN, AND OTHERS.

100.—TWELVE CHOICE DESIGNS, with Verses by Frances Ridley Havergal. 12 in Packet, post free, 1s.

101.—"TREASURES OF THE SNOW." Choice Designs of Alpine and other flowers, by E. St. B. Holland. Six in packet, post free, 7½d.

103.—"LIGHT ON THE WAY." Dainty Sketches in monotint, by E. L., with greetings and space for autograph. 12 in packet, post free, 6d.

606—"IVY LEAVES AND ROSEBUDS." Exquisite Designs by Bertha Maguire. When held to the light the buds appear full-blown, and beautiful groups of snowdrops appear among the ivy. 4 in packet, post free, 1s.

SPECIAL ASSORTED PACKETS.

900.—TWELVE CHRISTMAS CARDS. Pretty Designs and well assorted. Post free for 7½d.

902.—TWENTY-FIVE CHRISTMAS CARDS. Pretty Designs and well assorted. Post free for 7½d.

903.—TWENTY-FIVE CHRISTMAS CARDS. Pretty Designs and well assorted. Post free for 1s.

904.—FIFTY CHRISTMAS CARDS. Pretty Designs and well assorted. Post free for 1s.

BOOKLETS & BOOKS AT SPECIAL PRICES.

"ALPINE SUMMITS." Famous Alpine Peaks beautifully drawn in sepia by E. L., from sketches from E. St. B. Holland. Verses by Rev. Charles Fox, M.A. Published at 2s. Post free for 1s. 3d.

"ADVENT SONG." By Frances Ridley Havergal. Illustrated by the Baroness Helga von Cramm. Published at 6d. Post free for 3½d.

All Packets, Booklets, &c., carefully packed with Cardboard Protectors to prevent damage.

"THE NEWS," Nov. 14, 1890, says:—"They are charming in every way, and we heartily recommend them to our readers."

OWEN MEREDITH, THE PARADE, East Dulwich Grove, London, S.E.

50 CHRISTMAS CARDS FOR FIFTEEN STAMPS.

Fifty beautiful Christmas and New Year Cards, comprising a charming variety of Snow Scenes, Landscapes, Floral and Figure designs, enriched with choice, original, and selected poetry, post free fifteen stamps; or two parcels, both different, post free twenty-seven stamps.

All orders should be sent at once. Early purchasers receive the best cards.

W. H. MAYNE, Fine Art Dealer, 8, Clarendon-terrace, Plymouth.

COUGH CHARM VOICE TONIC

Dr. LEBAUD'S PASTILLE BRONCHIQUE

(a modern scientific remedy, free from the dangerous narcotics of old cough nostrums) by its tonic and antiseptic action upon the disordered membrane, quickly cures a harassing cough, protects the breathing organs from cold, repels disease germs, and maintains the voice in perfect condition for speaking and singing. Of all Chemists, 1/1½ per box, or (post free) from the Chief British Depôt, Graham & Co., Charlemont-place, Dublin.

100 DRESS PATTERNS FREE.

The Cheapest Dresses in England, comprising Tweeds at 3½d. yard, Serges at 4¾d. and 6d. yard. Double width Habit Cloths at 8½d. yard; Dress Tweeds, 44 inches wide, 8¾d. yard; "Novelty" Habit Cloths, 48 inches wide, 1s. 3d. yard; "Superfine" and "Twill" Habit Cloths, 48 inches wide, 1s. 6d. yard; Plain and Fancy Black Cashmeres, Cheviots, Homespuns, Snowflakes, Soft Woollens, Flannels, &c., &c., in great variety. Any length cut and sent carriage paid to any address. The Patterns need not be returned, as they are given away to all who write for them and name this paper to The Darlington Trading Company, Darlington.

NOW READY. PRICE ONE PENNY.

"The Christian" Sheet Almanack

SAMPLE COPY sent post free for 1½d.; TWELVE COPIES post free, 1s.; 100 COPIES post free for 7s. 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER'S

Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.

SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS, POST FREE.

Children's..... 1/3 | Hemstitched—
Ladies' ..... 2/4½ | Ladies' ..... 2/11½ } Per doz.
Gent's ..... 3/6 | Gent's ..... 4/11 }

Embroidered Handkerchiefs, in all the latest styles, from 1/ to 60/ each.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER, Belfast.

PLEASE NAME THIS PAPER.

SYMINGTON'S

For Soups, &c. Sold in Packets and Tins by Grocers everywhere. EASILY DIGESTED.

PEA FLOUR. GOLD MEDAL.

PATENTEES AND MANUFACTURERS—

BOWDEN STEAM MILLS, MARKET HARBORO'

SUNDAY-SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS

should write for Prospectus of ILLUSTRATED LECTURES, DISSOLVING VIEWS, LANTERN SLIDES, &c., to SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION, 56, Old Bailey, London.

BAZAARS, FANCY FAIRS, &c.

SWANAGE STRAW BASKETS.

Novel and useful, a 25s. crate for £1 1s. Tea Cosy, very handsome, 3s. 11d. 5-o'clock do., 2s. 11d. Work Boxes, 2s. 6d. Work Basket, 2s. Collar Box, 1s. Needle-book, 7d., all post free.

J. A. COLLEAU, SWANAGE, DORSET.

GRAND GRANULAR TEA,

FOR INSTITUTIONS, SCHOOLS, &c.

Supplied wholesale, direct for cash, in 20 lb. Caddies, Price £1 1s. 8d. per caddy, carriage paid. London and suburbs; half carriage paid country. Of intense strength and good flavour. References to well-known Institutions.

SELECT CEYLON TEA AGENCY, 39, Lime-st., London.

Guy's Tonic

FOR

Indigestion & Nervousness.

THESE troublesome complaints are cured more speedily by Guy's Tonic than by any known remedy, a few doses invariably accomplishing more than a prolonged course of any other treatment.

For loss of appetite, pain after eating, heartburn, and sluggish liver, Guy's Tonic is superior and preferable to all other preparations. For restoring nervous and debilitated constitutions, removing brain weariness, nerve waste, languor, and despondency, the most implicit confidence can be placed in this simple, safe, and efficient remedy.

Should you have failing health, no matter from what cause, don't hesitate, but procure Guy's Tonic at once. The most obstinate, chronic, and complicated maladies are yielding daily to this matchless medicine.

Dr. ANDREW WILSON, F.R.S.E., writes:—

"As a stimulus to weak digestion, Guy's Tonic will act admirably, while in cases of painful digestion and flatulence, it is also likely to prove of signal service. The merits of this preparation appear to consist in its being compounded of ingredients which are habitually used by physicians in cases of ordinary want of tone, and in its safe and pleasant nature as a family remedy."—Health, August 1, 1890.

Miss JANET DICKSON writes, November 12, 1890:—

DEAR SIRS,

"Please send me another bottle of Guy's Tonic. I feel much better already from taking the one bottle you previously sent me. I have been a martyr for years to indigestion and biliousness, and at times very sick and vomiting everything I ate. Sometimes the sickness would continue for weeks at a time. I was beginning to give up hope of ever getting any medicine to do me any good. I have consulted several doctors but none of them did me any good, and when I saw your Tonic advertised I resolved to try it. Am happy to say it has had the desired effect.

Yours truly, JANET DICKSON.

To GUY'S TONIC COMPANY.

GUY'S TONIC is sold by all Chemists at 2s. 9d. per Bottle. If you cannot obtain it promptly, send the amount (2s. 9d.) to GUY'S TONIC CO., 4, Ludgate-circus, London, and it will be sent by return, post paid. Insist upon having GUY'S TONIC. No substitute whatever should be accepted.

ON

CONSUMPTION

AND ITS

SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, AND OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

NEW EDITION WITH

APPENDIX

CONTAINING A LARGE NUMBER OF

INTERESTING CASES.

POST FREE, ONE SHILLING.

From the AUTHOR,

MR. GEORGE THOS. CONGREVE,

Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E.

ONE RECENT CASE WILL BE GIVEN IN THIS JOURNAL EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

(THIRTY-FIFTH SERIES.)

ADVANCED CONSUMPTION-REMARKABLE CASE of a YOUNG WOMAN in IRELAND.

This case first came under my treatment four years ago. I produce it now because in a letter recently received from the patient, and dated October 11th, in writing me about another case, she speaks of her own, and says:—"Under God's hand your treatment was the means of saving my life. Will you make it known as largely as possible. I have often wished it, but neglected to name this till now."

The patient—Miss RACHEL MAGELL, now Mrs. GAW—was then living at Belfast. She had lost her mother in Consumption. Her illness had commenced three years before her first writing me, with cough and spitting of blood. Hæmorrhage had occurred at intervals, and she had become very weak and low.

Three weeks before I heard from her she had vomited fluid blood. There were severe pains now on the upper chest and shoulders. The cough was violent. Hectic fever prevailed and heavy night sweats. There was loss of flesh all over the body and strength continued to decline. The medical report was that a vessel had burst in the right lung, and that the left also was diseased.

In seven weeks I heard that she had much improved. The hectic fever had abated, the cough was much less severe. The expectoration was free from blood.

I continued to hear from her and to advise her through the following spring, during all which course of letters the gradual progress to health was told, and in May she was "fairly well."

Shortly after this the patient married. She has now two children.

I heard from her October 11th last. She says:—"I am in splendid health. I followed your advice without missing one dose of medicine for nine months, and since then have had good health and no return of hæmorrhage." Then she expresses the wish I have quoted above, and signs herself (Mrs.) RACHEL GAW, UNION-STREET, BANGOR, CO. DOWN, IRELAND.

NOTE.—Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

4/6 10,000 CARPETS. 4/6

EACH. UNPARALLELED OFFER. EACH.

(REGD.) The Largest ever Sold at the Price.

THE BRITISH CARPET WEAVING Co. will forward direct from their Looms, to any address, on receipt of postal order for 4s. 6d., or 56 stamps, one of their Genuine, Seamless, Woven, Reversible Triumph Carpets with handsome border, and woven in thirty different Art patterns, suitable for drawing-room, dining-room, bed-room, &c., and LARGE ENOUGH TO COVER ANY ORDINARY-SIZED ROOM. These Carpets are made of a material equal to Wool, being woven and NOT printed, and are offered at these Greatly Reduced Prices, actually below the cost of Production, as an advertisement for the goods of the B. C. W. Co.

Thousands of these Carpets and Rugs have been sold at double these prices.

A BEAUTIFUL WOVEN RUG TO MATCH CARPET SENT FOR 1s. 6d. EXTRA, OR TWO CARPETS AND TWO RUGS TO MATCH FOR 10s.

Send for sample, and if not satisfactory money will be returned in full.

This Unparalleled Offer will not be repeated. All orders despatched same day as received. Cheques and Postal Orders should be crossed "Union Bank," and made payable to J. HARGREAVES. G.P.O. Only address—

THE BRITISH CARPET WEAVING CO., 31, OLD STREET, ALDERSGATE, LONDON, E.C.

WARNING.—As unscrupulous advertisers are copying our advertisements, we warn the readers of this paper against the inferior quality of their goods. Note.—Our goods can only be obtained direct from the looms as above, saving all middle profits.

FREE Send a Post Card for a sample of Broken-Leaf Tea at 1s. 5½d. per lb., equal to 2s. 6d. Tea. WILLIAMSON & SONS, Tea Merchants, 139, Upper Thames-st., E.C.

THE DEAF HEAR

WHEN THE DEAFNESS IS CAUSED BY SCARLET FEVER, COLDS, MEASLES, CATARRH, &c., BY THE USE OF THE INVISIBLE

SOUND DISC

which is the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes, and may be worn months without removal. Sold only by H. A. WALES, Imperial Mansions (corner of Oxford Street and Tottenham Court Road), London.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, near CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

Under the direct Patronage of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and the Royal Families of Europe.

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies, Children, and Gentlemen.

Prices for Ladies—from 10½d. to 5s. 6d. per yd.

PATTERNS POST FREE.

Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges

WINTER PATTERNS NOW READY.

Any Length of Material Sold.

Carriage Paid on Orders of £1 in value to any Railway Station in the United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES.

Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

BEETHAM'S Glycerine & Cucumber.

Sole Makers—M. BEETHAM & SON, Chemists, Cheltenham

"Bontha has proved as a refreshing and invigorating beverage."
NORMAN KERR, M.D., F.L.S.

REV. C. H. SPURGEON

Writes to MAY-DAVIS & CO.:

Bontha

"I wish those who now take their Alcohol would try this temperance liquor, and renounce intoxication."

C. H. SPURGEON."

THE PRESIDENT, ROYAL COLLEGE SURGEONS, IRELAND, writes:—"Bontha is a most agreeable, refreshing, and tonic beverage, calculated to improve the constitution generally."

Bontha is 3s. per doz. in London districts, from Chemists, etc. A 3-doz case sent for 15s. 6s. being allowed for returned bottles and case). Proprietors and Publishers—

MAY-DAVIS & CO., Esher St., Westminster, S.W.

KNITTING.

HOW TO KNIT AND WHAT TO KNIT.

1s. per Set of Eight Large Cards, Post Free.

THE "VICTORIA KNITTING CARDS"

Are compiled so that beginners may knit from the first START to a full-sized article as quite without the aid of the Teacher.

FIRST SET, Nos. I. to VII., contains complete instructions on Knitting for Standards I. and II.—Mittens, Scarves, Socks, and Stockings shewn and plain, Buttoned Boots and Hose, &c.

SECOND SET, Nos. III. to VII., contains Stitches for Ornamenting Hose for Girls and Young Ladies—Stripe Hose—Lace Cuffs—Petticoats (with plain Ladies' Tops—Ladies' Vests—Shirt Yokes—Children's Quilts—Large Quilts—Diagonal Pattern Quilts, &c., with directions and kind of Yarns needed for each article.

THIRD SET, Nos. VIII. to XIII., contains easy Directions for Knitting Infants' Vests—Shawls—Hood or Bonnet—Bonnet Cuffs—Mat or Rug—Child's Pelisse—Shoulder Cape—Shawl—Pair of Sleeves, &c.

FOURTH SET, Nos. XIV. to XVIII., contains complete Directions with Illustrations and Quantity of Wool or Yarn needed for Knitting Lovely Suit—Petticoat with Bodice—Child's Dressing-Gown—Small Table-cloth—Reflector Slippers—Infant's Jacket—Baby's Hood—Lady's Pinafore—Baby Bath—Sleeping Socks—Cowl, &c.

COX & CO., 99, New Oxford Street, London.

"NIL DESPERANDUM."

[illegible] Manor Street, Partickhill, Glasgow, October 1, 1890.—Dear Sir,—For three years I had been steadily troubled with Dyspepsia, and had tried dozens of remedies and consulted several Doctors without any benefit. About a year ago I was ill about your Nervetonine, and called and got a St. Bottle. At that time I could only walk with a limp, my breathing pains were swollen and painful, and for the whole world I could not have lifted my hands to my head. Well, after taking it the Nervetonine a week I felt a great deal better, and before the bottle was half done the pain and stiffness were entirely gone. I continued taking it till I thought me better, and from that day to this I have never had a touch of my old complaint. It really does as much good to every one as it has done to me. It is indeed a precious remedy, and cannot be too widely known.

JOHN BEATON.

NERVETONINE can be had from the Sole Proprietor, M. F. THOMPSON, 97, George Street, Glasgow, and 97, Farrow Street, Edinburgh, in Bottles at 1s. 9d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. Postage 1d. extra. Nervetonine is a positive, safe, and permanent cure for all Nervous Affections, Nervous Debility, Sleeplessness, Nerve Pains, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Gout, Sciatica, &c., and all derangements of the Digestive System, Indigestion, Constipation, &c. For further particulars see M. F. THOMPSON'S concise guide, gratis to all who mention this Paper.

Fry's Pure Cocoa

To secure this article ask for FRY'S PURE CONCENTRATED

REFRESHING. ÷ NOURISHING. ÷ STRENGTHENING.

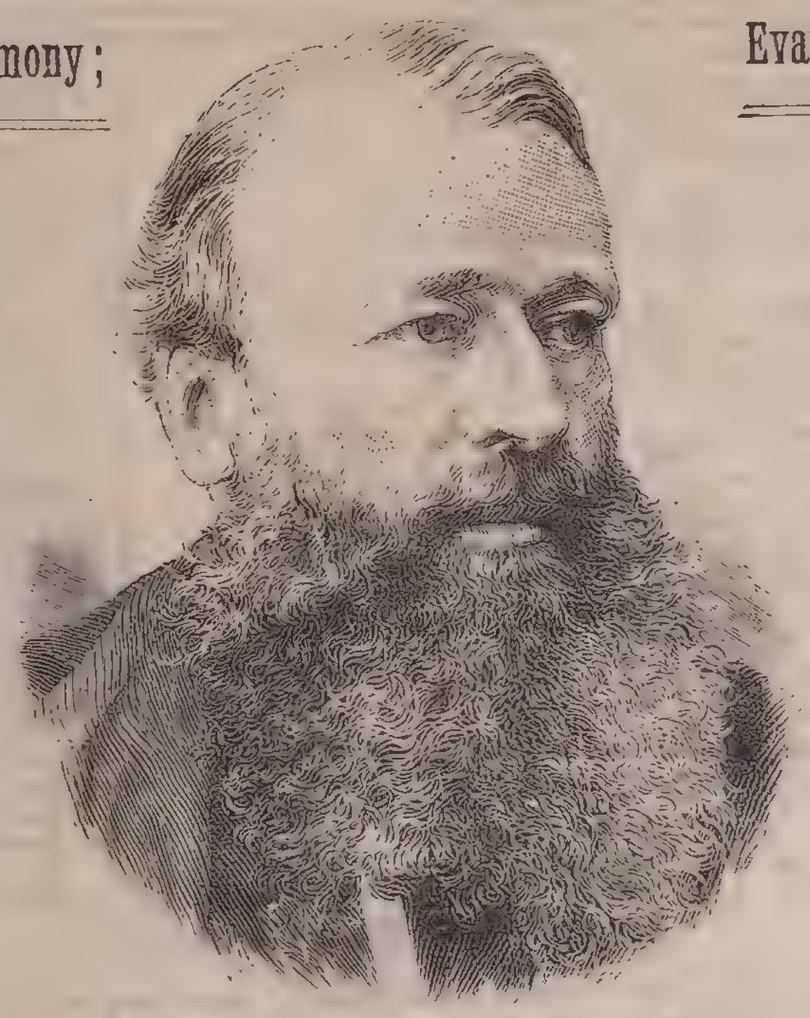
The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life and Testimony; Evangelistic Effort, and Missionary Enterprise.

PRINCIPAL

Notes and Comments 7
The late Rev. C. B. LEWIS (with Portrait) 9
The Temple of the Body. By Rev. F. B. MEYER. 10
NATIONAL VIGILANCE ASSOCIATION .. 12
Poem on the China Opium Traffic 12
Christmas Cries and Christmas Cheer 13
Zenana Medical College 13
Miss ANSTEY'S Farewell to Kolar 14
GIRL LIFE IN LONDON 14
Tower Hamlets Y.M.C.A. 14
An Indian Girl Carried Off. By A.L.O.E. 15
A Seaside Home for Scottish Orphans 16
Biography of the late Dr. SOMERVILLE 16



[The late Rev. C. B. Lewis.]

CONTENTS.

The Late Miss ROBINSON, of Braunton 19
THRESHOLD SERVICE.—1 20
The Story of Maggie. By W. LUFF 20
Hell Gate Explosion. By Captain DAWSON .. 21
How a Mission was Founded 22
Children of the Slums. By Dr. BARNARDO .. 25
Russian Jews in Palestine 26
Dublin Y.M.C.A. 26
CRIMINALS AT SUPPER 27
Messrs. FULLERTON and SMITH at Enfield .. 27
Holiness Teaching at Manchester 28
The Temperance Ca se 28
South American Notes 28

No. 1088.] FRIDAY, DEC. 5, 1890.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

[ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 2d.

THE CHILDREN OF DARKEST ENGLAND.

Dr. BARNARDO will (D.V.) DELIVER AN ADDRESS

ON THE

DELIVERANCE from the SLUMS, of the CHILDREN of DARKEST ENGLAND,

IN THE

LARGE HALL, EXETER HALL, STRAND

(THE EXACT DATE TO BE ANNOUNCED IN A FEW DAYS).

IT IS HOPED THAT

The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor

Will take the Chair, at 7.30.

Doors open at 6.30; Admission 2d. (paid at the doors). A few Reserved Seat Tickets (2s. 6d. each) to be had on application to

JOHN ODLING, Secretary.

OFFICE OF THE HOMES—18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with much thankfulness from C. D., Clothing; Captain Bruce, Clothing and £1.

Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Clothing lent to the needy. Infant Day Nursery. Day Ragged Schools. Sunday Schools. Children's Bible Classes. Children's Services. Band of Hope. Shelter for Children. Important Mission Agencies at Work amongst Young Women and Elder Girls. Various Mission Works in operation among Young Men and Lads. Lodging House Services. Mission to Inebriate Women. Evangelistic Services. Gospel Temperance Work. Adult Bible Classes. Mothers' Meetings. Clothing, Coal, and Boot Clubs. Poor Women's Sewing Classes, and other Missionary Agencies.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE SICK & SORROWING.

Funds are very urgently needed by the Committee of the Ladies' Samaritan Society, National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, for the purpose of providing Christmas comforts for the more destitute of the out-patients. Will kind friends help? Donations in money, coal-tickets, clothing, flannel (or any other material) are most earnestly solicited. — ROSA FEARMAN, Vice-President.—"He that hath pity upon the poor, lendeth unto the Lord."

MRS. MEREDITH'S

JERUSALEM DEACONESS HOUSE.

Women to train for Medical Mission work among women and children, and money for the support of the Missions, are both wanted most pressingly. Many places in the Holy Land are crying, "Come over and help us!" Contributions will be received by Miss LLOYD, 143, Clapham-road, crossed Union Bank, Charing Cross.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, College-avenue, Hackney; Branch for Incapable Blind, Palace Gates-road, N. Children are admitted from two years old without election. Both homes are now full. Contributions are gratefully received by Miss RYE and Messrs. Morgan and Scott.

FUNDS ARE EARNESTLY SOLICITED for the poor adults and children of the Christian Gee-street Mission and Ragged Schools, which have been carried on for about 28 years to benefit the poor. Donations please address to Hon. Superintendent, HENRY RUDGLEY, Ground Floor, 29, Falcon-square; JOHN KIRK, Esq., Secretary, Ragged School Union, Exeter Hall, Strand; Messrs. BARCLAY, Bankers, 54, Lombard-street; Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Paternoster-buildings.

SIXTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

A Society was founded to assist poor Aged Christians over 65 years of age, living within five miles of St. Paul's, by granting annuities of 10s. per month. The Society is now urgently in need of funds to maintain the present pensions, and is unable to admit many deserving applicants. Will everyone over 65, enjoying the comforts of home, kindly send a contribution? and those who hope to reach 65 are asked to help in remembrance of those who 65 years ago founded "The London Aged Christian Society."

HAMILTON NORTHCOTE, Col. R.M.A., Sec.
Office: 32, Sackville-street, W.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, SKEGNESS. —Erected by Evangelical Churchmen as a protest against Sacerdotalism in the Established Church.—To enable the work of this Church to be carried on successfully, £70 per annum from outside sources is needed, as the town is small, and wholly dependent on the short summer season. Will anyone help by giving small annual subscriptions? References and full particulars will be given.—Please address,
The INCUMBENT, St. Paul's Church, Skegness.

TO THE LORD'S STEWARDS.—Readers of THE CHRISTIAN should read "The Cow Cross Mission," 27th Annual Appeal. Will be sent post free.—Address WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, London.

South American Missionary Society.

THE objects are:—MISSIONARY work amongst the Heathen; MINISTERIAL work amongst our own countrymen; and EVANGELISTIC work amongst the native races, foreign immigrants, and seamen of all nations frequenting the ports.

It is written, "The silver is Mine, and the gold is Mine, saith the Lord of Hosts." These are urgently needed for the promotion of His Kingdom in South America.—Contributions gratefully received by THE SECRETARY, S.A.M.S., 1, Clifford's Inn, Fleet-street, E.C. Cheques crossed Barclay, Ransom & Co.

ASHLEY MISSION, Bethnal Green, E.—Assistance is earnestly asked for, to maintain this Mission. Large Mothers' Meetings. Classes for Factory Girls, for Men and Lads. Sunday-school. Band of Hope. Tract distribution and Temperance work. All in efficient working order. Cast-off Clothing thankfully received, and the smallest contributions.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, W.

POOR OF ST. LUKE'S AND CLERKENWELL. — PHILIP GAST, 12, Noel-street, Islington (Minister of Spencer-place Chapel for 28 years), pleads for the Widow and Fatherless and the nearly starving Poor. Clothing, boots, blankets, and money will be gladly acknowledged.

Now Ready, in Monthly Parts. One Penny.

PICTURE PORTIONS

BEING

THE GOSPEL OF LUKE.

Published under the above title, set in very large type, and Illustrated from original sketches made in the Holy Land. By H. A. HARPER and J. CLARK. Volume of Luke, attractively bound, will (D.V.) be ready middle of December, and will contain Thirty Large full-page Illustrations. Prices, post free, 2s. 6d. and 3s. 6d.

"The text is broken up in a manner which cannot but prove helpful to persons not accustomed to sustained reading. Book distributors will find these portions the best of all tracts."—The Christian.

Funds are urgently needed to circulate the Scriptures, in the above form, in the Hospitals and Infirmaries of our land.

W. WALTERS, SCRIPTURE GIFT MISSION, 79, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON, E.C.

TERMS FOR
ADVERTISEMENTS
"The Christian"
(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION
TO
"The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor. Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

STANLEY HOUSE,

HIGH SCHOOL FOR BOYS,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Owing to increasing numbers fresh premises have been taken, which will be be opened in January.

The house stands in its own grounds, and having been built expressly for scholastic purposes, is fitted with every convenience, to accommodate 40 pupils.

There is a large cricket-field at the back. Gymnasium, workshops, and laboratory are provided for scientific and technical instruction.

The present premises will continue to be used as a Junior School for pupils under 10.

The Principal takes a personal interest in each boy committed to his charge, and no effort is spared to secure his well-being.

For prospectus, references to parents, &c., apply to A. E. COZENS, Stanley House, Margate.

Educational.

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Red Hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS receives the Daughters of Gentlemen to educate in a course of study which shall fit them for the higher duties of life. Languages, accomplishments, &c. Inclusive charges. Prospectus on application. References.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.—DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-park-road, W.

BURLTON HOUSE, READING. — High-class Ladies' School. Principal, Miss RATCLIFFE. Old-established. Thorough teaching. Modern educational advantages, examinations. Finishing masters. Careful Christian training, well appointed home. Inclusive terms. Highest references.

EDUCATION ABROAD. — Pupils would be received after Christmas into a good German School in a beautifully situated neighbourhood in the Hartz Mountains. Terms £40 inclusive. For prospectus and information, apply, Frl. O. BREMER, Halberstadt am Harz.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.
W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

WIDOW AND DAUGHTERS of Clergyman, experienced and accomplished, residing in a healthy locality near sea, with a small day school, wish to take charge of orphan children, or children of parents residing abroad, as Resident Pupils. Utmost care given to general education, and religious training. Good references. Strictly moderate terms.
Mrs. DENHAM, Kerr-street, Portrush, Ireland.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.
High-class School for Young Ladies,
Carlton Mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.
Principal—Mrs. HALE, A.C.P., F.S.Sc., London.—Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters, resident certificated governesses, with careful personal supervision, and home comforts. Cambridge and other examinations. Special advantages for music and languages. House pleasantly situated in one of the healthiest suburbs of London, replete with every convenience and all modern sanitary improvements. Good garden and tennis. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, and Rev. D. McEwan, D.D.

THE PRINCIPAL of a well-established School for Young Ladies, for many years singularly successful, holding testimonials of the highest order from parents, evangelical clergy, and others, has been solicited to place the advantages of earnest Christian training, combined with High School modes of instruction, within reach of parents of good social position, but limited resources, who are unable to meet the usual fees, which will be reduced to 30 or 40 guineas, and made inclusive. Preparation for all examinations. The staff is composed exclusively of Christian teachers, many taking University honours. Liberal diet. Spacious residence, replete with every modern appliance to ensure health and comfort. Delicate girls, and orphaned families, receive exceptional care.
GIRTON, 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

LADIES' COLLEGE,

GOUDHURST, KENT.

Conducted by the MISSES KENDON, daughters of the Rev. J. J. Kendon.

A happy Home and School for Girls. The situation is exceedingly healthy and beautiful, being on the range of hills near Tunbridge Wells, and about four hundred feet above sea level. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' and the Cambridge Local Examinations. For prospectus, with references, apply to Miss R. KENDON, M.C.P.

PARIS.—YOUNG LADIES' SCHOOL. —Principal, Mlle. VIÉNOT, 36, Avenue Victor Hugo, Parc des Princes, Boulogne-sur-Seine, Paris. —This School is cordially recommended by Mr. Gustave Monod, Agent for France of the British and Foreign Bible Society, and by Mr. William Soltau, of the McAll Mission, to parents desiring a first-rate education for their daughters, together with thoroughly Christian influence (Mlle. Viénot is sister of Monsieur Viénot, Missionary in Tahiti).

A PROTESTANT FAMILY in the suburbs of Paris receives two young Girls wishing to acquire French. Terms, 35s. a week.—M. G., 14, rue Victor Hugo, Courbevoie, near Paris.

KINDERGARTEN AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL, Fröbel House, 3, Liverpool-terrace, Worthing. Principals, Miss YERBURY and Miss WAITE. Thoroughly happy home for children from four years of age. Christian training. Close to sea.

DRESDEN.—Two German Ladies' who receive a few young Ladies in their comfortable home will have a vacancy in January. French German. Best professors attending for music, painting. Family life, English comforts. Highest references in England.
Frl. BECHER, Walpurgisstr. 15.

TWO SISTERS can be received after Christmas in a good Girls' School in London, one as Pupil at reduced terms, the other as Governess-Pupil. Some experience. Good music and advanced arithmetic required.
T. T., 740, Messrs. Deacon's, Leadenhall-street.

THE OLD HALL SCHOOL

Wellington, Shropshire.

High-class School for Sons of Gentlemen. Estab. 1845.

Hon. Principal—DR. CRANAGE, M.A.
Principal—G. E. W. CRANGE, M.A., Trinity College, Oxford.

There is a Scholarship open for competition to boys who have been in the School for two years, to be held at any College at Oxford or Cambridge; also several Exhibitions on entrance to the School. Full particulars on application.

MANY CHRISTIAN PARENTS, who at the present time are seeking a School at which to place their Sons, are invited to write to the undermentioned, who is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, where the constant aim of the Principal is to train those committed to his care in the fear of the Lord; and by the power of Gospel teaching maintain a Christian tone among the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class Education.

The Premises are advantageously situated upon HIGH GROUND, NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA, on the South Coast, a short run from London, and afford especial facilities for out-door recreation.

Prospectus and Papers of Examinations passed and honours gained will be forwarded on application. Several of the Vice-Chancellors have appointed their Wards as Pupils to the School. Terms moderate.
Dr. THORN, Paddington, London.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION. — Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 45 guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal care. Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—85, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—Referees: Mrs. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Figgis, Brighton; Rev. H. Grattan Guinness, D.D. and Mrs. Guinness, Harley House, Bow-road, London; Rev. W. Haslam, 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

Huntingdon House School,

TEDDINGTON Middlesex.

Thorough preparation for professional and business life and for examinations. Rev. Evan H. Hopkins, Richmond, Surrey, has "much pleasure in recommending this school to parents requiring sound training and a good education at a moderate cost."
Principal—Mr. GEO. CUMMS, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

YOUR BOYS will have a Christian home, and sound education, with Mr. and Mrs. DIXON, Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames, Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. Established 1883. 18 to 30 guineas.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Sons of Gentlemen, at a very select and temperate South of England seaside health resort. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy.
Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Oakhurst, Oxted, Surrey.

BOURNEMOUTH.—The High School for Boys, Poole-road. Principal: Mr. E. C. DUCHESNE. Christmas term commences Sept. 22. Prospectuses on application.

NORTHFIELD,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

A High-Class Educational Establishment for Sons of Gentlemen. Preparation for examinations.

Particulars on application to HEAD MASTER.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter —Boys are prepared for business or professional life. Many matriculate at the various universities. During the past fifteen years pupils have obtained more than two hundred and sixty certificates (many passing in honours) in the Oxford, Cambridge, College of Preceptors', and London University Examinations. Special attention paid to juniors, who are taught by a lady. The Word of God is made the sole basis of a careful moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian teachers are employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.
Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

THE REV. H. J. CHANCELLOR
(Late of Forest Hill),
"CAMPERDOWN," Upper Lansdowne-road, Bournemouth, E.,
Assisted by several Masters, receives a limited number of Pupils to Educate and Board.
For particulars, address THE PRINCIPAL.

FOR SALE to a Christian Lady or Ladies, with good connection, or small income, the goodwill and solid household and school furniture of a long-established PREPARATORY SCHOOL in the healthy suburb of Blackheath. Inspection invited. References given and required.
WHITE, Post-office, The Grove, Ealing, W.

A CHRISTIAN LADY would receive after Christmas, a Gentleman's Daughter as finishing Pupil on half terms, 36 guineas. Every educational advantage. Comfortable home. Highest references. — PRINCIPAL, Westhill, Newmarket-road, Norwich.

SOUTH OF FRANCE.—A French Protestant Minister would receive into his family a few young Englishmen as Boarders, to learn French. Other branches if required. Good references.—M. le Pasteur LÉON BOST, Salies de Béarn, Basses Pyrénées.

ECEMBER 5, 1890.

The Christian.

- It is particularly requested that all letters re- to business matters should be addressed to the Messrs. Morgan & Scott, and not to individual bers. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should ddressed to the Editor. Letters of a personal e should in every case be so marked.

Notes and Comments.

EXT week we purpose giving portrait and sketch of Mr. WILLIAM LETHABY, sionary at Kerak, Moab.

correspondent writes:—"How much ecessary eating and drinking goes on at stmas. Suppose we resolve to deny elves in that respect; it will be good ourselves, and good for those to whom send the money so saved. I throw out idea; perhaps others will elaborate it."

l right-minded people must observe with kful satisfaction the almost unanimously essed opinion of the Pulpit and the ss with regard to the position of public found guilty of such offences as that ed against Mr. Parnell. A newspaper, ed, here and there, among others The tish Leader, laboriously expresses a rent view, which we are sure will not d" the ministers all over Scotland, who said to be among its readers.

e are delighted to say that Mr. Josiah rs has printed a first edition of 50,000 True Stories, New and Old, for Young Old." They are gathered from his own erience in the Children's Special Service sion, which he originated, after Rev. son Hammond's meetings for the young, he Hon. and Rev. Baptist Noel's Chapel, -and-twenty years ago. The book is lished at 1s. and 1s. 6d., and may be had he above Mission, 13A, Warwick-lane. larger quantities at reduced rates write Ir. Spiers himself at same address. We eve this little book will widely extend author's usefulness.

hat the great scheme of General Booth, has undertaken to pioneer the way out Darkest England, has met with an appre- ive and even enthusiastic welcome, is se for thankfulness to God and con- ulation to himself. It has proved that a e amount of undeveloped benevolence ts in our midst, and that the cry of the itute has entered the ear of many of r wealthy fellow-countrymen. The sum tributed at present is over £63,000. Many he larger amounts have come, as we anti- ted, from names outside the ordinary scription lists. We hope that the result more than fulfil the promises of the moters and the anticipations of the ors.

Ve must, however, repeat our conviction the first obligation of the churches is to se agencies which already exist, and ch have done and are doing work in no inferior in kind to that proposed in arkest England." It is a great mistake suppose that the older missions and ncies compare badly with the best work Salvation Army has achieved. This is especially true as to permanence. It is a splendid pioneer work, but it has been pertinently asked how many places there are where it has been at work ten years, where it is in as flourishing a condition now as at the beginning. We therefore repeat the hope that whatever may be given to the new scheme by supporters of existing work will be in addition to, and not instead of, their other contributions. It would be a greater calamity that the present work should languish than that the new experiment should not be made.

We hope that many of our readers will secure copies of Dr. Barnardo's pamphlet, "Am I Unfit?" which contains a full report of his recent speeches before the judges of the Appeal Court, and their lordships' judgment in the case. All who read the complete record will not fail to see that, though Dr. Barnardo failed on the strictly legal aspect of the case, he secures a triumphant acquittal from a moral and equitable point of view. One remark made by the Master of the Rolls is worth emphasising:—

> It is part of Dr. Barnardo's benevolent business to collect such children as this. I do not know whether the Roman Catholic institutions do the same. I can only say that I have not come across any case of the Roman Catholic institutions having rescued a child and Protestant people trying to get it away. If one may say so with all respect, I think Dr. Barnardo is the better scavenger of the two, and picks up the most of these gutter children.

This is very high testimony coming from a thoroughly independent source, and it ought, in every unbiassed mind, to strengthen the hands of Dr. Barnardo in pursuing his arduous and difficult work. Copies of this pamphlet can be had from the offices of the Homes, 18, Stepney-causeway, London, E., price 3d., post free, 4d.

Mr. Wm. Quarrier, of Glasgow, is another earnest worker on behalf of the neglected city children who has suffered from priestly interference and opposition. We are glad to see that in a recent case he has fared better than Dr. Barnardo, having successfully resisted the attempt of an unworthy mother, prompted by the Romanists, to take away one of the children under his care.

On the basis of a report in The Presbyterian Messenger, we recently commented upon an address by Professor Skinner on the Old Testament. The report represented him as identifying himself with criticism of the modern destructive type. Rev. Hugh McIntosh, of Brockley, informs us that the report, though made up from the manuscript of the lecture, was so mutilated that the Professor refused to correct the proof when submitted to him. On the other hand, the Editor of The Messenger declares that the report was "a copious and correct reproduction of the substance of the lecture." Not only had the Professor ample opportunity to repudiate the outline of his address, but he could, before damaging impressions had accumulated, have called attention to any errors the report might contain.

Coming to details, it is said, on behalf of the Professor, that he did not commit himself to the critical views described in his address. If that is so, the Professor owed it to the Church, if not to himself, to allay misapprehension. He has done nothing of the kind. A fortnight ago we called attention to the fact that Mr. Robert Paton, before issuing to the members of Highbury Park Presbyterian Church, a letter regarding the views expressed, sent the MS. to the Professor, who replied: "I thank you for your courtesy in showing it to me, but it does not appear to be a document that calls for any remark from me at this stage." If misleading inferences had been drawn from a delusive report, the Professor should have said so. Did he pity "weak" critics? None the less was it his duty to see that his words or attitude, as a "strong" one, did not constitute a stumbling-block in the way of others. Did he justify his course? Then he should have remembered the injunction —"Let not your good be evil spoken of."

A recent number of The Month—the organ of the English Jesuits—contains some startling revelations of the way in which traitorous Ritualists are secretly undermining the Church of England, and devoting all their energies to restoring every possible Romish doctrine and practice within the Protestant Church. The writer, who, having been himself a Ritualist, has had exceptional opportunities of seeing these secret machinations, states that in many churches the Communion Service is so manipulated as to imitate as closely as possible the Popish and idolatrous mass; that in almost all the sisterhoods, and in some churches, the sacrament is "reserved"; that masses for the dead are said at burials and anniversaries, and "processions of the blessed sacrament" take place; the multiplication of "altars," crosses, images, and pictures of the saints, guilds and confraternities is described; and the underhand methods by which the various insignia of Popery are introduced into congregations, together with other "puerile and ridiculous episodes in the Ritualistic economy," are exposed.

The revelations thus made abundantly justify the grave fears of faithful Protestants that a widespread conspiracy exists within the Church of England for the purpose of undoing all the work of the Reformation, and bringing England once more beneath the yoke of the Pope. The following passage describes the situation as seen by an ever active and watchful enemy:—

> At any rate the Ritualists are doing a good work, which in the present state of the country [Roman] Catholics cannot do in the same proportion; they are preparing the soil and sowing the seed for a rich harvest, which the Catholic Church will reap sooner or later. Some few, perhaps, may be kept back at present from submitting to her claims, because they are taught to believe that they are already Catholics, and have all that they can want; more, perhaps, may be losing their faith altogether. But there are very few Ritualists indeed in whose minds doubts as to the validty of their position do not at one time or another arise; and though they may be ordered by their "spiritual directors" to put these doubts away as temptations of the devil, as a matter of fact they seldom can stifle them, even if they would, and grace works her silent way.

A contemporary reports that eight hundred pastors have lately met in Hanover to consider the demands of the times on the German Church. The president said :—

Great as are the needs, and painfully as we feel them at times, we are, nevertheless, in danger of becoming accustomed to them, and to sink into a state of security. The ordinary affairs of the day lead us captive, and often we voluntarily close our eyes, in order not to be disturbed. In the meanwhile, the enemy sows tares. The enemies of the Gospel are determined to destroy Christianity itself; and this must be realised by those who would understand the times."

It is this that constitutes the danger of the period. Anti-Protestantism, critical wantonness, sceptical philosophy, and denials of the supernatural, are so common in their attacks on what is vital in Christianity, and at the same time so multiplied, that believing men are in danger of getting accustomed to them, and so remaining unconcerned. This is as though the defenders of a frontier fortress grew supine because the enemies of their country never ceased their assaults.

Last Monday evening, at the opening session of the Victoria Institute, there was read a paper by Professor Hull, the director of the geological survey of Ireland, on the Geology of Egypt and the Nile Valley. It dwelt at the close with the question of the passage of the Red Sea by the Israelites, and supported the results arrived at by the members of the Exploring Expedition in 1883-84. No subsequent investigations had changed the theory the professor then held, that the physical conditions of the region were now altogether different from what they were at the time of Moses; that the point of the Red Sea which the children of Israel crossed was not where the Gulf of Suez is now, but one further removed from the sea; and that recent geological investigations were remarkably confirming the historical accuracy of the narrative in Exodus.

Rarely has a struggle between corruption and righteousness been more marked than that now going on in some parts of the United States. The Bishop of Mississippi, in the Baldwin Lecture for 1890, says that for a citizen to be a city magistrate is to proclaim himself a knave; to be an alderman is equivalent to being a thief, and an influential politician a leading rough; underneath their civilisation lie forces that may result in an upheaval of ruin. On the other hand, American Christianity is contending against the evil elements that Europe has helped to pour into the country. Dr. Storrs, of Brooklyn, states that he does not despond; he has faith in God's purposes towards the Republic and its people. Dr. Norman Walker, of Dysart, in his editorial letters from the States to The Free Church Monthly, bears a gratifying testimony from different parts of the Union to the rising aggressive power of the Evangelical Churches. When an adequate conviction dawns on the Lord's followers that nations must be ruled by Christ, and not by the devil, we may look for a corresponding zeal against flood-tides of unrighteousness.

It is lamentable to find the Bishop of Bedford, who has seen so much of life in the East-end of London, speaking as he did recently at Leicester. It ought not to have been found difficult to make an appeal for the Additional Curates' Society, without attacking vigorously undenominational missions, and sneering at free breakfasts. The harvest field is wide enough for all the labourers of every denomination and of no denomination who are likely to engage in the work, and there is no room for jealousy, much less for opposition.

Italy, through the elections, has again lifted up her voice against Papal domination. Despite the Pope's recent fulminations in favour of the restoration of temporal power, and against the so-called spoilation of the Church, the country has decided to continue the anti-Papal policy for at least another five years. It is interesting to note this attitude in the very headquarters of Rome, and to compare it with the spirit which rules nearer home in regard to the aggressive movements of the Romanists.

It is more important to have a blessing than to define it. Nevertheless, if we become teachers, and define it wrongly—i.e., unscripturally—we may stumble others, as well as deceive ourselves. If we are sealed with the Spirit when and because we believe in Jesus, it is a serious cause of offence to a little one who believes to tell him he is not sealed. The Apostle tells the Ephesians, without distinction, "Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption." Yet these Ephesians are exhorted against all kinds of sin. The Apostle appeals even to carnal Corinthians: "What, know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost?" We must measure the pattern (Ezek. xliii. 10-12) received by the Spirit (2 Chron. xxviii. 11, 12, 19). Every item of the tabernacle was "as the Lord commanded Moses" (Exod. xl). We must "hold fast the form of sound words." If the builder deviates from the architect's plan, there will be trouble. How serious this becomes when the Architect is the Holy Ghost, and the plan is the inspired Word of God!

Professor Huxley, in The Nineteenth Century for December, returns to the charge with regard to our Lord's miracle in the country of the Gadarenes, when, as the Gospels state, the evil spirits on leaving the demoniac entered into a herd of swine, which forthwith rushed into the sea of Galilee, and were drowned. Mr. Gladstone, in his book "The Impregnable Rock of Holy Scripture," traversed the Professor's statement that this was a case of "wanton destruction of other people's property," and "a misdemeanour of evil example," by maintaining that our Lord simply vindicated the Mosaic law by which swine-herding was declared illegal. The Professor now labours many points with the purpose of showing that the population of the country was Gentile, and not under the law of Moses. He does not pretend to controvert the fact that Gadara was within the boundaries of the land given by God to the Israelites. He cannot conceive it possible that "Hebrews bound by the Mosaic Law" used Gentile coinage, which he contends was in circulation at the time in Gadara. This is through his apparent agnosticism as to the fact that even the Pharisees of Judæa had to employ money with the "image and superscription" of the Roman Cæsar.

The Professor makes a glaring mistake, which, though excusable in one who "holds a brief" against Christianity, should not go uncorrected by those who know better wherein the faith of Christ consists. He justifies his controversial activity by the statement that "these stories constitute t keystone of the orthodox arch." Let the be no misunderstanding; we hold by "thes stories," no matter how much may be sa against them by such as cannot find roo and reason for God in the universe. B "the keystone of the orthodox arch" Christ, who "was dead and is alive again.

Believing that our Lord "rose again th third day," we can believe all the wonde ful works ascribed to Him by those wh companied with Him in the days of h humiliation. Those who would affirm tha Christ did not rise from the dead have t account for everything that is good an true in social and religious life to-da throughout the world, as well as much b side. We meet all modern doubts an questions with the touchstone which give substance to our every hope: "Christ bein raised from the dead dieth no more." It i He, moreover, who says to his trustful fo lowers, "Because I live, ye shall live also. Here are our theology and evidences in tw short sentences, and all the Agnostics i the world cannot shake the position. The knowledge is of things material and tem poral, but the Gospel of the Resurrection i of things spiritual and eternal.

AMONG LONDON POOR.

PASTOR NEWTON VANSTONE, of Bow Baptis Chapel, Bow-road, E., writes:—My church i situate in the midst of want, and I am su rounded by a noble band of workers who mov in and out amongst scenes of suffering an privation. According to the means supplied t us, we endeavour to feed, clothe, and brin under the influence of the Gospel those wh otherwise could not escape utter ruin an death.

During the past few months a blessed wor has been done, though on a small scale. I one case, a sick child was found lying on tw chairs, and fast sinking for want of nourishin food. The father, mother, and six childre had but one sleeping-room, and no bedstea or bedding. The child recovered; but th mother fell ill and died, but rejoicing in Saviour's love. Before her death, bedstead bedding, and linen were supplied, and the chil dren were subsequently clothed. These ar now with others of their neighbours atten dants at our Sunday-school and services.

We have to move in touch with victims o oppression, enter the homes of the sweaters slaves, and see them making ladies' large mantles for 9d. and 6d. We have to hear an answer appeals for means to buy the Union ticket, ere the willing worker may be allowed to earn his bread.

Our members are enthusiastic in their work and, although from their freewill offerings, sup porting their own ministry and various othe Christian agencies, they are now, withou outside help, fitting up apparatus for supplyin soup and other food to the hungry, that we may both alleviate suffering and win souls to Jesus. The needs of the neighbourhood are s great that we ask the friends of the Londo poor to help us.

MR. ROBERT DAVIES, brother to the Lord Lieutenant of Anglesey, has promised £2000 to the funds of the Welsh Calvinistic Missionary Society.

Pastor C. Tidman, 39, Park-street, Blaenavon, Mon mouthshire, will be grateful for any books for th "People's Library," also Gospel books, tracts, an Christmas texts for the sick and injured ones.

THE LATE REV. CHARLES B. LEWIS,

Baptist Missionary, India.

ABLE and devoted ministers of Christ on the foreign field are a glory of the Church of God. In Eastern lands, where ancient mythologies and customs hold the people in a tyrannous bondage, and in tropical "habitations of cruelty," where nations and tribes are oppressed by superstition and devil-worship, the Gospel has been proclaimed in its power and fulness by men who have not counted their lives dear unto themselves that they might with joy discharge the ministry which they had received, to testify to the grace of God.

One of these was CHARLES BENNETT LEWIS, who recently "fell on sleep," after a long period of service as a Baptist missionary. Born in 1821 at Ross, in Herefordshire, he early evinced an intense interest in mission work, traceable to the efforts of pious parents, who fostered in him a love for all that relates to the kingdom of God. We first hear of him as sitting on his father's knee, and expressing the determination, "when he grew up, to carry the Gospel to the heathen." Growing with his growth, this desire led him, prior to his conversion, "always to look forward to a period when he should become a missionary." With this expectation, he made selection of a business which he conceived would be likely in some degree to fit him for usefulness abroad. He had read much of the mission press, and thought if he became a printer he might perhaps be able to go abroad in that capacity, if not as a preacher of the truth. With these hopes he left his native place and was apprenticed to a printer in Bristol.

In 1839 he was led to seek the Saviour for himself, and becoming deeply anxious to be himself engaged in proclaiming to his fellow-sinners the Lord's willingness to save, he entered as a student at the Baptist College, Bristol. Here among his college friends were such men as the late Revs. Dr. Charles Stanford, Prof. Baynes of Aberdeen, and George Gould of Norwich, by whom, as Dr. Stanford used to relate, he was known as the "Rabbi," owing to the knowledge of Hebrew which he had acquired before entering the institution, where he continued to give promise of the linguistic proficiency which made him so eminently useful in after years. To a good classical equipment, the young man added an acquaintance with Hebrew cognates. Some might ask, "What was the use of this in a missionary?" Mr. Lewis, however, was preparing for work in which all such studies would prove of service. His knowledge of Syriac brought him on one occasion under the notice of the celebrated Professor Lee, of Cambridge, who ventured the question, "What are you going to do with yourself?" Finding that it was the intention of the stripling to become a Baptist missionary, the Professor put to him a question similar in terms to the one just suggested—"Then of what use are all these things to you?" He gave the young man a token of his interest, in the form of a Syriac book, and the recipient continued his studies in confidence that God would use each and all of his powers when gladly devoted to his service. Events justified his hopes and fulfilled his desires, for during many years Mr. Lewis rendered valuable service to the cause of Christ by passing through the press in Calcutta editions of the Holy Scriptures, and important works in several of the dialects of India.

In 1845 Mr. Lewis married Marianne, daughter of Mr. George Gould, of Bristol, and sister of his fellow student. She was not only a helpmeet through life, but an earnest fellow-worker unto the kingdom of God. Shortly afterwards they sailed for Ceylon, to undertake missionary work. The voyage was long and tedious, occupying six months. The discomforts of travelling were very great then, as compared with to-day, when the same journey may be made in three weeks. After earnest labour in Ceylon for a short time, the decease of the eminent Dr. Yates made it advisable that Mr. Lewis should proceed to Calcutta, and there for more than thirty years he did large things in forwarding the evangelisation of India. He at once set himself to acquire the Hindustani and Bengali languages, shared in evangelistic work in the city, and undertook the superintendence of the village churches established in the southern part of the Delta of the Ganges below Calcutta. He was also soon engaged in the acquisition of the Persian language, in order to publish a revision of Henry Martyn's New Testament. For several years he was secretary of the Calcutta Religious Tract Society, and exercised a diligent supervision over its publications.

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Debenham & Gould, Bournemouth.)

Becoming secretary of the Indian Mission, Mr. Lewis's responsibilities increased; and on the death of Rev. James Thomas in 1858, he became, in addition, superintendent of the Mission Press, for which, by his early training as a printer, and his wide acquaintance with Oriental literature, he was peculiarly qualified. For fourteen years he was engaged with Dr. Wenger in the translation of the Scriptures into Bengali. In the words of a minute adopted by the Mission Committee of the Society with which he was connected:—

> This office he contined to hold with great success and advantage to the Society's funds, till his increasing infirmities, due in a large degree to his close and unremitting attention to the arduous tasks devolving upon him, obliged him in the year 1878 finally to relinquish his work. The wisdom and kindness, the impartiality and courtesy, the diligence, the thoughtfulness and large-heartedness which he displayed for more than twenty years in his multifarious duties, were gratefully acknowledged by all his missionary brethren, and were fitly commemorated in a testimonial presented to him at the Annual Session of the Baptist Union at Leeds.

Mr. Lewis was the author of several valuable papers on missionary and theological subjects, also of lives of Rev. J. Thomas, the Society's first missionary, and Rev. John Chamberlain. On returning to England he became increasingly weak; but amidst painful bodily infirmity his mind retained to the last its brightness and activity. Though paralysed in body, he was cheerful and lively in spirit. A few days before his death, on September 20 last, his daughter leaned over his bed to catch the words he tried to utter, and she heard him articulate with great effort the words:—

> I'll speak the honours of thy name,
> With my last labouring breath.

His voice failing, she finished the verse for him:—

> Then, speechless, clasp Thee in my arms,
> The antidote of death;

while he pressed her hand in silently eloquent acquiescence.

In all his labours, as already mentioned, he enjoyed the help and encouragement of a devoted wife, who will long be remembered as the founder of the Ladies' Association for the Support of Zenana Work and Bible-women in India. Coming to England in 1861, and also in 1866, she told the story of the zenana work and its pressing needs, and an interest was created which has been fruitful in unexpected ways. She published a very affecting paper on the subject, and addressed gatherings in many parts of the country, describing life in the zenanas, and urging the organisation of effort to convey to the dark-minded inmates the light and joy of the glad tidings of salvation. The Association was founded in 1867, and has since contributed largely to the promotion of the Gospel cause among the women of India. She came home with her husband twelve years ago, quite broken down in health; and preceded him by a short time in departure to be with Christ, entering into rest August 14.

Of the two it may appropriately be said: "They were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were not divided." Dr. E. B. Underhill, the veteran hon. secretary of the Baptist Missionary Society, who saw much of their work in India, and has since been intimate with them at home, has borne a hearty testimony to their unremitting interest in Gospel labour. Referring to his visit to India in 1854, he wrote in The Missionary Herald for October last:—

> I was their frequent guest, and had abundant opportunity to know and to admire Mrs. Lewis's amiability of character, devotedness to Christ's service, and the zeal and assiduity of her endeavours to impart to the female population of Lower Bengal the knowledge of the Gospel, and to train the children for usefulness both in their homes and in the Church of God.

Both have left the fragrance of a good name. More such witnesses and workers are wanted to carry throughout the world the seed of God's kingdom, and it is a definite injunction of the Lord to his disciples that they "pray the Lord of the harvest that He send forth labourers into his harvest."

ROMANISM IN AMERICA.—Please allow me to correct a considerable error in the paragraph in THE CHRISTIAN of Nov. 7, entitled "Romanism in the United States." That paragraph makes me say that about 1000 Roman Catholics have left the Church of Rome in the United States and Canada. I had said, if my memory does not fail me, that this was about the number of converts of the last twelve months; for the whole number of French Canadian Roman Catholics who have left the errors of Rome to accept the Gospel, these last twenty-five years, cannot be less than 40,000.—Yours truly, C. CHINIQUY.

14, Park-avenue, Montreal.

[1136]

LIFE, LIGHT, AND LOVE.

THE GOSPEL OF JOHN.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

THE TEMPLE OF THE BODY.

JOHN II. 21.

WHAT is your body? An inn, thronged with busy traffic! A library, whose shelves are being gradually filled with the gathering stores of knowledge! A counting-house, dedicated to money-making, in which the amassing of wealth, or the maintenance of a competence is the one and all-important object! A play-house, used for no higher purpose than pleasure-seeking! A stye, where swinish passions revel! "But He spake of the temple of his Body."

The conception was full of beauty.—As the temple at Jerusalem, with its marble pavements, its pillared cloisters, its terraced courts, its rich adornment, was one of the fairest spectacles under the sun, so is the human body, designed and built by the Divine skill, worthy of the Creator of the heavens and earth. Consider those ivory pillars of bone, those alabaster walls of flesh, that many-toned organ of speech, those long corridors of brain and nerve through which thought and emotion move, those storied archives where memory resides as the custodian of the records of the past, and tell me if you do not see an exquisite beauty and delicacy in the Lord's comparison, as "He spake of the temple of his Body."

The conception was as new as it is beautiful.—Men had been wont to consider the body as the seat of evil, and the principal impediment to a saintly life. The Epicurean, like the "fleshly school" of the present day, gave himself up to obey its wildest impulses, as though a rider should throw the reins on the neck of a fiery steed. The Stoic sought to crush out and starve all natural instincts. And this has been the motive of asceticism in all ages. "I fear that I have ill-treated my brother the ass," said St. Francis of Assisi, a few hours before his death, as he looked with a kindly and half-humorous pity on the worn and emaciated body, prematurely exhausted by vigil, fasting, and maceration.

At the most, men were prepared to give to God a part of their being, one room out of many to be his shrine, the organ of veneration, the attitude of worship, the hour of morning prayer. But the Son of Man said that the body was not in itself evil, and that it might the shrine and home of God, the temple Him who dwells in the high and holy pla whose Being fills the immensity of the univer but who makes his dwelling-place with lovi and contrite hearts. He said, moreover, th not one organ but every organ, not one attitu but all, not one engagement but each, shou be pervaded by the thought of worship a dedication, cleansed in the blood of atoneme made fragrant with the perfume of incen and included in priestly ministry and service

And the conception became characteristic Christianity.—Wherever the religion of Jes went, men conceived a new idea of the sacre ness of the body. Had He not worn it? H He not carried it through death into the lig of Easter, and the glory of the throne? H He not spoken of it as a temple? T natural instincts could be neither common n unclean. And it must be possible so to ord and rule them as that they should be the willi servants of a holy will and consecrated purpos not impeding the symmetrical beauty of t loftiest characters, but promoting it; a doing the will of God on earth as it is done heaven.

From this source the Apostle derived t motive-power with which to nerve his conve in their conflict with the evils of their tim Writing to those at Corinth, one of the fairc in the sisterhood of fair cities with which Gree had adorned herself, the beauty of whc temples was only equalled by the voluptuou ness and impurity of the worship which defil the loveliest achievements of human art, said emphatically, "Know ye not that ye a the temple of God, and that the Spirit of G dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temp of God, him will God destroy; for the temp of God is holy, which temple ye are." (1 C iii. 16, 17; vi. 19; 2 Cor. vi. 16.)

Is it not significant that, in his first miracl our Lord hastened to put honour on marria at the wedding feast, and in his second pub act, by a single word, reinstated the body in rightful place as the help-meet and shrine the consecrated soul, a thing which may presented as a sacrifice unto God, holy, a acceptable, and reasonable (Rom. xii. 1 Surely thus it became Him as Son of Ma "He spake of the temple of his Body."

I. THE TIME OF HIS SPEAKING.—It was t month of April. The land was green wi pastures, and carpeted with myriads of flowe the air vocal with the singing of birds, a laden with sweet scent, the thoroughfar thronged with pilgrims for the Passover, a with the flocks for the Paschal Feast. Jer salem was in her glory. And at such a tim there seemed nothing extravagant in t panegyric of the patriot Psalmist, when sang, "Beautiful for situation, the joy of t whole earth is Mount Zion, the city of t great King."

After the miracle at Cana, our Lord we down to Capernaum, with which most of h disciples were associated, and which thenc forward became his home. But He did n stay there "many days," as the time had con for Him to inaugurate his public ministry the metropolis of his people, and in connecti with the very heart of their religious system.

II. THE PLACE OF HIS SPEAKING.—It was i the temple that He who was Himself th Temple of God, spake of the body as a templ

And there was a special fitness in the coincidence. The temple had three divisions. The outer, which lay beneath the gaze of Israel; the inner, or Holy Place, where the white-robed priests went to and fro on their sacred ministries, awed by the sense of the nearness of God's manifested presence; and the innermost, or Most Holy Place, where the Shekinah, in Solomon's temple, shone between the bending forms of the cherubim.

Similarly tripartite is the nature of man. The body is its outer court. Next to that is the soul, the seat of consciousness, of thought and will, of emotion and imagination, a family of priests meant to minister to God, in robes of stainless purity, under the sense of his presence, their every movement music, their every act worship. But below this wondrous play of movement is the spirit; that in which man is likest God, and by which he is capable of becoming God-filled and God-possessed. For it is through the spirit that man's nature opens out into the world of spirit, of the infinite and eternal, and becomes the residence and shrine of God (1 Thess. v. 23; Heb. iv. 12).

The nature of man is a trinity in unity. Three constituent portions make up each individual unit of the human family. All are not temples, but all may be. In many, alas, that most sacred chamber, with its marvellous capacities for God, is untenanted and unexplored, given over to darkness and neglect. In regeneration the Divine residence is inaugurated. The Holy Ghost is distinctly described as dwelling within the believer. Not always patent to our consciousness, because deeper than the sphere of emotion, and in the spirit.

From our second birth marvellous possibilities present themselves. Almost immediately the soul, which is the seat of consciousness and choice, must elect whether it will permit itself to be most largely influenced by the body or the spirit. If it choose the former, saved though it be, it will inevitably become carnal, and unable to digest God's deep and secret teaching (1 Cor. iii. 2); but, if it choose the latter, it will become increasingly spiritual—the light of the Most Holy will stream with growing intensity into the holy place of thought and feeling, until the whole tenor of the inner life is ennobled and purified. And thence the waves of blessed life will pass outwards to the body, till every member experiences the sacred influence, and begins to sparkle and glow, as when the light of the shekinah brake through all curtaining restraints, and bathed in glory the entire fabric, standing in its earliest completeness. That was illustrated in the Transfiguration, in which the Body of the blessed Lord shone as the sun, and even his clothes were white as the light.

You will never be able to govern the body by the unaided power of the soul. Go deeper than the soul-life, however fervid its love or strenuous its resolves. Avail yourselves of the indwelling grace of the Holy Ghost. Let the parting veil be rent and withdrawn. And then, through the recipient soul, the light and life and love of God will stream forth to ennoble and irradiate the entire nature.

III. WHAT WAS THE OCCASION?—The hills of Moab were hardly purple with the dawn before the streets were crowded with throngs hurrying to the temple. But the tortuous streets were rendered almost impassable on account of the traffic and business caused by the vast concourse of people. There were sellers of trinkets and souvenirs; drovers of sheep and oxen with their charge; exchangers of the coins of all the world for the half-shekel, which must be paid by every Jew in temple currency. Had all this hubbub been confined to the adjacent streets, it had been sufficiently objectionable; but, for purposes of gain, it had been permitted to intrude into the lower temple court, that of the Gentiles. There, steaming with heat, and filling the sacred edifice with stench and filth, were penned whole flocks of sheep and herds of oxen; while drovers and pilgrims stood around in eager contention as to price. There, too, were men with cages of doves, the offerings of the poor. And beneath the shadow of the arcades, sat the money-changers, each behind his little table, covered with piles of coin. A very shambles, with the noise of an Eastern bazaar!

An apt symbol this, not only of the intrusion of the world-spirit into the Church, but of the harbouring of darker and sadder evils in the heart. Not alone amid the ruins of heathen fanes, but in the secrets of our hearts, do vultures build their filthy nests, and unclean creatures make their lair. Traffic in the forbidden, the forms of brutelike passions, the rattle of unhallowed gain, the sweltering press of care and worry and rush, have crowded God out of our life. Mammon, Beelzebub, and Satan have usurped his place. With us, as in Ezekiel's vision, the walls of the chambers of imagery, are covered with delineations of obscene creatures, before which we offer incense. With us, as with Job, our increasing knowledge o God is gauged by a deeper abhorrence of ourselves: "Behold, I am vile."

But when the Lord Jesus enters, He cleanses.—Hastily knotting together a number of small cords, gathered from the litter at his feet, He advanced to the traffickers, and bade them begone. They looked at Him aghast. Who was He, that He should issue such a decree? But they quailed beneath the glance of that flashing eye and the commanding attitude of that spare form. Sin is weakness. The evil-doer cannot stand before the servant of God armed with no weapon save the force of a blameless character and the energy of a quenchless zeal. So, moved by a sudden and irresistible impulse, they slowly and sullenly began to retire, driving their charge before them, and uttering the deepest maledictions against an authority they dared neither dispute nor resist. The dove-sellers followed them, carrying their wicker cages; whilst the money-changers, after a scramble to collect what coins they might amid the ruthless overthrow of their tables, and the pouring forth of their stores, also hastened away. And the temple-court was clear.

Would you be rid of darkness, let in the light. Would you cleanse the stable, let in the river. Would you be delivered from impurity of heart and life, let in the Saviour. He will cleanse the temple. This action was deeply significant of what He will effect in us.

Many would meet Him at the threshold and make terms; but this will never do. You may wish Him to pass into the upper courts without noticing the lower. You may desire to know before admitting Him what He will consider wrong and contraband, and to enter upon a discussion of the whole matter. You may seek to bribe Him into inaction or acquiescence. But it may not be. Jesus must be Lord or nothing. He will have his way, or not enter. He will only take from us what we would be the first to renounce, did we know all that He knows. He will do it gently, if we will let Him, taking away the evil desire, giving us something better, extracting the cancer under chloroform. But He must be free to act.

Sometimes, when He cannot attain his end by gentleness, He uses a scourge of small cords. Very small things aid Him in his work of purification. A child's remark; a case in a newspaper; a sentence in talk, or from a book; a disappointment; an illness; a loss; a sarcastic rejoinder; any one of these may be a strand in the cord, or a cord in the scourge, employed to drive out evil. But better these than hornets (Exod. xxiii. 28).

There always will be remonstrance.—The Pharisees challenged his right to act thus, and demanded a sign. His answer foreshadowed his violent death and the perfecting of his body through resurrection. His allusion was a dark saying even to his disciples, till after it was fulfilled. It was angrily referred by the Jews to the fabric of the temple, and was never forgotten. At his trial, and at his cross, it was again and again flung against Him as a taunt. But it has been abundantly verified. In destroying his body so far as death could do it, they in effect destroyed their temple, and struck the death-knell of their system, whilst his risen body is now seated on the right hand of the throne of God.

But over all remonstrances the zeal of Christ must triumph.—Ah, that blessed zeal, which ate up his life in three short years; which quailed not at its task, and shrank not back though the path it trod led straight to the cross; which set against the opposition and malice of men the vision of the accomplished purpose of God; and which conquered by the fire of its own pure passion! It cleansed the temple courts, not once only, but again. And will it do less for us? We too are the house of God; and the zeal that led our Saviour to cleanse the temple, because it was his Father's, will lead Him for the same reason to do the same for each of us.

Present your being to Him. It matters not how strong the evil, how deeply, or how long entrenched. Only open the portals of your life for his entrance in mingled love and power. He will not fail nor be discouraged till the work is done. Only trust Him. Only abandon yourself utterly to Him. Only work out what He works in. Amid failure, and the rising of your corruption, and untold opposition, his zeal will live and work, until the whole temple is rendered worthy of its Divine Occupant. "He is the Saviour of the Body."

A HIGHLAND MEDICAL MISSIONARY.—At the London Caledonian Christian Club, Bloomsbury, last Tue-day, there was quite a Scotch gathering of members and friends, to bid farewell and God-speed to Dr. A. M. Mackay, of Halkirk Caithness, who left two days later for Hankow China, as a medical missionary in connection with the London Missionary Society. Dr. Mackay's story of how he was led to choose the mission field as his sphere will not soon be forgotten, and of how, under the influence of Professor Drummond, he was led to lay his all upon the altar, and consecrate his life to whatever work God should give him. He passed his university and medical training in Edinburgh. Coming to London for hospital experience, he took charge of a medical mission at Brixton. A. R.

National Vigilance Association.

THIS body, or its vigilant and brave secretary, has become to a large extent the much-needed watch-dog of our public morals. It has been thrust into notice of late through its spirited action in the matter of the Aquarium posters and the Rabelais Exhibition pictures. Such unpleasant, but none the less necessary, intervention on behalf of social propriety, has brought the Association into disfavour with the laissez faire portion of Society; all the more need that its hands should be upheld by those who care for the best interests of the community. There was some expectation that the annual meeting of the Society in the Memorial Hall last week would be a scene of turbulence, through the opposition of some with whom a rigid standard of morals is not of much account. The anticipation was not altogether unfounded, though the malcontents were comparatively few in number, and deplorably weak and unreasoning in argument. The great bulk of the meeting was warmly sound at heart in commendation of the splendid service that the Association is doing for the public good and protection.

Professor STUART, M.P., who presided, enumerated from the printed report some of the particular ways in which the Association is caring for the well-being of the people. Specific mention was made of the vile Continental traffic in the bodies and souls of young women. He said it was ascertained, and ought to be widely known, that the active centre of this inhuman traffic just now is the East of London. A somewhat guarded reference to the outcome of the O'Shea-Parnell divorce case, led the chairman to remark that the principles which the Association was founded to promote are now, happily, beginning to make themselves felt in the political as well as the social arena.

A resolution approving of the Society's suppressive action during the past year was moved in an earnest and thoroughgoing speech by Mr. SAMUEL SMITH, M.P. While he thankfully recognised a decided change for the better in London in many respects during the past ten years, he yet deplored much of the existing state of things, particularly the condition of many of our streets. He had seen much of the world and its great cities, and he asserted without any reserve that for outward manifestations of and incitements to vice London beats the entire globe. He could not approve of putting more uncontrolled power into the hands of our police, but something stringent ought to be done. Other large towns in Great Britain have been able to purge their thoroughfares of these evils; why not London? Mr. Smith was very severe on the immodesty of modern fashions in ladies' attire—or the want of proper attire; and also expressed an earnest hope that the Government would do something effective in preventing the evils of child-marriage in India. An extremely outspoken speech followed from Rev. S. G. SCOTT, of Woolwich, who spoke of the very low morale of that neighbourhood, and the efforts that were being made by a branch of the Vigilance Association to deal with the evils that were so prevalent. He thought there was much "insincere cant" among clergymen and ministers taking to themselves such a title as "shepherds of the flock," while they did nothing to fight and abolish these evils that are sapping the moral and religious life of the people.

Dr. LUNN referred to the part he had recently taken in aiding the Association to get rid of the objectionable Rabelais pictures, and strenuously protested against the condemned pictures being saved from destruction. He made some decided comments on the political "question of the hour," and insisted on it that a man's private character must not be ignored in dealing with his public relations and responsibilities. After some earnest words from Miss LEPPINGTON, the resolution was approved of by the meeting, minus a handful of noisy and misguided youths who supported an adverse amendment, disapproving on the grounds of "Art" of the destruction of the pictures referred to.

Mr. CHARLES MALET warmly commended the Association for the protection and aid it affords in many and varied ways to those in moral danger from the scheming devices of evil men and women. The rising of Mr. W. T. STEAD to speak occasioned a hostile demonstration as well as much hearty cheering. Nothing daunted by the unmannerly hooting of some of the audience, he proceeded trenchantly to defend the so-called fanaticism of the Vigilance Association. If they ceased to be fanatical in the eyes of "men of the world," they might as well drop out of existence. Many of the facts that had been placed before the meeting would surely lead the most callous-hearted to the conclusion that if there had been no such Association it was high time there should be. When he heard the friend from Woolwich speak of the well-dressed elderly men who spent their time in trying to corrupt and pollute the minds and bodies of young children, he thought that even stronger language might have been employed. The resolution upon which Mr. Stead was speaking looked hopefully for the time when society would regard a breach of the Seventh Commandment with as much detestation and horror as it does that of the eighth. In a strongly ironical vein, he dwelt on the impracticability of hoping for such a thing in the present state of moral conviction. If a man steals, he is sent to prison; would anyone dream of putting a man in durance vile when he has "merely committed adultery"? Challenged on this point by some interrupters, Mr. Stead proceeded to comment on the cases of two notable public men whose moral lapses had been clearly proved. In closing his vigorous and fearless utterances, which were often rudely interrupted, Mr. Stead contended that impartial treatment ought to be meted out to men of all political parties, and that condemnation should be pronounced not on mere floating rumour, but on incontestable evidence of guilt.

Mr. MCDOUGALL, of the London County Council, spoke of the difficulties that body had to contend with in caring for the best interests of the young people under their control in industrial schools, and the inmates of lunatic asylums. Mr. H. J. WILSON, M.P., called for a more effective application of the existing laws dealing with moral offences against the young, and also for more comprehensive legislation in order to deal with the polished scoundrels of maturer years.

There was much said in the course of the evening that was very painful to hear; at the same time we could but be thankful that this Association, and especially its courageous secretary, Mr. Coote, and its legal committee, are manfully grappling with the more obtrusive and deadly vices of the time. In this arduous and difficult task they deserve the heartiest support, moral and material, of all the friends of social and national righteousness.

AURICULAR CONFESSION AT BRIGHTON.—On Wednesday last week a discussion took place in the Dome, Brighton, between Rev. H. N. Thompson, a local curate, and Rev. C. W. Wainwright, of Blackpool. The former affirmed, and the latter denied, that the Church of England teaches auricular confession. Mr. Thompson's contention was that "priests" have a right to hear confessions and power to absolve penitents. Mr. Wainwright held that the Church of England ministry is not in any sense sacerdotal, while her standards are emphatically opposed to confession to men. God is ready to receive penitents and pardon them through the merits of his Son; and no man has the right to stand between the sinner and the Saviour.

THE CHINA OPIUM TRAFFIC.

'TWAS in a noisome cavern
Of a far-off opium den,
That the wail of an opium drinker
Pierced to the haunts of men.
Life was but flickering in a breast
So ill to soothe—so hard to rest!

He died! And rude men shook the dead,
And cleared him from the den;
No loving hands his poor eyes closed,
Never to wake again.
He died as dies a dog, unblest,
Without a hope of coming rest!

'Twas Britain forced that awful trade
Upon a simple crew
Of unsuspecting, guileless souls,
Until the craving grew
For more and more of that vile power—
The weary day—the weary hour!

Britain, awake! erase the blot
That dyes your tarnished name!
How can you bear the impending curse
And win such demon fame,
By filling up the opium cell
And helping thousands down to hell?

How can your statesmen take the gold
That comes from such a source?
How can they brand the English name
With this unholy course?
Truly the "merchandise" again
Is "gold, and slaves, and souls of men!"

Now is the time to free your race
From "garments dyed in blood";
People of England! take your stand
For all that's just and good!
And bid that awful trade farewell
That sounds your brother's dark death-knell.

F. M. M.

SERVICES IN THEATRES.

IN a recent circular letter on the needs of London, the United Committee for Special Religious Services in Theatres and Halls, says:—"The object of these services is to bridge the great chasm which lies between the Church and the masses of our great Metropolis. The Committee believe that the regeneration of the individual man is the great hope of society as well as of the Church, and that without this all other schemes to create an earthly paradise for man must necessarily fail. The Committee, in this effort to preach the saving and sanctifying truths of the Gospel to the masses outside our ordinary places of worship, endeavour to meet the prejudices and habits of those they seek to reach—to bend their methods to the people, instead of expecting the people to bend themselves to their efforts.

"The claims of our great capital City, with its extraordinary number of five and a half millions of people, on the sympathy and help of Christians generally, are now happily recognised. The opening of an additional theatre last winter—The Queen's Theatre, Poplar—situated in the midst of a population of 'Dockers,' has proved a great success. Often 1000 to 1500 were found listening with great attention to the word preached, and many cases of decided blessing have resulted. Publicans, with their wives and families, were frequently among the audience."

The Committee plead, not only for the necessary funds to extend their work in the larger buildings—the theatres and town halls—but also to enable them to entertain the numerous applications they are receiving from the London City Missionaries for grants of money towards the opening of new mission-rooms in poor neighbourhoods, or the sustaining of old ones. The secretary is Mr. C. M. Sawell, 3, Bridewell-place, New Bridge-street, London, E.C.

THE BELGIAN ANTI-SLAVERY SOCIETY intends to summon a congress in Brussels during the second fortnight in January.

Christmas Cries & Christmas Cheer.

"If...they cry, I will surely hear their cry."

So, in loving kindness and tender mercy speaks the Lord concerning the poor and desolate among his people. Those ears, into which the harmonies of heaven's praise are continually poured, are open to even "the young ravens which cry," and they hear, with that wondrous sympathy that at once answers by "giving food." All through the precious Word, we seem to learn that the Lord is deeply touched by the "cries" of earth, whenever they represent helplessness and sorrow, and, if we would be followers of God, as dear children, our ears (with the influence upon them of the blood and holy oil, see Num. viii., xiv), must hear as He hears, and, ministering for Him, answer as He answers.

To-day we have the privilege—a sad and yet a glad one—of making some of "the cries" of our London poor heard, and we trust that many watching hearts will listen and feel, as each case appeals to them, that none shall be permitted to cry in vain for the "cheer" they sorely need.

The cases mentioned are representative ones selected from notes kindly supplied by the Mildmay Deaconesses, who, in the East-end and other destitute districts of the great city, visit the people regularly in their own homes and ascertain their real condition.

The relief given is most carefully distributed in providing coal, food, and clothing, at Christmastide and through the long weeks of winter, and one very valued help is the weekly allowance of an extra sixpence or shilling to widows and sick ones, who prudently manage their little all, and make a few pence go a long way!

"SUCH A LUXURY."

"We never have such a luxury as a blanket," said a poor Christian woman, in reply to a question as to whether she had sufficient covering. She had been suffering and ill for some time, and only with difficulty could I find out how really needy she was. Husband and wife are both earnest, consistent Christians, with a family of eight young children, and little work.

"GOD LOVES YOU."

It was a sad sight which met me on entering a damp lower room of a house in the poorest part of the East-end. On a hard comfortless bed lay the attenuated form of a young girl of singular beauty. Her wasted limbs and racking cough told, alas! how consumption was doing its deadly work, and she was slowly fading away. Knowing that she was utterly indifferent about her soul, I determined not to talk much to her; but, giving a ticket for beef-tea to be got at our mission-house, I said, "I have a message for you. Her face lighted up, and I said, "God loves you." Yes; surely this little gift was to her a proof of his wonderful love. Will some who know the love and joy of such a Saviour, help by their gifts—tokens of love—to open this poor girl's heart to receive Him e'er she enters "the valley of the shadow of death."

"WE CAN TRUST."

"We have only 3s. 6d. a week now to live on, but we can trust, for we know the Lord will provide." These are the touching words of an earnest old Christian, whose husband, a total abstainer for many years, knows what it is to rejoice in the midst of poverty, hunger, and cold. When the rent is paid, there is but fifteen-pence left for everything, and how often, with this scanty store, must there be need for the Lord's people to supply in this home of faith?

BREAD AND WATER FOR DINNER.

"Yes, I would like to come to your meetings, but you see, ma'am, how I am always busy at work (braiding), and can only earn a few shillings—at most, three—in a week; and you see how we live." The children, five of them, were having for their dinner bread and water, and not even the youngest would touch her food without first thanking God. "Sometimes I am able to give them something better, but they never complain, we are only very thankful for what God sends."

A PENNY BORROWED FOR COAL.

"We were so cold, we couldn't go on no longer with the matches, miss, so we borrowed a penny to get a little coal, and now we're getting on fine." This was the apology for the cheerful, but unaccustomed blaze in the fireplace, and the family were certainly making the most of it, though a look at the pinched faces of the five little children made one realise that more than warmth was needed for them. Can you imagine the scene! Father and mother hard at work making match-boxes, for which they get the usual payment of 2¼d. per gross. The eldest little girl of about nine tidying about the room and doing her best to manage the four younger ones, for "mother" cannot spare many minutes in the day for this purpose. "It's hard work to get bread for the children, miss, not to speak of the 4s. for rent every week." But the most heavy and pressing burden is evidently the unpaid shillings due to the landlord

"I often go without, to save up a little to get him some better clothing," was the confession of a brave, self-denying wife, who, when her husband's powers failed, said that she would "go to work instead." The details of this and many other cases (too long for insertion) are very touching, but we must be content to leave them now to a compassionate imagination.

We plead earnestly for thousands in circumstances of real need, for men, women, and little children, for sick and weary ones, whose feeble flame of life is flickering, and cannot last long; for desolate widows, cold and hungry; and we plead at the glad season when Christmas memories and New Year thanksgivings waken the heart's best impulses. Let none of us eat our morsel alone, but share it with the "poor brother fallen into decay," and with the needy sister. So shall our own bread be sweetened and our own lot brightened as, from love to Him who gave Himself for us, we give liberally to others. (Mrs.) E. Codner.

Conference Hall Office, Mildmay Park, London, N.

THE VILLAGE MISSION UNION was started in 1888, when two evangelists were appointed, who, since then, have visited about 200 villages in various parts of England, and God has blessed their labours. There are now two agents in Yorkshire, and one in Lincolnshire. The society makes a speciality of faith-healing; and a quarterly paper, giving details of the work, is issued by the secretary, Mr. Joseph Walshaw, 30, Elmfield-terrace, Savile Park, Halifax.

SOLDIERS' INSTITUTE, PORTSMOUTH.—The November number of Ready says:—"Twenty years ago our soldiers knew nothing of the advantages of regimental schools, libraries, and recreation-rooms, and much had to be done in this direction. Now things are changed: these provisions have been recognised by the military authorities as necessary, and the men are well provided for in their barracks. The need for earnest Christian work in the army has not, however, lessened. No! The need is greater to-day than ever in the past. The most debased of the civil population form a network of temptations to turn our soldiers into courses of evil; while the short-time service gives them an almost unlimited supply of raw recruits, without experience of the ways of the world, to seduce. Our work now is clear: we must give our soldiers a bright Christian Home, full of those enjoyments that have made many to look upon their home life as the most charming and beautiful scene upon earth." Mr. Hogben, the Editor of Ready, has now taken up his residence at the Institute, and intimates that he will be glad to see or correspond with men who are seeking spiritual help, and to hear from parents whose sons are in the army needing such assistance.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE.

For about ten years this institution has been doing a good and growing work, in qualifying young ladies medically to take a part in mission work, especially among the women of heathen countries. The report submitted by Dr. Griffith at the annual meeting in Exeter Hall, last week, was full of the most gratifying and encouraging facts. Former students of the College are now busily engaged in many parts of India and in other lands, treating the bodily complaints of their afflicted sisters, while at the same time imparting the consolations of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The only drawback is the lack of sufficient means to educate a larger number of students and so meet the great call for their services.

Sir Charles Aitchison, formerly Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjaub, presided; he made a very hearty speech in favour of medical missions generally, and of this College in particular. He suggested that an effort should be made by the committee to secure a more complete medical qualification for at least some of the students. At the same time he admitted that any degree of such knowledge and skill is of the utmost service in India in dealing with the wants of the women in zenanas, and in commending to them the Gospel message. Native practitioners, both male and female, are now being trained, and it is desirable that English sisters who go out should have every available qualification.

As to the matter of lengthening the curriculum, Hon. and Rev. E. Carr Glyn said it was a question of expense, and the present finances of the college could not bear the additional strain. He spoke with favour of the unsectarian nature of the institution and of its adaptability to the growing solicitude for the social elevation of mankind. He appealed to many ladies of means and leisure to devote their lives to such a noble and fruitful work. Rev. T. W. Wilkinson added some words of approval; and Rev. W. Gray, of the C.M.S., spoke very forcibly of the special needs and claims of India. What is wanted in the churches and in individual workers is more Christian sympathy with the ignorant and the suffering. Many more English ladies ought to be in India taking a part in this work. Rev. Sydenham Dixon also extolled the cosmopolitan character of the college, and dwelt on the necessity for its extension. Two very earnest appeals to full consecration from Salvation Army lasses, and a few cordial remarks from Dr. Hiles Hitchens concluded the interesting programme. A number of the students were present, but the outside attendance was not very large.

ALDERSHOT.—A good work is carried on at the Town Hall, North Camp, by Mr. Musslewhite, the soldiers' missionary. Many soldiers and civilians have professed conversion. In connection with this Mi-sion there have been earnest meetings in the open air, when Mr. Musslewhite was assisted by Mr. W. Croucher. The officers of the Aldershot garrison have assisted in the work by preaching in the Town Hall on Sundays. Large congregations have assembled to listen to earnest addresses by Major Owen Hay, and by Captains Treby and Travers.

THE CHURCH ARMY.—Rev. W. Carlile, honorary secretary of the Church Army, has not relinquished, as was announced, his control of that Society; nor has it ever been his intention to do so. On the contrary, he has been preparing for some time past the extension of the Tramps' and Inebriates' Labour Home Scheme throughout the country, the first of which has been working most successfully since last January. It is true that he has accepted a small country parish, near London, in order to retain his regained health, at the request of two London doctors. As the former incumbent only received about £90 last year, the financial gain to Mr. Carlile is merely nominal. His health being greatly restored, he will continue to take as great an interest in the Church Army as ever, though he has now further assistance at headquarters.

MISS ANSTEY'S FAREWELL TO KOLAR.

DEAR SIR,—You may know that the Lord, as I trust, has transferred me for the present in his service from Australia to India. I have come mainly at the suggestion of others, who considered I was called to the work. I am commended to the Churches of India by well-known servants of Christ in Victoria. My first aim is to help the Churches of India to a clearer apprehension of the fact of the coming of our Lord; and, in view of its certainty and possible nearness, to aid them in the promotion of holiness and evangelistic work. Another object is, if possible, to reach educated native gentlemen understanding English.

As it was the "call from Kolar" that gave the first impulse to this movement, I went to Kolar, after being and labouring in Bombay about a week. On reaching Kolar I found urgent desires for my services in three separate places; but, as Coty seemed my place, I am here with my hands already more than full. My brief experience has fully confirmed the long-cherished conviction as to the real advantage which would accrue to the work and interests of the Lord Jesus, if properly qualified servants of Christ (not raw recruits) would break loose from the trammels which bind them, where the servants of Christ are treading on each other's toes, and come forth into these dark, dark lands, where not only heathenism prevails, but where so much of apparent light is only darkness.

It was with no ordinary feelings I entered the compound at Kolar—a spot dear to me by my dear wife's love to and labours for it. In Bombay I was the guest of Rev. J. Robinson, elder of the A.M.E. Church in India, with whom I had much spiritual intercourse. The same opportunity was given me at Kolar with Rev. A. Baker, who, with his wife (a long resident and worker in India), has charge of the Kolar work. I found a deep tone of genuine spirituality and devotedness to the Lord's work in all three, and rejoiced that such a work was going into such safe and sound hands.

I had repeated meetings in English with the workers, and young men and women ready to go to work; and on the Lord's Day preached (through an interpreter), and joined them at the Lord's Table. The sight of some sixty once heathen famine orphans, now young men and women, and at the Table of the Lord, and leading holy lives, was touching beyond description. Others, but I do not know how many, were absent from various causes.

On Tuesday, Miss Anstey had to endure the anguish of parting with her children, and I shall be thankful if I am spared having to witness such another scene. From all I could see and learn, I concluded that the result of Miss Anstey's thirteen to fourteen years' service was simply splendid, and that it has not been transferred one hour too soon. The work has clearly emerged quite out of that state which required the fostering care of a mother into a church work capable of indefinite extension; and demanding, on Scripture grounds, such direction and oversight as qualified pastors alone can give. The friends of the work in England and Australia may rest assured that the work at Kolar (which has changed leadership by the willing consent of the whole community, and after full consideration) is as worthy of sympathy and help as it ever was. In one sense it is even more so, because, as the A.M.E. Church has made Kolar the centre of its work in South India, an active aggression in the "regions beyond" will be carried out, which would have been wholly beyond Miss Anstey's power, either to originate or control. A beginning in this direction was made while I was there, two young men being set apart to go, under the guidance of an experienced brother, into parts untouched by Christian effort.

[1140]

Miss Anstey's devoted service in that heathen centre is beyond price, or praise. Hence it was a grief to find an Indian Christian periodical stating that Miss Anstey had handed "the Mission over, with its liabilities." She has handed it over, and, as I have no doubt, under Divine direction, and properties worth alone in rupees 30,000, but without liability. To her honour be it recorded, she has paid the uttermost farthing.—Yours truly,

G. W. GILLINGS.

Ootacamund, South India, Oct. 18.

GIRL LIFE IN LONDON.

AN eloquent "Statement and Appeal," entitled "Girl Life in London," has been issued on behalf of the Young Women's Christian Association. At the outset it speaks of the great usefulness of the Travellers' Aid, which looks after strange young women on their arrival in London, and endeavours to clear our railway stations of evil-designing persons. An agent is always at work trying to save our girls, and in one year as many as 400, friendless in the midst of dangers, were helped. Then there is a notice of the effort to reach the many thousands of factory girls, who for the most part are ill-mannered because they have never been brought under gentle influences, and ignorant through the straitened circumstances in which they have been brought up. The Factory Helpers' Union has done much to benefit these, and a ready response has been given to the kindness shown.

The weary inmates of the workrooms have been visited; nursemaids who spend much time in public parks are approached; waitresses and barmaids, beset by many temptations and busy during long hours, are befriended. Kind words go a long way, and only those who, banded together to advance the good objects of the Association, have gone among these various classes, largely strangers in the great City, know how blessed is this work of faith and labour of love. The various institutes dotted over London have proved a great service to young women employed in business houses. For these there are evening classes for the study of subjects that can be turned to good account without much difficulty, as occasion may demand. At the Central Institute, 17, Old Cavendish-street, W., there are a thousand members. The rooms are open throughout the day and every evening, and in them West-end toilers find welcome rest and recreation. The rooms are, as near as may be, a "home from home." There is an employment agency, and, what with educational classes and social efforts, the workers are full-handed, and the premises taxed for accommodation. The Associations are circles of friendship; and no girl who joins need feel friendless or lonely. In London alone there is a membership of 17,000.

This question of accommodation has now become one of urgency. A scheme has been formed for the purchase of institute premises in various parts of the Metropolis. The "pressing requirements" make a total of £21,000, towards the raising of which an appeal has been issued, signed by many gentlemen of influence, including ministers of various denominations. It says: "There are forty institutes, evening homes, and boarding houses, where girls and young women coming up from the country are lodged and cared for at a very small charge, giving them the comforts of a Christian Home, and keeping them from the numberless temptations which beset them in London. In addition to this the educational wants of the young women are provided for as far as the present accommodation will allow, nearly two thousand students attending the different classes. Perhaps a more important work is that carried on at the smaller homes and institutes, dotted all over the outlying suburbs, and managed by ladies living in their immediate neighbourhood."

It is hoped by purchasing some of the institutes, to place the work upon a more permanent basis. The hon. finance secretary is Mr. W. T. Paton, 2, Pall Mall East, S.W.

TOWER HAMLETS Y.M.C.A.

THE Tower Hamlets Artisan Y.M.C.A. makes steady headway, and continues to enlist new friends. The fourteenth annual meeting was held on Tuesday evening last week in the Great Assembly Hall, Mile End-road, and it is hoped that the very interesting proceedings will result in new impetus being given to the movement which the Association represents There are thousands of working men whom the Association would rejoice to enclose within its embrace, and anniversary celebrations are as nets thrown out to attract them to Christian sympathy and fellowship.

A goodly number of members and friends sat down to tea, after which Mr. H. C. LESTER presided over a public meeting. The report rendered by Mr. S. B. RUSSELL, hon. sec., was full of encouragement. The membership stands at 274, men who can, for the most part, be called upon at any time to take part in evangelistic effort. During the year over 600 meetings were held in churches, chapels, mission-halls, and lodging-houses, attended by about 60,000 persons. The open-air meetings numbered 425, held in several centres, at which upwards of 100,000 tracts were distributed. All the members are pledged abstainers from strong drink, and Gospel Temperance meetings were organised in many districts. Mr. Russell remarked that there are in East London some 500,000 working men, for whom Associations should be formed, and he expressed a hope that the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. would not delay in the vigorous promotion of Artisan Associations.

Mr. E. H. KERWIN, president of the Association, delivered an address affording strong evidence of his deep interest in the work among artisans. He maintained that Christian workers must take men as they find them, and not leave them because they are not what some would like them to be. Young men of the commercial class have had much done for them, while the artisans have been sadly neglected. The institutions which others have learned to appreciate so highly are also wanted for the Christian working men, including wholesome lodgings, and a seaside home for such as are recovering from sickness. The young men of the East-end walk the streets in thousands, and public-houses and other traps are wide open for them. There are also institutions catering for their temporal amusement and culture, but these do nothing to bring them to Christ. The Artisan Y.M.C.A. exists to concern itself with this very work; it takes the young men by the hand at the very time they need friendship and guidance, and God has much blessed the efforts that have been put forth. Mr. Kerwin concluded with an impassioned appeal for sympathy and support to the enterprise, which is calculated to do great things in the name of Christ in densely populated East London.

LECTURES TO PREACHERS. — On Friday evening last, at the Baptist Mission-house, Furnival-street, Holborn, Rev. James Neil concluded the series of four lectures on "Strange Scenes in Palestine," delivered to the members and friends of the Open-Air Mission. This Society has thus provided for its preachers rich and rare instruction, and illumination of Bible truth. Mr. Neil's lectures ought to be widely known and appreciated. He is able, through intimate knowledge of manners, customs, and languages of the East, to throw light on many difficult passages of Scripture. His address is Hamilton House, Acton, W.

F. C.

For the Young.

AN INDIAN GIRL CARRIED OFF.

BY C. M. TUCKER (A.L.O.E.),
Missionary at Batála, Panjab.

LAST year, bringing with him a daughter about nine or ten years of age, a fine looking man from Pind Dadar Khan appeared, as a convert from Islam, and offered himself as a candidate for baptism at Batála. Allah Ditta brought a recommendation, and there seemed to be no reason to doubt his sincerity; but Dr. Weitbrecht, exercising caution, kept the man for months as a catechumen, to be more fully instructed in the Christian faith. Allah Ditta's little girl was, with her father's full consent, placed in Mrs. Grime's excellent school, in Amritsar, where our Rájan was kindly supported by Miss Ward and her friends in England. Not till February, 1890, did parent and child stand together by the font in the church of Batála, where they both received baptism at the hands of Dr. Weitbrecht.

Rájan returned to school, her father was given employment, and not till the hot season came did any black cloud arise in the sky. Little Rájan came to pass the long holidays at Batála, where we were pleased to see the improvement which she had made at school. The girl repeated various portions of Scripture. She joined in prayer, attended the Church service, and sweet it was to hear her young voice blending with that of others in singing bhajans in honour of Him who had saved her soul. In the verandah of the Mission bungalow, Rájan had repeated interviews with her father.

Allah Ditta himself had not given so much satisfaction. There was no apparent stain on his character, but he is an intensely lazy man who seems to act out the Italian proverb, "Never run when you can walk; never walk when you can stand; never stand when you can sit; never sit when you can lie down." Such a man wishes to receive wages without earning them. It soon became clear that giving employment to Allah Ditta was but a waste of money.

We know who finds employment for idle hands. The Mahomedans of Batála are fiercely eager to make converts recant. Christianity has a dangerous enemy there in one, himself an apostate, who helped to crush our four Mission schools for girls.

The first thing that startled me into a sense of danger hanging over the lamb under my charge was a post-card in Undu from a Mahomedan, with whom I had no acquaintance, yet a "well-wisher," who tried to put me on my guard. He told me that the man who had been baptized was about to turn Mahomedan, and that he would claim his daughter! Dr. Weitbrecht was absent, but the native Christians, tried and true, whom I consulted, thought that the danger to Rájan was great. It appeared that Allah Ditta had himself informed one that the Mahomedans had promised that if he would bring his girl, they would marry her to a well-to-do follower of Islam, and that then her father, without need of working himself, would be maintained in her house! This was a bribe to sacrifice his innocent, helpless, motherless child, by giving her to a man whose age might quadruple her own (with perhaps one or two wives already), and imprisoning her in a zenana; a bribe to doom her to the darkness of ignorance when she was beginning to rejoice in the light. To have killed Rájan would have been doing less injury to the child!

We saw that Batála was no longer a safe fold for the girl, as the father could easily have carried her off from our open compound. By the very next train I took the little one to Amritsar, and asked Miss Hewlett, of St. Catherine's Hospital, kindly to take charge of her for a while. We were uncertain then whether Allah Ditta would really recant; he professed to Dr. Weitbrecht, on his return, that he had no intention to do so, and declared that the warning postcard had been written out of malice. When in the train with my young companion, I asked her if she loved the Lord; Rájan readily replied that she did. All unconscious of impending evil, the little girl went to Amritsar, where she was very happy with many young companions under Miss Hewlett's watchful care.

Week after week passed; we heard little of Allah Ditta; he appeared to have gone—we know not whither, leaving us and his child in peace.

On September 16, I received a most startling note from Miss Hewlett. The child over whom she had been kindly watching had been suddenly carried off on her way to church! A party of nearly sixty women and girls from St. Catherine's had been peacefully proceeding on their way to the place of worship, when they were stopped by a band of Mahomedan men. Allah Ditta, who was one of them, seized his girl, who struggled, resisted, and screamed in vain. What could the frightened native women do to save her! The Mahomedans placed the child between two policemen, doubtless of their own faith, and thus was Rájan forcibly taken away. Miss Hewlett, in her carriage, was on her way to church when she caught sight of a poor young pleading face; it was that of the child whom she had no power to protect from an unworthy father.

After receiving the note I went up at once to Amritsar, and consulted an able lawyer. He could give me no hope of the recovery of the lost child. She is in the enemy's hands; even if Rájan could be brought into court she would probably be frightened by terrible threats into saying whatever her father desired. But we have no power to bring her into court, she being quite under age.

Why is this sad story written? To enlist the prayers of the Christians of England for a motherless girl, sacrificed by her own father! It is also to call the attention of Christians to the startling fact, that such cases in India may be indefinitely repeated. Parents, false and treacherous, may give cheerful consent to their children's baptism, to their receiving Christian instruction, and, in some cases, being fed and clothed at the expense of others; and these parents then, moved by covetousness, or taking huff and so deserting the Church themselves, may virtually sell their unhappy offspring to a fate worse than death. I have known five such cases connected with the Batála Mission alone. Should these things be? I appeal to Him who has called the little children; I appeal to the Good Shepherd, who loves the lambs; and I also appeal to my native country, the land which I am never likely again to see, but to which a now aged missionary looks with confidence for sympathy and for prayer.

ROMFORD.—Mr. Lewes Sayer, assisted by Messrs. C. G. Wood and Percy Roberts, has concluded a fortnight's mission here, at the Public Hall. Despite the wintry weather, the attendances were large. There was a White Cross meeting for boys, and a special meeting for young ladies.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Dec. 7, Isa. viii. 13—22; Mon., Dec. 8, Isa. ix. 1—7; Tues., Dec. 9, Isa. xi. 1—12; Wed., Dec. 10, Isa. xii. 1—6; Thurs., Dec. 11, Isa. xxv. 1—12; Fri., Dec. 12, Isa. xxvi. 1—13; Sat., Dec. 13, Isa. xxviii. 9—20.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. H. Hutchinson, St. Chrysostom's, Liverpool, to Dec. 5; Newcastle, Staffordshire, Dec. 10; Reading, Dec. 14, 15. Mr. T. L. Sayer, Presbyterian Church, Hampstead, Dec. 7—19. Mr. J. S. Tyler, Chowbent, Manchester, Dec. 2—5; Y.M.C.A., Newport, Monmouthshire, Dec. 8—15. Mr. H. W. Pewtress, Victoria Chapel, Clapham, to Dec. 6.

A MISSION AT CHESTER.

A twelve days' mission has been held in the Town Hall by Mr. Edwin Arrowsmith. There was a daily meeting for children and young people, many of whom professedly gave their hearts to the Lord. The meetings for parents, young women, young men, &c., were also attended with much interest.

A juvenile temperance meeting was held one evening, upwards of forty young people donned the blue ribbon, and several took pledge books to get others to join. A number of young people also joined the Scripture Union.

At the farewell meeting the large assembly room was crowded, and many of Mr. Arrowsmith's hearers deeply regretted that it was the last night. Christians have been strengthened and encouraged to more earnest work for God. Bible classes have been commenced for girls and boys not attending Sunday-schools, and a weekly prayer meeting started amongst Christians.

THE ANTI-OPIUM MOVEMENT.

YORKSHIRE WOMEN'S CONFERENCE AT LEEDS.

A WOMEN'S conference, in connection with the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade, was held at Leeds, on Tuesday week, at which ladies were present from Bradford, Halifax, Rotherham, Ilkley, York, Dewsbury, Harrogate, Cleckheaton, Malton, Doncaster, and Barnsley, as well as many from Leeds. Mrs. E. Walker, of Doncaster, presided at the morning sitting, and a paper was read prepared by Mrs. Harvey, of Leeds. She said we had smuggled, bribed, negotiated, and warred with the Chinese to uphold and extend that traffic. Could we wonder that many of the Chinese refused to believe that the Bible and the faith we offered them could be pure, holy and divine? The women of England should no longer be in ignorance of this great evil as it existed in British India, for whose good government we were responsible, and where we were growing opium in large quantities simply for revenue.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Edward Crossley, of Halifax, occupied the chair, and gave a thoughtful and interesting address. A paper by Miss Braithwaite (London) was read, which dwelt on the means by which women could assist the movement. She suggested that information should be disseminated by means of public meetings, by the distribution of tracts and other publications, and they must remember also that prayer was a most important part of their work.

At the suggestion of Miss Whiting (Leeds), the conference adopted a brief but cordial reply to the address from the Christian women of Tung Chow, North China, which recently appeared in our columns (now published as a tract by Dyer Brothers, 31, Paternoster-row). It was also resolved to promote a petition to Parliament against the traffic, for signature by Yorkshire women.

In the evening a public meeting was held, at which Mr. Arthur Pease (Darlington) presided, and addresses were delivered by Mr. George Andrew, of the China Inland Mission, and Mr. J. G. Alexander, Secretary of the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade. The latter, referring to the revenue difficulty, said that the average net revenue from opium was now five millions Indian currency, equivalent, at present rate of exchange, to three and three quarters millions sterling. Whilst holding that a revenue derived from an immoral source could not possibly be necessary for the discharge of Britain's duty towards India, the Society was also satisfied that they could point out unobjectionable modes of meeting the deficiency to be caused by its abandonment. There might be considerable retrenchment, both in the military and civil expenditure. As to the former, a Military Commission, appointed by the Indian Government some years ago, had reported that economies to the extent of one and a quarter millions could be effected without any loss of efficiency, but the bulk of the reforms then recommended had never yet been carried out. The resources of India, also, could be developed. Until these reforms could be carried out, it would be the duty of the British people to give such temporary assistance as might be requisite to avoid the necessity of imposing fresh taxation on the masses of India.

MISS LUCY GUINNESS is engaged in a tour of female colleges in the United States in the interest of foreign missions.

MR. CHARLES COOK IN EDINBURGH.

Mr. Charles Cook, of Hyde-park Hall, London, has lately held a fortnight's evangelistic services in connection with the Carrubber's-close Mission, Edinburgh. On Sunday evenings the meetings were held in the Free Assembly Hall, and on week nights in the large hall of the Mission in the High-street. A goodly number came to hear the Gospel each night, and the Sunday evening gatherings were very large. Mr. Cook's awakening style of address is specially needed in this city, where the Gospel is so well known in theory, and there have been many persons aroused to a sense of their danger and opportunity. A number have declared their decision for Christ.

The closing meeting, in the Free Assembly Hall on Sunday, November 23, when Mr. Cook spoke on "The Unreasonableness of Unbelief," was one of special power. At the after-meeting, in response to a call from Mr. Cook, some twenty persons, mostly young men, rose to testify that they had been recently led to Christ; and some of these afterwards gave their testimony in a few words. An encouraging feature of the work has been the bringing to light of cases of blessing through addresses given by Mr. Cook when visiting Edinburgh in the summer.

Mr. Cook also conducted the Noon Prayer Meeting daily during the greater part of his visit, when the attendance was larger than usual. He has lectured in two of the churches, and in the Free Assembly Hall, upon his work in distributing Testaments in the prisons of Russia. His visit will long be remembered with interest and gratitude by many in this city.

C. N. B. M.

Edinburgh.

ORPHAN HOMES OF SCOTLAND.

Sir,—On Saturday week we received a letter from a friend on the West Coast, saying: "Having great sympathy for the poor little children born in suffering and misery, I am desirous of aiding you, if I can, in your efforts to make the battle of life a little easier for them. I shall give for this purpose, my place, which is a perfect residence, both in regard to health and comfort, being all in good order." Not having had time to go and see the place before our annual meeting, we were unwilling to mention the gift at the public gathering then; but, having visited it, we find it all that the giver said it was—indeed, it is a perfect gem of a place—and so we can now say that we have a Children's Paradise by the sea as well as one amid the hills of Renfrewshire.

It will be a great acquisition to the work, in enabling us to give a change to many of the delicate and feeble little ones from among the 2000 we hope to deal with annually, and we believe it will accomplish the giver's desire in the alleviating of the sufferings of the poor needy children of our land, as well as be another token from our Heavenly Father to their hearts of his love and care for them. Whilst our Homes at Bridge of Weir are everything we can desire for health, yet we feel in many cases that a change of air is often very beneficial in restoring health or prolonging the life of the sick and ailing little ones we have to deal with in our work for the children. We ask our friends to join us in renewed thanksgiving to the Lord for his additional gifts to the National Orphan Homes. We feel sure the seven other cottages required, as well as the new schoolhouse so much needed, and which will cost £5000, will be sent also. All letters or parcels for the Homes should be addressed to me, either to our City Home, James Morrison-street, Glasgow; or to Orphan Homes of Scotland, Bridge of Weir.

I am, &c., Wm. Quarrier.

We observe with pleasure that Mr. Quarrier, since this letter was written, has received from a friend £2000 for the erection of one of the seven needed cottages.

N.E. LONDON GOSPEL MISSION.

The annual meeting of this many-sided Mission was held at Earlham Hall, Islington, on Tuesday in last week, when a large number of friends attended what proved to be one of the most interesting and successful yearly meetings the Mission has held. It is twenty years since Mr. Chorley was entrusted with the care of the work, and those who can remember the Mission in those early days will know how truly the hand of the Lord has been with his servant, as evidenced by its quiet growth till it has now attained it present position.

What the Mission is doing the friends heard from the report given by the director. Before the more set addresses, deeply-interesting details were forthcoming from some of the workers. The balance-sheet shewed a diminished income and a slightly-increased adverse balance.

Sir Robert Phayre presided. Mr. A. H. Simmonds, supporting the claims of the work, said that by visiting the work at various of the halls, he had the greatest confidence in its thoroughness and usefulness. He particularly mentioned the factory girls' work, showing what the Mission's influence had been amongst the roughest match-factory hands. The country and sea-side home work was referred to in detail, from which it was plain that the poor ones who had shared the advantages greatly enjoyed the spiritual privileges the homes afford.

"Seek first the kingdom of God," is the motto sought to be remembered in every detail, by this comprehensive mission, and the result was affirmed that souls had been born from above at each busy centre, amongst both old and young. The visitors from Bow-common branch, told dreary tales of destitution and what they were doing with the feeble resources at their disposal, and pleaded for enlarged help. As the dole is only given where personal knowledge confirms its need and as practical wisdom is exercised as to the form in which it is given friends cannot but rest assured that any help sent will be usefully employed. Practical and warm-hearted addresses were delivered by the chairman and Mr. Edward Wright. Communications may be addressed to Mr. Chorley, at 2, Marquess-grove, Canonbury, N.

IRELAND.—Evangelistic meetings have been held by Rev. Mr. Robinson in St. James's Church, Athboy; by Rev. Mr. Patton, and others, in Tandragee; and by Rev. James Donnelly, in Rathfriland. Similar meetings have been held at Doagh, co. Antrim, and at Youghal, co. Cork.

A VILLAGE Y.M.C.A.—Mr. E. E. Evans writes from Brimscombe-court, Stroud, Glos.:—"For twelve years the Brimscombe Y.M.C.A. has plodded on, attempting nothing but spiritual work; the membership has seldom been more than twenty-five actual members, but the Association has been a blessing to scores, and a power for God in the district. During the past five years over forty men have confessed faith toward the Lord Jesus. This winter the Association has initiated a work on the lines of the Polytechnic, and, so far, all is full of encouragement. Our premises only consist of two large warehouse floors, well lighted and fitted with benches, tools, lathes, &c., an engine, and a small gymnasium. The 'sons of toil' eagerly respond to warm sympathy, and speedily develop into bold open-air preachers and earnest workers for God."

"A MODERN APOSTLE":

THE LATE REV. DR. A. N. SOMERVILLE.

Again and again during his prolonged and useful life we had the joy of recording the work of this veteran minister and world-evangelist, whose death occurred fourteen months ago.

Loving him, as we did, for his natural excellencies, and esteeming him very highly for his work's sake, we welcome the record of his missionary journeys which has been placed into permanent form under the above title (London: John Murray. 7s. 6d.) by Geo. Smith, LL.D., C.I.E., of Edinburgh (biographer also of William Carey and Dr. Alex. Duff).

Such a life as Dr. Somerville's, with its threescore and sixteen years, might naturally be expected to yield good fruit to the glory of his Master, but few careers have been characterised by so remarkable a variety of experience and wealth of result in the service of the Gospel, all over the world, as his.

After upwards of forty years of ministry to one congregation, he undertook, at the age of sixty, the series of foreign missionary journeys which have endeared his memory to thousands. Truly his "field" was "the world," as he proclaimed the glad tidings in England, Ireland, and Scotland, India and America, Asia and Africa, Spain, France and Italy, Germany and Russia, Greece and Turkey, Hungary and Slavonia.

Besides a very life-like portrait, and various illustrations, the volume contains numerous extracts from private letters and diaries which have been skilfully handled by the biographer; and we know of few, if any, books of so world-wide an interest as this. Our only regret is that it does not occupy several volumes instead of one, but that one contains more than many twice its size. While sympathising with the author that he had comparatively so little space at his disposal, we congratulate him on his powers of selection and condensation.

A life like Dr. Somerville's cannot be bound within covers; it must be lived. And we trust that this generation will see many who will emulate his heroic earnestness and zeal for the salvation of souls.

CHILDREN OF THE LONDON POOR.—On Wednesday last week a large assemblage met in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sully, 18, Trebovir-road, S.W., to consider the pressing needs of the children of the poor and the benevolent work of the Ragged School Union. Mr. John Kirk submitted a statement of the work of the Union, and intimated that the funds were exhausted and required to be replenished. The Baroness Burdett-Coutts spoke at considerable length, and with remarkable fervour and effect. She attached great importance to the religious instruction given in ragged schools. Mr. Sully also spoke of the many claims of the Union to sympathy and support. Rev. C. Silvester Horne gave his experience of the efficiency of ragged schools.

LITERATURE FOR MISSIONARIES.—Rev. John F. Geddes, Coventryville, Chenango co., New York, writing to express thanks for The Christian, sent by a friend, says:—"On the north of Newfoundland, amid our rigorous winters, in Nova Scotia, and even hither, it has followed me. Could your readers have a glance into the life experience of the missionary abroad, they would thus spare him a paper occasionally. Even if a month old, it is new to him. And if he has a Sabbath-school, the little ones like to learn new tunes occasionally, so old Easter music or Christmas cantatas are highly welcomed. Never did I meet with one instance among the lumber camps, the Indians, the Esquimaux, or the fishermen in Newfoundland, Labrador, or Greenland Coast, where religious papers were destroyed; they are literally worn out by circulation, the people are so anxious to have them. A copy of this or other Christian paper sent to Mrs. K. Baird, Twillingate, Newfoundland, would be very acceptable. In my new charge I would still like to receive the bounty of those who can remember the lone missionary."

NEW BOOKS

SUITABLE FOR

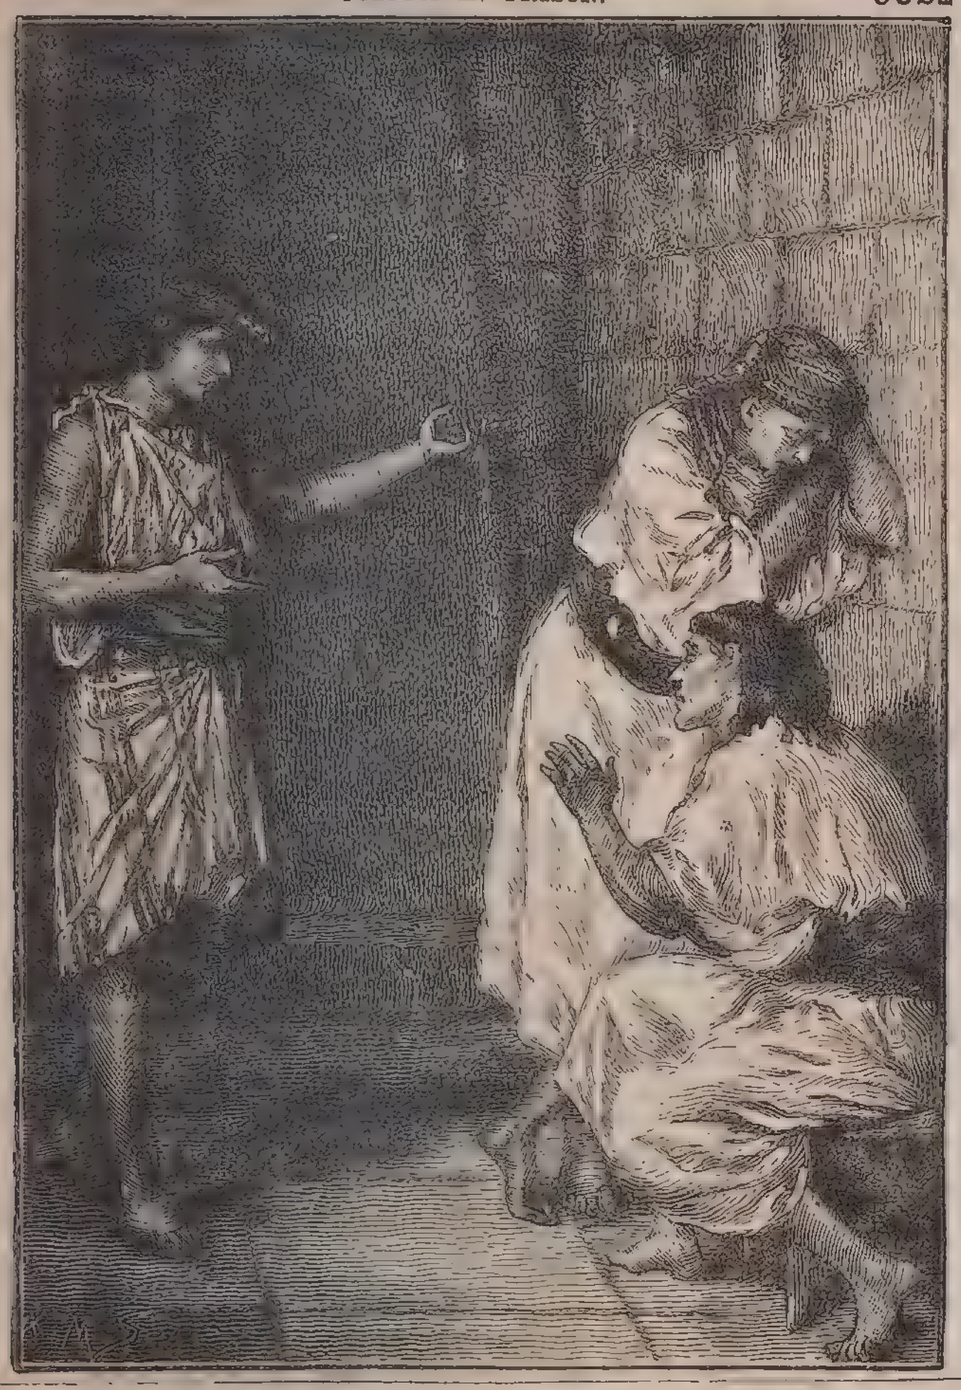
CHRISTMAS PRESENTS AND NEW YEAR GIFTS.

PUBLISHED BY

MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, London, E.C.

And may be Ordered of any Bookseller in the Kingdom.

JOSEPH IN PRISON.



JUST PUBLISHED.

NEW BOOK BY
REV. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Joseph:

Beloved—Hated—Exalted.

WITH NINE ILLUSTRATIONS,
Specially Engraved, and Printed on Toned Paper.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.;
Presentation Edition:
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

JOSEPH MAKING HIMSELF KNOWN
JOSEPH SENT BY HIS FATHER TO DOTHAN
JOSEPH SOLD BY HIS BRETHREN
JOSEPH IN PRISON
INTERPRETING PHARAOH'S DREAM
JOSEPH'S TRIUMPH
JACOB SENDING HIS SONS TO BUY CORN
THE CUP FOUND IN BENJAMIN'S SACK
JOSEPH'S LAST CHARGE

Contents.

Early Days
The Pit
In the House of Potiphar
The Secret of Purity
Misunderstood and Imprisoned
The Steps of the Throne
Joseph's First Interview with his Brethren
Joseph's Second Interview with his Brethren
Joseph Making Himself Known
Joseph's Administration of Egypt
Joseph's Father
Joseph at the Death-bed of Jacob
The Secret of Fruitfulness
The Secret of Strength
The Secret of Blessedness
Joseph's Last Days and Death

In the present volume Mr. MEYER re-tells with skill and pathos the old-world story of the Israelitish youth who rose through pit and prison to the post of Premier of Egypt: a story of undying interest and worth, not only as a true tale of Eastern romance, but as a unique example of the value of piety, purity of life, and fidelity in service. The artistically finished engravings tell their own thrilling story almost without the aid of the accompanying letterpress.

"Joseph has always been a central figure in Biblical History. He stands for the highest virtue as well as for commanding influence in dealing with God's own people. Indeed, he is the most prominent figure in a wonderfully providential history. In unfolding this providence and presenting strikingly the leading characteristics of Joseph himself, Mr. MEYER has shown marked ability. His style is so perfectly simple, so unaffectedly earnest, and so full of sympathy with truth and righteousness, that its very movement adds an additional charm to the wonderful facts narrated. As a Sunday School book, it is the very best we have seen on Joseph."

The Christian Commonwealth.

"Tried by Fire:" 7th THOUSAND.

BY
Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Expositions on the First Epistle of Peter.

"Since the commentary of Archbishop Leighton has almost monopolized the field of spiritual exposition few have attempted to tread precisely the same ground as that heavenly-minded expounder in his treatment of this Epistle. His commentary has one defect from which Mr. MEYER'S exposition is free—viz., diffusiveness of style and quantity of matter. Indeed, we doubt whether any work has appeared since the time of Leighton, on the same subject, which equals the one before us. The text is expounded with grammatical precision, and a graceful use of exegesis is made to bring out some underlying thought. Mr. MEYER'S estimation of character is fair and neatly balanced, and his illustrations rich in the emphasis which they give to peculiar truths. The author raises the standard of holiness high upon the pedestal of the Gospel. Nor can it be lowered without grave consequences, in an age when soundness in the faith is made a substitute for sanctification of life. This handsome volume exactly answers to our idea of what a good exposition ought to be."—The Rock.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

The Herald of Mercy

Handsomely Bound in Cloth Boards, 1/6

ANNUAL VOLUME.

Containing 52 Engravings.

Attractively Bound in Illustrated Boards, 1/-

The Methodist Recorder says:—
"The Volume contains nearly one hundred pages of Stories, Sketches, and Articles, all of a distinctly religious character, with very many good pictures. There is something in it for each member of the family."

"'The Herald' well deserves the title of 'a messenger for humble homes,' and will be greeted as a very welcome messenger by many."

The Literary World.

"It has always been a favourite with us. Its sound Gospel teaching, apt illustrations, and beautiful pictures are bright and charming."

The Baptist Messenger.

"The Christian" Bible Readings.

GENESIS.
EXODUS.
LEVITICUS.
NUMBERS.
DEUTERONOMY.

NOTES AND READINGS ON THE FIVE BOOKS OF MOSES.

	s.	d.
Tinted Covers	1	0
Cloth Limp ..	1	6
Presentation Editions:
Cloth Boards	2	0
Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges	2	6

"A series of useful notes to accompany the reading of the Pentateuch. If any of our Bible-class friends should be thinking of studying this part of God's Word, they cannot do better than accept the guidance proffered them in this volume."—The Quiver.

The Catacombs at Rome:

BY
BENJAMIN SCOTT, F.R.A.S.,
Chamberlain of the City of London.

Their Contents and Teachings.

A VINDICATION OF PURE AND PRIMITIVE CHRISTIANITY, AND AN EXPOSURE OF THE CORRUPTIONS OF ROMANISM: DERIVED FROM THE SEPULCHRAL REMAINS OF THE EARLY CHRISTIANS AT ROME.

WITH NUMEROUS ILLUSTRATIONS.

Tinted Covers, 2s. Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"We have read this book with great satisfaction. It is sound, healthy, and interesting. It furnishes a most convincing chapter of Christian evidences, and is an effective exposé of the lies and shams of Romanism. It is an admirable volume to place in the hands of our intelligent youth."

Divine Life.

"The book shows something of the dark doings of paganism—upon which dawned the light of Christianity—of the CATACOMBS, and of Romanism and the corruption of Christianity. This is a useful volume on primitive Christianity, and one we cordially recommend."

Nonconformist.

Sacred Songs and Solos:

WITH STANDARD HYMNS COMBINED.

CONTAINING
750 PIECES
IN ONE VOLUME.

COMPILED AND SUNG BY Ira D. Sankey.

The following Editions, in Superior Bindings, are specially suitable for Christmas Presents and New Year Gifts.

MUSIC AND WORDS.

Old Notation.

		s.	d.
FF 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges ..	6	6
FF 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	10	6
FF 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	14	6

Old Notation.

HH 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges..	4	0
HH 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	6	6
HH 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	9	6

Tonic Sol-fa.

RR 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges..	4	0
RR 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	6	6
RR 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	9	6

WORDS ONLY.

Pocket Edition.

		s.	d.
CC 3.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges ..	1	6
CC 4.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	3	0
CC 5.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	4	6

Large Type.

DD 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges ..	2	6
DD 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	4	6

Extra Large Type.

EE 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges ..	3	6
EE 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	6	6
EE 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	9	6

QUARTO EDITIONS:

For use at the Piano, Harmonium, or Organ.

	s.	d.
Cloth Boards	7	6
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	9	6
Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	17	6
Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	25	0

A Complete List of the editions of Songs and Solos with Specimens of Type—WORDS ONLY from 2d. upwards, and MUSIC AND WORDS (either Old Notation or Sol-fa) from 2s. 6d. upwards— may be had on application to the Publishers.

Sacred Songs & Solos (750 PIECES) and The Christian Choir (79 PIECES).

829 PIECES
IN ONE VOLUME.

The following Editions, in Superior Bindings, are specially suitable for Christmas Presents and New Year Gifts.

WORDS ONLY.

Pocket Edition.

		s.	d.
XB 4.	Cloth Boards, Gilt Edges	1	6
XB 5.	Morocco, Gilt Edges..	3	6

WORDS ONLY.

Extra Large Type.

		s.	d.
XE 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges ..	4	0
XE 5.	Morocco, Gilt Edges	7	6
XE 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined..	10	6

QUARTO EDITION:

For use at the Piano, Harmonium, or Organ.

	s.	d.
Cloth Boards	8	6
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	10	6
Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	20	0
Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	27	6

A VERY HANDSOME GIFT-BOOK.

"The Christian" Portrait Gallery

Containing over ONE HUNDRED Specially Engraved Portraits of well-known Christian Men and Women of the present day. Each Portrait is accompanied by an interesting Biographic Sketch.

Large 4to Size.

Handsomely Bound in Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges,
10/6

As a CHRISTMAS or NEW YEAR Present.

"This is certainly a splendid volume. The portraits are beautifully executed; and in all the instances in which we can speak from personal knowledge, are life-like in their accuracy. To each portrait a charming Biographical Notice is appended. Paper, printing, and binding are superb. This is a volume which would ornament any drawing-room table. What an elegant Christmas or New Year Present it will make!"—The Christian Age.

For the Drawing-room Table.

"A beautifully-bound volume in good type, on superior paper. It will be much valued as a nice accompaniment to a drawing-room table, and a useful book of reference. It does one good to glance at the faces of so many men and women, all of whom, in various ways, have been widely known as having worked for the establishment of God's kingdom during the present decade."
The Friend.

ISSUE OF

"The Christian" Portrait Gallery

IN 13 MONTHLY PARTS. Price SIXPENCE Each Part.

For an outlay which will be almost imperceptible, Subscribers will obtain the Portraits and Biographies of upwards of One Hundred well-known and honoured Christian Men and Women of the Present Day.

Part I. will be published on December 15th.

WORKS BY

Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Abraham:

10th THOUSAND.

Or, the Obedience of Faith.

With Nine Specially Engraved Illustrations.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"Mr. MEYER is a meditative writer, keen to observe the spiritual suggestions of Bible narrative: and the contents of the volume before us are such that no one can rise from their perusal without feeling consciously strengthened in God, and inspired afresh for the godly life. Our teachers may learn from this biography how to draw out the spiritual lessons of the Sacred Word. The volume is beautifully illustrated, and so tastefully bound as to be a most acceptable gift-book."
Sunday School Chronicle.

Israel: A Prince with God.

13th THOUSAND.

With Nine Specially Engraved Illustrations.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"This biography of Jacob might have been written as a memoir: it is so unbroken in interest, vivid in delineation of character, and comprehensive in criticism and comment. With a keen moral insight, and a deep spiritual sympathy, the author describes the piety and weakness of the best-beloved of the Patriarchs."—Christian Leader.

Elijah: and the Secret of his Power.

15th THOUSAND.

With Nine Specially Engraved Illustrations.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"The leading object of this volume is to show that Elijah's God is our God; and how a like power may be ours if our dependence is in the living God. It is encouraging and stimulating; yet full of solemn warnings. Some parts are grandly written, and of thrilling interest. We would commend the book to all, especially to Christian workers."
Footsteps of Truth.

The Shepherd Psalm.

19th THOUSAND.

Meditations on the 23rd Psalm.

Cloth Boards, 1s.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s. 6d.

"A piece of choice exposition, in which the teaching of the Psalm is faithfully and clearly exhibited, while the spirit of the Psalm pervades the whole book."
Footsteps of Truth.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

21st THOUSAND.

Cloth Boards, 1s.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s. 6d.

"This is a healthful and helpful little volume, containing experimental teaching in regard to some of the blessed assurances of Holy Scripture. We commend the book as one that cannot fail to be read with profit."
Evangelical Christendom.

Christian Living.

20th THOUSAND.

Cloth Boards, 1s.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s. 6d.

"Full of sweetness and light. No Christian can read it with a docile spirit and fail to receive stimulus in the direction whither the true-hearted would go. Its light will make clear the path to higher joys and a worthier service."
Cambridgeshire Congregational Magazine.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the Kingdom.

In Memoriam.

MISS ROBINSON, BRAUNTON, DEVON.

"His servants shall serve Him."

THE central thought suggested by these, almost the closing, words, of the lone disciple's wondrous vision of prophecy—telling us, as it does, all that we may know of the "rest" that "remaineth to the people of God"—is that, preciously "glorious" as is that rest, there is in its fulness of joy no inactivity of quieted souls—no lovely, dreamy lull of rapt adoration; but that the rest that comprehends—we may, perhaps, say explains—the glory is that of effortless, unwearying, glad service. For few of "Christ's own," who have entered into his rest, might this thought come with a deeper power of comfort, and with fuller certainty of trust, than for her of whom these words of brief memoir are affectionately written. Rest, as we usually understand the word, her active, loving spirit had no prayer for, and we believe that He who knew its deepest longings was answering them, as only in their fulness they might be met, in taking his yet untired servant from her life with Himself "for his work—among the plants and hedges," into its eternal outwidening of blessed service—still dwelling with the King—

Where the tree that casts no shadow
Glows down the golden street.

The self-giving, unassertive labours of Miss Robinson, of Braunton, during some thirty years, in a waste place of the wide home-mission field, have more than once had kindly and helpful mention in THE CHRISTIAN, and it is the special desire of her relatives, and of many who knew and loved her, that a notice of her life and work should be read in the pages of the journal she herself valued so greatly.

In her recent death from typhoid fever, at Braunton in North Devon, in which neighbourhood she resided from her childhood, the village has, it may truly be said, sustained its greatest possible loss. No other life in that large parish had in it such capabilities and energies of loving doing as hers who, long unconscious of human tenderness and soothing, passed, "leaning upon her beloved," in the night of October 16, through the narrow doorway's gleam from the closed, silent "earthly house"—poor dust and rafters, kept for the rebuilding—into the unfading light, and to the waiting work she was wanted for, of his own home and life.

She would seem to have had a pale glimpse of the beauty she was so soon to see; shortly before her last illness, she said to more than one she thought her work in Braunton was soon to end. A much-sorrowing friend, whose weary loneliness she often cheered by a visit, showed tearfully to the writer's sister the text marked by Miss Robinson in her Bible, the last Sunday she was out, of a sermon she had happily listened to that morning at Heanton Church, and told how her loved friend had then sung to her the triumphant hymn, "Oh, when shall I sweep through the gates?" The answer, "Welcome home," and "The New Song," were near.

The subject of this brief, imperfect memoir was the daughter of a post-captain in the Navy, whom, with a dear young sister, she had the joy of bringing to the Saviour in whose presence they all now have met. She ascribed her own conversion under God's leading, when seven years old, to a pious young servant, her nurse, who used on Sunday afternoons to read the Bible to the children in the nursery. On one occasion this young woman read to them "Jane, the Young Cottager," and the story deeply impressed her. She went upstairs, and, kneeling by her bed, asked God to make her like little Jane. Though the impression then made does not appear to have passed away, dear Miss Robinson experienced when a girl at school much soul-sadness; but soon, through a most remarkable sequence of God's still voices to her heart, there came to his chosen child the resting happiness that along many years, undimmed, has radiated into darkened hearts around her. A sermon she heard at that time, from the words, "The Lord our righteousness," deeply affected her. A few days later the same text, largely illuminated, in a shop window arrested her attention; and not long after, being with a gentleman who was reading in his Hebrew Bible, she put her guided finger upon the obscure page, saying, "What's there?" The startling reply was, "The Lord our righteousness." From that day He was hers. She told the story a short time since to a very dear aged Christian friend who, while its record has been penned, has, after a brief illness, joined her in the palace of the King, whom she no less truly loved than the one who had her home-welcome a few days before.

Miss Robinson's life was thenceforward a consecrated life; the unfaltering assurance that she was then called by her name, and the certainty of her full acceptance in Christ never left her, nor could be gloomed by her ever-deep sense of unworthiness and sin. "In me—no good thing; in the Lord—righteousness and strength." These were the text-notes of her loyal, devoted life-work for her Saviour, that made its teaching so valuable. She was one of those living people whom we recall with a curious distinctness; hers was an all-through-the-week religion, that looked out of the sweet, truthful eyes as naturally when you meet her in the village street as when they were lifted at its most solemn ordinance. In all her trials and difficulties, which were neither few nor light, the bright smile that always crept up in a surprising way over the dark bits of people and things would not let you see their shadow. That transparent smile gave a wonderful charm to her teaching-talk (she would not have it called preaching), as she told out a new precious thought that, in her singularly close study of her Bible, had come to her in Old Testament story or Gospel promises, or started in the rich, powerful voice with which she was gifted, some message-full Moody and Sankey hymn. In the brightness of the smile, the love that it so clearly reflected would often be felt and received.

MISS ROBINSON.

While identifying herself with, and zealously helpful of, all Christian work, the temperance cause had ever our loved friend's ready, most earnest advocacy, and ever upon Gospel lines. "Be not drunk" was never left unsupported by "Without Me you can do nothing." The coffee tavern established by her in Braunton within a circle of public-houses some ten years since, and kept going by her constant self-denial and her unflagging efforts (in which the much-regretted late vicar of Braunton gave always his hearty sympathy and co-operation), has been a powerful influence for good in the over-licensed village. Her cheery, telling, at times solemnly impassioned, addresses there will be greatly missed, as will—by some very sorrowfully—her bright, loving counsels to the members of her girls' Bible-class and mothers' meetings.

Perhaps, however, of all the beautiful work done by God's dear servant, which so mysteriously it has been his will suddenly to close, none will have such grateful heart-remembrance as the Gospel services, relinquished by her with deepest regret, a few months before her death, that for very many years were held by her in a populous outlying hamlet, where they filled a deep spiritual need—before and since unmet—almost uninterruptedly. From that little low-roofed, humbly-prepared Knowle school-room, up the long, rudely-paved "drang," usually full for her coming, where each Sunday Miss Robinson used to read to the simple people from her well-worn Bible, and speak or sing its message of love, she would walk home by herself in the wild winter nights, through mud and darkness, along some of the loneliest of the intricate lanes of North Devon. She did not know fear: singing up a scoffing congregation under the village tree, with public-houses gaping all around her, or threading black, rain-swept lanes, her reply to any suggestion of unsafety would have been, "The Lord is on my right hand, of whom shall I be afraid?" In his light and strength she walked and worked, and in Him rejoiced always.

The writer of this very incomplete record of a beautiful life—of a Christianity lived out—known by him, and prized for its teaching for more than twenty years, would gladly have given fuller and worthier testimony. Even as an outline, the sketch is an abrupt and unfinished one, from wanted space for so full a subject; some touching, simple details of parting thought for and with those among whom she had long and lovingly laboured are reluctantly left untold; but the first of those sad, lingering days, that had in their slow sorrow no earthly communion, was, in truth, the earthly life's end.

No parting message was whispered; none can come to us from the city where, for a few of our poor counted weeks, she whom we mourn has been joyously at home. Yet, might a request reach us from lips parted now only for notes of praise, it surely would be, that the work which fell from her loosened clasp should be taken up and carried on by loving hearts and untiring hands—we should add, like her own. No less surely would she ask the "effectual fervent" prayer-help—its wonder-working power is now known—of all Christians who shall read these poor words of remembrance, to wing every shaft of effort, that they and she may rejoice together in the day of Christ's appearing. S. G. P.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.—The Church Missionary Society having set themselves the task of training and sending forth within the next five years a thousand new agents, the executive committee are busily employed in gathering information as to the more pressing needs of the various missions. A circular letter, signed by the Wesleyan President, invites members of that body in and around London to a series of special meetings for prayer on behalf of foreign missions at the Centenary Hall. The success of the lay agents sent out to India by Rev. T. Champness is preparing the way for the increased employment of European lay agents to undertake the supervision of native evangelists and co-operate with them.—Manchester Guardian.

SCUTARI MISSION AND ORPHANAGE.—Miss M. Butler Gerds, Chertsey House, Redhill, Surrey, writing on behalf of Dr. Alexandrian's Mission and Orphanage at Scutari, says:—"I shall be glad to send parcels of Turkish embroidery to those who may like to help to support a much-needed institution. These fine embroideries are suitable for bazaars, sales of work, &c., and consist of cushion covers, screens, bags, paper-racks, tidies, lengths of trimming, brackets, &c., ranging in value from 3s. to 30s. There is also for disposal a silver necklet, the property of a poor orphan, and which is valued at 30s. I shall be happy to send a report to any who may wish for one."

Threshold Service—1.*

THE BURDEN-BEARING KOHATHITES.

IN tracing the genealogy of the Korahites, the porters of the temple, whose office we propose to consider in the succeeding papers, we must first of all read the family history of the Kohathites—a history so beautiful and so helpful, that we may well pause a little to examine it.

In Gen. xlvi. 11, we find the first mention of the three sons of Levi, afterwards spoken of by Moses as being the three heads of the three great tribal divisions whose special calling was the service of the tabernacle (Num. ii. 17). The Kohathites were primarily burden-bearers (Num. vii. 9): "the service of the sanctuary belonged to them; they bare it upon their shoulders." Their work was to carry all the sacrificial vessels, the altars of brass and gold, the veil and the candlestick, together with their typical coverings of blue, purple, and scarlet (Num. iv. 1-17).

And when, later on, the "heads of the fathers' houses" presented waggons to the Lord as an oblation, in order to assist the Levites in their arduous work of transferring the tabernacle from place to place, the Kohathites had no such relief given them. The sacred post of burden-bearing in the service of the Lord was, by Divine command, laid upon them without any mitigation either in its responsibility or its fatigue. The Lord, who gave them the work to do, gave them the strength to do it. This fact has a message for those weary ones whose ears are open to receive it, for the burden-bearers in the Lord's house to-day are many.

The next important event in the history of the Kohathites is the incident of the rebellion of Korah (Num. xvi.). In spite of a life of nominal surrender, in spite of a great deal of disciplinary training, there was evil at work among the Levites. Burden-bearing and close association with holy things had not purified their hearts. They forgot how to be meek; they forgot that sympathetic humility which for ever marks off the wholly consecrated soul from the partially surrendered one, and murmured against Moses and Aaron, apparently on purely religious grounds. "We are all holy," they maintained; "you are not better men than we are; 'ye take too much upon you.'" It is the old, old cry of the poor, unregenerate, human heart—a jealous dislike of seeing lives lived on a higher spiritual plane. The accepted sacrifice of Abel suggests subtle religious envy to Cain. The brethren of the Lord seek to draw Him back from his thronging audiences, and do not believe in his mission. Right up to the very sanctuary gate of holiness presses the vigilant spirit of self-approbation, to-day as well as then—ay, and in my heart as well as in Korah's, if grace does not much more abound!

Korah dies, but his sons are spared (Num. xxvi. 11), and then comes a long silence in the record of the Kohathites. Unnoticed lives of burden-bearers come and go. God sees them, and writes their names in his book for heavenly distinction or disapprobation, but we know them not; yet this family has, we doubt not, wonderful silent stories hidden away in the eternal archives, waiting for the day when secrets are revealed, and God's heroes are made known. It is a large family, that of the burden-bearers, and, thank God, the line is not extinct yet, although the tabernacle and the sacrifices are gone, and the "old order" has changed, "giving place to new."

In 1 Chron. xv. 5, we find the "sons of Kohath" again mentioned among the numbered Levites. The times are now getting full. The nation of the Israelites, by the unceasing faithfulness of a covenant-keeping God, has risen almost to the apex of prosperity. A fresh manifestation of God's will now takes place in a new series of typical instructions—the temple is to be built.

How much was involved in the minutest details of this wonderful structure, with all its complicated ritual, its outward beauty and inner mysteries of the Holy House, and the Most Holy House, is seen in 1 Chron. xxviii. 12, 19. David had received "the pattern of all by the Spirit"; "all this, said David, have I been made to understand in writing from the hand of the Lord," or, as the margin significantly gives, "the Lord made me to understand in writing by his hand upon me." If in the tabernacle we see the humanity, the divinity, and the perfect sacrifice of Jesus set forth, in the temple we get a still more developed aspect of his person and work, his Messianic character, and his association with a family—the Israel of God.

Our eyes sweep along immeasurable vistas when we ponder over the intense suggestiveness of this regal building, with its great functional capabilities, its wealth of sacrifices, its perfect method and incalculable riches; and when we remember that every iota of its organisation, as well as of its structural preparation, was inspired directly by God, we see how precious a type it is to us of the "unsearchable" or "untrackable riches of Christ." If we would take with us a clue that shall lead us through the mazes of an old-world ceremonial; if we would see the cumbrous details glow with light, and the seemingly dry repetitions become as significant to us as the reiterated "Verily, verily" of the New Testament—affirmations of great spiritual facts—we must take our Lord Jesus Christ as the Alpha and Omega of the hieroglyphic pictures, and there, with the Master-word graven on our adoring hearts, we shall decipher somewhat of God's meaning in the one and only house that man has ever built wherein God has consented to put his Name to dwell there.

Till the fuller revelation of Solomon's temple was given, we see, then, that the "sons of Kohath" were simply the bearers of heavy loads—consecrated loads, however; let us never forget that. In this way God prepares souls for more advanced service, bowing down the will to make it flexible, and training the shoulders to bear the weight of authority and responsibility, by burdens of untold weariness. This is the message to the heavy-laden ones in the house of God to-day. The Kohathites were bearers of sacred loads, by the will of God, until the time came for some among them to be called to occupy a still more difficult post. The lesson of the Kohathites now merges into the lesson of the Korahites, and we are to be taught the still higher lesson of the inner meaning of "Threshold Service."

GERALDINE M. SEYMOUR.

* The interest in these articles on "Threshold Service" will be much increased if the reader clearly understands one or two points respecting the Kohathites and the Korahites. The Kohathites were the great family sprung from Kohath, one of the three sons of Levi (Gen. xlvi. 11; Exod. vi. 16; Num. iii. 17). The work of the Kohathites was connected with the bearing and carrying of the Ark and the sacred vessels—a more important and consecrated service than that either of the Gershonites or the Merarites. The family were continually referred to as "the Kohathites." Korah (the son of Izhar) was one of the Kohathite family (Num. xvi. 1), and was a prominent leader in the revolt against Moses and Aaron (verses 4-7). In the Divine judgment which resulted Korah and a multitude of his followers perished (verses 31-35). "Notwithstanding the children of Korah died not" (xxvi. 11). It would appear that in the course of two or three centuries the descendants of Korah had multiplied and become a strong family, and eventually became so important that the designation of Kohathites became merged in that of Korhites or Korahites (compare 1 Chron. vi. 22-28, 32-37, and ix. 19).

"IN DARKEST ENGLAND."

THE STORY OF MAGGIE.

The story here put into verse will be found on p. 182 of General Booth's volume, "In Darkest England."

I SING the story of Maggie,
And the boundless grace of God,
That followed her maddened footsteps
Wherever those footsteps trod.

One night, in the depth of winter,
When the snow lay thick around,
In a drunken fit of folly
She sank on the frozen ground.

And there, in a drowsy stupor,
She slept as her blood ran out,
By the side of the darkened water,
Where hushed was the ribald shout.

At five o'clock in the morning
The factory girls passed by,
And found her, there on the pathway,
Forsaken, it seemed, to die.

They roused the woman from slumber,
But only to rave and swear;
For the blood and the frost had bound her
In the snow by her matted hair.

So a kettle of boiling water
Was poured round the blood-stained snow,
And Maggie was kindly lifted,
And rubbed to a warm life-glow.

She was "melted" out of her bondage,
And the "melting" work went on,
Till the warmth of true love and kindness
Had this sin-cursed captive won.

She came to the Army barracks,
And heard of a Saviour's love:
Thus the vulture, fierce and filthy,
Was changed to the peaceful dove.

Then all went well, till a traitor,
On a sunlit wedding-day,
Asked Maggie to drink his fortune:
And Maggie—what could she say?

It was "lemonade," he told her,
And, without a thought of wrong,
She drank; 'twas the cursèd whiskey;
And the fiend rose wild and strong.

They laughed at the victim's terror;
But one ran off for the lass
Who had led her first to the Saviour;
For they feared that hell-filled glass.

She sped to the fated drinker,
With her bonnet strings untied;
But, "Give me some more!" shrieked Maggie;
"I'm on fire, I say, inside!"

No! the captain took her with her
To her own low, humble room,
And, locking herself with the woman,
Stood firm between her and doom;

But she broke the lock from the doorway,
And rushed down the stairs to death,
With the bonnet hurrying after,
And a lassie panting for breath.

After her into the "public"—
"Master! I'll break the glass
If you dare to serve her with liquor!"
Said the God-inspired lass.

And the melting love of woman,
With the warmer love of God,
Won back to the narrow pathway,
That has since been safely trod.

But the villain who gave the whiskey
Was marked by the roughs that day,
And for weeks was kept in hiding,
Till the vengeance had passed away.

And this is the tale of Maggie,
And the melting grace of God:
A slave of our "Darkest England"
Released from the drink-cursed sod.

Hell Gate Explosion.

BY CAPTAIN DAWSON
(Late Inniskilling Dragoons).

A SHORT time ago, in reading an American work, I found a very interesting account of the Hell Gate Explosion, at the entrance to New York harbour. Probably very few in England know of this marvellous work and triumph of skill, so I venture to write down what I remember of the graphic account. As I thought over the details, some lessons suggested themselves to my mind, and these I should like to pass on to others.

A very large rock, "The Flood Rock," an island of nine acres in extent, obstructed the entrance to the harbour. It was a great obstacle, as the ships could not enter into the smooth waters and safe anchorage within the harbour. There was a certain point—"Hallet's Point"—round which no ships could turn while "Flood Rock" was in the way. It was necessary to remove this great mass of rock, which was a source of inconvenience and danger. The removal of this obstruction has been a great triumph of engineering skill. It is the greatest work of the kind that has ever been accomplished, and in many respects is quite unique. The benefits from this successful work cannot be estimated.

We are all on the great voyage across the ocean of life. Heaven's harbour is before us; but the powers of sin and hell obstruct and oppose. At the very door of heaven's harbour is the gate of hell. How could these difficulties and hindrances be removed?

PREPARATION FOR THE WORK.

The preparation for the work in New York harbour took nearly twelve years.

From two shafts, tunnels were driven in every direction, their total length 21,670 feet, at a depth of 50 feet beneath the low water level. In all twenty-four galleries or tunnels were run from north to south through this island, the longest being 1200 feet. These were intersected by forty-six others, running nearly east and west, the longest one being 625 feet.

The tunnels or galleries were, on an average, 10 feet from floor to ceiling, and 6 or 8 feet wide. The roof and pillars were drilled with countless holes for dynamite cartridges. They were 2½ inches in diameter, and they averaged 9 feet in depth. They were from 4 to 5 feet apart.

Two kinds of explosives were used—dynamite and rackarock. Three hundred thousand pounds of these were used. The cartridges were pushed into their holes by means of long wooden ramrods, and secured in their places. The mass of rock was honeycombed with these holes. The mine was studded with 14,000 cartridges, weighing fourteen tons; they were all connected by electric wires with a battery above. General Newton, chief of the engineers, planned, prepared, undertook, and carried out this great work.

THE WORK OF MAN'S SALVATION.

From eternity in the past, God has been preparing the work of man's salvation. Man's sin lies as a barrier between Him and heaven. This barrier must be taken away. It was needed that the way into heaven should be made plain, and all hindrances removed, for man cannot by himself or by his own effort enter there. It required help from above. God in his wisdom devised a wonderful plan; God in his love carried out this plan. Man receives all the blessings and benefits.

The great work of removing the mass of sin, destroying the power of hell, opening the gate of heaven, has been undertaken for us. God so loved guilty man that He sent his Son to execute the work which He planned. His Holy Spirit shows the need of the work, the nature of the work, and points now to the new way by which all may enter into heaven, and find life and safety.

There came a moment when the engineering skill was to triumph when it should be manifest that

THE WORK WAS COMPLETED.

During the long time of preparation there had been no outward show, but the work was going on. Down below the surface the busy work was progressing. Many laughed at the whole thing, many said it was impossible, but at length, at the right time, the moment came when the grand result should be seen and known. Thousands had collected to see the last act in this great work, to see the work completed which had been so long preparing. The little daughter of General Newton, a child of eleven years, in obedience to her father's word, pressed a button which communicated the electric current to the elaborate system of cartridge-filled holes. There was a great stillness, and a solemn silence while this took place. All were looking and watching, and the excitement was intense.

In a moment the work was done. Immense volumes of water and pieces of rock were shot up into the air 150 to 200 feet, the earth shook as if from an earthquake, but the obstruction was gone, the mass of rock was rent in pieces, the huge rock was reduced to fragments, and a new way opened into the harbour of New York. It is a narrow way, but a safe way, and it is the only way.

There were many congratulations, and the rejoicing was great. The engineers received great praise, and General Newton carried out exactly what he desired and planned.

The work was done at great cost, but all doubts about the success were dispelled, the difficulties were triumphed over, the obstruction removed, the obstacles overcome, the barrier broken down, the way opened for ever, the vast mass destroyed. It was a grand work, a perfect work, and a finished work.

THE FINISHED WORK AT CALVARY.

There came a moment in this world's history when the great work of man's redemption was accomplished. God had long made preparation for it. He had planned it in his wisdom, and gradually, quietly, but surely was carrying it out. The finger of God had long pointed to Calvary, the Word of God told of it, prophets spoke of it, type after type foreshadowed it. The terrible evil of sin created the need of a Saviour. Sin had made a terrible discord, there must be harmony again; sin had cut man off from God, communion must be restored. Sin had made such a stain that nothing of earth or on earth could remove it, that stain must be washed away. "The soul that sinneth it shall die." Someone must suffer, and the Gospel tells us "God gave his only begotten Son." "I have found a ransom" is the news from heaven. The world is lost; but Christ came to save the lost. The world has gone astray; but the Son of Man came to seek the wanderers. We are ungodly; but "Christ died for the ungodly."

We are sinners; but, "while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." We are enemies, we have rebelled; but "when we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son." We are bankrupts; but God sent his own Son to pay the ransom. We are helpless; but his own arm brought salvation.

GLORIOUS NEWS THIS!

"But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons" (Gal. iv. 4, 5).

God became incarnate in order to make Himself an offering for sin. The Incarnation was the first step on the road to Calvary, where Jesus put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself. Do not stop at the first step, because the Incarnation would be nothing, had not the Son of God laid down the body which He had assumed as a sacrifice for us sinners.

The Incarnation means "God manifest in the flesh." By a wonderful and unsearchable union He linked his Divinity with our humanity. At Bethlehem we see "Emmanuel—God with us." At Calvary we see God for us. In due time came the moment when heaven, earth, hell looked upon Calvary's cross. Here was the great central act of this world's history. "Hallelujah, what a Saviour!" There was a great silence and a thick darkness. Ah, it needed the death of the Sinless One for us sinners; the Just for the unjust, to bring us to God; the precious blood of Christ, to cleanse from sin; the poured-out life-blood of the Son of God to answer for man's sin. "Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures." He died on account of our sin; He bore the guilt of our sin, and suffered its penalty, so that we might be DELIVERED FROM ITS DOOM.

But the moment arrived when the shout of victory was heard—"It is finished," came from the lips of Him who died for sinners; from Him who, in obedience to the Father's word, came to do the will of God. "It is finished" was the cry from the Conqueror of death, from the Overcomer of sin, from the Victor over all the powers of hell. "The earth quaked, the rocks were rent, the graves were opened"—"truly this was the Son of God." The courts of heaven rang with angel voices, and many hearts on earth have since joined in songs of praise: "Unto Him who loved and loosed us from our sins."

The vast mass of sin has been removed; that which has accumulated for years and years; that which has kept men from holiness, happiness, and heaven; that which closed the door of heaven has been taken away. All may enter now, because the gates of hell cannot prevail. Christ has overcome death and opened the gate of heaven to all believers. "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." Do you want a proof of the completeness of the work of Calvary? "Christ rose from the dead according to the Scriptures." "He hath put away sin." Rejoice and be glad. Praise Him for what He has done. On the ground of his finished work you can enter heaven.

Trust to his blood that cleanses from all sin. Trust to the risen Christ, because He lives to take care of you.

The Resurrection is the third step, and the step which proved the completion of the whole work. The third link in the Incarnation, the Crucifixion, the Resurrection. There are no barriers now to the haven of grace, they have been swept away. Sin has been dealt with. Just as the ships can now float straight into the harbour of New York under guidance of trusted pilots; so now men may enter the port of heaven on the full tide of redeeming love under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Praise God for a crucified Jesus, a risen Christ, an ascended Lord, and a coming King.

THE CHAIN OF THREE LINKS—

The cost of removing the "Flood Rock" was enormous, but what shall we say as to the cost of taking away the sin of the world? It cost God the gift of his only begotten Son. Heaven was robbed to enrich this sin-stained earth. The light of heaven came to shine into the dense darkness here below. Redemption was provided at tremendous cost. "Redeemed with the precious blood of Christ."

'Twas great to speak a world from nought,
But greater to redeem.

What value do we set upon our redemption price? How little we know the meaning of "Salvation through the blood of the Lamb." There is only one way of safety, one Saviour, one name. "Neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts iv. 12).

CLOSING APPEAL.

Are we bound for heaven's harbour—steering straight home? Ask for the Pilot to come on board. He makes no mistakes. Let the Holy Spirit guide the vessel. We can turn the danger-point now, because the obstacle is gone. "Full speed ahead," make straight for the harbour, "all sails set." There is a welcome for us in the harbour, safe anchorage there. "So He bringeth them into the desired haven." "Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men."

Are we bound for heaven? are we "homeward bound"? Have we started in the new life? Have we found a friend in Jesus? Have we had personal dealings with Him? Have we been convinced of sin, of danger, by the Holy Spirit? Have we seen Jesus as our Saviour? Have we touched Him with the hand of faith? Has He touched us with his healing, strengthening hand? Has He taken possession of us? Has He full control of our life? Let there be a personal and real transaction with Him about sin and salvation. If you have heard the condemnation of Sinai, now you may receive the message of salvation. Instead of the thunders of Sinai, listen to the music from Calvary, "It is finished!" Instead of the bayonets of Sinai, look at the open arms of the Saviour. Sinai speaks of death; but Calvary tells of life. Sinai has barriers to keep us at a distance; but at Calvary I see them all swept away. At Sinai I hear a voice, "Sinner, thou shalt die"; but from Calvary I hear, "Sinner, I have died for thee." McCheyne beautifully says, "It is only a broken-hearted sinner that can receive a crucified Saviour."

Let there be a definite acceptance of Christ in all his fulness. Let us turn to Him, trust Him, take Him, test his promises, tell Him all our needs and difficulties. He is Almighty, He is Love. Then let us thank Him that He died to save, and that He lives to keep. Follow Him, obey Him, cleave to Him, and our life will be better and brighter than ever before. We shall be braver and bolder as soldiers of Christ. We shall be more humble and holy as servants of Christ. We shall be happier and more hearty in the work of the Lord. We shall be kept by the power of Christ, we shall rejoice in the person of Christ, we shall experience the pardon of Christ, we shall know the peace of Christ, we shall love the presence of Christ, till time is lost in eternity and heaven is your home for evermore.

Safe home, safe home in port!
Rent cordage, shattered deck;
Torn sails, provision short,
And only not a wreck:
But, oh, the joy upon the shore
To tell our voyage-perils o'er!

The exile is at home;
Oh, nights and days of tears!
Oh, longings not to roam!
Oh, sins, and doubts, and fears!
What matters now?—oh, joyful day!
The King has wiped all tears away.

THE JEWISH EVANGELICAL MISSION, with headquarters in Newcastle-on-Tyne, will, it is hoped, do a good work in the North of England. In an explanatory circular, the superintendent, Rev. Aaron Matthews, says:—"The missionaries visit from house to house, and from shop to shop, among the Jews dwelling in the various towns in the North; we also visit towns in the Midlands, where large numbers of Jews reside. Newcastle being the centre of our operations, we have opened a Hebrew Christian Home at 8, Swinburne-place, containing lecture and reading-rooms, which are open every week evening, and where Bible-classes, a night school, &c., are conducted." The reading-room is furnished with books and papers in languages understood by the Jews. The various meetings are well attended, and the Gospel message, though faithfully delivered, is listened to in a respectful manner. The superintendent has the support of an influential committee. His address is 63, Fern-avenue, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

[1146]

How a Mission was Founded.

The following is the substance of a communication from Mr. James Fox Wilson, 22, Western-road, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

BORN in the little village of Pool, near Otley, Yorkshire, when the present century was in its teens, JOSEPH RHODES DUNWELL came of parents in whose family there seems to have been no recognition of the claims of God. Into a soil uncongenial to vital godliness, the plant of Christian life was introduced by the conversion to God of young Joseph, through the instrumentality of the despised Methodists of the neighbourhood. With them the young man, to the intense disgust of his father, cast in his lot, bearing the keenest opposition, which such a step might naturally be expected to involve, with meekness and humility.

With a sovereign in his pocket, Joseph, at the age of about twenty, tramped on foot to London. Having without delay introduced himself to the brethren at City-road Chapel, he found temporary employment at a grocer's in the Goswell-road, not far from the Angel Inn, Islington, but soon afterwards made a second engagement with Francis May, a member of the Society of Friends, who survived him more than fifty years.

William Wrigglesworth, also a Yorkshire Methodist, who was sent to the West Indies as a missionary, in 1834, was an employé in the same shop, and together these young men, who became fast friends, used what talents they possessed in ministering to the poor in the North of London, visiting workhouses and holding services in preaching rooms and small chapels as lay preachers, on the Plan of the City-road circuit

So highly did Francis May respect the Christian consistency and honourable conduct of his servant, that, upon taking a branch business at Peckham, in the South of London, he gave the management of it to Joseph. It was while thus engaged that the way was opened for Mr. Dunwell's entrance upon a most important Mission to the Gold Coast, West Africa, under the following

SINGULAR CHAIN OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

On that dark coast, to which Europeans had hitherto gone only for slaves, ivory, or gold, no voice had ever been heard earnestly proclaiming to the heathen the advent of a Saviour. True, an English chaplain had been appointed to Cape Coast Castle in 1751. He remained at his post four years ministering to the officials, and then his health failed and he was forced to leave for England. On his return, he took with him three negro lads, who were put to school in London. One of these, named Quagno, made very rapid progress in his studies and on leaving school was sent to Oxford, passed his examinations at the University, and was subsequently ordained as Chaplain for Cape Coast Castle.

After his death a European was appointed, but he soon died. Another went out, and he too fell a victim to the climate. A third succeeded him, but he also took the fever and died. The fourth was sent; his health failed, and he was obliged to return to Europe. In consequence of the climate being so fatal to European constitutions, a chaplain could not be found for Cape Coast. During the twenty years that Mr. McLean was Governor of the Castle, he established a day-school for native boys. To this school he paid great attention, and as the boys left it, he gave to each of them a copy of God's Word as a present from the British and Foreign Bible Society.

In the year 1833, the barque Congo, commanded by Captain Potter, a Bristol Methodist, arrived with a cargo at the Castle. The young men asked him if he had any Bibles for sale, at which request the good captain, who thought himself in a land of darkness, where there was on light, was much astonished; but he promised to meet them in the evening, He did so, a was surprised to find them so enlightened and anxious about their souls. Captain Pott promised that he would make known the case at home, and upon arriving in Englan he put himself immediately in commun cation with the Wesleyan Mission House, ga the secretaries his views respecting the yout on the Gold Coast, and assured them it was favourable opening for the Gospel. T Committee hesitated about sending a mi sionary while the Society was in debt, b so impressed was Captain Potter with t importance of immediate action that offered, if the Committee would choose a you man, to take him to the Gold Coast in his ow ship, leave him at Cape Coast during the thr or four months he might remain on the coas and if the missionary, after making his ow observations, did not think it was a good ope ing for the Gospel, he (Captain Potter) wou bring him back to England free of all expens

This generous and noble offer was accepte and Mr. Dunwell was chosen. He landed December, 1834, at Elmina, nine miles windward of Cape Coast Town. From th place he wrote to the Governor announcin his arrival, and told him that he shou remain at Elmina for a few days.

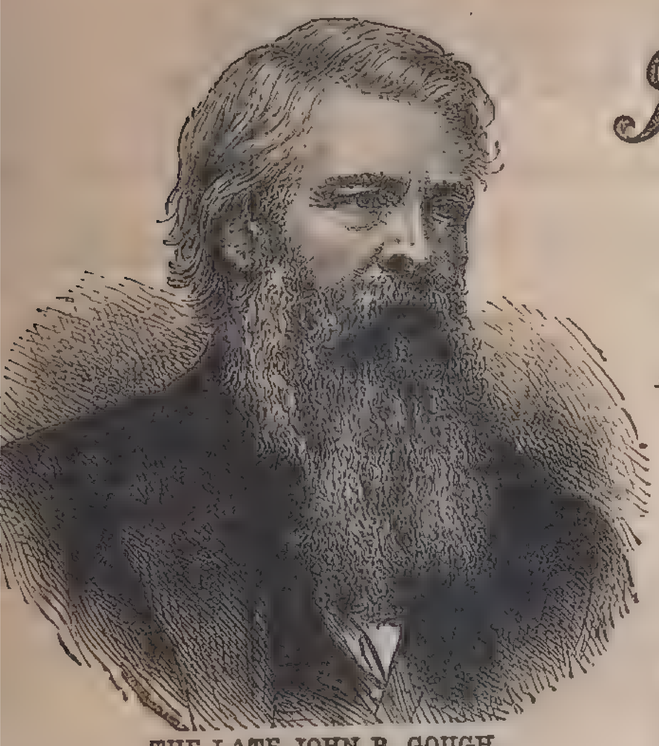
THE NEWS SPREAD LIKE WILD-FIRE.

Aggrey, the King of Cape Coast, sent me sengers to all the neighbouring chiefs to infor them that a missionary had arrived, and th people came from all parts to see what sort a thing a missionary was. The young me who were expecting a missionary, all went up Elmina to see and hear for themselves. In few days Mr. Dunwell went down to Cap Coast, where he was kindly received by th Governor, who told him that he should rema in the Castle until he could procure a suitab place to live in.

Soon began the delightful task of preachin the Gospel to the sable sons and daughters Ham, and through the instrumentality of ministry which aimed at direct results from soil which was already partially prepared, man were led to a saving acquaintance with th Lord Jesus Christ, and were converte to God. Mr. Dunwell was able to form a litt church here and another there. He commence a Sabbath-school at Cape Coast, and anoth at Anamabu, and God most signally crowne the labours of this young missionary, so that i a few months he was able to count the numbe of believers by scores, and their number steadi increased. Mr. Dunwell's course was, how ever, soon run. He had begun to repo progress, when, alas! in June, 1835, he wa seized with the seasoning fever, an after a few days of severe illness, h happy spirit passed away to be for ever wit the Lord. One of his last utterances to the a tendants was, "Oh, the composure of my mind In life or death I am the Lord's." Thus die after a short ministry of six months only, th first Christian missionary to the Fantis, o June 24, 1835. The natives said to one an other next morning, "Sad news! the shepher is away, the missionary is dead!"

The Mission was soon afterwards reinforced and during the fifty-five years which hav elapsed since the death of the human founde of the work, it has extended far and wide int the interior and along the coast for hundreds o miles. The present General Superintendent o the Mission is Rev. John T. F. Halligey who reports a church membership of 7,488 an about 25,000 persons in regular attendanc on public worship, the tongues use in the services being English, Fanti, Ga Otyi, Yoruba, and Popo, in addition t several dialects. There are seven Europea Missionaries, and 36 ordained native ministers some of them lineally descended from th members of the original Scripture-readin society. Mr. Halligey asks for fifty Euro peans, ministers or laymen, to act as pioneer In the interior, where the climate is com paratively healthy.

BIOGRAPHIES.



THE LATE JOHN B. GOUGH.

John B. Gough.

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY. REVISED BY HIMSELF.

WITH PORTRAIT
AND THREE ILLUSTRATIONS.

	s.	d.
Cloth Boards	2	6
Cloth. Bev. Bds. Gilt Edges	3	6

A Story of Fascinating Interest.

"The story of GOUGH'S eventful life, as told in this AUTOBIOGRAPHY, has a fascinating interest about it peculiarly its own. The recital is frank and faithful; and couched in terms which clearly indicate that his object was not simply to amuse and interest, but to help and stimulate in the battle of life; to encourage the despondent; and to aid the struggling in their efforts to rise above adverse circumstances. The book is well fitted to serve this excellent purpose."—The Reformer.

A Handsome Gift Book.

"The AUTOBIOGRAPHY is admirably suited for the drawing-room table or for a gift book, but is especially worthy of possession as a memento of Mr. GOUGH, who has now 'entered into the joy of his Lord.' Beautifully printed, appropriately illustrated, attractively bound, and tastefully embellished—it deserves a wide circulation."—Temperance Record.

A CHEAP EDITION may also be had: Paper Covers, 1s.: Cloth Limp, 1s. 6d.

LITTLE KATHLEEN.

Sunny Memories of a Child Worker.

BY ANNIE R. BUTLER.

	s.	d.
Tinted Covers	0	6
Cloth, Coloured Edges ..	1	0
Presentation Edition.
Rich Coloured Morocco ..	3	0

CONTENTS.

Sunny Days in Paris.
The Spirit's Awakening.
Service for the Master.
Crossing the River.
After-Fruits.

"The story of a nature made yet more sweet and beautiful by the realization of a Saviour's love. Little Kathleen's life had a consistency and fulness of purpose rarely manifested in one of tender years; its manifestation is amongst the most touching and impressive we have ever seen recorded."—The Rock.

"The story is one of the sweetest testimonies to the grace of God in the heart of a little child which has appeared in these days, and will make an attractive gift to readers both old and young."
Medical Missions at Home and Abroad.

Duncan Matheson:

THE SCOTTISH EVANGELIST.

BY
Rev. J. MACPHERSON.

With Life-like Portrait.

"The life of a real man, consecrated in life and full of zeal for the Lord. This biography will not only interest, but benefit a wide circle of readers. We had the happiness of frequent correspondence with Duncan Matheson, and valued him as a successful soul-winner. We are right glad to see so worthy a memorial of so worthy a man."
The Sword and Trowel.

Presentation Edition.	s.	d.
Cloth Boards ..	2	6
Cheap Edition.
Tinted Covers ..	1	6

Henry Moorhouse:

THE ENGLISH EVANGELIST.

BY
Rev. J. MACPHERSON.

With Life-like Portrait.

"Those who have read the Story of DUNCAN MATHESON, the devoted Scottish Evangelist, will understand how congenial a task Mr. MACPHERSON has found it to relate the principal incidents of the short, but singularly successful career of HENRY MOORHOUSE. The early history of the obscure Lancashire lad is well told, but the author naturally hastens to give an account of Henry's conversion and prompt consecration to the work of Christ. This book is brimful of interest, and abounds in suggestive and telling anecdotes."—Lay Preacher.

Presentation Edition.	s.	d.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges ..	2	6
Cheap Edition.
Tinted Covers ..	1	6

John Wesley:

HIS LIFE AND TIMES.

BY
J. W. KIRTON, LL.D.,
Author of "Buy your Own Cherries."

With Portrait.

Presentation Edition.	s.	d.
Cloth Boards, Gilt Edges	1	6
Cheap Editions.
Tinted Covers ...	0	6
Cloth Limp ..	1	0

"In some nineteen chapters Dr. KIRTON tells in a popular and fascinating style the Life of the Great Founder of Methodism. It is emphatically the biography of Wesley for the people."
Primitive Methodist.

"Dr. KIRTON has preserved some of Wesley's piquant sayings respecting drinking and the drink traffic, and the sinfulness of converting nutritious grain into poisonous and maddening drinks."
Temperance Record.

George Whitefield:

A LIGHT RISING IN OBSCURITY.

BY
J. R. ANDREWS,
Barrister-at-Law.

With Portrait.

Presentation Edition.	s.	d.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, with Steel Portrait	5	0
Cheap Editions.
Tinted Covers ..	0	6
Cloth Limp	1	0
Cloth Boards ..	1	6

"The popular and powerful preacher, whose efforts synchronized with those of the Wesleys, is here set before us in a striking piece of portraiture; and the extracts from his diaries give many life-like touches to the sketch. The details of his work, both in America and in this country, are full and complete; and afford a striking proof of his immense capacity and unceasing energy."
Publishers' Circular.

A Devoted Life:

MEMORIALS OF ISABELLA MACPHERSON.

BY
Rev. J. MACPHERSON.

With Mezzo-Type Portrait.

"This record of a brave, beautiful, and earnest life, inspired by true Christian enthusiasm, proves that we need neither sisterhoods nor other forms of Romanism to develop true saintliness of character, and to exemplify the true and the beneficent power of woman's work in the Church. This book will prove a fountain of Christian earnestness and energy. Those who read will catch its fervour."
Baptist Magazine.

Presentation Edition.	s.	d.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges ...	3	6
Cheap Edition.
Cloth Boards ..	2	6

Nineteen Beautiful Years.

A RECORD OF THE LIFE OF A BELOVED SISTER.

BY FRANCES E. WILLARD.

With Four Illustrations.

"The young girl whose short life is here portrayed by a sisterly hand was a charming character, and exemplified the graces of a Christian experience. The pages of her diary are a revelation of the writer's bright heart and keen observation of her surroundings. The portrait and pictures are capital. A delightful biography."
The Christian Commonwealth.

Presentation Edition.	s.	d.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges ..	3	0
Cheap Edition.
Cloth Boards ..	2	6

The Christian Hero.

BY
Rev. J. MACPHERSON.

With Two Illustrations.

"From first to last this volume is full of interest, and valuable lessons are deduced from the life of this humble but honoured servant of Christ. His noble though tragic death lends a deep additional interest to the record of his brief but useful career upon earth."
Word and Work.

Superior Edition.	s.	d.
Tinted Covers ..	1	0
Cloth, Neat ..	1	6
Cheap Editions.
Tinted Covers ..	0	6
Cloth Boards ..	1	0
Special Edition
For Gratuitous Distribution; 4to size.
Tinted Covers, 1d.; 7s. per 100.

Old Margaret:

OR, A SAINT AT LAST.

BY
Rev. J. ELDER CUMMING, D.D.

With Striking Portrait.

	s.	d.
Cloth Boards, Coloured Edges	1	0
Tinted Covers	0	6

"Dr. CUMMING has given a most interesting little sketch of a very remarkable life. To those who knew the dear old woman no recommendation is needed. They will laugh and cry by turns as they read the humorous and pathetic incidents which the story tells; and others cannot fail to be interested in it. . . . A most delightful little memoir."—Life of Faith.

"In bold, firm outline, yet with exquisite grace and delicacy, the writer has sketched the outer and inner life of Old Margaret. The result is a book of cheer for the weary Christian toiler in the dark slums of our great cities; a story from real life, brimful of human sympathy. Printing and binding are tasteful and elegant."—Rest and Reaping.

"A beautiful little story of one who after living a life of sin for sixty years was converted, and became as remarkable for grace as she was formerly for godlessness."
Footsteps of Truth.

OLD MARGARET.

AWARDED THE HIGHEST HONOURS.

Diplomas, Gold Medals, and Special Certificates of Merit, at all the great Exhibitions of the World, from the FIRST Great Exhibition of 1851 down to the LAST at Paris in 1889.

Pears' soap

Is bought to-day by everybody, and has maintained its reputation as the best of all Toilet Soaps for more than One Hundred Years.

The following evidence is indisputable:—

Dr. REDWOOD, Ph.D., F.C.S., F.I.C.,

Professor of Chemistry and Pharmacy to the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain.

"My analytical and practical experience of PEARS' SOAP now extends over a very "lengthened period—nearly fifty years—during which time

"I have never come across
"another Toilet Soap which
"so closely realises my ideal
"of perfection;

"its purity is such that it may be used with perfect confidence upon the tenderest and most
"sensitive skin—even that of a new-born babe."

PEARS' SOAP REPRESENTS A CENTURY'S EXPERIENCE OF THE MOST SUCCESSFUL ACHIEVEMENTS IN THE ART AND CRAFT OF FINE SOAP-MAKING.

JEWS AND THE HOLY LAND.

MEETING was held at the residence of the rl of Aberdeen, 27, Grosvenor-square, W., on ursday afternoon, in connection with the ort to settle oppressed Israelites in Palestine. s. FINN, of the Society for the Relief of rsecuted Jews, delivered an address. She scribed the persecution to which so many ws are subjected at the present day, referring ainly to the outrages committed in Roumania d Russia. After a lengthened historical view of Jewish colonisation and persecution those lands, she said efforts had been made wealthy English Jews to secure a better ture for their kinsmen in Russia, but without y good result. Protests by the great Powers e not likely to be more successful. An exriment made near Jerusalem by acquiring a ot of ground, called "Abraham's Vineyard," ows that Jews may be settled to advantage the Holy Land after they have fled from rsecution in European countries. This emed to indicate the way in which the people England may act with effect in restoring the and of Canaan to its long-exiled people.

LEPERS IN INDIA.

a letter dated Rawal Pindi, October 25 r. Wellesley Bailey, of Edinburgh, writes:— I visited the leper asylum here last evening. he buildings will fall in before long, as they e not being kept in repair, There are forty-ree inmates on the roll, twenty-three men and venty women. There is one leper child, a boy out eight years. All are Mohammedans, cept one woman, who is a Hindu. There are ur children with no appearance of the disease, l very young, living with their parents. These arents are all far advanced lepers.

"The asylum (such as it is), is supported by he Municipal and District Committee's funds. ll the inmates are in a truly pitiable condion; men and women living together much as ey like, apparently without supervision of any ind. The European doctor, I was told, visits he place about once in twelve months, and the ative doctor, I expect, very seldom. An unutterably sad expression pervaded the faces of ll; one young woman had a look of the most bject despair. We came away from the place eeling terribly sad. There were some cases of readful suffering, and all in such filth!

"Nothing is being done to relieve them, hysically or mentally; no one to tell them f the love of Christ. How it wrings one's eart! Some of them followed us with their iteous tale of suffering, but we were helpless."

Mr. Bailey, in a subsequent part of his letter, ells how Mr. Ullmann, an old missionary who ccompanied him, was so moved by what he ad seen, and by the reading of one of he reports of the Mission to Lepers that he as undertaken the general superintendence of fforts to ameliorate the condition of these Rawal Pindi lepers. He is 74 years of age, and n the 51st year of his missionary service.

We are desired to state that during Mr. Bailey's absence in India, all communications o the office of the Mission, 17, Glengyle-errace, Edinburgh, will be carefully attended o.

DINNER TO POOR CHILDREN.—Some 350 of he poorest children from the courts of Soho and Seven Dials were last week gathered in Bloomsbury Hall, Meard-street, Soho, and supplied with a good hot dinner of Irish stew. This was the third of such dinners for the present winter season, and already more than 1000 of the juvenile denizens of this district have been supplied with a good wholesome meal. Mr. William Harrison, under whose superintendence the work is carried on, is assisted by a staff of ladies and gentlemen, who volunteer as waiters, and the dinners are to be provided weekly. This week more than four hundred are to be invited, and so on to the end of the winter.

"The Children of the Slums."

BY T. J. BARNARDO, F.R.C.S.E.

IN Darkest England the shadows fall heaviest upon the children of the slums. Their lives are passed amidst it blackest gloom; to vary the metaphor, it is their young shoulders which are the most heavily burdened. There is, for instance, that mysterious but awful burden of heredity—a burden which is added to in what I may call a geometrical ratio by their environment. Thus the drink fever may be bred in the very bones of some of these little ones; yet their daily round from infancy is spent only in a gin-soddened atmosphere. To my mind, no device (I care not whose it be) for dealing with the "submerged tenth" is worth one moment's consideration that does not include and indeed begin with the children. Otherwise the fairest looking scheme, which may perhaps lift up the adults who have fallen into the deep ditch, will prove powerless to prevent the recurrence of similar lapses, as by the certain operation of a known law. As Miss Ellice Hopkins once put it pithily in some such words as these: "It is infinitely better to fence the precipice at the top than to set the ambulance at work among the mangled victims at the bottom!" The work which God has given me to do has been not so much ambulance work as fencing work! not so much cure as prevention.

KATE (aged eight years).

Out of the shadows of that dark Forest of Death which spreads over so many little unfortunates, emerge the faces and forms of KATE and EDITH DREW, who had been taken in hand from the moment of their birth by their surroundings, and who were thereby, until the day they came to me, being surely moulded for evil. Their father, a soldier, had died of consumption, leaving the mother, herself a person of abandoned life and evil character, with five young children. I cannot stain these pages with a recital of the nameless pollutions to which these poor children were subjected. Suffice it to say that their own mother was their worst enemy. Better far had it been to be left unprotected with some savage beast, thirsting for their blood, than to be cast as they were, defenceless, and, alas! receptive of all impressions, at the mercy of the unhappy woman who gave them birth. Stanley's pigmies were all cannibals. They warred on and ate each other; but I cannot learn that the instinct of motherhood was, even among them, so perverted to evil ends as can be found at this day in Christian England. It has been reserved for our land of privileges to develop the type of female savage capable of working so utterly the destruction of its offspring.

EDITH (aged ten years).

Kate and Edith's outward condition when rescued was a type and a symbol of their mental and moral state—filthy, wretched, and neglected. But a few more short years of neglect, and all the machinery of the law might be employed against them in the vain hope of restraining impulses which by that time would have become too powerful to be controlled. Happily I was able, in their case, to fence the precipice at the top before they could fall down. Admitted to our Home, I cannot doubt but that it will be proved in their case, as it has been in the case of thousands, that a "new and healthy environment is more powerful to transform and renovate than even heredity has been in planting and evolving taint." There is, thank God, an upward development as there is a downward degradation.

YES, there is hope for the CHILDREN of the slums! They may indeed be reached effectually—their plastic natures may be impressed favourably if we will. The gracious and purifying influences of Christian example and teaching, if only it meets them early enough in life, can sweeten even the bitter waters of their Mara, and by God Himself alone can it be fully known how bitter these waters really are.

18 to 26, Stepney-causeway, London, E.

DESTITUTE CHILDREN'S DINNER SOCIETY.

SIR,—The Destitute Children's Dinner Society which has now carried on its work for twenty-five years, is more urgently than ever in need of funds. Unless the public generously responds to this appeal, we shall be compelled to curtail or to relinquish the work of the Society. We have largely overdrawn our banking account to enable us to open our sixty-five dining-rooms in all parts of the Metropolis at the usual time.

For some months to come our dining-rooms will be besieged by thousands of hungry, cold, and half-clad children, waiting with an eager anticipation, which the well-fed can hardly realise, for the substantial and nourishing dinner supplied by the Society. The expenditure of the Society is now over £400 a month, and to meet this we have absolutely nothing in hand. Hundreds of letters have been received from teachers and managers testifying to the improvement brought about in the health and physique of the children, and in their capacity to learn through the help rendered. Mr. H. Morton Carr, 89, St. George's-square, S.W., is secretary to the Society.—Yours obediently,

BURDETT COUTTS, President.
KINNAIRD, W. FULLER, } Treasurers.

Mission Schools in Madeira.—These schools are the means of doing much good in the island, and are well attended. Some readers of THE CHRISTIAN may be willing to aid the treasurer, Mrs. MAXWELL REEVE, Quinta da Pontinha, Funchal, Madeira, in meeting the claims due. This note refers to two of the schools, the one under Mr. W. G. Smart and the other at St. Roque. There are two others supported by friends in England and Scotland.

RUSSIAN JEWS IN PALESTINE.

WE recently announced the intention of Rev. John Wilkinson, director of the Mildmay Mission to the Jews, to send workers to the Holy Land, in the hope thereby of befriending refugees from Russia, and pointing them to Him whom God has exalted to be a Prince and a Saviour, and to give repentance and forgiveness of sins to Israel. It gives us peculiar pleasure to state that at the present time Messrs. Baron and Barnett, who have for some years laboured together in many lands in connection with the Mission, are on their way to Jaffa, hoping at that port to find many opportunities of showing kindness to fellow Jews, and to make known unto them Jesus, whom they have personally found to be the Messiah of ancient promise.

On Friday evening last a meeting (presided over by Colonel MORTON) was held at Mildmay to take farewell of our brethren, and to commend them to the grace of God. In the course of some explanatory remarks, Rev. JOHN WILKINSON showed how God had verily imposed upon the Mission the duty of entering this open door. Mr. Baron goes for a year, accompanied by his wife; Mr. Barnett goes for six months, awaiting developments. Jaffa is already the scene of Mildmay efforts; it will be the centre from which this special mission will work in many directions, including visits to Cairo, where there are many thousands of Jews, and the various ports of the Levant. Mr. Wilkinson further explained that it had been thought desirable that Mr. Baron, whose gifts of grace and intellect have been highly appreciated wherever he has had opportunity to preach, should be formally set apart with ministerial status.

Both brethren are converts of the Mission, and have for years worked in connection therewith. Moreover, both had the advantage of training at Harley College, Bow. This fact was mentioned with joy by Rev. Dr. GRATTAN GUINNESS, in the course of an address based on Acts xiii. 1-3, descriptive of the setting apart of Paul and Barnabas. He showed that there was good order in the primitive Church, with submission to Divine guidance; hence a wholesome sense of responsibility and a true devotion.

In the course of prayer by Rev. Dr. Sinclair Patterson, Mr. Baron was set apart by the laying on of hands. Rev. Dr. EDMOND followed with some words of encouragement and counsel. He pointed out that in one respect Gospel work is alike everywhere, to whomsoever evangelists may address themselves. First of all, men must be dealt with as sinners before God. When a man sees himself to be a sinner, he will recognise his need of a Saviour, and then comes the time for methods suited to special classes. Alluding to the work about to be undertaken, the speaker showed that it was full of promise. If missionaries to the Gentiles labour in the light of the glorious prophecy that God is going to give "the uttermost parts of the earth for his Son's possession," the Jewish missionary may go forth with the assurance that "all Israel shall be saved." What a testimony to the world will Israel be when reclaimed from unbelief, and firm in the faith of Christ! Commending to the attention of the workers the oft-repeated promise, "Certainly I will be with thee," the venerable speaker encouraged them by directing their thoughts to Divine help and blessing.

Mr. BARON, in a few words, remarked that this will be his eighth long tour in connection with Gospel work, making a total of twenty-two or twenty-three thousand miles of travel. A native of the Baltic provinces, he had never heard the name of Jesus Christ until he was eighteen years of age. Mr. Barnett also spoke briefly. In the name of the staff of the Mission, Mr. Wilkinson gave the texts, "Jehovah, He it is that doth go before thee; He will be with thee; He will not fail thee, neither forsake thee: fear not, neither be dismayed" (Deut. xxxi. 8). And from the New Testament, "Lo, I am with you alway" (Matt. xxviii. 28); "If any man serve me, him will my Father honour" (John xii. 26). Mr. R. C. Morgan led in prayer, that the brethren might be prospered on their way, and do a blessed work for eternity in the land of their fathers.

Gathered Gold.

THE BIBLE.

IN Genesis the promises are made; in Revelation they are fulfilled. In Genesis is the seed-time; in Revelation is the harvest. The former portrays Paradise lost; the latter, Paradise regained. The Gospel of John opens with Christ in the bosom of the Father and closes with a sinner in the bosom of Christ.—W. W. Clark.

CONTENTMENT.

One of the most useless of all things is to take a deal of trouble in providing against dangers that never come. How many lay up riches which they never enjoy; to provide for exigencies that never happen; to prevent troubles that never come, sacrificing present comfort and enjoyment in guarding against the wants of a period they may never live to see.—Jay.

PRAYER IN SPIRIT.

So long as we remain in the outer court of the intellect we have no open vision, no sense of his presence and nearness; we are dealing with notions about God, but his own being we do not feel until the thought is lost in wonder, love, and praise. Hence the importance of continuing in prayer, waiting in the outer court of the intellect till God calls us in for an audience. Time spent on our knees is not time lost, if after one hour of meditation about God, we are given even one moment of the ecstatic sense of his presence.—Heard.

WHAT WE MAY KNOW.

That I should be pardoned, saved, and sanctified—that I should serve before God, and be accepted in my service—that I should die in peace and rest in Christ—that I should have confidence, and not be ashamed before Him at his coming. These are worthy desires for an immortal being, and for these the Gospel provides. But it provides for more than these; making me the member of a kingdom of Christ, and the citizen of a city of God. There ought surely to be a consciousness within me corresponding to that position; there ought to be affections which will associate me in spirit with that larger history in which my own is included; and which will make me long that the kingdom of Christ should come, and the city of God be manifested. The blessedness ascribed to him that reads, and those who hear, the words of this prophecy can belong only to those who read and hear it thus.—Canon Barnard.

THE WORK OF THE HOLY SPIRIT.

We do not obtain the Holy Ghost by our exertions; He is ours from the moment we believe in Jesus. All apostolic Christians knew this. The Apostle appeals even to carnal Corinthians, "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost?" Having received the Holy Ghost when we believed we were also sealed with the Spirit: "Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye were sealed unto the day of redemption" (Eph. i. 13, iv. 30). Men who have not the Spirit think they can understand the things of God by human intellect. But when Peter acknowledged Jesus to be the Christ the Son of the Living God, He told him that came by revelation from the Father. If men believe because they see, why did not the Jews who saw the miracles believe on Jesus? It was not the vicious and criminal whose unbelief was the most pronounced, it was the Pharisees, i.e., according to modern definition, ethical men—men with a high standard of virtue. It was not the ignorance but the wisdom of the world which rejected Jesus Christ. "No man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost." God is so high that human reason, darkened by sin, is not able to perceive the things of God, until enlightened by the Holy Ghost. The believer at first does not know the work of the Spirit. He thinks that when he heard the simple Gospel, and his heart went forth to receive Christ, he did it of himself. Because the Holy Ghost so perfectly adapts Himself to us: as you put your hand on the hand of a child to raise a latch, and move his hand so gently that the child thinks he opened the door himself.—Dr. Adolph Saphir.

DUBLIN Y.M.C.A.

As a result of the British Y.M.C.A. Conferen last year, a much deepened interest has be shown in the work of the Association in th city and in the south of Ireland generally.

Mr. Edward T. Reed (for nearly four yea general secretary of the Sheffield Y.M.C.A was asked to undertake the charge of th work. He entered on his duties in May, a was warmly welcomed.

The Dublin Association has most of the usu agencies at work for the social, intellectual a religious welfare of young men, and much int rest is taken in all these departments by th young men themselves. There are a Sunda evening Bible-class and a Christian Worke Class every Friday. The number of ne members and associates received during th last few months has been very encouraging.

A recently formed Ladies' Auxiliary ha already changed a bare-looking room into comfortable and homelike Young Men Parlour. It is in contemplation to have recep tions for the young men in the different bu ness houses.

The Association is much crippled in its wo from lack of funds. About £100 is needed clear off existing liabilities. The special dif culties of carrying on Y.M.C.A. work in a ci where the Protestant population stands in th proportion of one fifth to the Roman Catho population is a reason why special help has be sought. The address of Mr. Edward T. Ree General Secretary, is Lower Abbey-stree Dublin.

NOTES FROM BOURNEMOUTH.

REV. DR. ADOLPH SAPHIR is preaching on Sunda mornings until the end of the year at the Presb terian Church, the pastor, Rev. John Rodger, bei still in Switzerland seeking renewal of healt We are thankful to hear that his physician spea hopefully of a sure though slow recovery. D Saphir's sermons hitherto have been two o "Behold the Lamb of God" (John i.), and two o the Acts of the Apostles, which he terms the Boo of the Holy Ghost. These discourses have bee on the model of Apostolic preaching, historical recounting the dealings of God with men, an deducing doctrine therefrom. It is the mo elementary form of teaching, but this generatio has been so sophisticated by a preaching which not Biblical, that probably few congregations such would be able to follow these simple e positions. But to all familiar with their Bibl they are most instructive. A few of Dr. Saphir remarks will be found in our column of "Gathere Gold."

On Thursday evening of last week, by the kin ness of numerous friends, about 350 cabmen an yardmen were entertained at their annual suppe after which they were addressed by Capt. Dawso and Rev. W. R. Mowll. Before leaving each ma received a pair of knitted socks, and several signe the temperance pledge. On Sunday Captai Dawson's afternoon service in Shaftesbury Ha was resumed for the winter, the central seats bein reserved for cabmen. They were again genially and heartily addressed by Mr. Mowll, whose talk on such occasions sparkle with stirring stori from his own experiences of London life by da and night.

THE ANTI-SLAVERY CONFERENCE.—Rev. J Grant Mills, hon. sec. Native Races and th Liquor Traffic Committee, 9, Bridge-street, S.W writes asking that intercession should at th time be made for a successful termination t the deliberations of the Brussels Anti-Slavery Con ference. If the General Act of the Conferenc be not signed on January 2, 1891, the whole wor of the Conference will probably be rendered nu and void. This means that the barbarous slav trade in Africa will continue, with all its attendan horrors, and that the Continent of Africa will b opened to an unrestrained importation of alcoholi liquors, firearms, and ammunition. At preser one Power alone, the Netherlands, refuses to sig what the sixteen other Powers represented at th Conference have agreed to. The crisis is a grav one, and demands the earnest prayer of all wh are interested in foreign missions.

Criminals at Supper.

TLE WILD-STREET CHAPEL (Drury-lane), dquarters of Mr. George Hatton's blessed k for God, was a centre of attraction on nday night to men of high and low degree. r fellows who had been lodged in gloomy ons were welcomed to a substantial meal, id bright surroundings, as a means of engaging ir attention to the counsel of friends, who uld gladly extend a helping hand in the way k to honesty and to God. Some 300 persons took of this fifteenth annual supper, of om about 150 were "first time" men; but orming and providing work for discharged soners is only one of the many beneficent erations of this Mission, amid the poverty and sery of St. Giles', where Mr. George Hatton, honoured and beloved founder of the work, seen thirty years of toil.

The feast being closed, the Lord Mayor, companied by the Lady Mayoress, entered take the chair, and this started the exuberant husiasm and hopefulness which characised the whole evening. In the much-retted absence of Mr. Hatton, through illness, . R. Tointon, one of the trustees, read a cidedly cheering statement of what has been complished in this branch of the work. The port thus read expressed the committee's isfaction to find prison returns prove that number of persons under first conviction is rly diminishing, and that the proportion of victs to the population is, in five years, duced by about one-half. During the year, ding November, 1889, 15,997 discharged soners accepted an invitation to breakfast, of om 7715 were assisted to honest courses. At ir own request, 434 men were discharged to Mission. Temporary employment was nd for about 40 men at a time at various des in the Brooke-street Home. The num- of lads saved through the provision of the rst Offenders Act from the taint of convicn has increased so rapidly that two more mes have been opened for the lads, and a rth is in course of erection. The needs of ildren suffering from the wrong-doing of atives are not overlooked; nor is it forgotten at no real reformation can be experienced the men except through the grace of God. e success and rapid extension of this branch work taxes others, and therefore loudly calls increased support.

The LORD MAYOR, on rising to speak, was ceived with signs of hearty welcome, and pressed his gratification at being present. s Lordship traced the small but earnest ginnings, interesting associations, and pid growth of the Mission; and repeated the e Lord Shaftesbury's words, "I know and artily thank God for the efforts you are mak- in those terrible districts." It was a work in hich all might well lend a helping hand. His rdship could testify from eight years' perience to the unremitting and devoted bour and zeal of his excellent friend Mr. illiam Wheatley, secretary of the Mission. was well to forget that the men had en in prison, and he would, therefore, ggest that in future the feast be called a pper for the sorrowful classes, or, still better, rhaps, for the hopeful classes. If we would followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, we must what He did; and we are told, in his own rds, "The Son of Man is come to seek and save that which was lost." His Lordship oceeded to open up these words in their true spel sense, and closed with an earnest, plain mmendation to those before him of a freely fered salvation through the Lord Jesus rist.

Mr. WM. WHEATLEY, as he addressed the ghty reclaimed boys in the gallery, who had tained leave of absence from work, seemed to communicate to them his own spirit of thankfulness for the kindly co-operation in his labours of magistrates, employers, police, prison officials, and heads of departments. He besought the lads not to slacken their own efforts because they had been befriended; and mentioned that rescued men sent abroad are remitting money to send others out.

Mr. G. D. WARRY, Q.C., as Deputy Chairman of the London Court of County Sessions, was, in conjunction with Sir Peter Edlin, always on the look out for a spark of true repentance which would justify handing prisoners over to Mr. Wheatley.

After warm commendations from Sir W. Charley, Common Sergeant, and Mr. John Bridge, Senior Metropolitan Magistrate,

Col. HOWARD VINCENT, M.P., on this his tenth visit to these suppers, rejoiced that the principle of the First Offenders' Act, which he was instrumental in putting on our Statute Book, is now in operation in Canada, New Zealand, Queensland, South Australia, and Victoria, and is under consideration in New South Wales. Belgium and Sweden have also adopted it, and Austria is likely to do so.

Mr. ROBERT ANDERSON, Assistant Commissioner of Police, had come to give unreserved testimony, after personal experience of the value of a work carried on by a hard-headed but soft-hearted man, ready to go any length in order to help anyone who deserves to be helped. The principle applied to first offenders might well be extended, and other persons might be held to bail while spending a certain time in an institution of this kind. By right measures it would be possible to stamp out professional crime. Men who seek to "run straight" need have no fear of the police; and such might find even a greater friend than Mr. Wheatley, in the God who made them, and who was ready to light up their lives with the sunshine of his peace.

In moving a resolution of sympathy with Mr. Hatton in his serious illness, Col. Howard Vincent said he had the authority of the Lady Mayoress for saying that she heartily seconded it.

MESSRS. FULLERTON & SMITH.

A VERY encouraging series of meetings, conducted by these evangelists at Enfield, was closed on Sunday night. The meetings extended over nine days; and the leading members of the five Nonconformist denominations which exist in the town took a prominent part in the work, the spacious Riding House being lent by Colonel Somerset for the purpose. The meetings were preceded by a week of special prayer in the chapels of the denominations referred to. Everything was thoroughly well organised, the Christian friends working harmoniously together with praiseworthy ardour.

Commencing with a song-service, "Valour and Victory," the audiences throughout were large, several being so crowded that many had to leave unable to get in. Two afternoons were devoted to "an hour with the Bible." Another very popular feature was Mr. J. Manton Smith's addresses to children. These attracted immense congregations of young folks; and after one of them, seventy-four outlines of the address were written out and sent in. Prizes were liberally distributed among those who took these pains to show their mastery of the subject, money being given for that purpose by friends in the district. The meeting for men only on Sunday afternoon is said to have been the largest assembly of men ever seen in the town; and Mr. Fullerton gave some very plain speaking.

The closing meeting on Sunday night was excessively crowded, numbers having to go away. The results were highly gratifying, the known converts, who, it is hoped, will stand the test of time, mustering a considerable number.

THE CHINESE MISSION IN LONDON.

As the number of Chinese visitors coming to London steadily increases from year to year, and amounts to between 2300 and 2500 annually—they being now employed on more vessels—it certainly cannot be right that the Mission to them and the efforts made for their salvation should cease. The committee of the Wesleyan Missionary Society however, feel that the cost of this Mission is a burden on their finances which it seems hardly fair for them to bear, therefore they have resolved to drop this Mission from the number of their various agencies.

Feeling persuaded, as I do, that the Mission to the Chinese in London ought not to cease, it is necessary to seek for new sources of supply for the maintenance of a work which has existed seven years, and has had a measure of success which will, we hope, increase as the years pass by. Help for the up-keep of the Mission seems likely to be best secured by an effort to broaden the area of sympathy with the work, by making it known to the Christian public generally, and inviting aid from any quarter where such sympathy is felt.

The spiritual condition of these heathen men—exposed on landing here to constant temptations in both new and old forms—cannot be said to appeal to one denomination of Christians only, but rather to all Christian hearts, when they learn what that condition is. It is necessary, then, to place this work, if it is still to be carried forward, on undenominational lines, by which a wider range of sympathy and help can be gained, and permanence secured for it.

My purpose, therefore, is to seek the help of a small number of Christian gentlemen of different denominations, who will form a council, or body of referees, and that, aided by such a council, this work of help and mercy to the Chinese should continue. I think it ought to continue, and that God will uphold it; and, when known on a wider scale, it will draw forth prayer and labour and help.

The aim and object will remain as hitherto: viz., (1) The instruction in simple evangelical truth of the Chinese coming to England, thus seeking to win them to Christ. (2) The provision for them of a Christian centre of resort in the shape of a small mission-house, where they can easily gather, and where council and help on different matters can be readily obtained. (3) The affording opportunities for anyone whose heart is drawn towards missionary work in China to learn something of the Chinese, their character, habits, and language, so that he may in some degree be prepared to go to China, and be heartened to deal with the heathenism of that land.

GEORGE PIERCY.

276, Burdett-road, London, E.

Y.W.C.A.—The teachers connected with the Y.W.C.A. have started a magazine, with the title Once a Month, Miss Marian Sheppard being editor.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on the following:—Gospel meetings in South Norwood, in connection with the London City Mission, commencing Dec. 5.——Gospel services at Hazelbury, Plucknett.——A fifteen days' mission, by Gipsy Smith and wife, at Banbury, Dec. 7 to 21.——Fifteen days' mission in the Memorial Hall, Croydon, commencing Dec. 7.——For addresses at Hurstpierpoint.——That the labours of Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, of Maloga, on behalf of the Australian Aboriginals, may be crowned with success.

THE NINTH INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE of the Evangelical Alliance has been fixed to be held in Florence immediately after Easter of next year. It is thought better, for obvious reasons, that the gathering should take place there than in Rome; but all the leading centres in Italy will be represented, and an Italian branch of the Alliance has just been formed. All the branches in Europe, as well as in the United States and Canada, have already accepted invitations to be present; and it is hoped that other and more distant communities will be represented. There is no intention that the gathering in Italy shall assume the character of a demonstration against the Roman Catholic Church, but naturally it is only to Evangelical Christians that the invitation to attend will be issued. The detailed arrangements are now in course of being perfected, and probably before Christmas the programme will be available.

Letter to the Editor.

THE CONVENTION AT MANCHESTER.

DEAR SIR,—It was my privilege to attend several of the meetings of the recent Holiness Convention held at the Star Hall, Ancoats, and, although I went as a critical hearer to discover what so many seemed to expect, sinless perfection upheld, I am very glad to say I failed in seeing any trace of it from any of the speakers that I heard.

The meetings were a source of very great blessing to myself, and I can truly say of that Convention,

> I have been there, and still would go,
> 'Twas like a little heaven below.

I regretted very much to find so many Christians holding aloof, the more so because I felt sure, had they been there, they too would have received blessing. I should like to see such earnest workers in the Lord's vineyard better supported. Surely, if many lived up to the standard that Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Crossley are doing, we should find the masses in a very different state to that in which we find them to-day.

I went to that Conference in hearty sympathy with the earnest work among the perishing souls around, and the loyal service for our common Master, which characterise the workers, and I can truly say not one word was uttered which even distantly implied belief in this unscriptural doctrine of sinless perfection. In fact, the chairman, Mr. F. W. Crossley, put it thus: "This hateful doctrine we do not believe in," and this was the emphatic testimony of all the speakers.

There was nothing, I think, which an honest listener could imagine meant such teaching; there was nothing which unless purposely, or at least carelessly, perverted, could, when repeated, sound like it.

Evidently, God was richly owning the Convention. I know of some cases of well-instructed Scriptural people who came out thoroughly to the appeals that were made.—Yours truly,

CHARLES H. JOHNSON.

Upton Grange, Macclesfield.

Obituary.

M. CH. HAGNEAUX.

THIS evangelist, who has for some years superintended an important work among the deaf mutes of Brussels, recently departed, at the age of fifty-four. He was a devoted labourer, and had frequently visited congregations of deaf mutes in France, Holland, and England, as well as throughout Belgium. In Brussels he had been instrumental in the conversion of several Roman Catholics to the evangelical faith. He interested himself in the material and spiritual welfare of the unfortunate class among whom he laboured.

REV. J. HUDSON TAYLOR, who has concluded a visit and series of meetings throughout South Australia and Tasmania, hopes to reach Hong Kong about this time. Mrs. Hudson Taylor meets her husband in Hong Kong, and they proceed thence to Shanghai.

SIMON'S TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA, exists solely as a naval station for Imperial defence. Its entire population is dependent in a greater or lesser degree upon the naval and military establishments. About 3000 Royal Navy seamen and marines land during the year. In 1886 the place now known as the United Service Institute was founded as a counter-attraction to the perilous influences which abound. Its success was an ample justification of the effort, but more needed to be done. Accordingly, in August, 1889, the "Welcome Home" was started, incorporating a small work begun by the men themselves seven years previously. The accommodation thus provided has been used by men of all religious denominations in goodly numbers, and at times many have had to be refused admission through want of room. For the institution to be self-supporting, it will be necessary to enlarge. An effort is being made to acquire more suitable premises at a total expenditure of £3600. Communications may be addressed to Rev. E. J. Williams, Wesleyan Centenary Hall, Bishopsgate-street Within, London, E.C.

[1150]

The Temperance Cause.

MR. CREER has introduced a Bill to prevent the employment of barmaids in New South Wales.

Mr. W. Forbes has concluded a five days' united Gospel temperance mission at Newhaven. Many pledges were taken.

Rev. Charles Garrett, of Liverpool, on Saturday celebrated his sixty-sixth birthday and the fiftieth anniversary of his signing the temperance pledge.

In The Temperance Record Mr. Robert Rae, secretary of the National Temperance League, has paid a high tribute to the late Rev. Dr. Alexander Hannay's devotion to the temperance cause.

The Free Methodist regrets the falling off that has taken place in the temperance work of the Methodist Free Churches in and around London. We trust this reproach will speedily be removed.

Alderman Stephens has published figures to show that within ten years there has been a decrease of eighty-five licensed houses in Newcastle-on-Tyne, mainly due to the efforts of the temperance party.

At an inquest held at Llandudno, on a man killed during the launching of the lifeboat in a recent storm, the evidence of the coxswain, questioned by the jury, was that half the crew, including himself, were not sober at the time.

Dundee Free Presbytery have resolved to approach the magistrates, and request them to recommend the holders of spirit licences to close their premises on New Year's Day, as has been done, with beneficial results, in Edinburgh and elsewhere.

In the London County Council, a resolution was proposed by Mr. Lidgett, and supported by Mr. MacDougall, that all licences should be refused to music-halls where intoxicating liquors were sold. The matter was referred to the Theatres Committee for consideration.

Some representatives of the iron and steel trades, who recently visited the seat of these manufactures at Pittsburg, U.S., have expressed the opinion that the American artisans are more temperate in habit than the English workmen. It appears that strong drink is not sold in Pittsburg on Sundays.

The report of the London Temperance Hospital for the past twelve months shows that the item for milk exceeds the amount spent upon drugs. No money whatever had been spent upon intoxicants, and every kind of disease had been treated with results comparing favourably with other London hospitals.

A Commission, appointed last year by the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope recommends that all applications for licences shall be treated as new ones, also that the law, which enables a majority of one half of the registered voters in given limits to prevent the issue of new licences, shall be amended, so as to require a bare majority only. The mining officials at the Diamond Fields unanimously state that the natives are in favour of prohibition.

OUTGOING MISSIONARIES.—Rev. J. Ireland Jones, of the C.M.S., writes to us from Port Said, en route for Ceylon:—"We have so far had a wonderfully prosperous voyage. We have a party of about thirty missionaries, chiefly Americans, and a pleasant daily Bible-reading draws us all very closely together. We go to different lands—Burmah, North and South India, and Ceylon—but we go with one heart, and the one desire of glorifying God in the lifting up of Christ."

THE SAVOY MISSION.—The departments of Haute and Basse Savoie, in France, have a population of about 500,000 Roman Catholics, with the exception of a few scattered Protestants. There are only three French pastors and two or three colporteurs. Happily, there are now some devoted English ladies actively engaged in evangelistic labour at Concises near Thonon, as also in the neighbourhood of Evian les-Bains, on the Lake of Geneva. As the winter and spring months are by far the most favourable for meetings, earnest prayer is being made that ladies full of Christian love and wise zeal in seeking the salvation of perishing sinners may offer themselves to join another who is anxious to begin work for the Lord in Annemasse, a small town five miles from Geneva, and within easy access by tram and train. The Mission is carried on on the same lines as that of Rev. R. McAll, of Paris, who is in full sympathy with it. (REV.) N. L. BLUETT.

Annemasse, Haute Savoie, France.

"IT IS THE LORD."

IT is the Lord who speaketh;
Be still, my soul, and hear.
Let faith alone be active,
Let Christ alone be near.

It is the Lord who saveth;
Be meek, my soul, and know
That Jesus waits to save thee,
And waits to save thee now.

It is the Lord who chasteneth;
Be calm, my soul, and feel,
It is the Lord who smites thee,
And He alone can heal.

It is the Lord who leadeth;
Be wise, my soul, and yield;
With gentleness He'll guide thee
To his fair pasture field.

It is the Lord who gladd'neth;
Rejoice, my soul, and praise;
For now on thee there shineth
The light of God's own face.

It is the Lord who reigneth;
Awake, my soul, and sing.
Go, cast thyself before Him,
And hail Him as thy king.

Greenock. JOHN BONAR.

SOUTH AMERICAN NOTES.

THE farewell meeting to Mr. J. Lawrence, returning to the scene of his twenty years' labours in Terra del Fuego, and Mr. William Reade Gardiner, volunteering for work amongst the Indians of Araucania, in whose evangelisation his grandfather, Captain Allen Gardiner, and his father were so deeply interested, was held in the rooms of the South American Missionary Society, Clifford's Inn. The Archdeacon of London gave the address to the departing missionaries which will appear in the December number of the Society's magazine.

Rev. Robert Allen, belonging to the South American Missionary Society, writing of Bahia Blanca, says of the immigrants: "The demoralisation (to use a mild word) is exceptional—the result largely, I should say, of the heterogeneous elements of a population drawn from all parts exhibiting, perhaps, as curious a variety of antecedents as could be met with in any part of the world in the same number of people and within the limits of an ordinary parish. Amid the chaos conflict, sin, there is no representative of any church; no man to speak a word for Christ but me. I can hardly tell you how glad these people have been at my visiting them. I am engaged at present in drawing out the plans for a simple but suitable church. Hitherto our services have been held in one of the huts. I hope, if God spares me to be more with them, to be much more to them. May their fields yield them rich harvests! May they themselves in the time to come be a yet richer harvest for God.

From the recent correspondence of Rev. J. R. Tyerman, who was sent out last year by the South American Missionary Society in response to an urgent appeal from the English colonists to minister to them at Quino and in the new agricultural districts in the south of Chili, we learn that our fellow countrymen, who number some twelve hundred, have to maintain a hard struggle for subsistence. Owing to inadequate police protection they are almost absolutely at the mercy of armed bands of brigands, who rob, outrage, and murder with impunity. Mr. Tyerman reports the arrival of the Iron Church subscribed for in England, and states that in addition to the usual English services, etc. he has a Spanish Sunday School which already numbers forty scholars. His knowledge of Spanish makes him a welcome visitor to the toldos of the Araucanian Indians.

PIERSHILL SOLDIERS' HOME.—The new Soldiers' Home at Piershill, near Edinburgh, was opened last week by Lady Ashburton. She expressed her firm conviction that the place would be used for the salvation of souls and the glory of God, and that infinite good would come to the new Home, in that it would be looked back to by many in far distant lands as a place where they had found a great blessing.

The Book World.

Professor Beet's New Work.

COMMENTARY ON ST. PAUL'S EPISTLES TO THE 'HESIANS, PHILIPPIANS, COLOSSIANS, AND TO HILEMON. By Joseph Agar Beet. 7s. 6d. odder & Stoughton. The distinctive features of ofessor Beet's commentaries on the Epistles to e Romans, Corinthians, and Galatians dominate is welcome volume. In the words of the author his brief preface: "My aim has been, not merely reproduce the sense which the Apostle designed s words to convey, but also to use his letters as means of reproducing his conception of the ospel and of Christ, in order thus to reach the tual teaching of Christ and those unseen realities hich He came to reveal to men. Consequently, before, my exposition of the Epistles of Paul a specific contribution to systematic theology. nd since these Epistles contain certain impor- nt evidence of the truth of the doctrines so mly believed by the Apostle, my exposition of em is also a contribution to the evidences of hristianity." These sentences fairly indicate the ope and character of the volume, which is a onument not only of well-directed scholarship, t of diligent research on questions which have ercised expositors in ancient and modern times. fter expounding the Epistles in a manner well inging out their practical teaching, the author rnishes lucid and instructive reviews of their ift and substance. He also devotes additional ctions and dissertations to the discussion of ints of special difficulty or importance.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A LETTER FROM HEAVEN, AND OTHER SER- ONS. By Rev. David Roberts, D.D., Wrexham. liot Stock. Here are fifteen sermons, and, having en translated from the Welsh by their author, ey exhibit much of their native fire. The dis- urse which suggests the title is based on Rev. v. 13, "I heard a voice from heaven," &c. The oduct of an imaginative and emotional mind, these scourses have a distinctiveness of character, and e well worth reading.

A WEEK OF BLESSING is the title of a book, ntaining the full report of the meeting for Bible udy held at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario, in ly last. The Conference extended over eight ys, and the addresses were expository of doctrine to sin and salvation, and prophecy in regard to e Church and the world. This pamphlet of over 0 pages is full of instruction, the teachers includ- g Drs. J. H. Brookes, N. West, H. M. Parsons, T. Pierson, A. Erdman, and W. G. Morehead. s. 6d. Toronto: Willard Tract Depository.)

SHARPENED ARROWS AND POLISHED STONES: collection of Scripture texts and illustrations r the Christian worker and the Home. By C. . Bibb. 3s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. Rev. Dr. ordon, of Boston, writes an introduction to this mpilation, which is sure to prove of service to eachers and teachers. The arrangement is ex- llent, the contents being grouped in sections, d carefully indexed. Mr. Bibb has not only med at assisting Christian workers, but at arous- g believers to a sense of duty, and unbelievers a state of concern for their "latter end."

FROM ARMY TO ARMY: a Story of Real Life. y Henry Clinch, Pastor in Chester. H. C. obinson, Conway-street, Birkenhead. Many may ave forgotten how, in 1872, two private soldiers ere tried by court martial, degraded, and im- risoned for street preaching, and suffered results nsequent upon the sentence. Their remarkable ory is here retold, and we strongly recommend to all Christians, especially to any who find the ar of man to be a snare. The providences that d Mr. Clinch from the barrack to the pulpit are tensely interesting.

MISS HAVERGAL'S WORKS.—Messrs. Nisbet & Co. ave issued several of Frances Ridley Havergal's orks in small volumes at 8d. each. So far seven f these have appeared, as follows:—KEPT FOR HE MASTER'S USE; STARLIGHT THROUGH THE HADOWS; ROYAL COMMANDMENTS, OR MORN- G THOUGHTS FOR THE KING'S SERVANTS; HE ROYAL INVITATION, OR DAILY THOUGHTS N COMING TO CHRIST; THE ROYAL BOUNTY, EVENING THOUGHTS FOR THE KING'S GUESTS; Y KING, OR DAILY THOUGHTS FOR THE KING'S HILDREN; and ROYAL RESPONSES, OR DAILY ELODIES FOR THE KING'S MINSTRELS. The last- med is poetry. These little books are in dainty romo covers, and are sure to be in large demand.

FRESH FROM THE FENS. By E. Ward. Seeley & Co. A very pretty story of the adventures and experiences of three engaging little maidens, whose visit to some relatives produced unlooked-for results. We regret, however, to find baptismal regeneration blankly taught by the author.

"FRITZ" OF PRUSSIA. By Lucy Taylor. Nelson & Sons. We have in this handsome volume a full and eminently readable account of the life, achievements, and characteristics of "Germany's Second Emperor" whose heroic suffering and lamented death are still fresh in the public memory. Miss Taylor's diligent research and vivid literary style have found ample scope in narrating the many stirring events that were crowded into the late Emperor's career. The printing and binding of the work are worthy of all praise.

SOMETHING FOR SUNDAY. The ninth series of this publication contains forty-eight outline texts for painting, with the Bible questions and hints by Catharine Shaw. The keynote of the texts is supplied by the title "All things are yours." This series affords the young a very useful employment. Such as fill in the outlines and distribute them for the brightening of the rooms of the sick and poor will assuredly be in the way of learning something of the blessedness of disseminating Divine truth. (1s. J. F. Shaw & Co.)

THE SIX INTERMEDIATE MINOR PROPHETS. By George C. M. Douglas, D.D. 1s. 6d. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. Another of the "Handbooks for Bible Classes" series. This part of Scripture—Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah—includes many passages upon which expositors have differed widely. Principal Douglas shows himself upon familiar ground throughout: his introductions are brief and to the point, and his comments on the text—which is the Revised Version—are reverent, scholarly, comprehensive, and practical.

THE WRITERS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT. By the late Rev. W. H. Simcox, M.A. 2s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. This volume of the "Theological Educator" series is in reality the second part of the author's handbook, "The Language of the New Testament." Every page affords evidence of an intimate grasp of the language employed by the writers of the New Testament. The style and characteristics of the various portions are explained in a way only possible to a sound scholar, combining good judgment with an exact appreciation of linguistic details. The book is no mere compilation, but the result of much personal observation. Earnest students of the Greek Testament will find its pages very instructive and suggestive.

A YACHT VOYAGE ROUND ENGLAND. By W. H. G. Kingston. 5s. Religious Tract Society. A revised and enlarged edition of a work descriptive of the main points of interest on the coast of this sea-girt isle. Starting from the Solent, the Lively ploughs her way westward to Land's End, then north by way of Liverpool and Glasgow, through the Caledonian Canal, and back by the east coast to Southampton Water. Such a trip furnishes plenty of material for observation and comment, and Mr. Kingston's name is sufficient guarantee for the skilfulness of the literary performance. As we skim these pages teeming with varied interest, and brightened with many illustrations, we can but envy the fortunate voyagers, and wish that we might some day repeat their experiences.

THE ENGLISH REFORMATION OF THE SIX- TEENTH CENTURY. By Rev. W. H. Beckett. 3. 6d. Religious Tract Society. This volume of the useful "Church History" series is no mere summary of the statements and views of previous writers who have followed one another as to facts, while differing among themselves in interpreting motives and reasons. It is a conscientious piece of independent work, from the pen of one of the sub-editors of the great English Dictionary now being prepared under the direction of Dr. Murray. The result of wide reading among first hand authorities, this manual sketches admirably the origin, growth, and varying phases of the Reformation in our land. The chapters on Monastic England deserve careful study at the present time. We cordially commend the volume, which is illustrated by portraits of notable characters, and maps showing where the principal monastic institutions were situate, over what districts Lollardy spread, and where the martyrs were burnt in the persecution under Mary Tudor. These latter afford evidence of the intimate connection between Lollardy and the spiritual awakening of the sixteenth century, for the area of country in which Lollardy prevailed was that in which the Marian persecutions were most fierce.

ANNUAL VOLUMES.

THE "DAY OF DAYS" ANNUAL. Vol. xix. 2s. "Home Words" Office. This is an attractive volume. There are readable chapters on Christian biography, Church history, &c., and some capital items for the young.

YOUTH TO AGE (2s.) has completed it first year. Among the most noteworthy contents are articles on Scripture characters and astronomical topics by Mr. W. T. Lynn, B.A., F.R.A.S. The pages are characterised by brightness and variety. (G. Stoneman.)

HAND AND HEART, edited by Rev. Charles Bullock, B.D., is a volume of high-toned entertainment and instruction for the family circle. The large pictures are an attractive feature; and the contents include some excellent reading for the young. (2s. "Home Words" Office.)

THE INDIAN FEMALE EVANGELIST, 1890.—This quarterly, published under the auspices of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, 2, Adelphi-terrace, Strand, W.C., contains original articles, sketches, and news of the Indian mission field. The annual volume will be specially interesting to those who have at heart the highest welfare of the women of our great Eastern dependency. (Nisbet & Co.)

THE BRITISH MESSENGER for 1890 (1s. 6d.) has something for persons of all ages, and from first to last the matter is good. There is a story "Loyal to Truth," and a series of papers on "A Better Country," besides many counsels to believers and appeals to those that are still out of Christ. Every page of THE GOSPEL TRUMPET volume (1s.) proclaims the glad tidings of salvation. Here are pointed anecdotes and short articles, in large type, well illustrated. (Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling.)

THE FIRESIDE PICTORIAL ANNUAL. 7s. 6d. "Home Words" Office. This serial, ably edited by Rev. Charles Bullock, B.D., affords, when bound up, reading in abundance for all ages and varieties of temperaments. There is a wholesome tale, "Born in the Purple," by Emma Marshall. Rev. Dr. S. B. James contributes short social essays; Mr. G. Holden Pike writes a number of historical and descriptive papers; and Rev. Henry Sutton, M.A., gives "Some First Leaves in my Life." There is an admirable sketch of the work of John Howard, the prison philanthropist. The illustrations are numerous, and the volume may be heartily commended, as combining excellence and variety in its contents.

Mr. George Kelsey has written two more booklets—THE GOSPEL, and AM I A TRUE CHRISTIAN? The former is an excellent statement of evangelical truth; the latter is a searching appeal to such as are merely nominal Christians. We trust they will be widely circulated. (1s. per dozen. Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling.)

The British and Foreign Evangelical Tract Society, 26, Paternoster-row, has published a series of simple leaflets in Arabic, each giving a verse of Scripture. The English reprint is affixed in each case. The work has been done under the supervision of a missionary living at Tripoli, and it is hoped that the leaflets will prove specially welcome to such as go or send to North Africa.

The almanacks published by the Religious Tract Society are among the best of their kind. THE "R.T.S." POCKET BOOK AND SCRIPTURE CALENDAR for 1891 (1s. 6d.) contains a variety of commercial and other information. Persons of many engagements will find the diary pages specially welcome. THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S POCKET BOOK (1s.) gives texts of Scripture for every day, notes on the months, and useful tables and other matter. THE PEOPLE'S ALMANACK (1d.) will be of service in many a household. THE CHILD'S COMPANION ALMANACK (1d.) is well illustrated, and has some excellent reading for the young. Other publications are: THE POCKET BOOK ALMANACK (2d.), THE COLOURED PICTURE SHEET ALMANACK (1d.), and THE PENNY ALMANACK.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Mr. T. Fisher Unwin:—"The Heart of Sheba," being the story of a Great Queen, as told in the Parchment of Arnath, the Queen's Brother. By Ethel May Hewitt. 3s. 6d.

Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton:—"Freedom Through Faith," by Rev. John Cameron, incumbent of St. John's, Brighton, 2s. 6d.—"The Visible God, and Our Relation to Him in Creation and Redemption," 6s.

"What will it be when the King Comes?" E. S Elliott. 1d. Hazell, Watson & Viney. A poem published in connection with the Christmas Letter Mission. From the National Temperance Publication Depôt, "The Everlasting Arms" (1s. net), and "Liberty" (1s. net), Temperance solos.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

During Advent, special services will be held in the choir, Westminster Abbey, on Sunday evenings, at seven o'clock.

The Rev. G. S. Karney, vicar of Melton, and formerly of Hampstead, has accepted the living of St. John's, Paddington.

The second Reredos case will be carried to the Court of Appeal, and in the event of an adverse decision, will be taken to the House of Lords.

The late Miss Pedlar, of Liskeard, has bequeathed £20,000 towards the building fund of the Truro Cathedral, which will be completed at once.

Rev. Wilson Carlile, of the Church Army, owing to strain upon his health, has accepted the living of Nettes-well, Essex, but will not relinquish control of the Army.

King's College Chapel, Strand, is to be utilised during Sundays in Advent for a course of sermons, commencing at three p.m. A strong list of preachers has been secured.

At a very largely attended meeting of the council of the Church Association, it was unanimously resolved to appeal to the Privy Council in the suit Read v. Bishop of Lincoln.

The special feature of the Wolverhampton twelve days' Church mission was the midday address to men only, by the Rev. W. Hay Aitken, in the large collegiate church of St. Peter, which was filled daily with a gathering of manufacturers, merchants, tradesmen, and professional men, sitting side by side with their own clerks and grimy-visaged artisans in their working garb.

BAPTIST.

Rev. W. C. Minifie, of Arthur-street Chapel, Camberwell Gate, recently baptized sixteen candidates for membership.

The Penycae Sunday-school scholars, who number 290, contributed on a recent Sunday £57 7s. for the reduction of the chapel debt.

The increase in attendance at Sunday evening services in Goodhinge-road Mission-hall, Islington (in connection with Camden-road Church), has necessitated the hiring of the Drovers' Hall, North-road; average attendance at the services is over 400.

The ordination service and recognition meeting in connection with the settlement of the new pastor. Rev. George Hay Morgan, at Woodberry Down Chapel, Seven Sisters-road, Stamford-hill, were held on Tuesday. Mr. Morgan begins his ministry on Sunday next.

Mr. Spurgeon's regular congregation assembled on Sunday at the Crown Baths, Kennington-oval, Rev. E. W. Ellis preached morning and evening, and read a letter from Mr. Spurgeon, in which he stated that he was still unable to put pen to paper. As his hand could not write so his head would not compose, but his heart sent them all its best love.

Rev. J. P. Clark has resigned the pastorate of the Church in Lewin-road, Streatham, S.W., after a five years' ministry. The Church, in accepting this resignation, expressed, in a unanimous resolution, its deep regret, and its appreciation of Mr. Clark's services. The resolution also referred to the labours of Mrs. Clark (known to many of our readers as "Janet Clark").

Calls Accepted.—Rev. D. J. Hiley, Merthyr Tydvil, to Dalston-junction.—Rev. F. G. Masters to the Baptist Church, South-street, Wellington, as assistant minister. Mr. Masters will labour at Rockwell-green, Plymouth, and other stations connected with the church.

METHODIST.

The formation of a Wesleyan Methodist Council for Birmingham has been decided upon.

The Primitive Methodists, New South Wales, have started a monthly paper called Light and Truth.

Mr. Piper, district evangelist, conducted a ten days' mission at Rose Carr Chapel, Darlington circuit, 100 persons professing conversion.

Through the visit of Rev. W. Gibson to Canada arrangements have been made for keeping up a permanent interest in the French evangelistic work.

The Home Missionary Committee have decided to raise £20,000 at once to start a forward movement in the villages. It is felt that attention must now be concentrated on the rural districts of England.

The amount required to renovate the venerable sanctuary in the City-road, London, with its surrounding graveyard and monuments, is guaranteed, and the work will be begun within the next few weeks.

Great activity is being displayed just now in arranging for ministerial changes. So far as the London districts are concerned, the removals are not more numerous than usual, but several are of extra importance.

The monthly meeting at City-road, and an attractive programme of subjects is in course of preparation embracing papers on "Circuit Problems," "Preaching, Past and Present," "Biblical Criticism," and the Sabbath Question.

Rev. E. C. Bayliss, of Emmanuel College, suggests the foundation of scholarships at the Wesleyan Theological Institutions, Richmond, Didsbury, Headingley, and Handsworth, that students may enter either of the Universities.

Last Sunday, young people of both sexes were invited to spend a "Social Hour" in Princes Hall, Piccadilly, after the close of evening service, with the West London Wesleyan missioners and their helpers. After tea and coffee, "family" prayer closed the day. About 300 were present, and as the experiment proved successful, it will be repeated on future Sunday evenings.

SALVATION ARMY.

Miss Lucy Booth's health has improved slightly.

Australia raised £5500 during the self-denial week, against £3225 last year.

The memorial party has left Liverpool for India. Mrs. Booth-Tucker joins them at Suez.

General Booth may obtain the Columbia Market, or, at all events, the use of it, for a "City colony," as the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, whose generosity created it, is understood to view the proposal favourably.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Missionaries leaving China on furlough: Revs. H. L. Mackenzie, J. C. Gibson, T. Barclay, and Dr. Cresland.

Rev. Dr. Smith, of California, is to preach next Sabbath evening in Regent-square Church. Mr. McNeill preaches by arrangement in Westminster Chapel.

Rev. S. R. Macphail, M.A., of Liverpool, one of the Synod's evangelists for the current year, has just concluded a successful series of meetings in Brunswick-street Church, Manchester (Rev. W. Rigby Murray's). At the close of the mission almost all present stood up to testify that they had received blessing in connection with the services. Mr. Macphail proceeds to Blackburn and Sheffield for meetings of a similar character.

CONGREGATIONAL.

While Rev. Jackson Wray is improving in health, the progress is so slow that there is no hope of his taking part in any public service this side Christmas.

The Congregational League of Proportionate Givers is the title of a new organisation. Rev. Benjamin Talbot, of Columbus, Ohio, is its official leader.

A site has been obtained in Church-street, Bradford, for the erection of a school-chapel, at a cost of about £1500. Hitherto Bradford, which has a population of over 20,000, has had no Congregational church.

Rev. F. Hastings, at the meeting of the South Australian Congregational Union, suggested the union of Congregationalists with the Bible Christians and Primitive Methodists. These denominations have in South Australia 300 churches, 40 manses, 70 ministers, and 400 local preachers.

Resignations.—Rev. S. J. Baker, Edge-hill Church, Liverpool (leaving for Brisbane).—Rev. A. C. Todd, Tattenhall, near Chester.—Rev. B. Hurman, Fulwood, near Taunton.

Calls Accepted.—Rev. W. H. Allen to Nailsea, Somerset.—Rev. E. W. Evans, Corwen, to Bettws, near Abergele.—Rev. Glanant Davies to Neath (English) Church.—Rev. W. Newton, Scunthorpe, Lincolnshire, to the pastorates of Kinderhook and East Gilead branch, co. Michigan, U.S.A.—Rev. Robert Mackintosh to Irving-street, Dumfries, Scotland, in succession to Rev. W. H. Pulsford, now of Montreal.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Wibsey and Wyke mission halls, near Bradford, built and managed by Robert J. Crosland, Cleckheaton, are used for noble work. Every week 1200 people hear the Gospel in them, and 160 open-air meetings are held in the year. The evangelists and their wives devote all their time and energy to the spread of Christ's kingdom among the miners and mill-workers around.

On Sunday last, Wm. Hobson, Cardiff, completed the second of two weeks' missions—the first in Hartshead Moor, Cleckheaton, and the second at Middlesborough. Owing to severe weather and other circumstances, the attendance was not so large, but the Divine presence and power were felt throughout. In both missions mothers' and childrens' meetings were addressed, and a meeting for men at the former; while a series of Bible-readings, fairly attended, was given at Middlesborough.

Frederick Sessions, of Gloucester, has just completed a visit to three out of the four provinces of Ireland, chiefly in connection with the Foreign Mission Committee. His addresses in Dublin and the provinces were much appreciated, and the causes of foreign missions, peace, and total abstinence have been helped. In the Friends' meetings, too, his services were valued very greatly. Among other institutions, he visited the three provincial schools, as well as Brookfield. Much blessing is expected and invoked on his arduous labours.

The Friend of the 1st instant gives cheering information with regard to Leighton-park High School, considerable enlargement being required on account of increased attendance. It also reports the solemn and interesting day of prayer for Foreign Missions on the 6th ultimo; and a bi-centenary of the death of George Fox, on January 13 next, is suggested as likely to promote the cause of that spiritual Christianity for which he suffered so nobly and unflinchingly. The travels and labours of William and Susan T. Thompson (U.S.A.) in Scotland are also pleasantly described. There is abundance of room as well as need in North Britain for living Quakerism.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

A convention for the deepening of spiritual life has been held at Antrim.

An anonymous donor has offered £500 to the Presbyterian Assembly's Committee, for the purpose of securing the services of a minister devoted entirely to evangelistic work.

The Irish Presbyterian missions have now in India and China a staff of 39 medical and clerical missionaries, and with these a band of 111 native Christian workers and 1800 baptized converts.

The Methodist ministers in Dublin and the neighbourhood, and some Methodist laymen, have formed themselves into an association to meet once a month for the discussion and interchange of thought on religious and social subjects.

For more than twenty years a number of ladies Belfast have been conducting classes for mill and fact girls, but there is now a proposal to amalgamate the on the lines of the London Factory Helpers' Unio into an educational society, with the hope that th they may be mutually helpful.

Two important circulars have been issued by Re Wm. Park, Moderator of the General Assembly. In o of these Mr. Park draws attention to the fact th Sunday next, December 7, has been set apart by t General Assembly as Temperance Sunday, and cal for humiliation and prayer, on account of such nation vices as gambling and intemperance. In the other b requests that during the present week, at publi private, and family worship, special prayer should b offered on behalf of missions.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Mrs. Lee, wife of Rev. R. S. Lee, Methodist ministe Blackrock, Dublin.—Rev. A. A. Jones, for many year rector of Kilmore, Silvermines.—Rev. B. H. Blacke formerly rector of Booterstown, co. Dublin.—Mr. Alex Magill, of Drumlough, co. Down, a devoted elder fo several years in the Presbyterian Church.—Rev. P. S White, M.A. (formerly of the United Presbyteria Church at Denny), Edinburgh.—Mr. George Angus, prominent Baptist of Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Rev. J. S Hodson, rector of Saunderstead.—Mr. George G Mackay, of the West Free Church, Grangemouth.—Rev J. E. Capel Cure, canon of St. George's Chapel, Windso Castle.—Mr. W. Kemp, for fifty years an elder in th East (Presbyterian) Church of Perth.—Rev. J. Mac naughten, of the Scotch Established Church, Dores.— Mr. W. Spragg, one of the founders of Griffin-stree Methodist Church, Blackburn.—Pastor Viguié, of th French Protestant Consistory.—Rev. W. Alderson, East street Baptist Church, Walworth.—Mr. T. Powell deacon of Tabernacle Congregational Church, Llandil —Dr. Norton, long associated with the Strict Baptis of Norwich.—Rev. J. T. Shawcross, retired Congrega tional minister, Southport.—Mr. J. H. Collins, lat librarian to Mr. Ford's class at Mr. Spurgeon's College —Dr. Rector Elisha Cole, an original member of th first Congregational Church in Oakland, California, an who successfully filled many of its offices.—Mr. William Kelsey, choirmaster and superintendent of the Sunday school at Kingsthorpe Baptist Chapel, Northampton shire.—Mrs. Satthianadhan, wife of the well-known pastor of Zion Chapel, Madras.

THREE NEW YEAR BOOKLETS.

DIVINE ESCORT AND DIVINE GUIDANCE. By Rev. C. A. FOX. 2d.

THE BAPTISMIN TO DEATH; or, The Message of Pentecost. By Rev. E. W. Moore. 1d.

FROM SAFETY TO SCEPTIC. By Sophia Nugent. 1d. Partridge.

Three messages with an admirable purpose—to teach Christians to walk on their high places, filled with joy and peace in believing by the power of the Holy Ghost. The two former are rather more didatic and theological (as might be expected from clergymen) than that by the lady, and therefore need to be read with prayerful consideration, proving all things, and holding fast that which is good.

CAMBRIDGE NOTES.

BY A GRADUATE.

LAST WEEK was observed here as a week of prayer for missions. At four p.m. each day a short address was given in the Henry Martyn Memorial Hall; the week was closed by a service in Great St. Mary's, when Rev. H. B. Swete, D.D., Regius Professor of Divinity, preached.

On Thursday, November 27, Rev. Lancelot Holland, M.A., spoke to the University Protestant Union on "The need of men who have an understanding of the times." He referred to the growing power of Romanism in England, all the newspapers being in their hands; to the strength of the Jesuit community in the country, with its forty-eight separate bodies, and their complete system; to the unchanging attitude of Rome towards what she calls heresy. There is need of men who grasp these facts, he said, and who will preach the pure Gospel. Mr. Holland closed by warning his hearers that if the Roman power ever obtains a hold in England, it will be only to repeat the horrors of Mary's reign.

Major Liebenrood, R.N., addressed a large audience of University men last Sunday evening. He spoke on 2 Tim. iv. 6-8: (1) a look inwards, (2) a look backwards, (3) a look upwards.

Mrs. Mountford (née Miss Von Finkelstein) lectures at the following places this month:—Dec. 4, 5, Bournemouth; Dec. 8, Manchester; Dec. 10, Cheltenham; Dec. 12, Bromley (Kent); Dec. 14, Northampton; Dec. 15, 16, Coventry; Dec. 17, Manchester.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas Richardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E., of whom card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, prepared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope many of our readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," and take its Monthly Notes, which of course are entirely different from these.

SUNDAY, DEC. 7.—Isaiah XI.

IN this chapter we have a panorama of the future. Passing from his immediate theme of deliverance from Sennacherib, and afterwards from Assyria, the prophet enlarges on the Messiah's Advent and Redemption to be wrought by great David's greater Son. All other deliverances are but shadows of his (Rom. xv. 12; Rev. xxii. 16).

1-5. THE MESSIAH.—The towering cedar of the previous chapter is gone for ever; but from the hewn-down stock of Jesse a new shoot arises. Could any language better describe the earthly parentage and birth of our Lord? But how marvellously was He qualified for his great work. The sevenfold gifts of the Holy Spirit are here enumerated; and, in so far as we are one with Him, we have a right to claim them (Col. ii. 9, 10; Rev. i. 4). "Quick understanding" might be rendered "quick scent" (3). Oh to know by instant intuition the thing which displeases God! His just decisions, righteously enforced, on the behalf of the defenceless and poor (4) are referred to in the New Testament (2 Thess. ii. 8; Rev. i. 16).

6-9. THE EFFECTS OF HIS REIGN.—The allegorical sense is the primary one. Christ's Gospel has a marvellous effect on the cruellest and roughest men. And there is coming a day when men shall no longer lurk in the ambush like the lion, or raven like the wolf, or have the poison of asps under their lips. There shall be no rapacious world-empire (Dan. vii. 4-7). And the very passions of the animal creation will change. There is every reason to believe that they are attributable to the entrance of sin, and, with its removal, will pass away (Rom. viii. 20).

10. THE GATHERING IN OF THE GENTILES.—This verse, as quoted in Rom. xv., seems to refer definitely to the present age, during which the Church, of which Gentiles constitute so large a proportion, is being formed. And in this we have an almost exact parallel to the outline of future events given by the Apostle James in the first great council of the Church (Acts xv.) Christ is the rallying banner of the nations.

11-16. THE RESTORATION OF THE JEWS.—The ingathering of Pentecost was a specimen sheaf of a yet larger fulfilment of prophecy (Rom. xi. 26). Pathros is Upper Egypt; Cush, Nubia; Elam, Persia; Shinar, Babylon; Hamath, on the Orontes; the isles, the lands peopled by Japhet's sons, including our own. These countries are named in the order in which they encircle Palestine, and may be taken to express the whole earth. Outcasts is masculine, dispersed feminine, all are therefore included. The restored Jews shall no longer quarrel among themselves, but shall "pounce upon the frontiers of the Philistines," and overthrow all their ancient foes (2 Sam. viii. 11, 18). Though the difficulties in the way of Israel's second restoration be as much greater than those of the first as the Euphrates is a mightier obstacle than the Jordan, yet they should be utterly and easily overcome.

MONDAY, DEC. 8.—Isaiah XII.

As Israel praised God their Saviour on the shores of the Red Sea, so in that great day of Restoration they shall sing his praise. And this hymn awaits that happy time, though those may also sing it who have gotten a victory through the blood of the Lamb (Rev. xv. 2).

1, 2. AN ASCRIPTION OF PRAISE.—God turns from anger when we turn from our sins. God's chosen title is Comforter (li. 12, lxvi. 13; John xiv. 26; 2 Cor. i. 4, vii. 6). How sweet to look up into his face, and know that his gentle comfort will certainly heal the gaping wound. It is much to say with David, "What time I am afraid, I will trust" (Ps. lvi. 3), but it is better to say, as here, "I will trust, and not be afraid." Notice the repetition of "my." Jehovah is the name of God as Redeemer, and when He is strength, He must be song; and when He is these, He becomes an increasing source of complete salvation.

3. UNFAILING SUPPLIES.—Every attribute of God is a well of salvation, from which we are at liberty to draw comfort and help. As in their desert march the Israelites drew plentifully from the Rock, the streams of which followed them, so may we now make free use of all that is stored up in Jesus. He is the Shiloah brook, whose waters go softly (viii. 6). We are reminded of many similar comparisons (lv. 1; John iv. 10, vii. 37; Rev. xxii. 1, 17).

4-6. A SUMMONS TO OTHERS.—We cannot rest satisfied with our personal ascriptions. For God's sake, or for the sake of those whom we address, we cannot but desire that his glories should be recognised universally.

How safe and unmoveable is the Church, in the midst of which is the Holy One. Not the rocks of Zion around her, but the great and holy God within her, makes her what she is (Zeph. iii. 5, 12, 13; Matt. xviii. 20; Rev. v. 6). "God is in the midst of her, she shall not be moved."

TUESDAY, DEC. 9.—Isaiah XIII.

The prophecy contained in this and the following chapter is one of the sublimest odes in the Book of God, and should be read as a piece. It was written when spiritual religion and the Hebrew fortunes were at their lowest ebb. Hoshea in Israel was vassal of the king of Assyria (2 Kings xvii. 3); and the ten tribes were on the eve of removal. Whilst Ahaz, in Judah, had also yielded his homage to the same mighty empire, which was in the zenith of its power and glory. Isaiah here foretells, not only that the power of Assyria should be utterly broken, but that Babylon, which was the real seat of power, and was destined soon to rise into great splendour and importance, should be demolished by the Medes, then an almost unknown horde or tribe. Nothing could have been more explicit or more improbable.

1-5. A summons is uttered to powerful and warlike nations, whom God would use as instruments of wrath for the destruction of Babylon. They are called sanctified ones because set apart for the purpose by the providence of God. They exulted in God's highness, i.e., they wrought out gladly that which was for the honour of his name. The Persians looked on the destruction of idols as part of their national vocation.

6-18. A marvellous description of the sack of Babylon, which should be read into the brief record of the Book of Daniel (Dan. v. 31). The imagery of Nature, its storms and darkness and earthquake, is here employed to describe the dread and panic of that terrible onslaught. The Median disregard of wealth, which usually attracts invaders, their skilful archery, and their savage cruelty, are particularly noticed by contemporary historians. But if this be a description of the judgment of Babylon, what will not be the fate of the wicked in that more terrible day of the Lord, which is yet to come.

19-22. The desolation of the very site of Babylon. "Their houses shall be full of howlings, and ostriches shall dwell there, and shaggy goats shall gambol there, and jackals shall cry in their palaces, and monsters in their halls of pleasure" (21, 22). These words have been literally fulfilled. Arabs fear to spend the night in the neighbourhood. After having been absolutely buried for centuries, its ruins have been only lately unearthed. "The site of Babylon," says Mr. Layard, is "a naked and hideous waste." "Owls," he says, "start from the scanty thickets, and the foul jackal stalks through the furrows." All tells us that God keeps his word.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 10.—Isaiah XIV.

In the continuation of this magnificent prophecy Isaiah lays up stores of comfort, which would help to support his people, when, 200 years afterwards, they were hanging their harps on the willows of Babylon, whither they had been carried away captive.

1-4. God will not ever be threshing his people. He chooses them in their low estate, and restores them, because He will ever remember his covenant. Let every weary and penitent soul lay to heart the comfort of these precious words. There remaineth even here and now a rest for the people of God, and, instead of complaint, a song. Proverb might be better rendered an ode.

4-8. In the opening some Jews are introduced, announcing the downfall of the tyrant, and the consequent joy of the world. Fir-trees everywhere, and cedars on Lebanon, fear no longer the feller's axe.

9-11. The scene changes to the grave, described after Hebrew custom as a gloomy vault, all round the sides of which are cells to receive dead bodies. Here deceased monarchs lie in state, each on his own couch, with his arms beside him, his sword at his head, and the bodies of subordinate chiefs around. These rise from their narrow niches, and mock the king of Babylon as he comes amongst them to share their shame and fate. Beneath the King of Babylon we see the prince of this world, as beneath David and Solomon we see God's Son and King. (Psa. ii., lxii., &c.)

12-17. The chorus of Jews resumes its address, and accentuates the degradation of his fall.

18-23. The corpse of the king of Babylon is next represented as lying naked on the bare ground, covered with wounds and disfigured, and is addressed with contemptuous taunts. His children are placed under the ban. His city is consigned to oblivion.

24-27. In solemn words, Jehovah is lastly introduced declaring its irrevocable fate; and, in doing so, pronounces the sentence of all who rise up against his Church.

28-32. Palestina here means Philistia, and was the land of the hereditary enemies of Israel. They had been often subdued, but a more terrible fate awaited them. Philistia need not rejoice in the assurances of the prophecy about Assyria. Hezekiah would bring on them crushing disaster (2 Kings xviii. 8); while the poorest and neediest of God's people should be safe and satisfied.

THURSDAY, DEC. 11.—Isaiah XV.

This and the following chapter form one connected prophecy against Moab. After the rupture, the Moabites attached themselves to the ten tribes (2 Kings i. 4, iii. 4). But rebelled after the death of Ahab (2 Kings iii. 5). From that time they not only retained their independence, but seem to have acquired some of the adjacent towns, which they held till the Chaldean invasion, when this prophecy was probably fulfilled.

The prophet spoke this sermon to his own people, that they might be warned by the fate of others, and might have corroborative facts to confirm their belief in his other predictions. We may observe that the study of fulfilled prophecy would serve perhaps better than anything else to give an established conviction of the truth of the Bible, and the certainty that God will do all He has spoken by the mouth of "his holy prophets."

1-3. Ar was the capital city; Kir the chief fortress. Bajith and Dibon were high places, the shrines of idol gods, to which the people went up for help. The wailing cry and the shaven hair were signs of bitter sorrow.

4. Heshbon, Elealeh, and Jahaz are all on the northern frontier, and therefore first exposed to the conqueror. "His life," &c., i.e., every man's soul is grieved in him.

5. Our hearts should be touched by the fate of those that reject God, even though they have been our foes. They are compared to an untamed heifer rushing along with loud bellowings.

7. Their hoarded treasures should be carried southwards across the frontier brook.

9. "More evil" on those that survive than even on those who fall. Who should not fear God's lions, unless God's angel shuts their mouths!

FRIDAY, DEC. 12.—Isaiah XVI.

The prophecy of the former chapter is here continued.

1, 2. Moab is exhorted to yield obedience. The people are advised to send to the kings of Judah the tribute they had once covenanted to pay, Sela is another name for Petra; thence to the wilderness, or desert, includes the whole land. As a bird flies disturbed from her nest, so would the people desert their cities before the invader.

3-5. The entreaty of fugitive Moabites at the frontier that the Hebrews would give them asylum. "Let the outcasts of Moab dwell with thee." And the appeal is enforced by the consideration that the refuge would be needed for only a limited time, and that mercy shown there would only tend ultimately to the establishment of David's throne. What a sweet picture of our King, who sits on the throne, "hasting righteousness."

6-12. As the offered mercy is not taken, the prophet passes to stern reproof. Three terrible sins are mentioned (6); but it is added, his boastings are worthless. Note the exquisite imagery which compares Moab to one of the vines which covered her hills. "They reached even to Jazer, they strayed into the desert; her off-shoots were spread abroad, and went over the sea." However weary the idolater is, he gets neither rest nor help from idol-gods. This was remarkably illustrated in the story of Balaam and Balak on those hills.

13, 14. This may have been added as a codicil to the foregoing prophecy and nearer the time of fulfilment. The years of a hired servant would be fixed with the utmost accuracy. This prediction was probably realised at the time of the invasion by Assyria, during Hezekiah's reign

SATURDAY, DEC. 13.—Isaiah XVII.

This prophecy is against Damascus, and it includes the allied kingdom of Samaria. "No Eastern city," says Vitringa (quoted by Speaker's Commentary), "has been so often overthrown and rebuilt as Damascus," and this may explain how, though treated so severely by Tiglath-pileser (viii. 4), it was again able to attract the wrath of succeeding invaders.

1-3. The fortresses would be destroyed. Sin makes havoc of every kind in the proudest cities. The heathen nations should not fare better than the glory of Israel (Hos. ix. 11).

5-6. Rephaim was a fertile plain near Jerusalem. What a contrast between the golden crop and the straggling ears. The first gleaning of the olive is by hand, then the boughs are beaten, but there is still a gleaning left. Two images to show the decimation of the people.

7-9. Here are the beneficial results of chastisement, in leading men to turn to God. It is good to be afflicted if our eyes are directed to our Saviour.

10, 11. A striking term for God. "Unmindful of thy Fortress-rock," trusting in fortress cities. This is a sin to which we are all prone. But note its penalty.

12-14. The prophet then turns to the Assyrians, who were to execute God's judgments, and describes the onset of their armies, and their inevitable defeat and destruction.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, December 14.

JESUS MADE KNOWN.—LUKE xxiv. 28-43.

GOLDEN TEXT: Verse 31.

WITH this lesson the Emmaus incident is resumed. At Emmaus (28-32).—There is nothing unusual in the statement that Jesus "made as though He would have gone further." See Gen. xxxii. 26 and Mark vi. 48. His intercourse with them thus far ought to have created a desire for further fellowship: has it done so? Do they need Him? He comes near us still, and thus tests whether we need Him or no. "They constrained Him" (29).—He not only allows, but delights in it. He can always impart greatest blessing where there is a deep sense of need that will not let Him go. "They point Him to the sun hurrying to its setting, in the living feeling that their spiritual light also will set if He should leave their company. They remind Him that He cannot possibly continue his journey in the night (comp. Gen. xix. 2, 3; Judges xix. 9), and desire that He should therefore turn in with them."—Lange. See Heb. xiii. 2. "Sat at meat" (30).—Note how progressive the blessing has been: first sad for the want of Him (17); next his companionship gladdening them by the way; then, with them in the home; and now a guest at their table. You need never lose the companionship of Jesus. "He took bread."—Admitted as a guest, Jesus always becomes the host, and changes the humblest meal into a feast. If we admit Him, He will sup with us, and we with Him (Rev. iii. 20). This meal could not suggest to the disciples the thought of the Lord's Supper. They had not been present at its institution a few days before, and probably knew nothing of it. Yet they may have known of the miracle of the loaves, in which every feature (took, blessed, brake, gave) is mentioned. Comp. Matt. xiv. 19. Perhaps this and the nail-marks in his hands, may have helped them to recognise Him. "Their eyes were opened" (31), in contrast with verse 16. They not only recognised Him, but after that wonderful Bible-lesson concerning Him (26-27) they knew Him in a deeper sense. Who can tell the thoughts that thrilled through their hearts in that glad moment? Yet before they can recover themselves from their rapturous amazement, the seat He has occupied is vacant, and He is gone! His presence in that visible bodily form could not be retained. He had something better in store for them (Matt. xxviii. 20). Did not our heart burn" (32)? Not at the sight of Him, not at the breaking of bread with Him, but while "He opened the Scripture." We may have fellowship with them in this. He still walks with his people, and reveals to them the Word of God (Ps. cxix. 18). That is the basis of our faith, and the source of our joy. We can only get at the vision of Christ through the Word.

With the eleven (33-43).—It was now evening, and the two disciples were seven and a half miles from Jerusalem, but their joy is such that they must return to tell what they have heard and seen. They could not for a single hour keep their new-found joy to themselves. Let everyone who knows Jesus become at once a witness for Him. Yet they were not only to impart to others, but to receive confirmation to their own faith. Instead of finding the eleven disconsolate, they find them exulting (33, 34). When the Lord appeared to Simon is not known. It is an indication of the tender solicitude of Jesus for his backsliding disciple that he should have been specially mentioned in the angel's message (Mark xvi. 7), and should have been first among the Apostles to see Jesus (1 Cor. xv. 5). "Jesus Himself stood in the midst" (36).—This was a greater joy still. The closed doors (John xx. 19) could keep out their enemies, but could not exclude Him. His salutation ("Peace") recals John xiv. 27. Nothing is so calculated to establish the heart in peace as intercourse with the risen Saviour. Fear of condemnation, of sin, and even of death are all removed by the resurrection of Jesus. Yet even this joyful fact, if not believed, is not enough. Some were affrighted (27) at that which should have given them rest. Hence the many infallible signs (38-43; Acts i. 5) which he granted to them. Speculation upon our Lord's resurrection body is vain. We know that He was able to appear and disappear at will, yet He could be handled, He had flesh and bones (39), his hands and feet retained the marks of the nails (40), and He could even eat before his disciples (42, 43). By these means He corrected their fear that they saw only a spirit. But at this time He was not yet ascended (John xx. 17). From what this incident records, we can conclude very little as to his glorified body. When John beheld Him on Patmos, He presented a very different appearance (Rev. i. 12-17).

APPLICATION.

"THEY CONSTRAINED HIM."—They had found a joy of which the more they had the more they wanted. Have you found anything like that? Are not most of us, like children, pleased for a time with a new toy, but soon throwing it aside? What is the pleasure of which we never grow tired? Nothing but the companionship of Jesus. Have you found that?

"TO TARRY WITH THEM."—Jesus, not only by the way, but in the home. That is what makes a hut into a palace. I once entered a very humble home in Ireland where a godly woman lived. My friend who took me made some remark about the house not being a grand one. I said: "That matters little if the Lord deigns to enter it." The good woman replied: "'Deed, sir, He's never out of it." Is your home like that?

"THEIR EYES WERE OPENED."—How much we miss for want of clearer vision. Hagar (Gen. xxi. 19), Elisha's servant (2 Kings vi. 17), were in deep trouble until their eyes were opened. Why is the Gospel without attraction to some? See 2 Cor. iv. 3-14. If a man does not see beauty in Jesus, it is only because his eyes are not opened. Are yours?

"PEACE BE UNTO YOU."—Only Jesus can speak this peace. I visited a girl who suffered great pain and was at the point of death, and gave her the promise, John xiv. 27. The next morning when the paroxysm of pain was over, I saw her again. She lay very quiet, but her lips moved. I bent down to hear the words, and just caught them: "Jesus—peace; Jesus—peace." A look as of heaven itself shone on her face while she uttered the words. Have you that peace?

WORKING CARGOES ON SUNDAYS.—The Chamber of Commerce at Hong-Kong resists the efforts of the Government to put down the general working of cargoes in that harbour on the Lord's Day, on the petition of 600 officers of ships. The Local Government drafted a bill, intending to force on the Colony a day of rest on board the ships as in other ports. But on account of the opposition of the agents of British merchants and shipowners, the bill had been dropped. The China Mail reports that a delegation of the Mercantile Marine Officers' Association had attended at the Chamber of Commerce to discuss the working of cargoes on Sundays.

NAPLES HARBOUR MISSION.—On November 18 there was a social gathering on board the Caledonia, the new floating Bethel, lately brought from Genoa to replace the old one in the Naples harbour. About fifty of the English residents were present. Rev. Johnstone Irving, superintendent of the Mission, gave an address describing the work, which will be greatly helped by the new Bethel. It is not a new ship; it belonged to the Genoa Harbour Mission, and had been bought of Rev. Donald Miller at a cost of £1100; of this sum only some £60 are still wanted. Mr. McCartney, the missionary, told about well-attended meetings already held in the new Bethel, which has lain in the harbour for several weeks, and appropriate speeches were made by various friends.

The King's Own

(6d. Monthly. 80 Pages, fully Illustrated

For December is a profusely Illustrated Christmas Number, and contains popular articles by Rev. CANON BELL, Cheltenham, on "Israel in Egypt." Principal H. C. G. MOULE, Ridley Hall, Cambridge, the first of a Series of Papers on "Intercourse with God." Principal A. CAVE, B.A., D.D., Hackney College, on "The Vagaries of Criticism." Principal J. CULROSS, M.A., D.D., Bristol, on "The Desire of all Nations." The EDITOR on "Christmas and the Book of Esther," and a Story of thrilling interest and great power, complete in 21 chapters, entitled,

"Some Edinburgh Bohemians," by Mrs. MARSHALL.

N.B.—As the Part will be complete in itself, it will serve as a beautiful Christmas Gift.

London: J. F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row.
And of all Booksellers.

Readings with our Mothers on Women of the Bible

By the late Mrs. S. O. HABERSHON

AUTHOR OF "OUR MOTHERS."

"We cordially commend this wise and effective little volume."
Sunday School Chronicle.

"I was greatly impressed by the directness and tenderness of the teaching given in your delightful little book."
Mrs. C. H. Spurgeon.

CLOTH BOARDS, 1s. 6d.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, Paternoster-row.

OUR OWN GAZETTE.

Volume VII. now ready.

"Should be a favourite with all girls. High in tone, interesting and abounding with useful hints on practical matters. The stories are bright, and the Editor's Monthly Letter most helpful."—Church Bells. "Its Christian and evangelical tone is clear and decided."—Word and Work. 2s. 6d. and 1s. 6d. Copiously Illustrated. S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, Paternoster-row, London, or through any Bookseller.

The Expositor's Bible

FOURTH SERIES, 1890-91.

Price to SUBSCRIBERS in ADVANCE for the SIX VOLUMES, 24

Subscriptions now payable.

Separate Vols. 7s. 6d. each.

NOW READY. THE FIRST VOLUME.

THE BOOK OF ECCLESIASTES

By SAMUEL COX, D.D.

[Now Ready

The Epistles of St. James and St. Jude. By the Rev. A. PLUMMER, D.D., Master of University College, Durham [December

The Book of Proverbs. By Rev. R. F. HORTON, M.A. [January

The Book of Leviticus. By the Rev. S. H. KELLOGG, D.D. [In the Press

The Gospel of St. John. Vol. I. By the Rev. Professor MARCUS DODS, D.D.

The Acts of the Apostles. By the Rev. Professor G. T. STOKES, D.D.

The THREE PREVIOUS SERIES still on Sale at SUBSCRIPTION PRICE.

London: HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster-row.

HOME TEACHING SOCIETY FOR THE BLIND

TO ENABLE THE BLIND TO READ THE SCRIPTURES, &c. IN MOON'S TYPE.

The Committee hereby earnestly appeal for an increase of contributors.—RALPH TAIT, Secretary, 31, New Bridge-street, E.C. Bankers: Messrs. BARCLAY & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

WORK FOR PORTSMOUTH & ALEXANDRIA, EGYPT.

£5,000 URGENTLY NEEDED

BY MISS ROBINSON.

PRESSING ANXIETIES have arisen during the past twelve months.

GENEROUS FRIENDS have been removed by death.

PERSONAL TRIALS have sorely taxed her strength.

BUT PRAISE be to God, His presence and power were never so manifest, souls are saved, and the workers richly blessed. Christian friends are invited to COME AND SEE.

IN ADDITION to the sum annually needed for carrying on the work, the SPECIAL EXPENSES during 1890 were:

I. Sailors' and Soldiers' Institute, Alexandria: extensive Builders' repairs from the WALLS SINKING, notwithstanding the walls being 12 ft. wide.

II. The ADDITION OF A WING to the Portsmouth Soldiers' Institute, to serve as "MARRIED QUARTERS" during the trooping season, giving 14 rooms, and a nice playground for the children.

III. The PURCHASE of the LEASE and FURNITURE of the Officers' House (6 houses) from the former tenant, to secure this Establishment being carried on, for the future, on strictly Temperance and Christian principles. A LARGE SUM was required for the renovation of these houses.

IV. The BUILDING and FITTINGS of "THE SPEEDWELL" GOSPEL HALL, Landport, and for the Mission work, which will comprise (a) The nightly preaching of the Gospel; (b) Mothers' Meetings, and similar agencies; (c) Colportage and gratuitous circulation of Gospel books; (d) Medical and Nursing Mission; (e) Invalid Kitchen, and cookery for the Destitute; (f) Rescue Home for little Waifs.

MR. THOMAS HOGBEN has recently joined MISS ROBINSON, and is prepared to arrange for Drawing-room and other Meetings wherever friends desire it.

Will the Lord's stewards send IMMEDIATE HELP?

MRS. MEREDITH'S INSTITUTIONS.

Office: 143, CLAPHAM ROAD.

The Prison Mission needs more than ever the liberality of Christians. A larger number of women than usual depends on its aid.

The Village Homes have 20 Families of Young Children, who claim the tenderest sympathy of those that love the little ones.

Kindly Remember Our Poor People, young and old, in your generous distribution at this season.

There are many weak and sickly in our households. Do Not Forget that our agencies are numerous and various, and that Their Support Depends on Our Collections.

Money for all Mission expenses is now Pressingly Needed. Conference Hall Services and all the cost of our work has to be met out of the General Fund, for which Cheques crossed to Messrs. BARCLAY & BEVAN, and payable to Mrs. SUSANNA MEREDITH, will be most gratefully acknowledged.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 5, Crown-villas, Kennington Oval, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON AVENUE, E.C.—Bible-reading in Nehemiah, by Mr. W. R. Lane, Dec. 10, 6.30 p.m. Annual meeting, Banks' Prayer Union, Tues., Dec. 9, 6 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Dec. 7, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. W. H. Roberts. Dec. 17, Meetings for "Deepening of Spiritual Life," Rev. Arnold Pelly, Rev. E. W. Moore, Rev. A. Armitage, and Rev. E. Dodds.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand.—Sun., 3.45 p.m. (men only), Rev. J. Stephen Barross; 7.30 p.m. (public), Mr. T. Richardson. Gospel meetings for men, Mon., Tues., Fri., 8. Bible-class, Thurs., 8. French Bible-class, Thurs., 8. Cheerful service (public), Sat., 7.30. Lecture, Dec. 10, 8 p.m., by Mr. J. D. Logan, on "The Marvellous in Nature." Prayer-meeting daily (Sat. ex.) from 1 till 2. Anti-Gambling meeting Jan. 15, 1891.

Y.M.C.A., 186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Sat., Dec. 6, 3 p.m., Bible talk, Rev. F. B. Meyer. Wed., Dec. 10, 8 p.m., lecture by Mr. Geo. Findlay, "The Working of a Railway," illustrated by models and diagrams. Thurs., Dec. 11, 8 p.m., address by Rev. T. Selbey Henrey.

Y.M.C.A., BURLINGTON HALL, 23, Savile-row, W.—Thurs., Dec. 4, 8.30 p.m., address, Rev. T. E. Brigden, on "Interesting Facts on the Literary History of the Bible." Fri., Dec. 5, 8.30 p.m., Mr. J. Kennedy, on "The Desert Wanderings and Canaan Conquest."

Y.M.C.A., 91, EUSTON-ROAD, N.W.—Wed., Dec. 11, lecture by Mr. Henry Lee, on "A Christian's Life in the Barrack Room."

Y.W.C.A., CITY BRANCH, 14, Finsbury-square, E.C.—Rev. F. B. Meyer, on Wed., Dec. 10, 8 p.m.

WEST LONDON CENTRAL MISSION.—St. James's Hall, Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. M. Guy Pearse; 7 p.m., Rev. H. Price Hughes. Princes Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. W. Darlow Sarjeant. Fri., 12 noon, Rev. M. G. Pearse; 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes. Cleveland Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. T. M. Taylor.

KENSINGTON TOWN HALL.—Sun., Dec. 7, Ned Wright, 7 p.m.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr. Augustus G. West, Sun. next at 11 and 7; Wed., at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, W., 8 p.m.

TALBOT TABERNACLE, Talbot-road, Bayswater, W.—Sun., Dec. 7, Pastor Frank H. White, 11 a.m.; Mr. Finlay Gibson, 7 p.m. Mon., Dec. 8, 7.30 p.m., Rev. W. Lancelot-Holland, address on "How is Rome Working for the 'Conversion of England'?"

PORTMAN-ROOMS, Baker-street, W.—Meeting for the deepening of the spiritual life, to-day, Fri., Dec. 5, Rev. H. W. Webb-Peploe, 3.30 p.m.; Dec. 12, Rev. Nevile Sherbrooke.

CONFERENCE HALL, Clapham-road, S.W.—Jerusalem prayer-meeting every Friday, 4 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street, S.W.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Sun., 3.30 and 7 p.m.; Wed., 8 p.m.

LADIES' PRAYER MEETING.—Lecture Hall, 186, Aldersgate-street, to-day, Fri., Dec. 5, 11.15 a.m., in Young Men's Parlour.

MERCHANTS' LECTURE, Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, E.C.—Tues., Dec. 9, 16, 1 p.m., Rev. Dr. Kennedy, on "Trustworthiness of the Gospels, with special replies to Dr. Martineau and others."

BAPTIST FORWARD MOVEMENT, John-street Chapel, Bedford-row.—Sun., Dec. 7, at 11, Rev. F. C. Spurr; 7 p.m., Rev. J. E. Shephard.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay Park, N.—Sun., Dec. 7, 3.30, Mr. P. S. Badenoch; 7 p.m., Dr. Baedeker. Tues., Dec. 9, 7.30 p.m., meeting for Spezia Mission, Rev. H. H. Pullen.

CHRISTMAS LETTER MISSION.—Annual prayer-meeting, Fri., Dec. 12, 3 p.m., in Gentlemen's Waiting-room, Mildmay Conference Hall.

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL, N.W.—Rev. F. B. Meyer will give an address on "In Darkest England" next Sunday at 3 p.m., to men only.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sun. next, Mr. James B. Wookey, at 11 and 7; Rev. H. Bright, 3 p.m.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun., Dec. 7, 11 and 6.30, Rev. W. B. Culliss.

HOUSE OF REST, 10, Finchley-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.—Fri., Dec. 5, Rev. W. Fuller Gooch, 3 p.m.; tea, 6 p.m.; Mr. Reader Harris, 7 p.m. Suns., 3.30 p.m., Bible-reading for ladies and gentlemen.

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Thirteenth annual meeting, Fri. Dec. 5. Tea at 5.30; meeting at 6.30; Lord's supper, 8.30. Mr. James E. Mathieson will preside.

[1156]

Appeals.

Cow Cross Mission, Clerkenwell.—Mr. WILLIAM CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, N., writes that a thousand children are invited to dinner all through the winter. If funds are sent he could start a public soup kitchen, having suitable premises now lying empty.

North London.—REV. PHILIP GAST (Spencer-place Chapel, Goswell-road), 12, Noel-street, Islington, writes:—"During twenty-nine years of labour as a Christian minister in St. Luke's and Clerkenwell, I have been doing my utmost for the dwellers in homes of wickedness and poverty. I give preference to widows with large families and those who are in want from sickness and suffering. I am entirely without means just now, notwithstanding that there are so many distressing cases known to me of those who are in sad destitution. Clothing, blankets, or money will be gladly received."

Japanese Sailors.—The friends of sailors may be glad to know that an opportunity offers for the distribution of Scripture mottos, booklets, and pictures among a crew of a newly-built Japanese man-of-war in the Clyde. The same may be addressed to Miss MCLEAN, c/o Post Office, Clydebank, Glasgow. This vessel will be leaving for Japan very shortly.

Tower Hamlets Mission.—The severe weather has again brought to our doors the starving and distressed. We are haunted by the despairing faces of fathers and mothers, and the bitter cry of the ill-clad hungry little ones. We must feed them! We dare not turn them away, but our distress fund is exhausted and we cannot continue our daily soup kitchen, and other relief works, unless help is forthcoming. We therefore earnestly appeal to those who do not know what the pinch of hunger means, to help us at this time of need. All contributions thankfully received and acknowledged by Mr. FREDERICK N. CHARRINGTON, Great Assembly Hall, Mile-end-road, London.

Notices.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—A.A.K. M.A.P. C.J.G. W.H. C.A.H. A.D. J.J.L. N.F.H. G.R. W.N. J.S.R. R.T.S. W.T.M. F.N.C. J.S. E.M.L. H.M. E.K.J. C.N.B.M. G.W.P. W.H.W. F.C. A.F.D. F.S. A.B. J.P. F.N. W.W. W.H.D. J.H. M.H.C. H.P. J.W. J.K. J.K.W. H.A.U. C.M. F.E.T. H.M.C. B.S. A.M.O. E.C. H.A.B.M. R.C. M.G. M.B.G. E.H.E. W.C. L.L. L.D.E.S. E.T.R. J.W.A. W.C. A.R.H. G.A.M. W.T.C. E.T. D.E.C. G.F.B.

A SUBSCRIBER desires to know author and title of the poem in which the following stanza occurs:—

> Not to my wish, but to my want,
> Do Thou thy gifts supply
> Unasked, what good Thou knowest grant,
> What ill though asked deny.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—J. Smith, 89, Prince of Wales-terrace, Ashton, Preston; Mrs. F. Courtney, 12, Portland-terrace, Southsea, Hampshire; W. Fleetwood, c/o Owen Owens, London-road, Liverpool; Miss A. Amys, 50, Upper Grosvenor-road, Tunbridge Wells; H. Fletcher, 44, Stanley-street, Chester-road, Hulme, Manchester; G. Partington, 362, City-road, Old Trafford, Manchester; A. Honnor, The Marsh, Pinner, Middlesex; W. Mortlock, Old British Schools, Tavistock, Devonshire (large type for the aged); R. Roberts, The Rest, Mortlake; Mr. Press, 25, Templeton-road, Seven Sisters-road, Stamford-hill; A. Howard, 34, Mansford-street, Bethnal Green, E.; W. Ravenscroft, 160, Wellington-road, Liverpool South; W. Scragg, 63, Hampstead-road, N.W.; C. Ewings, 39, Vine-street, North-road, Brighton; R. Frasulo, Chest Hospital, City of London Hospital, Bonner-road, E.; H. Avis, c/o Mr. Gurney, West Hyde-cottages, near Rickmansworth, Hertshire; J. Rowe, 3, Monteagle-street, Stepney, E.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away.]

Distressed Seamen.—Sad was the sight as one after another of the distressed seamen arrived at the Welcome Home, Ratcliff-highway, E., on Thursday last, to partake of a free soup-supper. Sadder still were the tales heard of their sufferings, some who had been shipwrecked had no home, exposed to weather and wind day and night; others brought to destitution through sin and drunkenness, and one could but feel thankful to see their wants supplied. Much prayer was made that their souls might be fed with the Bread of Life. These suppers can be given at the cost of 15s. each. Miss CHILD will gladly make arrangements at any time for them.

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1890.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O.Orders, not by stamps.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank"; this will effectually prevent loss of same.

	£	s.	d.
Zenana Bible and Medical Mission—C.L. £1; M.W. £1	2	0	0
Floods in North China (C.I.M.)—M.W.	1	0	0
Distressed Jews (Mrs. Finn)—M.W.	1	0	0
Jaffa Agent for Oppressed Jews—M.W.	1	0	0
China Inland Mission—M.B. £1; S.M.P. 10s; S.H.L. £2 2s; S.B. 15s	4	7	0
Church Missionary Society—F.D. £25; A.J.C. £5	30	0	0
British and Foreign Bible Society—P.W.	50	0	0
Gibraltar Soldiers' Home—J.F.M.G.	1	0	0
Pastor Rodriguez's Figueras Mission—J.F.M.G.	0	10	0
Moravian Work among Lepers—S.G.	2	0	0
Ch. of England Zenana Missionary Soc.—M.M.	0	2	6
Spanish and Portuguese Church Aid Society—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—M.B.	2	0	0
Mr. Bright's Work in Mexico—C.H.	0	10	0
London City Mission—H.E. 2s 6d; Mrs. M. £2	2	2	6
St. Giles Christian Mission—H.E. 2s 6d; J.C.C. 10s; Mrs. M. £1; M.W. £1; J.F.M.G. £1; S.G. 10s; M.E. 10s; M.A.W. 5s	4	17	6
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, &c.—H.E.	0	2	0
Rev. Thomas Connellan's Work—H.E.	0	2	6
Evan. Alliance (Florence Conference)—M.S.	2	2	0
Testimonial to Mr. John Hilton—M.S.	3	3	0
West London Mission—M.S.	5	5	0
London Bible and Domestic Mission—Mrs. M. £5; J.F.M.G. 10s	5	10	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Ho.—Mrs. M. £5; S.M.P. 10s	5	10	0
Home of Industry—Mrs. M. £2; A.J.C. £2; S.G. £1; (Sewing-class)—S.G. £1	6	0	0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison Mission, &c.—Mrs. M. £2; J.F.M.G. 10s	2	10	0
George Yard Mission—Mrs. M. £1; S.G. £2	3	0	0
Salvation Army—Mrs. M.	1	0	0
Trinitarian Bible Society—A.W.W.	1	0	3
Dr. Barnardo's Homes.—Mrs. M. £1; W.W.L. £1; S.M.P. £1	3	0	0
North-East London Gospel Mission—S.G. 10s; (Special Case)—M.S. £1	1	10	0
John Wesley Centenary Fund—M.S.	1	1	0
Y.W.C. Institute, West Brighton—M.S.	1	1	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—M.W.	1	0	0
Mr. Quarrier's Orphans' Home—M.W.	1	0	0
Mr. Toye's Orphnge.—M.W. £1; Insurance, 5s	1	5	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—M.W.	1	0	0
Friendless and Fallen—M.W. £1; C.N.B. £15; Mary, 2s	16	2	0
Mrs. Ginever's Orphans' Home—M.W.	1	0	0
Midnight Meeting Movement—F.D.	10	0	0
Wanderers' Home (London Jews Society)—F.D.	15	0	0
Homes for Aged Blind, Crouch-hill—C.N.B.	15	0	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—C.N.B. £20; G.K. 3s	20	3	0
Missionary Leaves Association—J.F.M.G.	0	5	0
Mr. H. Cook's Work, Gosport, &c.—S.G.	3	0	0
Rescue Society—S.G.	2	0	0
Hospital for Paralysed and Epileptic—S.G.	1	0	0
Christian Community—S.G.	1	0	0
Woman's Mission to Women—S.G.	1	0	0
Field-lane Ragged Schs., &c.—S.G. £1; M.E. 10s	1	10	0
Gray's Yard Ragged Schools, &c.—M.E.	0	10	0
Christmas Cries and Christmas Cheer—S.G.	1	0	0
London Samaritan Society, &c.—S.G.	0	10	0
Free Breakfasts, &c.—S.G.	0	5	0
Mission to Seamen—S.G.	0	15	0
Watercress, &c., Mission—S.G.	0	5	0
Cow Cross Mission—M.A.W. 5s; A.Y. £1	1	5	0
General Booth's Scheme—B.R.J.	1	0	0
Tower Hamlets Mission—B.R.J. 10s.; Mrs. C. £1; H.M.A.S. £1	2	10	0
Gratuitous Circulation THE CHRISTIAN—Miss C	0	0	9
London Fever Hospital—A.J.C.	2	0	0
Miss Weston's Sailors' Hos., Portsmouth—A.J.C.	1	0	0
Irish Church Colportage Mission—H.M.A.S.	1	0	0
Houseless Poor, Banner-street—H.M.A.S.	0	10	0
	£248	12	0

[ADVERTISEMENT.]

Mr. Hamilton's Work—H.J.S. £1.

Mr. Bright's Work in Mexico—C.H. 10s.

Rescue Work in Dublin—A reader of THE CHRISTIAN, 5s.

London Samaritan Society (Free Meals)—B. 5s; B. 15s; H.F. £1 1s.

Mr. Lethaby's Work in Moab—A Reader, per Rev. G. Piercy, £1 1s.

Dr. Barnardo's Homes—L.C. 5s; Parcel of baby clothing and scarves, H.C.T.

Pastor O. Tidman's Work—W.K. £1 1s; J.W. £1 1s; (New Windows in Meeting House)—J.W. £5.

MARVELLOUS SHILLING PACKET.
CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR CARDS.
Containing 52 Splendid Cards. Published price, 8/6. ent to any Address, by Parcels Post, on receipt of 1/3 n Stamps, or Postal Order. Only to be obtained from
WILLIS'S, 10 & 11, SILVER STREET, HULL.

OUGH CHARM VOICE ONIC
Dr. LEBAUD'S PASTILLE BRONCHIQUE
(a modern scientific remedy, free from the dangerous narcotics of old cough nostrums) by its tonic and antiseptic action upon the disordered membrane, quickly cures a harassing cough, protects the breathing organs from cold, repels disease germs, and maintains the voice in perfect condition for speaking and singing. Of all Chemists, 1/1½ per box, or (post free) from the Chief British Depôt, GRAHAM & Co., Charlemont-place, Dublin.

SYMINGTON'S
or Soups, &c.
Sold in Packets nd Tins by Grocers everywhere.
EASILY DIGESTED.
PEA FLOUR. GOLD MEDAL.
PATENTEES AND MANUFACTURERS—
OWDEN STEAM MILLS, MARKET HARBORO'

BAZAARS, FANCY FAIRS, &c.
SWANAGE STRAW BASKETS.
Novel and useful, a 25s. crate for £1 1s. Tea Cosy, very hand-me, 3s. 11d. 5-o'clock do., 2s. 11d. Work Box, 2s. 6d. Work sket, 2s. Collar Box, 1s. Needle-book, 7d., all post free.
J. A. COLLEAU, SWANAGE, DORSET.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER'S
Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.
SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS, POST FREE.
ildren's..... 1/3 | Hemstitched—
adies' ..... 2/4½ | Ladies' ..... 2/11½ } Per ent's ..... 3/6 | Gent's ..... 4/11 } doz.
Embroidered Handkerchiefs, in all the latest styles, from 1/ to 60/ each.
OBINSON & CLEAVER, Belfast.
PLEASE NAME THIS PAPER.

100 DRESS PATTERNS FREE.
THE Cheapest Dresses in England, comprising Tweeds at 3½d. yard, Serges at 4¾d. and 6d. yard. Double width Habit Cloths at 8½d. yard; Dress Tweeds, 44 inches wide, 8¾d. yard; "Novelty" Habit Cloths, 48 inches wide, 1s. 3d. yard; "Superfine" and "Twill" Habit Cloth, 48 inches wide, 1s. 6d. yard; Plain and Fancy Black Cashmeres, Cheviots, Homespuns, Snowflakes, Soft Woollens, Flannels, &c., &c., in great variety. Any length cut and sent carriage paid to any address. The Patterns need not be returned, as they are given away to all who write for them and name this paper to THE DARLINGTON TRADING COMPANY, DARLINGTON.

he Most Acceptable Present at CHRISTMAS
IS A PARCEL OF
. D. & CO.'S PURE TEA,
Prices, 1/2 to 2/10 per lb.—Samples Free.
SELECTIONS AT { 3-lb. Tinfoil Cases. 6-lb. Canisters. 12-lb. do. 20-lb. do. | Original Half-Chests (about 50 lbs.) Original Whole do. (abt. 100 lbs.) } STRICTLY WHOLESALE PRICES.
rapped in any sized packets to suit convenience of distribution or presentation.)
E. D. & CO.'S TEAS are of guaranteed High ality and absolute Purity. The Public save all Intermeate profits. Carriage paid to all parts of Great Britain. ite for Samples and contrast with other Teas.
LLIS DAVIES & Co., 44, Lord-st., LIVERPOOL.

GRAND GRANULAR TEA,
FOR CATERERS, SCHOOLS, INSTITUTIONS, &c.
Also SPECIAL WHOLE LEAF TEAS in neat ¼lb. ckets, appropriately labelled, for distribution as esents at home; wholesale quantities, and choice ginal packages for export in bond, for presents to ends abroad. Detailed price list on application.
LECT CEYLON TEA AGENCY, 39, Lime-st., London.

EVENINGS IN THE HOLY LAND.
MISS VON FINKELSTEIN
(MRS. MOUNTFORD)
Is open to Lecturing Engagements both for Public Halls and Drawing-rooms. Also on Sundays. For terms and particulars apply—
WESTMINSTER PALACE HOTEL, LONDON, S.W.

FREE Send a Post Card for a sample of Broken-Leaf Tea at 1s. 5½d. per lb., equal to 2s. 6d. Tea. WILLIAMSON & SONS, Tea Merchants, 139, Upper Thames-st., E.C.

FIVE GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.
Goddard's Plate Powder
NON-MERCURIAL.
FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY this Powder has sustained an unrivalled reputation throughout the United Kingdom and Colonies as the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate. Sold in Boxes 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. each, by Grocers, Chemists, Ironmongers, &c.

POSTAL SHOPPING
H. PEASE & Co's SUCCESSORS
LADIES WRITE FOR PATTERNS OF ALL THE LATEST NOVELTIES IN DRESS MATERIALS AT MILL PRICES
SPINNERS & MANUFACTURERS
The Make DARLINGTON
DRESSMAKING IN ALL ITS BRANCHES.
London Sale Room: 244, REGENT-ST., corner of Little Argyll-st.

CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS & ASTHMA.
I WILL demonstrate to the whole world, and to sufferers from these unfortunate maladies, how they can be permanently cured, by an entirely New Method of Treatment, without the chance of failure. All afflicted may write with full confidence to Mr. WILLIAMS, 11, Burwood-place, Norfolk-crescent, London, who will send full particulars to any person free of all charge.

OLD SHIRTS Refitted, New Fronts, Cuffs, and Collar-bands. —Fine Irish Linen, 2s.; or very best Irish Linen, 2s. 6d. each, returned free, ready to wear. Sample New White Shirt, for Dress or ordinary wear, 2s. 9d., 3s. 9d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9d., or 6s. 9d. Gent's best 4-fold Linen Collars, any shape, 2s. 9d., half dozen, post free.
Hand knit by Donegal peasantry. Warm, durable, and comfortable. Two pairs IRISH SOX free, 2s. 6d. Men's Knicker Hose, two pairs free, 3s. 9d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9s., 6s. 9d., and 7s. 9d. WOOL PANTS and VESTS are now very cheap. Price Lists and Patterns Cambric Handkfs. and all kinds Irish Linen Goods sent free for Household or Family use, from the cheapest to the best qualities made.
B. & E. M'HUGH & CO., Limited, BELFAST.

50 CHRISTMAS CARDS
FOR FIFTEEN STAMPS.
Fifty beautiful Christmas and New Year Cards, comprising a charming variety of Snow Scenes, Landscapes, Floral and Figure designs, enriched with choice, original, and selected poetry, post free fifteen stamps; or two parcels, both different, post free twenty-seven stamps.
All orders should be sent at once. Early purchasers receive the best cards.
W. H. MAYNE,
Fine Art Dealer, 8, Clarendon-terrace, Plymouth.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.
FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSES.
PINK & SON, GOLDSMITHS AND SILVERSMITHS, 2, GRACECHURCH-ST., near CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C. (Established 1772), beg respectfully to announce that they accurately value, or purchase for cash if desired, valuable Diamonds, Pearls, and other Jewels, also Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. Small parcels can be sent securely per registered post, and large ditto in absolute safety per Parcel, insured at the small cost of 3d. per every £25 in value.

ON CONSUMPTION
AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT,
ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, AND OTHER CHEST DISEASES.
NEW EDITION WITH
APPENDIX
CONTAINING A LARGE NUMBER OF
INTERESTING CASES.
POST FREE, ONE SHILLING.
From the AUTHOR,
MR. GEORGE THOS. CONGREVE,
Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E.

ONE RECENT CASE WILL BE GIVEN IN THIS JOURNAL EVERY WEEK.
CASE FOR THIS WEEK.
(THIRTY-FIFTH SERIES.)
CHRONIC AFFECTION of the LUNGS—A CASE at LLANDUDNO.
The patient, a flautist, had been suffering since exposure to cold at the time of an epileptic fit. From that time he had suffered with hoarseness, and very tight breathing, flushing, cough, gradual loss of flesh and strength. He was recommended by Mr. Williams, of Mostyn-street.
In February, 1889, Mrs. Martin, the wife of the patient (who has been my correspondent all along), sent me a statement of her husband's case. "I am very anxious (she adds), as he is wasting every day."
In April she writes:—"Your medicine has done my husband a great deal of good. I think it has saved him from going into a deep Consumption. Also it relieves the cough immediately." (I found, however, that he was not following up the treatment with that persistent regularity that is so important for the realising permanent benefit.)
Subsequent letters report how he gained flesh, and generally continued improving. In the spring of 1890:—"You will be glad to hear that my husband progresses most favourably. He has no night sweats, is gaining flesh, and is eating and sleeping well. I feel thankful for the gracious providence that guided me to you; but for that I feel sure he would have now been in his grave. He is now following his profession again. I wish I had the means to give your medicine away to many who cannot purchase it."
A recent letter, dated October 27th, in answer to a letter of inquiry of mine, reports him continuing as well as he was in the spring, and able to follow his profession, as a flautist, well, though not a strong man. Moreover the occupation is one very trying to the lungs.
Mrs. Martin writes from Pendennis House, in the East Parade, Llandudno, where she has apartments to let which are highly recommended.

NOTE. — Days of Consultation. — TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

(Gratis and post free.)
Guy's Guide to Digestion.
Roast pork takes five hours and twenty minutes to digest, venison only one hour and thirty minutes, but fig seeds never digest. This clearly shows how important it is that all should pay attention to the digestibility of food. Guy's "Guide to Digestion" contains an interesting account of the time taken to digest nearly every article of food known, and when it is borne in mind how seriously business anxieties and harassing family cares interfere with the healthy activity of the stomach, it will be seen of what infinite consequence to happiness is this "Guide." A copy will be sent, gratis and post free, to any reader who, when writing, will mention THE CHRISTIAN, Guy's Tonic Company, 4, Ludgate Circus, London, E.C.

RETAIL IN TINS, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 5s., and 10s.

BENGER'S FOOD

For Infants, Children, and Invalids.

OF CHEMISTS, &c. EVERYWHERE.

Cadbury's COCOA

Absolutely Pure therefore Best

TO ALL WHO DRINK COCOA.—"Cadbury's Cocoa contains, in a condensed and increased form, all the nourishing properties of the Cocoa bean. The most perfect of prepared Cocoas, of absolute purity, and always alike in quality."

The Analyst.

"A Cocoa of the highest degree of Purity and Nutritive value."—Health.

The Editor of the Medical Annual speaks in the highest terms of Cadbury's Cocoa as a beverage and a food for invalids on account of its absolute purity, high quality and great solubility; and counsels the Medical Profession to remember, in recommending Cocoa, that the name Cadbury on any packet is a guarantee of Purity.

The Best Non-intoxicating
SUBSTITUTE FOR BRANDY.
Invaluable for
PAINS IN THE STOMACH.
An Excellent
PREVENTIVE AGAINST COLDS.
Highly recommended by the TEMPERANCE PRESS as a NON-INTOXICATING STIMULANT.

BECKETT'S (WINTER PUNCH) WINTERINE REGISTERED

In Bottles 6d., 10d., and 1s. 6d.
Any size sent Free per Parcel Post for 3d. extra.
Sole Manufacturer — W. BECKETT, Heywood, Manchester.
London Wholesale and Export Agents, Barclay & Sons, 95, Farringdon-street.

The following are capital winter drinks:
BECKETT'S Gingerette Cordial.
BECKETT'S Peppermint Cordial.
BECKETT'S Elderberry Cordial.
BECKETT'S Black Currant Syrup.
BECKETT'S Raspberry Vinegar, &c.
TWICE THE STRENGTH OF OTHER MAKERS.

AWARDED the HIGHEST HONOURS.

Pears' soap

Is bought to-day by everybody, and has maintained its reputation as the best of all Toilet Soaps for more than One Hundred Years.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

Weekly Record of Christian Life and Testimony; Evangelistic Effort, and Missionary Enterprise.

PRINCIPAL

neral BOOTHS' Scheme 8
r. WILLIAM LETHABY (with Portrait) 9
hreshold Service.—2 10
Psalm of Life. By Rev. F. B. MEYER 11
he Gospel in Spain.—4 13
he Riches of His Grace. By J. W. C. FEGAN. 14
Mission at Tunbridge Wells 14
Little Sermon for Little People 15 arbours of Refuge. By Dr. BARNARDO 16 oreign Missions of Sweden 16
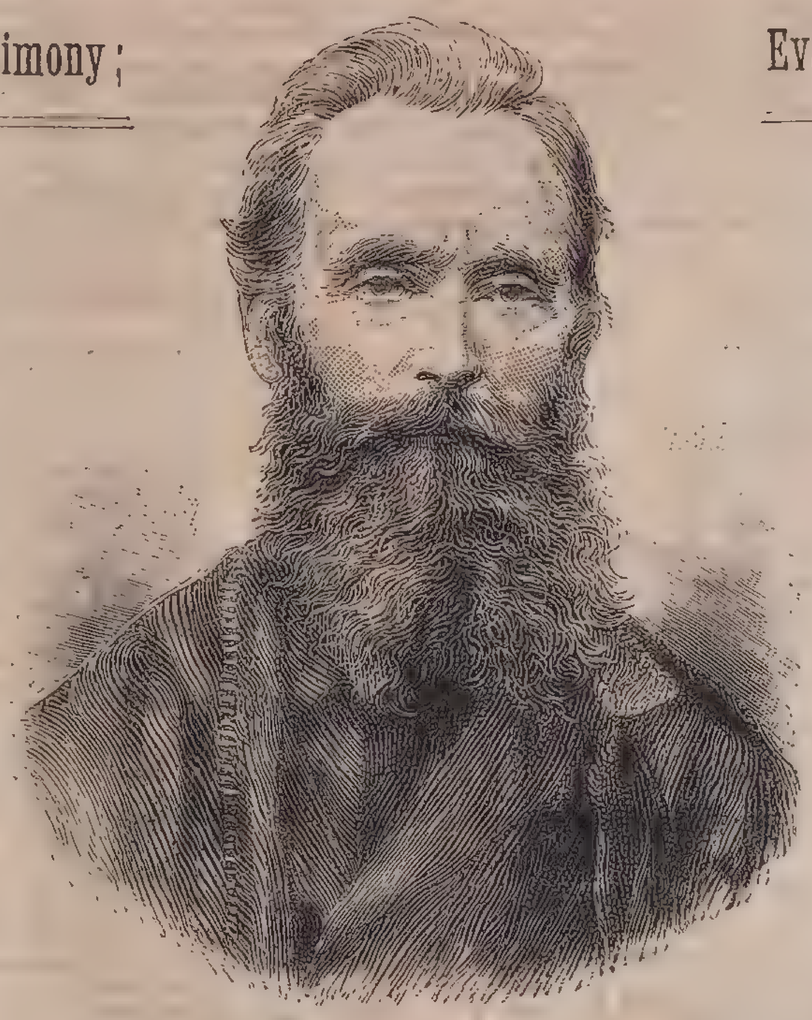
n the Blackdown Hills 19
unlight through Shadows 19
ick Christians. By Dr. T. L. CUYLER 20



[Mr. W. Lethaby.]

CONTENTS.

Consecration to Royal Priesthood 20
The Slum Pioneer of the Salvation Army 22
Raising the Sunken Tenth 25
Scottish Y.M.C.A.'s 25
Ratcliff Strangers' Rest 27
Workers in America 27
Among Discharged Prisoners 28
"In Darkest England." By Mrs. GUINNESS. 28
The Temperance Cause 30
The Book World 31
News of the Churches 32
Notes on Daily Readings 33
Sunday School Lesson Notes 34

No. 1089.] FRIDAY, DEC. 12, 1890.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

[ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 2d.

REMEMBER THE POOR AT CHRISTMAS!

WILL EVERY READER of "The Christian"

SHARE IN PROVIDING

10,000 of the EAST LONDON POOR

WITH A

Christmas Dinner on Christmas Day

IN THEIR OWN HOMES?

W. EVANS HURNDALL'S EAST LONDON WORK.

Donations, which should be kindly sent at once, will be most thankfully received by W. EVANS HURNDALL, M.A., 16, Cottage Grove, Bow, London, E.; or may be sent to the Office of "The Christian" (marked: W. E. Hurndall's Christmas Dinners for Poor.) If desired, part of the gift will be used in the continuous work.

If the INSET be OMITTED, ½d POSTAGE of this Issue (WITH INSET) is 1d.

The INLAND

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with thanks from A. Z., £1; "Bible Class for Girls, Woodford," 12s. 6d.; "Southall," Clothing; L. E. W., £1; E. A. P., 10s.

Rations of Food to Hungry Children. Day Nursery for Infants. Several branches of Work for Ragged Children. Sunday Schools. Children's Services. Band of Hope. Classes for Rough Boys. Various Missionary Agencies at work among Lads and Young Men. Important Mission Work amongst Elder Girls and Young Women. Temperance Meetings. Evangelistic Services. Mothers' Meetings. Mission to Inebriate Women. Bible Classes. Room to room Visitation. Training Home for Motherless Girls. Shelter for Girls, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

THE SICK & SORROWING.

Funds are very urgently needed by the Committee of the LADIES' SAMARITAN SOCIETY, NATIONAL HOSPITAL FOR THE PARALYSED AND EPILEPTIC, QUEEN SQUARE, BLOOMSBURY, for the purpose of providing Christmas comforts for the more destitute of the out-patients. Will kind friends help? Donations in money, coal-tickets, clothing, flannel (or any other material) are most earnestly solicited. — ROSA PEARMAN, Vice-President.—"He that hath pity upon the poor, lendeth unto the Lord."

MRS. MEREDITH'S

JERUSALEM DEACONESS HOUSE.

Women to train for Medical Mission work among women and children, and money for the support of the Missions, are both wanted most pressingly. Many places in the Holy Land are crying, "Come over and help us!" Contributions will be received by Miss LLOYD, 143, Clapham-road, crossed Union Bank, Charing Cross.

CHURCH ARMY LABOUR HOME SCHEME. Re "Darkest England." Prince's Hall, Piccadilly, Friday, December 12, at 3. The Earl of Meath presiding, who will give an account of his recent visits to the German town and country Labour Colonies. The Rev. W. CARLILE, Founder and Hon. Sec. of the C.A., will explain the C.A. Labour Home Scheme, for the extension of which from £10,000 to £100,000 is urgently required. Working-men officers, slum sisters, and several restored tramps will speak. Admission free. Headquarters, 130, Edgware-road.

HOME FOR BLIND CHILDREN, College-avenue, Hackney; Branch for Incapable Blind, Palace Gates-road, N. Children are admitted from two years old without election. Both homes are now full. Contributions are gratefully received by Miss RYE and Messrs. Morgan and Scott.

FUNDS ARE EARNESTLY SOLICITED for the poor adults and children of the Christian Gee-street Mission and Ragged Schools, which have been carried on for about 28 years to benefit the poor. Donations please address to Hon. Superintendent, HENRY RUDGLEY, Ground Floor, 29, Falcon-square; JOHN KIRK, Esq., Secretary, Ragged School Union, Exeter Hall, Strand; Messrs. BARCLAY, Bankers, 54, Lombard-street; Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Paternoster-buildings.

DUBLIN CITY MISSION,

9, Anglesea-street.

Special appeal to the Lord's people who enjoy the blessing of Salvation.

The Committee of the above Mission are anxious to carry the precious news of salvation to all the poor of every denomination in the city of Dublin. The Mission is wholly unsectarian; the agents visit over one hundred poor Protestant families daily, who otherwise would be swallowed up in the surrounding mass of Romanism. Roman Catholics are also visited. A copy of the Scriptures is supplied to families when needed, with suitable Gospel tracts. Funds are greatly needed to employ more agents, as now there are more openings than heretofore. Subscriptions thankfully received by Mr. J. JUTTON, at 9, Anglesea-street, or by T. P. LAW, Esq., Q.C., Hon. Secretary, 48, Stephen's-green, Dublin.

ASHLEY MISSION, Bethnal Green, E.—Assistance is earnestly asked for, to maintain this Mission. Large Mothers' Meetings. Classes for Factory Girls, for Men and Lads. Sunday-school. Band of Hope. Tract distribution and Temperance work. All in efficient working order. Cast-off Clothing thankfully received, and the smallest contributions.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, W.

POOR OF ST. LUKE'S AND CLERKENWELL. — PHILIP GAST, 12, Noel-street, Islington (Minister of Spencer-place Chapel for 28 years), pleads for the Widow and Fatherless and the nearly starving Poor. Clothing, boots, blankets, and money will be gladly acknowledged.

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, S.W.—The Committee are prepared to receive applications for next Session. Funds are urgently needed to enable them to give Free Training to many suitable candidates.

Dr. GRIFFITH, Hon. Sec.

CHRISTMAS, FOR POOR CHILDREN.—Pendleton Mission want to give a substantial meal, on 25th, to 1,000 of our regular Ragged School scholars. Contributions solicited. Attendances 12 months, 77,357. The 27th Report on application.—JNO. SUGDEN, Hon. Sec., 46, Market-street, Manchester.

Now Ready, in Monthly Parts.

PICTURE PORTIONS

BEING

THE GOSPEL OF LUKE.

Published under the above title, set in very large type, and Illustrated by H. A. HARPER and J. CLARK, from original sketches made in the Holy Land. Volume of Luke, attractively bound, will (D.V.) be ready middle of December, and will contain Thirty Large full-page Illustrations. Prices, post free, 2s. 6d. and 3s. 6d.

"The text is broken up in a manner which cannot but prove helpful to persons not accustomed to sustained reading. Book distributors will find these portions the best of all tracts."—The Christian.

Funds are urgently needed to circulate the Scriptures, in the above form, in the Hospitals and Infirmaries of our land.

W. WALTERS, SCRIPTURE GIFT MISSION, 79, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON, E.C.

MADE, MARRED, AND MADE ANEW.

A NEW YEAR'S MESSAGE, 1891, by PASTOR FRANK H. WHITE.

(1d.) S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., and all Booksellers. 7 Copies for 6d. post free.

A. J. SHEARS, 12, Telford-road, North Kensington, W.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS IN "The Christian" (PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	3
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

STANLEY HOUSE,

HIGH SCHOOL FOR BOYS,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Owing to increasing numbers fresh premises have been taken, which will be be opened in January.

The house stands in its own grounds, and having been built expressly for scholastic purposes, is fitted with every convenience, to accommodate 40 pupils.

There is a large cricket-field at the back. Gymnasium, workshops, and laboratory are provided for scientific and technical instruction.

The present premises will continue to be used as a Junior School for pupils under 10.

The Principal takes a personal interest in each boy committed to his charge, and no effort is spared to secure his well-being.

For prospectus, references to parents, &c., apply to A. E. COZENS, Stanley House, Margate.

OLD FORD SOUP KITCHEN.—Mrs. ADAMSON. The Vicarage, Wright's-road, Old Ford, E., earnestly requests help. The parish contains over 11,000 East Londoners, without a single middle-class family or house. We want to feed at least 200 poor children from the Board Schools, in which there are over 3,000. SIXTY POUNDS are required in addition to grants kindly made for Children's Dinners and Breakfasts.

SYSTEMATIC BIBLE TEACHING MISSION, 21, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row, E.C.—Definite Lessons for teaching Bible Religion in school and home. Parents, teachers, and Christian workers all need this.—Call or write.

Manager, GEORGE STONEMAN.

URGENT APPEAL on behalf of Rescue Work in Kingstown, Co. Dublin. Christian fellow-stewards of the manifold grace of God, please remember in your Christmas gifts the pressing need of funds of this Rescue Home. Twenty years established. Send for report to D. or LILY ROWAN, Hon. Secs., The Home, 2, Northcote-avenue, Kingstown, Co. Dublin.

EAST END MISSION AND RESCUE WORK.—Members of this band are open for engagements to conduct bright Gospel Temperance meetings. The members will give interesting accounts of Christian work in the Shelters and Lodging Houses of the East End. Good singing and other attractions.—Secretary, Mr. T. GRAINGER, 146, Upland-road, East Dulwich, S.E.

IN DARKEST LONDON.—Rev. J. W. Atkinson, Claremont, Cawley-road, London, N.E., Urgently Appeals for Help to provide Food and Fuel for Starving but Honest East London Poor. Every Pound provides 200 Free Soup Meals with bread, or 40 bags of Coal. Need great. Chartered Accountant.

JOHN STREET CHAPEL, Marylebone, late of Circus-street Mission.—Funds are urgently required to carry on the work, and to provide a Free Dinner for poor people at Christmas. W. T. RUSSELL, 27, Cambridge-street, Edgware-road, W.

Educational.

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Red Hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS receives the Daughters of Gentlemen to educate in a course of study which shall fit them for the higher duties of life. Languages, accomplishments, &c. Inclusive charges. Prospectus on application. References.

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHOOL for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establishment of long standing. The pupils have the advantage of loving care and safe training while pursuing their studies under first-rate professors.—DELTA, Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-park-road, W.

BURLTON HOUSE, READING. — High-class Ladies' School. Principal, Miss RATCLIFFE. Old-established. Thorough teaching. Modern educational advantages, examinations. Finishing masters. Careful Christian training, well appointed home. Inclusive terms. Highest references.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Girls, combining a first-class education, including languages and accomplishments, with systematic training in light domestic work, and cooking. Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for the College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive fee 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.

W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

KINDERGARTEN AND PREPARATORY SCHOOL, Fröbel House, 3, Liverpool-terrace, Worthing. Principals, Miss YERBURY and Miss WAITE. Thoroughly happy home for children from four years of age. Christian training. Close to sea.

ALRESFORD HOUSE,

Queen's Avenue, Margate.

High-class School for Sons of Gentlemen. Special care of Indian and delicate children. Christian home.—Address, The PRINCIPAL.

LADIES' BOARDING SCHOOL, 16, Pyrland-road, Highbury New Park, N. Mrs. H. MATTHEWS receives young Ladies as resident pupils, to educate in English, French, music, singing, and drawing. Also entire charge taken of children whose parents are abroad. References kindly permitted to Rev. E. A. Stuart, 116, Grosvenor-road, Highbury New Park; Rev. D. B. Haukin, St. Jude's Vicarage, Mildmay-park; Rev. J. H. Shaw, 133, Highbury New-park; Rev. Frederick Whitfield, Cornwallis-gardens, Hastings; Dr. Hamilton, Melrose House, Green-lanes; B. Broomhall, Esq., China Inland Mission, 2, Pyrland-road.

WIDOW AND DAUGHTERS of Clergyman, experienced and accomplished, residing in a healthy locality near sea, with a small day school, wish to take charge of orphan children, or children of parents residing abroad, as Resident Pupils. Utmost care given to general education, and religious training. Good references. Strictly moderate terms.

Mrs. DENHAM, Kerr-street, Portrush, Ireland.

PARIS.—YOUNG LADIES' SCHOOL, —Principal, Mlle. VIÉNOT, 36, Avenue Victor Hugo, Parc des Princes, Boulogne-sur-Seine, Paris. —This School is cordially recommended by Mr. Gustave Monod, Agent for France of the British and Foreign Bible Society, and by Mr. William Soltau, of the McAll Mission, to parents desiring a first-rate education for their daughters, together with thoroughly Christian influence (Mlle. Viénot is sister of Monsieur Viénot, Missionary in Tahiti).

A PROTESTANT FAMILY in the suburbs of Paris receives two young Girls wishing to acquire French. Terms, 35s. a week.—M. G., 14, rue Victor Hugo, Courbevoie, near Paris.

RESIDENTIAL SCHOOL for Daughters of the Nobility and Gentry. Finishing masters, certificated governesses, and personal supervision, with home comforts. Inclusive terms from 100 guineas per annum. The school is especially intended for daughters of those who have given themselves to the Lord, and will be established (D.V.) after the Christmas term. Names of pupils should now be sent in.—For further particulars, PRINCIPAL, 13, Rose-street, Newgate street, E.C.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.

High-class School for Young Ladies,

Carlton Mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.

Principal—Mrs. HALE, A.C.P., F.S.Sc., London.—Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters, resident certificated governesses, with careful personal supervision, and home comforts. Cambridge and other examinations. Special advantages for music and languages. House pleasantly situated in one of the healthiest suburbs of London, replete with every convenience and all modern sanitary improvements. Good garden and tennis. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, and Rev. D. McEwan, D.D.

HIGH-CLASS CHRISTIAN SCHOOL, for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Individual Christian influence. Home comforts. Efficient staff of professors and governesses. Language and music specialities. Large house and garden. Entire charge of pupils from abroad.—Principal, Miss PENN, St. John's, South View, Willingdon-road, Eastbourne.

BETHANY HOUSE SCHOOL.

GOUDHURST, KENT.

PRINCIPAL—REV. J. J. KENDON.

Careful religious training, combined with a thoroughly sound commercial education. In the last three years 150 of the pupils were passed in the public examinations at the College of Preceptors and the Local examinations of the University of Cambridge.

THE MISSES ROBINSON, 5, Sussex-place, Southsea, will have two vacancies at Christmas for well-connected Girls, upon reduced terms. Careful Christian training, superior and thorough education. Refined home. Highest references to officers, clergymen, and other parents of Pupils.

DRESDEN.—Two German Ladies who receive a few young Ladies in their comfortable home, will have a vacancy in January. French, German. Best professors attending for music, painting. Family life, English comforts. Highest references in England.

Frl. BECHER, Walpurgisstr. 15.

HOME WITH EDUCATION for little girls (orphans or otherwise) offered by Lady giving personal care, receiving only three or four. Healthy suburb of London. Nice garden. Terms moderate. N. Y., c/o Waters, Stationer, Westbourne-grove.

OFFICER'S WIDOW and Daughter can receive a few resident Pupils, with day scholars. Kind training. Every care. Facilities for gymnasium. Healthy situation, near Bournemouth. Terms moderate.—E. BUSTARD, Poole, Dorset.

GENTLEMAN'S (CIVIL SERVICE) DAUGHTER (certificated) desires Pupil, or two Sisters, to join others privately. Masters and foreign governesses in attendance. English, music, harmony, French, German, Latin, drawing, painting. £50 per annum. Successful preparation in recent Local Exams. Highest references.

X., 11, Frederick-place, Clifton, Bristol.

MANY CHRISTIAN PARENTS, who at the present time are seeking a School at which to place their Sons, are invited to write to the undermentioned, who is desirous of recommending an old-established YOUNG GENTLEMEN'S BOARDING SCHOOL, where the constant aim of the Principal is to train those committed to his care in the fear of the Lord; and by the power of Gospel teaching maintain a Christian tone among the boys, combining this with a thorough and first-class Education.

The Premises are advantageously situated upon HIGH GROUND, NEAR and WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA, on the South Coast, a short run from London, and afford especial facilities for out-door recreation.

Prospectus and Papers of Examinations passed and honours gained will be forwarded on application. Several of the Vice-Chancellors have appointed their Wards as Pupils to the School. Terms moderate.

Dr. THORN, Paddington, London.

Huntingdon House School,

TEDDINGTON, Middlesex.

Thorough preparation for professional and business life and for examinations. Rev. Evan H. Hopkins, Richmond, Surrey, has "much pleasure in recommending this school to parents requiring sound training and a good education at a moderate cost."

Principal—Mr. GEO. CUMES, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.S.

YOUR BOYS will have a Christian home, and sound education, with Mr. and Mrs. DIXON, Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Thames. Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. Established 1883. 18 to 30 guineas.

BRIGHTON.—EDUCATION. — Mr. ALFRED CLARK, B.A. (Lond.), receives about twenty Sons of Gentlemen. Terms from 45 guineas. Pupils are thoroughly grounded in English subjects, Latin, Greek, French, German, and mathematics, and have been successful at Cambridge Local and other Examinations. Personal care. Christian influence, and a healthy, happy home.—85, Buckingham-road, Brighton.—Referees: Mrs. W. Poole Balfern, Brighton; Rev. F. Cruse, Christ Church Vicarage, Worthing; Rev. J. B. Riggis, Brighton; Rev. H. Grattan Guinness, D.D., and Mrs. Guinness, Harley House, Bow-road, London; Rev. W. Haslam, 66, Marina, St. Leonards.

NORTHFIELD, CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

A High-Class Educational Establishment for Sons of Gentlemen. Preparation for examinations.

Particulars on application to HEAD MASTER.

MOUNT RADFORD SCHOOL, Exeter.—Boys are prepared for business or professional life. Many matriculate at the various universities. During the past fifteen years pupils have obtained more than two hundred and sixty certificates (many passing in honours) in the Oxford, Cambridge, College of Preceptors', and London University Examinations. Special attention paid to juniors, who are taught by a lady. The Word of God is made the sole basis of a careful moral and spiritual training, and none but Christian teachers are employed. Cricket, athletics, &c.
Head Master, E. H. VINE, M.C.P.

THE REV. H. J. CHANCELLOR
(Late of Forest Hill),
"CAMPERDOWN," Upper Lansdowne Road, Bournemouth, E.,
Assisted by several Masters, receives a limited number of Pupils to Educate and Board.
For particulars, address THE PRINCIPAL.

MARGATE (Cliftonville). — The Vicar of Holy Trinity, Margate, wishes to recommend a superior Home School for little Boys. Spring term, January 15, 1891.—Address Rossmore.

UPTON SCHOOL, SLOUGH, near Windsor.—Principal: GEO. P. FISHER, M.C.P., assisted by Resident and Visiting Masters. Thorough Commercial education. Pupils prepared for Oxford and Cambridge Examinations. Cricket, football, tennis; schoolhouse in own grounds, four acres, gravel subsoil. Schoolroom area 1000 sq. ft., well lighted and ventilated. Prospectus on application.

OXFORD COUNTY SCHOOL, Thame. Established 1840. High-class, home-like. Highly efficient. Perfect sanitation. Bracing air. Splendid premises and grounds. Excellent table. Exams., University Locals, Chamber of Commerce, &c. Special arrangements for young and delicate. 160 distinctions last two years. "Several of my friends have had sons at the OXFORD COUNTY SCHOOL, and have been highly pleased with the care and attention shown."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

MR. J. W. C. FEGAN desires to recommend to Christian parents a high-class School for Sons of Gentlemen, at a very select and temperate South of England seaside health resort. A thoroughly good education, with real Christian influence, home comforts, and close individual attention to each boy.
Mr. J. W. C. FEGAN, Oakhurst, Oxted, Surrey.

BOURNEMOUTH.—The High School for Boys, Poole-road. Principal: Mr. E. C. DUCHESNE. Christmas term commenced Sept. 22. Prospectuses on application.

PRIVATE TUITION on the Thames—Chestnuts, Pangbourne, Berks.—Mr. CARNEGIE-CHEALES, B.A. (married), of Eton and Oxford (Honours) prepares few boys for Eton and Public Schools. Beautiful, healthy country. Boating, cricket, tennis, carpentering. Evangelical ministry. 70 to 130 guineas.

CORRESPONDENCE CLASSES in Greek, Latin, French, German, mathematics, &c. Students prepared for exams. Fees from 5s. per course.—A. C. HAMILTON, Esq., Classical Tutor, 48, Elm-park, Brixton-hill, S.W.

SKETCHING IN COLOURS, direct from nature. Correspondence lessons by an experienced Teacher, pupil of C. F. Williams. Successful method. Sketching club work criticised.—Miss ELIZABETH HILL, Urrinsfort, Enniscorthy, Ireland.

JUNIOR MASTER.—Wanted after Christmas, in a large day school, a Junior Master. Requirements: elements of Latin, French, mathematics, shorthand, and a firm disciplinarian. Ample time for private study. A young Christian willing to help in Mission work on Sunday evening, would find this a congenial home. Salary £30. Resident.
M. A., Clytha College, Newport, Mon.

WILL ANY CHRISTIAN LADY or Gentleman take a Boy, 16, for the Christmas holidays, son of a poor Widow Lady. Has passed Oxford Local Exams. Would make himself useful with younger boys, and assist with their tuition. Highest references given and required.
MATER, 83, High-street, Barnstaple, Devon.

SCHOLASTIC. — Partnership wanted, possibly with a view to an early or deferred succession, in a first-class preparatory school, by a Cambridge Graduate. Nine years' experience. Highest references. State capital required, which must be moderate.—M. A., c/o Housekeeper, 46, Fenchurch-street, London.

A CHRISTIAN GENTLEWOMAN wanted (Church of England), with capital of not less than £800, to take the transfer of a high class and thoroughly prosperous School for the Daughters of Gentlemen.
G. A., 10, Sussex Villas, Kensington, W.

SCHOLASTIC PARTNERSHIP.—A young Lady having daily pupils, would be glad to meet with another who could bring some Boarders and join her in opening a Ladies' School at St. Leonards.
ALPHA, 16, Magdalen-road, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

FOR SALE to a Christian Lady or Ladies, with good connection, or small income, the goodwill and solid household and school furniture of a long-established PREPARATORY SCHOOL in the healthy suburb of Blackheath. Inspection invited. References given and required.
WHITE, Post-office, The Grove, Ealing, W.

A LADY (T.C.) desires re-engagement as Resident Governess. Subjects, English, French, music, drawing (certificate), elementary Latin and German, needlework. No objection to go abroad. Terms moderate.
A. B. B., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

ARTICLED PUPIL, about 14, required, after Christmas, in a small finishing School at seaside. Must be gentleman's daughter. Light duties, happy home. Great educational advantages. Premium required.
LADY PRINCIPAL, 5, Sussex-place, Southsea.

AS JUNIOR TEACHER in a good School, or Nursery Governess in private family, to young children. English, French, music, drawing. Cert. Coll. Preceptors. Age 19. Christian home preferred.—M., c/o Mrs. Bray, Windsor House, Sidmouth, Devon.

FRENCH PROTESTANT of great experience (40) desires Holiday or re-engagement. Children under 12. German, English, music, needlework, rudimentary drawing. £40. Very successful with backward pupils.
LUCIE, 80, Hereford-road, Bayswater.

SUPERIOR FRENCH PROTESTANT GOVERNESS. — Mrs. ANDERSON, Duffield House, West Norwood, recommends the above. Subjects, Parisian French, English, music, and painting. Pleasant inmate.

MRS. BASDEN strongly recommends a Swiss Protestant Governess, for pupils under 12, boys or girls. Teaches French, German, music, and drawing. She would be invaluable in a Widower's family, or where the mother was an invalid, or the children delicate.
21, The Drive, Hove, Brighton.

HOLIDAY ENGAGEMENT wanted, by a German Lady. Good music, singing, French, Italian, needlework. Terms moderate.—FRÄULEIN, Hillcote, Chesterfield-road, Eastbourne, Sussex.

GOVERNESS WANTED in a quiet home (three children, 6 to 16 years). Must be experienced. Photo shall be returned. State salary required, and references.
Mrs. CROSHER, Westwood, Melton Mowbray.

NO SALARY. — Wanted, after Christmas, to place a bright, well-educated Girl of 17, as Governess Student in a good school. Christian influence greatly valued.
Miss REVES, Olney, Bucks.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Wanted.

A GENTLEMAN of education, energy, tact, organiser, able speaker, desires re-engagement as Secretary, Evangelist, or Missionary. Abstainer. Experienced. Highest references. Evangelistic or Temperance Missions conducted.
Mr. JEPSON, Englefield Green, Staines.

POSITION OF TRUST with responsible firm, wanted by experienced young Man. Shorthand writer. Could invest up to £1000 if required.—J. G., 26, Worcester-street, Gloucester.

AS SHORTHAND CLERK in some religious society, or as Town Missionary, or similar capacity. First-rate testimonials. Total abstainer. Nine years' experience in Temperance and Evangelistic work.
C. S. C., 47, William-street, Norwich.

AS ORGANIST in church, chapel, or mission-hall, or position of trust. Advertiser has held several good posts. Can teach choir, violin, or piano. Excellent testimonials. Aged 33. Total abstainer.—c/o Rev. V. Dodgson, Harrow.

A LADY WISHES to find a place for a Man, who through great trouble took to drinking after many years' good character. He now professes conversion. Will anyone try him again as Doorkeeper or Messenger in the West End.
Miss F. COOKSON, 4, Kent-terrace, Regent's-park.

MANSERVANT, who has held good service in a nobleman's family, seeks Engagement. Teetotaler now.—Rev. C. W. MACKIE, St. George's Infirmary, Fulham-road, S.W.

PARTNERSHIP. — An active Christian Gentleman (age 48) desires Partnership with fellow Christian, in an established business in the City or provinces, where his services and £1,000 would meet with good return.
M. H. 575, Messrs. Deacon, Leadenhall-street.

WORKING PARTNERSHIP, agency, or position of trust, wanted by a Gentleman of extensive business experience. Could manage a Merchant's or Agent's business, be Secretary or Manager to a company. Unexceptionable references given and required.—MERCHANT, William Wood, Solicitor, 8, Great James-street, Bedford-row.

YOUNG MAN, highly respectable, good appearance, age 25, desires a situation as Attendant or Companion to an invalid Gentleman. No objection to travel. Good home. Small salary. Good reference.
E. A., 39, Nelson-street, Lord-street, Southport.

MAN AND WIFE, with daughter, seek situation as Managers of Restaurant, Coffee Palace, Mission, Hall or Home, or any place of trust. Good managers, strict Christian principles, total abstainers. Good recommendation. Disengaged last Saturday in January next.—MANAGER, Clifden House, 79, Fairfield-road, Bow, London, E.

LAD.—Lady highly recommends Lad, 15, decided Christian, very quiet, nice appearance, for indoor service. 5 ft. 1 in., not been out before, but very willing and trustworthy.
Willowdene, King's-road, Clapham.

AS HOUSEKEEPER OR MATRON in a School or Home. A Lady, age 34, can be recommended. Thoroughly domesticated, good needlewoman. Conscientious and trustworthy. Disengaged on the 27th.—ALPHA, c/o Mr. G. Hammett, 133, Earl's Court-road, London.

AS USEFUL HOUSEKEEPER to elderly Gentleman or Widower. Re-engagement desired, where servant is kept. Experienced with invalids, fond of children. Fair reader, Christian, abstainer. State salary.
BETA, Bourne, Burrington, Bristol.

COMPANION OR GOVERNESS.—Engagement required by German Lady after Christmas. Domesticated, experienced in nursing the sick. English, French, German, music, rudimentary drawing, needlework. Excellent testimonials.
A., Yorevale, Lansdowne-road, Bournemouth.

EXPERIENCED, MIDDLE-AGED LADY, who has travelled much, seeks an engagement. Would take entire charge of and teach young children, delicate or otherwise. — Miss FAULKNER, Prætoria House School, Folkestone.

AS COMPANION to a Lady.—End of January. Cheerful, domesticated. Has lived abroad. South of England preferred. Good references.
C/o Miss Hollis, East Tytherton, Chippenham.

LADY HELP.—A Lady wishing for occupation, requires situation as above. Is cheerful and musical, would be willing to make herself generally useful. An abstainer. Would give services in return for a comfortable home. —G. L., at Shelley's Advertising Offices, 38, Gracechurch-street, E.C.

ATTENDANT.—A Lady wishes to recommend a kind Attendant for an Invalid or aged Lady. Has had several years' experience.
M. A. T., Miss Robson, Saffron Walden.

COOK-HOUSEKEEPER, in Christian family, to Gentleman or Gentleman and Lady, where girl is kept. Any place of trust. Methodical, reliable, middle-aged.—A. B., 32, Elgin-terrace, Maida Vale, London, N.W.

AS NURSE, to take the baby from the month, or where there are one or two children. S. P., c/o Mrs. Silvester, Knebworth Station, Herts.

DISTRICT NURSE.—Wanted, a re-engagement by a District Nurse. Hospital trained. Good references. In or near London.
S., 9, Ingham-road, West Hampstead.

NURSE.—An experienced person seeks re-engagement as Nurse to an invalid Lady. Good reference.—M. S. G., 1, South View-terrace, Bideford, N. Devon.

AS NURSE to invalid child, or any position of trust. Middle-aged. Recommended by clergyman's wife.
Mrs. WICHELO, 12, Legard-road, Highbury.

A YOUNG LADY seeks an engagement. Experienced, well educated, musical, ladylike, cheerful, willing, and domesticated. Salary: Excellent references.
L. C., 14 and 16, Milford-street Salisbury.

SISTER MARY recommends Christian Girl as Useful Maid or Sewing Maid. —Apply 60, Greek-street, Soho.

OFFICE FOR HOME HELP, 9, Upper Baker-street, N.W. — Miss HOOPER introduces Christian Governesses, Housekeepers, Companions, Maids, Hospital Trained Nurses and Medical Rubbers, also superior Domestic Servants.

SERVANTS WANTING SITUATIONS. —Maid Attendant, Sewing Maids, Parlourmaid (20), Housemaids, Footman under butler, Page, &c., &c. Entrance fee, 1s., and stamped envelope. Quite free to servants who should apply, if requiring situations.—SUPERINTENDENT, The Lodge, St. James'-road, Tunbridge Wells.

COOK desires situation in Christian family. Age 35. Wages £30 to £35. Abstainer. Yorkshire preferred.
Mrs. HULL, Hanbury Hall, Burton-on-Trent.

A LADY RECOMMENDS good plain Cook in small family, or any place of trust, where light housework is required. State wages. Disengaged January 10.
A. K., Lochiel, Boscombe, Bournemouth.

AS MOTHER'S HELP or Nursery Governess. A young Lady in fellowship with Brethren seeks an engagement. Comfortable home. Moderate salary.—ZETA, North Bank, Oakleigh-park, Whetstone, N.

HOME WANTED for a Crippled Woman who has lost both her feet, but is provided with mechanical ones, and can use them fairly well without any assistance. She can do plain needlework and would make herself useful.—Address THE CHAPLAIN, Hospital for Women, Soho-square, W.

AS HOUSEMAID in Christian family. Congregational minister's wife recommends respectable Christian Girl. Six years' reference. N.W. district preferred.
E., 35, Park Village East, N.W.

A LADY would be glad to find a Home for a Girl in whom she is interested, as a General Servant.—B. Y. B., 59, Princes-gate, S.W.

A LADY WISHES to recommend a conscientious, trustworthy person as Matron or Wardrobe-Keeper, in a school. Four years and three months' experience. Age 26.
Miss BARROW, Woodlands, Snaresbrook, Essex.

Appointments, Situations, &c., Vacant.

CHRISTIAN LADIES wanted, wholehearted, for Mission work. No salary given, but board and lodging provided. — Apply by letter, addressed F. J., 70, Blisset-street, Greenwich, S.E.

WHOLESALE TEA TRADE.—Advantageous opening for a young Man understanding the business and able to invest £1,000. — A. B. 96, Messrs. Deacon, 154, Leadenhall-street, E.C.

YOUTH WANTED as Junior in office of Grapho Co., Creechurch Buildings, Leadenhall-street, E.C. Must write a good hand, and be quick at figures.—Apply by letter.

INTELLIGENT YOUTH.—Vacancy for an Apprentice to the Hat and Hosiery trade. Old-established, better-class business. Comfortable home. Decided Christian family.
L. FOSS & SON, Swindon.

HON. SUPERINTENDENT. — Required at once for the Ealing Y.W.C.A., an earnest Christian as Hon. Superintendent. No salary, but furnished rooms, attendance, fire, and light. Two friends or sisters would find this a happy sphere of labour.—Mrs. TULLOCH, 50, Grange-park, Ealing, London, W.

FEMALE HELPER wanted in parish. Evangelical Churchwoman. Abstainer, strong, active. Between 25 and 35.
VICAR, Bravington-road, Harrow-road, W.

A BIBLEWOMAN NURSE, fully saved, active, and earnest, for a Gospel Mission in a Ritualistic neighbourhood.
H. J. W., 52, Bradford-road, Sydenham.

MATRON WANTED in Home for Girls. Must be good disciplinarian, have a motherly sympathy for her charge, and, above all, be a devoted Christian.—Apply, stating age, experience, and salary required, to SECRETARY, Rescue Society, 79, Finsbury-pavement, E.C.

MATRON WANTED in a Home for Young Women. A knowledge of midwifery necessary. Applications to the SECRETARY, 4, Regent-square, Gray's Inn-road, London, W.C.

TWO EXAMINERS OF WORK wanted by the London and Provincial Laundry Co. The work required to be done is of a character suitable for Ladies in reduced circumstances, of business habits.—Apply by letter,
SECRETARY, 154, Battersea-park-road, S.W.

USEFUL MAID WANTED.—Plain Dressmaker and Machinist. Would have little housework, and waiting on Lady. Abstainer and Churchwoman preferred. Wages £18 all found.
Mrs. GILES, Bonchurch, Isle of Wight.

USEFUL COMPANION.—Wanted, respectable Woman as Working Companion to an elderly person, who will not object to the entire work of small comfortable home.
HARRIS, Friendly House, Witney, Oxon.

AS WORKING HOUSEKEEPER.—Wanted, a middle-aged Person, to take charge of five children, youngest three. Must be a Christian. One meeting with Brethren preferred.—X. Y. Z., c/o Mr. Thomas Collings, Bell-lane, Ludlow.

USEFUL MOTHER'S HELP wanted at once. Experienced, and fond of children. Good needlewoman.
Mrs. WARREN, 22, Spencer-hill, Wimbledon.

KIND, HOMELY PERSON to care for invalid Lady. Nurse and servant kept. Three in family. Age about 30, strong and obliging. Good references.—Apply, stating salary, 15, Banbury-road, Oxford.

WANTED AT ONCE, good Cooks, House-Parlourmaids, Housemaids, Nurses, and good General Servants. Quiet situations. Good wages. This office can be well recommended as thoroughly reliable.—Miss MAULDEN (late missionary), 153, Church-street, Paddington-green, Stamp for reply.

COOK REQUIRED by Lady and Gentleman. Parlourmaid, housemaid, and coachman kept. Must be a Christian and total abstainer. Age between 30 and 40.—Apply first to the Servants' Christian Association Home, 162, Warwick-street, S.W.

PARISH NURSE wanted, with some Hospital training. Salary £1 per month.
Hon. Mrs. ANSON, Cookham, Maidenhead.

A TRUSTWORTHY NURSE wanted, as Lady-Nurse, for three young children. Not under twenty. An abstainer, and accustomed to the care of children. Business house.
Mrs. GRAVELY, Silver-street, Wellingboro'.

CHRISTIAN LADY wanted for the Nursery, to take charge of two little Girls (3 and 5), and help with a baby (13 months). Experienced. Good needlewoman. Age about 30. Nurse kept.
C. W., 15, Pemberton-road, Upper Holloway, N.

NURSE.—Wanted at once young girl, 15 to 16, as Nurse. Three children. Youngest two years old. Must have good character.
Elmdale, Elm-park-road, Finchley.

A RESPECTABLE WOMAN wanted to work with, and teach, the Girls of a small Home.—Apply, stating age and particulars, to Miss JENNINGS, 45, Aubert-park, Highbury, N.

A THOROUGH HOUSE-PARLOUR-MAID wanted (Housemaid kept), for quiet family in the country. Must understand her duties. Congregationalist preferred
Mrs. SPENCER, sen., Oakhill, near Bath.

GOOD PARLOURMAID and experienced Cook wanted. Good character indispensable.—Apply by letter,
Mrs. APPERLY, Hurstleigh, Redhill.

COMPETENT GENERAL SERVANT wanted immediately in small family, to do plain cooking. Abstainers. Another maid kept.—Apply, stating age, last situation, and wages, to Mrs. ROBIN TAYLOR, Bury Cottage, Rickmansworth.

HOUSE-PARLOURMAID wanted for Gentleman's family in the country. Can any Lady recommend as above a high-principled, conscientious Woman, abstainer, not under 40. Early riser, strong, and active.
Mrs. G., Belmont, Hurstpierpoint.

BRIGHTON.—Wanted at once, GOOD PLAIN COOK for private convalescent Home for Ladies. Kitchenmaid kept. Eight servants in all. Good manager and early riser indispensable.—Apply, stating wages and full particulars, with references, to W. S., 11, College-terrace, Brighton.

COOK (good plain) wanted, January 5. Small, quiet family. Wages £24, washing found. Age 28 to 33. Strong, active, total abstainer. Thoroughly satisfactory character required.—Mrs. MACGREGOR, Lochiel, Boscombe, Bournemouth.

GOOD PLAIN COOK and House-Parlourmaid wanted at once for St. Leonards. Small salary. Comfortable home. Must have good experience with personal character.—By letter, Mr. H., Dane Lodge, Dane-road, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

To Let, Apartments, &c.

MIDLAND TEMPERANCE HOTEL, 76, Guilford-street, Russell-square, W.C.—A first-class Hotel for Visitors to London. Central and pleasantly situated. A thoroughly clean and quiet home, with every comfort and convenience. Highly patronised and recommended by the clergy and ladies and gentlemen. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d., breakfast or tea, from 1s. 3d., service 9d. Full tariff, with testimonials, free on application to
J. W. TURNER, Proprietor.

W. TAVERNER, Temperance Hotel, 41 and 43, Judd-street, Euston-road, London, W.C. Five minutes from G.N., Mid., and N.W. Railways. Beds from 1s. 6d. Plain breakfast or tea, 1s. Silent roadway now laid. One minute from Rev. John McNeill's Church, Regent-square. Testimonials.

BEDFORD HOTEL, London. — 93 and 95, Southampton-row, Russell-square.—Quiet family Hotel; central. Bed-rooms from 1s. 6d.; plain breakfast or tea, 1s. 6d. Other charges equally moderate. Printed tariff on application to
THOMAS HENRY WALDUCK, Proprietor.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA.—Boarding Establishment, Meliora House, 20 and 21, Carisbrooke-road. Conducted by the Widow of the late Rev. F. WAGSTAFFE and Mrs. LOCKE. Good table. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Near sea, gardens, and rail.

BRIGHTON. — SUSSEX HOUSE BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 58, Old Steine, near to sea, Aquarium, piers, and Pavilion. Liberal table, with home comforts. First-class references.—Mr. and Mrs. BOX.

BRIGHTON.—Select Boarding House. Pleasant and healthy situation. Near West Pier and lawns. Rooms lofty and airy. Home comforts. Terms moderate. Special for permanency.
Moreland House, 116, Lanslowne-place, Hove.

PARIS, Pension de Famille.—Quiet, comfortable, and refined Home, healthy and convenient situation. French lessons. Moderate terms. References exchanged.—Miss GALLOWAY, 1, Rue d'Obligado, Avenue de la Grande Armée, Paris.

BIARRITZ.—French Protestant Lady, doctor's widow, offers comfortable home. Advantages for studying language, lessons if required. Careful attention to delicate girls. South rooms. English references.
Mme. NOGARET, Rue des Ecoles.

BRIGHTON.—High-class Private Boarding House. Close to sea-front and lawns. Large and lofty rooms, newly furnished with every comfort. Dinner 6.30. Terms moderate.
Sea Croft, 3, Holland-road.

TORQUAY.—Home of Rest.—Sharon Home, Chelston, receives persons needing rest.—For particulars apply,
HON. SECRETARY, Chelston Manor.

HAMPSTEAD.

BOARDING HOUSE (First Class), THURLOW ROAD.

Gradual ascent from Hampstead Heath Station, 7 minutes; also North Western, Midland, and Metropolitan, each 8 or 10 minutes. Temporary or Permanent Residence for those desiring the unique scenery and salubrious air of this locality, with every home comfort.—Inquire, G. C. B., 16, Finsbury-square, E.C.

BUXTON, DERBYSHIRE.—Brunswick Boarding House. Visitors received on very reduced terms for the winter months, or permanency. House nicely situated. Comfortable south drawing-room. Corridors heated in winter.
Miss PALMER.

HASTINGS BOARDING ESTABLISHMENT, 28, Cornwallis-gardens. Central position. Comfortable winter home. Liberal table, late dinner. Bath-room. Well recommended. Terms from 30s.—The Misses WOOD.

LITTLEHAMPTON.—Seaside Home of Rest for Christians. Freedom and ease of family life. Climate mild. Special arrangements during winter months. Board and lodging 12s. 6d. weekly.—Apply, enclosing stamped envelope.
Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, Croydon.

A HAPPY CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY for Lonely Ones. Terms from Wednesday, Dec. 23rd, to Tuesday the 30th inclusive, 10s. 6d. Return railway ticket, 5s. Apply, enclosing stamped envelope, to SISTER EMMA, The Hillyers, Littlehampton.

CHEERFUL SEASIDE HOME for Christians of limited means. Terms accommodated to needs of the Lord's people. Unexceptionable references required. Send stamped envelope.—Rev. W. DARLOW SARJEANT, Oseney-crescent, Camden-road, N.W.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS. — Ladies' Convalescent Home, Stradbroke House, Upper Grosvenor-road, offers medical care and home comforts, with all the advantages pertaining to residence in this attractive town and neighbourhood. Private suites of apartments if desired. Friends of patients accommodated. Terms moderate. References exchanged.
Principal—Mr. C. G. READ, Surgeon.

RAMSGATE. — Workers' Rest. — Ladies seeking to regain health by prolonged seaside residence, good food, and thorough rest, are welcomed by Mrs. W. HATHAWAY, Finsbury House. 15s. to 21s.

CLIFTON, BRISTOL.—Board and Residence for Ladies and Gentlemen. Good central position, near the Downs and places of worship.—Miss HARRIS, Worcester House, Worcester-terrace, Clifton-park, Bristol.

INTEMPERANCE. — Sanatorium for Ladies in a favourite winter Health Resort in the West of England, established in 1874, for the treatment of Alcoholism, Opium, Morphia, and Chloral habits. Separate and special arrangements for cases of nervous debility and hysteria. — MEDICUS, Messrs. Tayler, 154, Fleet-street, London.

BATH. — Cleveland Boarding House, near Abbey and baths. Open and central situation. Rooms lofty and airy. A home from home. South drawing room. Terms moderate.
12, Laura-place.

LADIES VISITING BRIGHTON for a few days or longer will find comfortable Residence on very reasonable terms at Engedi House, Eastern-road.—Apply, LADY SUPERINTENDENT.

EASTBOURNE.—Merevale Boarding Establishment, Wilmington Gardens. A comfortable winter home for Ladies and Gentlemen. Pleasantly situated near sea and downs. Moderate terms.—The Misses BEEBY.

HOME OF REST FOR CHRISTIANS.—Quiet and comfortable. Conveniently situated close to Mildmay. Terms, including board, from 25s. per week.—Address, enclosing stamp,
Miss LANKESTER, 41, Beresford-road, N.

TORQUAY. — YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION HOME, Gambleville, St. Mary Church-road. Torre Station the nearest. Omnibus passes the house. Terms: board and lodging, 10s., 12s. 6d., and 15s. per week; or parts of weeks, 2s., 3s., and 4s. per night, to be paid in advance. Lady Superintendent, Miss James. Applications to be made to the Secretary, Miss JESSIE COOMBS. The Y.W.C.A. Institute, Torquay. Neither confirmed invalids, nor those recently exposed to infection, are received.

GENTLEWOMEN OF LIMITED means are offered temporary home amidst lovely scenery. Pleasant autumn or winter residence. Terms moderate. References required.—Enclose stamp for reply, LADY HOUSEKEEPER, Oak Tree House, Matlock Bridge.

REFINED HOME, where every comfort is combined with perfect freedom.—Apply, enclosing stamped envelope, to LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Sharnhen House, Kingsnorth-gardens, Folkestone.

PRIVATE CONVALESCENT HOME for Ladies, Fulbeck House, Tunbridge Wells.—Terms 17s. to 30s. weekly during winter. Home comforts.—All particulars from Miss WOODFALL, 9, Mount Ephraim-road, Tunbridge Wells.

HASTINGS Y.W.C.A. — Holiday Home for Business Young Ladies. The home is pleasantly situated. 8s. Single room, 12s. References.—THE MATRON, The Nest, Milward-crescent, Queen's-road, Hastings.

WORTHING HOME OF REST for Christians. Close to but not facing sea. Every comfort. Liberal table. Winter residents. Terms £1 5s. to £2 2s.—LADY SUPERINTENDENT, Rutherford Lodge, Worthing.

BOURNEMOUTH. — Aldbury, Alumhurst-road, Bournemouth West. Only three minutes' walk from the sea. Southern aspect, beautifully wooded. Furnished Apartments.
THOMAS GURNEY, ex City Missionary.

MARGATE.—House of Rest or Christians. Quiet winter residence with home comforts. Terms from 15s. Address, with stamped envelope for reply,
LADY SUPERINTENDENT, 39, Gordon-road.

ST. LEONARDS-ON-SEA. — Select Boarding House. Charming sea views. Near Marina, new pier, and Evan. church. Good table. Well recommended. Perfect sanitation. From 25s.
Mrs. WARSCHAWSKI, Bella Vista, 45, West Hill.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS for homeless young governesses and business girls. Terms moderate.—Apply, enclosing stamped envelope,
Y.W.C.A., 463, Holloway-road, N.

ST. LEONARDS.—Eversfield Mansion, boarding establishment, on the best part of the Parade. Smoking room. Visitors would find every comfort. Pleasant resort for the Christmas holidays. Very moderate terms.—Misses JONES.

CLERGYMAN STRONGLY RECOMMENDS cheap and comfortable Furnished Apartments in Ilfracombe.—Rev. T. CAWLEY, Octagon House, Bideford, N. Devon.

REFINED HOME in the country to Christian, musical Girl, of gentle birth, at 10s. weekly, willing to oblige in playing.—Letters,
Miss WARE, 26, Newmarket-road, Norwich.

MIDDLE-AGED OR ELDERLY LADY or Gentleman can be received as member of family circle, in very comfortable, country, Christian home. Farm residence, North Hants. Waggonette. Terms 21s. to 30s.
A. B., 31, Ashburnham-road, Greenwich, London.

COMFORTABLE HOME.—A Clergyman's Wife offers comfortable Home in the country to a Lady, who would play harmonium in church. Only slight remuneration required. No objection to two sisters.
RECTOR, Burlingham, Norwich.

WANTED AFTER CHRISTMAS, by an elderly Lady, two unfurnished Rooms, with attendance, in or near London. Dry, bracing air. Inclusive terms £1 a week.
X., 2, Newington-green, N.

COUNTRY HOME OFFERED in return for services. Companionship needed by elderly and nearly blind Clergyman. References exchanged.
D., 3, Oakley-street, Bellevue, Shrewsbury.

BOARD AND RESIDENCE at Brighton, for Governesses and others needing rest and sea air during the holidays. Inclusive terms from 8s. to 13s. 6d. a week.—Apply by letter to Mrs. MARSHMAN, 4, Sussex-square, Brighton.

HAWKHURST. — Apartments or Board and Residence, with kind care and attention, in a private house. South aspect. Terms moderate.—Maisonette, Hawkhurst.

NOMINAL RENT. — Residents going abroad for four months, are willing to Let their well-furnished House at once to Christian tenants with good references. Bath hot and cold. Garden. Healthy situation, near rail. 20 minutes from town.—Write first instance, X., 329, Trinity-road, Wandsworth-common.

HASTINGS OR ST. LEONARDS.—Wanted, five unfurnished Rooms in good locality, near sea, with attendance; or furnished, if price moderate.—K. Y., Lewis's Medical Library, 136, Gower-street, W.C.

BRIGHTON. — Sitting and Bedroom, comfortably furnished, near sea. Warm, pleasant rooms. 17s. week, inclusive; less for permanency or winter. Also extra Bed-room. No children. — Mrs. THOMPSON, 54, Westbourne-street, West Brighton.

ST. HELEN'S GARDENS, Notting-hill. Furnished drawing-room and two good bedrooms, piano. Near to 'buses and stations. Healthy locality, suitable for two Ladies. Permanency desired.—FAITH, 54, Ladbroke-grove-road.

HOME FOR INVALID CHILDREN, 70, Montpelier-road, Brighton. Evangelical. Medical care and every attention.—Apply to Miss E. A. FREEMAN for terms, &c.

HASTINGS.—Home of Rest (superior) for Christians. Central. Close to sea and places of worship. South aspect. Liberal table. Terms from 21s. to £2 2s.
Mrs. C., Woodgrange, Cornwallis-gardens.

DRESDEN.—Ladies or Gentlemen wishing to board in a quiet North German family, are highly recommended to the Baedeker Pension, Schnorr Strasse 48. Miss ROBINSON (there resident) will answer inquiries.

HOME FOR CHRISTIAN YOUNG MEN.—W. A. ROXBURGH has vacancies in his well-appointed residence, 77, Queen's-road, Finsbury-park, London. Every convenience to City. Railway quarterly, Broad-street, Moorgate-street, 30s., King's Cross, 16s. 8d. Residence, and partial board, 16s. 6d.

Miscellaneous.

ANXIOUS INQUIRERS.—A Christian will gladly correspond with any earnest seeker after Divine truth.—EVANGELIST, Chapnam, S.W. Isaiah xliv. 22.

CAPSICUM is strongly recommended in The Lancet (May 17 and 24, 1890) for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Bronchitis, &c. The most convenient application is Francis' Capsicum Leaves (Regd.) 6d. tins. Of Chemists. For 7 stamps from FRANCIS & CO., Leicester.

BEST BELLADONNA PLASTER.—Trade mark, "The Leicester." On stout Dowlais, yard tin, 2s. "The Leicester" improved Diachylon plaster, half-yard tin, 6d. Of Chemists.
For stamps, FRANCIS & CO., Leicester.

PORTRAITS CAREFULLY PAINTED in oils, and framed from any photograph. Testimonials and further information on application. Terms moderate. Satisfaction guaranteed.—G. R. GILL, 18, Bury-road, Wood Green, London, N.

A CHRISTIAN WORKER, having been engaged in Missionary work in Japan for about 3½ years, is desirous of obtaining support from friends interested in Mission work in order to devote his whole time to evangelising among the people.—Information may be obtained at the Missionary Bureau, 186, Aldersgate-street, London.

VILLAGE LIBRARY. — For Exchange or Sale, 160 volumes in fair condition. For terms and lists of books apply to Miss SANDLE, Great Bardfield, Braintree, Essex.

DISSOLVING VIEWS.—Buy of the manufacturers, Messrs. CATLIN, 17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, London. Single Lanterns complete, 36s. Slides on hire (including new sets), 1s. dozen. Monthly second-hand catalogue gratis.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENTS almost certain of early improvement, paying now a clear 7¾ per cent., or 14 per cent. if two-thirds borrowed on mortgage at 5 per cent. House property always let, leases 95 years. A Building Society will advance nine-tenths if required. Well built and attractive houses with stone bays. 20 for £2,500, yielding after paying ground rent, taxes, and repairs, £196 4s., which can be shown, or 10 for £1,250. Taken under Mortgage from Builder's Bankrupt Estate. Roads taken over.—Full particulars from Mr. MOUNT, 5, The Broadway, Cann Hall-road, Leytonstone, E.

AMERICAN ORGAN. — "Smith" make, variety of stops, two knee swells. Bargain.—CHARLES L. YOUNG, 21, High-street, Kingsland, N.E.

PORTABLE HARMONIUMS from 75s. Organs from 85s. — Mr. Gawin Kirkham, Secretary Open-Air Mission, writes:—"I can speak from experience of the excellency of your instruments."
CHAS. YOUNG, 21, High-st., Kingsland, London.

HELP FOR THE DEAF in parlour, church, or chapel. Drums, Ear Trumpets, Speaking Tubes, &c. Call and see them. Advice free. Hours 11 to 4, Saturdays 11 to 1; or write for particulars, to Mr. E. J. SILVERTON, Imperial Buildings Ludgate-circus, London.

ORMONDE SAFETY BICYCLE, fitted with cushion tyres, ball bearings, usual parts beautifully nickel plated, remainder enamelled. Brand new and faultless. No winter room. Not ridden 20 miles. Only £8 15s. Honestly worth double. Full particulars.
C. I. W., 109, Wherstead-road, Ipswich.

A USEFUL CLOTH DRESS LENGTH FOR 6/9.
PATTERNS FREE. DENTON'S, GLO'STER.

LADIES OF SOCIAL POSITION are invited to become Agents for obtaining, amongst Friends, orders for Tea grown and manufactured on my estate, 10 lb. package 12s. 4d. Liberal commission.—R. MORTON, c/o Major-General Morton, 2, Priory-parade, Cheltenham.

IDEAL UNDERCLOTHING for Winter and Summer wear, made of purest and softest natural and white wools, of English manufacture, at reasonable prices. Every description of garment for ladies, gentlemen, and children. A descriptive Catalogue and Patterns of Webbings (sent free by post) should be in the hands of every lady and gentleman who values health, freedom from chill, and perfect comfort. — HYGIENIC HOSIERY WORKS, Castle Donington, via Derby.

UMBRELLAS RE-COVERED FROM 2S. EACH.
IF YOUR UMBRELLA WANTS RECOVERING send it by Parcels Post (with Postal Order enclosed) to STRONG BROS., Umbrella Makers, Redhill, Surrey, who will re-cover it and return it as good as new by next post, carriage paid. Good strong twill, ladies', 2s., gents', 2s. 6d.; good alpaca, ladies', 3s., gents', 3s. 6d.; strong durable silk, ladies', 4s. 6d., gents', 5s. Patterns post free. Reference kindly permitted to the Rev. J. R. Hewetson, Redhill.
☞ A sample New Umbrella at wholesale price. List free.

A HUMANE TELEPHONE.—People who suffer from deafness and noises in the head will be glad to hear that an eminent Aural Specialist of London has hit upon a cure which is said to be absolutely efficacious, and may be applied at the patient's home. It is a miniature telephone, which fits inside the ear. It is not only a producer of sound, but also a cure for the distressing noises in the head. Being comfortable to wear, it will no doubt be a boon to mankind. A pamphlet describing its construction is printed, and may be had from the PUBLISHER, 21, Bedford-square, London, W.C. Price 3d.

GIVEN AWAY!
Your Nickel Silver Pen and Pencil Case
With your NAME in RUBBER,
COMPLETE, 7½d. in Stamps,
Or for your Rubber Stamp, elegantly mounted, Name in full, or Monogram, for Marking Linen or Stamping Paper,
Enclose 3½d. in Stamps for Postage, &c., mention this Paper, and address:
CRYSTAL PALACE (JOHN BOND'S) GOLD MEDAL MARKING INK WORKS,
Caution, "The Original and Genuine."
75, SOUTHGATE ROAD, LONDON, N.

THROAT IRRITATION AND COUGH.
Soreness and dryness, tickling and irritation, inducing cough, and affecting the voice. For these symptoms use EPPS'S GLYCERINE JUJUBES. In contact with the glands at the moment they are excited by the act of sucking, the Glycerine in these agreeable confections becomes actively healing. In tins, 1s. 1½d.; labelled "JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists," LONDON.

ELECTRO-HOMŒOPATHY.—A new Work on this science by A. STURT LEWIS. Post free, 1s. Advice gratis, personally or by letter, at this old-established depôt.—Mr. A. STURT LEWIS, Electro Homœopathic Depôt, St. John's House, Hewlett-street, Cheltenham.

6d.—THE WORLD OF SCRAPS.—20 sheets best coloured Scraps, suitable for Screens, Scrap books, &c., price 6d. only, post free, seven stamps; 4 Sheets, 1s.; 100 Sheets, 2s. 3d. post free. M. C. ROBERTS, 145, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

HALL & SONS, LIMITED, BOOTMAKERS,
57, BISHOPSGATE-STREET WITHIN, E.C.

REGISTERED TRADE MARK.
Pannus Corium Boots for Tender Feet.
PREMISES COMING DOWN
(By order Hon. Bridge House Committee)
GREAT CLEARANCE SALE.
Previous to rebuilding, all Goods must be cleared. 15 to 20 per cent. off regular Stock.

DAINTREE & CO., DYERS, LONDON.
The LARGEST WORKS IN LONDON for Dyeing and Cleaning in every Branch.
32, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, W.; 365, Southwark-park-road, S.E.; 44, Leicester-square, W.C.
Carts Collect and Deliver to all parts.—PRICE LISTS BY POST.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS.
TEAS in Packets for Distribution.
1s. 4d. and 1s. 6d. per lb. Sample lb. tin, post free for 2d. extra. 10 lbs. carriage free. 5 lbs. carriage paid for 4d. extra.
1/4 PURE INDIAN Best value in the world.—The CHOTA HAZRI TEA COMPANY, 17, Lawrence-lane, Cheapside, London.

ESTABLISHED 1825.
NEAVE'S FOOD.
BEST AND CHEAPEST.

"THE NARROW BIBLE."
Four Volumes, each 5½ by 2½ inches. Emerald type. Maps.
In neat, round-cornered case. From 12s. French seal.
"A more graceful or welcome Christmas present could not be devised."—Christian Globe.
"A most exquisite edition."—Independent.
SAMUEL BAGSTER & SONS, LIMITED, 15, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, E.C.

WORKERS' CHRISTMAS PARCEL—Ten shillingsworth of Packets of Choice Cards, with Texts and Mottoes, for 2s. 6d., post free. JOHN G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

THE CHRISTIAN'S MOTTO CARD for 1891 supersedes all former issues, is beautifully designed, and worthy of a place in all Christian homes. 3d. each; 10 for 2s. From E. HANNANT, Y.M.C.A., Hull.

Publications.

MRS. GRIMKE'S TEXT CARDS.—Please note change of address. Send to Wellington House, Higher Broughton, for New List for 1888. Cheapest English. 1s. 6d. 100: foreign. 1s. per 100; or to E. KAUFMANN, 30, Paternoster-square.

SPECIAL OFFER.—A 5s. parcel of Scripture Cards for Christmas and general distribution, will be sent on receipt of 2s. 6d., and money returned (less postage) where parcel fails to give satisfaction.—R. J. MASTERS, 32, Wilton-road, Victoria Station, S.W.

MOTTO CARDS FOR 1891, suitable for all Christian organisations. Supplied with own selected motto, name, &c., at moderate cost. Various designs. Particulars post free.—PENMAN & CO., 33, Furnival-street, London, E.C.

TRACT DISTRIBUTION at small cost. Gospel Tracts and Leaflets, bright, attractive, good, cheap (from 1s. per thousand). Suitable for every occasion, and for advertising Evangelistic and other meetings. Specimen Packet free.—PENMAN & CO., 33, Furnival-street, Holborn, London, E.C.

THE CHOICE SELECTION of New Christmas Cards from various series will be sent for One Shilling. Splendid value. All with texts and verses.
J. G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

RUBY CHRISTMAS CARDS.—Pansies, 12 1s., Good Tidings, 12 1s., Pearls, 12 6d., Treasure, 12 6d. Mottoes, One Penny, three kinds. Calender, 6d.
J. G. WHEELER, 88, Mildmay-park, London, N.

22nd Edition. Enlarged. 98 pp., post free, 1s.
DR. WATTS on ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS. A practical Treatise on the most Successful Method of Curing these Diseases. By ROBERT G. WATTS, M.D., M.A., M.R.C.S., &c.—London: C. MITCHELL & CO., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street; and SIMPKIN & CO., Stationers' Hall court.

1s. 6d. per year, post free.
"THE WITNESS." An unfettered monthly Journal of Biblical literature, questions and answers, mission reports, &c. Edited by John R. CALDWELL. Motto: "All the Word of God for all the people of God."
Witness Office, Buchanan-street, Glasgow.

The Expositor's Bible.
FOURTH SERIES, 1890-91.
Price to SUBSCRIBERS in ADVANCE for the SIX VOLUMES, 24s.
Subscriptions now payable.
Separate Vols. 7s. 6d. each.
NOW READY. THE FIRST VOLUME.
THE BOOK OF ECCLESIASTES.
By SAMUEL COX, D.D.
[Now Ready.
The Epistles of St. James and ST. JUDE. By the Rev. A. PLUMMER, D.D., Master of University College, Durham. [December 30.
The Book of Proverbs. By Rev. R. F. HORTON, M.A. [January 30.
The Book of Leviticus. By the Rev. S. H. KELLOGG, D.D. [In the Press.
The Gospel of St. John. Vol. I. By the Rev. Professor MARCUS DODS, D.D.
The Acts of the Apostles. By the Rev. Professor G. T. STOKES, D.D.
The THREE PREVIOUS SERIES still on Sale at SUBSCRIPTION PRICE.
London: HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster-row.

THE BOOK SALOON,
9, PATERNOSTER ROW (Cheapside End).
ESTABLISHED 1860.
Contains one of the largest Collections of
Evangelical and General Literature,
Conveniently arranged for Selection.
In addition to S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S own Publications, the Works of most of the leading Publishers are kept in stock.
CHRISTMAS BOOKS & CARDS NOW READY
EARLY INSPECTION INVITED.
Hours 9 till 6. Saturdays 9 till 2.
Catalogues Post Free.
9, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, E.C.

"A UNIQUE MAGAZINE."—THE CHRISTIAN.
Monthly, 3d.; by Post, 4d.—Vol. I. (May to December, 1889), 384 pp., 3s.: Parcels Post, 4½d. extra.
 NOW READY, Vol. II. (January to December, 1890), 576 pp. Cloth, Demy 8vo., 5s. The two vols. sent post free, 5s.
THE EVERLASTING NATION.
עם עולם (Am Olam)—"THE EVERLASTING NATION" (ISAIAH xliv. 7).
An International Monthly Journal Relating to the Jewish People.
Edited by Rev. A. A. ISAACS, M.A., Vicar of Christ Church, Leicester.
LONDON: ABARHAM J. LEV & CO. (Office of The Everlasting Nation), 9, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, W.C.
JOHN SNOW & CO., 2, Ivy-lane, Paternoster-row, E.C.

SOMETHING FOR SUNDAY,
Selected by CATHARINE SHAW.
Price One Shilling per Packet. Each Packet complete in itself.
1. Outline Texts for Painting.
2. Happy Hours with the Bible.
3. Echoes from the Bible.
4. Alphabet Texts, for Painting.
5. Messages from Heaven.
6. Gleams of Glory from the Gospels.
7. A Large Thought in a Large Word
8. Scripture Fear Nots.
9. "All Things are Yours." Outline Texts, with Hints for Bible Searching.

THE CHRISTIAN says:—"This series affords the young a very useful employment. Such as fill in the outlines and distribute them for the brightening of the rooms of the sick and poor will assuredly be in the way of learning something of the blessedness of disseminating Divine truth."

SHAW'S HOME SERIES
Price 6d. Each.
NEW AND RECENT ISSUES.
The Pilot's House. By BRENDA.
Sent to Coventry. By M. L. RIDLEY.
Dickie's Attic. By CATHARINE SHAW.
The Town Strike. By AGNES GIBERNE.
At the Grene Griffin. By EMILY S. HOLT.

SHAW'S PENNY SERIES
In Wrapper, with Illustrations.
NEW ISSUES.
Fred the Fogger. By SIDNEY WATSON.
Cora Correllee. By SIDNEY WATSON.
Waste Not, Want Not, and other Stories.
All for the Best. By EMILY S. HOLT.
He who serves God, serves a Good Master.

 J. F. SHAW & CO.'S NEW LIST of BOOKS, suitable PRESENTS, PRIZES, and SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARIES will be sent free on application.

The Best Children's Annual. The Yearly Volume for 1890.
A HANDSOME PRESENT OUR DARLINGS. FOR THE LITTLE ONES.
Edited by Dr. BARNARDO.
Profusely Illustrated with Coloured and Tinted Plates, Pictures on every Page, and Attractive Stories. Handsomely bound in beautifully executed coloured boards price 3s.; or in crimson cloth, gilt and gilt edges (very attractive), price 5s.

THE CHRISTIAN says:—"'OUR DARLINGS,' Dr. Barnardo's magazine, is an admirable treasury of pictures and stories. The monthly parts are always cheery, but the annual volume is specially charming. Both externally and internally this year's volume surpasses any previous issue."

LONDON: JOHN F. SHAW & CO., PUBLISHERS, 48, PATERNOSTER ROW, E.C.

mention the abolition of widow-burnings and infanticide, the British Government has abolished the drowning of the aged, the trampling of imbeciles, the dedication of daughters to the service of a temple—all which practices flourished in the name of religion, and, in the opinion of Mr. Malabari, had a firmer hold than infant marriage upon the minds of the people. The principle of interference has thus been conceded, and there is no valid reason why Indian legislators should not essay the remedy of social abuses which entail lives of demoralisation and degradation upon two millions of Hindoo women.

General Booth's Scheme.

We have reprinted on another page a large portion of Mrs. Grattan Guinness's review of "In Darkest England," which appears in the current number of Regions Beyond. Our space obliges us to omit much of her epitome of the scheme propounded by General Booth, and her appreciative acknowledgment of its excellencies; but we have given at length the mention she makes of many existing agencies which are entirely overlooked in the book under review.

We might go further, and remark that not only are they overlooked, but that when even distantly referred to, it is in a depreciatory way. For example, speaking of the Prison Gate Brigade (p. 179), it is said:—

> If any other organisation, religious or secular, can show similar trophies as the result of such limited operations as ours have hitherto been among the criminal population, I am willing to give place to them. All that I want is to have the work done.

Yet Mrs. Meredith, with her Prison Mission to Women, and Mr. George Hatton with his coadjutor, Mr. William Wheatley, whose annual meeting we recorded last week, led the way long before, and the Salvation Army did but adopt their methods, with results not evidently equal to those which they have achieved.

It might have been thought that no Preventive Home existed, by the apocryphal story related at p. 192, the tendency of which is to discredit and minimise all such work at present in operation.

Mrs. Guinness speaks of the autocratic government which the book again and again insists on (with its corollary of implicit obedience) as a promising feature in the scheme. We confess to a confirmed disbelief in despotic government in any other human hands than those of the coming King, Jesus Christ, the Prince of the kings of the earth. If history has proved anything, it has proved, from the days of Nimrod down to the present Czar, that irresponsible power is but another name for tyranny. It deteriorates the character even of a good man, and enables a bad man to become a fiend. Its ill effect upon the morale of "Headquarters" is best known to those in the inner circle. Time will prove again, as it has already proved in the Papacy, that a system of government which is bad for a State cannot be good for a religious organisation. Infallibility is an indispensable qualification in a despotic governor.

In a book which throughout ignores all other Christian workers and philanthropists, and proposes to do everything upon a system of autocratic rule on the one hand, and of unquestioning obedience on the other, the following sentence (p. 257) comes as a surprise:—

> If Christian workers and philanthropists will join hands to effect this change it will be accomplished, and the people will rise up and bless them and be saved; if not, the people will curse them and perish.

Are all then to become Salvation Army soldiers, or be cursed by the perishing people? for we cannot join hands under this scheme on any other terms than under such rule and rendering such obedience.

One more remark. We regret to find on p. 234 the following half-contemptuous reference to "our fervent Protestants," and semi-apology for Romish convent-prisons:—

> Humanity is composed of two sexes, and woe be to those who attempt to separate them into distinct bodies, making of each half one whole. It has been tried in monasteries and convents with but poor success, yet what our fervent Protestants do not seem to see is that we are reconstructing a similar false system for our young people, without the safeguards and the restraints of convent walls, or the sanctifying influence of religious convictions.

It is difficult to know exactly how fervent Protestants commit this great evil, or what are the mischievous methods here attacked, unless it be the Young Men's and the Young Women's Christian Associations (for which however this stricture scarcely seems intended). And it is a little late in the day for a professedly evangelical and Protestant writer, especially in view of the recent revelations of the Convent of the Buried Alive at Naples, to eulogise "the safeguards and restraints of convent walls," and to connect with them "the sanctifying influence of religious convictions." The restraints of convent walls are the reverse of safeguards from the priests. This is reading history backward with a vengeance. We are, however, entirely at one with the sentiment of the above paragraph in desiring that God's method should be followed, "He setteth the solitary in families," and that our lads and lasses should have every opportunity of healthy and wholesome association. Indeed, the above-named Associations may find something worth learning in this respect.

Mrs. Guinness has mentioned, besides the churches, several Christian and benevolent institutions; it seems invidious to speak of some without naming others, but there is one quiet and patriarchal worker whom all would love to honour—George Holland, of George-yard, whose work is like the waters of Siloah, that flow softly. Then there comes to mind a multitude of names, each of which awakens memories of orphans housed and homed, of girls rescued, or, still better, prevented; of work of every conceivable kind for the glory of God, and for the good of men. Miss Macpherson, Archibald Brown, F. N. Charrington, Henry Hill, William Cuff, Dr. Stephenson, Peter Thompson, Miss Steer, Miss Child, Evans Hurndall, J. W. Atkinson, Christian Community, Strangers' Rest, Seamen's Missions, Mrs. Birt in Liverpool, William Quarrier in Scotland, and innumerable others all through the land.

Positively one's heart aches to think of the noble army of God's servants who serve Him and see his face in the squalid parts of our great cities, who are, for the moment at least, forgotten by many of the churches, and by individual donors accustomed to contribute to their funds.

Perhaps, after all, the one who most needs our sympathy is General Booth himself. We do not forget the heartrending sorrow through which he has passed, and the desolated home to which he returns at night. He has lived in our affection for the thirty years we have known him, before he started on his first independent mission. And our love to him is as warm as ever, and a proof of it is our endeavour to point out the present weaknesses in this movement, and the dangers ahead.

Of these none to us seems greater than the autocracy which is a vital element in the scheme, but which is as diametrically opposed to the Scriptures of truth as it is condemned by all human experience. But extremes meet, and we have a radical of the radicals enthusiastically eulogising in The Review of Reviews a scheme which is based on despotism, and, therefore, bound to fail. When the work of God in the world is really done, it will surely be according to the pattern shown to us in the Book of the New Covenant:—

"That we...speaking the truth in love, may grow up in all things into Him who is the Head, even Christ: from whom all the body, fitly joined together, and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body to the building up of itself in love."

It is the Church which is in God the Father, the body and bride of Christ, which is the light of this dark world, and the salt of this corruptible earth. The savour of that salt is love which cements into unity. "The submerged tenth" will never be raised by a portion of that Church in conjunction with "men of every phase of religious belief and men who profess no religious belief at all." God must come first; the world must be convinced that the Father sent his Son to be its Saviour; and this can only come to pass in accordance with the high-priestly prayer of Jesus—"That they all may be one; as Thou, Father, art in Me, and I in Thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me." A Church thus knit together is God's only instrument for effectively doing his God-work in the world. After all, "Darkest England" dwells not in slums but in mansions; darkest London is not in Whitechapel and Bethnal Green, but in Piccadilly and Pall Mall.

RESCUE WORK.—Throughout the summer and autumn the work of the Society for the Rescue of Young Women and Children has proceeded with unabated energy and with much encouragement. We are now face to face with the winter, with its heavier claims upon our resources and its increasing number of applicants. The cold and damp will intensify the misery and hasten the death of thousands now upon our streets, from which eight poor girls personally sought admission to our Homes within four hours last week. Our funds are quite exhausted, and I plead for a continuance of that liberal support which will enable us to welcome the poor outcast.

C. Stuart Thorpe, Sec.

79, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

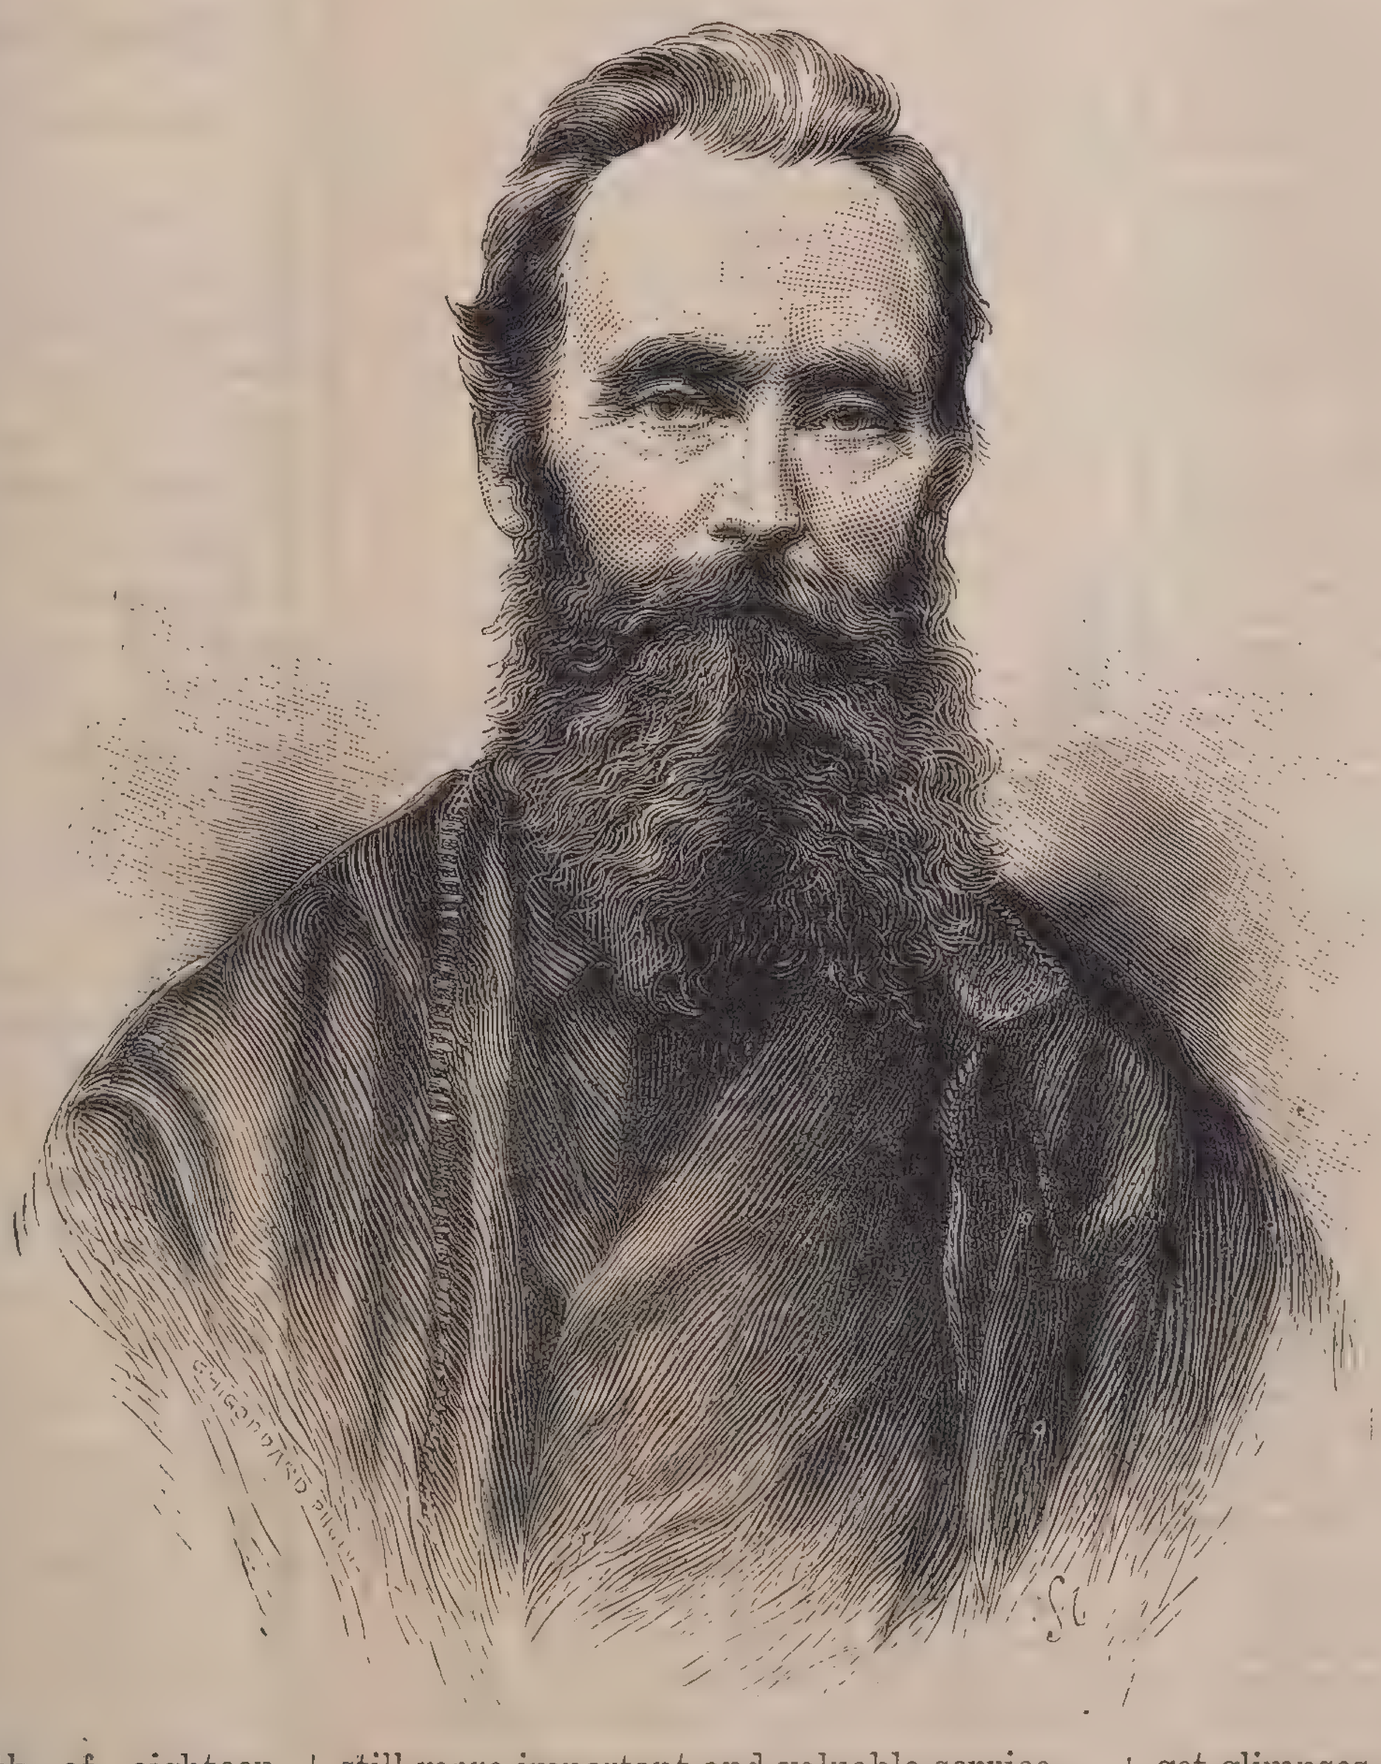
IN DARKEST AMERICA.—A Boston clergyman, who has been preaching on General Booth's book, "In Darkest England," said in his sermon that the great American seat of culture was deliberately breeding a vicious class that bade fair to equal in degradation anything London can show. "During the past week, within five minutes' walk of the pulpit where I now stand, I have visited more than one 'chamber of horrors.' I went into miserable holes, miscalled homes, where, on the coldest day of last week, the windows were broken, no fire, no coal, nothing to eat, little children shivering in rags, and the mother drunk. In these places the beds are often only a pile of worn straw and rags on the floor, covered with a ragged, filthy, vermin-inhabited coverlet."

MR. WILLIAM LETHABY,

Printer and Missionary.

THE good brother whose portrait we present to-day has not lived much in the light of public fame and applause; but he is in the line of the true Apostolic succession. He has sought to emulate the example of the great Apostle of the Gentiles, whose desire was, not to build on another man's foundation, but to go and labour in the regions beyond. We are sorry not to be able to give a portrait of his devoted wife, whose heroic fortitude, shown in circumstances of great and long-continued peril, and whose zeal for the good of those among whom her solitary lot is cast, mark her out as a fit companion for her husband, and as one of the noblest women that this age of missionary revival has produced.



WILLIAM LETHABY was born in the city of Exeter in 1837. His father is described as a strong stern man of the Old Testament order of sainthood; upright and conscientious; who from quite youthful days had been a local preacher with the Wesleyans. When William was a child his mother died, and his father went to London. William was left in Exeter, where he was educated at the Grammar School, and lived with his paternal grandmother. She must have shown great kindness to the motherless boy, for his recollections of her are still very warm and tender. Only the other day, when we spoke to Mr. Lethaby, during his visit to London, of our desire to have his portrait in our weekly gallery, he remarked: "Do not praise me; praise my old grandmother."

Schooling over, the lad went also to London, where he was apprenticed to the calling of a printer, with the well-known firm of Messrs. William Clowes & Sons, Charing Cross, in which establishment his father was confidential manager. When a youth of eighteen, William became a member of the Wesleyan Society at that time worshipping in a chapel in the Waterloo-road, London. He became one of the earnest and active workers in the congregation. He filled the positions of steward and class-leader, and also passed through various offices in the Sunday-school. He devoted much time to visitation of the poor in the courts and alleys with which the neighbourhood abounded; distributing tracts and conversing with the people. So brightly, indeed, did the fire of holy zeal burn, that the not too strong physical frame broke down, and he had to leave London, in order to seek restored health. About the middle of 1866 he removed to Frome, in the county of Somerset, where he held a good position in the printing establishment of Messrs. Butler & Tanner. In the meantime he had married Miss Jane Goodson, a member of a Wesleyan family in London. She too was an out-and-out Christian and an active worker, as class-leader and in other ways. In the country, as in the city, Mr. Lethaby worked at his trade during the week, giving his Sabbath days to Gospel work. Faithful in the spheres in which he found himself, God was preparing him for still more important and valuable service.

In 1873 Mr. Lethaby was able to secure a three months' holiday, which he spent in Egypt and Palestine, in search of recruited health. During his travels he was deeply impressed with the neglected condition of the Holy Land in all matters connected with Christian teaching, and the necessity of doing something was borne in upon him. He heard especially of the spiritual destitution at Kerak, a benighted spot in the land of Moab, east of the Jordan; where the people were said to be exceptionally wicked, and where no Gospel messenger had ever been. The thought framed itself in his mind that he would like to go there and erect a beacon light in the midst of such gross darkness. He returned home, and for a time worked away quietly in his English country home. His health did not prosper, however, and the finger of God once more seemed to point Eastward. A friend, who had for years lived in Palestine, and knew the wants of the country well, encouraged him in this, and at length he resolved to give himself wholly to Christian service in the Holy Land. He relinquished business and home ties and returned to Palestine. His mind being set on the land of Moab, he left Jerusalem, and, with a single companion, started for Kerak, which he did not reach without some stirring experiences with the predatory Beduin that were a foretaste of much that was to follow. Having succeeded in establishing himself in the city with the permission of the Sheikh, he went to Jaffa for the purpose of meeting his wife, who had left England at his request. For four years or more this consecrated couple have lived and laboured in Kerak under conditions and with surroundings that would daunt any but those who have laid all on the altar, even life itself, and are ready to endure every sort of hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ.

A few months since, Mr. Lethaby revisited this country, and had opportunities of telling to various British and Irish audiences something of the work that God has enabled him and his wife to do among the strange sons of Arabia, to whose welfare they have devoted life and daily toil. Mr. Lethaby is an extremely modest, self-effacing man, and does not magnify the trials that he and his partner in life and in good works have had to surmount. It is true we get glimpses of these now and then in the letters that have come from them at intervals and that have been published; but their letters mainly dwell on the brighter side of the picture. Happily, the tidings of their work that have reached this country have induced at least two English travellers to visit Kerak; from their independent and impartial accounts we get a clear view of the daily round of mission life and work at Kerak, and of the vicissitudes that accompany such work. In May, 1889, Major-General Haig met Mr. Lethaby in Jerusalem, and was escorted to his mountain home, being some four days on the way, though the distance is only about ninety miles. From an account he wrote on his return to England we extract the following most interesting details :—

The story of the Mission is simple, if not unique. A man and his wife, with no missionary experience, little knowledge of the language, and no special qualification beyond an ardent love for the people and a large capacity of self-sacrifice, have thrown themselves, in the name of Christ, into this ancient stronghold, entrenched themselves in the respect and affection of the inhabitants, and, though left quite alone, with no promise and not much prospect of re-inforcements, are holding on grimly to the ground they have gained, and beckoning to the Church of Christ for help. I need not here recount the story of the trials they have passed through, the personal violence, robberies, insults, and intimidation of every kind they have been subjected to. These things happily belong now very much to the past; the two missionaries have, to a great extent, lived down opposition, and their work has so far developed as to render further assistance urgently necessary, and to call for increased exertions on the part of friends at home. It is still carried on under peculiar difficulties, due to the isolation of the place, the insecurity and even danger of the communication with Jerusalem and the outside world, and the lawless character of the people; but, on the other hand, there is this great advantage—that the Turk is not there. Kerak is still free, a purely Arab state, though how long it will remain so seems doubtful.

The houses consist of a single room, the flat roof of which is made of short crooked rafters, about nine feet long, resting on rude semi-circular stone arches springing from the floor. The rafters are covered with a foot or two of earth. There are no windows, and a door about five feet by three and a half feet is the sole entrance for both light and air.

The Lethabys live in one of these rude and rather dismal dwellings. There is a small court-yard outside about two feet above the floor level. From this you descend at a jump into the low porch arched over with stone in front of the door, and enter by the latter into what seems at first simply a gloomy dungeon, but which, as your eyes become accustomed to the twilight within, you find is a good big room, with two or three chairs, a very small table, and a few boxes arranged to make a sort of couch, all these being placed near the door for the sake of light. The roof is black with smoke, and though a space about eight feet wide along each side of the room is raised four feet higher than the floor, the darkness there is so thick that you can only dimly guess, and need to be told that these ledges are used for store-rooms and such purposes. Part of one of them curtained off was my bedroom. In this room the Lethabys live, and in the porch and little court-yard outside carry on their school and medical work. The house is situated in the Christian quarter, in the northern part of the town.

But if the houses are gloomy they are cool. The climate is healthy and delightful—Kerak being at an elevation of about 3000 feet above the sea. Both Mr. Lethaby and his wife have better and much stronger health than they ever had in England. Their fare is simple and with little variety in it, consisting of bread, fowls, and eggs; no vegetables, seldom any fruit, and milk and butter during only three months of the year. They have no servant, and all the work of the house is done by Mrs. Lethaby in addition to the mission work proper.

As to the moral and social condition of Kerak, I should say that its most prominent characteristic is utter lawlessness. Mr. Lethaby has again and again been robbed in the most open manner, pulled off his donkey, flung on the ground, his pockets rifled, while the robber knelt upon his chest; and more than once his brave wife has stood between him and the dagger thrusts of some ruffian. I was myself overhauled in the coolest manner one afternoon, when walking with Mr. Lethaby, by an Arab who met us, and who would certainly have appropriated my watch had I not taken the precaution to leave that at Jerusalem. He was fully armed, and fired his gun over my shoulder as a hint of how any resistance would be met.

And now as to the Mission work. Mr. Lethaby is a born schoolmaster. Teaching is his forte and his delight. He has great power of holding the attention, and communicates instruction in a lively and interesting manner, which has great attraction for the young. He has two schools or classes—one, the English class, taught by himself; the other, the Arabic, which he closely watches and superintends. The English class consists of Christian boys only. The Bible is the text-book used. They can read with ease almost anywhere in it, and translate into Arabic. They converse readily in English, and they thoroughly understand Gospel truth, though there is no clear evidence as yet that it has become a living power in the hearts of any of them. What capabilities of good there are in these lads! Here is a seed-plot which, if blessed of God, may furnish men whose lives and labours will bring untold blessings to all Northern Arabia.

The Arabic class consists entirely of Moslem boys. The Sunday-school is another very valuable agency. There are twenty Moslem boys and as many more Christians on the list.

The medical work is very important. All sorts of cases come for help; sword-cuts, gun-shot wounds, accidental injuries, besides ailments of all kinds. The patients are allowed to come whenever they like, from sunrise till dark, and are always attended to at once. It seemed to me that the liberty allowed in this way had been carried to an extreme, involving, as it does, constant interruptions of other work, interruptions even during mealtimes, and leaving no intervals for the rest and quiet which are so necessary to health of body and mind.

But the Lethabys seek to adapt themselves to the whims and habits of the people at every point, that they may win them to Christ. A good many Bibles and portions of Scripture have been sold, as well as given away.

The Moslem school has enabled Mrs. Lethaby to get access to twelve Moslem houses where she conducts evangelistic services. The mothers of the boys are allowed to invite her by turns to their houses for this purpose. They are so pleased with the progress and improvement of their children that they look upon this as a privilege. It is evident that an immense evangelistic work is opening out in this way, if there were only labourers to take it up. The Arabs are nominally Moslem, and seem to have much of the proud contempt for Christians peculiar to that religion, but they are very ignorant, and, I suspect, very lax in their religious performances. If the proper men are sent out the converting power of the Holy Spirit will not be withheld, and we shall see many of these Moabites turning to the Lord.

Another traveller, Mr. Gray Hill, with his wife, visited the Lethabys in the spring of the present year, and, in a book that has just been published,* Mr. Hill gives an equally interesting account of the self-sacrificing endeavours of Mr. and Mrs. Lethaby. He describes Kerak as a den of thieves (as he well might after his own experience of Beduin extortion), and says :—

For four years this hero and heroine lived and laboured amongst the Keraki, being subject to continual insults, threats, and robberies. Three or four weeks before our visit a helper, Miss Arnold, had joined them....Mr. and Mrs. Lethaby are so patient, so simple, so earnest, so brave, and so determined, that we were lost in admiration of their zeal and devotion. The daily perils and annoyances to which they were subjected would be enough to drive away all but those of lion hearts.

Mr. Lethaby has now returned to his post, as our readers already know. During his absence, his wife, and her sole companion, Miss Arnold, bravely held the fort, and carried on the work. In the last printed letter, addressed to her husband, and dated August 7, Mrs. Lethaby tells of constant demands on her strength and skill in treating those who were sick; while Miss Arnold attended to house work and the teaching of the children. Mr. Lethaby had hoped to take back with him some additional workers, but in this hope he was disappointed. We trust enough has been said in this sketch to awaken an increased practical interest in this noble pioneer work among the Beduins of Moab. Mr. Lethaby has thoughts, if God opens up the way, of making Kerak a centre and starting-point for more extended effort for the evangelisation of "Arabia's desert rangers," who dwell or wander in the regions yet further beyond. Friends in this country may be glad to know that the latest information as to this remarkable Mission can be had from Rev. George Piercy, 276, Burdett-road, London, E.

* WITH THE BEDUINS. T. Fisher Unwin.

Threshold Service.—2.

THE WAITING AND WATCHING KORAHITES.

IN 1 Chron. ix. 17 we find the office of the Korahites of the temple described in full. The family service is now completely changed, and instead of bearing on their shoulders the heavy weight of the tabernacle furniture and vessels, the sons of Korah have become the porters, the doorkeepers to the temple. The details so exactly planned by God's command in this chapter were carried out by Solomon in 2 Chron. viii. 14. In Ps. lxxxiv. 10 we find an allusion made to the service of the sons of Korah, which shows how sacred and honourable they considered it to be: "I had rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness," or, as the margin gives it, "I would rather stand at the threshold of the house of my God" (R.V.).

"Stand at the threshold"! Let us consider what that meant to those chosen Levites. Through the gates passed continuously a stream of entering and returning worshippers. On one side stretched the great city, with all its allurements, its traffic, its amusements, and its ceaseless drama of life and death. On the other were the temple-courts, marble-paved, vast, divided one from the other by low-carved screens, and shadowed by the great arcades of Solomon's porch—an immense area, where groups of persons, assembled round the brazen altar or the laver, were dwarfed to the gaze by the great distance. Finally, lifting itself majestically far above all the other buildings of fair Jerusalem, was the temple itself, a glittering mass of gold and white marble, with pinnacles towering loftily into the infinite azure of the Eastern sky.

And in those courts what a scene of activity! Crowds of worshippers thronging round the priests with sacrificial offerings; victims tethered to the posts awaiting their death; Levites hurrying on errands to and from the different chambers in which were stored the instruments of music, the wood, the utensils, and the treasures; priests absorbed in their mediatorial functions, standing between the people and the great Jehovah. Contrast this with the office of the Korahites in all its monotony and restraint, and shall we not wonder greatly that a whole family, composed of a very large number of individuals, should have been permanently and deliberately set apart for the sole purpose (so it seems) of standing still?

"And he gave to every man his work, and commanded the porter to watch" (Mark xiii. 34). What was the porter to watch for? Surely, first of all, for the coming of the king. What eye in all that busy crowd would have been so much on the alert, so disengaged, as that of the Korahite, to hail the first signs of the advent of David's son, as he came in regal progress, surrounded by his servants, to the temple? Assuredly, the watching porter would be the very first to detect the signal of his approach, the very first to bow before him in joyful welcome.

But we must notice another very important point in the office of the Korahites—namely, their habitual separation from each other (1 Chron. xxvi. 1—20). Wherever the lot fell, there was their place, and they had no choice. Apparently some of them never met at their work all their life long. Those at the north gate stayed there till their service days were ended, and never once worked—or shall I not rather say waited?—side by side with those at the south gate. Isolated, with but little scope for energy, confined, put on one side, as it seems in our poor human judgment, the porters served the Lord at the temple thresholds, and passed away into the other life, unknown and unrecognised, without being raised to any higher post, without any change in a life-long destiny.

There are Korahites in God's house to-day. If the temple prefigured mystically the Christ in his sufferings and subsequent glory, assuredly in the non-priestly Levitical service we get a hint of the life-work of the Christian. How many consecrated lives are there not to-day that seem like the threshold-keepers, set on one side, limited down to the smallest amount of activity possible—lives with hardly any outlook, except that of viewing from a distance the great world with its work and want, and the courts of the Church of Christ with its joyous bands of servants! How many surrendered, soul-dedicated Christians are there not, who are laid aside in sickness, poverty, and loneliness, separated from Christian privileges, bound down, perhaps, in totally uncongenial homes, or spending their little strength on every-day duties that never vary, with but little leisure for feeding on God's Word, always kept at their post, overlooked, unknown, or perhaps greatly misunderstood!

There are thousands such; and now, God be praised, here in the story of the sons of Korah is a further message of comfort, not only to the burden-bearers, but to the waiting, watching door-keepers of to-day; a message that explains, in the beautiful Bible fashion of biographical illustration, the spiritual meaning of threshold service, its dignity, and its use.

And therefore, doubtless, these waiting ones will be the very first to welcome the return of the King. Perhaps all of them may not have consciously received, or fully grasped, the truth which is surely and steadily spreading over Christendom, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!". It may not even have been brought before their notice at all, or it may have been presented to them in such guise that they have been perplexed, nay, possibly distressed, at what appears to them to be some new teaching; but surely, surely, if they love the Lord Jesus, if He is the Central Object in their lives, if He is to them indeed a personal Saviour, they will be among those who instantly recognise Him when He comes for his own, when "David's greater Son" comes to the house of God, that is built not of marble and gold, but of "living stones," the real, spiritual temple?

Thank God, then, for the Korahites of to-day, waiting and watching at their thresholds, for the porters have indeed a sacred post.

They also serve
Who only stand and wait.

GERALDINE M. SEYMOUR.

LIFE, LIGHT, AND LOVE.

THE GOSPEL OF JOHN.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

A PSALM OF LIFE.

JOHN III. 6.

BORN! That is true of us all. We were not asked if we would be born, or of whom we would be born. But we awoke gradually from months of almost unconsciousness to find that we had been born. And birth was the gate into life. Having been born, we lived. Through birth we entered the blessed kingdom of life.

But what Life? There are many kingdoms of life, rising one above another. Into which of these were we born. The lowest is the kingdom of vegetable life, with fungus and palm, with lichen and oak, with hyssop and cedar. But our kingdom is higher than this. The next is the kingdom of animal life, separated by an impassable gulf from that beneath it, embracing all living things, from the microscopic organisms of the deep-sea dredgings, or the invisible kingdoms that exist in drops of water, to the noblest forms of creature-life around the throne of God. But our kingdom is higher than this. The next is the kingdom of mind and soul; in which there are the faculty of reason, the rudiments of conscience, the sparkle of wit, the aurora-glory of the fancy, memory as librarian, poetry as minstrel, hope as fresco-painter, love (to use Spenser's exquisite simile) as mother of all. Into this kingdom we were born, when in our first birth we passed into the light of life. If we were to adopt the phraseology of the New Testament, we might call this the kingdom of the flesh, for the flesh is employed in a very wide and special sense, and includes the whole drift of human life, even to its thoughts (Rom. viii. 6, 7). "That which is born of the flesh is flesh."

But above this kingdom there is another. The kingdom of the spiritual and eternal. This is the supreme realm of life, the element and home of God. Our Lord here alludes to it twice in the same breath as "the kingdom of God" (3, 5). The kingdom into which we are born as babes is filled with bright and beautiful things, but it is shut off from this by a gulf as vast as that which severs the vegetable from the animal, or the animal from the moral nature of man. As easily might the water-lily become the spaniel that dived for it, or the spaniel the poet Cowper, who sings his exploit, as that which is born flesh become spirit. As there was no entrance into the kingdom of the flesh-life save by natural birth; so there is no entrance into the kingdom of the spirit-life, save by spiritual birth. Only that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. And this made our Lord so emphatic in repeating his announcement, "Ye must be born again."

Nicodemus was an admirable type of the world of men outside the kingdom of the spirit-life. He believed in God, having no sympathy with the cold infidelity of the Sadducees. He was, probably, like another of the same school, blameless in all the righteousness of the law, and irreproachable in moral character. He would be classed among the high-churchmen of his time. Courtly, thoughtful, inquisitive, willing to consider the claims of any new system, prepared to acknowledge Christ as a teacher, perplexed at spiritual truth, thinking that it was only needful to know in order to be, how apt a type is he of the children of the flesh.

See him as he muffles his face in his cloak, and steals along in the shadows cast by the full Passover moon, startled by his own footfall, fearful lest the watchman on his beat should recognise the magnate of the Jewish Sanhedrim, in the suppliant for entrance at the door of the humble lodging of Jesus of Nazareth. A nervous, timid old man this, defending his friends on general principles; not liking to identify himself too publicly with a dead enthusiast, yet considerate; fonder of asking questions than of arguing points (John iii. 4, 9, vii. 50, 51, xix. 38, 39).

To such a man Christ said, "Ye must be born again." When Christ says must, it is time for us to wake up. He is so gentle, winsome, tender. He is always persuading, inviting, entreating. He so seldom uses the imperative mood. When, therefore, He speaks thus, it becomes us to inquire into the matter of which He speaks so ardently.

I. THE NATURE OF THIS LIFE. — It is "eternal life." This is the epithet perpetually applied to it throughout this chapter and the writings of the beloved Evangelist. Our Lord so first described it (15). The Holy Ghost repeats the words as though to stamp them on our minds (16, 36, iv. 14, 36, vi. 54, x. 28, xii. 25; 1 John v. 13). Surely they cannot simply mean everlastingness, the duration of a never-ending existence. To have that alone were to gain nothing by our second birth. Nay, it would repeat the mistake of the old Greek myth, in which the goddess obtained for her lover immortal life, but forgot to claim also immortal youth, so that his years became an insupportable anguish. "Eternal" refers rather to the quality than the quantity of that life, and tells us that it is altogether removed from the conditions of space and time, and partakes of the blessed, timeless, glorious, spiritual nature of God.

This life is never shadowed by dread of condemnation (18); it suns itself in the very light of God's face (20); it does the truth (21); it finds its true nest and home in the very heart of God (13).

II. THE SOURCE OF THIS LIFE.—God. "The Father hath life in Himself" (v. 26). To use the sublime language of the Psalmist, "In Thee is the fountain of life." All life finds its source and origin in the nature of God, as the verdure of an oasis in the desert, or of a valley among the hills, is entirely due to the presence of a perennial fountain, which makes music through the years. Drain away the fountain, and the glade slowly fades into desert. Blot out God, and the universe becomes as devoid of life as the moon is.

From the firefly that flashes through the forest glade to the firstborn sons of light, the seraphs, who burn in ceaseless adoration before the throne, all the life that exists throughout the universe is due (if I may say so) to the spray of the Divine fountain of life. And this is specially true of spiritual life. Underived, independent of supply, original and ever-flowing, all spirit-life has its centre, home, and fountain-head in God.

III. THE STORAGE OF THIS LIFE.—If we may use the words, the Father stored his life in the human nature of our Lord. It dwelt in Him in its fulness, and it pleased the Father that it should be so. By a deliberate act, He gave to the Son to have life in Himself. And so it came to be that the life was manifested, and men saw it, and bore witness of that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested to them (Col. ii. 9; John v. 26; 1 John i. 2).

Of course we know that, as the second person of the ever-blessed Trinity, our Lord Jesus shared from before all worlds in the inherent life of God; but when He became the Son of Man, it was the Father's special bestowment that stored up in his human nature all the marvellous life of which we speak. It was as if our God yearned to make us partakers of his Divine nature; but, since the fountain-head was in his own being, He knew that it would be inaccessible to us, and so, in tender pity and condescension, brought it within our reach in the human nature of our blessed Lord.

Who need be afraid of Jesus? What little child may not venture to his arms? what penitent not kiss his feet? what trembling one not lose all terror in his presence? Thank God that He has put his best gift on so low a shelf that the weakest and smallest of his children may go and take it for themselves.

But it was not enough simply to store the life in Jesus. It had to be made accessible to us through his death, resurrection, and ascension. There is, therefore, special significance in the repeated references of this chapter to the Son of Man being lifted up on the cross (14, 16). That precious death was the full, perfect, and sufficient sacrifice and satisfaction for the sin of the whole world, through which alone our sins can be pardoned, or we accounted worthy to stand in the presence of the holy God. But, at the same time, it made Him able to pass on to others that life which was in Him, and, as He went through death into resurrection, He became the author of eternal life to all who are united to Him by faith.

He was filled, that out of his fulness we might be filled. He died, that we might live. Having overcome the sharpness of death, He opened the kingdom of heaven to all believers.

IV. THE MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION FOR THIS LIFE.—"Born of water and of the Spirit." All the world of Judæa was ringing with talk of John's baptism. At this very time he was baptising in Ænon, because there was much water there. This then was our Lord's point, when He spoke of water. He clearly referred to the work of his Forerunner, and all that it meant of repentance and confession of sin. It was through John that men were to come to Himself. The porter must open the gate of the true fold. And the Lord Jesus would not for a moment allow this man, ruler though he were, to escape the wholesome ordeal of taking his place with every other sinner on the Jordan banks, and of thus becoming one of the people prepared for the coming of the Lord. In every soul there has to be a process analogous to that signified by the baptism of John. First the Baptist, then the Saviour. First the baptism of water, then the baptism of fire. First repentance, then remission of sins. Born of water and of the Spirit.

But at the most this is only part, and, though necessary, the less part, of the process. We need not only to turn from the old life, but to become possessed of the new. And this is the express function of the Holy Spirit. He is significantly called "the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus" (Rom. viii. 2).

Faith is receptiveness. Those that believe are those that receive (i. 12). There is no spot in all the universe where faith is so easily or so constantly called into operation as at the cross of Jesus. When the soul beholds that mystery of love, the Son of Man dying for its sins, uplifted on the cross, as the serpent on the pole, it yearns after Him with a passion which is God-begotten, it cannot refrain from faith, it opens towards Him the deepest recesses of its being, and that is the blessed moment of the impartation of the germ of the new life through the agency of the Holy Spirit. We may not say which precedes the other. They are simultaneous, as the simultaneous movement of each spoke of a wheel, or as a child's first cry with its first breath.

We may not have been conscious of this gracious overshadowing of the Holy Spirit, our hearts too occupied with love and penitence and ecstasy to think of aught else than of the death which atoned for sin and made us nigh to God; but in after years we must look back to that moment as the birthday of our eternal life, the hour when we passed from death into life, and became alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Ah, august and glorious experience, never to be forgotten, never to be excelled in all that may transpire through untrodden ages, by which we were translated from death into life, from the power of darkness into the kingdom of God's dear Son!

V. THE LAWS OF THAT LIFE.—(1) Mystery. As the wind (8). As our Lord was speaking with this inquirer, "trusting Himself to Him," as He did not to the majority of those who sought Him (ii. 24), the night-breeze may have passed over the city, and stirred the vine-leaves as they drooped over the casement, and breathed in through the open window. "Mark this wind," said our Lord; "how mysterious! You cannot see, though you can feel, it. You know not from what scenes it comes, or to what it hurries; its laws and ministries; why it is now a hurricane, and again a zephyr; why, now laden with the softness of the western sea, and again hot and feverish with the fire of the desert waste—of all this you are ignorant; and do you think that you will be more able to understand the nature or laws of that new life of which I speak?"

It must be always so. No kingdom can understand another kingdom. You must be born into life to know life. It is only by what you experience of life in yourself that you can judge of it in others. This is the contention which the Apostle enforces in words that burn with undimning flames, though almost two thousand years have elapsed since they were first penned: "The things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God" (1 Cor. ii. 11-16.)

Those, therefore, who hear us talk of the new birth may well marvel, as did Nicodemus, and it is almost useless to try to make these mysteries plain. As well ride on the wind, or follow the rush of the tide as it drives its foaming steeds up the estuary. But we who have it know it. We feel its throb, its pulse, its ecstasy. We are conscious of its parentage in the nature of God. We hear its music as it rises up as a fountain towards eternity.

Thank God that, with all its mystery, the wind is all-pervasive. No lung so consumptive, no mine so deep, no orifice so small, no court so fœtid, but it will enter to purify and heal. So, unless we seal ourselves hermetically against Him, the Divine Spirit will enter our natures, ridding them of the miasma which has gathered there, sowing the germs of life, and inspiring us with the very nature of God.

(2) Knowledge.—Though we do not come to the Lord Jesus primarily as Teacher, yet we cannot receive the new life without turning naturally to Him as its Teacher and Guide. Come to Him as Teacher and you only marvel. Come to Him as Saviour, and, being saved, you learn, whilst sitting at his feet, not earthly things only, but heavenly (12).

It is passing wonderful how soon the newborn babe begins to understand things which baffle the wise and prudent. That which the intellect cannot receive is welcomed by the loving humble spirit. We receive the Spirit of God, and we come to know the things that are freely given to us of God. They are revealed by the Spirit, who searches the deep things of the Divine nature. Oh for more time to spend over these translucent but infinite depths, beneath the teaching of such a Master!

(3) Growth.—As the Baptist said of the Lord, using the third must of this chapter, "He must increase, I must decrease." This also is true of the Christ-life within. It is destined to grow and increase, from strength to strength, from grace to grace, till Christ is perfectly formed in us.

The growth of the Divine life is in exact proportion to the denial of the self-life. Learn to decrease, i.e., to say NO to self, not in the great crises of life only, but always and everywhere. Bear about in the body the dying of the Lord Jesus. Learn what it means to be crucified with Christ in daily acts of unselfish love and pity. Mortify the deeds of the body in the power of the Eternal Spirit, and, step by step, as the marble wastes the image will grow, and as the mould is broken the true ideal will emerge in all the native beauty of eternal life.

SCIENCE FOR WORKING LADS.—Dr. Gerard Smith concluded on Friday a most interesting and instructive course of science talks to working lads, illustrated by lime-light views, at the Bethnal Green Free Library. The subjects dealt with were "Insect life," "Plant life," and "How rocks are made." The lads appeared to appreciate the kindness of Dr. Smith most thoroughly, and a hope was expressed at the last "talk" that they would follow up the instruction received by attending the library.

ST. LUCIA, one of the West India islands, has a population of some 42,000. Here the active secretary of the Bible Society's Auxiliary is Mr. R. P. Cropper, who sends recently a large order for Scriptures. "During the past two years," Mr. Cropper says, "there has been a considerable immigration of labourers, artisans, and others from the neighbouring islands; and, as they are principally Protestants, I expect there will be a brisk demand for Bibles. The sales have recently been specially good, and the contributions liberal"

The Gospel in Spain.—4.

BY J. E. BUDGETT MEAKIN.

CADIZ DISTRICT.

IN order to thoroughly understand and appreciate the conditions under which evangelistic work in Spain is carried on, it is necessary to bear in mind something of the history of the country for the last quarter of a century. Up to 1868 it was almost impossible to sow the seed broadcast, for Rome was triumphant, and religious freedom was unknown. In that year, however, a political revolution was the means of bringing about the establishment of nominal religious toleration. This was the first successful attempt to cast off the grievous yoke of Popery, which had so ground down the people for many a long century, and it was not to be hoped that it would be entirely satisfactory.

It was not Protestantism the agitators for religious freedom sought, for they knew not, and few know even yet, what that is. What they wanted was to be free from the tyranny of Rome, and with a mighty effort they burst their bonds and seized upon their erstwhile persecutor's goods. As many a new-freed slave has done before, they did not know how to use their liberty. Weak and emaciated from a long period of confinement, the leaders of Spanish thought have paused bewildered at the roadside; and, instead of pushing on to perfect safety, they have sunk into the slumber of indifference. Those who rush to the other extreme of atheism are few, comparatively; but a large number of those who feel they must have something to lean upon, failing to be influenced by the feeble efforts of Protestantism, have relapsed into

THE ARMS OF THE PRIESTCRAFT.

But such thraldom as was exercised by the Church of Rome in Spain was not to be got rid of in a day, and it is useless to hope for its temporal power to be any further broken, except by the conversion of the majority of its dupes. Spain has looked to the Protestants for help, and has, to some extent, been willing to listen to their teachings; but at the time when it was most ready to receive the Gospel, its messengers were not forthcoming in sufficient numbers—nor are they even now—and it is hard work trying to overtake the tide. At the outset, so much curiosity was shown in the new movement that the results of the work were greatly overestimated, and after a time there came a season of discouragement, when men of little faith began to think the task a hopeless one, and missions were ruthlessly abandoned.

In Seville to-day, there is a building formerly a Protestant church, which has recently been sold to the Jesuits, of all people on the face of the earth. When I passed its doors I was assured that it was still a Gospel church, but refused to believe it when I saw the pictures at the door. Afterwards, when I met with better informed persons, I found that its abandonment was looked upon as a distinct retreat, though its meagre congregation had found refuge in a private house in another district. It is a downright disgrace to us Christians that such work should thus be cramped and mutilated for lack of workers and funds. Here is a people veritably without a shepherd, good or bad, for they have learned the treachery of the bad. Shall not we who have the privilege of being able to do so spare no pains to bring them into the fold of the Good Shepherd?

In the south-west corner of Spain, in the provinces of Cadiz and Seville, quite a cheering work of grace is steadily progressing, and it did me good to visit all but one of the stations in that district. In Cadiz itself labours Rev. Rafael Blanco, supported by the Spanish Evangelisation Society,* assisted by a master and mistress for the two schools under his superintendence in his house. By removing a couple of inner walls, and making a side entrance from another street, a very nice little chapel has been formed, wherein two services and a Sunday-school are held each Sabbath, with Bible-classes on Monday, and evening service on Thursday. On Wednesday Don Rafael crosses the bay to the outpost of Puerto Real, where a service is held in a large room of a private house, furnished with benches and a reading-desk. Those who attend these services are mostly of the very poor.

Close to Cadiz is the station of San Fernando, where the workers are of special interest. Don Angel B. Fernandez was once a Romanist priest, and his wife a nun. They were formerly supported by the Scotch Presbyterian Church; but some years ago that body gave up work in Spain. But their Irish brethren stepped into the gap, and now maintain most of what were originally Scotch missions, receiving, however, an annual contribution from Scotland.

Beyond Puerto Real lies Puerto Santa Maria, of Armada fame, and there is being effectively carried on by Rev. William Moore, M.A., superintendent of the whole foreign work of the Spanish Evangelisation Society. Mr. Moore is principal of a Missionary Training College for the theological and general preparation of Spanish pastors and schoolmasters. At present the youths under instruction number twelve, and Mr. Moore is assisted in certain subjects by Mr. Blanco of Cadiz, and Rev. José Viliesed of Jerez, who come over on the appointed days. From the last report issued—printed on the premises—I quote the following:—"To show the need of trained men, it may be sufficient to state that for some time past one of our schools has been closed, and another kept open by the pastor becoming teacher, for want of qualified schoolmasters. To supply this crying need with God-fearing and efficient men, we ask our Christian friends to continue to help us with their means and their prayers....The three theological students are already taking an active part in evangelistic work."

A MOST IMPORTANT WORK

Here, indeed, is what seems to me one of the most valuable branches of the work, and one which should be unstintedly supported. However much good English labourers may do in this field, the need here, as everywhere, is for sons of the country, brethren of the people; and the most valuable service English or other foreign helpers can render is to train and equip such for their work. I cannot too strongly recommend this branch to the prayers and sympathies of all who may be drawn to take an interest in shepherdless Spain. Shepherds are what the people lack, and here is a means of supplying them. As a question of providing mere secular and religious education, this class of agency will be further considered, together with other methods, in a subsequent paper.

Unfortunately my visit to this interesting station fell during the summer holidays, when Mr. Moore and his charges were away; but Mr. Viliesed, whom I found in charge of the premises, gave me some valuable information concerning the work, and very kindly accompanied me to the next station, Jerez—whence the famous sherry—his own home.

Here is a substantial church built by the U.P. Church of Scotland in 1874, when the landlords of the place combined not to let premises to the Mission. It is now in the hands of the Irish Presbyterians. Adjoining it are boys' and girls' schools, once filled, but now suffering sadly from the erection of Romanist schools in the same street, the workers at which meet and question the children as they leave the Protestant schools, and visit their parents with inducements and threats. Gospel work has been going on here in the same hands since January, 1861; but from various causes, as elsewhere, while the influence has been good, the fruits have been comparatively small. One great difficulty in all these small places is the power the large employers of labour have over the inhabitants, with one or two notable exceptions, exercised in opposition to evangelistic effort. To a large proportion of the working classes, attendance at Protestant services means dismissal by their Romanist or indifferent masters, and those who do manage to retain their posts while in fellowship with the evangelicals, find it almost impossible to do so when their conscience forbids Sunday labour.

But an obstacle which is much more deplorable, met with almost everywhere where there are a number of British residents, is that raised by the lives and examples of those nominal Protestant Christians whom the native mind cannot, without instruction, distinguish from the followers of Christ. When they see the rich and influential whom they take to be members of the religion of the Gospel teachers openly profaning the Sabbath by their horse-racing after church, and patronising the bull-ring in company with their clergyman, not to mention unconcealed practice of sins most strongly condemned in the Bible, what deductions can they make? From what I have seen, read, and heard of missionary effort, I have learnt that one of the chief obstacles to the spread of the Gospel is the example of professing Christians, and this is realised abroad to a far greater extent than at home. It is, therefore, after all a blessing to the work among the natives of the country that the line of demarcation should be as distinct as possible, and it is far better that the English residents should never enter the church, unless prepared to receive the Gospel, than that they should do so as a matter of form. Yet they should not be left to themselves, and a grand opportunity to aid foreign mission work without much knowledge of strange tongues lies among our fellow-countrymen abroad, who seldom or never hear the message of salvation.

Cordova, September.

---

* In a later paper of this series particulars will be given of all the Gospel agencies at work in Spain.

FACTORY GIRLS IN DUNDEE.—A meeting, under the auspices of the London Factory Helpers' Union, was held in Dundee last week, when Miss Meredith Brown explained the work of the Society in London, and suggested that a branch should be formed in Dundee. A committee was appointed to consider the best means of helping the female workers by starting Evening Homes or otherwise, and, further, to consider the propriety of forming a branch of the Union in the city.

ORPHAN HOMES OF SCOTLAND.—Mr. W. Quarrier, of Glasgow, has received from a friend an offer of £5000 to build the new school the Homes at Bridge of Weir are in need of, and to be erected in memory of his wife. Mr. Quarrier writes:—Our hearts are full of thankfulness to our loving heavenly Father for this practical expression of generous sympathy on behalf of the suffering orphan and fatherless little ones of our land. We have no doubt the additional houses still required to complete the group of Homes and enable us to rescue 700 new children every year, as well as house 1400 annually, will be sent in good time."

AMONG SOLDIERS AT LUCKNOW.—Times of refreshing are reported among the second battalion of the Scottish Rifles at Lucknow. Rev. J. Nelson, acting chaplain, Church of Scotland, writes: "The Dasebra meetings, which have been compared to Mildmay and Keswick, were not attended by so many troops as would otherwise have been the case owing to the prevalence of cholera. Rev. E. C. Solomon, Wesleyan chaplain, and myself arranged to hold meetings in the garrison prayer room; the result was that numbers of men decided for Christ every night. The Soldiers' Christian Association, which had only a membership of six, has risen to thirty-two. About a month ago three or four of the Christian men started a noon prayer-meeting, which is now attended by from fifteen to twenty daily. I shall be pleased to receive a supply of suitable pictorial tracts or periodicals for the Hospitals. I also solicit the prayers of your readers on behalf of our work." Mr. Nelson's address is 33, Peel-road, Cantonments, Lucknow.

The Riches of His Grace.

About three months ago there was shown into my room one afternoon a crippled boy, painfully hobbling on crutches, with a little stock of match-boxes slung round his neck. As he stood, breathing heavily, and very volubly pouring out the tale of his wrongs and pains, I felt he was a dying lad, and I offered him a bed here, that he might be spared any more buffetings, and end his brief time at least in such peace and comfort as it was in our power to bestow.

His distressing and humbling history I must not expose. I sadly draw the veil over it, and only wish I could exorcise its ghoulish features from my own memory. Suffice it to say, he was an utterly homeless waif, like his brother, whom we had sent to Canada two years ago. Hospitals had treated his case with all their skill and care; shelters and tramps' lodging-houses had given him a refuge from the stormy seas of life on the streets of London. How he gasped for every breath, and wiped the faintness from his brow! Death was already heralded in his pale face, and, as he was helped up to our sick-room, I gladly threw up my window to catch such fresh air as Gravel-lane affords.

He had been a Sunday-school scholar from the time he could toddle to the infants' class. Instead of yielding to the kindly influences of Gospel teaching, he steeled his heart, and became a bitter enemy of the cross of Christ, heaping blasphemy upon the Saviour's name, and scorn upon his servants who patiently sought to win his soul. He had an intellect quite above the average, a lively imagination, and much force and facility in speech—in short, the elements of a very dangerous and mischievous individuality, when uncontrolled by moral or religious principle. So shocking were his sentiments and utterances when lying very ill in one of the hospitals that some of his Sunday-school friends had ceased to visit him.

His physical state was distressing. One leg amputated, fearful abscesses, spinal disease, dropsy, and a mortal internal complaint—"No soundness in it." But, oh! how sore it grieved us to see the spark of life faintly flickering in that wasted frame, and to think of his reckless, impenitent spirit.

Often we looked at him and yearned over him, and one and another felt we COULD BUT PRAY FOR HIM.

One Sunday evening I took a little service for the four boys in the sick-room, and spoke from 2 Kings v. 1: "He was a leper"; 14: "He was clean."

We had a little talk together afterwards. All four confessed the truth of the first clause, but only the other three could testify that they knew the cleansing power of the precious blood of Christ applied to them personally.

My heart was burdened for him. I felt God had purposes of sovereign mercy towards him, and that the prayers of many were heard—"O that Ishmael might live before Thee."

About a fortnight afterwards it was my solemn duty to tell him that the "beginning of the end" was come—at most there was only a few days and nights between him and eternity. It was a surprise to him; he thought he would get better probably, but he exclaimed at once how glad he was that he had some days ago told the nurse, who watched him so tenderly and dealt with him so faithfully, that he had come to the feet of Jesus. He had made her promise not to tell anyone, for he mistrusted himself, and was afraid in a painful and unguarded moment he might bring dishonour on the holy name of Christ. In our conversation I felt he was truly sheltering himself in Christ as the ark of his salvation, but was deeply dissatisfied with himself, and feeling the inevitable conflict between "the strong man" and "the stronger than he." From the case of the dying thief, I tried to show him a parallel to his own case—an evil-doer, blasphemer come to his latest hour, repenting of his sin, confiding in the Saviour. He could not take a step, could not even put forth his hand, bound in helplessness to the cross; however, he could move his lips, and before the multitude confesses Him "Lord." From that moment the dying boy calmly, yet earnestly, in even the worst paroxysm of pain or the dreariest spell of weary tossing, bore unshaken testimony to redeeming grace. In the still night watches the nurse in attendance could hear him softly singing—

Oh! each time draw me nearer,
That soon the come may be
Nought but a gentle whisper
To one quite close to thee.

His witnessing over, a letter asking forgiveness written, a little sum of money he had saved towards his passage to join his brother in Canada left to the Home—nought remained but to wait for the release. About ten o'clock, two or three nights afterwards, a few minutes after we had left him, he just sighed away his latest breath.

There are many facts in this case I must not allude to. I only wish to magnify the tender pity of our gracious God in dealing so mercifully with this whilom rebellious, blaspheming, cripple match-seller. I can but say from the depths of my heart, "Thank God—thank God." A life spent for this one case only would be a well-used life.

J. W. C. Fegan.

The Boys' Home, 95, Southwark-street, S.E.

BEDFORD INSTITUTE.

The annual meeting of the Bedford Institute and Home Mission Association was held on Thursday night, last week, at Devonshire House, Bishopsgate-street. Mr. George Cadbury (of Birmingham) presided.

The report stated that the Sunday morning breakfasts had been continued, and, in view of the large number of men who attended, had led to the making of arrangements by which they could be put in the way of honest work. The rescue work for females had shown evidence of good results, and a medical mission, intended for the very poor, had been established under the auspices of the East-end agency. In the First Day Schools and in temperance work good results had been achieved, and a very satisfactory report was made of the work at the mission centres in Hart's-lane, Ratcliff, Deptford, Clerkenwell, and Bunhill-fields, the approximate number of persons more or less frequently attending the meetings being 10,544, as compared with 9696 in the previous year.

The Chairman said they were not fulfilling their Lord's command when they simply held the fort, it was their duty to attack the entrenchments of the foe and endeavour to draw others into that worship which was a living protest against the priestcraft and ritualism which had for centuries held the Church in bondage and concealed from the eyes of men the glorious truths of the Gospel.

Addresses dealing with the work of the Institute and Mission were given by Mr. Samuel Gurney Sheppard, Mr. William C. Braithwaite, Mr. Wilson, Mrs. Nicholson, and others.

HOUSE OF REST.—The first monthly meeting was held in the New House, in Finchley-road, on Friday, and the commodious pillar-room was found to be admirably suited to the purpose. In the afternoon Rev. W. Fuller Gooch gave an earnest spiritual address, in which he combated the increasing dangers of the times. Many petitions for personal blessing, and for Christian work, with glad notes of thanksgiving were afterwards offered. In the evening Mrs. Reader Harris spoke to an interested gathering.

A MISSION AT TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

A ten days' mission has been conducted by Mr. W. R. Lane, for the Y.M.C.A. of this place. Mr. Lane was well known in the town, this being his second mission for the Y.M.C.A. since its formation, two and a-half years ago. On this occasion the Great Hall was taken for the whole of the meetings, and much preparation, by prayer, had been made.

Notwithstanding the very severe weather that prevailed during the greater part of the mission, the meetings were, on the whole, very well attended. The afternoon Bible-readings were instructive and most helpful to Christians. Many expressed the blessing they had received by attending the early prayer-meetings at 7.15 a.m. On Sunday afternoon a special service for men was held, which was attended by about 500, a very large proportion being young men. This meeting was helpful, and resulted in manifest blessing. The hall was packed to its utmost capacity on each Sunday evening, and much blessing attended Mr. Lane's address on Herod, on the last of these evenings. The evangelistic services were continued each evening, closing on Tuesday, December 2.

The mission was, perhaps, remarkable for the great blessing received by the young women of the town, God thus setting his seal to the committee's decision to let all participate in the privilege of attending the meetings. In house of business the young men and women were much blessed.

I cannot do better than send you in closing an extract from a letter I received this morning from a middle-aged shop assistant in the town enclosing five pounds towards the expenses. This one had long attended the various meetings of the Y.M.C.A., and has been the subject of the members' efforts and prayers. He says "I truly thank my heavenly Father for the blessed change that occurred within me on Tuesday night (Dec. 2nd), the unspeakable joy of heavenly assurance. As a small tribute of gratitude, I hereby enclose a donation of five pounds; were it a hundred it would be insignificant compared to the happiness I now enjoy. I cannot describe the mortal anguish endured day and night from Sunday to Tuesday night. Thank God the burden is gone!" When God hears and answers prayers like this shall we not take courage and go forward, always remembering our motto text, "Not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit saith the Lord of hosts." Arthur C. Tessier, Hon. Sec.

RAILWAY MISSION.—Two public meetings in connection with this Mission were held in the Brighton Dome, on December 3. Interesting addresses were given by Mr. Gates, Mr. Howe, Rev. E. L. Ruxby, Rev. J. B. Figgis, Rev. E. A. Stuart and others, including many railway-men. There are 1500 railway-men in Brighton, and Mrs. Gates stated that she has an average attendance of 3[illegible] at her Sunday afternoon Bible-class. The men contribute largely to Home and Foreign Mission work. Mrs. Howe preaches earnestly for lady workers amongst the men on the South African lines, who are almost entirely deprived of religious privileges. Rev. E. A. Stuart appealed to railway men present never to be ashamed of the religion of Jesus Christ.

THE "ASILES JOHN BOST," at Laforce, Dordogne, are a grand monument of Christian benevolence, and deservedly enjoy the sympathy and support of all friends of French Protestant effort. The Homes are nine in number, and, as is well-known, occupied by different classes of inmates, according to sex or age, and whether orphans or sufferers from mental or bodily infirmity. The arrangements are excellent throughout, and uniformly conducive to the comfort of the inmates, who last year numbered over five hundred. It has been found needful to replace "Bethesda"—the Home for Blind and Imbecile Young Women—by a new building. This has for some time been known to be needful, and now the proposal has been placed before the friends of the work, in the hope that the undertaking may speedily be carried through, at a cost of 200,000 francs, by means of funds specially contributed.

For the Young.

A LITTLE SERMON FOR LITTLE PEOPLE.

Come; for all things are now ready."—LUKE xiv. 17.

D you ever think that this is a real invitaon, and not just a story? All through the ble the invitation is repeated over and over many different ways. Jesus is so much in rnest about it, and is so anxious for us all to me, that He doesn't send one formal little vitation, and then leave us to accept or not, we see fit, as we would be very apt to do if e were giving a party. He knows it will be e grandest and best thing for us that ever as planned; and He knows, too, that we do ot fully realise its importance, and so He eeps urging and repeating it all the way rough the Bible:—

"Come; for all things are now ready." He that cometh to Me shall never hunger." Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are eavy laden, and I will give you rest." Him hat cometh to Me I will in no wise cast out." And the Spirit and the Bride say, Come. nd let Him that heareth say, Come. And let im that is athirst come."

Think how you would feel if you should make party for your school-mates, and should go to reat trouble and expense to entertain them, nd at the last minute one after another should end in some flimsy little excuse like these: My new dress isn't done, so I can't come;" r, "I am going berrying that afternoon;" or, We have a new swing, or croquet set, so we an't come." Do you think you would feel like sking them again? Wouldn't you feel as if hey didn't deserve any more kindness from ou? But when we refuse the Lord's invitaion we are far less deserving. There are often ood excuses for not attending parties, but there ever was a good excuse for not becoming a Christian. But Jesus says, "Do good to them hat despitefully use you," and then Himself ets us the example. No matter how bad we have been, no matter how many times we have refused Him, He still says, "Come." Did you ever think how many ways He has of urging you? Some time, perhaps, someone has talked to you about being Christians, and living as God wants you to live. He was urging you then through one of his messengers. Sometimes, perhaps when you are all alone, you get to thinking of these things, and you say, "I ought to be a Christian; I know I ought to be a better girl or boy." That is the Holy Spirit urging you to come. Or sometimes you read something that sets you to thinking seriously. That is another of God's messengers. I know how you feel about it; you think, "What will my friends say? they will laugh at me, and I never can go through with it if I begin it." But go right on with it, and never mind what people say. That is taking up your cross, and you will find it much easier than you thought.

In the first place, ask the Lord's help to keep you faithful; and whenever anyone laughs or sneers at you just stop and think, "It is for Jesus' sake. This is nothing compared to what He bore for me."

In the next place, you will find that not nearly as many of your friends will sneer at you as you thought. Some of the ones you are the most afraid of will respect you more than ever, though they may not say so, and who knows but you may influence them for good?

Lastly, a great many will give you hardly more than a passing thought, for we are all apt to think we are of more importance than we really are, and you will be sure to find Christian friends to help and encourage you. And better than all else, Jesus will never forget any trouble you may have to endure for his sake. There are many beautiful promises in the Bible for those who own him. Here is one: "He that will confess me before men, him will I confess before my Father which is in heaven." Just think what honour and happiness that will be to have the Lord of glory say, "This is one of my disciples. His sins are all forgiven; they must be remembered no more."

"Come, oh come," the Master calleth,
"Leave the world and come to Me.
Come, ye sick, and come, ye weary,
Healing find on Calvary's tree.
Soon will fade thine earthly day,
Night is coming fast;
Come to Me, where peace and joy
Will for ever last.

"Come, for all things now are ready,"
Calls the Master lovingly;
"Come from highway, lane, and hedgerow,
Come this day and feast with Me;
Come, ye weary, lame, and blind,
Come to Me and rest;
Come, and strength and healing find,
Be for ever blest.

"Come, oh come," the tender Saviour
Calls, and waits so patiently.
Who will heed the call, and hasten
To his service joyfully?
Think, O soul, what it has cost
This pardon full and free;
Death, the anguish of the lost!
All for love of thee.

CHRISTMAS ANTICIPATIONS.

Tune—"Huntingtower."

On your Christmas tree, Nellie,
Gifts I'll hang for thee, Nellie.
Garments rare, a queen might wear,
With diamonds flashing fire, Nellie.

Grandeur cannot bless, mother,
Heal the heart's distress, mother;
Spread for me, on the Yule tree,
The white for my last dress, mother.

Drive such thoughts away, Nellie!
Cease so much to pray, Nellie;
Yuletide bell shall find you well,
The doctors know and say, Nellie.

Doctors don't agree, mother;
Christ's the one for me, mother—
He has come to take me home,
And soon his face I'll see, mother.

Nay, you must not die, Nellie!
Christmas joys are nigh, Nellie;
Suitors grand shall seek your hand,
And gloomy dreams shall fly, Nellie.

At the Christmas-tide, mother,
On the heavenly side, mother,
With the King of Bethlehem
I hope to stand as bride, mother.

J. K.

Donemana, Ireland.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Dec. 14, Isa. xxix. 13—24; Mon., Dec. 15, Isa. xxx. 8—21; Tues., Dec. 16, Isa. xxxii. 1—20; Wed., Dec. 17, Isa. xxxiii. 13—24; Thurs., Dec. 18, Isa. xxxv. 1—10; Fri., Dec. 19, Isa. xxxviii. 1—8; Sat., Dec. 20, Isa. xxxviii. 9—22.

MR. NEWTON JONES last week conducted a mission for young people at Pembroke Dock, arrangements having been perfected by the local Sunday-school Union. The ministers of the town gave generous and hearty co-operation. Singing bands going through the streets and thorough visitation resulted in good meetings, at which the Spirit of God was manifested in the conversion of souls.

A HINT FOR CHRISTMAS.—Having seen the paragraph in THE CHRISTIAN about unnecessary eating and drinking at Christmas, may I suggest a further plan by which, with the consent of all concerned, we elders may deny ourselves and teach our children the lesson. Instead of giving presents all round, each one wraps up in separate papers the amount of money that they would have spent on someone else in presents, and on Christmas morning, at breakfast, puts it on the plate of the person for whom the present was intended. All the papers are opened, and the money put in one central plate, counted, and sent off to some charity. I know one family that does this, and the amount is generally about a pound. The members of our families sometimes get presents from other sources, and might deny themselves thus in order to help others less privileged. T. F.

PECKHAM.—A good work is being carried on here in one of the poorer districts of St. Mary Magdalene parish, by Mr. Francis. During the last twelve months over a hundred young people have been gathered into a children's service, some of these very barely clad and ill fed. Gospel temperance and evangelistic services, both in and out-doors, have been held for adults. At this season of the year help is much needed towards clothing and feeding the hungry ones, and carrying on the work. KATE AVIS.

71, Evelina-road, Peckham, London, S.E.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. H. Hutchinson, Reading, Dec. 14, 15. Mr. T. E. Sayer, Presbyterian Church, Hampstead, to Dec. 19; Presbyterian Church, Clapton, Jan. 4—9. Mr. J. S. Tyler, Y.M.C.A., Newport, Monmouthshire, to Dec. 15; Sale, Cheshire, Dec. 27 to Jan. 2.

CAPE GENERAL MISSION.

THIS Mission has indeed lost one of its brightest members in the recent death of Mrs. Spencer Walton. Many of the missionaries or workers looked up to her as their counseller and friend, for she was always ready with her advice to assist them in their difficulties. It has been decided to start a mission to her memory in Swaziland. This country is situated some distance north of Natal, and off the Portuguese settlement of Delogoa Bay, and only recently in the extreme south have the Transvaal Wesleyans sent a missionary to labour there. Mrs. Walton and her husband were often led to pray for this country, with its 60,000 heathen, and it seems at last as if their prayers were to be answered. A day's march north of Swaziland is the mining town of Barberton, where, for the past eighteen months, under the superintendence and care of Mr. John Bailie, a night school, in connection with the Cape General Mission, has flourished. Not a few of the Swazies and Amatongals have been brought to Christ.

The Mission now proposes to build a small mud and wattle training home, where these natives can be trained, and thus look upon it as their head-quarters. The unsettled state of Swaziland prevents a site being purchased at present, but one whole country can be splendidly worked by Mr. Bailie and about four native evangelists. While, owing to the firm action of the Cape Government, drink is kept from the natives, witch doctors are more or less masters of the situation. It seems as if the country were enveloped in the darkness of superstition and indifference. The natives are a splendid race, the aristocracy of South Africa, and when converted make grand Christians. A better spot could not have been chosen for this Memorial Mission. About £400 will be required for the first year to meet all expenses, including the building. The necessaries of life are very dear, or the work could have been started for considerably less. Mr. H. W. Maynard, St. Aubyns, Wimbledon, is the hon. treasurer.

CHRISTIAN NURSES FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—The Cape General Mission are needing four general nurses for Cape Town. They must be out and out Christians and well trained. The climate is all that can be desired. Mrs. Everrett, 8, The Paragon, Streatham Hill, London, S.W., has consented to correspond with candidates.

DEPTFORD.—In "One Year's Work in Outcast London," Rev Hugh McIntosh, of Brockley Presbyterian Church, sketches the circumstance under which "The People's Hall," Deptford, was opened last year to be a centre of Gospel activity. Among the facts set forth are the following:—Deptford is one of the largest and poorest districts of the Metropolis. It contains about 100,000 people, almost entirely of the working and lower classes, than whom there are none more necessitous or degraded in London. Tens of thousands attend no place of worship, and it is believed that nine out of ten of the men take little or no interest in religious services. The hall is the home and centre of a great variety of endeavour, among which the preaching of the Gospel takes first place. There are two lay missioners, and the people are visited in their homes and otherwise brought within range of Christian sympathy. Those who want to know how aggressive work may be done, as well as such as desire to render ever-welcome assistance, had better write to Mr. McIntosh for particulars, at Madrid House, Brockley View, Forest Hill, S.E.

Harbours of Refuge.

BY T. J. BARNARDO, F.R.C.S.ED.

ALL night long our two Shelters are open in Flower and Dean-street, Spitalfields, and Dock-street, Whitechapel, as Harbours of Refuge to the storm-tossed and belated wanderers of the streets. During the few terrible nights of the last week in November they have been besieged by crowds of poor young homeless girls from eleven years to sixteen, and by young women up to twenty-two years of age.

To convey some idea of the value of these two All-night Shelters, it will be enough to give the statistics for the last two months only. During October and November we gave 4026 separate lodgings to homeless young girls who applied. These were admitted free of charge, for these sad clients of mine belong indeed to the "Submerged Tenth," to whom even the fourpence required of the common dosser is an unattainable sum. Were it not for our Harbours of Refuge, open all night, they must have paced the dreadful streets till morning, or have lain down in some hall door or passage of a tenement house, or found a shelter in any covered spot which would protect them from the snow and rain and wind.

AT NIGHT OUTSIDE THE HARBOUR OF REFUGE, FLOWER AND DEAN STREET.

That even on the terrible nights of Wednesday November 26 and Thursday the 27th, there were such poor young waifs and strays wandering the streets all night, one of my vigilant and indefatigable helpers who spent the greater part of these two nights in quest, avers. On Wednesday night, the 26th, in mid-London and in the western and northern districts, he encountered 380; on Thursday night, in the southern and eastern districts, he met 411.

No less than 4494 hot meals were given out during these two months to the lodgers in these two houses at Dock-street, and Flower and Dean-street. During the same two months ninety-six young girls were lifted permanently out of the streets and their unhappy life, into homes of respectability and comfort!

On entering the Shelters at night these homeless wanderers first seek the warm kitchen, where a great fire is always kept burning. After their numbed and weary limbs have been warmed and rested, there comes the needful wash, then a great cup of hot cocoa and a piece of dry bread. Presently a simple religious service is held, a hymn sung, a few tender words of loving counsel follow, and then all heads are bowed reverently while the evening prayer is offered. During these touching moments many a young heart, among those so utterly miserable, is melted down and reached by the message of the Saviour's love and the tender human sympathy exhibited towards them.

Not a few of these poor young things are as innocent of wrong and as guileless as if their lives had been spent within happy homes and not on the cruel streets. As may be imagined, however, not a few have been, alas, besmirched and bedraggled in the mire, moral as well as physical, through which they have wandered; and some come to us so inured to evil, and apparently so hardened by it that it is difficult to entertain much hope of effecting permanent good. Happily these are the exceptions.

Among some of the remarkable recent rescues through the medium of the Whitechapel Shelter, is that of E. G., who was the daughter of an actress, a certain Madame E. This actress had trained E. G. for her own profession, but when a little older she married a man who, after a short career of dissipation, deserted the poor girl and her infant. After many vicissitudes she at length came on the streets, and hungry, penniless, and in rags, one night knocked at the door of our Shelter, in which she was allowed to stay for three nights.

Overwhelmed by thoughts of her present forlornness and past wretchedness, poor E. G.'s heart was, during her stay, opened by the Lord to receive his word, and it soon became manifest that this decent but hitherto unhappy young wife and mother had been led to cast herself and all her burdens at the feet of the Man who receiveth sinners. After a little while, clothes being given to her, and she herself being made in all things to look more respectable, and a temporary home found for her baby, the Hon. Lady P—— took her into her service, where she still is doing well, supporting her baby out of her wages. Lady P—— writes most warmly of E. G., of whom there can be no reasonable doubt that she has indeed chosen the better part.

Many such tales as these could be told if time and space permitted, but I have said perhaps enough to show that these two Shelters, opened in the murder district of East London shortly after the commission of those awful and still unpunished crimes of some two years ago, have been used of our Lord among his poor, who still dwell in darkness and the shadow of death.

18 to 26, Stepney-causeway, London, E.

Union Hall Mission.—We desire to render some temporal help to the poor in the districts of the hall of the Mission, and shall be most thankful for any help. Tickets for coals, bread, groceries, &c., and left-off or new clothing, will be very useful.—ROBERT BILKE, Abergeldie, Greenhill-park, Harlesden, N.W.

FOREIGN MISSIONS OF SWEDEN.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

THE religious revival that has taken place in Sweden during the last twenty years has developed a considerable interest for Christian missionary work among the heathen. Every year the Swedish foreign missionary staff has been increased, so that it at present numbers about one hundred men and women.

Mr. Hudson Taylor's visit to Sweden last year was much blessed, and at present twenty Swedish men and women are preparing to go to China, or are on the way out.

The Swedish Holiness Association intends to open a mission in China, and half a dozen workers are now in a training college in London for that purpose. A young man is also studying in London at present, in order to go to China for the Swedish Baptist Society.

The Free Church or Swedish Missionary Society, consisting of nearly 600 congregations with more than 100,000 members, is doing a good work in carrying the glad tidings of the Gospel to all parts of Sweden, but is also foremost in the foreign mission-field.

The Swedish Congo Mission, during the last ten years, has opened five stations with eighteen workers. The principal station is Mukimbungo, where large numbers of natives come and listen to the Gospel. A good many conversions have taken place, but the work is hard.

Next year the Swedish Missionary Society will send its first medical missionary to the Congo, Dr. K. S. Walfridson, who recently passed his examination in London. The Swedish Missionary Society has also five missionaries in China, three in Persia, three in Armenia, and three in Siberia.

Zululand and Natal have a good number of Swedish missionaries. The Swedish Church Mission has stations at Oscarsberg, Amoibo, Ekutoleni, and Appelsbosch, with eight ordained missionaries, six Swedish and two native. One of the best Swedish workers, Pastor Witt, has, during this year, left the Church Mission, and joined the Norwegian and Swedish Free African Mission, which is doing good work in Natal.

The Swedish National Evangelical Association supports twelve Swedish and fourteen native missionaries in Massowah and Abyssinia. A Swedish missionary, Mr. Hedenstrom, supported by Ostergotlands Missionary Society, has during several years been working in Gallaland, Central Africa. In Algeria there are several Swedish ladies who have been sent out by the Swedish Women's Missionary Society.

The Salvation Army in Sweden has during the last years sent out ten missionaries to India, where also the Swedish Church Society has missionaries.

For a poor and thinly-populated country like Sweden all those efforts are sustained with no small sacrifice, especially as the missionary friends in Sweden mainly consists of peasants and workmen.

LONDON MEDICAL MISSION.—A recent booklet gives an interesting account of mission work amongst the sick poor of St. Giles. The medical superintendent, Dr. Latchford, says:—"We try to teach as plainly as we can that the success of all our efforts depends upon God's blessing. It is to Him we look for the wisdom and skill needed in dealing with every case of sickness; and we want poor afflicted ones to cast their cares and sorrows upon the Lord Jesus Christ, who is able and willing to help them to the uttermost. We also lay great stress upon the written Word of God, that the people should read it and believe it for themselves. Both last year and this, from various causes, contributions to the general fund have fallen short, and our present need is great." Communications to Dr. Latchford may be addressed 17, Endell-street, St. Giles.

ELLIOT STOCK'S NEW LIST.

In handsome Demy 8vo., price 10s. 6d.

The Dawn of the English Reformation: Its Friends and Foes.

By the Rev. HENRY WORSLEY, M.A.

Tastefully printed and bound in cloth, price 7s. 6d.

The Doctrine of the Death of Christ. In Relation to the Sin of Man, The Condemnation of the Law and the Dominion of Satan.

By Rev. NATHANIEL DIMOCK, A.M.

In Demy 8vo., handsomely bound in cloth, price 5s.

Principia; Or, The Three Octaves of Creation.

By Rev. ALFRED KENNION.

Tastefully printed and bound in cloth, price 7s. 6d.

The Churchman's Theological Dictionary.

By ROBERT EDEN, M.A., Honorary Canon of Norwich New Edition, revised, with an Introductory Notice by the Rev. H. C. G. MOULE, M.A.

Tastefully printed and bound in cloth, price 5s.

Spiritual Law in the Natural World.

A Divine Philosophy, applied to the Solution of Profound Problems of the Natural and Spiritual Worlds. By EDMUND SWIFT, Sen.

Tastefully printed and bound in cloth, price 3s. 6d.

Our Dead: Where are They? A Symposium by well-known Writers concerning the present condition of Departed Believers. Edited by T. H. STOCKWELL.

Just ready, in Crown 8vo., cloth, 2s. 6d., post free.

Does God Break His Pledges? Or, Homiletical Germs on the Various Aspects of Prayer.

With numerous illustrations gathered from the best Authors, with Index. By the Rev. JOHN HARRIES, Author of "The Saving Spirit." With an Introduction by the Rev. THOMAS CHAMPNESS.

In Crown 8vo., cloth, price 2s. 6d.

Moses and the Prophets.

Their Unshaken Testimony as against the "Higher Criticism" based on Naturalism.

By the Rev. GAVIN CARLYLE, M.A.

Fcap. 8vo., cloth, price 2s. 6d.

Letters to Working Men;

Or, Short Chapters on many Subjects.

By HELEN LINDSAY.

In Crown 8vo., neatly bound, price 2s., or in cloth, 2s. 6d.

The Abolition of Suffering

By S. B. G. M'KINNEY, M.A., L.R.C.S. and P. EDIN., Author of "The Science and Art of Religion."

In Crown 8vo., price 4d., by post 4½d.

The Church of the Future.

A Paper read before the Southwark Clerical Society. By W. J. STOBART, M.A., Vicar of Bermondsey.

Sixth Edition, price 3d.

The Gown in the Pulpit.

Is it Legal? and is it worth while? By E. B. C.

In Demy 8vo., price 2d., by post 2½d.

Heart Purity and its Relation to the Body.

A Friendly Letter. By T. KIRKMAN.

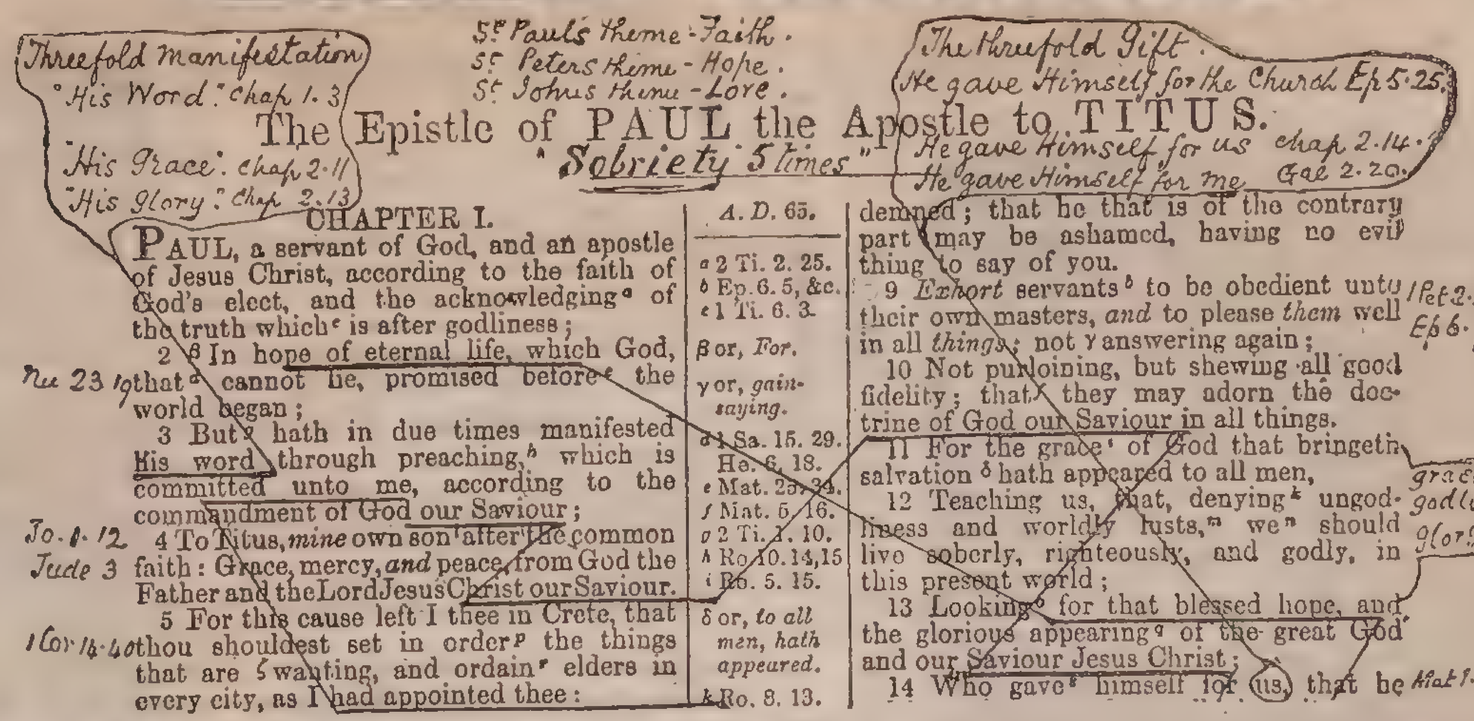
Tastefully printed in Crown 8vo., with wrapper, 3d.

War, is it Justifiable?

An Address to the Men of England. By H. WAGSTAFF.

ELLIOT STOCK, 62, PATERNOSTER ROW LONDON.

BIBLE MARKING.



BIBLE MARKING COMPETITION. £6 6s. in Prizes. See OUR OWN GAZETTE for January (ready December 18). First Number of a New Volume. Also contains New Stories: A Trip to the Remotest Stars, by Dr. THAIN DAVIDSON; Bible Notes; How to Re-cover Sofas and Chairs, &c., &c. One Penny. London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., or through any Bookseller. Also from London Office, 18, Paternoster Square.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS.

SPECIAL ATTENTION IS INVITED TO THE FOLLOWING:

THE OXFORD BIBLE FOR TEACHERS

Now issued in Twelve Sizes, from 2s. 6d., with the Text arranged in each so as to correspond, page for page, with all the others.

THE "FINGER" NEW TESTAMENT

Printed on the OXFORD THIN INDIA PAPER. Brilliant, 96mo., 552 pp., 3½ by 1 by ½ inch
In every style of Leather Binding.

It weighs, when bound in Turkey morocco, LESS THAN THREE-QUARTERS OF AN OUNCE; it is a COMPLETE NEW TESTAMENT, and contains 552 pages printed in a type which, though necessarily minute, is clear, distinct, and perfectly legible.

"No more dainty or compact Christmas gift will be found in the publishing world: It is the essence of neatness and legibility."—CHRISTIAN.

"A perfect triumph of the printer's art."
MANCHESTER GUARDIAN.

"A marvellously delicate piece of work."
CHRISTIAN WORLD.

TASTEFULLY PRINTED IN RED AND BLACK, ON INDIA PAPER.
In 32mo., extra superfine cloth, 3s. 6d., and in various superior Bindings,

MY COUNSELLOR

HOLY SCRIPTURE ARRANGED AS MORNING AND EVENING MEDITATIONS THROUGHOUT THE YEAR.

"I have put 'My Counsellor' into my breast pocket for personal use, for I can see that it is meat and medicine for the soul."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

"No prettier and more useful gift-book has been published this season."—RECORD.

"Admirable alike in arrangement and in collocation of texts, most happily suited for its purpose."
Principal FAIRBAIRN.

"The selection is made with skill, the texts being aptly chosen and well arranged."—SCOTSMAN.

London: HENRY FROWDE, Oxford University Press Warehouse, Amen Corner, E.C.

EYRE AND SPOTTISWOODE'S NEW BOOKS.

THE FOUNDATIONS OF THE BIBLE.

Now ready, price 3s. 6d., cloth boards, red edges, Crown 8vo.

THE FOUNDATIONS OF THE BIBLE.

STUDIES IN OLD TESTAMENT CRITICISM.

By R. B. GIRDLESTONE, M.A.,

Hon. Canon of Christ Church, late Principal of Wycliffe Hall, Oxford; Author of "Old Testament Synonyms," &c.

THE BATTLE OF THE STANDPOINTS

Price 6d., paper, Fcap. 8vo.

THE BATTLE OF THE STANDPOINTS.

THE OLD TESTAMENT AND THE HIGHER CRITICISM.

By ALFRED CAVE, B.A., D.D.,

Author of "The Inspiration of the Old Testament Inductively Considered," "The Scripture Doctrine of Sacrifice and Atonement," "An Introduction to Theology, its Principles, its Branches, its Results, and its Literature," &c.; and Principal and Professor of Systematic Theology of Hackney College.

A SELECT GLOSSARY OF BIBLE WORDS.

JUST PUBLISHED.

A SELECT GLOSSARY OF BIBLE WORDS.

INCLUDING A
GLOSSARY OF IMPORTANT WORDS AND PHRASES IN THE PRAYER-BOOK:
WITH REFERENCE TO THE TEXT AND ILLUSTRATIVE PASSAGES FROM ENGLISH CLASSICAL AUTHORS, CONTAINING OBSOLETE EXPRESSIONS (ESPECIALLY IN PSALMS) AS WELL AS THEOLOGICAL, ECCLESIASTICAL, AND LITURGICAL TERMS, WITH EXPLANATIONS AND ETYMOLOGIES.

By REV. A. L. MAYHEW, M.A., Chaplain of Wadham College, Oxford.

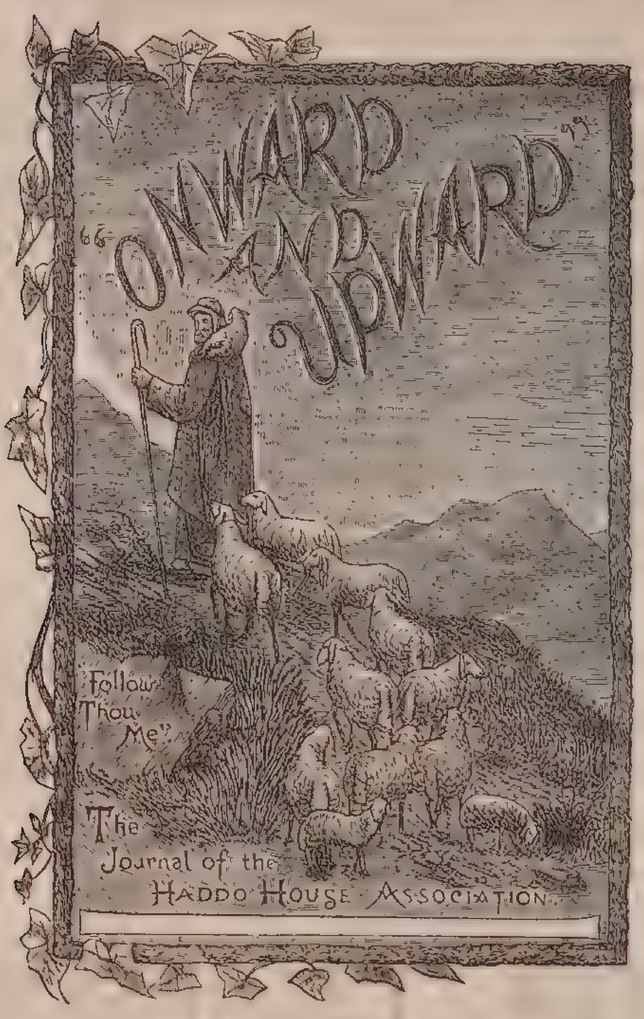
PRICES.	s.	d.
CLOTH, gilt edges	7	6
PASTE GRAIN ROAN, gilt edges	9	0
MOROCCO LIMP, gilt edges	7	6

EYRE & SPOTTISWOODE, Great New-street, London, E.C.; and at Edinburgh, Glasgow, Melbourne, and New York

NEW PENNY MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

EDITED BY THE

COUNTESS OF ABERDEEN.



FOR MOTHERS AND GIRLS. Profusely Illustrated.

FIRST NUMBER ON DECEMBER 12.

London: S. W. Partridge & Co.

Enquiries regarding Advertisements to be made of the printer, L. MUNRO, Ross-shire Journal Office, Dingwall, N.B.

An Excellent Christmas Gift.

"ONLY FOR JESUS."

MEMORIALS of the late WM. M. MACGREGOR, Missionary to China. by LEWIS MUNRO, with Introductory Note by Rev. J. H. WILSON, D.D., of the Barclay Church, Edinburgh.

SECOND EDITION. Crown 8vo., cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

Rev. C. H. SPURGEON—"This short Memoir should stimulate all young men to live for Jesus. It is nicely written."

Glasgow Herald—"Will find thousands of sympathetic readers."

Young Men's Review—"It is of special and deepest interest."

Literary World—"Carries with it a contagion of enthusiasm."

Congregational Review—"A deeply-interesting record of a short but beautiful life."

Word and Work—"To many the book will sound as a personal call, 'Why tarry ye among the sheep folds.'"

Methodist Recorder—"It furnishes an admirable illustration of self-denying missionary zeal and earnestness."

Christian Commonwealth—"Such characters as are described in this book are the real heroes of the world."

Aberdeen Free Press—Beautifully touching, and admirably written. Should be placed in the hands of young men by the thousand."

Extract from Introductory Note—"The last proof sheets have been sent to me for perusal while spending an autumn holiday in the Upper Engadine. I cannot well express the deep emotion with which I have read the closing chapters. It is a beautiful story of grace."—Rev. Dr. J. H. WILSON.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.
Dingwall: L. MUNRO, Ross-shire Journal Office.

New Work by Author of "Story of Jesus," &c.

Crown 8vo., Illustrations. 2s. 6d., cloth.

FORESHADOWED;

Or, The FOSTER BROTHERS.

By Mrs. G. E. MORTON.

"Foreshadowed" is an admirable story, worthy of Mrs. Morton's established reputation. . . . . We are pleased to recommend it as high-toned, well-written, and very prettily got up."—Record.

S. W. Partridge & Co. Simpkin, Hamilton, Kent & Co.

"IN DARKEST ENGLAND."

A REPLY

to "General" BOOTH'S scheme for SOCIAL SALVATION, and A WARNING VOICE TO ALL THE CHURCHES,

By an East London "WATCHMAN."

Every Christian Minister and every thoughtful Church Member should read this AT ONCE.

PRICE 6d. To be had of all Booksellers.

CONTENTS: The Burden Laid on "Watchman."—His Claim to be Heard.—The Churches Supplanted.—The Origin of the Salvation Army.—"A Mosaic Democracy."—A Dangerous Autocracy.—To be Richly Endowed.—A Terrible Sequel.—"Survival of the Fittest."—Social Salvation and Church Work.—Canon Farrar, Dr. Barnardo, Rev. Andrew Mearns, and "Outcast London Work."—"Self-help Emigration."—The "Gush" of Great Men.—The Spectacular.—Booth Consulting Parker.—The One-Man-Trustee Business.—Conversation, showing what bonâ fide Working-Men think of the S.A.—The New Crusade Wanted.—Dr. Joseph Parker: His Inane "Individualism."—Rev. Hugh Price Hughes.—Rev. Charles Berry.—Alderman Fleming Williams.

London: JOHN KENSIT, 18, Paternoster-row, E.C.; and at 93 and 101, East-road, N.

Now Ready, Stiff covers, 1s. 6d.; cl. lettered, 2s.; cloth bevelled boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.

GOLD IN PROPHETIC MINES.

By the Author of "Maranatha," "The Days of the Son of Man," &c.

This fresh investigation of the Apocalypse is controlled by the fact that "the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy." The author, accordingly, relying solely upon Scripture itself, traces from Leviticus downward, its gradual unfolding of those types which find their full development only in the great issues announced through "the Revelation of Jesus Christ."

PRESS NOTICES.

"A little volume, but it works out a great and comprehensive plan."—King's Own.

"Explaining Scripture by the light of itself . . . the author's efforts will go far to make the book intelligible to many readers."—Christian.

"Plenty of material for calm reflection."
Primitive Methodist.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.

NEW BOOKS
By CAPT. DAWSON,

LATE INNISKILLING DRAGOONS,

Author of "Notes and Thoughts on Psalm xxiii.;" "Thoughts in the Valleys;" "Communion and Conflict;" "The Story of Jonah;" "Gracious Words and Glorious Works;" &c., &c.

THE GOSPEL OF GRACE FROM THE GOD OF GLORY.

SCRIPTURE STUDIES.

Leather, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, 1s.; Paper, with Picture, 6d.

Suitable as a Gift Book.

The Story of the "Calliope" in the Hurricane at Samoa.

WITH PICTURE OF THE SHIP. 6d. per doz.

SUITABLE FOR DISTRIBUTION.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row;
MARSOM, Mildmay House, Bournemouth;
Or through any Bookseller.

SECOND EDITION. 3s. Cloth; 1s. 6d. Paper. 300 pp.

SUITABLE FOR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

Original Songs, Readings, and Recitations.

For Public Assemblies or Private Meditation.

By JOHN H. L. CHRISTIEN.

By the same Author. 1d., or 6s. per 100 nett.

WHAT IS A GENTLEMAN?

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., Paternoster-row.

LOYAL TO TRUTH. By SYDNEY WATSON. Crown 8vo., well Illustrated, Cloth extra, 1s. 6d.

ZIONWARD! Help on the Way to the Better Land. By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. Third Edition. Cloth, 1s.

ASSURANCE; or, How to Attain to Assurance of an Interest in Christ. By Mrs. ROBERT PEDDIE. Tinted covers, 6d.

YEARLY VOLUMES FOR 1890.

THE BRITISH MESSENGER. Price 1s. Also in Stiff Boards, with Lithographic Cover, 1s. 6d.

THE GOSPEL TRUMPET. Price 6d. Also in Stiff Boards, with Lithographic Cover, 1s.

GOOD NEWS. Price 4d., by post, 5d.

NEW YEAR ADDRESSES.

32 pp. One Penny, or 1s. per dozen.

"COLD WATER, O YE THIRSTY." Illustrated. By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A.

ENROLLED ON EARTH, ENROLLED IN HEAVEN. By Lady BEAUFOLOIS DENT.

BE TRUE. For the Young. Illustrated. By J. FORBES MONCRIEFF.

FOUR STRONG ANCHORS. (Jewel Series, No. 7.) By EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE. Richly Illustrated. Printed in two colours, 16 pp. 1s. per dozen.

"SHUT THE DOOR." (Jewel Series, No. 8.) By EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE. Same style as above. 16 pp., 1s. per dozen.

DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

AN ADMIRABLE CHRISTMAS GIFT.

GOD'S JEWELS:

Their Dignity and Destiny.

By W. Y. FULLERTON.

Exquisitely bound in blue, and illustrated, 128 pp., 1s. 6d.

"A really choice book. To preachers and teachers an invaluable treasury of suggestion and illustration."—Methodist Recorder.

"Solid gold—nuggets of it. We award a first prize to this very beautiful book."—The Sword and Trowel.

"The analogies are wrought out in an extremely felicitous fashion, with simplicity, clearness, quaint humour, and an imaginative glow befitting the dignity of the theme. One of the few popular books a wise minister will preserve for reference.—The Christian Leader.

A FINGER-MARK IN MY BIBLE.

Seven Steps into Light: for Inquirers and Workers.

32 pp. One Penny. 7s. per 100, post free.

"I have seen some aids to the solemn and difficult work of the inquiry room, but nothing to compare with this."
Rev. JOHN DYMOCK, Aberdeen.

Published by PASSMORE & ALABASTER, Paternoster-bldgs.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

NEW YEAR'S LETTER BOOKLET—1891.

D. 1 LET YOUR LIGHT SO SHINE.

By Rev. W. FRITH, Editor of Consecration.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row
And all Booksellers

GIFT BOOKS

SPECIAL CHEAP OFFER.

Books for the Christmas Season

By J. M. WEYLLAND.

"THE MAN WITH THE BOOK."

26TH THOUSAND. 300 PAGES, CLOTH GILT. 20 ILLUSTRATIONS. PRICE 1/6, POST FREE.
"A charming volume."—Record.

"ROUND THE TOWER."

17TH THOUSAND. 30 ILLUSTRATIONS. 294 PAGES, BOUND IN CLOTH. PRICE 1/6 POST FREE.
"Should be read by all Christian workers."—Word and Work.

"THESE FIFTY YEARS."

346 PAGES, BOUND IN CLOTH. 29 ILLUSTRATIONS. 12TH THOUSAND. PRICE 1/6 POST FREE.
"A well written and instructive book."—Times.

"OUR VETERANS."

5TH THOUSAND. 225 PAGES, CLOTH GILT. 10 ILLUSTRATIONS. PRICE 1/- POST FREE.
"A volume of thrilling naratives. We heartily commend it to the prayerful perusal of our readers."—The Christian.

All these Books are alike suitable for Gifts to Sunday School Teachers, Scholars, and others.

ALL ORDERS OF TWELVE OR MORE COPIES WILL BE SUPPLIED AT HALF PRICE.

A SAMPLE PARCEL, CONTAINING COPY OF EACH BOOK, WILL BE SENT FOR 3/6.

THE BOOKS ARE HANDSOMELY BOUND AND ILLUSTRATED.

T. R. MARRISON, 3, BRIDEWELL PLACE, LONDON, E.C

JOSEPH SENT TO DOTHAN.

A SELECTION OF

PRESENTATION VOLUMES

SUITABLE FOR

Christmas Presents and New Year Gifts.

PUBLISHED BY

MORGAN & SCOTT,

12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, LONDON, E.C.

And may be Ordered of any Bookseller in the Kingdom.

JUST PUBLISHED. New Book by Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Joseph:

Beloved—Hated—Exalted.

WITH NINE ILLUSTRATIONS, SPECIALLY ENGRAVED, AND PRINTED ON TONED PAPER.

"Joseph has always been a central figure in Biblical History. He stands for the highest virtue as well as for commanding influence in dealing with God's own people. Indeed, he is the most prominent figure in a wonderfully providential history. In unfolding this providence and presenting strikingly the leading characteristics of Joseph himself, Mr. MEYER has shown marked ability. His style is so perfectly simple, so unaffectedly earnest, and so full of sympathy with truth and righteousness, that its very movement adds an additional charm to the wonderful facts narrated. As a Sunday School book, it is the very best we have seen on Joseph."

The Christian Commonwealth.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges,
3s. 6d.

Cloth Boards,
2s. 6d.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

7th THOUSAND.

"Tried by Fire:"

Expositions on the First Epistle of Peter.

"Since the commentary of Archbishop Leighton has almost monopolized the field of spiritual exposition few have attempted to tread precisely the same ground as that heavenly-minded expounder in his treatment of this Epistle. His commentary has one defect from which Mr. MEYER'S exposition is free—viz., diffusiveness of style and quantity of matter. Indeed, we doubt whether any work has appeared since the time of Leighton, on the same subject, which equals the one before us. The text is expounded with grammatical precision, and a graceful use of exegesis is made to bring out some underlying thought. Mr. MEYER'S estimation of character is fair and neatly balanced, and his illustrations rich in the emphasis which they give to peculiar truths. The author raises the standard of holiness high upon the pedestal of the Gospel. Nor can it be lowered without grave consequences, in an age when soundness in the faith is made a substitute for sanctification of life. This handsome volume exactly answers to our idea of what a good exposition ought to be."—The Rock.

Cloth Boards,
2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges,
3s. 6d.

7th THOUSAND.

John, whom Jesus Loved.

BY

Rev. J. CULROSS, A.M., D.D.,
President of Bristol Baptist College.

With EIGHT ILLUSTRATIONS Artistically Printed in Colours.

Presentation Edition:

	s.	d.
Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges	3	6
Tinted Covers	2	0
Cloth Boards	2	6

"One of the excellences of Dr. CULROSS is the freshness of his thought. His mind allows young flowers to break through its soil after their own fashion, and to blossom in their own sweet way. It is altogether without reserve that we commend the work before us. It is not a bottle of milk for babes, but a portion of meat for men. A half-dozen readings will only make it more interesting to those who meditate upon what they read."—The Sword and Trowel.

7th THOUSAND.

Many Infallible Proofs.

THE EVIDENCES OF CHRISTIANITY;

OR, THE WRITTEN AND THE LIVING WORD OF GOD.

BY

Rev. A. T. PIERSON, D.D.

"For half-a-crown any one may obtain here all that is best in the way of fact and argument on prophecy and miracles; on the scientific accuracy and the ethical beauty and sublimity of the Bible; and on the Person and teaching of Christ."—Methodist Recorder.

Presentation Edition:

	s.	d.
Cloth, Bev. Bds. Gilt Edges	3	6
Tinted Covers	2	0
Cloth Boards	2	6

4th THOUSAND.

"The Christian" Bible Readings.

GENESIS.
EXODUS.
LEVITICUS.
NUMBERS.
DEUTERONOMY.

NOTES AND READINGS ON THE FIVE BOOKS OF MOSES.

"We are quite charmed with this volume, so much so that when we commenced to read it we were obliged to finish it, it was so fascinating. It is a valuable addition to the literature already published on the Old Testament. All who want to understand the Pentateuch should get this book and study it carefully."—Irish Congregational Magazine.

Presentation Editions:

	s.	d.
Cloth Boards	2	0
Cloth, Bev. Bds., Gilt Edges.. ..	2	6
Tinted Covers	1	0
Cloth Limp..	1	6

20th THOUSAND.

In the Volume of the Book.

BY

Rev. G. F. PENTECOST.

OR, THE PLEASURE AND PROFIT OF BIBLE STUDY.

Being an Introduction to the Study of the Holy Scriptures.

Presentation Edition:

	s.	d.
Cloth Boards	2	6
Tinted Covers	1	6
Cloth Limp..	2	0

"No one can read this almost unique volume without being stimulated to a more diligent study of THE BOOK. Buy it, we can say to all; read it with your Bible open and a common-place book to hand, ready to catch up and store away the many precious things so lavishly scattered throughout its pages."—Night and Day.

7th THOUSAND.

Searching the Scriptures:

BY

Dr. J. ANDERSON,
M.R.C.S.

In Order to Abiding Communion with God.

ALSO SUGGESTIONS FOR BIBLE READING AND STUDY, AND A PLAN FOR CONSECUTIVE DAILY READING.

"A scholarly, accurate, suggestive, and wise work on the Study of the Books of the Bible; how best to get at their teaching, and how best to turn that teaching to practical account. Preachers and teachers will find it a treasury of thought, beautiful expositions, and fruitful suggestions. The volume is nicely got up, and is suitable for a prize or a present."—Oldham Chronicle.

Presentation Edition:

	s.	d.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges.. ..	3	6
Tinted Covers ..	1	6
Cloth Boards ..	2	6

The Herald of Mercy

ANNUAL VOLUME.

Containing 52 Engravings.

Handsomely Bound in Cloth Boards, 1/6

Attractively Bound in Illustrated Boards, 1/-

"The annual volume of The Herald of Mercy is marvellously cheap at 1s. The paper, printing, and illustrations are exceedingly good. It is made up of brief Gospel records, appeals, etc. It is read with interest, and with God's blessing is calculated to do good. We ourselves have used a former volume for lending amongst the poor."
Divine Life.

"This volume has bright and useful reading, accompanied by pleasing illustrations."—Methodist Times.

"This annual is full of cheerful articles, in prose and poetry, of sterling religious character. The price brings it within the reach of all."
Primitive Methodist.

Pearls of Wisdom

BY

A. L. O. E.

FROM THE PARABLES.

With Twenty-four Illustrations, specially designed and printed in colours.

Presentation Editions:
Cloth Boards,
3s. 6d.
Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges,
4s.

"The teachings of Jesus are admirably set forth in this attractive volume, enriched with choice illustrations."
Christian Chronicle.

THE MIDNIGHT GUEST.

"The Christian" Portrait Gallery.

Consisting of over ONE HUNDRED Life-like Portraits of Christian Men and Women of the Present Day.

A Very Handsome GIFT BOOK.

DEMY QUARTO SIZE.

Handsomely Bound in Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges,

10/6

"Messrs. Morgan & Scott have just published a superb book. It is entitled 'THE CHRISTIAN' PORTRAIT GALLERY, and contains portraits and biographical sketches of one hundred present-day Christian workers, a selection from those that have been appearing in 'THE CHRISTIAN' during recent years. All sections of the Church are represented, and the foreign work as well as the home work. The whole get-up of the book is first-class, and it is full of matter that will be highly valued by all who account an enlarged sympathy with the work of Jesus Christ in the world as one of the chief joys of life."—Divine Life.

"A most admirable book. The work will become a household treasure; inasmuch as so many—nearly one-third of those represented—have already passed away, and others, of necessity, must speedily follow. Hence the work will be handed down from generation to generation, in remembrance of those who laboured for the Lord in life's little day."—Gospel Magazine.

"No more beautiful or more acceptable book has recently been issued from the press. Whether one regards it merely as a work of art, or as healthful and stimulating literature, it alike gives the greatest satisfaction. There are OVER ONE HUNDRED PORTRAITS; and they are real likenesses, finished in the best style. And the letterpress is in every respect worthy of the portraiture work."—Christian Commonwealth.

REDUCED FACSIMILE OF THE VOLUME.

ISSUE, IN MONTHLY PARTS, OF

"The Christian" Portrait Gallery.

Price SIXPENCE Each Part.

It is proposed to issue "THE CHRISTIAN" PORTRAIT GALLERY in Thirteen Sixpenny Parts. Thus, for an outlay which will be almost imperceptible, and which no one will miss, the Subscribers will obtain the Portraits and Biographies of upwards of One Hundred well-known and honoured Christian Workers. These brief Biographies will bear reading again and again, and will serve to stimulate and encourage those who are engaged in the Master's work.

The Scots Magazine effectively says:—

"The book is not only of commanding interest in itself, it is of more value, because in many instances the Biographies could not be met with elsewhere."

Part I. will be published on December 15th.

Foxe's Book of Martyrs

A complete and authentic Account of the Lives, Sufferings, and Triumphant Deaths of early Christian and Protestant Martyrs in all Parts of the World.

WITH TWELVE FULL-PAGE ILLUSTRATIONS.

"We are pleased to see the 'Book of Martyrs' well to the front. It is a great thing to have such a copy of FOXE in the market at 10s. 6d. We wish Messrs. Morgan and Scott an immediate sale of the present issue, which is marvellously cheap."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON, in Sword and Trowel.

"A new edition of this useful and standard work; and a most masterly exposure of what Romanism really is, and what it can do when it has the upper hand. The perusal of this book should form part of the education of our youth. Heads of families should purchase it for their children to read. Popery can find no favour where FOXE'S MARTYRS is studied."—Christian Progress.

IN ONE HANDSOME VOLUME.

Cloth, Bevelled Boards, 10/6

Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 12/6

The Catacombs at Rome:

5th EDITION.

A Vindication of Pure and Primitive Christianity, and an Exposure of the Corruptions of Romanism: Derived from the Sepulchral Remains of the Early Christians at Rome.

Presentation Edition.

Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

	s.	d.
Tinted Covers ..	2	0
Cloth Boards ..	2	6

WITH NUMEROUS ILLUSTRATIONS.

"Here is a slashing book, which leaves no need for a second stroke. These sermons in stones are used to prove, in a relentless and unchallengeable fashion, the wholesale departures from primitive Christianity of the modern Church of Rome. The verdict of the book is this: ROMANISM is baptised PAGANISM; and we entirely endorse the judgment. In these days, when Romanism is being stealthily spread among us, this book ought to be scattered in thousands all over the land."—Presbyterian Messenger.

BY

BENJAMIN SCOTT, F.R.A.S.,

Chamberlain of the City of London.

BY ELIZA RICHARDSON.

The Veil Lifted:

OR, THE ROMANCE AND REALITY OF CONVENT LIFE.

Cloth Boards, 1s. 6d.

Tinted Covers, 1s.

"A valuable little work. We wish we could place it in the hands of thousands; and more, we wish we could induce that hapless multitude who are now given over to a blind infatuation of Romanism and Ritualism, under a glossed and gilded form to 'read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest' what the author has here advanced upon this all important subject."
The Gospel Magazine.

Personal Experience of Roman Catholicism

Cloth Boards, 1s. 6d.

Tinted Covers, 1s.

"Any of our readers who may have friends or neighbours journeying Rome-ward will do them a great kindness, and perhaps save them from much suffering, by giving them a copy of this pleasantly-written book."—The Christian World.

The Confessional.

A PERSONAL NARRATIVE.

Neatly Printed in Red and Black.

Suitable for Enclosure in the Modern Square Envelope.

1s. per Dozen, 7s. per 100, Post Free.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. And may be Ordered of any Bookseller in the Kingdom.

On the Blackdown Hills.

r is uniformly with pleasure that we peruse he annual reports of work on the Blackdown Hills. The twentieth "Brief Narrative of acts," recently issued by Mr. W. J. H. Brealey, egins and ends with notes of praise for the lessing which has crowned another year's abour. Not that the year has been one of ontinual sunshine; there have been times vhen clouds overhung the work, and present rials made it difficult to rejoice over past riumphs. About a thousand services have been held throughout the district in the various nission-rooms and in two Gospel tents. Tens of thousands of tracts and books have been scattered, and in no cases have the silent messengers been refused; on the contrary, the tracts have been right gladly received; in one instance at least conversion to God resulted.

Among the incidents narrated are the following "almost hopeless" cases:—

"I don't know what will become of my boy, or what I shall do with him," said a heavy-hearted Christian father to me, some few months ago. "I sometimes think," said he, "'tis no use to pray; yet I cannot give him up—and his emotion choked further utterance. We agreed to plead still more earnestly with God. Only a few weeks afterwards I was preaching at one of our mission-rooms, and this young man was present. I was led to read Ps. cxxxix., and spoke from the first and last verses, "O Lord, Thou hast searched me, and known me. ...Search me, O God, and know my heart," &c. A solemn sense of God's presence was felt, and at the close the very young man for whom we had been praying remained behind, humbled in spirit. The barriers were broken down, the hardened will was subdued. His words to God, as he knelt with several brethren who united in prayer for him, were, "O God, Thou hast searched me, and known me! Thou knowest what a vile sinner I am! Lord, save me! I can't hold out any longer. I give in to Thee. Please take me as I am. I'll trust Thee, and take Thee to be my Saviour. Take me and make me thy child." There was joy in heaven and joy in many hearts that night.

GOD IS ABLE——"

The other case was almost identical, except that in this the young man was a most moral and upright individual, who, however, was more hopeless from the fact that he built his hopes upon his own merits. I and others had prayed much for him, and dealt lovingly and faithfully with his soul for years, yet there seemed no advance. How true is the word, "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart." For months a deep work of grace had been going on in his soul, unperceived by any, save by Him who effected it. Quite unexpectedly this young man came to me at the close of an ordinary prayer-meeting, and said, "Mr. Brealey, I am not satisfied. I want to be saved." "When?" I asked.

"TO-NIGHT, IF I CAN,"

he replied. We remained alone; and for more than an hour it seemed as if a conflict were going on between light and darkness. Satan appeared to hold his prey; and while there was a longing for deliverance, it looked as if the time was not yet. I seemed powerless. The Word of God appeared ineffectual. All was dark. At last I said, "I cannot help you. I can only give you one word more, and that is the message through our Lord Jesus," and then pointed him to John iii. 14, 15. He read it, and re-read it, and then fell on his knees, sobbing out, "Lord, help me to give myself up to thy word. I must now or never. Help me to believe Thee. I do believe Thee. I do trust Thee. I do thank Thee." His happy, consistent, godly life since has proved the work of God in his soul.

In both these cases, says Mr. Brealey, our faith was well-nigh exhausted; yet prayer was answered at last, to shame our unbelief, and to encourage us still to "sow in hope" and to "faint not."

The Sunday-school work has been attended by much encouragement, several former scholars having been received into the church. "It is," says Mr. Brealey, "no uncommon thing to be told by men and women that either their conversion or first impressions were due to the teaching given in our day and Sunday-schools. We have the names of over 150 who have been thus led to the Saviour in our Clayhidon schools; other schools of the Mission we have not included, but they have each been largely used of God in blessing. Visitation affords many opportunities of befriending the people, who readily appreciate Christian sympathy." With reference to the proposed "House of Accommodation" for evangelists and helpers in the work, in memory of the late George Brealey, a small beginning has been made, awaiting the incoming of funds adequate to the erection of suitable premises. Communications to Mr. Brealey should be addressed Clayhidon, Wellington, Somerset.

Sunlight through Shadows.

How often one hears the remark, "I could not visit in the East-end and witness so much sin, misery, poverty, sickness, suffering; it would be heart-breaking!" True, if we started on our rounds alone, without Divine companionship, Divine guidance, and strength. But how often are we cheered by the discovery that He has gone before; and, where the Master has been, there the good seed is springing up, bearing, surely enough, the fruits of love, unselfishness, courage, patience, and cheerful submission under trial.

We will first knock at the door of a very poor room in the heart of Bethnal Green. No carpet on the floor, no curtains, no arm-chair, nothing suggestive of comfort, though many brave attempts at cleanliness and neatness. The mother is seated at a rough wooden table, diligently covering balls of wood with fancy beads, or making bead trimmings. She has to work eight hours a day at this, in order to earn eight shillings a week. Though a young woman, her eyesight is already very defective, through working so constantly; she is pale and thin, her heart is affected, and yet, besides her bead work, she manages to scrub out her one room every day, make, mend, and wash the clothes of her five children. Day by day she toils and suffers, has no change, no rest, except when she can spare time to come to the Mission mother's meeting, for one happy hour. Her husband, a packer, drinks terribly, seldom giving her more than 10s. of his earnings. Still on she works, bearing ridicule, persecution, often brutal cruelty, uncomplainingly; for she has learned to love and trust the One who was "oppressed" and "afflicted," yet opened He not his mouth!"

In a more respectable part of Bethnal Green lives a dear old man in a tiny back room, overlooking the dull brick wall of some factory. A bed, a wooden table, and a broken chair comprise the furniture. We sent an old hearthrug to try and make the room look more comfortable, but on the next visit observed that it had been promoted to the bed to add some warmth to the thin partially paralysed limbs of its occupant. It is only on very bright days, or when compelled to go to the House for parish relief, that he ever goes out. His sole income amounts to about 3s. 6d. per week, 2s. 6d. of which goes towards rent. It is indeed a "life of faith." One wonders how any human being can exist on such a pittance. Yet he is always full of gratitude. Shut out by sickness, poverty, and old age from the busy, bustling world, he seems to be shut in with God, to have sweet communion with Him, to care no longer for earth, but to delight in things spiritual.

The visitor may learn many a lesson from this heaven-taught child of God, and can never go away without feeling spiritually refreshed and cheered. One day he was looking more ill and suffering than usual. The cause was that on the previous day he had not broken his fast until five o'clock in the evening, after he had been to the House and back for his weekly pension. This, however, was mentioned quite incidentally, and was not considered any special hardship. He simply rejoices in his afflictions, because they were, in a great measure, the means of his being brought to God. He often says he would not for anything exchange his bare room, daily poverty, and suffering with Christ, for all the worldly enjoyment, comparative wealth, strength, prosperity of past days, without God and without hope!

"Will you sometimes look in and see an old friend of mine, who has been blind nearly seventeen years; she loves to have someone give her a word of cheer?" Such a request could hardly be refused. Knocking at the door of a little, dingy four-roomed house, one was met by a troop of curly-haired laughing children, who speedily announced my arrival by calling "Mother! a lady to see granny." In a tiny back room had dwelt this poor sufferer for many years, but during the last two she had not once stirred outside the door. I found she was never free from pain, the least air caused increased inflammation in the poor eyes, which were carefully bandaged, giving a death-like appearance to the suffering white face. The disease in the eyes had been brought on, partly from overstrain while working at her trade as tailoress, partly from great natural delicay of constitution.

Though extremely poor; never out of pain; often alone for hours, with no change from the monotony of that one little room, yet she was invariably cheerful and content. Literally she rejoiced in her Saviour; all her thoughts seemed wrapped up in Him. Her suffering face was illumined with a joy, not of earth, when some beautiful promise or comforting portion of Scripture was read to her. If in sympathy, one even alluded to her suffering, blindness, or poverty, she would always quickly remind one of the good things still left. "Yes," she would say, "it is many years since I've been blind, but then I have my memory left, and can often recall sweet passages. I can hear easily, and do not suffer half as much as some poor creatures (yet she was so weak she could hardly walk across the room)."

"Lonely? I might be, but the children, bless 'em, they looks in now and again," and she added reverently, "Has He not said, 'Lo, I am with you alway'?"

"Poor! Yes. I can never afford a bit o' meat; but then I have my own little room, and He always sends me what I most want."

These three are only a few, out of many, who, in the midst of dark surroundings, temptation, and sorrow, live patient, brave, enduring lives; and surely, by their example alone, they will have left the world better than they found it, and have brought honour to the Master whom they have so faithfully sought to serve.

Of course we meet, too often, alas, dark shadows! Terrible drunkenness, bringing in its train, poverty, crime, immorality. Infidelity, and ignorance often raise firm barriers to our work. Grim jealousy, hypocrisy, selfishness, sometimes make us pause and ask if change is possible amongst those who are so hardened and depraved.

Then a gleam of sunlight pierces through the shadows as we come across one of the "household of faith;" and once more we take courage and obey the Divine command "Go, work to-day in my vineyard."

A Worker.

Sick Christians.

By Rev. THEODORE L. CUYLER.

Dr. Horace Bushnell was an invalid during the last years of his noble and useful life; and when people in Hertford inquired of him, "How is your health?" he used to reply, playfully, "I have not got any." This might be the honest answer of many professed Christians in regard to their souls. Their spiritual pulse is feeble; their appetite for God's Word is poor; they are more fit for the hospital than for service. They no more enjoy their religion than a fever-patient would enjoy a slice of roast beef or a plum-pudding.

Their sickness is their own fault, and it is their business and duty to get well as soon as possible. Since spiritual disease is the result of sin, and spiritual health is obligatory upon every Christian, how shall the invalids be restored? "I will restore health unto Thee, saith the Lord." Christ is still the Great Physician. He works cures, not by miracles, but by means and by medicines. One of these is the powerful purgative of truth faithfully administered. That pungent preacher, Charles G. Finney, understood how to apply this heroic treatment, and it would be well if all ministers could read his "Lectures on Revivals" once every year. But whether the truth comes to you from the pulpit or from your own reading of the Word, or from any other quarter, it will do you no good, my sick friend, unless you swallow it and let it work. If it produces some sharp gripings of conscience, all the better.

Then, too, you are in sad need of exercise. Your Master has given you faculties and affections, and capacities to serve Him with. Yet, for utter want of use, these limbs of the soul are as feeble as the bodily limbs of a man who has been on his back for a month with a typhoid fever. Never will you recover your appetite, never will the flush of spiritual joy mantle your countenance, until you get out of your hammock and go to work. You are dying from confinement and indolence. Probably a constipation of purse has set in, so that you have ceased to give much money to the Lord; or if you give at all, you do it grudgingly. There is but one cure for spiritual laziness, and that is work; but one cure for stinginess and selfishness, and that is sacrifice; but one cure for bashfulness, and that is to open your lips for Christ; or to plunge into some difficult duty before the shiver has time to come on. A thorough course of feeding on Bible diet on Sunday, and of practising Bible duties during the week, will soon put you on your feet again. You can throw away your crutches, and run without growing weary, and walk without becoming faint. How glad your minister will be to see you out again! How happy you will feel when your congestion of lungs and purse and heart is cured; and the sleep of the labouring man will be sweet.

All the above-mentioned prescriptions must be honestly taken; but remember that Jesus Christ is the great physician and health-giver. No permanent cure without Him. Jesus not only gives life, but can give it more abundantly, when "the Sun of Righteousness shall arise with healing in his wings." There is hygienic power in physical sunshine for sick plants and sick people. It would bring speedy recovery to many a diseased and enfeebled soul to come back into the warm light of Christ's countenance. A great deal of spiritual sickness arises from bad atmosphere. The heavenly winds of the Divine Spirit alone can sweep away this malaria. "My Spirit I will give unto you," is Christ's promise; and with that powerful breath from above will come a new, and purifying, and bracing atmosphere. I was once addressing a crowded audience in a small room on a wintry night, and the air became so foul that the candles went almost out. As soon as the door was opened, and the oxygen of the wintry air rushed in, every candle flamed up immediately. Your lamp is going out, brother! You need fresh air. Oh, what a glorious oxygen would pour into our hearts, and into our prayer-meetings, our Sunday-schools, and our churches, if the Holy Spirit should come like a mighty rushing wind, purifying, arousing, and quickening souls unto the very life of God! That would be a revival—a living-again from dead works and decay into the glow and gladness of vigorous health.

Such recovery cannot be reached by a wholesale process. God says to each individual Christian who has been made sick by sin, "Return unto Me, and I will heal thy back-slidings." The lepers who came to Jesus were not afraid to show Him their loathsome disease. You must not be gingerly in your confessions, or seek to hide your sins, or cover them with plasters of apology. Let your honest prayer be "Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquities." This prayer means—as Dr. Maclaren truly says—"Wash me, beat me, hammer me with mallets, rub me with caustic nitre, do anything with me, if only those foul spots melt away from the texture of my soul!"

Such penitence, such prayer, will bring pardon for the past. Not only pardon, but peace and purity and power. You will be restored to health. Reconverted yourself, you will be able—like restored Peter—"to strengthen the brethren." Healed yourself, you will be ready to labour for the healing of others. O what a revival it would be in all our churches, if the backsliders, and the fever-patients, and the lean dyspeptics, and the sin-sick professors, would come trooping out of the hospital and report themselves for duty! Of such a church the Master might say once more, "Then shall Thy light break forth as the morning, and Thy healing shall spring forth speedily."

THE CHILDREN'S SINGING MISSION, founded about a year ago in the East end of London, has taken part in a number of missions, besides open-air meetings and services in courts and alleys. At the recent first anniversary meeting of the Band, in the Shaftesbury Memorial Hall, Kirby-street, Poplar, much interest was expressed in its work.

CHILDREN OF EUROPEANS IN INDIA.—It is proposed to found an Institution with the object of providing for the emigration from India to the Australian Colonies of European orphan and destitute children of all denominations, with the further intention of educating and training them to various trades and to service, and finally of starting them in life there. In the large towns, especially in Calcutta, there are numbers of European boys and girls whose parents are either dead or unable to support them, and it is believed there are numerous widows who are unable to provide food and clothing, much less education for their children. It is proposed to send some children to Australia while still quite young, and to train them there, as it is nearer and more suitable than either England or America. Away from all Indian associations, it is to be expected that they will grow up free from the prejudices and faults which make them so useless in that country. They will also be spared the bad examples set by native servants. Communications may be addressed to Mrs. C. F. Ruxton, Partabgunj, Tirhoot State Railway, India.

Consecration to Royal Priesthood.

By Rev. J. IRELAND JONES, M.A., C.M.S., Ceylon.

Acceptance in Christ is now a widely recognised truth. Union with Christ is increasingly understood and valued. Our position with reference to Christ as his bondservants is one in which Christians are learning to acquiesce, so that many do not hesitate, to the confession of faith, "I believe," to add the acknowledgment of ownership, "I belong." But the privilege of our priesthood in Christ, which flows out of our acceptance, our union, and our ownership, Christians are slow to perceive or to appropriate. The controversy which has gathered round the word "priest" has perhaps hindered some from entering into the subject or understanding its bearing on our Christian life; but it may truly be said that, if our safety rests on acceptance in Christ, all direct intimacy with God, all intimate communion, all acceptable service, rests on our priesthood in Him.

The fact of our priesthood Peter recognises in 1 Pet. ii. 9, and his manner of mentioning it manifests the importance he attaches to it. He leaves no doubt as to the persons to whom the office belongs. In 1 Pet. i. 3, he tells us that he writes to those who are "begotten again." In verse 18 of the same chapter he addresses those who are redeemed with the precious blood of Christ, and of them he says: "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood." The office then belongs to no mere priestly caste, but to each one who by new birth has become a son or daughter of the Lord Almighty—to every one who through redemption has been set free with the liberty of the children of God.

But while priesthood is too frequently ignored, that which implies it is increasingly desired and valued. The word "consecration" has come down to us through the ages, and Christian conferences have brought it lately into prominence. But "consecration" is the first step towards priesthood. Where priesthood is not, there is no consecration. On the other hand, where there is true consecration, whether of man or woman, there is real priesthood.

Mistaken ideas exist as to the character of consecration itself. It is regarded as being a privilege of only very advanced Christians, and as involving some great and magnificent sacrifice on the part of each who enters on it. The close study of the Word presents consecration in a widely different aspect. It shows that it is not anything that we do in reference to God; but in reference to us. In it He demands our acceptance of what He has provided, and what He is ready to bestow.

SOMETHING WHICH GOD DOES

Lev. viii. describes to us God's plan of consecration. It records the consecration of Aaron, as (1) the type of our great High Priest and (2) the type of the royal priesthood in which all believers share. In it, from first to last, God, through Moses, is the Great Doer; and Aaron, from first to last, is only the passive recipient of the Divine bounty. It is God who chooses and names (ver. 1), "Take Aaron and his sons." "No man taketh this honour unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron" (Heb. v. 4). Exactly so was it with the Lord's selection of his disciples. "Ye have not chosen Me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you" (John xv. 16). God names his servant and brings him into a position where blessing can be bestowed.

Having thus chosen Aaron, God asks nothing from him. Verse 2 tells us that Moses, as God's representative, provides everything needed—the offerings, the bread, the very basket in which the loaves were contained. Nothing is asked of Aaron, but that he should yield himself for the reception of God's bounty as He would bestow it. Of himself he brought nothing but defilement, and this must be put away. Verse 6 gives the first step in the process: "Moses brought Aaron and his sons, and washed them with water." Aaron stood absolutely naked, simply submitting himself to the Divine direction. He did not even wash himself—this too was God's part through Moses. Thus is it always. Ezek. xxxvi. 25, 26: "Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean: from all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you." To see the blessed and complete accomplishment of what this signified we turn to Rev. i. 5, in its reference to this same consecration to royal priesthood: "Unto Him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests... to Him be glory and dominion."

But washing was not enough. Aaron is to stand ever before God, to be brought into constant communion with Him. To stand in that royal presence, he must be clothed with garments of glory and beauty, and these were to be made according to God's own directions. See Exod. xxviii. 2, &c.

No particle of these garments came from Aaron. Everything was of the royal bounty. God's word is (Num. xviii. 7): "I have given your priest's office unto you as a service of gift."

The Psalmist's prayer (Ps. cxxxii. 9) is "Let thy priests be CLOTHED WITH RIGHTEOUSNESS."

The answer comes in ver. 16: "I will clothe her priests with salvation." Where the prophet Isaiah (lxi. 10) acknowledges the fulfilment of the assurance, we find both prayer and promise combined: "He hath clothed me with the garments of salvation; He hath covered me with the robe of righteousness." What is the meaning of all this? Find it in Rom. xiii. 14: "Put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ"; 1 Cor. i. 30: "Who of God is made unto us wisdom and righteousness," for (Jer. xxiii. 6): "This is his name whereby He shall be called, The Lord our Righteousness."

Aaron thus stood washed and clothed. But further honour was in store. He was the type and figure of Him who is, not only our High Priest, but who has on his vesture and on his thigh the name King of kings and Lord of lords. As Priest He is clothed, as Royal Priest He is crowned. Ver. 9 tells us that Moses put the mitre upon his head, also upon the mitre did he put the golden plate, the holy crown, as the Lord commanded Moses. Not only a crown, but a crown of material of acknowledged value — of real preciousness, and one not easily sullied. Here there is a seeming difficulty. Some will say: "We understand what the washing is; we know what the clothing means; we see they represent present blessings; but surely the crowning is future." For solution turn to Exod. xxviii. 36, and find there the command of God to which Lev. viii. 9 refers: "Thou shalt make a plate of pure gold, and grave upon it ...HOLINESS TO THE LORD." Here is the true and present crown of each member of the Royal Priesthood. Notice also its place (Exod. xxviii. 38): "It shall be upon Aaron's forehead ...it shall be always upon his forehead," the place where it would always stand prominent, evident to everyone but to himself. Rev. xiv. 1 shows us the future of those who in Christ attain to the blessedness here typified: "A Lamb stood on the mount Sion, and with Him an hundred forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads." Isa. xxviii. 5 goes beyond the name, even to the Lord Himself: "In that day shall the Lord of hosts be for a crown of glory, and for a diadem of beauty unto the residue of his people." Do we belong to Christ? Have we been consecrated to this priesthood by the washing and the clothing? Then let us realise that the natural and necessary consequence of this is that we stand ever crowned; ever bearing on our foreheads, prominent and distinct, this glorious diadem of holiness.

Even this, however, does not in the type complete the ceremony, or in the fact complete the blessing. One crowned, yet without power, would occupy a pitiable position; would be an object of mockery rather than of envy. The Great Director of this wondrous consecration provides what meets the necessity. Lev. viii. 12 tells how Moses "poured of the anointing oil on Aaron's head, and anointed him to sanctify him." With the great Antitype the fulfilment comes as in Heb. i. 9: "Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated iniquity; therefore God...hath anointed Thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows." With those who are priests, because united to Him, the assurance is that of Acts i. 8: "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." The result of such anointing is, not only power, but also holiness. Lev. xxi. 12 says of such: "The crown of the anointing oil of his God is upon him." Such a one was (see ver. 10, 11) to avoid all defilement from whatever cause. Called to high and holy office, he is called to

PURITY CONSISTENT WITH IT.

So then stands the priest, consecrated after God's own direction, supplied by Him with all that his office demanded or heart could desire. How great the dignity; how high the honour. Surely in such a position the priest stands secure. Here, if anywhere, may we expect sinless perfection. But do we find it? Nothing in the whole Word of God is more solemn than the teaching which comes out of Lev. viii. 14. The first step after consecration is the sacrifice of THE SIN OFFERING. Here is the intimation of remaining defilement; here the acknowledgment of remaining guilt. There is still need of bloodshedding; still need of reconciliation (15); and the offering must be burned within the camp, "as the Lord commanded Moses." Whatever may be our position, to whatsoever heights of holiness we may attain, we shall never throughout time be independent of our great sin offering. Nay, more. As our standing in the glory must ever rest on the work finished on Calvary, never throughout eternity shall we be independent of the blood.

The "burnt offering" followed (18). It indicated the complete and entire surrender of the whole being, without exception or reserve, to the Divine will. God will have his servant

COMPLETELY YIELDED UP TO HIMSELF.

Then, finally, came the offering of "the ram of consecration" (22), and the putting of its blood on the right ear, the right thumb, and the right great toe of the consecrated priest. The ear to hear, the hand to serve, the foot to walk in all the commandments of the Lord must ever be under the power and influence of the blood. Not the whole man only, but each individual member, is included in God's demand on those separated to Himself. And thus would God indicate the complete, entire, unreserved surrender to Himself of him whom He chooses and calls to serve Him as priest.

But what follows on this? Now for the first time is Aaron called on or permitted to do anything. Hitherto he has been completely passive. Yielding of himself to God has been his only part in the consecration. Now he is permitted and directed to make an offering to God. See Lev. viii. 28, where Moses takes the things to be offered from Aaron's hands, and burns them on the altar upon the burnt offering.

But the offering itself is no exception to God's rule of providing everything which in any way comes into the ceremony of consecration. Verses 25-27 show that the fat and the kidneys, and the shoulder, and the loaf and wafer, all came of the provision which Moses, under God's direction, had made. Here the true meaning of consecration becomes evident. Before Aaron can offer, Moses must fill his hands (see Exod. xxix. 9, margin). Consecration in its simplest idea is God "filling the hands" of his chosen priest. Take the list of the offerings in verses 25-27. How much more could Aaron's hands have held? But every particle of what God thus accepted was first God's gift. How great soever our offerings, we can only say of them, as David did (1 Chron. xxix. 14), "Of thine own have we given Thee."

But of what God put into Aaron's hands nothing was to be kept back for self. All was to go on to the altar, and on the altar it was to be consumed. Surely a severe trial of faith! But was the priest who obeyed this direction thereby left to want? From the full basket, God had taken for Himself (Exod. xxix. 23) one loaf, one cake, one wafer, all the remainder, in full and abundant supply, remained for the priest. Are we, as consecrated and anointed, called to similar sacrifice, does God call on us to lay on the altar of service all that He has Himself given? We are sometimes ready to object and say, "But if so, how am I to live? What is to become of wife and children?" If, in what we are doing, we are simply carrying out God's command, there is no need for fear. He accepts what Himself has given, but where He does, He bestows

MANIFOLD MORE THAN HE TAKES.

The supply for the priest was not only given; he was commanded to partake of it. Even before priestly service came priestly privilege and enjoyment. Lev. viii. 31, "Boil the flesh at the door of the tabernacle...and there eat it," &c. The Lord knew that for efficient service strength was required, and, as a means to strength, the partaking of the food was divinely commanded. But was that all? A new thought arises from Exod. xxix. 33, where, of this same food it is directed: "They shall eat THOSE THINGS WHEREWITH THE ATONEMENT WAS MADE." The result of eating is the identification of the food with the eater. Eaten and assimilated food becomes an essential part of him who has eaten. God's direction there commands the absolute identification of his priest with the offering. Does not the word "atonement" at once lead us to Him who is the propitiation for our sins: to Him "by whom we have now received the atonement" (Rom. v. 11).

And where are we to find the blessed antitype of which all this was but the figure? Turn to John vi. 53, "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man...ye have no life in you." Absolute and complete identification with the Lord Jesus Christ is therefore the true position of each true believer, as a member of the holy priesthood. The type made this still clearer. The direction as to eating in Lev. viii. 31 was not confined to the flesh. "Eat it with the bread that is in the basket of consecration." Unleavened bread, therefore, is a type of that which was entirely without sin. John vi. 50, 51 has the same connection. "This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die...The bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world." Here is not the Lord's Supper. We bless God for that ordinance—that blessed feast of remembrance—that in which we recall the cross, and look forward to the glory. But it is, like the consecration feast we are dwelling on, only a figure of that greater and better food of which John vi. speaks. In the Lord's Supper we have the shadow—this is the substance, feeding not only to the satisfying of the soul, but absolutely identifying us with Christ.

Yet notice the safeguard put on this. Lev. xxii. 3: "Whosoever...goeth unto the holy things...having his uncleanness upon him, that soul shall be cut off from my presence"; and the same is taught in Lev. vii. 20. Conscious sin presents an absolute or privilege. Where such a bar exists, it must be removed. Lev. xxii. 6 prescribes "washing" as the means whereby the hindrance is taken away and enjoyment restored.

BAR TO SPIRITUAL ENJOYMENT

After privilege and identification—not before, remember—comes priestly service. Take Lev. ix. Here it is no longer Moses acting and Aaron standing passive; it is Aaron who is found doing everything, under the direction of God, through Moses. See verse 8 and the following verses. Then and thenceforth service, divinely appointed and directed even to the least matters, was his occupation, and that was never to cease while life lasted.

But here, too, was provision made for worthy service. Exod. xxx. 18-21 ordered the placing of the laver of brass, and God's command was: "Aaron and his sons shall wash their hands and their feet thereat: when they go into the tabernacle of the congregation, they shall wash with water, that they die not; or when they come near to the altar to minister...they shall wash their hands and their feet, that they die not: and it shall be a statute for ever to them." God will have no service from sin-defiled hands. Before we approach his temple or his altar, sin must be washed away in the fountain opened for sin and uncleanness. Ps. xxiv. 3, 4: "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart."

With some minds confusion arises here. They say, "Surely our sins were washed away and cleansed when we accepted Christ, when we believed in Him. What need we further washing?" The type may help to remove misapprehension. Aaron had come for washing as the very first step. He had stood naked to be washed and cleansed from head to foot. That washing (except on the great Day of Atonement) stood alone. For the washing which followed, the robe needed not to be put off; but the hands and feet needed to be cleansed. Is it not so in personal experience? Is it not when we are walking in the light, as He is in the light, that "the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin"? Is not this the meaning of Our Lord's teaching in John xiii. 10: "He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit"?

Our robe of righteousness is not put off. Our position as is neither renounced nor questioned. But there is the consciousness that contact with this dusty and defiling world leaves stains and blemishes which call for constant washing—constant contact with the blood.

"ACCEPTED IN THE BELOVED"

And now, only one more thought. The command of God is what is prominent in these chapters. In almost everything it is "As the Lord commanded Moses." Complete obedience to the commands was to have a blessed result and reward. See Lev. ix. 4, 6, 23. The result of obedience was to be God's manifestation of Himself to his servant: "This is the thing which the Lord commanded that ye should do: and the glory of the Lord shall appear unto you." The commands were obeyed, the directions were carried out, and then the assurance was even more than fulfilled. The glory of the Lord appeared not only to his priest, but also, as following on his explicit obedience, to all the people (23).

Why have we come together in this Conference? Is it not with the desire that God would manifest his presence among us—give us clearer views of Himself, so that we may increase in the knowledge of Him? Then let us learn the final lesson, that the condition of his revealing Himself is our implicit obedience to his revealed will. I would leave with you, as a closing message, the word of the Lord, as recorded in John xiv. 21: "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth Me: and he that loveth Me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest Myself unto him." Amen.

SCOTTISH PROTESTANT ALLIANCE.—At a meeting of the Alliance in Glasgow last week, it was resolved to oppose the proposal of Mr. Gladstone to throw open new high offices of State to Roman Catholics. It is contrary to the letter and spirit of the British Constitution to appoint aliens in faith and allegiance to such important places. It is neither reasonable nor safe to put the seals of office into the hands of men who are in league with an antagonistic Power which ignores Protestant rights and anathematises the Protestant religion.

The Slum Pioneer

OF THE SALVATION ARMY.

BY MAJOR J. J. COOKE.

THE Lord has seen fit to take home the Slum Pioneer of the Salvation Army, "Mother" Webb. It is nearly five years since Mrs. Cooke and I were billetted at Mr. and Mrs. Webb's house in Battersea for the Sunday's meetings of the corps. During our stay they told us that the Lord had called them fully into the Army work. At that time they were very useful soldiers, and "Dad" and "Mother" were each over fifty, so we, in our ignorance of the Divine plans, tried to dissuade them from such a step, thinking they were too old. True to their leadings, however, they obeyed, offered themselves, and were accepted by Mr. Bramwell Booth.

For a considerable time we had been much exercised as to how we could reach the poorest, the outcasts. Those we had got hold of in our halls became, as a result of salvation, respectable, and so in process of time, our barracks were being filled with well dressed people, and the ragged felt almost as uncomfortable with us as they would in church. What could be done to reach the "submerged tenth?" One answer only seemed to be driven home to our hearts, and that was,

LIVE AMONG THEM,

be as one of them, accept poverty as your own portion, show by your life in the slums as well as your words the power of Jesus Christ to save.

"Mother" Webb was honoured by being chosen as the Slum Pioneer. I do not pretend to say that others equally devoted from the churches had not done the same—all honour to those blessed servants of Jesus; but we, as Salvationists, had not done so. This blessed step was taken in October, 1886.

It is impossible for me to describe what self-denial that step involved. I will try, however, to give a few ideas of it. Let it be borne in mind that she was almost fifty-two, and from her girlhood delicate—a martyr to rheumatism.

Her obedience to the Lord meant the sacrifice of

(1) Pure air for an atmosphere filled with disease, the smell of which was at times unbearable.

(2) A comparatively pure, moral neighbourhood for surroundings of vice in the lowest and most filthy forms; the chief sins being drunkenness, immorality, gambling, Sabbath-breaking, disgusting language.

(3) The society of her beloved husband from Monday morning to Saturday evening.

(4) The fellowship of a warm-hearted, enthusiastic, praying band of Salvationists for the company of devils in human form.

(5) A very comfortable home for a vermin-filled, comfortless "home," where she was liable to be awakened any time during the night by the vermin inside, or shrieks on the stairs outside, up or down stairs, or in the streets, from some wife, man, girl, or boy that was being almost murdered.

Need I say any more to show what that sacrifice meant? For the power to make it, let God have all the glory.

Just a few words now as to the results of the sacrifice.

(1) The salvation, we believe, of about two hundred slummers, whom "Mother" Webb and other slum officers found ill-nursed, and pointed to the Lamb of God, since which they died triumphantly.

(2) The rescue of at least five hundred of our poor fallen sisters, many of whom have died trusting, others have been restored to their homes; others are in situations, and some are now in Rescue Homes. Every Slum Home is also a receiving house for any fallen girl who chooses to accept refuge for one night.

(3) The salvation of, we believe, thousands of souls, many being notorious characters.

(4) The raising up of a devoted band of young women, there now being

A HUNDRED SLUM OFFICERS.

(5) The establishment of thirty Slum Corps and two crèches in London and the provinces.

We have now nearly five hundred slum soldiers working amongst their brethren. Great changes are coming over the slums where our devoted "lasses" toil; crime is sensibly diminished. We have, as a rule, little trouble to get crowds of slummers to listen to the straightest truths of salvation.

Dear "Mother" Webb was a true pioneer, for she was full of holy courage, fearlessly visited public-houses, lodging-houses, brothels, &c.; held open-air meetings at the peril of her life. She had wonderful perseverance in going through the slum forest. Her heart was full of Christ-like sympathy for the worst. Her confidence in the Lord seemed boundless.

Cancer in the throat broke the silver cord. Although she suffered considerable pain, she never seemed troubled about death. Many times she said:

I'm nearer home—I'll soon be there.

Her last message to our slum officers, about whom she was very anxious, was "Be good; pray more about your work."

This slum work we are determined to extend. Appeals have come to us from all over the country—"Send us some slum officers"; but our hands are tied. We want volunteers; who will step into the gap left by dear Mrs. Webb? Our great need is for young women with big, loving, sanctified hearts. Do not fear for support; He who has fed us will supply your needs. Intending candidates should apply to me at 179, Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C.

A HAPPY AND HOLY YEAR.

TO-DAY'S DESIRE.

Most Holy Spirit, come, oh, come in fulness,
And re-possess to-day each waiting heart;
Refresh, subdue, restore, give life and beauty,
Yea, all we need do Thou to us impart!

Oh, link us on afresh in closer union
To that one Life in whom we each would grow;
And more of all Thou hast already given,
We humbly ask that Thou wilt now bestow!

More love we crave; a burning, pure devotion—
More love to Christ, more Christ-like love to men;
More joy Divine—the joy of self-forgetting,
The joy of saying to God's will "Amen"!

More peace when winds are rough and seas are raging,
When faith can scarcely hear the "It is I";
When hopes are dashed in wild relentless fury
Athwart some rock, and we behold them die!

We also do beseech of Thee long-suffering—
More kindness, too, may we to others show;
More goodness that will stand the test of heaven,
More faithfulness to Christ whilst here below!

More meekness under hard and heartless pressure;
More temperance in thought, in word, in deed!
For all these things we wait, Almighty Spirit,
For Jesus' sake, oh, satisfy our need!

CHARLOTTE MURRAY.

(Hastings: Henry Randle. London: S. W. Partridge.)

GLASGOW WEST-END CHRISTIAN UNION.—At the annual meeting of this Union, Mr. J. W. Arthur, secretary, read the report on the work of the year. Fellowship meetings were held regularly in the past winter, and also evangelistic meetings. Open-air work was also carried on in Sauchiehall-street, and, during the summer, at the park gate. Visits were paid to many of the homes—industrial, reformatory, and such like—in the neighbourhood of Glasgow, and good work done among them. The Union helped very materially in furthering Mr. Mackeith's fresh-air fortnightly scheme. Mr. Archibald Orr Ewing, of the China Inland Mission, closed with a missionary address.

LATEST AND COMPLETE EDITIONS.

Sacred Songs and Solos:

WITH STANDARD HYMNS COMBINED.

CONTAINING 750 PIECES IN ONE VOLUME.

COMPILED AND SUNG BY Ira D. Sankey.

MUSIC AND WORDS.

Old Notation.

		s.	d.
FF 1.	Tinted Covers	3	6
FF 2.	Cloth Limp	4	6
FF 3.	Cloth Boards	5	6
FF 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	6	6
FF 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	10	6
FF 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	14	6

Old Notation.

(SMALLER SIZE.)

HH 1.	Tinted Covers	2	6
HH 2.	Cloth Limp	3	0
HH 3.	Cloth Boards	3	6
HH 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	4	0
HH 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	6	6
HH 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	9	6

Tonic Sol-fa.

RR 1.	Tinted Covers	2	6
RR 2.	Cloth Limp	3	0
RR 3.	Cloth Boards	3	6
RR 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	4	0
RR 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	6	6
RR 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	9	6

WORDS ONLY.

Small Type.

		s.	d.
AA 1.	Tinted Covers	0	2
AA 2.	Blocked Cloth	0	3

Nonpareil Edition.

BB 1.	Tinted Covers	0	4½
BB 2.	Blocked Cloth	0	6

Pocket Edition.

CC 1.	Cloth Limp	0	9
CC 2.	Cloth Boards	1	0
CC 3.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	1	6
CC 4.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	3	0
CC 5.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	4	6

Large Type.

DD 1.	Tinted Covers	1	0
DD 2.	Cloth Limp	1	6
DD 3.	Cloth Boards	2	0
DD 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	2	6
DD 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	4	6

Extra Large Type.

EE 1.	Tinted Covers	2	0
EE 2.	Cloth Limp	2	6
EE 3.	Cloth Boards	3	0
EE 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	3	6
EE 5.	Morocco Limp, Gilt Edges	6	6
EE 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	9	6

QUARTO EDITIONS:

For use at the Piano, Harmonium, or Organ.

	s.	d.
Cloth Boards	7	6
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	9	6
Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	17	6
Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	25	0

Sacred Songs & Solos (750 PIECES) and The Christian Choir (79 PIECES).

829 PIECES IN ONE VOLUME.

WORDS ONLY.

Small Type.

		s.	d.
XA 1.	Tinted Covers	0	3
XA 2.	Printed Cloth	0	4

Ruby Leaded Edition.

XB 1.	Tinted Covers	0	6
XB 2.	Cloth Limp	0	9
XB 3.	Cloth Boards	1	0
XB 4.	Cloth Boards, Gilt Edges	1	6
XB 5.	Morocco, Gilt Edges	3	6

WORDS ONLY.

Extra Large Type.

XE 1.	Tinted Covers	2	6
XE 2.	Cloth Limp	3	0
XE 3.	Cloth Boards	3	6
XE 4.	Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	4	0
XE 5.	Morocco, Gilt Edges	7	6
XE 6.	Morocco Yapped, Kid Lined	10	6

QUARTO EDITIONS:

For use at the Piano, Harmonium, or Organ.

	s.	d.
Cloth Boards	8	6
Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	10	6
Persian Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	20	0
Best Turkey Morocco, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges	27	6

A COMPLETE LIST of the Editions of SONGS & SOLOS with Specimens of Type may be had on application to the Publishers.

WORKS BY Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

Abraham:

10th THOUSAND.

Or, the Obedience of Faith.

With Nine Specially Engraved Illustrations.

"Mr. MEYER is a meditative writer, keen to observe the spiritual suggestions of Bible narrative: and the contents of the volume before us are such that no one can rise from their perusal without feeling consciously strengthened in God, and inspired afresh for the godly life. Our teachers may learn from this biography how to draw out the spiritual lessons of the Sacred Word. The volume is beautifully illustrated, and so tastefully bound as to be a most acceptable gift-book."
Sunday School Chronicle.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"Really a very beautiful work, which will be read with delight by many a fireside."—The Freeman.

Israel:

13th THOUSAND.

A Prince with God.

With Nine Specially Engraved Illustrations.

"Mr. MEYER has great descriptive power. He can tell a narrative well. This subject in his hand glows with life, and the scenes and events in the history of his hero pass vividly before you: and are ever being used to force home some important principle."
British Messenger.

"This biography of Jacob might have been written as a memoir: it is so unbroken in interest, vivid in delineation of character, and comprehensive in criticism and comment. With a keen moral insight, and a deep spiritual sympathy, the author describes the piety and weakness of the best-beloved of the Patriarchs."
Christian Leader.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition: Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

Elijah:

15th THOUSAND.

and the Secret of his Power.

"The leading object of this volume is to show that Elijah's God is our God; and how a like power may be ours if our dependence is in the living God. It is encouraging and stimulating; yet full of solemn warnings. Some parts are grandly written, and of thrilling interest. We would commend the book to all, especially to Christian workers."
Footsteps of Truth.

Cloth Boards, 2s. 6d.

Presentation Edition Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges, 3s. 6d.

"Good, exceedingly good! Mr. MEYER is a great gain to the armies of evangelical truth; for his tone, spirit, and aspirations are all of a fine Gospel sort. This work is nicely got up: and will be a good exchange for half-a-crown."—Sword and Trowel.

The Shepherd Psalm.

19th THOUSAND.

Meditations on the 23rd Psalm.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

"We have never read anything so charming on the Twenty-third Psalm as this volume from the pen of Mr. MEYER. It is full of beauty and poetry. Anything that this gifted and spiritual author writes requires no recommendation, as he is well-known to the Christian public. The present volume is charming in the depth of spiritual tone pervading it. The devout reader will find it one of the most comforting, cheering, and inspiring books he can read."—Irish Congregational Magazine.

Cloth Boards, 1s.

Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s. 6d.

The Present Tenses of the Blessed Life.

21st THOUSAND.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

"Mr. MEYER'S monitory word is most helpful. The hints he throws out are eminently practical; and the accent of conviction, derived from personal experience in utilising the truth of the Master's constant nearness, invests this little treatise with a contagious spiritual energy. Seldom are we able to recommend a work of this class with such unqualified confidence."
Christian Leader.

Cloth Boards, 1s.

Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s. 6d.

Christian Living.

20th THOUSAND.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A.

"Full of sweetness and light. No Christian can read it with a docile spirit and fail to receive stimulus in the direction whither the true-hearted would go. Its light will make clear the path to higher joys and a worthier service."
Cambridgeshire Congregational Magazine.

"Clear, attractive, sympathetic, living, and above all clothed with 'unction,' we feel sure these words will bring light and blessing to their readers."
Divine Life.

Cloth Boards, 1s.

Cloth, Bev. Boards, Gilt Edges, 1s. 6d.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. And may be ordered of any Bookseller in the Kingdom.

THE LONDON FEMALE PENITENTIARY AND GUARDIAN SOCIETY.

Founded at Pentonville A.D. 1807, for the RESCUE, RECLAMATION, and PROTECTION of BETRAYED and FALLEN WOMEN, with immediate and FREE admission to applicants.

10,000 Young Women have been welcomed to these HOMES—most of them for a residence of 18 months—irrespective of the large number who have been temporarily helped and sheltered.

6,000 have been placed in service or restored to friends, and, in addition, very many have received impressions which have resulted in a change of heart. The Annual Report gives particulars of the great good accomplished.

The Homes have accommodation for 100 Inmates, and are nearly always full. It is a sad fact, that about two-thirds of these cases have been natives of the provinces, while nearly one-half have been orphans, cast upon the world without a friend, many being mere children. The Committee are in URGENT NEED OF FUNDS, as the Society has NO ENDOWMENT OR RESERVE whatever. Collecting cards sent to any address on application. CONTRIBUTIONS may be sent to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Office of THE CHRISTIAN, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.; or will be gratefully acknowledged if sent to the Secretary,

W. EDWIN PAGE.

STAMFORD HOUSE, STOKE NEWINGTON, LONDON, N.

THE LONDON CITY MISSION.

Evangelical in its Doctrines, unsectarian in its operations, Scriptural in its methods, and pioneering in its character, the Committee earnestly pray that it may ever be kept as the humble handmaid of the Churches, reliant only upon the Word and Spirit of the Living God for its success.

HOW WE WORK.

1. By visitation in the homes, work-shops, factories, places of public resort, &c
2. By conducting open-air services, when, by speech and song, men are called to repentance.
3. By holding meetings for the exposition and enforcing of Divine truth in cottages and mission rooms.
4. By the judicious circulation of Scriptural tracts and Christian literature, and urging the people to attend the house of God.
5. By "special" visitation of the sick, the sorrowing, and the dying.
6. By seeking to reclaim the drunkard and to promote habits of thrift.

FIVE HUNDRED MISSIONARIES ARE NOW EMPLOYED.

Amongst other results during the past year are the following:—

Families induced to commence family prayer	1,052
Induced to attend public worship ..	5,520
New and restored Communicants.. ..	2,661
Drunkards reformed	1,923

Contributions are urgently needed for continuing this important work amongst large classes who are to a great extent outside the influence of the Churches.

F. A. BEVAN, Treasurer.
T. S. HUTCHINSON, M.A. } Secretaries.
ROBERT DAWSON, B.A. }

Office—3, BRIDEWELL-PLACE, E.C.
Bankers—Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54, Lombard-street.

BALDWIN & WALKER'S KNITTING AND FANCY WOOLS

HIGHLAND WOOLS
FINGERING WOOLS
VEST WOOLS
SHETLAND WOOLS
In Great Variety

Special makes for Machine Knitters WOOLS

GOLD MEDAL LIVERPOOL, 1886.

SOLD BY ALL LEADING WOOL DEALERS & DRAPERS
If any difficulty is found in obtaining, apply to Manufacturers, who will gladly send address of nearest Retailer.

ESTABLISHED 1836 WEST CROFT MILLS, HALIFAX, YORKS.

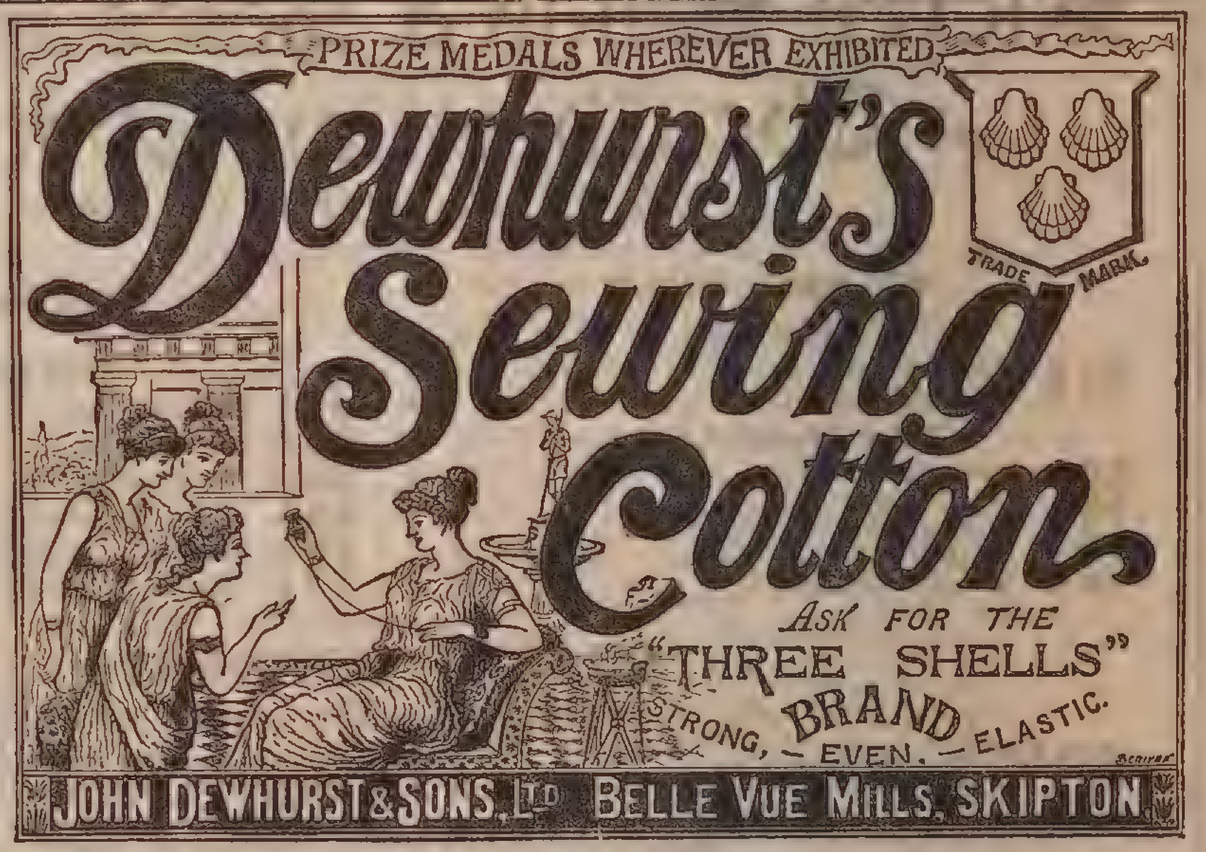
PRIZE MEDALS WHEREVER EXHIBITED

Dewhurst's Sewing Cotton

TRADE MARK

ASK FOR THE "THREE SHELLS" BRAND
STRONG, — EVEN. — ELASTIC.



JOHN DEWHURST & SONS, LTD BELLE VUE MILLS, SKIPTON

MISSION HALLS, VILLAGE CHAPELS, SUNDAY SCHOOLS, &c.

A HOUSEHOLD TREASURE.

NEED NEVER BE WITHOUT AN INSTRUMENT.

THE CABINET ROLLER ORGAN.

The GEM ROLLER ORGAN, Price 30s. with 3 Rollers.

NEW ILLUSTRATED PRICE LIST ON APPLICATION.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND SENT OUT YEARLY.

Is quite sufficient to lead a Congregation of 100 People. Any one can play it well. 100 Rollers of Popular Sacred Tunes now ready; others in preparation. Strong, and quite portable. Invaluable for Cottage Meetings.

NO KNOWLEDGE OF MUSIC IS REQUIRED.

The tone is of surprising power, very rich, and blends beautifully with the human voice in SINGING. At the top of the instrument is arranged the Swell, by which the most beautiful variations can be given to the music. It plays thousands of tunes, both sacred and secular.

The Cabinet Roller Organ is Selling in Thousands. Price, packed in strong deal box, including Six Rollers of Music, £2 15s. Carriage Paid to any address in Great Britain or Ireland.

N.B.—Please to make all Post Office Orders payable at the General Post Office, Glasgow, to JOHN CAMPBELL, but be careful to address all Letters with Orders to Messrs. CAMPBELL & Co., Musical Instrument Makers, 116, Trongate, Glasgow.

THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS.

"10, Walnut Tree-road, East Greenwich, London, S.E.

"Messrs. CAMPBELL & Co.

GENTLEMEN,—The Cabinet Roller-Organ reached me safely on the Saturday that I requested, and I am much obliged to you for your kind attention. I am exceedingly pleased with the instrument. It possesses a rich, mellow, and most charming tone; besides which, externally, it is quite an adornment to any house, and especially it is a most valuable and desirable acquisition for the multitude who are unable to create music for themselves. Again thanking you for your kind attention, I remain, Gentlemen, yours faithfully,

"FREDERICK HAYNES."

ORGAN.

'NG EDWARD RAGGED SCHOOLS.

IE good work done in East London by the ing Edward Mission Ragged Schools and stitute is known far and wide; and if the ed for it were more realised, and the cellence of the many operations duly preciated, the Institution would stand still gher in the estimate of the benevolent public. The operations are religious, educational, and cial, all of them benevolent in aim, and many them pursued on the principle of helping ose who are willing to help themselves. The acious building in Albert-street, Spitalfields, a veritable hive of well-ordered industry the part of devoted friends of the poor and eglected. Young people are instructed on undays in the way of godliness, and on week-ays in regard to life and its duties; and housands of poor mothers and needy children re helped and comforted in a variety of ways. The forty-fifth annual meeting was held on Monday evening, under the presidency of Lord OMPTON. The report presented by the hon. ec., Mr. Charles Montague, described no fewer han thirty-eight operations, all being actively orked. The CHAIRMAN rejoiced in view of the uccess which has attended the efforts of the nany workers. Referring to General Booth's cheme, he said: If there is the smallest hance of success, let the scheme be tried. hould we be justified in doing or saying any-hing to hinder it? Should we not rather pray or it, that it may prove a blessing; that all ifficulties may be removed; that no harm nay be done by it, and that charity may not e diverted from other good objects at the resent time? The King Edward School vorkers set themselves especially to care for he young, and his Lordship concluded by ointing out that of all kinds of endeavour this s most interesting and hopeful. His kind vords to the teachers and others were grace-ully echoed by Lady Compton. A brief ddress was afterwards delivered by Rev. Burman Cassin.

SCOTTISH Y.M.C.A.'S.

GLASGOW.

THE annual meeting and conversazione of the Glasgow Y.M.C.A. was held last week in St. Andrew's Hall. There was a crowded attendance. Sir John Neilson Cuthbertson, who occupied the chair, congratulated the Association on the large gathering, and remarked on the many different occupations in which the members of the Associa-ion were engaged, from manual labour up to the highest pursuits of professional life. Different as were their positions, everyone possessed immense capacities for good or evil. The future of the country depended on its young men, and he asked them to consider the great possibilities of their lives. They all, doubtless, had their ambitions, and a lawful ambition was the right of every man; but in all their strivings after success he urged them to do nothing that was inconsistent with their Christian duty.

Mr. Oatts, General Secretary, read the annual report, which showed that the membership of the Association at present is 8951. The temperance and evangelistic work is being vigorously prose-cuted, and is meeting with most gratifying results. The financial statement for the year was of a most satisfactory character. Mr. E. J. Kennedy, of London, and Rev. John Smith, of Edinburgh, also addressed the meeting.

EDINBURGH.

The jubilee meetings of the Young Men's Chris-tian Association have been held, and have been most successful throughout. At the closing meet-ing it came out that in Edinburgh alone no less than 25,000 young men do not go to church. Go where you like (says a correspondent), you hear nothing but complaints that it is not considered in the least disreputable nowadays for people, and especially young people, going to the extent of never crossing a church door.

Raising the Sunken Tenth.

GENERAL BOOTH'S gigantic "scheme" continues to receive great attention from the public, both by way of criticism and promised help. According to the latest advice, nearly £80,000 has been registered towards the £100,000 asked for. The General has visited Leeds, Newcastle, Glasgow, Edinburgh, and other centres, and advocated his scheme, making on the whole a favourable im-pression and receiving promises of substantial help.

In the course of his address in Glasgow, Mr. Booth said it was a libel on the generosity of the Christian churches to suppose they could not find the money he asked for without trenching on what was due to others. Speaking at Edinburgh, he said he was anxious to start the scheme as soon as possible, and hoped that by the close of January they would be free to set it agoing.

One Edinburgh clerical critic declines to counte-nance the scheme, because it only deals with the symptoms rather than with the causes of evil. The money he thinks would be better spent in prevent-ing overcrowding, the adulteration of liquors, and improvident marriages.

An extensive correspondence has been going on in the columns of The Times with respect to General Booth's proposals. Professor Huxley has entered the lists against them, and declines to pass on £1000 entrusted to him by a philanthropic friend to give to the General if he approved. He disapproves of the Army's version of Christianity, as well as of the autocratic methods of the General, and predicts the failure of the scheme. In the same issue of The Times, Mr. Loch, secre-tary of the Charity Organisation Society, objects to the scheme as inadequate to meet the necessities of the case, and urges that the existing isolated efforts should be organised and centralised.

In Saturday's Times there are four lengthy letters on the subject. The first is from Lord Meath, who says that though a member of the Council of the Charity Organisation Society, he is for giving General Booth's experiment a fair trial. Then follows a letter from Rev. J. W. Horsley, of Woolwich, the well-known prison chaplain, who asserts that General Booth's account in his book of the conditions imposed on those who resort to casual wards is grossly exaggerated. Mr. Horsley protests against the assumption that General Booth alone has the desire or power to save the miserable and the lost, and says that much prison and rescue work is being accomplished with an experience that the General does not possess. Mr. Francis Peek, in turn, criticises Professor Hux-ley's and Mr. Loch's criticisms, and says that if a third part of the outcasts dealt with are reclaimed, the £100,000 will be the best spent money ever given in charity. "A London Clergyman" winds up the day's discussion by a thorough-going defence of General Booth's scheme. He says that of five thousand fallen women who have been received in an Army Refuge in Hackney, there is evidence to show that two thousand have been reclaimed. In his opinion the Army has done tenfold more good than the Charity Organisation Society, and has done it in an infinitely more human and tender way.

In his Thursday lecture of last week at the City Temple, Dr. Parker made a spirited and humourous reply to Professor Huxley's criticisms on the scheme. In answer to the Professor's objection that some future general of the army might abuse his powers, Dr. Parker said that on the same ground he would be justified in declining to pay taxes, because some future ruler of England might not do his duty. Even a "corybantic" Christianity (using Professor Huxley's pedantic adjective) was preferable to delirium tremens and starvation. Why did not the wise critics of Mr. Booth's scheme begin one themselves? There was plenty of room for more than one.

Many ministers throughout the country are making "Darkest England" the theme of sermons or addresses. In a sermon, Dr. Goodrich, of Man-chester, said that, while acknowledging to the full the success of past efforts, he considered there was room for the General's scheme and many more. He thought Mr. Booth would use the money he got with economy and success. Dr. Walter Smith, of Edinburgh, similarly, has expressed the opinion that if the Army can do the needed work, "in God's name let it do it, and let them help for it to do it." Rev. George A. Smith, of Aberdeen, in a recent discourse, regarded Mr. Booth's attitude towards existing missions and charities as unjust to those who had endeavoured to attack this urgent pro-blem. At the same time, he supported and com-mended the scheme, as being in good hands; but organisations already at work must not be neg-lected. Two chapels in Bristol have just given £553 and £388 respectively. The Home Colonisa-tion Society, with the consent of the subscribers, will hand over its funds, amounting to £4000 or £5000, to Mr. Booth, towards the Farm Colony.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has addressed a letter to General Booth, in which he speaks kindly and hopefully of the effort, but he is not convinced that the characteristic modes of the Army are capable of producing lasting moral effects. He also objects to the economic principles of the scheme, and thinks its centralisation will create difficulties in the future. The Bishop of Bedford denies the success claimed by the Army, and com-plains that its East-end Shelters are leading to an influx of the riffraff of the country. Some support would appear to be given to this remark by a report that the roads in Warwickshire are said to be swarming with vagrants en route to London, with the idea of getting help from General Booth.

An interview with Rev. W. Cuff, of Shoreditch, is reported in The Baptist of last week. That paper considers that the British public has gone into hysterics over the new enterprise, and is liable to forget existing organisations. Mr. Cuff regards the General's scheme as Utopian, and laments that churches which have been doing good and effective work in the poor neighbourhoods of London, for many years, should be placed in diffi-culties now, through the diverting of help into the new channel. He contends that most of the Army workers have been drawn from the churches, and not from the lapsed masses, and declares that it is a base falsehood to say that the Army has reached a class which the churches have failed to touch. As to the effect of the scheme on his own congrega-tional work in the East End, Mr. Cuff says they have never been in such monetary straits as they are now.

General Booth will advocate his scheme at an early meeting of the Hardwick Debating Society, which has its home in the Inner Temple. Its discussion by an audience learned in law can hardly fail to be of interest.

In Tuesday's Times Professor Huxley has an-other long letter, but advances no new argument. In the same issue a very sympathetic letter appears from Mr. H. J. Atkinson, M.P., who promises for himself and his wife a large donation that they "may sleep more comfortably this winter from the knowledge that their almoners are doing the difficult part of the work." He is of opinion that those who cannot help General Booth should "not bless at all, nor curse at all."

UNITED WORK.—A joint circular has been issued by Revs. Dr. J. B. Paton, Nottingham; R. Westrope, Leeds; and J. A. Meeson, Harrogate, recommending the union of Free Evangelical churches in each town and district for the promo-tion of temperance, social and religious work; also the election of a Central Council of representatives of various denominations, to supervise and direct scattered local unions.

THE CONDUCT OF PUBLIC MEN.—The Committee on Temperance and Public Morals of the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland has forwarded a copy of the following resolution to Lord Salisbury and Mr. Gladstone:—"In view of recent disclosures in the Divorce Court, this com-mittee feels constrained to record and express its decided and solemn conviction that purity of life is an essential qualification in the political representatives of the people; and that, therefore, any member of Parliament, whose life is notoriously immoral, or who has been publicly convicted of offences against the moral law, is unfit to represent any constituency in this kingdom, or to exercise the functions of membership in the Supreme Legislature."

TRAMPS' MISSION.—On a very unpretending scale we opened, on December 5, a Tramps' Mission. Intimations were sent to the different lodging-houses that a free tea would be given with an evan-gelistic address afterwards. Our meeting-place is an upper room in the old disused poorhouse. Our tea-party numbered ten; one was a woman, one a little boy, and the others men. We gave them as much tea, bread and butter, and jelly as they cared to take, and they were most grateful. After tea we sang, prayed, read the Scriptures, and gave a short address. They seemed most attentive, and we trust the word may be blessed.

J. SPENCE ROBERTSON, Parish Minister.
Old Cumnock, N.B.

HODDER & STOUGHTON'S LIST.

NEW CHRISTMAS BOOKLET.

Now Ready, paper covers, 1s.; cloth, gilt (in a few days), 2s. 6d.

Pax Vobiscum.

By the Author of

"The Greatest Thing in the World."

Now Ready. Fcap. 8vo, cloth, 1s. 6d.

Echoes of Two Little Voices.

By G. M. S. With Frontispiece.

With an Introduction by the Rev. J. H. WILSON, D.D., Barclay Church, Edinburgh.

Now Ready. Crown 8vo., cloth, 1s. 6d.

Life Among the Close Brethren.

Reprinted from "The British Weekly."

Now Ready. Second Edition. Third Thousand. Crown 8vo., cloth, price 6s.

The Living Christ and the Four Gospels.

By R. W. DALE, LL.D., Birmingham.

"An unanswerable argument for the verity of the Christian religion.—Christian.

Now Ready. Crown 8vo., cloth, 6s.

The Visible God,

and our Relation to Him in Creation and Redemption.

"Ably written."—Scotsman.

Now Ready. Crown 8vo., cloth, 4s.

THE INTERNATIONAL LESSONS FOR 1891.

Bible Studies.

By G. F. PENTECOST, D.D.

I. ISRAEL AND JUDAH.
II. THE GOSPEL OF ST. JOHN.

Now Ready. Third Edition. Crown 8vo., cloth, 3s. 6d.

Human Destiny.

By ROBERT ANDERSON, LL.D., Assistant Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis.

"His book contains much that is valuable, and is loyal th oughout to the teaching of Scripture."—Record.

By the same Author.

Third Edition. Crown 8vo., 5s.

The Coming Prince,

The last Great Monarch of Christendom.

"Dr. Anderson's valuable and suggestive work."
Rock.

WORKS BY G. H. PEMBER, M.A.

1. THE ANTI-CHRIST, BABYLON, AND THE COMING OF THE KINGDOM. Second Edition. Crown 8vo., 3s. 6d.

"Whatever may be thought about the author's interpre ation of prophecy, there can be no question about the vivacity and enthusiasm which make his pages as readable as a romance."—Literary World.

2. EARTH'S EARLIEST AGES; and their Connection with Modern Spiritualism and Theosophy. Fifth Edition. Crown 8vo., 7s. 6d.

"He has collected a number of most serious facts, to which the attention of the Christian world ought to be called."—Literary Churchman.

3. THE GREAT PROPHECIES CONCERNING THE GENTILES, THE JEWS, AND THE CHURCH OF GOD. Third Edition. Crown 8vo., 7s. 6d.

"Well worthy of careful perusal by all students of prophecy."—British and Foreign Evangelical Review.

"One of the most valuable expositions of prophecy ever published."—Prophetic News.

London: HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Some of the Works of Robert Brown

1. THE AWAKENING SOUL'S COMPLAINT, with Christ's loving Answer and the Soul's Surrender. 4d.

"Perhaps as useful a thing as you have written for the Master. Will be a 'word in season' to many, I doubt not."
From Editor of "Sabbath Hour."

2. SPIRITUAL BLESSING. 6d.

"One of the most admirable arrangements we have ever met with."—Church Association Monthly Intelligencer.

3. REAPING IN DUE SEASON. 1s. 6d.

"A record of skilful dealing with an individual soul."
The Same.

London: THE BOOK SOCIETY, 28, Paternoster-row.

4. THE HIDDEN MYSTERY; or, The Revelations of the Word. 10s. 6d.

"To many Biblical students, and those who delight in the teaching of types and symbols, the work will be of the highest value."—Word and Work. "We have great pleasure in recommending to our readers the volume before us, which is full of profitable instruction and great interest."—Gospel Truths or Old Paths. "A work of great ability and extensive practical application."—The Sun.

London: JAMES NISBET & CO., 21, Berners-street, W.

5. BABYLONIANISM. 6d.

"A most admirable treatise on the subject."—Gilead. "An able and timely exhibition of the impious abominations of Rome."—Christian Miscellany.

6. JESUITISM. 1s.

"One of the best synopses of the Romish controversy."—The Press and St. James' Gazette. "Contains many telling points."—Record. "We have never read a book on the subject which contained so much in so small a compass."—Voice of Warning.

London: Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

7. RITUALISM AT BARTON-ON-HUMBER, &c. 1s.

"An excellent and vigorous pamphlet against ritualistic innovations."—British Messenger. "Specially deserving of notice on account of its sterling merit."—The Rock.

London: MARLBOROUGH & CO., Old Bailey.

8. DEMONOLOGY AND WITCHCRAFT: with especial reference to modern "Spiritualism" so called; and the Doctrines of Demons. 5s.

"A masterly and comprehensive treatise on the subject."—The Rock. "A curiously interesting book, and one in which Sir Walter Scott would have delighted."—Public Opinion. "This work at present is one of the best on this somewhat difficult theme."—Brighouse and Rastrick Gazette. "His tenacious hold and his fearless declaration of the 'Old Gospel' is refreshing."—Christian.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & CO., 48, Paternoster-row.

9. THE PERSONALITY AND HISTORY OF SATAN. 4s.

"A most valuable book, especially suited for our own times."—English Churchman. "The book is sound, scholarly, instructive, and spiritual."—Rock. "A very remarkable work on a deep and very important subject."—Gospel Advocate.

10. GLEANINGS FROM THE BOOK OF RUTH. 4s.

"An interesting and remarkable work."—Christian. "We have seldom read a book which more commends itself to our mind."—Silver Morn. "A very valuable contribution to sound, if not intensely strong, doctrinal literature."—Gospel Advocate.

11. OUTLINES OF PROPHETIC TRUTH; viewed practically and experimentally in the light of the Divine Word. 12s.

"The familiarity with Scripture it displays is marvellous."—Evangelical Christendom. "A valuable contribution to literature and prophecy."—Christian Progress. "Accurate in fact, Scriptural in doctrine, and persuasive to practical holiness."—Clergyman's Magazine. "His acquaintance with, and insight into the Word of God strike us in every page."—Record. "Ought to be called a Treasury of Prophetic Truth."—Life of Faith. "The entire work is an illustration of the vast comprehensiveness of Holy Writ."—The Sun.

12. OUTLINES OF PROPHETIC TRUTH: Second Series. From Redemption to the Final State. Lately published. 12s.

"Contains a vast amount of exposition of Scripture; . . . brings out clearly much precious truth regarding the present and future position of the believer."—Christian Progress. "Of this book we can say what Adam Clarke said of Richard Baxter's 'Christian Dictionary,' that 'it is impossible that any person can read it without having his understanding enlightened, and his heart affected by its weighty and solemn truths."
Christian.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, Paternoster-row.

IMPORTANT TO ALL BIBLE STUDENTS.

THE NEWBERRY BIBLE

Formerly known as "The Englishman's Bible." Edited by Thomas Newberry.

Comprising:—The English-Hebrew Bible and the English-Greek Testament, designed to give as far as practicable the Accuracy, Precision, and Certainty of the Original Hebrew and Greek Scriptures on the Page of the Authorised Version. Adapted both for the Biblical Student and for the Ordinary English Reader.

LARGE-TYPE HANDY REFERENCE EDITION.

21s.; 25s.; 35s.; and a very superior edition, in best Levant Yapp, kid lined, silk sewn, 60s.

PORTABLE EDITION.

On the OXFORD BEST INDIA PAPER, with Maps; extremely thin and light. Superior French Morocco Yapp, 18s.; Palestine Morocco Yapp, 28s.; Best Turkey Morocco Levant Yapp, 35s.

London: HODDER & STOUGHTON, 27, Paternoster-row.

Suitable as Christmas Gift, New Year Souvenir, or Birthday Present, &c.

YOUNG'S CONCORDANCE TO THE BIBLE.

Latest Edition, Prospectus, &c., at the Principal Booksellers. Warmly recommended.

WILLIAM HUNT & CO.'S LIST.

Ready this day, Large Post 8vo., cloth extra. Price 6s.

MY THIRD CAMPAIGN IN EAST AFRICA.

A Story of Missionary Life in Troublous Times. By Rev. W. SALTER PRICE, F.R.G.S., founder of Frere Town, and late Director of the C.M.S. Missions in Eastern Equatorial Africa. With numerous Illustrations from Photographs and Original Drawings.

"Mr. Price's book proves to be one of quite unique interest."
Church Missionary Intelligencer.

"Gives absolutely the best sketch with which we are acquainted of the actual working of a foreign Mission. . . . Every line of these fascinating letters and journals bears the impress of actuality."
Record.

By the Right Rev. J. C. RYLE, D.D.

Now ready. The Sixteenth Edition (Revised) of

EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON THE GOSPELS.

Designed for Family and Private Reading, with the Text and copious Notes.

ST. MATTHEW. Extra cloth, 6s.
ST. MARK. Uniform with the above, 5s.
ST. LUKE. Vol. I., 5s. 6d. Vol. II., 7s.
ST. JOHN. Vols. I. and II., each 6s. 6d. Vol. III., 8s.

Extra bindings—Each volume, half morocco, 4s: Turkey morocco, 6s. 6d., in addition to the above.

Also a New and Revised Edition of

EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON THE GOSPELS.

Complete in Four Vols. Post 8vo., extra cloth. £1 11s. 6d.

THIS DAY—64 pp., 8vo. Price 1s., post free.

"HOLD FAST." A Charge, delivered to the Clergy of the Diocese of Liverpool, at his Fourth Triennial Visitation, in St. Peter's Cathedral, November 4, 1890.

NEW YEAR'S ADDRESSES FOR 1891.

By the Right Rev. JOHN CHARLES RYLE, D.D., Lord Bishop of Liverpool.

The Forgiveness of Sins. An Address for 1891. "I believe in the Forgiveness of Sins." Crown 8vo., 32 pp. Price 2s per dozen.

Dost Thou Believe? A Searching Question for 1891. Price 1s. per dozen.

Is it Peace? A Kind Enquiry for 1891. Price 1s. per dozen.

What Have I Got? A Question for 1891. A Broadsheet in very large type. Price 6d. per dozen.

By the Rev. HANDLEY C. G. MOULE, M.A.,

The Unchangeable Gospel. A New Year's Address 32 pp., small book form. 2s. per dozen.

UNIFORM WITH THE ABOVE.

The Christian's Victory over Sin. 32 pp. 2s. per doz

Complete Lists on Application.

LONDON: 12, PATERNOSTER ROW.

HOME TEACHING SOCIETY FOR THE BLIND.

TO ENABLE THE BLIND TO READ THE SCRIPTURES, &c., IN MOON'S TYPE.

The Committee hereby earnestly appeal for an increase of contributors.—RALPH TAIT, Secretary, 31, New Bridge-street, E.C. Bankers: Messrs. BARCLAY & CO., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

HAM YARD SOUP KITCHEN AND HOSPICE

HAM YARD, GREAT WINDMILL ST., W

President—H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CAMBRIDGE, K.G.

FUNDS are urgently needed. Open all the year. 20 beds in the Hospice. Christmas Dinner to 1,000 families. Coals during winter.

H. SEYMOUR TROWER, Hon. Sec.
W. STEVENS, Superintendent.

Readings with our Mothers on Women of the Bible.

By the late Mrs. S. O. HABERSHON

AUTHOR OF "OUR MOTHERS."

"We cordially commend this wise and effective little volume."
Sunday School Chronicle.

"I was greatly impressed by the directness and tenderness of the teaching given in your delightful little book."
Mrs. C. H. Spurgeon.

CLOTH BOARDS, 1s. 6d.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, Paternoster-row.

THE FIRST

PUBLIC TEMPERANCE MEETING

Under the Auspices of the Presbyterian

"Forward Temperance Movement"

(On the Total Abstinence Basis),

Will (D.V.), be held in

REGENT SQUARE CHURCH,

On TUESDAY, 16th inst., at 8 o'clock.

THE PRESIDENT,

HUGH M. MATHESON, Esq., J.P.,

in the Chair.

SPEAKERS:—Rev. NEWMAN HALL, LL.B.; Rev. JOHN G. TRAIN, Hull; Rev. JOHN MCNEILL, and others.

The public (ladies and gentlemen) are invited. Doors open at 7.30. Collection.

RATCLIFF STRANGERS' REST.

HE Strangers' Rest, Ratcliff Highway, E., is well-known rallying point of Christian workers London, as well as an institution performing blessed ministry among the seafaring com-unity. The annual meeting was held on riday last, and attended by many friends and upporters. The chair was occupied by Mr. OBERT PATON, who, in some opening remarks, aid he knew no more interesting form of Chris-ian work than that carried on at the Rest. The ailor who, through God's blessing, is brought o know Christ, cannot help scattering the good eed wherever he goes.

A brief review of the year's operations was iven by the hon. secretary, Mr. J. T. ISAAC. The Rest has been opened daily from 2 till p.m., and sailors of any nationality have been velcome, in fact, every effort has been made to nvite them to enter. Between 1,500 and 2,000 neetings are held annually, the men being rouped in rooms according to the language hey speak. Jews as well as Gentiles are eached, and during the year there has been pecial encouragement in endeavours among talians. The hearers who assemble at the Rest are not Gospel-hardened, but to a large xtent "virgin soil." For thirteen years volun-ary unpaid labourers have carried the work orward, and have had much joy in their ninistry, knowing that those who are en-ightened carry the light to the ends of the earth.

Mr. Isaac said that Miss Turner will start in he spring, in the hope of establishing a Rest t Zanzibar with the co-operation of friends. In conclusion, he called attention to the Christmas programme at the Rest, asking riends to send scarves, mufflers, socks, book-narkers, helmets, needle-cases, as well as dona-ions in money or kind, towards the dinners which are given at the festive season. From irst to last the statement was full of encourage-neni. All the greater, moreover, was the regret that the treasurer, Mr. W. Noble, had to report a deficency of £130 in the funds. The entire work is carried on at a cost of only about £400 a year, and an appeal was made for £100 without delay, in order that the operations may proceed without embarrassment.

The fact that the Rest had been the training nome of many workers now in the foreign field was remembered, and in prayer for Divine blessing on the Rest, these were included, and God was asked to own their efforts wherever they are witnessing for Him. A letter was read from Mr. Reginald Radcliffe, urging heart-accord among workers, in order that there may be no hindrance of blessing. Where there is one accord, God works. Cry, then, for heart-unity; filled with the Holy Ghost, we shall be united in love.

Among the friends present was Rev. PETER THOMPSON, of the Wesleyan Mission in the East-end, who gave expression to his cordial sympathy with the workers at the Rest. He rejoiced in the heart-union which comes of earnest labour in the vineyard of Christ, and prayed God's blessing on the work of the Rest. Rev. JAMES THOMAS, Metropolitan Secretary of the Bible Society, delivered a hearty address, drawing upon his own experience in Shanghai for evidence of the value of Rests. Rev. BURMAN CASSIN, of Southwark, having followed with some words of sympathy, Miss MACPHERSON emphasised the duty and blessedness of Christian service, in the light of Num. xviii. 7. The last speaker was Rev. J. R. WOOD, of Upper Holloway, who urged the claims of sailors upon our sympathy, and encouraged workers by the assurance that eternity will disclose unexpected results of their exertions in the cause of Christ.

"Among London Poor."—The private address of Pastor Newton Vanstone, whose good work was briefly described last week, is 50, Tredegar-road, Bow, E.

Evangelistic Notes.

Mr. Opie Rodway, of Stroud, is continuing his services this week at Torquay, and commences at South Molton, Devon, on December 13.

Dr. Pentecost writes from Calcutta, under date November 19:—"We shall have many obstacles and difficulties here to contend with, but the Lord is giving us tokens of favour."

Union Hall Mission.—A sixteen days' Gospel mission has been held at Union Hall. The services were well attended each night. A meeting for praise was held on Monday, and several spoke of blessing received.

Dolau, Llanfihangel.—A week of special services have been held here by Pastor W. Jenkins, Lord's Hill, Salop, with very encouraging results. Many professed to receive help and blessing through the meetings.

Ireland.—Evangelistic services have been held in both the Presbyterian churches at Moneymore, co. Derry, and in the Methodist church, Kileshandra, co. Cavan. Many have professed to receive a rich spiritual blessing.

Rev. R. Balgarnie has concluded a seven days' mission at Ryton-on-Tyne, Durham, which has resulted in a rich harvest. Also at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Bishop Auckland, of which the Rev. Dr. Balgarnie is the minister.

Sandwich.—A series of united evangelistic services have been held, in which Congregationalists, Wesleyans, Primitives, and the Salvation Army have heartily joined. The meetings, commenced a month ago, have grown in numbers and usefulness.

Newton Abbot.—An eight days' mission has been conducted in the Baptist Church here by Mr. J. Crofton Rainey. A blessed spirit of unity and power was realised, and every night some have professed conversion. Believers have been stirred by a spirit of consecrated energy and a holy fervour. Backsliders are being restored, sinners convicted and saved. SAMUEL LYNE, Pastor.

Wiltshire.—Mr. James Sprunt, of the West Marylebone Mission, has during the past fortnight conducted mission services at the Gospel Hall, Corshamside, and the parochial school-room, Atworth, Wiltshire. Although some of the nights have been dark and wet, and the roads covered with snow and mud, large numbers of people have gathered together, some of whom walked long distances.

Rev. E. P. Hammond has recently been holding some meetings at Rocky Hill, Conn. The attendance was good, and the meetings resulted in genuine conversions. At the first meeting a lady introduced herself to Mr. Hammond, and, with tears in her eyes, said: "I was converted when a child in the children's meetings held by you in Dr. Shaw's church at Rochester, N.Y." Her faithful service to the Master since is another testimony to the genuineness of childhood conversation.

Christ Church, Coventry.—A ten days' mission in this church, conducted by Rev. A. E. Foster, of Hastings, has been concluded. A large number of persons have very quietly and deliberately avowed themselves as believers in Christ. During the first few days of the mission the majority of those making an open profession were young men under thirty years of age. At the concluding service nearly eighty persons remained for the Lord's Supper. One feature of the mission has been a great ingathering of families. In one family four children made an open profession; in another, father, mother, and three other members all came to the same happy decision within a few hours of each other, and there is every hope that a great impulse to spiritual evangelical work in the city of Coventry has been received.

RAROTONGA.—In a recent letter occurs this sentence:—"The Bible is still the Book of the Rarotongans. Passing along the road, one sometimes sees the old people sitting outside th ir cottages, enjoying the warmth of the setting sun, and reading diligently the sacred Word. Many of them read the daily chapter in connection wi h the Bible and Prayer Union. As regards the older church members, our experience is that they would sooner part with houses or land than be deprived of their Bible. They can truly say, 'O how love I thy law! it is my meditation all the day.'"

WORKERS IN AMERICA.

MR. D. L. MOODY has been holding meetings in Albany and Troy during the past fortnight, and great blessing has been witnessed in both these cities. In the former the people have been so anxious to hear that the largest building in Albany has been packed at the early morning meetings each day. He is now in Chicago.

Mr. G. C. Needham is now holding meetings in the city of Brooklyn.

Mr. Somerset Gardiner is preaching with great acceptance to crowded meetings in Patterson, New Jersey.

Mr. Charles Inglis has had most successful meetings in the Y.M.C.A. and in the various churches at Buffalo. He has been holding a mission at Portland, Maine, and so great was the interest that on the opening day more than 5000 attended, and many were unable to gain admission. Mr. Inglis has since gone on to Northfield, Mass., to address Mr. Moody's students, and is expected to reach England about Dec. 19.

Mr. Sankey has been singing at Brooklyn and other cities with all the pathos of former days.

PEACE SOCIETY.—The Marquis of Bristol has become a vice-president and Rev. Canon Benham has joined the executive committee. With regard to the Society's proposal for a "Peace Sunday," the Baptist Union recommends its churches to make special reference to the subject of peace at the Sunday evening services preceding Christmas Day.

THE HAMMERSMITH Y.M.C.A.—The seventh annual meeting was held on Thursday, December 4, when Mr. George Williams took the chair. The Report spoke cheerfully of the work carried on during the past year, and desired more earnest co-operation and personal consecration for the year entered upon. The chairman appealed for funds for the erection of a suitable hall which is much needed. Among the speakers were Rev. A. Norris, Rev. Henry Dening, and Mr. J. H. Lydall, who spoke to the great necessity of keeping the spiritual work to the front.

HOMES FOR LITTLE BOYS.—A meeting in connection with the "Farningham and Swanley Homes for little Boys" was held on Thursday evening last week in the Holloway Hall, Hammersmith, W. Mr. G. C. T. Bartley, M.P., who presided, thought the great feature in the institutions at Farningham and Swanley was the endeavour to maintain the idea of a "home" to the children. Confining children in large barracks was not the best form of training. Another characteristic of the schools was that in addition to book learning attention was paid to carpentering, tailoring, and the domestic arts. The education given was based upon religion. Education without religion meant no education at all. Rev. E. A. B. Sanders, M.A., vicar of All Saints', had always taken great interest in the Homes for Little Boys. He gave an account of the formation of the institution twenty-six years ago by Rev. A. O. Charles and others, and of its continued success. The great difficulty they had had to encounter amongst the poorer classes was the great number of incompetent children thrust upon society from the elementary schools. He believed in athletic training and sports, and he was glad to see that in the homes this training was not overlooked. Mr. Benjamin Clarke, secretary, said fifty boys had been sent from the Admiralty to the Swanley Home, and were paid for out of the Greenwich Hospital Fund. Every care was taken of the boys in the Homes, and their physical education was not neglected. Many boys trained in the Homes were now occupying positions of trust and emolument. During the evening selections of music were performed by the Farningham boys' band.

Christ Church, Endell-street, St. Giles.—Rev. S. A. Griffiths will be grateful for donations and gifts of tickets and clothing for his very poor people.

AMONG DISCHARGED PRISONERS.

IN the pages of his monthly magazine, The Christian Treasury, Rev. F. B. Meyer has been describing the work in which he engaged among discharged prisoners at Leicester. In the December issue he says:—

"It is the good custom of our present prison system to allow prisoners to earn 'mark money.' By attendance to prison discipline, by obeying all rules and regulations, and especially by good behaviour, a man wins a certain number of marks, which, if all are gained, will procure for him the sum of ten shillings at the end of six months, or a proportionate sum for any less time. Thus those who leave after a long term may have two or three pounds to receive, whilst those who have been in gaol for only a few weeks will not be without a few shillings.

"This may be a great blessing to those who do well. It provides them with a little capital to start with, or, at the least, finds them shelter and food whilst they are considering their next step. Where there is a Prison Aid Mission properly established, at the discretion of the governor and the agent, the Government allows an additional grant to be made to the mark money in really deserving cases, so that there may be an even larger nest-egg for starting the new and better career.

"This mark money may, however, prove a great curse. Before I began my work it was the habit of a large number of loafers and ne'er-do-wells to gather near the prison gate, opposite to which was a public-house; and they would do their best to entice those who were leaving the prison to come in for drink, with the almost positive certainty of spending the whole of the precious money, so hardly earned, but so lightly and foolishly squandered in treating the entire party. In such society the weak resolution, hardly consolidated as yet, would soon break down; and within an hour the whole fabric of the new and better life would be irretrievably demolished.

"It was always, therefore, my plan to get hold of this mark money, and keep it until I knew how it was to be spent. Many a time have men been thankful that the spending of the money was not left to them; and that they could say truthfully to friends and others that they had not a penny in their pockets. This money, and the other money at my disposal, enabled me to solve some of the difficulties about work to which I have alluded. It enabled me to set many up on their own account. Many times did we spend five shillings in a hawker's licence, with another two shillingsworth of stock. Often we started women with materials to make fire-screens, or to do wool and fancy work.....

Of course there were many disappointments. Sometimes it would be almost more than I could bear, and had it not been for my perpetual memory of the much patience which my Lord had had with me, and how his love had conquered, I could not have borne the terrible disasters with which some of my most hopeful cases met. A man might go on well for a time, and then break out drinking and undo everything, losing situation, self-respect, clothes—all. In all these cases it was of no use even to seem to lose one's temper and storm. To do so would be perhaps to drive the fallen one away from his only friend. Besides, conscience had already whipped him pretty severely."

Mr. Meyer promises other articles on the same subject. The Christian Treasury (reduced to 1d. with the New Year) is published by Marshall Brothers.

MIDNIGHT MEETING MOVEMENT.—The committee are arranging for a series of midnight meetings on the last nights of 1890, also for the distribution of a suitable tract in the outlying districts of the Metropolis where it would not be possible to hold midnight meetings. The prayers of all Christian people are asked, that many outcasts may be reclaimed.

[1174]

"In Darkest England."

BY MRS. GRATTAN GUINNESS.

"IN DARKEST ENGLAND" devotes itself mainly, if not exclusively, to home heathenism. It is clearly and earnestly written, and the scheme which it advocates, and which it will doubtless also inaugurate, is likely to do good, though probably not nearly so much as its author hopes. The book produces on the mind an effect, partly stimulating, and partly depressing; stimulating and encouraging because it sketches out a largely practical plan, by which numbers of the unemployed may be helped and some of the sunken classes raised and reclaimed; but depressing, because it gives a fresh view to every earnest worker among the poor, of the enormous extent of their task, and suggests very strongly the hopelessness of its ever being accomplished.

Neither General Booth's scheme, nor any other, will ever, we fear, abolish a "sunken tenth." A coloured chart forms the frontispiece of this volume and represents a sea of misery at the bottom, in which are struggling multitudes ready to perish—wrecked there on the rocks of unrighteousness, drunkenness, uncleanness, gambling, hatred, hypocrisy, lying, covetousness, pride, avarice, sloth, and such like. Let the lifeboats and the loving helpers clear the pool of all at present plunged in it, and land them high and dry on the hills of salvation—faster than they can empty it! As long as it is fed by the foul streams poured forth by 120,000 drink shops, and by half a million of drunkards and their hapless victims; as long as hundreds of thousands of paupers are permitted to flood the country with generation after generation of children born in, and bred to, vice and crime, so long will an endless succession of "sunken tenths" require rescuing.

THE POOL WILL FILL AGAIN

This conviction is not encouraging. But neither ought it to paralyse the hand of help. Rescue is a still-beginning, never-ending task. But so is the higher work of evangelisation, since each succeeding generation is born unconverted. Moreover, in the social reform case, we may hope for such legislative improvement as will stop some of the streams that supply the sea of sin and misery. It may be long in coming, but it will surely come at last. Even then there would remain

THE FINAL CAUSE OF ALL MISERY—SIN.

"Out of the heart" proceedeth all this evil. Meanwhile we must do what we can, and we rejoice that the Salvation Army is going to try its metal in a task to which it will, we think, prove better adapted than to purely religious or spiritual work. In this latter its success in East London, at any rate, has been far from encouraging. Spiritual results can be attained only by Divinely ordained means. Our Lord Jesus Christ founded a Church and not an army for the spread of his kingdom in the world. The constitution of the Salvation Army is so extra- not to say anti-scriptural, that we have no sympathy with it as a religious denomination. But we think that as a Christian relief agency it may do much good.

The General, of course, wants a large sum of money. He has asked for a "Gideon's Fleece" sign, and that sign is to be the immediate contribution of one hundred thousand pounds as a first instalment of the millions he requires. The remaining £900,000 will be regarded as capital to yield £30,000 a year, for the working of the scheme. The sum, though large in itself, is as nothing compared with the work contemplated on the one hand, and as less than nothing compared to the wealth of England on the other; nor is it any very considerable addition to the already enormous income of the Salvation Army. We doubt not that it will all be forthcoming, and we heartily hope that in the General's energetic hands it may accomplish much good.

After an attempt to depict the darkness and horror of the actual state of things in large cities, and especially in London, the book gives the calculations by which the "sunken tenth" is estimated at three millions. The appalling extent of misery and ruin existing in England at the present time side by side with her wealth, luxury and refinement, is incredible to those who do not come in contact with it. From Government and other reports some are collected. There are nearly a million out-door paupers; 190,000 in workhouses; 20,000 always out of work, and starving in London alone, and 130,000 in Great Britain. These people have no home at all. More than ten thousand children die through violence or neglect annually, and 5000 more are working in "sweaters'" dens. There are 45,000 hungry children among those forced to attend the London Board Schools; there are about 33,000 people always in prison; 160,000 are convicted of drunkenness annually; and fully nine-tenths of the crimes of all kinds committed arise from drink. The drink bill of the country amounts to £136,000,000, while the largest fortunes of the world are made out of the traffic! Last year 2300 suicides found life too miserable to endure, and wilfully threw it away; and 2000 more were "found dead." Such facts as these are significant indications of the gloom and misery which brood over "the sunken tenth" of society.

FEARFUL STATISTICS

General Booth's plan is—having given a man food and shelter for a night, as at present in the Salvation Army depôts—to pass him on to factories established for the purpose in the city, where his willingness and ability to work can be tested, and, if found to exist, utilized for his own support for a brief time; then, to move him down to the country to "farm colleges" and suburban villages, where the process of reformation of character would be carried forward by industrial, moral, and religious training, and a knowledge of agricultural and other useful crafts imparted. And to the over-sea colonies in Canada, South Africa, or elsewhere would be sent all worthy and suitable for emigrants.

The scheme unfolded in this book has our heartiest sympathy and our prayers for its success. We anticipate from it the salvation of multitudes of individuals and families, and we only hope its fruits may largely exceed our expectations.

A Conspicuous and Grave Defect.

Criticism has, however, its duties; and here we must take exception to one marked and singularly ungenerous feature of General Booth's book. It totally and consistently ignores the countless earnest and successful efforts already in existence for the salvation and benefit of "the sunken tenth." It passes them by in utter and contemptuous silence. This is both wrong and foolish; wrong, because the omission of facts that have an important bearing on the case is unfair and misleading; foolish, because it has a tendency to chill if not alienate a large amount of Christian sympathy which might otherwise have been enlisted. General Booth must know, and should have recognised in a work dealing so fully with the question, that there is a salvation army already grappling with this hydra-headed monster—the social misery and degradation of great cities—an army far larger than his, far more experienced because far longer in existence, an army animated by Christian motives and by loving compassion, an army which is securing results which it is scarcely to be hoped he can attain even in the term of his natural life. He is not, and he must know it, starting a new crusade by new measures; he proposes simply to consolidate, under his own headship, a fresh set of the all over England, and especially in London. With one or two exceptions, every single feature of his scheme is familiar to every worker among the poor, as well as some others he does not include. A reader, ignorant of the facts, might and would gather from "In Darkest England" that the world and the Church were alike neglecting the unhappy and degraded classes of our population. This is not true, and why convey a false impression? The world provides the poor law. It may be defective and badly administered, and it may even do some harm. But things would be far worse without it. If there were no refuge for the destitute, not even a casual ward and workhouse, there would be a million more of helpless, starving people in our midst. The poor laws were enacted by kind and wise statesmen who were determined that none should starve unless by choice, and the country gives ten millions of money every year to secure even this provision. The world then has not treated the sunken tenth with indifference; it insists that every parish or union of parishes shall see that food and shelter be provided for all starving, helpless persons and education for their children.

AGENCIES ALREADY IN SUCCESSFUL OPERATION

And as to the Church—her agencies for helping e helpless are just legion! General Booth roposes some preventive and some remedial mea-ures; some for temporal and some for spiritual enefit. Good! But why does he not admit that here are already ell-known charitable organizations, successfully t work in London alone, actually carrying out hese very measures; that they have been doing o for from ten to fifty or more years past, and hat the state of things we all deplore, exists in pite of their efforts? Only that fact enables us to udge fairly as to the prospects of the new scheme! Christian people are, as General Booth knows, already spending ten millions and a half in public charities, and it is estimated seven millions more n private charities, and yet things are as they are! Only this fact enables us to judge how far the expenditure of an additional thirty thousand by the Salvation Army is likely very materially to alter the case. Why omit it in the statement?

MORE THAN A THOUSAND

Granting that all this money may not be spent in the best way, still it must have an enormous effect in mitigating the miseries of the sinking and sunken classes. It must keep vast numbers from sinking, and help multitudes more to recover their footing. The agencies that expend it seek to help all classes and ages, just as the new "scheme" does—the guilty and undeserving, as well as the unfortunate. They help the poor and friendless, the widow and orphan, the exposed and fallen, the unemployed and hungry, the criminal and the drunkard, and the victims of both; the deaf, dumb, blind, maimed, and incurable, the sick, the convalescent and the dying;—both sexes and all ages, from helpless infancy to infirm old age.

WHY ARE THEY IGNORED?

They meet the discharged prisoner at the gaol gate; they labour with and for the inebriate; they seek to prevent cruelty to women and children, and are "vigilant" that girls be not oppressed; they build sanitary dwellings for the poorest, and noble lodging-houses for labouring men, sailors, and others, and they seek with all the ingenuity of love and compassion the social as well as spiritual benefit of the lapsed masses and those in danger of falling. They employ the best energies of thousands of voluntary philanthropists, in their initiation and management, as well as the active attention of tens of thousands of the best salaried agents that can be procured. Why should their existence and their success be ignored in a volume dealing with the condition of darkest England and plans for its amelioration?

They are, doubtless, imperfect, like everything human, and admittedly insufficient. But they are effective as far as they go; and

WHAT WOULD LONDON BE WITHOUT THEM?

The wise and experienced Earl of Shaftesbury often said to us, that but for these agencies London would long since have suffered as Paris in the French Revolution.

The 512 workers of the London City Mission, for instance, are daily struggling to help this sunken tenth. Last year they reclaimed 5520 families from outward ungodliness, and added 2660 communicants to Christian churches; they paid three and a quarter million visits to the people in their own homes, and laboured regularly in seven thousand public-houses. And they are only one agency among hundreds of others engaged in visiting the poorest in the courts and alleys of our great city, while similar agencies exist in provincial cities also.

Or, again, to look at the vicious and criminal classes. The St. Giles's Christian Mission actually dealt personally with 15,200 out of the 18,000 discharged prisoners from Pentonville, Holloway, Wandsworth, and Millbank Prisons, with a view to their spiritual and moral reformation, and half this number received temporal aid also towards a recovery of their lost footing, with all that Christian love could do to cheer and encourage. This, again, is only one of many similar organisations formed to benefit discharged prisoners. There are fifteen or twenty such at work in London, and fifty-eight more elsewhere in England.

The Homes of Hope and other organisations for rescuing fallen women and girls deal with equally large numbers of another class of the vicious and miserable. The Women's Mission to Women has cared for over 20,000 since it was established, the Homes of Hope with about 3000, most of whom have been saved and restored; Mr. E. W. Thomas has cared for 20,000 more of the friendless and fallen; and such agencies on a smaller scale are very numerous in London, while in the provinces there are over fifty more.

And what shall we say of the Ragged School Union, and of Barnardo's magnificent rescue agency for the young of both sexes, that never turns away a destitute case of baby, boy, girl, youth, or maiden, or loses sight of any of its protégés until each individual is launched in life? He has between three and four thousand children always on his hands, gives them a good education and a splendid industrial training, has a growing colony for the youths in Manitoba, and he disposes of his well-prepared girls all the world over. Already he has started in honourable careers more than 15,000 young people rescued from the lowest degradation.

He has forty distinct institutions under his care, including almost every agency suggested in the scheme, under a somewhat different name; and is father to the largest family on earth of destitute children of all ages. One might have supposed, indeed, that the "scheme" was just borrowed from his operations. He employs search agencies, shelters, large and small industrial homes, in London and the provinces, village homes, farm homes, Canadian colonies, emigration, hospitals and medical missions, coffee palaces, goes in largely for school and temperance work, and evangelises most successfully and on a large scale in East London. There is scarcely a form of the social problem with which he does not grapple among the young, and he is only one of many engaged in this same rescue crusade in London, Dublin, Glasgow, Liverpool, Manchester, and elsewhere, though he carries it out on a larger scale than others.

General Booth's book is something proposed, but let anyone compare it with Dr. Barnardo's "Something attempted, something done," and he will see that what the one now hopes to begin, the other is, and long has been, accomplishing on a grand scale. It is not a sketch of schemes, but

A "REPORT" OF DEEDS,

Like all great and stable things, this work has grown year by year, both in extent and in adaptation to existing necessities, during the last quarter of a century. Dr. Barnardo's emigration work is scarcely ten years old, yet already between four thousand and five thousand have been safely and prosperously settled in the colonies, and fourteen square miles of country near Russel, in Manitoba, are the seat of a new settlement, which is growing up under his care. Should all this be ignored by a writer who has borrowed so largely from it?

Then, again, as to assisted emigration schemes for adults, both men and women, judiciously conducted, and giving to selected emigrants every chance, they, too, are numerous and useful, and deal with large numbers and considerable sums of money. All these agencies, moreover, seek the spiritual benefit of their clients in the first place, and act, moreover, in the spirit of Christian love. But for them and others like them, and but for the equally effective and widely scattered local efforts connected with the 10,000 Christian churches and chapels in our midst (most of whom care more or less for the sunken classes and the very poor, by mission halls, mothers' meetings, district visitors, and a hundred kindly schemes of local help), what would London have become? Would not the sunken tenth have risen to a far larger proportion, and been even more desperately submerged than it is? Why was not all this alluded to? The fact that one in ten of our people are still in a miserable, degraded, starving condition, in spite of great, well-directed, and long-continued efforts, and of an expenditure of seventeen or twenty millions per annum in charity, apart from the poor law, ought neither to deter or discourage General Booth from trying what the Salvation Army can do. But it certainly should moderate his expectation of what can be done. In any case it should in all fairness be taken into account.

The man who should start a project to complete the Panama Canal, ought at least to form his plans in full view of what has been done, and what it cost to do it. He could not afford to neglect the experience of M. Lesseps, and he should not only propose plans but succeed in carrying them out before he despises his forerunner's failure.

Guided by the history of the past, and the state of things in the present, by the acknowledged fact that 90 per cent. of the existing misery is the result of drink, and that drunkards are stubborn material as a rule; we think that only very modest anticipation of partial success from the new scheme can be entertained. The wickedness must be checked before the misery can be cured. The Salvation Army has been trying to do this for the last twenty-five years, and has produced on the sunken tenth. All its ten thousand officers, and hundreds of thousands of pounds of annual expenditure, and its War Cry, have left things as its General here describes them. We fear that a similar period of the operation of the new "scheme" will only do the same! The results may be good, and may be in themselves considerable, but relatively they will be as imperceptible.

NO APPRECIABLE EFFECT

FAR MORE RADICALLY EFFECTIVE

schemes than this are needed to raise our sunken tenth, to right the wrongs of our rotten social system, and to heal the bitter waters ever flowing from the fountains of ungodliness. There is much and obvious work for legislation; and even the best laws could not cope with the evil.

It is a pity that General Booth and his friend Mr. Stead should belittle their scheme for doing—like other philanthropists—some good by speaking of it as if it were likely to produce a social revolution. It only makes experienced people shake their heads and smile. But, perhaps, honestly to have admitted that its utmost aspiration was "by all means to save some," would hardly have afforded ground enough for appealing for a million of money!

We heartily rejoice that in his sixty-first year, as he reminds us, General Booth has resolved to throw his energies and those of the Army he commands into the task at which others have so long been working. We hopefully recognise one or two decided advantages which he possesses. First, the headship of a quasi-military organisation, which will enable him to undertake under his own direct guidance operations of all the various kinds now for the most part conducted separately by others, so enhancing the value of each one by making it a link in a chain, and thus increasing its value.

Secondly, he has twenty years of his own experience, and still more of that of others, to guide him to the selection of good and rejection of bad plans. And lastly, God has endowed him with remarkable powers of organising and governing. His "scheme" is, we hope, likely to succeed in doing good to many because of his own personal talents and powers, and because of his unique position, which is, indeed, the result of them. Perhaps the most distinctive feature of the scheme is that it aims at a large measure of self-support and at great utilisation of waste material. This last, if it does not cost more than it is worth—of which there seems some danger—is no doubt a very good plan, but it involves an immense outlay of capital to begin with.—The Regions Beyond.

MISS PRYDE'S WORK IN PARIS.—The Home of English and American Lady Artists and Teachers, founded by and directed by Miss Pryde, is now situate 152, Rue de la Pompe, Paris. It is hoped to be able in the future to buy the premises, and place the institution on a more secure basis. In the annual report just issued Miss Pryde says: "Our object is to help young ladies to find situations, and to perfect them in the French language. Moreover, we seek to provide a Home in which any girl can find safe and happy lodging, amid the trials and temptations that too often assail girls in a foreign city."

THE LOSS OF H.M.S. "SERPENT."—On Sunday week the Duke of Edinburgh presided over a "popular evening" in the Plymouth Guildhall, attended by about four thousand people. The proceedings had special reference to the loss of H.M.S. Serpent, and among those present were many who had been bereaved of relatives through the disaster. The address was delivered by Miss Weston, to whose work His Royal Highness referred in highly appreciative terms, saying, "Miss Weston has thoroughly devoted her life and all her energies for the benefit of sailors and sailors' families. The work which she has done has been so excellent that in this present emergency she has been able to attend to the wants of each family of those who have been lost in this sad accident." Miss Weston's words, on temperance and the fear of God, were listened to with rapt attention. She said that one of the survivors told her that whilst in the sea he prayed to be saved for the sake of his mother; and he looked upon it as entirely the hand of God that he had been rescued from the jaws of death. Moreover, he trusted to be enabled to live as a man who had been so saved.

Obituary.

MLLE. FANNY COLOMBIER.

THE churches of Gard have suffered a sad loss by the death of Mlle. Fanny Colombier. She came of a family of faithful servants of God and confessors of the faith. Arriving at Vigan when hardly thirty years of age, she let her light shine, and went to work for Christ. She started a Sabbath-school, which has since been an agency of much good; she organised charitable and useful efforts among the female members of the church; and her words were often blessed to the edification of those who assembled to hear her exhortations. Christ was her Master, and his poor and infirm were her tender concern. She lived to the great age of ninety, "always rejoicing," for the Gospel had a real charm for her, and the goodness of God was her constant theme. When at the last, the doctor informed her that her condition was one of grave anxiety, she peacefully said, "It is well; I am ready." Her spiritual attitude is well indicated by the fact that the passages of Scripture which she selected for reading on the occasion of her interment were John iii. 14-17, and 1 Thess. 1-11, emphasising ver. 9.

REV. ALEXANDER McAULAY.

Intelligence has reached the Wesleyan Mission House, London, of the unexpected death at Somerset East, Cape Colony, of Rev. Alexander McAulay, of London, an ex-President of the Conference, and who was on an evangelistic tour among the Wesleyan churches in South Africa. Mr. McAulay was born in 1817. He early came under the influence of Methodism, and in 1858, commenced Gospel work in the East-end of London. Fourteen of his best and most active years were spent there. Opening his own house at Bow for evangelistic services, and commencing with a congregation of eighteen persons, he aroused such enthusiasm among the wealthy laymen of Methodism that in ten years he succeeded in erecting four large chapels, each capable of seating 1000 persons, also schools and a variety of useful organisations. During the past four years he has visited the West Indies, where he was largely instrumental in the tide of revival influence. He recently completed a month's mission at the African diamond fields. He was in the seventy-third year of his age.

LIVERPOOL.—The Common Hall, Hackinshey, which has a long and familiar history in connection with various religious and philanthropic movements in this city, has been reopened, after extensive alterations, which have been carried out by a committee appointed at a conference held in 1889, with the object of bringing into more complete union and co-operation the various religious organisations in Liverpool.

SHAFTESBURY HOUSE, MARGATE.—The Y.M.C.A. seaside Home continues to perform a useful ministry. The eighth annual report says: "The work has two sides, domestic and evangelistic—the former dealing with the physical comfort and well-being of the young men visiting the Homes, and the latter representing the efforts made for their spiritual welfare and in Gospel work outside." During the year ending June 30 last, the visitors numbered 1142, being a hundred more than during the preceding twelve months. The various meetings for evangelisation and instruction in Divine truth have been well attended, visitors from London and the provinces giving welcome aid as speakers, and directing the efforts of sturdy witnesses of younger years.

YOUNG MEN'S FOREIGN MISSION SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of this Society was held at the Y.M.C.A., Birmingham, on Thursday evening last week, Rev. J. Jenkyn Brown in the chair. The secretary, Mr. H. A. Ward, read the report of the work carried on at Ikwezi Lamaci, by Rev. Samuel and Mrs. Aitchison, which stated the Mission was rapidly growing, and being greatly blessed. It could be largely extended if more funds were placed at their disposal. The treasurer, Mr. E. A. Page, said that nearly £340 had been received during the year, the whole having been expended on the work of the Mission. A few shillings only were left in hand, and he pleaded for help towards the new church and schools being erected by Mr. Aitchison. Missionary addresses were delivered by Rev. J. Gelson Gregson, of Bradford, and Rev. Martin J. Hall, of St. Thomas's, Birmingham.

[1176]

The Temperance Cause.

THE Police-court Mission to Women in Manchester is proving a great success.

The Nonconformists' Temperance Sunday has, we understand, been more generally observed this year than ever.

The Education Department of South Australia have issued a "Temperance Pledge-Book" for use in State schools.

It is gratifying to know that the number of friends of Sunday Closing in the House of Commons is increasing.

Both Parliamentary candidates for the Basset-law Division of Notts have promised to vote for the principle of Local Option.

Dr. Norman Walker, of Dysart, who has returned from a visit to America, states that he had travelled 6,000 miles in the States, and saw only one drunk man!

Mrs. Ormiston Chant, preached two temperance sermons in Newcastle-on-Tyne on Temperance Sunday, and is giving a course of lectures in and around Newcastle.

The East Glamorgan Circuit received the resignation of a Treorky deacon, owing to his resolve to keep a public-house. The Connexional rules forbid any member receiving profit from the sale of intoxicants.

The Temperance Prayer Union Society invites Christians everywhere to join in special prayer for eight days (from Sunday 7 till Sunday, December 14), for the entire and speedy removal of the drink and opium traffic.

Mr. John Roberts, M.P., will again bring in his Bill to amend the Welsh Sunday Closing Act, which proposes to include Monmouthshire with Wales, and has important provisions relating to clubs, shebeens, and "travellers."

At a recent meeting of the Croydon Union Poor-law Guardians, Dr. Alfred Carpenter, J.P., protested against the use of alcohol in the treatment of diphtheria. Instead, he said, of acting as a stimulant, it was really a narcotic in its effects.

The Council of the British Medical Temperance Association offers prizes of £10 and £5 to medical students in their third year for a written examination on alcohol and its effects on the body. Application to be made to Dr. Ridge, 99, Gower-street, London, W.C.

The recent Government inquiry into the prevelence of ether drinking in some of the Northern counties of Ireland, has resulted in prompt action. The drug has now, under an order of the Privy Council, to be classed as a poison, and added to the schedule of the act to regulate the sale of poisons in Ireland.

In connection with a liquor seller's appeal, the United States Supreme Court has declared in emphatic terms that the business of retail liquor-selling is not a right of any citizen of any State, or of the United States, which cannot be restricted or taken away at any time by local authority. The Court further held that there is no inherent right in a citizen to sell liquors.

Canon Cross, vicar of St. Andrew's, Southport, preaching in the Cathedral, Liverpool, before the Mayor and Corporation, and a large congregation, startled his audience by his graphic description of the drunkenness of their city. His thrilling appeal to the Aldermen and Councillors to do something towards cleansing Liverpool from its crying and polluting sins, will long be remembered.

From statistics in connection with the Workhouse Drink Reform League, according to the latest Government returns, two hundred of our national workhouses do not cause the ratepayers to pay a penny for malt liquors for the use of inmates. Anyone interested in this subject can obtain full information from Mr. W. C. Amery 287, Stratford-road, Sparkbrook, Birmingham.

A forward temperance movement has been made in the Presbyterian Church of England. In an appeal to ministers and office-bearers, Rev. R. M. Thornton says:—"The beginning made has been very encouraging. All the members of the North London Temperance Committee present on November 11, with one exception, joined the new Society; while the first in the presbytery to identify himself with the movement was the Moderator-elect, Rev. J. Monro Gibson, D.D." The organisation is called "The Ministers' and Office Bearers' Total Abstinence Society," and Mr. Hugh M. Matheson is president. The secretary's address is 72, Carlton-road, London, N.

Lady Henry Somerset delivered an address on temperance at the Francis-road, Congregational Church, Birmingham, on November 24. On the following evening a conversazione was given by Mr. and Mrs. George Cadbury at the Edgbaston Assembly Rooms, in support of the Ladies' Central Temperance Association. Madame Antoinette Sterling and others entertained the guests with music, which was followed by an address by Lady Henry Somerset.

Personalia.

Mr. Grenfell, of the Congo Baptist Mission, has just returned to this country—invalided, and requiring some months of complete rest.

Rev. Dr. Tyler, of Mile-end, the well-known Congregational minister, is, we regret to say, not expected to recover from his present serious illness.

Pastor Richard, director of the Marseilles Evangelisation School, has accepted the pastoral office rendered vacant by the death of M. Gagnebin, in connection with the Walloon Church, Amsterdam.

Mr. Graham Wilmot Brooke, of the Niger Mission, has been compelled by ill-health, to retire from the field for a time. Accompanied by Mrs. Brooke, and their infant son, he hopes to arrive in England this month to recruit. The new members of the Mission have now settled into their work at Lokoja.

Rev. Dr. Hamilton Magee, of Dublin, is, we are glad to say, recovering from his protracted and severe illness. He has for years exercised a great influence for good as editor of The Christian Irishman, a monthly from which we have frequently quoted interesting facts and wholesome opinion. In the meantime, the pages of this excellent little paper have been rendered very instructive by papers from the pen of Rev. Thomas (late "Father") Connellan.

Mr. J. N. Farquhar, a young Aberdonian, has accepted a post in the London Missionary Society's College, Calcutta. He is a graduate of Oxford, and hopes in due course to qualify for evangelistic work among native races of the Indian Empire. At a farewell meeting in Aberdeen a few days ago, the blessing of God were invoked upon him, and it was prayed that he might prove a worthy addition to the godly roll of men whom the "Granite City" had furnished to the cause of missions.

SUNDAY OBSERVANCE.—When Mr. Lawson brings forward his motion on Sunday opening of museums, Sir R. N. Fowler will move an amendment that the House, feeling the importance of the Sabbath as a day of rest, declines to sanction the opening of museums and galleries on Sunday.

OUR FEATHERED FRIENDS.—Now that the severe weather is upon us, there is another outlet for Christian kindness in the direction of a little thoughtfulness and care for the birds. Not one of them, Christ told us, falleth to the ground without our Father's knowledge, and it is far from being out of place that we should feed them with the crumbs from the tables that He fills for us.

NEW BRIGHTON Y.M.C.A.—The eighteenth annual meeting of this Association last week was attended by ministers of various denominations. The chair was occupied by Alderman James Smith, and among the speakers were: Revs. Dr. Muir, T. J. Madden, A. J. French, T. W. Bowman, and J. H. Gwyther. The report, read by Mr. T. A. Leigh, stated that the Committee had, of late, directed special attention to the spiritual side of the work. During the summer tent services on the shore had formed a very important feature of operation, friends from Liverpool having rendered valuable asisstance.

PICTURES AND PREACHING IN MISSION WORK.—Mr. Josiah Nix, of the Wesleyan West London Mission, is making pictures a handmaid to his preaching. By means of the magic lantern he has been depicting to delighted audiences some of the aspects of his work in the West End, as well as illustrating the evils of intemperance and the blessings of sobriety. Mr. Meakin, of the South London Mission, has also taken to the magic lantern. On a recent occasion, at Lockfields, he spoke to good purpose on current events, reproducing in an enlarged form many of the pictures that have of late appeared in the illustrated newspapers. Both preachers have had large audiences, and doubtless their success will induce others to follow their example.

The Book World.

A Bible for Students.

edition of the Holy Scriptures edited by Mr. mas Newberry has long been highly esteemed n attempt to place within the reach of the lish reader much of the fulness and precision he Hebrew and Greek originals. The mani- associations and suggestions of the original not, of course, be uniformly made apparent to reader of a translation, but to a large extent Word may be illuminated by the indication of distinctions and differences which are found on ost every page. Mr. Newberry's work has of been before the public in several forms, under title of "The Englishman's Bible," but no e has been so full of promise for all-round use- ness as that which has just been published, propriately entitled THE NEWBERRY BIBLE. It well described as the "Large Type Handy Re- ence Edition," and is printed on thin opaque lia paper, bound in Persian leather, bevelled rds, gilt edges, round corners, at a guinea; to had also in superior bindings. Scholars of re- e have acknowledged the substantial value of s Bible, and we have pleasure in commending h an attractive and really cheap edition to the ice of students. The book is a worthy monu- nt of a devoted life, and would be an acceptable sent to many pastors and Sunday-school teachers. odder & Stoughton).

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE CAUSE OF PEACE.—We welcome with easure the large pamphlet of 250 pages, entitled NIVERSAL PEACE CONGRESS, LONDON, 1890. e papers read and speeches delivered at the ngress are here collected and carefully edited. ey constitute a body of valuable material for e discussion of the subject in future years. (6d. fice of the Congress, 47, New Broad-street, London, C.)

FORESHADOWED; or, The Foster Brothers. By rs. G. E. Morton. 2s. 6d. Partridge. An admir- le story, illustrative of the evils of drinking and mbling. There are wholesome lessons for young en, and the pages are well worthy the attention parents who would train their families in the ar of God. As a well-written tale, true to life, e heartily commend the book, which is at once ntertaining and instructive.

SHORT BIOGRAPHIES FOR THE PEOPLE. Vol. vii. s. 6d.) Religious Tract Society. Tracts 73 to 84 e included in this volume, which is as good as its xcellent predecessors. Among the subjects are braham Lincoln, Charles Simeon, Archbishop Whately, Peter Waldo, Sir James Young Simpson, nd Dr. Edmund Calamy. The narratives are ell worth reading for the glimpses they afford nto the lives of great and good men; and as the arious writers have aimed at producing really nstructive and high class sketches the volume is eserving of hearty commendation.

AN HISTORICAL ACCOUNT OF THE ANCIENT CULDEES OF IONA. By the late John Jamieson, D.D., F.R.S. 4s. 6d. Simpkin, Marshall, Hamilton & Co. This is a popular edition of a work of istinct value. The Culdees bore a brave testi- nony upwards of a thousand years ago, when eccle- iastical tyranny and heathen darkness competed or empire over the Continent of Europe. Dr. Jamieson did his utmost to exhibit the testimony f antiquity on the subject; and, in addition to ffording an admirable description of the people nd their institutions, this volume gives details as o their various settlements in Scotland, England, nd Ireland.

"BY-PATHS OF BIBLE KNOWLEDGE." No. 14 of his series is MODERN DISCOVERIES ON THE SITE OF ANCIENT EPHESUS, by the late J. T. Wood, F.S.A. Many interesting facts are put into such a form as to be useful to the Bible student, who is enabled in some measure to realise scenes which were familiar to the disciple whom Jesus loved and the Apostle Paul. Another volume of the same series is EARLY BIBLE SONGS, by A. H. Drys- dale, M.A. There is a scholarly introduction on the nature and spirit of Hebrew song; and a sug- gestive examination of the songs of Moses, De- borah, and Hannah, David's Even-song ("last words"), and some minor poetical compositions in the earlier portion of the Old Testament. The critical is subordinated to the spiritual; and his- torical and literary matter is made subservient to the higher aim of stimulating an interest in the Scriptures and enforcing Divine principles. (2s. 6d. each. Religious Tract Society.)

WHEN HIS YEARS WERE FEW. By Edith Corn- forth. 1s. Charles H. Kelly. A touching story, beautifully written. It is evidently for the grown-ups, as a sad little love story closes it. Betty is a grand character.

REX RAYNOR, ARTIST, by Silas K. Hocking, is truthfully described as "a story of sowing and reaping." That wrong-doing brings its punish- ment, and virtue its reward, is forcibly shown. There are several illustrations by Harold Copping. (2s. 6d. F. Warne & Co.)

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN, by Harriet Beecher Stowe, has just been issued in a very attractive form, by Messrs. Hutchinson & Co., 25, Paternoster-square. The celebrated "tale of life among the lowly," is ever readable; but this edition, with a portrait of the author, and twenty-seven illustrations by George Cruikshank, is worthy of special commen- dation.

THE LAND WHERE JESUS CHRIST LIVED. By Hester Douglas. T. Nelson & Sons. In the form of a conversation a great deal of information is imparted concerning the Holy Land, and some of the Bible histories and incidents. The dialogue is homely, but the interest is well sustained, and young readers will find this method of learning sacred geography and history very attractive.

HENRY MARTYN. By Jesse Page. 1s. 6d. Partridge & Co. This is the latest issue of a series of excellent and cheap biographies. We are glad to welcome the story of a great life told again in such a popular and attractive form. Henry Martyn's bright but short career was spent in deep devotion to the service of his Master. In the words of Mr. Page: "Dark, cruel, and infernal was his environment in the East, the brave light of the truth flickering all the brighter amid the gloom." These pages give a vivid delineation of the character of the celebrated missionary.

JACOB HERBERT: a Study in Theology. By Rev. John Evans, B.A. 7s. 6d. Hodder & Stough- ton. In this goodly volume questions relating to the existence, the attributes, and the works of God are discussed under the light and theories of modern science. In order to present various views, so that the truth may be apparent by contrast with error and doubt, the author has adopted the plan of conducting the discussions by means, for the most part, of persons representing three schools of thought—the orthodox theologian, the scientific agnostic, and the (so-called) broad evangelical. Fully agreeing with Mr. Evans that "more is claimed for science than can be sustained, and that dogmatism is not confined to theologians," we commend his solid book to the study of those whose minds are distressed with doubts, and of such as desire to be able to deal with the questions which to-day perplex so many who have not found perfect rest in the Risen and Unchanging Christ.

RELIGIOUS TRACT SOCIETY.

ADOPTED; or, An Old Soldier's Embarrass- ments. By E.A.B.D. 2s. 6d. A thoroughly healthy book, that should stimulate all young readers.— DOT-AND-GO-ONE. By Blanche Hayward. 2s. The story of a lame boy, and of a voice found and lost, but leaving something better in its place.— MR. FARRER'S BIG O'S, by Emily Brodie. 1s. 6d. Mr. Farrer's influence over the boys of Leigham was of the very highest kind. Its fruits were seen in Charlie first, and then through the whole com- munity, until even incorrigible Joe yields to the spell.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION.

BESOM YARDS (2s. By T. Peet, M.A.) is a story of trial and deliverance well worth reading. The plot is slight, but the moral lessons are numerous and well enforced.

NOBODY'S GIRLS. By Sarah Tytler. 5s. This is a charming fresh story, narrating the chequered experiences of two young girls left to their own resources through being orphaned. Through all their adversity their trust in God was very strong, and subsequently fortune favoured them in a strange way. The story is sure to be read with engrossing interest, and is one that will have a wholesome influence.

ANNIE'S "YES" (1s. 6d.), by Florence E. Burch, presents Gospel truth in an attractive form. Other small wholesome books for the young are: LADS AND LASSES (1s.) by Mary Onley; BOGIE AND HIS MASTER (1s.) by Mrs. S. Seamer; DOROTHY'S LAVENDER (9d.), a temperance story, by Emily Jane Moore; MARION'S REPENTANCE (9d.) by Mrs. J. Ferry; A PIRATE BOLD (9d.) by Hugh Paton; and SELF-SACRIFICE AND ITS REWARD (6d.) by Mrs. J. Ferry.

ANNUAL VOLUMES.

The Methodist Temperance Magazine for 1890. 3s. Kelly. Here are some capital papers on facts, arguments, and principles; and reports of the progress of the temperance cause in different parts of the world. Rev. W. E. Codling contributes a series of valuable articles on gambling. The pages are practical and interesting throughout.

THE JUVENILE. A magazine for the young, 1890. This serial, edited by Rev. George Cousins, for the London Missionary Society, is beyond all praise, both in point of striking illustration and attractive etterpress. It would be difficult to describe to better advantage than here set forth the follies and horrors of heathen worship. Miss M. T. Bliss contributes "Rapatsa, the story of a Malagasy Slave." (1s. Snow.)

THE KING'S HIGHWAY. Vol. xix. This "Journal of Scripture Holiness" is a repertory of grand counsels, edited by Rev. I. E. Page and John Brash. In this goodly volume of over 400 pages, account is rendered of conventions in various parts; there are many articles expository of Scripture teaching on sanctification; and testi- monies such as will delight others beside Methodists are numerous. (3s. 6d. C. H. Kelly.)

THE CHRISTIAN MISCELLANY AND FAMILY VISITOR, 1890. 3s. Kelly. A model serial; the annual volume, containing 476 pages, full of high- class reading. There are running stories, descrip- tive sketches, and choice extracts on many topics. The biographical and literary articles are fully illustrated, and the result is a very readable and attractive volume, such as all Methodists at least ought to read, and are sure to appreciate very highly.

THE SHIELD AND SPEAR. Vol. v. This magazine opens every month with a sermon by its editor, Rev. W. Evans Hurndall, M.A. These discourses are thoughtful and vigorous, and will well repay persual. The general contents of the volume are bright, in harmony with the whole-hearted Christian service of which the church in Harley- street, Bow, is the centre. Doubtless the magazine helps the work, but beyond that, it has made for itself a place in the esteem of many. (Elliot Stock.)

BABYHOOD: A Magazine for Mothers. Vol. vi. 10s. 6d. R. J. Bush, 92 and 93, Fleet-street. This monthly, edited by Dr. Leroy M. Yale, of New York, is devoted to the care of infants and young children. Its pages convey important information in language easy of comprehension, and the annual volume is quite an encyclopædia of nursery facts and experiences. Homes are the happier for such useful visitors as this sixpenny monthly. The volume would be a welcome present to many a thoughtful mother.

OLD JONATHAN: The District and Parish Helper. 1s. 6d. Collingridge. The thirty-fourth volume which the venerable Dr. Doudney has been privileged to edit of this wholesome periodical. The pages address young and old, always in a high tone, warning against evil and encouraging to good. The volume should have a place in village libraries. Soldiers and sailors would find in its pages not only much to interest them directly, but many articles which would remind them of the home life and its influences.

THE YOUNG MAN, Vol. iv. 2s. Partridge. This is distinctly a publication with a purpose, and deserving of warm commendation for the degree in which it achieves that purpose. Thoughtful young men cannot but be drawn to its pages, which are filled with reading fully worth their attention. There is a suggestive symposium on "What is it to be a Christian?" also a story by R. M. Ballan- tyne, and a series of Y.M.C.A. sketches with por- traits of well-known secretaries. Among the regular contributors are Rev. W. J. Dawson and Mr. J. M. Barrie.

Mr. T. W. Bradbury has written two booklets—A MERRY CHRISTMAS and A HAPPY NEW YEAR. 4d. per dozen. 261, Camberwell New-road, S.E.

An interesting pocket calendar has been published by the Netherlands Religious Tract Society, entitled, BIJBELSCHE ALMANAK VOOR HET JAAR 1891. (Amsterdam: D. B. Centen.)

The Christmas number of THE QUEEN opens with a picture, "Four Empresses"—Queen Victoria, and their Majesties of Germany, Austria, and Russia. The lite- rary contents are fully illustrated. The Duchess of Rutland contributes some glimpses of Aix-les-Bains, Geneva, Wiesbaden, and Darmstadt. The coloured sup- plement is a reproduction of "Queen and Heir," by Van der Bos. (1s. Offices: 346, Strand.)

 By a printer's error, last week, the booklet "From Safety to Sceptre" was given as "From Safety to Sceptic."

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The Duke of Fife has given £25 for the extension of the Church Army Labour Home Scheme in many of the poorest parishes of England.

The Guardian is authorised to say that the Bishop of Lincoln has complied, and will comply, with the judgment of the Archbishop and his Assessors.

Rev. Thomas Lloyd, newly appointed St. Asaph diocesan missioner, commenced his duties by conducting an eight days' mission in the Parish Church, Old Colwyn.

A Society of Mission clergy in the diocese of Truro has been formed for the purpose of associating for co-operation such clergymen as have needful gifts, opportunity, and will for the work.

The Lincoln judgment, says Dr. Clifford, is remarkable as dealing with points that show the tremendous distance which the Christianity of the Church of England has travelled from that of Jesus Christ. Questions of this kind do not enter into his teaching, but are wholly remote from it. We go out of the atmosphere of the Sermon on the Mount when we enter that of the Archbishop's Court.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. R. Balgarnie has had a very successful seven days' mission at Trinity Church, Bishop Auckland.

Rev. John McNeill has been elected honorary chaplain of the Royal Caledonian Asylum. As one of the Synod evangelists, he will conduct a week of services in Bristol.

During the next London Synod, early in the spring, a missionary meeting is to be held in Exeter Hall. Similar meetings are likely to be held in large centres throughout the country.

Much blessing has been following the services in the Somers Town Presbyterian Church, Ossulston-street, N.W. On Sunday last, sixty-three new members were received by Rev. Z. B. Woffendale into the fellowship of the Church.

SALVATION ARMY.

New headquarters of the Tyneside division of the Salvation Army have been opened in Westgate-road, Newcastle. The building is estimated to provide accommodation for 2800 persons.

New buildings are about to be erected at Sheffield, to cost, including the site, about £20,000. The part of the new premises used for religious purposes will cost about £7000, of which Sheffield people are asked to contribute £2000. The remainder will be furnished by the Central Fund.

The Correctional Tribunal at Ghent recently tried a case in which several persons were charged with having behaved in a disorderly manner during the progress of a Salvation Army meeting. The magistrates fined the defendants for having interfered with the "soldiers" in the exercise of their religious devotions.

METHODIST.

About 150 persons went into the inquiry-room during a mission conducted by Rev. T. Waugh at Newbury.

Primitive Methodists of Marple have secured about £300 towards the cost of a new Sunday-school to be erected at an early date.

A Sunday-school conference for the Manchester district will be held in Great Western-street Church, Manchester, on January 17.

A Biblical instruction class has been formed at Zion Memorial Church, Middlesborough, for the benefit of young men and local preachers.

The special Sunday afternoon services for the working-classes held last year at Waltham-street, Hull, are being repeated with great success.

Rev. E. F. Tonkin, Preston, has accepted an invitation to labour in East London on the lines of the forward movement, after next Conference.

The district secretary for Newcastle-on-Tyne is forming a district union for the promotion of temperance principles. Several circuits have already appointed officers.

The Home Mission Committee proposes to raise immediately £20,000 for strengthening weak Wesleyan societies in villages and poor circuits so as to enable them to become self-supporting.

At the next session, Bala Welsh Calvinistic College, Wales, will be converted into a purely theological institution, and steps taken to fill up the vacancy caused by the death of Principal Edwards.

Anxiety is felt respecting the Zambesi Mission party, in connection with the Primitive Methodist Church. Nothing has been heard of its whereabouts or doings since the reception of a letter, dated August 4.

The history of Dr. Stephenson's work at the Children's Home is given in a paper by Mr. W. J. Forster in the December Sunday Magazine. Dr. Stephenson reports cheering progress in connection with the Methodist sisterhood.

A supplement to The Methodist Times of last week gives a comprehensive feature of the Wesleyan forward movement in Darkest London, and a pressing plea for its extension. All the branches are described, and £10,000 asked for to carry on its varied operations.

A very successful meeting in furtherance of the Methodist settlement in South London was held at Central Hall, Manchester. Rev. Mark Guy Pearse said the only thing to save England from the perils that beset it was the Christian Socialism of the New Testament.

The church at Moss-lane, Manchester, Rev. D. T. Maylott, minister, has had a revival during the recent united mission of the Manchester circuits. About eighty persons have professed conversion. Much spiritual good has been also realised in other circuits of the city.

BAPTIST.

Among the recent candidates for baptism at Folkestone Church was Rev. R. N. Toke, M.A., Emmanuel Church, Folkestone.

Milton Hall, Kidderminster, the gift of Mr. J. P. Harvey, was opened recently by Rev. G. W. M'Cree, of London. The building has cost about £2000, and will afford accommodation for 500 persons.

To Mr. Spurgeon's congregation (worshipping at the Crown Baths, Kennington Oval) a letter was read on Sunday from their pastor at Mentone. He was almost free from pain, and his hand, though swollen, was better. He sought a constant interest in their prayers that he may be thoroughly restored by the time he returned to resume his ministry. Rev. H. O. Mackay, of Peckham, preached in the morning; Rev. J. A. Spurgeon in the evening.

Resignation.—Rev. F. Jones, Waterloo-road Church, Wolverhampton.

Calls Accepted.—Rev. T. B. Westlake to the Church in the Gymnasium, Douglas, Isle of Man.—Rev. F. J. Aust, of Cradley-heath, to Bewdley.—Rev. N. T. Jones-Miller to Carlton Church, Northampton.—Mr. Ince, Pastors' College, to Fleet, near Holbeach.—Rev. Edgar Manning Andrews, late of Regent's-park College, to Charnwood-road, Shepshed.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Mr. Henry Lightbown, Pendleton, has contributed £1000 for the extension of Congregationalism in Salford.

It has been decided to erect a new church at Chorlton-cum-Hardy, to be named "The Macfadyen Memorial Church."

A "Children's Church" and a "Young People's Guild" are among the new organisations of Christ Church, Westgate-on-Sea.

The Mayor of Southport presided at the inauguration of a mission-hall in Boundary-street, erected by a joint committee of the West-end and Portland-street Churches.

Since Rev. G. H. Sandwell took charge of "Old Zion," the first Congregational church of Toronto, five new churches have been planted in various suburban districts, some already self-sustaining and strong. A Toronto Congregational Association has been formed.

Rev. Griffith-Jones, from Llanelly, commenced his ministry at Mount View Church, Stroud Green, N., on Sunday last. large congregations attending morning and evening. Mr. Griffith-Jones brings with him a record of work which augurs well for the future prospects of this young church.

Resignation.—Rev. W. W. Jubb, Abney Church, Mossley.

Calls Accepted.—Rev. J. Craig Kelly, Forest Hill, to Watling-street, Canterbury.—Mr. James Brighting, of Nottingham Congregational Institute, to Old Meeting House, Norwich.—Rev. J. E. Clayton, Whitworth, Rochdale, to Cockermouth.—Rev. W. Caradog Jones, of Corris, to Ruthin.—Mr. Walter H. Lovell, of Western College, to Gosport.—Mr. E. G. Rees, Carmarthen College, to the joint pastorate of Abergarlech and Carmel churches.

NOTES FROM SCOTLAND.

Rev. John Robertson's call to the Free Gorbal's Church, Glasgow, will be before the Presbytery on December 19.

The St. John's Parish Church in Victoria-street, Edinburgh, built in 1840 for the famous Dr. Guthrie, has celebrated its jubilee.

At the instance of Mr. Macaskill, the Dingwall F.C. Presbytery have unanimously passed a strongly-worded overture on the Dods and Bruce cases, to be submitted to the next General Assembly.

The Perthshire Discharged Prisoners' Aid Society is receiving much encouragement in its endeavours to help criminals to an honest and better life. The influence of ladies in the good work is very marked.

Dr. Marshall Lang, of Glasgow, in a recent lecture maintained that the sacred and the secular spheres could not be severed in national life, and the national recognition of religion is a primary duty of the State.

The Glasgow Home Mission Union, working through the affiliated congregations, has, during the past six months, helped hundreds to a higher and truer life. A general scheme of visitation is being arranged.

Dr. Walker, of Dysart, recently returned from the States, reports that there are plots across the Atlantic to retain Dr. Stalker there when he goes to deliver his Yale lectures. Dr. Walker advises Scotch students to visit Princeton instead of Germany.

The Glasgow Foundry Boys' Society has celebrated the semi-jubilee of its operations, which now influence as many as twenty-four thousand boys and girls in that city. There are 2000 voluntary workers, and over eighty meeting-places in the city and suburbs.

The association for the religious improvement of the Highlands and islands, in connection with the Free Church, carries on mission work at forty-four remote stations. Visitation and meetings for adults, Bible-classes for the young, &c., are carried on.

For some time a sharp dispute has been raging in the Parish Church of Shotts, in consequence of an assistant pastor being put over the people against the will of the majority of the members. The unwelcome worker has now retired; the chosen minister of the congregation has entered on his charge, and the quarrel is thus ended.

Negotiations for the amalgamation of three of the Free Churches in New Town, Edinburgh—St. Stephen's, St. Luke's, and Tolbooth—are in active progress. The whole three congregations will probably worship in St. Luke's, which is centrally situated and the largest church of the three. This is the church in which the late Brownlow North used to preach to large congregations during his great evangelistic effort some thirty years ago.

Rev. D. S. Adam, of Banchory, succeeds Professor Skinner in the pastorate of the Free Church, Kelso.

Rev. J. Knox Brown, of Nairn, has been called to be assistant to Rev. George Wilson, St. Michael's Parish Church, Edinburgh.

Mr. G. O. Barnes has been holding meetings at Thurso, in the far North. A correspondent of The Ross-shire Journal reports that the attendance has been small, and little public interest is manifested.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

A fund has been created by the workers of Fisherwick-place Presbyterian Church, Belfast, for the education of women doctors for foreign missions.

Ballymena Sunday School Union has now connected with it 22 schools, 278 teachers, and 3428 scholars, and is doing a good work in promoting a spirit of earnestness and zeal among the teachers.

A large meeting for prayer for missions was held in the Town Hall, Kingstown, on Dec. 5, when a deep and solemn interest was evinced. Addresses were delivered by delegates from China and elsewhere.

The annual meeting of Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission was held, on Dec. 2, in Trinity College; there was a large attendance of the students, and of friends of the Mission. Two more missionaries will shortly be sent out.

Rev. Dr. Stephenson and his choir of boys and girls from the Children's Home, London, have visited several centres in Ireland during the past week, including Dublin, Newry, Belfast, Coleraine, and Derry, and everywhere have had large audiences, and made a most favourable impression.

The thirty-first annual report of the Bible and Colportage Society of Ireland has been issued, and shows that the colporteurs, of whom there are eighteen, have visited thousands of Roman Catholic homes during the year, and have been generally well received. The Society is undoubtedly doing an excellent and useful work.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rev. Alfred W. Mason, canon of St. Albans, recently vicar of Dedham, and for many years vicar of St. John's, Moulsham, near Chelmsford.—Mrs. Corneille, wife of Rev. Edwin Corneille, Methodist minister, Dongal.—Mr. M. Hooke, aged 87 years, for 55 years an active elder in the Presbyterian Church.—Mr. James Wilson, aged 85 years, for over 60 years a devoted Presbyterian elder at Drumlee, co. Down.—Mr. Israel Tucker, Methodist class-leader and church trustee at Bradford-on-Avon, Wilts.—Rev. William L. Pendered, incumbent of Ennerdale, Westmorland.—Rev. Henry Sutcliffe, rector of Keele, Staffordshire.—Mr. Hezekiah Cowdrey, who was a church member for over forty years at Heytesbury Congregational Church.—Rev. William Morgan, Presbyterian minister of Treharris.—Mr. James Parker, for many years closely identified with the Seventh London (Methodist) Circuit.—Rev. Canon Jarratt, vicar of North Cave, Yorkshire.—Mr. J. Monkhouse, Barnard Castle, prominent in the cause of village Methodism.—Rev. Thomas De Vine, vicar of Northwood, Burton-on-Trent.—Mr. W. B. Vince, fourth son of the late Mr. Charles Vince, Baptist Church, Graham-street, Birmingham.—Mr. John Kelham, of Kegworth, who for many years occupied prominent Methodist circuit and church positions.—Rev. Henry Sutcliffe, vicar of Keele, and late rural dean of Newcastle.—Rev. Percy Strutt, last year's chairman of the Congregational Board of Ministers, and who retired in 1873 from ministry at Kilburn.—Mr. John Biltcliffe, a prominent member of Penistone Congregational Church.—Mr. John Beavis Brindley (Congregationalist), Recorder of Hanley.—Rev. Sir Cavendish Foster, rector of Upper Sewell, Glos.—Rev. Robert Isham, rector of Edenport, Northampton.—Mr. T. W. B. Bone, one of the oldest members of Spencer-street Congregational Church, Leamington.—Mr. Thomas Banks, J.P., a generous supporter of Buxton Congregational Church, Kidderminster.—Mr. C. Watcham, for 40 years connected with Stoke Green Baptist Chapel, Ipswich.—Rev. Henry Richards (Baptist), Glenareth.—Mr. John Oakley, for many years librarian of Eton College.—Rev. Dr. Mackenzie, of Urquhart.—Mr. Job Bevan, deacon of Treharris Baptist Church.—Rev. Dr. Stoddart, for 40 years minister of Madderty, Perthshire.—Mr. Prichard Verdre, deacon of the Baptist Church, Llandovery.—Rev. Daniel Macfie, formerly of Portnahaven, Islay, where he laboured for about 40 years.—Mr. William Gregson (at Blackburn), one of the best known temperance advocates in England.

CHILDREN OF THE SLUMS.—We would call the attention of our London readers to the important meeting to be held in Exeter Hall on Tuesday evening next, when Dr. Barnardo will give an address on "Deliverance from the slums of the children of Darkest England." The subject is one of the greatest moment, and we trust there will be an overflowing audience to hear the address.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on the following:—Special services by Mr. Open Rodway, at Bible Christian Chapel, South Molton, Devon, from Dec. 13 to 17.——A mission at Buchanan Memorial Church, Glasgow, by Mr. J. A. Smith, Aberdeen.——Evangelistic work in Surrey.——Services among colliers, in Ashby-de-la-Zouch.——Gospel services, by Pastor J. Tidman, of Blaenavon, at Abergavenny, from Dec. 14.——Services in a barn, at Marden, Wilts.——PRAISE: For blessing on a Gospel mission at Southmead and Westbury-on-Trym, near Bristol, conducted by Mr. G. Cummings.

TES ON DAILY READINGS.

SUNDAY, DEC. 4.—Isaiah XVIII.

chapter is very obscure to us, who have lost lue to many of the references. But, on the e, it seems clear that the prophet continues reference to the overthrow of the hosts of ria, with which the last chapter closed, and es that the Ethiopian ambassadors, who were at Jerusalem, should carry tidings of it to own nations. The heading of the English ion, "God will destroy the Ethiopians," is a ake, arising from the misrendering of "Woe," h should be "Ho"; not a threat, but a call to ntion (Zech. ii. 6).

"The land of the winged bark," i.e., ships wing-like sails. "Beyond" might be rdering on." This was the country of Candace ts viii. 27).

The bulrush is the papyrus, of which the ptians made light boats. "Scattered and led" (i.e., torn to pieces) refer to the condition the Jews under the terrors of that invasion. y had been "terrible" from the first (Exod. ii. 27; Josh. ii. 9). They were now "spoiled" the overflowing tide of Assyria (xvii. 12).

. All the earth is summoned to behold the stering of the Assyrian hosts against Jerusalem. shall the hosts of Antichrist gather on a future to their destruction (Zech. xii. 2-36, xiv. 2-4).

. At first God would not interfere with the syrian plans. He would even seem to favour m as sunshine and dew mature the harvest. w often is God's silence misinterpreted? Men nk it means indifference, but it is like the nce of nature before a thunderstorm (Ps. l. 21; Pet. iii. 3-10). Let us possess our souls in like ience.

. "For" is But. God steps in between the host accomplished plan and its completion, and s away with a single blow all hopes of success.

. We learn from Rev. xix. 17, 18 that the anti-ristian hosts, of which those of Sennacherib re a type, shall be a prey to bird and beast.

. When great mercies of deliverance have been perienced, there should be some glad return, ne presentation (Rom. xii. 1). See also 2 Chron. xii. 23.

MONDAY, DEC. 15.—Isaiah XIX.

Egypt had often been the ally of Israel. Here r judgment is pronounced, with the further ospect of ultimate deliverance and conversion.

1. Egypt in Hebrew is Mizraim, a plural form, noting the division of the country into Upper d Lower.

2. Referring to internal dissensions, by which evechus, or So, the ally of Hoshea (2 Kings xvii. , was compelled to retire into lower Egypt, leav-g Sethos, one of the priestly caste, supreme at emphis. 4. This may refer to Sargon or Nebu-adnezzar. But it has often been the plight of at unfortunate land. 5. If the inundation of the ile does not rise to twelve cubits, it will not undate the land, and famine follows.

6. Rather, "And the streams shall become utrid, the canals of Egypt shall be emptied and ried up." This would be the result of the failure the Nile. 7. "The paper reeds" might be ndered the grass lands.

10. "The foundations" are the princes, "the sluice dam-diggers" are the poor. The general distress ould affect all classes.

13. Zoan was on the Nile, called Tanis (Num. ii. 22; Ps. lxxviii. 12, 43). Noph was Memphis.

15. Neither the lofty palm branch nor the umble reed should be able to devise any means of elp. 17. At this time Hezekiah had not broken ith Assyria, but was still in alliance with it, and as its active agent in the invasion of Egypt. All he wisdom and strength in which men glory, part from God, cannot avail them when his time f judgment has come.

18. A blessed transition takes place here. Struck ith "terror," Egypt should turn to Jehovah for ercy. "To speak the language of Canaan" is a gure for the adoption of the true religion (Zeph. i. 9). Gesenius translates "the city of destruc-on," the city of deliverance.

19. After the Captivity, great numbers of Jews ettled in Egypt; a temple was erected at Helio-olis, on the model of that at Jerusalem: and the Septuagint version of the Old Testament was prepared for the multitudes of Jews who only spoke Greek; but, doubtless, there is to be a yet further turning to God in that land. The "border pillar" would be a witness to the common faith of the two countries.

20. It is supposed by some that Alexander the Great is referred to, who delivered Egypt from the hand of the Persians. But surely the ultimate reference is to the great salvation of the Lord Jesus (Heb. ii. 3).

23-25. Those who have been our greatest foes, when changed by the grace of God, will become our closest friends. Here is a glad forecast of the universal spread of true religion.

TUESDAY, DEC. 16.—Isaiah XX.

Alarmed by the rapid successes of Assyria, a small section of the people of Judah began to count on the wisdom of an alliance with Egypt. To arrest this movement, and lead to single-hearted trust in God, Isaiah foretells, by speech and act, the subjugation of the people whose alliance they sought. Egypt and Ethiopia are represented as allied together, the result, doubtless of a common fear (3, 4).

1. Sargon is thought to have completed the capture of Samaria, which Shalmaneser began. He then sent his general, Tartan (2 Kings xviii. 17), to attack the Philistine cities preliminary to the invasion of Egypt. The Assyrian inscriptions confirm each step of these prophecies. A memorial tablet of Sargon has been found in Cyprus, showing that he carried his conquests also to that island.

2. Naked, i.e., divested of all his upper garments, and wearing only the dress next his skin.

6. "Of this isle," i.e., coast bordering on the sea. If so strong a state as Egypt could not withstand the onset of the victorious hosts, how should the comparatively weak Jewish state survive? Those who trust in man will be ashamed of their trust. But disappointment in creature-confidence should drive us to God, who cannot disappoint, and who will never fail those who trust Him, however weak.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 17.—Isaiah XXI.

This chapter is filled with predictions against Babylon, Dumah, and Arabia.

1-10. BABYLON.—The prophet does not narrate the event, but supposes himself to be a watchman in the land, beholding its destruction by the Medes and Persians. The desert between Babylon and Persia was once covered with the water of the Euphrates as a sea, until Semiramis raised great dams against it. Cyrus removed them, and thus the whole country reverted again to a vast desert marsh.

1. Whirlwinds break on the site of Babylon from the Arabian desert with terrific force, and might well represent the attack on the mighty city by the Medo-Persian hosts.

2. "The treacherous dealer," probably refers to the stratagem employed by Cyrus in the capture of Babylon, by diverting the waters of the river from their course, so that his troops could march through the bed.

3. For a moment the prophet imagines himself a citizen of the doomed city, and even a reveller in the last banquet of Belshazzar (Dan. v.).

5. First the king of Babylon orders a banquet, and commands that in the meanwhile watch should be kept in the watch-towers. During the banquet the princes are suddenly bidden to prepare for battle.

7. "When he seeth a troop, horsemen in pairs, a troop of asses, a troop of camels, he shall hearken diligently with much heed" (R.V.). The Persians used each kind of animal in war.

8. A lion is an emblem of watchful strength.

9. The first of the invading army. The Persians had no images, and were great image breakers.

10. How tender is this address to the Jews, trodden down by their proud foes. Even when we are being threshed we are still dear to God, who only winnows the chaff from the wheat.

11. DUMAH is a tribe or region in Arabia (Gen. xxv. 14). A voice is heard inquiring whether the nights of affliction would soon pass. The answer prognosticates a morning of prosperity to the Jews, but future calamities for others. This is coupled with a promise of further information to be given to future inquiries. What of the night! is an inquiry which well befits us who long for the rising of the day-star. The answer is given in Rom. xiii. 11.

13-17. ARABIA was to be overrun by the invader within a year. The caravans of Dedanim, in North Arabia, would be driven, through fear of the foe, into new and unusual routes. The inhabitants of another tribe, the Temeans, would give them bread and water. "Prevented," i.e., anticipated their needs.

Those whom God has set as watchmen must be on the alert to read the signs of the times, standing on the high places of fellowship with Him, where the quiet heart reads his plans.

THURSDAY, DEC. 18.—Isaiah XXII.

A prophecy of the siege of Jerusalem, called "a valley," because, though seated on hills, it was surrounded by hills still higher. The time alluded to must have been in the fourteenth year of Hezekiah, the preparations of whom with respect to the water supply are specially described (2 Chron. xxxii. 4, 5, 30).

1. A vivid picture of an Oriental city in panic.

2. We learn that, in the siege by Nebuchadnezzar in after years, pestilence and famine were the main cause of deaths (Jer. xiv. 18, xxxviii. 2).

3. It is supposed that this verse alludes to attempts made by some of the leaders to escape from the city, but they were taken captive by the light-armed troops of the enemy.

6. Two nations subject to Assyria, composing the light and heavy troops. To remove the covering of the shield is to prepare for battle.

9. Hezekiah repaired the walls, and stopped the waters of the brook Kedron from flowing outwards, to the possible assistance of the invader, confining them within the City walls.

11. Men will rather look to their own efforts for deliverance than to God.

12-14. Notwithstanding God's call for mourning on account of sin, many betook themselves to senseless revelry and self-indulgence (Jer. xviii. 12; 1 Cor. xv. 32).

15-25. A solemn denunciation of Shebna, who was thus addressed, while excavating a splendid tomb. He may have been, as his name suggests, a foreigner, and counselled Hezekiah to submit to Sennacherib, thus leading a party opposed to Isaiah. He was to be carried into captivity and covered with shame (perhaps Lev. xiii. 45). He was to be whirled round and round as a stone in a sling, and then cast away. In chapters xxxvi. 3-22, xxxvii. 2, Shebna is no longer over the household, but Eliakim is in that office, as here predicted.

However true these closing verses may have been in a lower sense of Eliakim, who became the stay and support of his people, yet in their truest sense they can only be true of our blessed Lord, by whom they are appropriated (Rev. iii. 7). He has the key of David, opening all doors before us. On Him we all hang, who are vessels for the Master's use, and the greatest among us depends on Him equally as the least. And He can never be removed, or his blessed work destroyed.

FRIDAY, DEC. 19.—Isaiah XXIII.

The subject of this chapter is the overthrow of Tyre, which, at this time, was in the height of her glory, inhabited by a flourishing mercantile community. She was mistress of the Mediterranean. Her ships carried the merchandise of every land. Her daughter, Carthage, on the coast of Africa, had risen into a great and prosperous city. There had been a friendly alliance between David and Hiram, King of Tyre; but the connection in after years became highly prejudicial, as it was through the marriage of Ahab with Jezebel, daughter of the reigning King of Tyre, Ethbaal, that gross idolatry was introduced into Israel. The assault referred to here took place under Shalmaneser, after the fall of Samaria. From this attack it partially recovered, but it was demolished by Nebuchadnezzar after thirteen years' siege; and Alexander afterwards destroyed New Tyre.

1. Ships of Tyre returning from their voyage to Tartessus, on the coast of Spain, could find no possibility of entering the harbour, because it would be so choked with rubbish. Robinson says that the harbour is quite filled with sand and broken columns. As they touched at Chittim (Cyprus) they would learn these tidings.

3. Sihor, black or muddy, denotes the Nile. Tyre amassed great wealth in carrying the corn produce of Egypt.

4. "The strength of the sea" refers to the strong fortress or stronghold of Tyre.

10. It would seem as if Tyre had originally sprung from Tarshish, and now her populations were to pour back to the mother city as a river, free of all restraint.

13. The Chaldeans, then a tribe of mountaineers, who owed their existence to the Assyrians, would become even worse foes of Tyre than the Assyrians had been; Nebuchadnezzar more terrible than Shalmaneser.

15. This seventy years evidently refers to Nebuchadnezzar's assault. The overthrow of Babylon by Cyrus brought the same deliverance to them as to the Jews. As a forsaken courtesan will try to win back love by her songs, so would this great commercial centre seek to attract her former commerce from all nations.

18. Days are predicted in which commerce should become a servant to the Gospel, consecrating its gains to the service of God.

SATURDAY, DEC. 20.—Isaiah XXIV.

This and the three following chapters form a single prophecy, describing the calamities that were to desolate the world, by which the people of God were to be chastened and purified. It primarily referred, no doubt, to the desolations consequent on the conquests of Nebuchadnezzar, but it also contains references to the great panorama of human history in its widest extent.

1-12. CALAMITY.—Sin always brings sorrow (5). To this there are no exceptions (2, 4, 6). The world itself is waste and desolate, other than the Creator intended in its first creation, by reason of human sin (Rom. viii. 20). There is a mysterious sympathy between man and the creation around. And when, in addition to this, God smites the world with famine and scarcity, as a punishment for sin, then indeed "the mirth of the land is gone" (11).

13-16. MERCY.—There is always a godly remnant, as in gathering olives a few remain on the highest boughs. "The fires" here may refer to the tribulations of the time. Oh for grace to glorify God there. Or it may refer to the East in contradistinction to the isles of the sea, i.e., the West. Wherever we are scattered, let us carry the praise of God. "Glory to the righteous": this was the burden of their song. But perhaps it might be rendered, "Glory to the Righteous One."

17-20. THE INSTABILITY OF ALL WORLDLY THINGS.—The world is here compared to a hammock, suspended from the trees by cords, and swaying in the wind (20). Ah, how insecure is the reliance of those who have no other hope or trust but the transient things of time! (Heb. xii. 28). Let us set our hearts more stedfastly on the Kingdom which cannot be removed.

21-23. There is here an anticipation of the days when Christ shall put down all rule, authority, and power; and when He shall reign over the entire family of man, in a glory before which the fairest light of human government must pale and wane.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, December 21.

JESUS' PARTING WORDS—LUKE xxiv. 44-53.

GOLDEN TEXT: JOHN xiv. 3.

FROM this Gospel it would appear that these last words of Jesus were spoken in the upper room on the night of the resurrection, and that the ascension followed immediately on the same night. In Acts i. 3, Luke supplements this account. We conclude, therefore, that this lesson summarises the teaching of Jesus during those forty days.

Between the resurrection and the ascension there were other appearances of the Saviour besides those which Luke records (1 Cor. xv. 3-8). No historical fact is better attested than the Resurrection of Jesus.

44. The Lord from the other world looks back upon his life testimony in this. The retrospect fills Him with no shame—no regret for neglected or misused opportunities. Why? Because his unvarying testimony had been to the certainty of the Divine word. By "the law, the prophets, and the psalms" Jesus refers to the Old Testament Scriptures, the fulfilment of which He regards as certain.

45. He had before opened the Scriptures (32). It was needful also to open the understanding. See Ps. cxix. 18, 125; Eph. i. 18. This is probably what is described in John xx. 22. "John names the efficient cause, Luke the effect produced."—Godet.

46-48. There is a twofold necessity for Christ's sufferings, which had so disheartened the Apostles, and for his resurrection, which had so startled them. First, "it is written," and the Scripture is not to be broken (44). Second, "it behoved Christ." Scripture does not create the necessity, it only announces it. The work Christ had come to accomplish, the manifestation of God's righteousness against sin, and of his love for the sinner—this made the necessity which Scripture declares. "Repentance and remission" (47).—The necessity applies also to this proclamation. The two facts (46) are the basis on which this Gospel message rests. But for the atoning death and the resurrection their could be no offer of pardon to the guilty (Acts x. 43, xiii. 38, 39). "All nations" (comp. Matt. xxviii. 19; Mark xvi. 15).—In this see the breadth of the Saviour's love; and see its depth in the fact that this preaching must begin "at Jerusalem." Such was the revenge his love took upon the city that had been guilty of his murder. "Witnesses" (48) of the facts—death, resurrection, and ascension—on which this Gospel depends.

49. "The promise"—not a promise worthy to rank as one of many. In a very special sense, "the promise," in which all others are included. It was the Father's promise to Jesus, which could only be fulfilled after his death, and his glorification (John vii. 38-39; Acts ii. 33). This was to be their "power." Even the personal witnesses of the risen Saviour, who received their commission from his own lips, were not equipped until they had received power. Is not this a lesson for every teacher? Every "witness" should expect this "power from on high" (Acts i. 8).

50, 51. Additional details in connection with the ascension are given in Acts i. 9-12. This event was a subject of Old Testament prophecy (Ps. xxiv. 7-10, lxviii. 18). Jesus had also referred to it (John vi. 62, xiv. 28, xx. 17). It was the crown of his earthly life; in it man, as represented in Christ, attains his highest possible glory. "He led them," &c.—For part of the way the journey could not fail to recall the walk to Gethsemane. They again descended from the city, crossed the brook Kedron, and, leaving Gethsemane near the foot of the mount, commenced the ascent of Olivet (Acts i. 12). This was the way to Bethany, and the ascension took place "over against" that city (50, R.V.). "He lifted up his hands."—He was about to ascend to be the High Priest of our profession (Heb. iv. 14, ix. 24); and, before passing into the upper sanctuary, gave to the disciples his blessing (Lev. ix. 22). "While He blessed" (51), not after, but during, the act of blessing. "There was one thing," said a good old saint, "that Jesus never finished." "What was that?" "His last blessing before He ascended." In a very real sense that is true. By his continual intercession before the throne, He is still performing the act of blessing; nor will it be completed until He returns to take his people to Himself (Heb. vii. 25, ix. 24-28). In Acts i. 9-11 we read of the cloud and the angels.

52, 53. "Worshipped."—Not mere respect paid to a superior, but adoration paid to a Divine being (John. v. 23). The "great joy" of the disciples now that He has left them proves how they have profited by the teaching of Jesus. Instead of being troubled, they can rejoice that He has gone to the Father (John xiv. 28). "Praising and blessing God" (53).—Should not that be the constant occupation of those who have understood the fact of our Lord's ascension? How can the members of the body suffer while the Head is there?

APPLICATION.

"While I was yet with you."—To the teacher the words suggest the importance of making right use of present opportunities. When Dr. Payson died, and his congregation came to see his body, they found a label attached to his breast, with the words: "Remember the words which I spake unto you while I was yet present with you." When we thus review our life-work, nothing will give us satisfaction except the thought that we have faithfully and lovingly spoken the word of God.

To the scholar, the words suggest that opportunities are fleeting. Make the best of them. Parents or teachers, when they were "with you," gave you the Divine message; how have you received it?

"It behoved Christ."—Let every child know why it was needful for Christ to suffer. Not because He could not escape it, but because the glory of God in our salvation required it. Either we must die, or a substitute must die for us. Have you ever thanked Him for such wondrous love?

"Repentance and remission."—The two are inseparable. To enable Christ to give remission of sins was the object of his death; but none receive it except those who repent. Repentance is not the price with which we purchase remission, but the condition necessary for receiving it. He who does not know and acknowledge sin cannot be pardoned.

"Power from on high."—Are teachers sufficiently alive to the importance of this? To be filled with the Spirit is every worker's privilege.

"Carried up into heaven."—Think of Jesus there. A dead Christ in the grave can save no man; but an ever-living and enthroned Christ can save to the uttermost (Heb. vii. 25).

"MILDMAY" & OTHER CARDS AND BOOKS & BOOKLETS, PUBLISHED BY JAMES E. HAWKINS & CO.

CARDS.

TWEEDSIDE. By E. ST. B. HOLLAND. Beautiful Sketches of Border Scenery, with Verse on the back by HORATIUS BONAR and HAVERGA Six Cards, 2s.

CORNISH NOOKS. By C. T. A. BUSHE and others. Sketches of Romantic Cornish Scenery, full colour. Four Cards, 2s.

THE EVERLASTING SON. By E. ST. HOLLAND and C. T. A. BUSHE. Eight Cards, 2s.

LIFE AND GLORY. By C. T. A. BUSHE, and others. With finished Studies of Plants. Twelve Cards, 2s.

SEASIDE MEMORIES. Twelve Cards, Packets, with Designs of Seaweed, 1s. 6d.

PEACEFUL DAYS. By C. T. A. BUSHE. Sketches of Irish Scenery. Four Cards, 1s.

SCRIPTURE EMBLEMS. Illustrative Drawings in Sepia. Twelve Cards, 1s.

PEACE AND JOY. Choice Floral Designs with scolloped and gilt edges. Twelve Cards, 2s.

AUTUMN GOLD. Very Choice Original Designs, by Baroness HELGA VON CRAMM. Twelve Cards, 1s.

THE GIFT OF LIFE. Landscape Designs in Colours. Twelve in Packet, 6d.

CHEERING WORDS. Designs of Birds, &c. in Sepia and Gold. Twelve in Packet, 6d.

BOOKS AND BOOKLETS.

CORNISH COVES AND CORNERS. The New "Mildmay" Gift-book, containing Views of Cornish Scenery. With Poems by JEAN INGELOW, LONGFELLOW, and others. In fine chromo cover, oblong, 10 in. by 7½ in., 2s. 6d.

SUNSHINE FOR LIFE'S PATHWAY. A handsome volume of Poetical Selections, beautifully illustrated by Choice Designs in Colours and Monotint, bound with cloth back and polished chrom sides, 2s. 6d.

NATURE'S WHISPERINGS. A very choice novelty in Booklets. Full Colour Sketches of typical English Flowers and appropriate Verses by various Standard Authors. Stiff boards, with cloth back 1s. 6d.

SEA BREEZES. An oblong Gift-Book of Original Marine Sketches in full colour, with suitable Poetry by various Authors. Grained chrom covers, with loose wrapper, 1s.

COUNTRY BREEZES. A similar volume to the above, but with Original Designs of English Landscapes, 1s.

RESTING PLACES. A Box of Twelve well printed Booklets, each having pretty Original Design in Colours, with Texts of Scripture Verses, 1s.

SUNBEAMS. A pretty Packet of Twelve Booklets, Original Designs in full Colour, with Texts for a Month, 6d.

THE SELECT PACKET. An Assortment of the newest and choicest of the Mildmay Series, &c. Good value. Price 1s., post free.

THE EXCELSIOR PACKET. Containing 25 Christmas Cards from 6d. to 1d. A marvel of value. Price 6d., post free 7½d.

London: J. E. HAWKINS & Co., 36, Baker-str , W 17, Paternoster-row, E.C.

OUR OWN GAZETTE.

Volume VII. now ready.

"Should be a favourite with all girls. High in tone, interesting and abounding with useful hints on practical matters. The stories are bright, and the Editor's Monthly Letter most helpful."—Church Bells. "Its Christian and evangelical tone is clear and decided."—Word and Work. 2s. 6d. and 1s. 6d. Copiously Illustrated. S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, Paternoster-row, London, or through any Bookseller.

For the New Year. 6d. per dozen.

CHRIST'S LOOKING-GLASSES

By J. T. WRENFORD, Vicar of St. Paul's, Newport.

LONDON: S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO., 9, Paternoster-row.

WORK AT PORTSMOUTH AND ALEXANDRIA.

£5,000 URGENTLY NEEDED

BY MISS ROBINSON.

PRESSING ANXIETIES have arisen during the past twelve months. GENEROUS FRIENDS have been removed by death. PERSONAL TRIALS have sorely taxed her strength.

BUT PRAISE be to God, His presence and power were never so manifest, souls are saved, and the workers richly blessed. Christian friends are invited to COME AND SEE.

IN ADDITION to the sum annually needed for carrying on the work, the SPECIAL EXPENSES during 1890 were:

I. Sailors' and Soldiers' Institute, Alexandria, Egypt: extensive Builders' Repairs from the WALLS SINKING, notwithstanding that the foundations were laid 12 ft. wide.

II. The ADDITION OF A WING to the Portsmouth Soldiers' Institute, for "MARRIED QUARTERS" during the Trooping Season, giving 14 more rooms, and a nice playground for the children.

III. The PURCHASE of the Freehold of One House and the Furniture of five others, known as the "OFFICERS' HOUSE," the whole forming one establishment, to be conducted henceforth on Christian and Temperance principles, and to be utilised as a SEASIDE RESORT for Christian Workers and for friends desirous of seeing the work of our INSTITUTES.

IV. The BUILDING and fittings of the "SPEEDWELL" GOSPEL HALL, Landport, with Class Rooms above, and Sleeping Cabins for Soldiers and Sailors.

V. The General EXTENSION of our Mission work, which, when fully organised, will comprise (a) The nightly preaching of the Gospel; (b) Mothers' Meetings, Children's Meetings, and similar agencies; (c) Colportage and gratuitous circulation of Gospel books; (d) Medical and Nursing Mission; (e) Invalid Kitchen, and cookery for the Destitute, including free Sunday Breakfasts; (f) Labour Yard and Sheds; (g) Rescue of lost Girls and of little Waifs. N.B.—Much of the above is already being done, and all our usual Soldier and Troopship work going vigorously forward.

MR. THOMAS HOGBEN has recently joined MISS ROBINSON, and is prepared to arrange for Drawing-room and other Meetings wherever friends desire it.

Will the Lord's stewards send IMMEDIATE HELP?

Address, Miss SARAH ROBINSON, Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth. (London Bankers: GLYN & Co.)

THE CHILDREN OF DARKEST ENGLAND.

Dr. BARNARDO will (D.V.) DELIVER AN ADDRESS

ON THE

DELIVERANCE from the SLUMS, of the CHILDREN of DARKEST ENGLAND,

ON TUESDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 16, 1890,

IN THE

LARGE HALL, EXETER HALL, STRAND

Sir Robert N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.,

Will take the Chair, at 7.30.

Doors open at 6.30; Admission 2d. (paid at the doors). A few Reserved Seat Tickets (2s. 6d. each) to be had on application to

JOHN ODLING, Secretary.

OFFICE OF THE HOMES—18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London. E.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 5, Crown-villas, Kennington Oval, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON AVENUE, E.C.—Wed. 17, 6.45 p.m., address by Captain Robertson. Thurs. Dec. 18, lecture by Mr. Charles Cook on "Russia," 6.45 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, Strand.—Sun., 3.45 p.m. (men only), Mr. E. J. Kennedy; 7.30 p.m. (public), Mr. T. Richardson. Bible-class, Thurs., 8. French Bible-class, Thurs., 8. Cheerful service (public), Sat., 7.30. Lecture, Dec. 17, 8 p.m., by Mr. W. H. Golding, on "Engineering Triumphs of Our Age." Anti-Gambling meeting, Jan. 15.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Dec. 14, 3 p.m., Mr. Boardman; 7 p.m., Mr. E. J. Kennedy. Wed., Dec. 17, meetings for "Deepening of Spiritual Life," 11.30 a.m., Rev. Arnold Pelly; 3 p.m., Revs. E. W. Moore and A. Armitage; 7 p.m., Rev. E. Dodds and others.

Y.M.C.A., 186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Fri., Dec. 12, 7.30 p.m., missionary farewell to Dr. F. W. Browning; Dr. Baedeker will give an account of his recent tour in Siberia. Mon., Dec. 15, 8 p.m., Gospel address to young men, Colonel Macgregor, A.D.C.

Y.M.C.A., 172, QUEEN'S-ROAD, Bayswater, W. (opposite Whiteley's).—Fri., Dec. 12, 8.30 p.m., Gospel address byRev. Nevile Sherbrooke, of Portman Chapel, to both sexes.

FINSBURY PARK Y.M.C.A., 255, Seven Sisters-road, N.—Wed., Dec. 17, 3.30 p.m., special afternoon service conducted by Rev. W. Talbot Hindley, sermon by Rev. F. B. Meyer; public meeting, 8 p.m., addresses by Rev. T. Eynon Davies, Mr. Percy W. Bunting, and others.

WEST LONDON CENTRAL MISSION.—St. James's Hall, Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. M. Guy Pearse; 7 p.m., Rev. H. Price Hughes. Princes Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. W. Darlow Sarjeant. Fri., 12 noon, Rev. M. G. Pearse; 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes. Cleveland Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. T. M. Taylor.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr. Augustus G. West, Sun. next at 11 and 7; Wed., at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, W., 8 p.m.

DR. BAEDEKER, having returned from Siberia and Japan, will give some account of the Lord's work there on Mon., Dec. 15, 7.30 p.m., at Welbeck Hall, 71, Welbeck-street, W.

TALBOT TABERNACLE, Talbot-road, Bayswater, W.—Sun., Dec. 7, Pastor Frank H. White, 11 a.m.; Mr. Finlay Gibson, 7 p.m.

PORTMAN-ROOMS, Baker-street, W.—Meeting for the deepening of the spiritual life, to-day, Fri., Dec. 12, Rev. Nevile Sherbrooke, 3.30 p.m.; Dec., 19, Rev. F. B. Meyer.

CONFERENCE HALL, Clapham-road, S.W.—Jerusalem prayer-meeting every Friday, 4 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street, S.W.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Sun., 3.30 and 7 p.m.; Wed., 8 p.m.

PRESBYTERIAN TEMPERANCE FORWARD MOVEMENT.—Public meeting in Regent-square Church, W.C., Tues., Dec. 16, 8 p.m., chairman—Mr. Hugh M. Matheson. Speakers—Revs. Newman Hall, John McNeill, J. G. Train, and others.

BILLINGSGATE CHRISTIAN MISSION.—Address by Mr. Finlay Gibson, Mon., Dec. 15, noon.

ISLINGTON PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Colebrooke-row.—Dr. Thain Davidson's monthly sermon to young men, Sun., Dec. 14, 6.30 p.m.

MERCHANTS' LECTURE, Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, E.C.—Tues., 16, 1 p.m.

BAPTIST FORWARD MOVEMENT, John-street Chapel, Bedford-row.—Sun., Dec. 7, at 11, Rev. J. E. Shephard; 7 p.m., Rev. F. C. Spurr.

CHRISTMAS LETTER MISSION.—Annual prayer-meeting, Fri., Dec. 12, 3 p.m., in Gentlemen's Waiting-room, Mildmay Conference Hall.

CONFERENCE HALL, Mildmay Park, N.—Sun., Dec. 14, 3.30 and 7 p.m., Mr. William Taylor.

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL, N.W.—Sun. services at 11 and 7, conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sun. next, Rev. W. H. Daniels, at 11 and 7; Rev. H. Bright, 3 p.m.

HOUSE OF REST, 10, Finchley-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.—Fri., Dec. 19, prayer and short addresses, 4 to 8.30; tea at 6. New Year's meeting, Jan. 2, Rev. F. B. Meyer, 3 p.m.; Mr. Reader Harris, 7 p.m. Suns., 3.30 p.m., Bible-reading for ladies and gentlemen.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun., Dec. 14, 11 and 6.30, Rev. W. B. Culliss.

SAILORS' WELCOME HOME, 173, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Unloading of Christmas boat, Sat., Dec. 27, 7 p.m. Muster of the "Christian Lifeboat Crew," Tues., Jan. 6, 7 p.m.

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT TO MONDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1890.

 Donations should be sent by Cheque or P.O.Orders, not by stamps.

 Will donors oblige us by giving explicitly and fully the titles of the missions to which they wish their donations to be applied? Mistakes which sometimes arise will thus be obviated. Will they also bear in mind that our Donation List is made up for the Printer on Monday morning? Any amounts received afterwards will be acknowledged in the subsequent week's number.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank"; this will effectually prevent loss of same.

	£	s.	d.
Zenana Bible and Medical Mission—Edina ...	0	1	0
China Inland Mission—E. Presby. Church, per Rev. G. B. Snrewsbury	1	11	3
Central China Religious Tract Society—Major and Mrs. C.	1	0	0
McAll Mission—A.T. 10s; M.S. £5	5	10	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—L.E.C....	1	0	0
Society for Relief of Persecuted Jews—Mrs. M.	1	0	0
Y.M.C.A., Prague—Brinscombe Y.M.C.A. ...	0	15	0
North Africa Mission—Beta	2	0	0
Tientsin Floods' Fund—Friend, Stirling	0	10	6
Mr. Arnot's Mission, Central Africa—F.B., Blenheim, N.Z.	0	11	0
Rescue Society—E.C. £1; J.G.C. 5s; Friend, Stirling, 7s	1	12	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—A.P. £1; J.G.C. 10s; A.T. 5s; W.A. 5s; C.G. £5; S.J.E., Hong Kong, £5; J.S. 2s 6d; Friend, Stirling, 7s; J.C. £5; Ursulus, 10s; H.G.B. £10	27	19	6
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Homes—A.P. £1; S.L.A.T. £2; E.F.F. £2; W.A. 5s; C.G. £2; N.J.E., Hong Kong, £5; M.E.L. £3; J.C. £5; E.S.C. 13s 8d	20	18	8
Home of Industry—A.P. £1; M.A. 5s; N.J.E., Hong Kong, £3; I.R. £1	5	5	0
General Booth's Scheme—A.P. £1 18s; E.F.F. £2; L. and R. 5s; C.G. £10; "The Gables," 10s; J.C. £10; (City Colony)—E.S.W. £5 ...	29	13	0
London Samaritan Society, &c.—S.S. 5s; Poor Widow, £1	1	5	0
Friendless and Fallen—S.L.A.T. £2; E.F.F. £2; M.E.L. £3; Friend, Stirling, 4s 6d; J.C. £5; E.S.C. 13s 8d; Alex. 2s 6d	13	0	8
St. Giles Christian Mission, &c.—S.L.A.T. £2; A.T. 5s; E.F.F. £2; E.M.B. 10s; J.B. £3; Alex. 2s 6d	7	17	6
Christmas Help to the Poor—S.L.A.T. £5; Beta, £25; S.L.R. £1	31	0	0
Cow Cross Mission—J.G.C. 5s; E.F.F. £2; Ursulus, 10s	2	15	0
Home for Working Boys, London—A.T.	0	10	0
Stockwell Orphanage—A.T. 5s; G.M. £1	1	5	0
Dinners, &c., Poor Children—A.T. 5s; Friend, Surling, 1s 6d; Ursulus, 10s	0	16	6
National Refuges for Homeless Children—E.F.F.	2	0	0
Latymer-road Mission—E.F.F.	2	0	0
George Yard Mission—E.F.F. £2; M.A. 5s; J.B. £3; Phylatelist, £1; E.S.C. 13s 8d; E.F. £20; I.R. £1 5s	28	3	8
Field-lane Refuges, &c.—E.F.F.	2	0	0
North-East London Gospel Mission, &c. (Mr. Chorley)—E.F.F. £2; E.M.B. 10s	2	10	0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison Mission, &c.—E.F.F. £2; J.B. £1 4s 9d; M.E.L. £3; Beta, £2 ...	8	4	9
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—E.F.F.	2	0	0
Gray's Yard Ragged Schools, &c.—E.F.F.	2	0	0
Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children—E.F.F. £2; N.J.E., Hong Kong, £2	4	0	0
Mr. Orsman's Work—E.F.F.	2	0	0
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, &c.—E.F.F...	2	0	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—M.A... ...	0	5	0
Miss Mittendorff's Orphans' Home—M.A. 5s; M.S. £5	5	5	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—J.B. £3; M.S. £3 3s; Alex. 2s 6d	6	5	6
Female Mission to Fallen—Mrs. H.	2	0	0
Strangers' Rest, 163, St. George's-street—M.S. ...	5	0	0
Miss Robinson's Soldiers' Home—M.E.L.	5	0	0
Mission to Seamen—M.E.L. £4; Beta, £2... ...	6	0	0
British Home for Incurables, Clapham—M.E.L.	3	14	0
Rev. D. M. Cameron's Work, Battersea—M.S. ...	3	3	0
Mrs. W. Noble's Work, Hoxton—M.S....	2	0	0
Mission to Lepers, India—M.S.	2	2	0
Dr. Laseron's Work, Tottenham—M.S.	2	2	0
Miss Mason's House of Rest—M.S...	3	3	0
Maryland Point Mission—M.S.	2	2	0
London Medical Mission—M.S.	3	3	0
Marylebone Medical Miss.—M.S. £3 3s; Beta, £1	4	3	0
Medical Mission (Mrs. Griffith)—M.S.	1	1	0
Midnight Meeting Movemt.—M.S. £5; Beta, £2	7	0	0
Royal Albert Orphan Asylum—M.S.	1	1	0
Tramcar and 'Bus Text Mission—M.S...	1	1	0
Mr. Charrington's Work, &c.—Phylatelist, 5s; Beta, £2	2	5	0
Blackdown Hills Mission—Beta	2	0	0
Howard-street Mission—Beta...	1	0	0
Special Religious Services in Theatres—Beta ...	2	0	0
Homes of Hope, Regent-square—Beta	2	0	0
Anti-Infidel Tract Enterprise—Beta	2	0	0
East London Women's Christian Temperance Union—Beta	1	0	0
Chelsea Preventive Rescue Homes—Beta	2	0	0
Slade Hall, Plumstead—Beta...	1	0	0
Kilburn Mission Hall (Mr. W. Martin)—Beta ...	1	0	0
London City Mission—E.S.C. 13s 7d; Ursulus, 10s; Alex. 2s 6d	1	6	1
Christian Community—Mrs. H.K. £1; I.R. £1	2	0	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—C.L.M.T.	1	0	0
Theatrical Mission—Alex.	0	2	6
Printers' Pension Society—M.S.	1	1	0
Salvation Army—H.G.B....	10	0	0
London Outcast Poor—H.G.B.	10	0	0
Gratuitous Circulation THE CHRISTIAN—	1	4	0
	£323	4	1

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

Evangelistic Mission—Z.A. £1.
General Booth's Scheme—F.S. £1.
Zenana Medical College—C.C. 10s.
Tower Hamlets Mission—M.C. £10.
Work in Belgium—T.E.L. 10s; T. £1.
London Medical Mission (Free Dinners)—Anon. 10s.
Bethnal Green Free Library, E.—C.G.M. £5.—Mr. G. F. HILCKEN, secretary and librarian.
Dolls for Hindu Children—Mrs. CLEGHORN, 26, Queen-street, Edinburgh, acknowledges receipt of dolls from B.H., W.P.R., "Belfast" Post Mark, Miss D., and three little girls in Croydon.

Notices.

SEVERAL correspondents have kindly indicated the source of the stanza given last week, "Not to my wish, but to my want," &c. It is the last verse of a hymn by Merrick, appearing in many collections. In some hymnals the original words of the author have been much altered; and sometimes the opening line is given as "Author of good, to Thee I turn," at other times, "Eternal God, we look to Thee."

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—G.A.O. N.J. J.H. B.R. W.G. C.L.D. W.D.D. J.W. C.W. N.V. R.J.S. P.P. E.B. F.B. M.A.C. J.S. M.F. S.H.J. F.S.G. G.G.G. J.E.S. A.E.B. A.J.W. R.G. W.W. M. de H. C.B.W. H.H. W.F. W.S. W.K.C. M.G. W.J.G. E.D.W. D.E.C. R.B. W.D. M.J.G. S.H. A.W.I. F.E.A. C.S.T. R.P. C.W.P. M.A.F. K.A. F.L.T. J.J.L. J.V. J.T.T. W.C.C. R.B.H. S.L. L.S. A.C.T. G.P. D.C. J.G. E.P.H. D.J.R. J.McR. G.M.S. C.M. C.W. C.G. G.F.H. E.P. H.W. McS. A.J.S. A.M.G. O.R. E.E. H.A.B.M. H.S.D. J.S.R. M.R.B.

Appeals.

Union Tabernacle.—Rev. D. M. CAMERON, Thurlow House, 515, Wandsworth-road, Clapham, S.W., writes:—"The distress in this district is tremendous; as the severe weather comes the cases multiply. Those who have been gathered in provide nearly two-thirds of the expenses."

Children's League of Kindness for South London.—The hon. sec. will be glad of help in providing childrens' dinners, blankets, and coals, also toys and clothing, either new or old, for distribution among children of the slums. Christmas hampers of comforts for the relief of the sick will also be most gladly welcomed.—Miss YOUNG, 22, Talbot-road, Bayswater, W.

The Boys' Farm Home, The Church Farm, East Barnet, Herts., is now affording a refuge to eighty-nine boys, orphans or sons of very poor widows, or of parents disabled by incurable maladies. These boys are provided with healthy work and healthy play, combined with good schooling and with moral and religious training. The Home is mainly dependent upon voluntary contributions, which will be thankfully received by the treasurer, Colonel W. J. GILLUM.

Homes for Aged Christian Blind Men and Women,—Hanley-road, Crouch-hill, N.—The committee of these Homes appeal that their aged and blind charge may not be forgotten at this time. The severe winter months in every way greatly increase the expenses, age and its infirmities, added to blindness, requiring so much extra care and attention. The present number of inmates is 78; there are several vacancies which the committee would gladly fill as soon as funds permit.

Gifford Hall Mission.—Sir,—Again I venture to ask for help to provide a well-cooked substantial Christmas dinner; materials for tea for 350 people at their own homes; an evening's entertainment for the scholars of the Sunday-school (four evenings will be necessary to include the various grades of scholars). Halfpenny dinners for Board School children; a supply of blankets for loan to the poor; and a soup kitchen. We urge as a reason for our plea, that the neighbourhood is one of the most densely populated in London, that we have been personally working among the people for the last quarter of a century, and that all those who will receive any of these benefactions are well known to us as suitable cases for help.—BENJAMIN CLARKE, Hampden House, Crouch-end, N.

Mount Hermon Girls' Orphan Homes, 47, 49, and 55, Cambridge-avenue, Kilburn, N.W., and "Praise Cottage," Mill-lane, West Hampstead, N.W.—Mrs. PARRY writes:—"I regret to say that, for some months past, we have been unusually tried for funds. Up to the present time we have received over £200 less than in the corresponding portion of last year. We have heavy bills to meet for necessary repairs; and winter, with its many needs, is upon us. Our family of 127 members all require food and clothing, and at present we have no money in hand for these necessaries. We have had much blessing amongst the dear children this year. I am thankful to say they are all going on well, and those who have gone out into service are also, without exception, giving satisfaction."

33rd ANNUAL APPEAL FOR DONATIONS

FRIENDLESS & FALLEN.

TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN." Dec. 8, 1890.

The year so nearly closing has been a most anxious period for funds to sustain ALL THE HOMES and OPEN-ALL-NIGHT REFUGE, nevertheless, the Work of Mercy has NOT been restricted on that account.

500 YOUNG WOMEN AND GIRLS, or thereabouts, will have been ADMITTED TO THE HOMES.

1,000, OR NEARLY SO, sheltered in the OPEN-ALL-NIGHT REFUGE, inclusive of re-admissions. NO CHARGE WHATEVER IS MADE FOR SHELTER OR FOOD. All this large number have been spoken with THE MORNING AFTER THEIR ADMISSION, and thus many have been permanently reclaimed.

The Committee are completing arrangements for improving and extending the PREVENTIVE HOMES.

3,000 GOSPEL Temperance and other Services will have been held during the year.

ONE THOUSAND DONATIONS OR COLLECTIONS AVERAGING 21s. REQUIRED BY DECEMBER 31, to meet all the expenses of the work of 1890.

DURING 1889, 51 Ladies and 17 Gentlemen collected £264 11s. 1d., and nearly the whole of this amount was gathered in by COLLECTING CARDS.

Reader, kindly contribute or collect in aid of this PREVENTIVE AND RESCUE MISSION. COLLECTING CARDS sent to any address on application.

MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT, Offices of The Christian, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C., will receive donations.

Edward W. Thomas.

OFFICES—CENTRAL HOME, 200, EUSTON-ROAD, N.W.

Our Street Arabs.

A HEARTY INVITATION

IS GIVEN TO

YOUNG PEOPLE

AT HOME FOR

THE HOLIDAYS

TO VISIT THE

Boys' Home, Southwark,

ON TUESDAY AND FRIDAY AFTERNOONS, from 2 till 4.

Mr. FEGAN will be pleased on these afternoons to receive visitors, and personally explain all that is being done to rescue homeless street-boys. Visits at other times may be made by special appointment.

The Home is quite near the Surrey side of Blackfriars Bridge.

PARENTS, TEACHERS, &c.,

who are anxious to interest young people in Christian Work, may obtain

INTERESTING INFORMATION

OF THE WORK CARRIED ON IN

"MR. FEGAN'S HOMES,"

AND A

VERY PRETTY COLLECTING CARD,

BY APPLYING TO

THE SECRETARY,

THE BOYS' HOME,

215, SOUTHWARK STREET, LONDON, S.E.

Homes for Aged Christian Blind Men and Women,

HANLEY ROAD, CROUCH HILL, LONDON, N.

OFFICE: 77, HANLEY ROAD.

URGENT APPEAL.

At this Christmas time, when thoughtful heads, loving hearts, and busy hands are doing much to relieve the distress and suffering of the pinched and poor, the Committee of these Homes appeal that their aged and blind charge may not be forgotten. They are anxious to give some extra Christmas cheer, but owing to the exhausted state of the General Maintenance Fund they cannot do so unless friends come to their aid. The present number of inmates is 78. The severe winter months in every way greatly increase the expenses, age and its infirmities, added to blindness, requiring so much extra care and attention.

Contributions, however small, will be gratefully received by Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, or by the Founders and Hon. Superintendents, Rev. H. and Mrs. BRIGHT, at the Home.

NOW READY.

Price THREEPENCE. Free by Post, 4d. Six Copies, Post Free, 1s. 7d.

AM I UNFIT?

BEING A VERBATIM REPORT OF

DR. BARNARDO'S SPEECHES IN DEFENCE in the RODDY CASE,

Delivered on Monday, Nov. 9; Tuesday, Nov. 10; Wednesday, Nov. 11;

BEFORE

Lord ESHER, Master of the Rolls; Lord Justice LINDLEY; and Lord Justice LOPES: Judges of the Court of Appeal.

WITH SUMMARY OF THEIR LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT, AND AN INTRODUCTION BY DR. BARNARDO.

Office of the Homes: 18 to 26, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, LONDON, E.

THE ANCHORAGE.

SPECIAL HOUSE OF SHELTER for the MORE RESPECTABLE CLASS OF YOUNG WOMEN.

Trustees:—REV. H. E. FOX & GEORGE HANBURY, Esq.

NINETY-SIX per cent. of the Mothers sheltered last year are now known to be leading respectable lives. The Committee therefore confidently appeal for funds to maintain the work, full particulars of which will be found in the Annual Report, recently published, and will be [illegible] SECRETARY, 32, Charing Cross, London, S.W.

Orders for garments made at the ANCHORAGE, will be thankfully received by the SECRETARY as above, from whom price list may be obtained.

Contributions may be paid to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings; or, to the SECRETARY OF THE ANCHORAGE, 32, Charing Cross, London, S.W.

SOCIETY FOR THE SUPPRESSION OF THE OPIUM TRADE.

OFFICE: BROADWAY CHAMBERS, WESTMINSTER, S.W.

PRESIDENT: SIR JOSEPH WHITWELL PEASE, BART., M.P. | TREASURER: SIR R. N. FOWLER, BART., M.P.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS.

INDIA'S OPIUM REVENUE: What it is, and How it should be Dealt With. By J. G. ALEXANDER, LL.B., Secretary of the Society. 32 pp. Price 2d. Strongly recommended by the Rev. Canon Wilberforce in his speech at Glasgow.

POPPIES: A Talk with English Boys and Girls about Opium. Illustrated. By a Lady. 12 pp. Price ½d., or 3s. 6d. per 100.

SUBSTITUTES FOR THE OPIUM REVENUE. By the same Author. Price 3d.

NEW SERIES OF ANTI-OPIUM TRACTS. From 8d. per 100. List on application.

A CHINAMAN ON THE OPIUM TRADE. (Reprinted from THE CHRISTIAN of October 24.) 1s. per 100.

May be obtained through any Bookseller; or from the Secretary, Broadway Chambers, Westminster, S.W.

Contributions in aid of the Society's operations are much needed, and will be thankfully received by the Treasurer at Messrs. DIMSDALE, FOWLER & Co.'s Bank, 50, Cornhill; or by the Secretary at the Office.

N.B.—The Secretary will be glad to arrange for

LECTURES ON THE QUESTION,

by Competent Speakers, illustrated by Diagrams; or, when desired, by Magic Lantern Slides

HOMES OF HOPE,

4, 5, and 6, Regent-square, Gray's-inn-road, London, W.C.

THE COMMITTEE are very unwilling to press the claims of this Charity, but every day most painful applications are made for admission, and the thought of refusing a helping hand to any young woman struggling to get out of her miserable life is very distressing, especially in the case of those who have made a first false step downwards. Very sad tales of suffering and wrong are told by these young women, many of them the orphan daughters of parents who moved in a good position, but were left when young, friendless, and wholly unprovided for. We are quite sure if the readers could witness the distress and anguish in many cases of those who apply, it would give them pleasure to aid us in restoring them to positions of usefulness.

It has scarcely ever happened in the experience of the Committee that the mothers rescued have fallen a second time. We are in urgent need of FUNDS, and any help will be most opportune at the present time.

HENRY THOMPSON, Esq., Treasurer, 38, Mincing-lane, E.C.
W. HORNIBROOK, Secretary, 17, Bloomsbury-street, Oxford-street, W.C.

"SERPENT" RELIEF FUND

HELP URGENTLY NEEDED FOR WIDOWS & ORPHANS.

Please send to Miss WESTON, Sailors' Rest, Devonport.

THE PROBLEM OF THE POOR.

A MANY-SIDED WORK is carried on by the N.E. London Gospel Missions amongst the suffering poor, large numbers of whom are on the verge of "submersion," struggling to live decently and honestly. The paucity of help received of late gives reason for fearing how far we may continue this grateful work.

The Seaside Home for the Ailing Poor is at Lancing-on-Sea, near Worthing There are eight Gospel Halls and Rooms, two Institutes for Rough Factory Girls, and one for Ragged Youths. About 2,000 children and young people attend the Sunday-schools.

Help in any form would be thankfully received by the EDITORS; or Mrs. F. A BEVAN, 59, Princes-gate, South Kensington, S.W.; or may be sent to the Director—

WILLIAM CHORLEY.

2, Marquess-grove, Canonbury, N.

Parcels to the last address only. Bankers: Messrs. Barclay, Bevan, Ransom & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

LONDON CITY MISSION

FIVE HUNDRED Missionaries now employed in beseeching the masses in the Metropolis to be reconciled to God through Jesus Christ our Lord. House to house visitation. Personal dealing. Work purely undenominational. Funds much needed. Communications to the Secretaries { T. S. HUTCHINSON, M.A. / R. DAWSON, B.A.

OFFICE: 3, Bridewell Place, E.C.
BANKERS: Barclay, Bevan, Ransom & Co., 54, Lombard-st., E.C.

Scripture Readers' Society FOR IRELAND.

INSTITUTED 1822.

Funds greatly needed to extend the Itinerant work.

The Scripture Readers are placed under carefully selected Superintendents, and not only located in Towns and Cities, but also sent into remote districts where they are generally well received by all denominations.

Irish speaking Readers are sent where required. Sailors in Seaports are visited, and Bethel Services held.

The work is carried on in a spirit of love and not of controversy.

Reports and all particulars sent post free on application to Captain JAMES KEARNEY WHITE, Secretary, Offices, 27, Lower Pembroke-street, Dublin, and 9, Paternoster-row, London.

Donations may be sent to the above addresses, or will be received by the Proprietors of THE CHRISTIAN.

Please notice exact title of Society as above.

THE COW CROSS MISSION.

UNDER THE GENERAL SUPERINTENDENCE OF

MR. WILLIAM CATLIN.

27th ANNUAL APPEAL.

This Mission has for its PRIMARY object the preaching of the Gospel in the Mission Hall, and in adjacent Factories, Hospitals, Workhouses, Prisons, Public Houses, in Open Air, by the Sale of Bibles, and reading aloud the Word of God in great thoroughfares; by Cottage Meetings and House to House Visitation; also Bible Readings, Mothers' Meetings, Temperance Lectures, Sunday and Week Evening Instruction to the Inhabitants of the parish of Clerkenwell, which has a population of 70,000 souls.

The efforts of the Mission are conducted under the general supervision of well-known Christian Friends, on purely undenominational principles. Annual Report published in March.

The prayerful sympathy and pecuniary help of the people of God are greatly NEEDED AT THIS MOMENT, and are earnestly appealed to, on behalf of this thoroughly Evangelistic work, that it may continue, as in past years, to be a means of spiritual blessing to perishing sinners, and that help in temporal things may not be lacking for the sick poor during the inclement season of Winter. It is sincerely to be hoped that through such help we may be enabled to continue our Halfpenny Dinners to the thousands of poor little children who will doubtless crowd in upon us till the second week in March.

A SPECIAL APPEAL.

"Retiring poverty still hides its head," and must be sought out to be relieved. We are particularly anxious to provide a plain but substantial dinner for a certain number of poor families, well known to us, especially those of the "household of faith," on Christmas Day at their own homes; also during the first week of the New Year, to give our Sunday School and Band of Hope Children an extra dinner of Roast Beef and Plum Pudding, and some articles of Warm Winter Clothing, &c.

Contributions will be thankfully received at the Office of THE CHRISTIAN, 12, Paternoster-buildings, E.C.; at the Office of WORD AND WORK, 48, Paternoster-row, E.C.; by Mr. G. KIRKHAM, 9, Ribblesdale-road, Hornsey, N.; Mr. F. NEWTH, 44, Percival-street, Clerkenwell, E.C.; Mr. J. W. BURGESS, 17, Lower Smith-street, Clerkenwell, E.C.; also by

Yours obediently in the Lord Jesus,

WILLIAM CATLIN.

COLLECTING CARDS ON APPLICATION. GEN. SUPT.

17, Claremont-square, Pentonville, London, N., to whom all parcels should be addressed.

Cheques to be crossed "The London Joint Stock Bank." For small sums blank Postal Orders are much to be preferred.

A SPECIAL APPEAL.

THE EVANGELISTIC MISSION.

OFFICE—164, ALEXANDRA ROAD, LONDON, N.W.

☞ A VERY URGENT NEED for Funds for this long-established Mission exists at the present time, the receipts during the past few months having fallen considerably short of the usual requirements. Several hundred pounds are needed to enable us to meet current expenses to the close of the year, whilst CHRISTMAS will bring with it the usual special claims for the relief of the aged, the infirm, the widow, and the orphan, which in a Mission like this amounts to a considerable sum.

We earnestly appeal to all lovers of the Gospel to assist us just now, in order to prevent the closing of any of the branches of this work, which has been so abundantly blessed in the winning of souls during the past quarter of a century.

THE LATE (SEVENTH) EARL OF SHAFTESBURY, K.G.,

One of the warmest supporters of this Mission from its commencement, thus testified shortly before his decease, on the work of this Mission:—

"OF ALL THE ASSOCIATIONS IN LONDON, I DO NOT KNOW OF ONE MORE DESERVING OF COMMENDATION AND SUPPORT."

Cheques should be crossed "London and County Bank" and Post Office Orders made payable at the General Post Office. Contributions will be gratefully received by 164, Alexandra-road, St. John's Wood, N.W. C. RUSSELL HURDITCH.

WORKING MEN'S MISSION,

Collingwood-street, New Cut.

WORK AMONG THE DESTITUTE.

TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN":—

The work among the Poor of the New Cut compels us again to appeal for help. For the past thirteen years we have been labouring for the spiritual and temporal good of the poor of this very needy part of the metropolis. Our winter work is now in full operation, and thousands are relieved weekly by our Soup Kitchen, and we need the sum of £500 to meet all the expenses of the two Mission Halls.

Donations will be gratefully received by our Treasurer, F. A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or, the Superintendents, T. and J. YOUNG, Gordon House, 1B, Vowler-street, Deacon-street, Walworth-road, S.E.; or, to Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT.

A LETTER FROM REV. C. H. SPURGEON

"The work done by our gracious God, through the Brothers Young and their warm-hearted friends, is one that causes me great joy. Theirs has been a real Working Men's Mission, and it has actually reached the persons aimed at; indeed, it sprang up amongst the working people.

"It is a movement that aims at no creation of division, or opposing existing churches; but we all welcome it, and wish it the richest prosperity.

"It is with particular pleasure that I commend the work in Collingwood-street, New Cut, to the generous help of all Christian people."

MIDNIGHT MEETING MOVEMENT

Successful Meetings have just been concluded at SOUTHAMPTON, by Mr. J. H. L. CHRISTIEN, Organising Superintendent.

ARRANGEMENTS are now COMPLETED for the PROPOSED SPECIAL MISSIONS and MIDNIGHT MEETINGS, to be held at the CLOSE of this year.

DONATIONS to meet EXTRA EXPENSES are much needed, also new VOLUNTARY WORKERS in such DISTRICTS as WILLESDEN, PENGE, BOW, or FULHAM, who would be willing to assist the Committee by DISTRIBUTING SPECIAL TRACTS to the FALLEN in their own neighbourhoods.

£5 DONATION will defray the necessary cost of a suitable MEAL for the REFRESHMENT of poor WOMEN gathered from the streets. ARE THERE NOT MANY OF THE LORD'S PEOPLE who would be glad to spread a simple repast for a hundred or more poor Outcast Women, compelled to come in.

Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT will receive contributions.

C. WILSON M'CREE,
Secretary.

Office—8A, RED LION SQUARE, W.C.

WANTED, 100,000 FARTHINGS.

MR. C. L. BOYER, Superintendent of the Drift Children's Branch of the Ragged School Union, who is known to about 20,000 of the poorest children of the East End of London, appeals to the kind fathers, loving mothers, dear aunts and uncles, and all the kind-hearted children who have good homes, for 100,000 farthings, to give about 5,000 of the smallest of the poor children a CHRISTMAS TREE TREAT.

Last Christmas Mr. Boyer gave a treat to 2,200 children; and in the summer, by the help of kind friends, was enabled to take some 4,000 of these poor little ones to the Forest, and give them refreshments. Now he wants 100,000 farthings for this year's Christmas treat. "Four farthings make a penny"—send them in stamps, to

MR. JOHN KIRK,
Sec. of the Ragged School Union,
EXETER HALL, STRAND, LONDON.

CRIPPLES' HOME AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Northumberland House, 17A, Marylebone-road, London, W.—Seaside Branch, Northumberland Lodge, St. Leonards on-Sea. Founded 1851, under the special patronage of H.R.H. The Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein. President: LORD KINNAIRD. The number of inmates is 110. Donations and subscriptions thankfully received. Miss C. M. WELLESLEY, EDWARD BANNISTER, Esq., Hon. Secretaries. Miss BURMESTER, C. H. F. ROUTH, Esq., M.D., Hon. Treasurers.

Christmas and New Year's Gifts

TO THE SHIVERING AND SUFFERING POOR.

Lady COCKLE and "J. B." are most heartily thanked for their sympathy in providing Food, Coals, and Clothing for Widows and other necessitous persons in a large and poor London parish.—Bankers: L. and County.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING, Vicar (30 years) St. Paul's, Clerkenwell; 45, Colebrooke-row, N.

THE BENEVOLENT OR

STRANGERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

Treasurer, Ald. Sir R. N. Fowler, Bart., M.P.; J. H. Anderson, Esq., Chairman. Clarence Smith, Esq., J.P., Hon. Secretary.

Funds are especially needed at this Season.

This Society has been in active operation for 104 years. Its 240 Christian voluntary agents pay, on an average, 2,000 visits monthly in relieving the sick poor of London. Kindly remember the work in testamentary arrangements.

Office of the Society, 52, Finsbury Pavement, E.C.

THE

MISSIONS TO SEAMEN SOCIETY

Patron: Admiral H.R.H. the Duke of EDINBURGH, K.G. — labours afloat and ashore, at home and abroad, among seamen of all classes and nations, fishermen, bargemen, and emigrants. Fifty-three harbours are occupied. INCREASED CONTRIBUTIONS and OFFERTORIES, urgently NEEDED, should be forwarded to the Secretary, Commander W. Dawson, R.N., 11, Buckingham-street, Strand, London, W.C.

HOMEWARD BOUND!

THE UNLOADING OF THE

Christmas Boat,

Laden with Gifts for Sailors of various nations, will (God willing) take place on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 27, at the

SAILORS' WELCOME HOME,

173, ST. GEORGE'S STREET
(Corner of Princess-street), RATCLIFF HIGHWAY, LONDON, E.

ALL FRIENDS ARE WELCOME.

Tea and Coffee at 6. Unloading of Boat at 7.

MEETINGS in Different Languages before and after.

☞ Will Friends sinding Cargo for Boat kindly forward as soon as possible to Miss CHILD, at the above home.

"ELECTRICITY IS LIFE."
(TRADE MARK.)

PULVERMACHER'S
WORLD-FAMED
GALVANIC BELTS,
FOR the CURE of NERVOUS DISEASES,
HAVE RECEIVED TESTIMONIALS from over
FIFTY MEMBERS of the
ROYAL COLLEGE of PHYSICIANS of LONDON, including
THREE PHYSICIANS to
HER MAJESTY the QUEEN.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

GALVANISM v. INDIGESTION and NERVOUS DEBILITY.
Peterborough, November 28, 1890.

GENTLEMEN,—I am pleased to tell you that I have felt much better since wearing your combined band, and I believe it is invaluable in cases of indigestion and nervous weakness such as mine was. My health has greatly improved in every way, and I can strongly recommend your treatment to sufferers. Please use my initials only, but you can give my full name and address to any inquirer.
—Yours faithfully, G. A.
Messrs. J. L. Pulvermacher & Co., 194, Regent Street, W.

GALVANISM v. NERVOUS EXHAUSTION.—SORE THROAT.
1, Wilding Street, Barton-on-Irwell, Manchester, November 26, 1890.

GENTLEMEN,—I write to inform you that your treatment has proved so effectual in my case that I no longer need to wear the belt. I lent it to a friend who suffered with pains in the back, and it cured her in one day, and I have now lent it to our minister for the same complaint. Your treatment completely cured my sore throat in less than 24 hours; and if you will send me some pamphlets I will distribute them.—Yours faithfully,
RICHARD HUGHES.
Messrs. J. L. Pulvermacher & Co., 194, Regent Street, W.

GALVANISM v. NERVOUS WEAKNESS.
Ashfield, Martock, Somerset, 26th Nov., 1890.

DEAR SIR,—I feel very much pleasure in being able to tell you that your spinal and waist electric appliances have greatly benefited me. After wearing them three months I feel quite strong and in good health, and can sleep remarkably well.—Yours truly, (Mrs.) L. BRADFORD.
Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent Street, W.

GALVANISM v. RHEUMATISM.
Throop, Christchurch, Hants, Nov. 25, 1890.

DEAR SIR,—Some time ago I was suffering from severe rheumatism in the knee, and could not walk. I sent for one of your Galvanic Belts, and after wearing it for a short time the pain gradually decreased, until it left me, and I can now strongly recommend your treatment to others who may be suffering from this complaint.
Yours truly, (Mrs.) C. MEADEN.
Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent Street, W.

GALVANISM v. NERVOUS EXHAUSTION AND DEBILITY.
Minehead, Somerset, Nov. 19, 1890.

DEAR SIR,—I am pleased to inform you that both my wife and myself have derived great benefit from your combined belt, and our general health is better now than it has been for years.
Yours very truly, E. A. JONES.
Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent Street, W.

GALVANISM v. INDIGESTION.
7, Herbert-terrace, Clevedon, Nov. 6, 1890.

DEAR SIR,—I am glad to be able to tell you that my nerves are very much stronger, and the indigestion that I suffered from is quite cured, in fact, I am a different person altogether.—Believe me, yours truly, (Miss) R. L. PARSLEY.
Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent Street, W.

IF YOU ARE SUFFERING from any NERVOUS or WASTING DISEASE, that threatens CONSUMPTION, or PARALYSIS, write, in the fullest confidence, to Mr. J. L. PULVERMACHER, 194, Regent-street, London, W., whose name has been blessed by thousands of sufferers during the past thirty years.

ADVICE PERSONALLY, or by LETTER, free of charge.

FOR FURTHER TESTIMONIALS, both Medical and Private, see new Pamphlet "GALVANISM: NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER of IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY," post free on application to

J. L. PULVERMACHER & CO.,
GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT,
194, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
Established over Forty Years.

CHRISTMAS CARDS,
WITH VERSES BY
FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL,
FAITH CHILTERN, AND OTHERS.

100.—TWELVE CHOICE DESIGNS, with Verses by Frances Ridley Havergal. 12 in Packet, post free, 1s.

101.—"TREASURES OF THE SNOW." Choice Designs of Alpine and other flowers, by E. St. B. Holland. Six in packet, post free, 7½d.

103.—"LIGHT ON THE WAY." Dainty Sketches in monotint, by E. L., with greetings and space for autograph. 12 in packet, post free, 6d.

606—"IVY LEAVES AND ROSEBUDS." Exquisite Designs by Bertha Maguire. When held to the light the buds appear full-blown, and beautiful groups of snowdrops appear among the ivy. 4 in packet, post free, 1s.

SPECIAL ASSORTED PACKETS.

900.—TWELVE CHRISTMAS CARDS. Pretty Designs and well assorted. Post free for 7½d.

902.—TWENTY-FIVE CHRISTMAS CARDS. Pretty Designs and well assorted. Post free for 7½d.

903.—TWENTY-FIVE CHRISTMAS CARDS. Pretty Designs and well assorted. Post free for 1s.

904.—FIFTY CHRISTMAS CARDS. Pretty Designs and well assorted. Post free for 1s.

BOOKLETS & BOOKS AT SPECIAL PRICES.

"ALPINE SUMMITS." Famous Alpine Peaks beautifully drawn in sepia by E. L., from sketches from E. St. B. Holland. Verses by Rev. Charles Fox, M.A. Published at 2s. Post free for 1s. 3d.

"ADVENT SONG." By Frances Ridley Havergal. Illustrated by the Baroness Helga von Cramm. Published at 6d. Post free for 3½d.

All Packets, Booklets, &c., carefully packed with Cardboard Protectors to prevent damage.

"THE NEWS," Nov. 14, 1890, says:—"They are charming in every way, and we heartily recommend them to our readers."

OWEN MEREDITH,
THE PARADE, EAST DULWICH GROVE, LONDON, S.E.

The Gigantic Sale of the "Queen's Royal" Household
HEARTHRUGS (Regd.)
Carriage free.
2/6
IN Reversible Rich Turkey Patterns, measuring 6ft. long and 3ft. wide. These Hearthrugs have gained a world-wide reputation for magnificence, cheapness, and utility, having no equal. Registered designs, and considered works of Art. Thousands of repeat orders received, including undermentioned, giving the highest satisfaction. SPECIAL OFFER—Three for 7s., Six for 13s. 6d., Twelve for 26s. Carriage Free.

Registered Design, 130,391.

"The Elms, West End, West Hampstead, "Jan. 4.

Sir Wm. Onslow, Bart., writes:—"I was much pleased with the 'Queen's Royal' Carpet and Rugs which I had from you a short time ago. Please send me another, 12 by 18 feet, 42s., with three Hearthrugs to match. Cheque enclosed."

"Sunningdale, Berks, July 5.

Sir Frederick A. Milbank, Bart., writes:—"Please supply me with another 'Queen's Royal' Carpet, 12 by 21 feet, 49s. 3d., for a dining-room for my shooting residence at Barningham Park, similar terra-cotta and gold colours as supplied for my drawing-room last year."

Trade Mark on all goods.
Beware of Imitations.
Please mention this Paper.

The "Queen's Royal" Household Reversible Rich Turkey Pattern
CARPETS (Regd.)
Admittedly the Cheapest in the world. Woven without a seam, superior quality, with handsome border to correspond; a marvel of excellence and beauty.

6 ft. by 9 ft., price	Carriage free	11s. 9d.	10½ ft. by 12 ft., price	Carriage free	25s. 9d.
8 ft. by 9 ft. „		12s. 6d.	9 ft. by 15 ft. „		27s. 9d.
6 ft. by 12 ft. „		15s. 6d.	12 ft. by 12 ft. „		27s. 9d.
9 ft. by 9 ft. „		17s. 9d.	12 ft. by 13½ ft. „		31s. 3d.
9 ft. by 10½ ft.„		20s. 9d.	12 ft. by 15 ft. „		34s. 9d.
9 ft. by 12 ft. „		22s. 9d.	12 ft. by 18 ft. „		42s. 0d.
9 ft. by 13½ ft.„		25s. 9d.	12 ft. by 21 ft. „		49s. 3d.

THE WORLD'S WONDER
"ECLIPSE" CARPETS.
The Largest ever Sold at the Price. (REG.)
Carriage Free.
4/9
I WILL forward, direct from the Looms, to any address, on receipt of amount, A GENUINE WOVEN REVERSIBLE CARPET, suitable for Sitting-room, Bedroom, bordered and woven in art shades, large enough to cover any ordinary-sized room. A RUG sent with Carpet, 1s. 6d. extra, or 2 Carpets and 2 Rugs for 10s. 6d., or 4 Carpets and 4 Rugs, 20s., carriage paid. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. Do not miss this opportunity. To readers of THE CHRISTIAN all goods sent Carriage Free. Cheques and P.O.O.'s payable to
F. HODGSON, Woodsley Road, Leeds.
NOTE.—The above goods can only be had direct. No agents appointed.
CAUTION.—All my goods are sent Carriage Paid. By purchasing of me you ensure yourself against having to pay heavy charges for carriage.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS.
EIGHT CHRISTMAS CAROLS, 1D
EIGHT CHILDREN'S CAROLS, 1D.
 Send for list of Christmas Cantatas, Operettas, Carols, Anthems, Tableaux, &c., gratis and post free.
J. CURWEN & SONS, 8 and 9, Warwick-lane, London, E.C.

EVENINGS IN THE HOLY LAND.
MISS VON FINKELSTEIN
(MRS. MOUNTFORD)
Is open to Lecturing Engagements both for Public Halls and Drawing-rooms. Also on Sundays. For terms and particulars apply—
WESTMINSTER PALACE HOTEL, LONDON, S.W.

GRAND GRANULAR TEA,
FOR CATERERS, SCHOOLS, INSTITUTIONS, &c.
Also SPECIAL WHOLE LEAF TEAS in neat ¼lb. packets, appropriately labelled, for distribution as presents at home; wholesale quantities, and choice original packages for export in bond, for presents to friends abroad. Detailed price list on application.
SELECT CEYLON TEA AGENCY, 39, Lime-st., London.

BAZAARS, FANCY FAIRS, &c.
SWANAGE STRAW BASKETS.
Novel and useful, a 25s. crate for £1 1s. Tea Cosy, very handsome, 3s. 11d. 5-o'clock do., 2s. 11d. Work Boxes, 2s. 6d. Work Basket, 2s. Collar Box, 1s. Needle-book, 7d., all post free.
J. A. COLLEAU, SWANAGE, DORSET.

ROBINSON & CLEAVER'S
Cambric Pocket Handkerchiefs.
SAMPLES AND PRICE LISTS, POST FREE.

Children's	1/3	Hemstitched—		Per doz
Ladies'	2/4½	Ladies'	2/11½
Gent's	3/6	Gent's	4/11

Embroidered Handkerchiefs, in all the latest styles, from 1/ to 60/ each.
ROBINSON & CLEAVER, Belfast.
PLEASE NAME THIS PAPER.

100 DRESS PATTERNS FREE.
THE Cheapest Dresses in England, comprising Tweeds at 3½d. yard, Serges at 4½d and 6d. yard. Double width Habit Cloth at 8½d. yard; Dress Tweeds, 44 inches wide 8¾d. yard; "Novelty" Habit Cloths, 4 inches wide, 1s. 3d. yard; "Superfine" and "Twill" Habit Cloth, 48 inches wide 1s. 6d. yard; Plain and Fancy Black Cashmeres, Cheviots, Homespuns, Snowflakes, Soft Woollens, Flannels, &c., &c., in great variety. Any length cut and sent carriage paid to any address. The Pattern need not be returned, as they are given away to all who write for them and name this paper to THE DARLINGTON TRADING COMPANY, DARLINGTON.

SELLING JEWELLERY,
SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.
For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.
SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths 2, GRACECHURCH STREET near CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that the VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.

OLD SHIRTS Refitted, New Fronts Cuffs, and Collar-bands —Fine Irish Linen, 2s. or very best Irish Linen, 2s. 6d. each, returned free ready to wear. Sample New White Shirt, for Dress or ordinary wear, 2s. 9d., 3s. 9d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9d., or 6s. 9d. Gent's best 4-fold Linen Collars, any shape, 2s. 9d., half dozen, post free.
Hand knit by Donegal peasantry. Warm, durable, and comfortable. Two pairs IRISH SOX free, 2s. 6d. Men's Knicker Hose, two pairs free, 3s. 9d. 4s. 9d., 5s. 9s., 6s. 9d., and 7s. 9d. WOOL PANTS and VESTS are now very cheap. Price Lists and Patterns Cambric Handkfs. and all kinds Irish Linen Goods sent free for Household or Family use, from the cheapest to the best qualities made.
B. & E. M'HUGH & CO., Limited, BELFAST.

SYMINGTON'S
For Soups, &c.
Sold in Packets and Tins by Grocers everywhere.
EASILY DIGESTED.
PEA FLOUR. GOLD MEDAL.
PATENTEES AND MANUFACTURERS—
BOWDEN STEAM MILLS, MARKET HARBORO

FREE Send a Post Card for a sample of Broken-Leaf Tea at 1s. 5½d. per lb., equal to 2s. 6d. Tea. WILLIAMSON & SONS, Tea Merchants, 139, Upper Thames-st., E.C.

50 CHRISTMAS CARDS
FOR FIFTEEN STAMPS.

Fifty beautiful Christmas and New Year Cards, comprising a charming variety of Snow Scenes, Landscapes, Floral and Figure designs, enriched with choice, original, and selected poetry, post free fifteen stamps; or two parcels, both different, post free twenty-seven stamps.

All orders should be sent at once. Early purchasers receive the best cards.

W. H. MAYNE,
Fine Art Dealer, 8, Clarendon-terrace, Plymouth.

MARVELLOUS SHILLING PACKET.
CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR CARDS.
Containing 52 Splendid Cards. Published price, 8/6. Sent to any Address, by Parcels Post, on receipt of 1/3 in Stamps, or Postal Order. Only to be obtained from
WILLIS'S, 10 & 11, SILVER STREET, HULL.

COUGH CHARM VOICE TONIC
Dr. LEBAUD'S PASTILLE BRONCHIQUE
(a modern scientific remedy, free from the dangerous narcotics of old cough nostrums) by its tonic and antiseptic action upon the disordered membrane, quickly cures a harassing cough, protects the breathing organs from cold, repels disease germs, and maintains the voice in perfect condition for speaking and singing. Of all Chemists, 1/1½ per box, or (post free) from the Chief British Depôt, GRAHAM & Co., Charlemont-place, Dublin.

Guy's Tonic
FOR
Indigestion & Nervousness.

THESE troublesome complaints are cured more speedily by Guy's Tonic than by any known remedy, a few doses invariably accomplishing more than a prolonged course of any other treatment.

For loss of appetite, pain after eating, heartburn, and sluggish liver, Guy's Tonic is superior and preferable to all other preparations. For restoring nervous and debilitated constitutions, removing brain weariness, nerve waste, languor, and despondency, the most implicit confidence can be placed in this simple, safe, and efficient remedy.

Should you have failing health, no matter from what cause, don't hesitate, but procure Guy's Tonic at once. The most obstinate, chronic, and complicated maladies are yielding daily to this matchless medicine.

Dr. ANDREW WILSON, F.R.S.E., writes:—

"As a stimulus to weak digestion, Guy's Tonic will act admirably, while in cases of painful digestion and flatulence, it is also likely to prove of signal service. The merits of this preparation appear to consist in its being compounded of ingredients which are habitually used by physicians in cases of ordinary want of tone, and in its safe and pleasant nature as a family remedy."—Health, August 1, 1890.

Miss JANET DICKSON writes, November 12, 1890:—

DEAR SIRS,

"Please send me another bottle of Guy's Tonic. I feel much better already from taking the one bottle you previously sent me. I have been a martyr for years to indigestion and biliousness, and at times very sick and vomiting everything I ate. Sometimes the sickness would continue for weeks at a time. I was beginning to give up hope of ever getting any medicine to do me any good. I have consulted several doctors but none of them did me any good, and when I saw your Tonic advertised I resolved to try it. Am happy to say it has had the desired effect.

Yours truly, JANET DICKSON.

To GUY'S TONIC COMPANY.

Guy's Tonic is sold by all Chemists at 2s. 9d. per Bottle. If you cannot obtain it promptly, send the amount (2s. 9d.) to Guy's Tonic Co., 4, Ludgate-circus, London, and it will be sent by return, post paid. Insist upon having Guy's Tonic. No substitute whatever should be accepted.

ON CONSUMPTION
AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.
ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, AND OTHER CHEST DISEASES.
NEW EDITION WITH
APPENDIX
CONTAINING A LARGE NUMBER OF
INTERESTING CASES.
POST FREE, ONE SHILLING.
From the AUTHOR,
MR. GEORGE THOS. CONGREVE,
Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E.

ONE RECENT CASE WILL BE GIVEN IN THIS JOURNAL EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.
(THIRTY-FIFTH SERIES.)

CONFIRMED ASTHMA and CHRONIC BRONCHITIS of THIRTY YEARS.

This case is of a lady in Cornwall, who, thirty years before my correspondent wrote me, was the subject of a severe cold, which brought on bronchial irritation, followed by bronchitis, and then asthma, which followed her more or less ever since.

At the time of first consulting me (September, 1889), there were all the symptoms of the above diseases present in acute form. The last severe attack, which had taken place in the spring of the year, had not been shaken off. The chest was exceedingly weak, and the action of the heart irregular and feeble. The digestion was bad, and the appetite and strength had failed.

The patient improved after two or three months, and would have progressed more rapidly, had my treatment been thoroughly persevered with. As it was, she was very much better in the spring. Her night perspirations had left her, and also the pains. But she needed special instructions on various symptoms.

On May 10th she was "better in every way." On the 28th she was well on the road to recovery.

In August last Mr. Boynes tells me: "She has not been so well for years. Your medicine has done more for her than all and every medicine she has ever tried. To God be the praise, and may your valuable life be spared long for the good of suffering humanity.—H. BOYNES, Hendra, St. Just, PENZANCE, Cornwall." In answer to my recent inquiry, Mr. B., writing on October 11, says: "The improvement in her health is still maintained."

NOTE.—Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

THE DEAF HEAR
WHEN THE DEAFNESS IS CAUSED BY SCARLET FEVER, COLDS, MEASLES, CATARRH, &C., BY THE USE OF THE INVISIBLE
SOUND DISC
which is the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes, and may be worn months without removal. Sold only by H. A. WALES, Imperial Mansions (corner of Oxford Street and Tottenham Court Road), London.

IRISH LINEN COLLARS.
Gent's 4-fold all pure Linen Collars, all size, and shapes, 4/6 per dozen. Sample White SHIRT. Linen Fittings, 3/9, 4/9, 5/9 and 6/9 each, post free. FISH NAPKINS, 2/6 and 3/6 per dozen. DINNER NAPKINS, 4/6 and 5/6 per dozen.

IRISH DAMASK TABLE CLOTHS.
2 yards square, 2/11 each. NURSERY DIAPER, all pure flax, 4½d. per yard. Real Irish Linen SHEETING, fully bleached, 2 yards wide, 1/11 per yard. SURPLICE LINEN, yard wide, 7d. per yard. Huckaback TOWELS, 4/6 per dozen.

IRISH CAMBRIC POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS.
Guaranteed all pure flax. Ladies' size, 2/3. Hemstitched 2/11 per dozen. Gent's size, 3/6. Hemstitched 4/11 per dozen.

Samples and Price Lists Free to all Parts.

Carriage Paid on All Parcels over 10s. in the United Kingdom.

IRISH TWEEDS,
All pure Wool, unsurpassed for strength, durability, and style. New patterns now ready.

Please say if for Ladies' or Gentlemen's wear.

G. R. HUTTON & Co., LARNE, BELFAST.

Weldon's Ladies' Journal says: "Lewis's Fast Pile Velveteen is the finest imitation of Real Silk Velvet ever shown."

LADIES ARE INVITED TO SEND FOR PATTERNS OF THE WONDERFUL VELVETEEN

LEWIS'S Wonderful Velveteen is well known all over the world. It is Fast Pile and Fast Dyed, and every inch is GUARANTEED. If a Dress should wear badly, or be in any respect faulty, LEWIS'S will GIVE a NEW DRESS for NOTHING at all, and Pay the FULL COST for MAKING and TRIMMING. The price of this Beautiful Velveteen, in Black, and all the most Beautiful Colours now worn, is 2s. a Yard. This quality Velveteen is sold by the best Drapers at 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 5s. 6d. a Yard. LEWIS'S manufacture this VELVETEEN and sell it direct to the public, and LADIES SHOULD WRITE FOR PATTERN OF THIS EXTRAORDINARY VELVETEEN and judge for themselves of the wonderful quality Carriage paid on all orders to all parts of Great Britain and Ireland.

At 2/ a Yard

☞ WRITE FOR PATTERNS ON AN ORDINARY POST-CARD.

DRESS MATERIALS for the PRESENT SEASON. Ladies should write to LEWIS'S for Patterns of new Dress Materials; they will be astonished at the value offered. Please mention this paper, and address—

LEWIS'S IN MARKET STREET, MANCHESTER.

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

Under the direct Patronage of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and the Royal Families of Europe.

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies, Children, and Gentlemen.

Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value.

Prices for Ladies—from 10½d. to 5s. 6d. per yd.

PATTERNS POST FREE.

REGISTERED. Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges REGISTERED.

WINTER PATTERI NOW READY.

Any Length of Material Se

Carriage Paid on Ord of £1 in value to a Railway Station in t United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES

Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR

Is a Household Requisite of Constant Utility.

That BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR possesses very valuable qualities as a food for all classes, at all periods of life except earliest infancy, has been attested by eminent dietetic authorities, as well as by universal public experience during over thirty years.

Interested attempts to set aside these facts in favour of other foods can only appeal to ignorance and prejudice, and it remains true that no other kind of food can serve the special purposes of Corn Flour.

NEEDLEWORK CABINET

5/-

SIZE 10 IN. × 7 IN. × 3 IN.
FREE BY POST 5s 6d

Invaluable to every Lady at Home or Abroad

Contains a Year's Supply of useful Haberdashery & Needlework Requisites, as follows:—Black & White Sewing Cotton, Coloured Sewing Cotton, Sewing Needles, Darning Needles, Bodkins, an assortment of Twilled Tapes, Hooks and Eyes, several Cards of Linen Buttons (different sizes), Pearl Shirt Buttons, Black & White Linen Thread, Mixed White Pins, Black Pins, Darning Cotton, a Measure, Silvered Thimble, &c. In a HANDSOME WOOD CABINET, with Lock and Key.

Forwarded to any part of the Kingdom on receipt of P.O.O. for 5/6.

COX & Cº 99, NEW OXFORD STREET, LONDON

BEETHAM'S Glycerine & Cucumber.

Is invalua during Winter PRESERVI THE SK from t effects FROST, C WIND HARD WATER, &c. It entirely removes and prevents all Roughness, Redn Chaps, Irritation, &c, and soon renders the skin SOFT, SMOOTH, and WH in the coldest weather.

It is the most perfect Emollient Milk for the Skin ever produced, and lady should ever be without it, as for the Toilet and Nursery it is INVALUAB

Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d., of all Chemists; free for 3d. extra by the Sole Makers—M. BEETHAM & SON, Chemists, Cheltenha

Fry's Pure Cocoa

To secure this article ask for FRY'S PURE CONCENTRATED

REFRESHING. ✣ NOURISHING. ✣ STRENGTHENING.

The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

A Weekly Record of Christian Life and Testimony;

Evangelistic Effort, and Missionary Enterprise.

PRINCIPAL

...rleon DRUMMOND on Rest 6
...reign Missions. By Mr. R. RADCLIFFE .. 6
...DAWSON BURNS (with portrait) 9
...n of the Decade. By Rev. W. QUEST 10
...ner—Shrinkiness Offerings 11
...e Shadow of the Cross. By Rev. F. B. MEYER ..12
...ering Winterscenes 13
...ician Forward Movement 15
...ariey and Wesley. By Rev. A. FINLAYSON ...21
...e Gospel in Jerusalem 24
...esia and the Jews 25
...tsmanship for Ladies .....
...e Young—The Christmas Tree 32

[Dr. Dawson Burns.]

CONTENTS.

American Baptists and the Second Advent ..21
The Late Mrs. Wyckoff (with portrait) 22
Distress in North China.....22
Indo-Burmese Opium Pestilence 23
An Awakening in Sicily 26
Winter—Poem by CHARLOTTE MURRAY 2
Missions in Southern India 27
The Gospel in Ceylon 27
Colportage in Whitechapel.....27
African Notes. By Mrs. GUINNESS 29
Dr. BAEDEKER in Siberia 30
Christmas Hymn—The Old, Old Song 31
Present Agencies for the Poor 31

No. 1080.] FRIDAY, DEC. 19, 1890. [REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12 PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. [CITY PRESS, Bread Street, E.C.

HOMES AND SCHOOLS FOR RAGGED CHILDREN, DUBLIN.

Special Help Wanted.

In the present distressed state of Ireland, we feel that we must lay the ase of our poor children PLAINLY before English Christians. We are in a ouble difficulty. INCREASING numbers of children needing help, and DECREASING eans of helping them.

Friends in Ireland, who once gave largely, are now unable to give at all.

The Homes are as follows:—

HE BIRDS' NEST.
EAD LE FARRIGE. Spiddle.
HE ELLIOTT HOME. Townsend Street.
THE GIRLS HOME, Townsend Street.
THE BOYS' HOME. Great Canal Street.
THE COOMBE BOYS' HOME, and
THE HELPING HAND, Howkins' Street.

The claim for admission into any of these Homes is—destitution. We annot turn the children out, they have nowhere to go. Yet we have nothing n hand to supply our PRESENT PRESSING NEEDS.

Besides the six hundred children in the Homes, about six hundred more ttend the Day Schools. They sorely need the breakfast we have been hitherto ble to provide.

In all the Homes and Schools the children are diligently taught the Word of God. THEY ARE MISSION SCHOOLS. Thus we have double claims on e sympathy of Christians.

Further information will be gladly given, and contributions gratefully eceived, by

Mrs. Smyly.

[illegible]

PP. OMITTED (4 pp. if the INSETS be

The INLAND POST (WITH INSETS) is 2½d. If the INSET PAGE of this Issue WITH INSETS

Advertisements for Issue of Dec. 26, must reach us by Saturday, Dec. 20

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

Received with thanks, Clothing from "Anon": S. T., Yes, the children are provided with good soup dinners, 350 being fed at one time. No really hungry child is permitted to go without food. The Lord provides.

The Infant Day Nursery. Classes for Rough Street Boys and Girls. Children's Services. Band of Hope. Sunday and Week-evening Schools. Important Mission Work amongst Elder Girls and Young Women. Various Missionary Agencies at work among Young Men and Lads. Bible Classes for Men and for Women. Mothers' Meetings. Mission to Inebriate Women. Evangelistic Services. Temperance Meetings. Sewing Classes for Poor Women. Shelter for Children. Training Home for Motherless Girls, &c.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

OLD FORD SOUP KITCHEN.—Mrs.

ADAMSON, The Vicarage, Wright's-road, Old Ford, E., earnestly requests help. The parish contains over 11,000 East Londoners, without a single middle-class family or house. We want to feed at least 200 poor children from the Board Schools, in which there are over 3,000. SIXTY POUNDS are required in addition to grants kindly made for Children's Dinners and Breakfasts.

FACTORY GIRLS' MISSION.—Must be pulled down in six months, Iron Building used for 17 years for Factory Girls' Mission, Leyton-road, Stratford, E.; G. E. Railway require the land, will give another site and £20. £400 wanted at once to erect new building and save the work. J. D. SANSOM, Hon. Sec., 33, Atherton-road, Forest Gate.

FUNDS ARE EARNESTLY

SOLICITED for the poor adults and children of the Christian Gee-street Mission and Ragged Schools, which have been carried on for about 28 years to benefit the poor. Donations please address to Hon. Superintendent, HENRY RUDGLEY, Ground Floor, 29, Falcon-square; JOHN KIRK, Esq., Secretary, Ragged School Union, Exeter Hall, Strand; Messrs. BARCLAY, Bankers, 54, Lombard-street; Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, Paternoster-buildings.

Now Ready, in Monthly Parts.

PICTURE PORTIONS

BEING

THE GOSPEL OF LUKE.

Published under the above title, set in very large type, and Illustrated by H. A. HARPER and J. CLARK, from original sketches made in the Holy Land. Volume of Luke, attractively bound, will (D.V.) be ready middle of December, and will contain Thirty Large full-page Illustrations. Prices, post free, 2s. 6d. and 3s. 6d.

"The text is broken up in a manner which cannot but prove helpful to persons not accustomed to sustained reading. Book distributors will find these portions the best of all tracts."—The Christian.

Funds are urgently needed to circulate the Scriptures, in the above form, in the Hospitals and Infirmaries of our land.

W. WALTERS, SCRIPTURE GIFT MISSION, 79, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON, E.C.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS "The Christian"

(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

EAST END DISTRESS.—The Rev.

T. JACKSON, 41, Powerscroft-road, Clapton, E., appeals for help for respectable but destitute families, who, unless helped, must either starve or go to the workhouse. 450 quarts of soup, and 400 free breakfasts are supplied weekly.

REV. J. W. ATKINSON, Claremont,

Cawley-road, London, N.E., urgently appeals for Help to provide Christmas Dinners for some Thousands of East London Destitute but honest Poor. Unavoidable poverty, sickness and suffering appalling. Balance sheet by chartered accountant to every donor.

DOCK LABOURERS' MISSION.—

Great distress prevails among the unemployed labourers at the Docks. Shall we obey the Master's command: "Give ye them to eat."—Messrs. C. COLEMAN and F. JACOBS, 150, Boleyn-road, Forest-gate, E.

POOR OF ST. LUKE'S AND CLERK-

ENWELL. — PHILIP GAST, 12, Noel-street, Islington (Minister of Spencer-place Chapel for 23 years), pleads for the Widow and Fatherless and the nearly starving Poor. Clothing, boots, blankets, and money will be gladly acknowledged.

MRS. MEREDITH'S JERUSALEM DEACONESS HOUS

Women to train for Medical Mission wo among women and children, and money for support of the Missions, are both wanted m pressingly. Many places in the Holy Land crying, "Come over and help us!" Contributi will be received by Miss LLOYD, 143, Clapha road, crossed Union Bank, Charing Cross.

JOHN STREET CHAPEL, Mary

bone, late of Circus-street Mission.—Fun is urgently required to carry on the work, and to p vide a Free Dinner for poor people at Christm W. T. RUSSELL, 27, Cambridge-street, Edgwa road, W.

ASHLEY MISSION, Bethnal Gree

E.—Assistance is earnestly asked for, to maint this Mission. Large Mothers' Meetings. Classes Factory Girls, for Men and Lads. Sunday-sch Band of Hope. Tract distribution and Tempera work. All in efficient working order. Cast Clothing thankfully received, and the smal contributions.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonsh street, Portland-place, W.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, SKEGNES

—Erected by Evangelical Churchmen as a pro against Sacerdotalism in the Established Churc To enable the work of this Church to be carrie successfully, £50 per annum from outside sou is needed, as the town is small, and wholly dep ent on the short summer season. Will any help by giving small annual subscriptions? ferences and full particulars will be given.—Pl address,

The INCUMBENT, St. Paul's Church, Skegnes

DUBLIN CITY MISSION

9, Anglesea-street.

Special appeal to the Lord's people who enjoy blessing of Salvation.

The Committee of the above Mission are anx to carry the precious news of salvation to all poor of every denomination in the city of Du The Mission is wholly unsectarian; the ag visit over one hundred poor Protestant fam daily, who otherwise would be swallowed up in surrounding mass of Romanism. Roman Cath are also visited. A copy of the Scripture supplied to families when needed, with suit Gospel tracts. Funds are greatly needed to em more agents, as now there are more openings heretofore. Subscriptions thankfully receive Mr. J. JUTTON, at 9, Anglesea-street, or by LAW, Esq., Q.C., Hon. Secretary, 48, Steph green, Dublin; or may be sent to Messrs. MOR & SCOTT.

Under the Patronage of H.R.H. the Princess Christian.

MRS. HILTON'S CRECHE, INFANT INFIRMARY, & ORPHAN'S HOME,

12, 14 & 16,

STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, COMMERCIAL ROAD, E.

Training and Convalescent Home, The Limes, Feltham.

"Oh! these children lean and small,
Spilt like blots about the city,
Quay, and street, and palace wall—
Take them up into your pity!"

DEAR FRIENDS,

We are in extreme need of Funds to maintain our large family of little ones, and to receive other distressing cases needing admission. Surely it is not a time to stay our hand, and to refuse to help these despairing ones who are anxious to place their children in safety, although they do not shrink from breasting the storm themselves. We therefore trust that you will kindly aid us, so that we may be enabled to retain all those that are sheltered in the Institution, and also to receive the most urgent of those who are looking to us for help, so that this Christmastide may be to mothers and children a time of brightness and blessing.

Yours in the Master's service,

Marie Hilton.

All communications to be addressed to Mrs. HILTON, Founder and Hon. Superintendent, Langveld House, 76, Bow Road, London, E.

SPECIAL APPEAL FOR DEPTFOR POOR BOYS.

To help defray the cost of giving 250 poor boys, search from the poorest streets in Deptford, a Good Hot Dinn on CHRISTMAS DAY.

Contributions gladly received by Mr. H. A. PUNNETT, care of J. W Fegan, Esq., Boys' Home, Southwark, S.E.; or, H. A. PUNNETT, Gosterwood-street, Deptford, S.E.

SIXTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

A Society was founded to assist poor Aged Christians over 65 years of age, living within five miles of St. Paul's, by granting annuities of 10s. per month. The Society is now urgently in need of funds to maintain the present pensions, and is unable to admit many deserving applicants. Will everyone over 65, enjoying the comforts of home, kindly send a contribution? and those who hope to reach 65 are asked to help in remembrance of those who 65 years ago founded "The London Aged Christian Society."

HAMILTON NORTHCOTE, Col. R.M.A., Sec.
Office: 32, Sackville-street, W.

THE SICK & SORROWIN

Funds are very urgently needed by the Comm of the LADIES' SAMARITAN SOCI NATIONAL HOSPITAL FOR THE PA LYSED AND EPILEPTIC, QU SQUARE, BLOOMSBURY, for the purpo providing Christmas comforts for the mor stitute of the out-patients. Will kind fr help? Donations in money, coal-tickets, clot flannel (or any other material) are most earn solicited. — ROSA PEARMAN, Vice-Preside "He that hath pity upon the poor, lendeth the Lord."

STANLEY HOUSE,

HIGH SCHOOL FOR BOYS,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Owing to increasing numbers fresh premises have been taken, which will be opened in January.

The house stands in its own grounds, and having been built expressly scholastic purposes, is fitted with every convenience, to accommodate 40 pupils.

There is a large cricket-field at the back. Gymnasium, workshops, and labora are provided for scientific and technical instruction.

The present premises will continue to be used as a Junior School for pu under 10.

The Principal takes a personal interest in each boy committed to his cha and no effort is spared to secure his well-being.

For prospectus, references to parents, &c., apply to A. E. COZENS, Sta House, Margate.

Educational.

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Red Hill, Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS receives the Daughters of Gentlemen to educate in a course of study which shall fit them for the higher duties of life. Languages, accomplishments, &c. Inclusive charges. Prospectus on application. References.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, East Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. Preparation for examinations. Moderate terms.
Principal, Miss HOLLIS.

LADIES' COLLEGE

GOUDHURST, KENT.

Conducted by the MISSES KENDON, daughte the Rev. J. J. Kendon.

A happy Home and School for Girls. situation is exceedingly healthy and beau being on the range of hills near Tunbridge W and about four hundred feet above sea level. P prepared for the College of Preceptors' an Cambridge Local Examinations. For prospe with references, apply to Miss R. KENDON, M

DECEMBER 19, 1890.

The Christian.

☞ It is particularly requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the firm, Messrs. Morgan & Scott, and not to individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should be addressed to the Editor. Letters of a personal nature should in every case be so marked.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we purpose giving portrait and sketch of Count CAMPELLO, Italian Christian Reformer.

☞ We particularly request that all readers who receive THE CHRISTIAN direct from the office by post, who have not communicated with us during the past six months, will kindly send their present address plainly written — especially missionaries and others in foreign countries.

We have received a large number of applications from workers in London who purpose providing some extra physical comforts for the poor at Christmas time. The responses to our recent appeal on behalf of this fund have been somewhat meagre as yet; we would again remind our readers of it, and ask them generously to remember the very poor of our great city at this time of general rejoicing.

Pastor William Cuff, of Shoreditch Tabernacle, writes in great anxiety on account of the lack of funds. His work is too good and too great to be allowed to fail. We very earnestly trust that friends of the East-end poor will generously assist him in his hour of need. He, like many another, is fulfilling some of our responsibilities to our destitute fellow citizens, and he should not, like Israel in Egypt, be expected to make bricks without straw. "He gives twice who gives quickly."

The great brewers of England, it would appear, are waking up to the fact that their ancient craft is in danger. They have met in conference and given utterance to strong sentiments of pain and indignation at the lack of appreciation vouchsafed to their disinterested labours for the good of society. Even Governments, in which they have been accustomed to put their trust, are now failing them. Therefore they are joining hands in their own defence; as one expressed it, they are "making themselves into a fighting machine for the next election." They have been greatly "illused and misused" of late; and, seeing that their trade is "as respectable as any other in the kingdom," they are resolved to "fight strongly and boldly for their rights." They deem it an outrage that licences should be refused simply "on the grounds that they are not required," and such interference with the trade is "singularly ill-judged...when the investing public has become so largely interested" in it.

All this alarm is to us the occasion of hope that something will really be done, and that right soon, to stay the social ravages of this "respectable" trade. The brewers talk loudly and angrily of the need of "protecting property, and the rights of property." Very good; but our brewing friends forget apparently that society has rights at least equal to any rights of property. So long as brewers and distillers produce and sell articles that create more poverty, misery, and crime than all other kinds of property put together, they may depend on it that the purely selfish considerations they advance will have little weight with those who think more of saving the bodies and souls of men than of finding a lucrative investment. Let the friends of temperance imitate the brewers in the matter of co-operation and determination. They have a better cause to fight for, and a nobler motive to inspire them. Though they may not have such "strong influence at their backs" in the shape of money bags and bribery, they have God and the good of humanity on their side, and that ought to turn the scale.

Another conference was held last week, perhaps more important still, and on a subject not very distantly related—that of Poor Law administration. Over 400 guardians of the poor met in Exeter Hall and considered for the best part of a day the responsible duties entrusted to them. The question was looked at by the chief speaker from a purely "economic" standpoint, but others threw more heart into it; and one worthy guardian actually asserted that it was in accordance with the principles of Christianity that the rich should help the poor, and that the poor might properly be helped without being driven into the workhouse. It was contended by some that the Poor Law system when confined to "indoor relief" tends to become hard and cruel; others asserted the exact contrary. No doubt the truth is that the success of either system depends on the wisdom and kindliness of those who administer it.

General Booth's scheme (which, of course, would not be needed if the existing Poor Law system were sufficient to cope with the necessities of the situation) was approved by some and scouted by others. It has one element, however, that is deplorably wanting in all our Government methods of dealing with poverty. It aims at providing such occupation for the pauper as will enable him ultimately to regain his social independence. The poor law régime gives a man bread and skilly enough to keep life in him in the meantime, but does little to help him back to the ranks of the wage-earning class. Both General Booth and the Poor Law deal only with the symptoms rather than with the roots of the evil. So long as the brewers can fight their battles successfully at the next and subsequent elections there will be plenty of occupation for Poor Law guardians and for future Generals of the Salvation Army.

We are glad to observe that at a recent meeting of the Committee of the Poor Law Reform Association, presided over by Mr. Alfred Thomson, M.P., resolutions were passed praying that the Local Government Board might be enabled to appoint district relief committees for parishes more than two miles from the place of meeting of guardians, so as to save the aged and infirm poor from long journeys to obtain their relief. It was pointed out that the oakum-picking task was larger in the case of casual paupers than in that of criminals, and it was suggested that the use of plank-beds should be abolished. We trust these ameliorations may be sanctioned, for in many respects poverty is still treated as a crime.

The Aborigines Protection Society performed an important public service by calling the Conference which was held on Friday last, at the Westminster Palace Hotel, to consider recent disclosures as to the ill-treatment of African natives by English and other adventurers in the Congo Free State. The inhumanity of the conduct of some members of the Stanley expedition is undeniable, but it was maintained by some of the speakers that their acts have brought them within the power of the law of England, the reports affording primâ facie evidence of illegal assumption of military authority, and unjustifiable interference with a friendly people. Thus the cases of "punishing" troublesome natives become wilful homicide in the eyes of the law, as well as before the God of the spirits of all flesh.

Two West African princes present at the Conference gave expression to their gratitude for British consideration of the rights of the natives, one of them contrasting the work of Stanley with that of Livingstone. While the name of the latter lives in the affection of many races, the former dares not again, without a strong escort, go over the ground which has drunk in the blood of the white man's victims. The Conference resolved to urge upon Her Majesty's Government the importance of endeavouring to secure prompt adoption and enforcement of the General Act proposed by the International Conference at Brussels, of which a prominent object is the repression of slave hunting, and the protection and advancement of the rights of natives in Central Africa. We shall rejoice to learn that measures have been adopted to prevent the recurrence of such scandals as those which have recently caused deep sorrow of heart to Christians and philanthropists all the world over.

A letter appears in The Guardian from a correspondent in Tokio, Japan, which complains strongly of missionaries connected with the C.M.S. who "have been led astray by the new sense of freedom and national aspiration around them," and cease to teach the importance of a distinctive Church system. The Principal of a College which supplies most of the future clergy has taught the Japanese students that no special form of church government was contemplated by our Lord and his Apostles, but that they left the churches free to develop external organisations, according to their special needs and circumstances. The Church Missionary Society will not suffer through such teaching. Many of its distinguished supporters in the East have frequently urged the undesirableness of transplanting our external forms, with their hard and fast lines, into Oriental society.

Prof. Drummond on "Rest."

A PHENOMENAL first edition of 50,000 has been sold as soon as issued, and a second 50,000 is already in the market. The pamphlet thus highly favoured is Professor Drummond's PAX VOBISCUM (Hodder & Stoughton. 1s.). Cheapness cannot be the secret of this great sale, for the reading matter consists of less than fifty pages, largely printed and widely spaced. Is it that this Address, like its predecessor, gives a less humiliating view of fallen human nature, and presents a way of salvation made easy, though not safe; a view always acceptable to the human heart until convinced of its sin and sinfulness by the Holy Ghost? The text of this address is Matt. xi. 28-30, and the leading lesson drawn from it is that "Christian experiences are not the work of magic, but come under the law of Cause and Effect." A very important principle indeed, and one well worth taking pains to enforce. But the Effects and Causes here brought before us are entirely beneath the importance of the text.

Considering that Jesus came to save his people from their sins, when He invited the weary and heavy-laden to come to Him for Rest, surely He appealed to those whose Unrest arose from the plague of their own hearts and the burden of sin? No. Professor Drummond asks those whom he addresses, "What are the chief causes of Unrest? If you know yourself you will answer, Pride, Selfishness, Ambition." There is no hint that these cause unrest because they are sins against God, and therefore there is no reference to the Atonement, to the precious blood of Christ, to regeneration, to the new creation in Christ Jesus.

The following method of exposition appears to us entirely gratuitous and untrue—

Rest, apparently, was a favour to be bestowed; men had but to come to Him; He would give it to every applicant. But the next sentence takes that all back [!]. The qualification, indeed, is added instantaneously. For what the first sentence seemed to give was next thing to an impossibility. For how, in a literal sense, can Rest be given? One could no more give away [!] Rest than he could give away laughter...By no act of conveyance would or could He make over his own Rest to them. He could give them his receipt for it. That was all.

How, then, are the weary and heavy-laden to find Rest? The Address says:—

The ceaseless chagrin of a self-centered life can be removed at once by learning Meekness and Lowliness of heart...Christ's invitation to the weary and heavy-laden is a call to begin life over again, upon a new principle, upon his own principle. "Watch my way of doing things," He says. "Follow Me. Take life as I take it. Be meek and lowly, and you will find Rest."

Whether this Address is to saints or sinners, or to both, does not appear. The latter would be utterly misled by it, and the former would find utterance to their pain and sorrow in Mary's words to the gardener (as she supposed), "Sir, if thou have borne Him hence, tell me where thou hast laid Him, and I will take Him away."

Professor Drummond is an able, amiable, accomplished, and attractive man, and his books are like him. We are grieved, indeed, to be obliged to write of them as the more dangerous because of their attractiveness. When Mr. Drummond worked among the young in connexion with Mr. Moody, we looked forward to a career full of promise in proclaiming the Gospel of God. We are distressed that the result should be so different.

[1184]

Foreign Missions.

ENTREAT A HALT!

IN the closing days of this year it is well to look back and thank God for the enlarging missionary interest. When, during the last two hundred years, has anything like it been seen among Protestants? But why, then, call a halt? In order that at this eventful hour we may be encouraged to hie away to be alone with God in our closets, and also that throughout Britain, America, and all Christendom, there may be solemn gatherings of believers for united prayer far greater than we saw in 1858-60, that we ourselves may walk blamelessly, whilst with united hearts we cry for the evangelisation of the world. In 1859-60 some of us paid far too little attention to foreign missionary work. Now, hundreds, I think we might say thousands, are wishing to be missionaries to heathen, Mahommedans, or Jews. We can make doctors of divinity, but it requires God Himself to make one single God-sent missionary.

2 Chron. xiv. 11: "Help us, O Lord, for we rest in thee; and in thy name we go against this multitude."

Zech. iv. 6: "Not by might [an army], nor by power; but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts."

Judges vii. 2, 3: "The people that are with thee are too many for me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest Israel vaunt themselves against me, saying, Mine own hand hath saved me...And there returned of the people twenty and two thousand, and there remained ten thousand..."

Judges vii. 4: "The people are yet too many. Bring them down to the water, and I will try them for thee there..."

Judges vii. 7: "By the three hundred men that lapped will I save you, and deliver the Midianites into thine hand; and let all the other people go every man unto his place..."

Judges vii. 15: "And it was so, when Gideon heard the telling of the dream, and the interpretation thereof, that he worshipped, and returned into the host, and said, Arise; for the Lord hath delivered into your hand the host of Midian."

Our blessed Lord knew the secret of the manufacture of labourers, and revealed it, too, when He directed us to go to the Manufacturer Himself for missionaries, in those words: "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that He will send forth labourers into his harvest."

What a world's calamity if at this juncture hundreds of men or women only man-sent, or self-sent, now go forth to the too-long-neglected Jews, Mahommedans, and heathen!

In The Missionary Review of the World this month, p. 950, speaking of one of the younger Missionary Societies, whose headquarters are in London, the editor, Dr. A. T. Pierson, says:—

That though it met with distrust and even ridicule at first, it seems to be meeting with phenomenal success. It has (he says) several definite principles ...It insists on the Gift of God as the basis of qualification in candidates, rather than the acquisitions of men. Compare 1 Cor. iv. 6 (R.V), Eph. iv. 7-11. Hence no uniform educational standard.

It holds that there is room in missionary work for all variety of gifts, and hence welcomes artisans and mechanics, and unordained laymen. Compare 1 Chron. xxviii. 21.

It magnifies the great fundamentals of doctrine, and not denominational features; hence all disciples welcomed to work on same basis.

It emphasises prayer—definite, constant—for individuals. Every missionary and his work remembered by name in the weekly meeting in London...

Notwithstanding this high standard, this mission has 383 workers in the field, and the money, and the men, and the women are still freely offered.

But let us look beyond this comparatively young Missionary Society and its labourers and let our hearts and our faith pray for all the other hundreds of true missionaries labouring in the world, some of whom have had great visible success, and many of whom have grown worn and grey in their arduous foreign service. Little do we know at home how some of these have laboured and suffered, and been cast down, whilst toiling, and weeping, and praying. Little do we know, and, indeed, perhaps, little do some of these steadfast men and brave women themselves know, of the good they are accomplishing in their far-off fields. Still less may they know of the stimulus they may be to us as we read of what they are being called on to endure amongst the heathen.

Now, as Christ has been exalted to give gifts unto men, shall we not with one mind have a special halt for prayer at this time for the beloved veterans in the mission field, and especially for outgoing recruits, that these may be selected, sent out, and assorted by the Lord of the harvest Himself, and for his alone glory?

What beloved missionary, when these lines reach him in some far-off foreign field, will hie away to find a solitary place where no eye but God's can reach him; and there, stripping himself of every human qualification, submit to lie in the palm of the Almighty, and become his threshing instrument of mountains for the alone glory of God?

Whilst at home our hearts and our prayers enlarge to embrace every true believer of every country on the face of the earth, in the meaning and in the very words of our Lord's own prayer, John xvii. 20, 21 "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on Me through their word; that they all may be one; as Thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me."

REGINALD RADCLIFFE.

THE STEPNEY CRECHE.—A very interesting sketch of Mrs. Hilton's institution appears in The Charity Record.

CARRUBBER'S CLOSE MISSION.—At the Gospel Temperance demonstration in connection with this Mission last Saturday, Mr. G. A. Barclay read a letter from Captain Christie, the governor of Edinburgh prison, in which he speaks most warmly of the efforts of the Mission in reducing the crime of the city. He calculated that the daily average number of criminals in Edinburgh was lessened by 100 through the work at Carrubber's Close. The workers, it was remarked, are drawn from all the evangelical denominations, and this assurance of its effectiveness would be a spur to continued endeavour.

CHINESE MISSIONS. — The thirty-sixth annual meeting of the Scottish Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church of England's Chinese Mission was held in Edinburgh last week. Dr. Ireland Barbour, chairman, spoke of the results of the Mission as slow, but steady progress, and said it was becoming gradually self-supporting. Rev. John Watson, of Amoy, made an earnest appeal for the foundation of scholarships for the education of native missionaries in the colleges of the Mission. Rev. W. S. Swanson, late of Amoy, moved a resolution expressing satisfaction at the continued liberality and zeal of the native churches. Rev. James Webster of Manchuria, contended that the statistics given were not a full indication of the progress of Christianity in China. By Christian teaching a great intellectual change had taken place, one result of which was that idolatry was not so prevalent. Morally and socially the condition of the Chinese had been raised in recent years, a good deal of which might be attributed to Christian work. Dr. Main, of Hang Chow, spoke strongly in support of medical missions.

Rev. DAWSON BURNS, D.D.,

Metropolitan Superintendent of the United Kingdom Alliance.

PERHAPS no name is better or more deservedly known, nationally, in connection with every phase of the temperance movement, than that of Dr. Dawson Burns, whilst in London he is recognised as a figure-head, if not as a father, by reason of his catholicity, his learning, and his indefatigable and life-long service, in the press, on the platform, and in the pulpit. Whilst officially connected with the United Kingdom Alliance as Superintendent of its Metropolitan operations, all other national institutions for the promotion of temperance have had the advantage of his advocacy and co-operation; and scarcely any of the almost countless smaller societies have failed to secure his encouragement and help.

His father was the renowned Dr. Jabez Burns born at Oldham; and his mother's maiden name was Miss Jane Dawson, of Skipton, Yorks. His parents resided in London at the time of his birth, December 22, 1828, but removed to Leith in December, 1829, and again to Perth in June, 1830, where they remained till June, 1835, when his father returned to London to become the pastor of the General Baptist Church in Church-street, Marylebone. In 1838, when Dawson was ten years old, his father became actively connected with the total abstinence cause, and on February 12, 1839, young Dawson signed the pledge at a crowded meeting in his father's chapel.

In October, 1840, when nearly twelve years old, he helped to form a temperance society for youths, and to hold meetings in the school-room. He then wrote a tract on the advantages of youths' temperance societies. In February, 1845, he became assistant secretary of the National Temperance Society, and sub-editor of The National Temperance Chronicle, and was the official reporter of the World's Temperance Convention in 1846.

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Elliott & Fry, 55, Baker-street, W.)

He joined his father's church by baptism in December, 1844, and entered the General Baptist College at Leicester in September, 1847, where he remained till the vacation of 1851. During his last two years of residence in that town he acted as secretary of the Leicester Temperance Society. In September, 1851, he became minister of a recently-formed Baptist church in Salford, and subsequently the hon. secretary of the Manchester and Salford Temperance Society.

In March, 1853, he accepted an invitation to succeed the Rev. Thomas Spencer as secretary of the National Temperance Society in London, and edited The Temperance Chronicle. At the union in June, 1856, of this Society with the London Temperance League, under the name of the National Temperance League, he resigned the secretaryship, but edited The Chronicle to the close of the year.

In December, 1856, he became Metropolitan Superintendent of the United Kingdom Alliance, which organisation he had assisted to originate in 1853. In his earlier days in London he assisted his father in ministerial work, and in April, 1875, he became co-pastor, succeeding to the pastorate on his father's death in January, 1876. This position he vacated in September, 1881. In 1880 he was elected by the General Baptist Association as one of two to represent it at the Centennial of the Free Baptist Churches of America; and in 1881 he was the President of the General Baptist Association.

His principal temperance writings have been "The Bases of the Temperance Reform," "Christendom and the Drink Curse," and the "Temperance History" now in course of publication. He was joint author with Dr. F. R. Lees of "The Temperance Bible Commentary," the fifth edition of which is now out of print. His pamphlets, papers, poems, and tracts and his contributions to religious and temperance periodicals have been very numerous; and besides replies to many opponents in the press, and his "National Drink Bill" letters in The Times, he has held public discussions of much interest with clerical and lay opponents of total abstinence and prohibition, one of the chief being in 1879 at Bournemouth with the Hon. Auberon Herbert. After his father's death, in 1876, he continued the annual temperance sermon in Church-street Chapel, and in January last delivered the jubilee sermon of the series.

It would be impossible to estimate the service thus rendered to the Church of Christ and to the temperance cause by such a life work. The writings of Dr. Burns are essentially standard publications, by reason of their perfect authenticity as records of fact and as logical and scientific deductions; they cover the entire range of the social, scientific, historical, religious, and political phases of the movement, furnishing reliable material for all students, workers, and advocates. In this respect he is regarded as a living encyclopædia of the temperance question; and the lucidity and grasp of his teaching add a great charm to his public addresses, which always command the respect of opponents and the enthusiasm of his friends.

It must not escape mention that in early life he married the daughter of Mrs. Clara Lucas Balfour. Mrs. Burns inherited her mother's deep interest in the temperance movement, and that he has thus enjoyed the help and sympathy of a wife whose training and disposition have made her an active co-worker with her husband in all Christian and temperance effort.

"The old Doctor," as the late Dr. Jabez Burns was often affectionately called, worked nobly in the cause of temperance as a Christian prophet and pioneer. His portly presence and genial eloquence commanded popular sympathy with no ordinary power and success. The son, as a Christian philosopher, with equal talents and greater learning, has laid deeper and broader the foundations of the true temperance faith. Of father and son coming generations of Christian temperance workers may say: "These men have laboured, and we are entered into their labour."

The End of the Decade.—1.

BY REV. WILLIAM GUEST.

THE duty once more returns of addressing those who, through the grace of the Divine Spirit, have been recovered from the unnatural alienation of men towards their Maker, and who, by the constraining love of Him who made purification for human sins, have it now as their dominating aim to reclaim the world from its unrighteous spoilers, and to bring in a perfect reign of God. The end of 1890 closes the ninth decade of an eventful century, and, before a review of the past is taken, a brief reference must be made to

TWO PRELIMINARY CONSIDERATIONS.

(1) In spite of modern culture, in all its departments of learning and of discovery, the problem of a fearfully misdoing and suffering humanity is increasingly impenetrable and insoluble to all those who reject the claims of Christianity. A more pitiable spectacle was never presented than that of literary and otherwise accomplished men who refuse to accept the Christian Scriptures; but, impotent to discredit them, are floundering in bottomless abysses of inconsistencies and contradictions. At the beginning of the century unbelievers rejected our religion as a falsehood or superstition, and either sank into a cheerless Stoicism, or said, with some degree of logic, "Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die." Now, however, the evidences for the truth of revealed religion are ten times stronger than they were then; it cannot be set aside as false, and men without Christian faith are dilating about Christianity in monthly reviews and magazines to the chaotic confusion and bewilderment of all those who give heed to them.

(2) Let not the caveat of a doubtfully interpreted text against calling the "former days better than these" lay arrest on our endeavours to understand the present times. Eccles. vii. 10, when read with its surrounding words, seems a warning, not concerning the times of nations, but "the days" of an individual life, and cautions a man against a querulous impatience which contrasts a former lot with a present one. Any way, Scripture must be true to itself, and it does speak of later times as worse than former ones. It says (Judges ii. 2-13) that the children of Israel in the period of the Judges did not serve the Lord as they did in the days of Joshua; and 2 Kings xvii. tells us that it was immeasurably worse morally with the ten tribes in the days of Hoshea than at an earlier period of their kings. The Great Teacher, in a later age, declared that there had been less of culpability among the people of Tyre and Sidon than there was among the inhabitants of the cities of the Galilean Lake; and that the men of Nineveh, eight hundred years before, had been more ingenuous and open to teaching in the time of Jonah than were the people of Palestine in his own. No man who respects the Scriptures can gainsay these affirmations.

As we then come to the end of the ninth decade of the century, let us note certain aspects of the age that give forewarnings of approaching changes or judgments.

EPOCHS OF SCRIPTURE HISTORY

are clearly marked. There were times of the Antediluvians, of patriarchal waiting, of centuries when the seed of Abraham dwelt in a strange land, of the theocracy, of Israel's kingdom, of the captivity, and of post-exilian troubles. Some of these were eras of clearly defined duration, and all of them of profound relation to God's purposes, and to the course of human history. So the Christian Scriptures tell us of "the present age," and "the age to come." Just before his ascension Jesus significantly spake of "the end" of the former. It was to be one of severe conflict, which would need the assurance of his own constantly invisible presence.

And the Lord gave impressive signs as to the course of this age. When (Mark iv. 1) "a great multitude" had gathered unto Him, He did not seem even to expect that because of their eagerness to hear Him they would all be saved. Rather—and very solemn is the lesson—He taught that of those who heard the word of the Kingdom, it might come to pass that three out of four would fail to bear fruit unto perfection. This would be the mark of the age. Nay, more: in the field of Christian culture, or the professing Church, Christ taught that there would be "the children of the wicked one," as well as "the children of the kingdom," and that there would be such an external resemblance that an onlooker would be unable to separate them. The one class, like darnel in a wheat field, as the Revised Version renders, poisoning the soil, the other living to introduce a complete reign of God among men. The most scholarly criticism is confirming the emphasis given by the Revisers to the personality of Satan. The Reformers, as in the Litany, and theologians of all times, have never questioned the unequivocal teaching of Scripture in relation thereto. Denial here in thousands of modern pulpits, denial verbal or by silence, is making the New Testament revelations of no effect, and making preaching to many a paralysed imbecility. As to mystery around the subject, where in an unseen spiritual realm is there not mystery? Immeasurably deeper is the awful mystery of human history without this doctrine. Throughout the Christian ages the two greatest of ministries among men have been those of Christ and his chosen messenger, Paul. The ministry of the Lord opened with the word that He came to preach deliverance to the captives; and the other received from Christ the ordination charge to "turn men from the power of Satan unto God." Such also was the teaching of other Apostles. "The old serpent ['old' as the very beginning of man's history], called the Devil and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world" (Rev. xii. 9). Woe to us if the ribald and senseless mockery with which the world treats this subject is allowed to close the mouths of men who profess to teach the Scriptures of truth; and woe as great, if different, must be that of congregations who are soothed in their errors and unbelief by the deadly opiate of such complaisance with the world's opinion.*

"SONS OF THE EVIL ONE,"

* To say nothing of the absoluteness of Inspiration on the subject, a man might properly ask, "Why should I be more stumbled by the power of evil in spirits unseen by me than by the awful power of wickedness in such a man as Nero?" Here is one who virulently hates the newly manifested Christian goodness, murders his mother, poisons his friends, cuts off contemporaries without a scruple, makes himself a monster of loathing, and by his debaucheries does all that in him lay to corrupt and ruin a world-wide Empire. Hypnotism, as the Duke of Argyll lately pointed out, is likely to throw a dim light on the work of spiritual agencies in the temptations and conduct of men.—Spectator, Oct. 11.

It is in the undermining of faith as to our Maker having spoken to men by prophets of old time, and by his Son in these days, that the strength of "the enemy" lies. By this method the soil is being made ready for the tares. The Scriptures are not rejected, but they are to vast numbers of Christian professors becoming

A DEAD LETTER,

It is asked, "What is the explanation of the Sacramentarianism which is Romanising the English Church; and of the Negationism which, among Dissenters, is minimising the spiritual obligations of Christian persons, and the warnings of revelation as to the future of the unbelieving? The answer is, and a grievous one it is: In the former case the revelation of God is supplemented by the traditions of men, and the grand principle of the Reformers that the Holy Scriptures are a sufficient rule of faith and practice is repudiated; which means the rule of fallible instead of inspired men. In the latter case the Bible is judged instead of being submitted to; it is not truth in its depths that is sought, but only truth so far as it squares with man's ideas of what is fitting and proper, which means vagueness and endless diversities of interpretation.

Mistrust as to Divine revelation is just now leading into a wilderness of utter unbelief. The most tremendous truths respecting the tasks, temptations, and dreadful responsibilities of life are thereby softened into feebleness. When the traveller to eternity finds the guide-post discredited how is he to direct his way? How is he to proceed amid cross-roads around him? Assuredly he will follow that which seems to him the best; and this self-will, every man doing that which is right in his own eyes, and walking according to the way of his own heart, is in our day the Nemesis which follows the lowering of the absoluteness of Scripture, and which is bringing a sea of troubles upon churches.

THE FUNDAMENTAL QUESTION

for the future is this: Shall the English Bible, honestly read, be the judge of truth? I say honestly read, for Rationalism on the one side, and Ecclesiasticism on the other have of recent years been shrouding the testimony of Scripture. Man is being magnified, and, under the pretence of believing in man, his ability to reason on Divine things, without Divine enlightenment, has been claimed: the misguidance of human reason has been denied, and the Bible has been interpreted in a pitiable adaptation to the tastes, prejudices, and inclinations of men. As for "the Church," never was there held up before men a more doubtful guide. "We follow the Church" is the cry which we hear increasingly. What Church, we ask, that of the West or of the East, which were and are alienated communions? Where is there an undivided Church whose voice may be taken as authoritative? There has never been a time when one Church has not taught a doctrine as true which another has not proclaimed to be erroneous. There is no one and visible Church. Christianity has always been distinguishable from Churchism. The Church in Apostolic time contained men about whom a chief Apostle wrote weeping. Of the seven Churches, of which we read in the Apocalypse, He who walked in the midst of them declared that three were mixed communions and two utterly corrupt. As to taking the foremost ecclesiastics as guides, there has never been an age in Church history when among the were not men swayed by ambition, jealousy, cunning, intrigue, and worldly aims. From the time when St. John wrote of a Diotrephes, who loved to have the pre-eminence in the Church, no class of men have been more characterised by a hungry appetite for power. Even in relation to the sacraments the primitive Church and the Roman Church of the tenth century differ toto cœlo in their practice and teaching. Clericalism never palmed on men a falser piece of self-deceiving casuistry than when it enjoined on them to obey a variably conflicting voice called that of the Church.

What will they believe who are coming after us? What will the children of living Englishmen come to regard as Christianity? These are questions which many cannot refrain from asking. With their negative theologies, "liberal" doctrines, accommodating Unitarianism as to sin, and as to a judgment to come, where will be certainty respecting a way of human salvation? With rationalism interpreting the New Testament, and a mediævalism about which no two men are in agreement, in what a benighted entanglement on stupendous questions must the coming generation find itself.

On this and other accounts it is that there is setting in a tide of REACTIONS.

Men are becoming alarmed at the fruit of their own doings. When the grandeur of the Old Testament has been neither seen nor taught; when—for this, painful to say, has been the case—preachers have finished the public reading of one of its records by informing their congregations that the narrative was a myth, no wonder that they should be startled to find that young people have concluded that wrong in their belief in one place they have been wrong altogether, and that they may neglect the Old Testament books as worn-out fables. When the sanction of the Son of God in relation to one narrative has been recklessly set aside, how are hearers to respect the Lord's trustworthiness elsewhere? A preacher may thus come to find that he has not Christians, but a congregation of sceptics, before him. When a new school is teaching that it is not of sin and redemption preachers should discourse, but of nobleness, of intellectual apprehensions of truth, of happiness, good humour, pleasant recreations, is it to be wondered at that, instead of the old glorifying of God, amusement should come to be regarded as the chief end of man? Negations, pretended æstheticisms, and allowed indulgencies, are bringing upon an always tempted race a licence, frivolousness, and Epicureanism, which ignores the hereafter as Englishmen have never ignored it before, and which at length are awakening apprehensions, even among those who have opened wide the doors for the sensuous dissipation of our period. Young men for whom the external amusements have been laboriously provided forsake their minister when he seeks to promote a deeper inward life. Happily it is these things that are bringing the reaction.

FORERUNNERS.

When, at the close of the Middle Ages, there had come over Europe an Egyptian darkness; when the work of priestism had culminated in gross superstition; then there arose forerunners of the glorious Reformation which was at hand. Men bearing the name of "Brethren of the Common Lot" shed over the age the foregleamings of a new dawn. Gerhard Groot, Zerbolt, Redewins, à Kempis, Wessel, Tauler, and Staupitz, by their saintliness and their return to the Scriptures of truth, prepared the way for the rise of Protestantism. The darkest period of unbelief was the beginning of a new era. So now the supplementing or the rationalising of Scripture is leading growing numbers of the Lord's servants to another great return to it. We are clearly approaching a day of his power. What that day will be, we are not capable of affirming. But this is obvious: The revolt against a spurious Protestantism and false doctrine has set in. The wise virgins are trimming their lamps. We see it in the religious Conventions of our period; in the awakening of an Apostolic missionary zeal; in the active work of Associations when young men are pressing on to be living sacrifices unto God; in the rebuking of the pride of Churches which find no longer reason to say as of old, "The temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord are we;" in the noble army of consecrated women, who, in Christ-like selflessness, are wondrously labouring and speaking for Him; in the religious and unmistakable movements among the humbler classes; in the clergymen who with unsurpassed devotedness are enforcing God's Holy Word; in the heroic service of protestors against errors, and the compassionate ones, in the churches and out of them, who are carrying the lamp of truth into deepest depths of darkness. Christ, who has had given to Him this evil-ruled world, is summoning his waiting ones to renewed zeal and prayer. He is sending heralds of the dawn over the eastern horizons of every nation. And now ten thousand of his servants do not ask what their Lord's purposes are; but they pray, and confer, and labour to do the work of a critical hour, according to his will. The further unfolding of error and of duty must, however, be reserved for a second paper.

Tunbridge Wells.

WORK IN PORT SAID.

DEAR SIR,—Since our return here last year, in May, it has been our great joy and privilege to help a large number of poor, needy, and suffering people in the town, who came to seek our aid. At no previous time have so many applied for help as during this year, and amongst them a good number of Jews from Russia, on their way to Jaffa and Jerusalem. What we can do in the future for the poor benighted, starving, and persecuted Jews which we are now to expect within the next three to four months, is more than we can tell. The Lord is able and mighty to send the necessary help, and to Him we look.

Last week we had four large German men-of-war ships lying here, on board of which I was permitted, by the favour of the commanders, to distribute German Testaments and Gospels; I also had conversation with several officers and cadets on board.

At times our meetings have been pretty well attended by Italian, French, German, Greek, Syrian, and Jewish people. During the last three months, great numbers of missionary workers from America, England, Sweden, Norway, and Germany, on their way to China, India, and nearer our place, Palestine and Syria, came to see us. Such times have been refreshing to our souls in meeting with the Lord's people. Will our readers kindly have us in remembrance in prayer for great blessing in this place? In the midst of great difficulties of various kinds we are not discouraged.—Yours sincerely and gratefully,

Port Said, Egypt. J. A. EOLL.

Christmas Offerings.

RISE of a sun which evermore shall climb
From noon to noon with unexhausted ray;
The grandest era of eternal time;
For heaven and earth a coronation-day!
Hail, morn of glory! birth of glory's King!
What gold and frankincense have we to bring?

Thy path of love, to sinners stretching down:
Thy path of sorrow to the cross of pain:
Thy path of triumph to the highest crown,
With seraph myriads shouting in thy train—
How celebrate? on this thy natal day,
O Son of God, 'midst Godless revelry.

Shall we bring gold from every coast and clime?
The pearls and gems from farthest sea and land?
Triumphs of art and symphonies sublime—
They are his own! we'd place them in his hand;
But first the soul—of higher cost to Him
Than all the worlds that star creation's rim.

A broken and a contrite heart that wrings
Out at his feet its grief-assuaging tears;
A sin-healed soul that, overflowing, sings
Salvation's anthem in the Father's ears:
Such are the offerings ransomed men may bring;
The current coin with impress of the King.

Singing hosannas with the lowliest throng,
Weeping full oft in this great Bethany;
Teaching the world its great redemption song,
Treading the Master's consecrated way:
Such be our gifts—incense of rarest worth
To Thee, O Christ—to celebrate thy birth.

Donemana, Ireland. J. K.

LIGHT IN DARKNESS.

"Oh! dark, dark! amid the blaze of noon!
Irrecoverably dark! Total eclipse!
Without all hope of day!!"

—Milton.

"GOD, if it be thy will, oh, let me SEE! It is almost more than I can bear, to know that thy blessed sunlight streams through millions and millions of miles of space, and not one ray to give me light!!" So, once we heard a blind man pray in his heart's agony, and the prayer has lingered with us, demanding earnest action on behalf of the blind. True, sadly true, we cannot give them light; but by our Father's help we are able in a very practical sense to enlighten the awful gloom.

The blind essentially, and very specially, long "to dwell among their own people." The familiar voice, the friendly hand, the accustomed corner, the well-known room, are more to them than we conceive; and these, dear Christian readers (for this work is for the Lord's own), we can, nay, surely we ought to secure, for those who, sitting in the darkness, call to us for help! Much suffering is among them now; food is scarce, comforts few—all harder to bear because of enfeebled health—too often the accompaniment of blindness. Come, in God's name, to their aid. Thank Him for sight, thank Him for blessed light, and prove the thankfulness by generous help to those who "grope in the shadows."

The Somers Town Blind Aid Society has for twenty-seven years—quietly, steadily, increasingly—held out a helping hand to the blind. Over two hundred are now regularly receiving assistance, sympathy, and friendship from its workers. Many blind bless God for its existence and love its very name. More money, more workers are needed. Who will help? Visitors are warmly welcomed at its weekly gathering, and all who come are deeply interested. All information gladly given, reports sent, and subscriptions received by the President, Principal Oswald Dykes, D.D., or by the Hon. Secretary and Manager, (MRS.) JESSIE HEPBURN STAITEY.

53, Hilldrop-road, N.

ITALY.—On November 11 the Military Y.M.C.A. named after Martin Luther, celebrated its anniversary. The president, Signor Cav. Luigi Capellini, gave a lecture on Luther to a large assemblage of soldiers. The work of the Military Church grows, and God blesses the seed-sowing.

LIFE, LIGHT, AND LOVE.

THE GOSPEL OF JOHN.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS.

JOHN III. 14.

IN a well-known picture, a modern painter has given us an imaginary incident in the youth of our Lord. It is the carpenter's shop. Boards sawn for use are propped against the walls, the floor is strewn with chips and curls of wood and heaps of sawdust, various tools mingle in the confusion, or are placed in the rack ready for use. Mary is kneeling close beside her Son, the level rays of the setting sun strike through the casement, and as the young carpenter draws himself to his full height and extends his arms, a shadow as of one crucified is thrown on the opposite wall. Mary, at least, sees that shadow of the cross, and it recalls the prediction of the venerable Simeon, which had for the moment chilled her motherly rapture, as he foretold the sword which should pierce her own soul.

This, of course, is fancy, and yet it is without doubt that, to Mary at least, the anticipation of crushing sorrow, in connection with that wondrous Being with whom her own life was so mysteriously entwined, was an ever present source of grief.

When did the first realisation of his death break on the human consciousness of our blessed Lord? Of course, as the Son of God, He must always have anticipated it. From eternity it had been present to his mind. Before the mountains were brought forth, or the foundations of the earth were laid, in purpose and intention, He was the Lamb slain. He emptied Himself with the express purpose of becoming obedient to the death of the cross. But there was perhaps a moment when it first broke on his soul as the Son of man. Whenever that moment was, it lay far back before the day when He took up his public ministry, for from his earliest words and onward to his latest it is evident that He was living in the anticipation of Calvary.

The shadow of the cross rests on all the incidents and words of his public life. Nowhere does the sun of his life shine in a clear sky. The darkness is denser here and thinner there, but it is everywhere, "as the twilight creeps noiselessly into evening's sunniest nooks, and quietly masters all the land without the winnowing of its silken wing being heard or seen."

Let us for a moment trace it. Calvary is a low hill, but it casts a long shadow.

In his first appeal to his fellow-countrymen from the court of the cleansed Temple, He spoke clearly of the destruction of his body, in which the destruction of their own Temple was foreshadowed (ii. 19).

In His first recorded conversation He said positively and unmistakably that He must be lifted up, not simply to the right hand of the Father, but as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness (iii. 14). Between Him and the bright Home whither He was going lay the blackness of the midnight of the cross.

He spoke of his flesh as given for the life of the world (vi. 51). He broke the full horror of it to the most intimate circle of his adherents on the eve of his transfiguration, exciting their vigorous remonstrance (Matt. xvi. 21); He set his face to go to Jerusalem, knowing full well that the predicted hour had nearly struck (Luke ix. 51); He described the good Shepherd as giving his life for the sheep (John x. 11); He accepted the gift of Mary's love for his burying (xii. 7); his last utterances were full of similar references (xv. 13); He went to meet the band which Judas led, knowing the while to what He went (xviii. 4).

And perhaps there is no scene in all his life more touching than when the question of certain Greeks, at the close of his public ministry, plunges Him into deep and heartrending meditation, from the midst of which come the cries of his human soul in an agony, and He uses again these very words about the Son of Man being lifted up, adding to them a marvellous forecast of the effect that it should have on the minds and hearts of men throughout all lands and all coming years (xii. 32, 33).

I. THE HEROISM OF THE SON OF MAN.—He evidently foresaw all. The bodily torture, the shame and spitting, the racked muscle and quivering flesh, the slow agony of death—these were present to Him, and the bitterness of the soul, and the God-forsakenness of the spirit. He to some extent must have guaged the weight of the world's sin, which He was to bear away. And his soul was troubled beyond what words can tell, as He came within the penumbra of that eclipse. No eye would pity, no hand would save; lover and friend would stand afar off; the disciples would forsake Him and flee; the very heavens would veil their blessed light. He must be accounted as "sin," and go forth alone as the scapegoat. In front of Him He saw the winepress which He must tread alone. And yet He was not rebellious, neither turned away back. He gave his back to the smiters, and his cheeks to them that plucked off the hair; He hid not his face from shame and spitting (Isa. l. 6).

Who does not know the pain of anticipating some awful agony—a separation from some twin soul, an operation, an inevitable break-up of some blessed abode of human bliss? Under circumstances like these, the life drags on its weary length in almost unsupportable anguish, which gnaws it away, as the fret of the sea-billow does the base of the cliffs. At such times the very event we dread is almost a welcome relief from the agony of anticipation. And it is conceivable that the outward tumult of Calvary was positively this to the human nature of Jesus.

And yet He never faltered. Is there not a side light here on the heroic tenacity of his purpose, on the strength of his will. Gentle as a woman, He is mightier than the mightiest of men. Simple as a child, He is strong as God. Lamb though He be, He is Lion too. "For the joy set before Him, He endured the cross, despising the shame." What wonder, then, that having overcome the natural instinctive dread of the pain of death in which all men, more or less, participate, He has been able to overcome the world, and its prince, and the power of darkness, and to save with a great salvation!

This Saviour of ours, my brothers, is no effeminate weakling, no creature of circumstances, no hysterical enthusiast, but a Man who knew what it was to endure the long strain of anticipated agony; who could suffer silently, locking up the secret in his heart; who could face without blanching the direst anguish that man ever bore. It may be that you, too, ha some kind of prevision of the cross and sha which await you; but be strong, yea, be stron because He has gone this way before you, ar can make you more than conquerors. You ca go through no darker rooms than He h traversed, and you may have what He cou not have, the company of One who is touche with the feeling of your infirmities, because H has been tempted in this point like you. L those especially who, through fear of death, a all their lifetime subject to bondage, unde stand how completely the blessed Lord ca sympathise with them, and let them claim h heroism, and that He Himself should be them that strength and confidence which th need.

II. THE NATURE OF HIS DEATH.—Evident it was not a martyrdom.—A martyr is wholly the discretion of his foes. His main object, his name denotes, is to give a witness to certa neglected and unpopular truths. He is c grossed with this, and does not specially addr himself to the question of his fate. If he pro a hindrance and reproof to the men of l time, he must probably suffer the dir penalty they can inflict. But it is no part his primary purpose to incur that fate, and has no thought of expiating the sin of th who hound him to his death.

Far different was the main purpose of t Lord Jesus. True, He came as a witness to t truth, but most of all He came to be the s offering of our race, and to pass through dea into resurrection on behalf of a compa which no man can number. Other men because they have been born; our Lord v born that He might die.

His death was voluntary.—The Father s the Son, but the Son came. He was not for suddenly and unexpectedly into the scenes death. He deliberately walked directly i them, knowing and choosing all. Never fo moment did He admit that his life was ta from Him. He said that He laid it dow Himself, and that He had received this po from his Father. Never for a single mom did He swerve from the acquiescence of will with his Father's. And can we doubt voluntary character of his death, as we rem how safe He was until his hour had come, whilst He was remaining among the hills Galilee, or as we behold the marvellous play of his power which flung his captors their backs to the ground?

No unwilling victim He. Not dragged to slaughter! "Led!" From the depths of steadfast soul the words rang out, "I deligh do thy will, O my God." He trod the path the brow of Mount Moriah as willingly Isaac had done in his innocence before H though He knew, as the lad did not know, t He was to be God's Lamb.

But if all were voluntary, how splendid tribute to his love! A love that never falte that counted the gain more than the pain, was prepared to bear all to win his Bride. love of the heart of Jesus, the more we th of Thee, the more Thou passest knowle whilst we stand baffled before thy depths heights! A love that gave itself under spell of some sudden impulse were much, a love that could steadily face years of s gnawing agony, this is love indeed. Blesse the spirit which will resign itself to inevitable; but more blessed far the s which, for very love, will resign itself to the evitable, and stand at a stake, or hang on a cross, constrained, not by chains or nails, but by its own devotion.

His death was necessary.—The corn of wheat must fall into the ground and die, if it were not to live alone. I love that word "must." If there had been another way it would have been selected, but there was no other way. In no other way could the love of God have free course and been glorified. In no other way could the curse of Adam's sin be removed from the race. In no other way could our sins be borne, or our salvation achieved. In no other way could we obtain the life of God stored up in the human nature of Jesus. In no other way could He pass to his great reward. Must—God Himself had considered all other possible alternatives in vain, and this was the verdict of Deity. Must—in the very nature of things, it was peremptory. Must—it could not have been otherwise, if He would become the Saviour, Priest, King, Brother, and Life-giver of men. Oh, sad yet blessed necessity! Sad, because it cost Him so much; blessed, because it has brought us so much.

III. THE JOY OF THE SON OF MAN.—Throughout all the long travail of his soul He was sustained and animated by one delightful anticipation. For the joy set before Him . . . (Heb. xii. 2). He looked through the shadow towards the sun-glints on the horizon to which He went. The joy of doing his Father's will, of rolling away all imputation from his Father's character. The joy of undoing the work of the first Adam, and of becoming, as the second Man, the Head of a redeemed race. The joy of drawing all men to Himself, and of winning for Himself the Church as his Bride. The joys of marriage, and victory, and deliverance, all crowded into one long ecstasy. This sustained and nerved his spirit.

We may just now be near despair. The days are dark. There is much to depress in the slow progress of the Church. The angels must weary as they stand at the twelve open gates of heaven counting the driblets that pass in, while the multitudes reject the invitation of God's love. Iniquity abounds, and the love of many waxes cold. But why should we falter or despair? He never did.

Let us keep our eye on the streaks of the breaking day. Let us keep our ears attentive for the first peal of the marriage bells. Let us cultivate his patience and his joy. "If we suffer with Him, we shall be glorified together." "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." Wherefore lift up your heads and rejoice, for your redemption draweth nigh.

HOMES FOR AGED CHRISTIAN BLIND.—The annual free teas in connection with these Homes were given last week in the Jubilee Hall, Hanley-road, Crouch-hill, N. About two hundred blind were present, besides their guides, from all parts of London. The object of this yearly effort is to bring this suffering class of the community in direct contact with the Gospel, and it was evident that the message, in speech and song, made its influence felt on many present. The story of the Cross was told with pathos, love, and power, by a number of friends. Each blind person on leaving the building was presented with a shilling.

RAGGED SCHOOL UNION.—A drawing-room meeting was held last week at Kent House, by kind permission of Lady Ashburton, in the interests of the Ragged School Union of Exeter Hall. The fog prevented many friends from being present who would have attended to hear the claims of this old-established and still needed agency, advocated by the Archdeacon of London, the Hon. Lionel Ashley, Rev. W. R. Mowll, Mr. George Holland, and others. It was stated that the Society has 200 local mission centres in Greater London, exercising a good Samaritan-like influence upon at least 100,000 of the very poorest in our midst. Two thousand pounds are urgently required before Christmas for this work.

Outgoing Missionaries.

THE Y.M.C.A., Aldersgate-street, was last week the scene of two very interesting missionary farewells. The first was in connection with

THE MISSIONARY BUREAU.

The Central Noon Prayer-meeting was made special. Mr. GEORGE WILLIAMS presided, and a large company of Christian friends were present. Mr. CALDWELL, the secretary, stated that during the past twelve months the Bureau had assisted in despatching to the mission field fifty-four candidates. There were on their list at the present time several openings, for which suitable candidates were desired. On the present occasion five young missionaries were specially commended to God in prayer for their life work. A sixth (Dr. Edith Huntley) was also expected, but was prevented at the last moment. She is proceeding to Kashmire as a self-supporting medical missionary.

There were present Messrs. Weston, Loraine, and Pettigrew, proceeding to join Mr. St. Dalmas in his newly-opened mission in Bengal. They each gave a brief testimony as to their call into the work, their realisation of their complete dependence on the Lord for power and blessing, and their desire for the prayers of the brethren. Mr. and Mrs. Brokenshire, a young Canadian couple, were starting for Japan, to support themselves by teaching English until they had acquired the language; they then hope to devote themselves entirely to Gospel work. Both gave a brief and touching account of their past experiences and future hopes. Rev. F. B. MEYER addressed to the missionaries a few affectionate words of encouragement and exhortation, based on the sending forth of Paul and Barnabas, as recorded in the Acts of the Apostles. First: They were "sent forth by the Holy Ghost." Intermediary agencies were not recognised in the realisation of his call. Second: The foes with whom they were about to contend, entrenched behind the breastworks of false philosophy, idolatry, and sin, were the powers of darkness, and behind all these the devil. It might be that they would form one of the last contingents in the last fight, in which victory for Christ was certain. Third: The object set before Christ's servants is to gather out of the nations a people for Himself, to find precious jewels among the world's débris. As a motto for each, Mr. Meyer suggested "Christ IN you." Commendatory prayers were offered by Mr. James E. Mathieson, Dr. Baedeker, and the Chairman.

Y.M.C.A. FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The second occasion was a meeting in connection with the above Society, held on Friday last, to commend to the Lord one of its members, Dr. Browning, who, with his wife, left on Tuesday for Ningpo. Dr. MAXWELL, London Medical Missionary Society, presided over a goodly gathering of young men. In opening the proceedings, he said that their friend and fellow-member would make the one hundred and sixth medical missionary in China. No missionaries had a better opportunity of presenting the Gospel than these. He urged upon the members the general responsibility and privilege of sustaining their representative by their prayers, the share of each one in the evangelisation of the world. Mr. ROBERT BURN briefly told the story of Dr. Browning's connection with the Y.M.C.A., and his adoption by the Young Men's Missionary Society for medical missionary training in Edinburgh. He thought that Dr. Browning's successful career as a student should encourage other men who were feeling the promptings of the Holy Spirit.

Dr. BROWNING told of his hearty reception at 186, Aldersgate-street, when he first reached London as a stranger, adding, "Since that day, under God, I owe everything to 186." It was there he learned to participate in various forms of active Christian work, including open-air evangelisation. It was there he received a direct call to foreign mission work; and it was in connection with the Association and its Foreign Missionary Society that all his many difficulties in entering upon the work were, one by one, removed. Since his medical diploma had been secured his future destination had been a matter of considerable uncertainty. Greatly to his satisfaction it had eventually been decided that he should go to Ningpo, China. In closing, Dr. Browning gave some interesting particulars about his future sphere, and concerning medical mission work generally. Mrs. Browning is a thoroughly trained nurse, and is looking forward to helpful work in the Ningpo hospital.

Dr. BAEDEKER, introduced by Dr. Maxwell as a veteran, speaking in happy conjunction with the young people just entering on the service, has just returned from a long missionary journey round the Eastern hemisphere. He gave some general lessons learned as the result of his long experience. First, the faithfulness of God to his promises—"He gives strength"; second, the elasticity of the human body, its power of adaptation and recuperation; third, the desirability of eliminating artificial necessities, and of getting strong by self-denial. After brief testimony concerning prison visitation, he spoke of his flying visits to mission stations en route home from crossing Europe and Siberia, from west to east. He had held delightful fellowship with brethren in Japan, China, and the Straits Settlements. The point that seemed most to have impressed Dr. Baedeker was the exceeding sweetness and brotherly kindness of the Chinese Christians at Singapore. In closing, he said he regarded the Y.M.C.A.'s as military camps, in which Christ's soldiers are trained for active service. When ready, they should at once go forth to the needy fields.

Mr. J. H. PUTTERILL, Hon. Sec. of the Foreign Missionary Society, made some interesting announcements, amongst others that there would be a Conference at 186, Aldersgate-street, on Friday evening, January 9, on "Y.M.C.A. work amongst young men of foreign lands."

Earnest prayer was frequently offered during the evening.

BAPTIST FORWARD MOVEMENT.

SEVERAL months ago it was felt to be necessary that a new departure should be made—new, not in doctrines or principles, but in methods. Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Regent's Park Chapel, became the hon. superintendent of the new work, and under his guidance it has made excellent progress. A Deaconesses' Home is now in full working order in Doughty-street, W.C., and the sisters, who have had a short medical training, spend their whole time in visiting the people, dealing with their spiritual and physical needs. A dispensary is open to the poor free of charge, and the hon. physician, Dr. Lush (son of the late Chief Justice Lush), is greatly beloved by the people. The work of the sisters is thoroughly appreciated by the poor, and some strangely bright stories can be told about their contact with the people.

There is also a common lodging-house, where fifty beds are provided at 4d. and 6d. per night, with food; and in connection with this it is proposed to establish a corps of sandwich men, and a labour bureau.

Another part of the movement consists of the holding of "missions" in various parts of the Metropolis for the deepening of spiritual life and for the conversion of "outsiders." This branch of the movement has been most efficiently served by Revs. E. H. Ellis and J. E. Shephard, and latterly by Rev. F. C. Spurr, on whom the main responsibility is now to devolve. He has been very successful in the missions which he has conducted, and is winning golden opinions among the churches of London.

Stanley and Uledi:

AN INCIDENT IN THE CONGO EXPEDITION.

BY REV. ARTHUR FINLAYSON,
Author of "Evanescent Philosophies," &c.

THE devotion of Stanley's little band of Arabs, who, two hundred strong, beat back vast hordes of cunning cannibals and fiendish furies, along a thousand miles of river, or while carrying his big canoes overland, around the Congo cataracts, making roads over mountains and through jungles, and dashing forth in search of food, forms a tale as pathetic and beautiful as it is amazing. Let one incident of the campaign here be told, not so much for the light it throws on Stanley's character, as for the other and higher lights which lie around it.

One of Stanley's great difficulties with his men was their inherent propensity to steal. Their code of honour and their corrupt practices often brought upon the expedition much actual disaster. At last he doomed the next man caught stealing to death. His grief and distress were unbounded when the next thief, detected in a case of peculiar flagrancy, was found to be Uledi, the bravest, truest, and noblest of his dusky followers. Uledi had saved a hundred lives, Stanley's included. He had performed acts of the most brilliant daring; he was always successful, always faithful, always kind. Must Uledi die? This was a delicate and difficult problem. It was a painful question which must be faced. In his dilemma Stanley called all his men around him in a council. He explained to them the gravity of Uledi's crime. He reminded them of his stern decree, but said he was not hard enough to enforce it against Uledi. His arm was not strong enough to lift the gun that would kill Uledi, and he would not bid one of them do what he could not do himself. But some punishment, and a severe one, must be meted out. What should it be? The council must decide. They took a vote. Uledi must be flogged.

When the decision was reached, Stanley standing, Uledi crouching at his feet, and the solemn circle drawn closely around them, one man whose life Uledi had saved under circumstances of frightful peril stood forth and said, "Give me half the blows, master." Then another said, in the faintest accents, while tears fell from his eyes, "Will the master give his slave leave to speak?" Receiving permission, the Arab came forward and knelt by Uledi's side. His words came slowly, and now and then a sob broke them. "The master is wise," he said. "He knows all that has been, for he writes it in a book. I am black, and know not. Nor can I remember what is past. What we saw yesterday is to-day forgotten. But the master forgets nothing. He puts it all in that book. Each day something is written. Let your slave fetch the book, master, and turn its leaves. Maybe you will find some words there about Uledi. Maybe there is something that tells how he saved Zaidi from the white waters of the cataract; how he saved many men—how many I forget—Bin Ali, Mabruki, Koni Kusi, others, too; how he is worthier than any three of us; how he always listens when the master speaks, and flies forth at his word. Look, master, at the book. Then, if the blows must be struck, Shumari will take half, and I the other half. The master will do what is right. Saywa has spoken." And Saywa's speech deserves to live for ever. Stanley threw away his whip. "Uledi is free," he said;

"SHUMARI AND SAYWA ARE PARDONED."

Shumari and Saywa were willing to bear half the penalty for a man who had saved their lives from destruction, who had in many ways befriended them, and whose life was in many respects noble and useful. But how much greater is the work of Christ: "He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities" (Isa. iii. 5), not because He owed us a debt of gratitude, but because He loved us; not because we were his friends, but when we were his enemies. "God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Rom. v. 8). Thus Christ satisfied to the uttermost the claims of the law, and put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself. These two poor Arabs were willing to bear half the punishment which fell to Uledi. But the Lord Jesus took our whole penalty, and our acceptance before God depends entirely on the finished work of Christ, not on any good works of ours, past, present, or future. To the infinite merits of Christ we may not add our puny efforts.

That dusky Arab could not keep his hands from picking and stealing, yet, taking into account his condition and surroundings, in the sight of God he may stand far higher than many of us. He robbed his fellow-man, but have we never robbed God? That is the worst form of robbery. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment" (Mark xii. 30). God claims our highest services. He creates us for his own glory. If our life be not given to God, we rob Him of his due. "Ye are not your own. For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's" (1 Cor. vi. 19, 20). That is to be our aim in life. It is no light matter to rob God of his due.

When Uledi was under sentence of condemnation, the Arabs pleaded that the master would refer to his book and find there something recorded in favour of Uledi. Ah! when we are brought before the great tribunal, when the judgment is set and the books are opened (Dan. vii. 10), will the record of our lives be as favourable as that of poor Uledi?

Uledi had an advocate, and we need one too. "If any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous" (1 John ii. 1). Here is our Refuge. Let us surrender ourselves to Christ and the claims of his Gospel. Then, fully conscious of our own shortcomings, we may say, as we lean only on Christ, "If God be for us, who can be against us?" (Rom. viii. 31).

SAILORS' ORPHANS.—In a letter to the Glasgow papers on behalf of the Sailors' Orphan Society of Scotland, Mr. R. H. Hunter says:—"We have been much cheered by many kind gifts and letters of sympathy received during the past month. This work among the sailors' orphan children is distinctly a preventive work. We step in on the sudden loss of the breadwinner, and, by timely assistance to one or two of the children, save not only them but the whole family from sinking into the terrible abyss of want and misery from which it is so difficult and expensive to rescue them. The recent loss of H.M.S. Serpent has called attention vividly to the dangers of a sailor's life, and it is to keep the families of sailors resident in Scotland who are thus suddenly cut off that we appeal for aid."

THE CZAR AND MONTE CARLO.—It is stated that the Czar has decided to forbid any of his subjects to enter the Principality of Monaco. This interdiction is made, it is alleged, on account of the large number of wealthy Russian families who have been ruined by losses at the gaming tables. "There is no denying," says The Times correspondent, "that Russian subjects form a considerable proportion of the patrons of the Monte Carlo Casino, and that during the last two or three seasons some severe financial disasters have occurred amongst them. A very painful incident has helped to heighten the effect of the reported decision of the Czar. A Russian gentleman, who had been staying at one of the hotels in Nice, during the past week or two with his wife and children, was in the habit of going over to Monte Carlo daily to gamble. On the night in question he fell from his chair while sitting at the tables, and died almost immediately."

THE GOSPEL IN JERUSALEM.

ANOTHER gap in mission work in Jerusale has been filled by Rev. A. Ben-Oliel taking residence within the City of the Great Kin Strange as it may seem, the Sephardim, Spanish and Portuguese Jews, who are ali numerous and influential in Jerusalem, ha had no one to preach the Gospel to them. M Ben-Oliel has from childhood known the peculiar dialect, and, during a number of year laboured among them in Spain, North Afric and in various parts of the Levant. Moreov he is exceptionally qualified for conversing i Hebrew, which is a necessary accomplishmer for one who would get at the heart and mind an Eastern Rabbi, and discuss with him th Messianic claims of Jesus.

In a recent letter Mr. Ben-Oliel says:—"I hope to meet with a friendly reception fro the Ashkenazim (Russian and German Jew as well as the Sephardim. There is evidenc already that it will be so; for, before I could g to them, they were calling on me, and amon them has been a leading Rabbi, who, after con versation, accepted a Hebrew New Testament promised to study it, and has called frequentl since. They are so pleased to find one wit whom they can converse freely in the languag of their homes, as well as in Hebrew.

"There is another want. There is no plac where non-Episcopalian travellers and visitors whose numbers increase every year, can worshi God in the Holy City according to the simple forms they prefer, and are accustomed to; an consequently no place where ministers of othe denominations can have the unspeakabl privilege of witnessing for the Lord Jesus in th city where He expiated the sins of the whol world, and rose again from our justification This reproach has also been wiped off. There i now in Jerusalem an 'Upper Room,' to hol eighty or one hundred persons, near the Jaff Gate, and within five minutes' walk of the thre principal hotels, where all evangelical Chris tians may worship God; and where the Gospe shall (D.V.) be preached in Judæo-Spanish t the Sephardim, and men of all classes will be welcome to hear the message of redeeming love.

"In a few days an inscription, 'Presbyterian Mission,' will mark the house to travellers and residents. Some definite designation must be adopted, and, as a Presbyterian, I naturally prefer my true colours, cheerfully extending the hand of fellowship to all who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity."

Mr. Ben-Oliel adds that his work is one of faith and entire reliance on the gracious promises of God, who has already raised up some supporters in England and the United States.

WOMAN'S WORK.—In recounting woman's share in philanthropic work during 1890, The Queen makes very cordial reference to the labours of Miss Sarah Robinson, Miss Daniell, Mrs. Welin (of the Scandinavian Home), Miss Agnes Weston, and Mrs. Spurgeon.

"PICTURE PORTIONS."—Mr. W. Walters, of the Scripture Gift Mission, 79, St. Paul's-churchyard, is, by means of an illustrated serial publication bearing this title, presenting the Gospel story in a very striking form. The portions are published at a penny, and the illustrations are by two well-known Christian artists, who have travelled and lived in the Holy Land. For circulation in hospitals, infirmaries, barracks, and lodging-houses, not to mention even more widespread distribution, these are the very thing. The text is the Authorised Version, without note or comment. Beautifully printed on good paper, the parts are well worth receiving, and, as divided up into sections, they quite invite reading. Already the Gospel according to St. Luke has been completed. We sincerely trust that many will be disposed to bear a share of the responsibility of this work, and also do something to spread the knowledge of God by disseminating the portions.

RUSSIA AND THE JEWS.

THE sufferings of the Jews in Russia show no signs of abatement, but rather promise to increase, for it has been announced that, with the New Year, additional repressive enactments will be promulgated. Throughout England much feeling has been evoked by the reports of continued persecution, and on Wednesday last a meeting of protest was held in the Guildhall, presided over by the Lord Mayor of London. The building, which accommodates seven thousand persons, was crowded, many influential personages, Jewish and Christian, being present.

The proceedings were warmly sympathetic. Among the letters received from such as were unable to attend was one from Mr. Spurgeon, who said:—"I am indignant that the Seed of Israel should be oppressed by those who bear the name of Christian, but are utter strangers to the mind and spirit of Christ." The LORD MAYOR remarked that Alexander II. gained an imperishable crown by granting emancipation to the serfs, and expressed a hope that his successor would be encouraged to hand his name down to posterity as the liberator of the Jews of the Empire.

The Duke of WESTMINSTER moved a resolution in these words:—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, the renewed sufferings of the Jews in Russia, from the operation of severe and exceptional edicts and disabilities, are deeply to be deplored, and that in this last decade of the nineteenth century religious liberty is a principle which should be recognised by every Christian community as among the natural human rights." He pointed out that France did not benefit by the expulsion of the Huguenots; nor would Russia be the better for casting out the Jews. The Bishop of RIPON, in seconding, said that the anti-Jewish laws and edicts of Russia showed, without reference to individual cases of persecution, what kind of spirit was at work in that country. One of the hardships attending the laws is their uncertainty. For example, Jews who have lived for years in a town are suddenly told that the place is really a village, and there they may not abide; they are driven out to seek refuge in another place, in which they will subsequently meet with similar treatment.

Rev. HUGH PRICE HUGHES was indignant at the cruelties of Russia against the Jews. It has, he said, been pointed out by Dr. Richardson, and is generally admitted, that the healthiness of the Jewish race is above the average; but in South-west Russia, owing to oppression, their mortality is twice as great as that of the Christian population. The other speakers were the Earl of Meath, and Sir R. N. Fowler. It was decided to address a memorial to the Czar, praying him to repeal all the exceptional and restrictive laws and disabilities which afflict his Jewish subjects. There was an indisposition to believe that His Majesty could be cognisant of the sufferings of the people.

Mr. Oswald John Simon, writing to a contemporary with regard to the persecutions, says:—"This is not an internal affair of the Russian people; it is an affair of all Christendom. There are not eight millions of Jews in the world—five millions, at least, are Russian subjects. We, the Jews of every country, know from incontrovertible evidence that the Russian Government desires, and is seeking, the annihilation of our race. Every orthodox Christian must see in this an attempt to frustrate the will of God. It is scarcely necessary to point out how such a wicked purpose (if it could be by any possibility effected) destroys, at once, both the Christian and the Jewish interpretations of the Holy Scriptures."

All Christians must be grieved at the agonies of Israel, and should pray that God will intervene for their relief. In Russia, the seed of Jacob, to use the language of Deut. xxviii. 65, "find no ease," but have "a trembling heart, and failing of eyes, and sorrow of mind;" their "life hangs in doubt, they fear day and night, and have none assurance of their life." Nevertheless, Israel shall be delivered from all his troubles. "A little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation." The Lord will hasten it in his time.

BIBLE-WOMEN FOR INDIA.

AT a mission station in the south of India it was thought desirable to supplement the ordinary mission work by employing Bible-women to visit the houses of the natives and read to the women, who are very often thirsting for the water of life. One of the Bible-women was requested to go to a village some miles from the home station, to look after some children belonging to the school who had been ill. Passing along the road, she saw a respectable-looking woman sitting at her cottage door spinning cotton. As is the custom, she made her salaam, saying, "Good morning, Amah."

"Salaam," was the reply. "You are travelling; whence did you come?"

"From Cuddapah," was the answer.

"From Cuddapah? Heigh-ho. Are you a Christian then?"

"Yes, I am a Christian."

"Can you read?"

"Yes, I can read."

"Have you your Christian books with you?"

"Yes, I have them wrapped in my cloth. I always carry them with me when I go far."

"Will you come and read to me? I have heard a little about the 'new religion,' and I do so wish to hear more. Come and sit in my cottage and read to me. I will gladly give you food."

So Croopa did as she was asked, and went in and read the New Testament. The woman, Samadanum, listened very gratefully to the good news of salvation. After they had read and talked for some time, Croopa said, "Now I must go, for I have to walk on to Cherlopelly. I am going to see Nagama."

"Oh, Croopa, are you going to see her? She is a Christian, and you will read the good books to her. I will go with you." So she put on a clean cloth, smoothed her hair, sandalled her feet, put her wheel away, and locked her cottage door. The two women started together and walked to the house of the Reddy, or head man, of the village whither they were bound. Nagama was the Reddy's wife. She was standing in front of the house, when she recognised Croopa, and exclaimed, "O joy! joy! O Croopa, how pleased I am to see you! and you, Samadanum."

It was a large farmhouse, which I have often visited, built with two rows of rooms, divided by a passage. On one side the family lived, while the animals occupied the other. Nagama took the women into the family sitting-room and set refreshment before them, giving them water for their feet, &c.

After they had sat a short time, she exclaimed, "Now, Croopa, you will read the 'beautiful book' to us," meaning the New Testament and Psalms. So the books were opened, and Croopa read; and these three woman, seated on a mat, read and talked over the wonderful things "concerning the kingdom." As the night fell, the lamp-stand was set before them. They sat and read until nearly midnight. It was a sight over which angels, doubtless, rejoiced—a sight which might be seen in many Indian villages if there were but Bible-women to convey the good news. At last Croopa, wearied with her day's journey and work, asked to retire to rest.

The next morning, after kindly leave-taking, Croopa and Samadanum prepared to go. They said, "Can you not stay with us?"

"No," said Croopa, "I must return to Cuddapah."

"But is there no one you could send to read to us?"

"I am afraid not; but our lady would, I am sure, if she could spare anyone."

"Oh!" said Samadanum, "is there no one here who could write a letter for me? I will ask them to write, and beg her to send someone."

A youth who could write was present, and she sent the following letter:—

"DEAR LADY,—Will you have pity on us poor people, who live far away from you Christians, and know no more than the brutes. Oh! do send someone who can read to us the beautiful things in the Christian Shasters.

"Your servant, SAMADANUM."

So they parted.

Alas! there was no one to send, but it was suggested that some of the Christians living in a neighbouring village would go and read to her.

This narrative is written with a double purpose—to show Christians in this country what might be a profitable and happy way of passing an hour together reading God's Word in concert, and talking over its precious truths—a real "communion of saints"; and, in the second place, to make known the great need and eager desire of Hindoo women for instruction in Gospel truth. This might be conveyed by Bible-women, if more were sent for their support by Christians in this country.

Y.M.C.A.'S IN EGYPT & PALESTINE.

LETTERS have recently been received from Mr. Hind-Smith giving an interesting account of his travels in Egypt and Palestine. Determined to take advantage of any openings that present themselves for establishing Y.M.C.A.'s in the places he visits, Mr. Smith induced a young man who had lately arrived in Cairo, a former member of the Montrose Association, to look up the Christian young men of the place in order to form an Association there. At Alexandria there exists an excellent Soldiers' Institute. The manager (Rev. T. R. Lawrence) is an old Y.M.C.A. member. Mr. Hind-Smith fully expects that a Y.M.C.A. well be formed in this city also.

In Jerusalem Mr. Smith called on the bishop who expressed his willingness to co-operate in the formation of a Y.M.C.A. Several clergymen also showed an interest in this direction.

A meeting for young men was held in the city, and a sermon preached at Christ Church bearing upon the formation of a Y.M.C.A. An enthusiastic meeting was held resulting in the formation of an Association with central committee and secretary. Representatives from Ramleh and Lydda were present, and expressed their resolve to form branches at these places."

THE CHURCH ARMY AND THE POOR.—At the anniversary meeting, on Friday last, of the first Labour Home opened by the Church Army, at Princes Hall, Piccadilly, the Earl of Meath gave an account of the labour system in Germany. It was stipulated that everyone should work hard for his food and lodging. What is earned in addition is placed to the worker's account. The idle get no countenance; while the industrious are helped to recover themselves, and the weak and inconstant get stronger "backbone." One of the conditions of success of any such system is that the public must be justified in refusing to give money to street beggars, and that it is made clear that any persons in need may have work. Very gratifying results have accrued from the system in Germany, and his lordship expressed a hope that the public would give Rev. W. Carlile and those working at his direction all support and encouragement. Rev. W. Carlile explained the Church Army Labour Home scheme, for the extension of which from £10,000 to £100,000 was urgently required. Four of the men from the slums, who had been benefited, gave testimony.

For the Young.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE.

BY FANNIE E. TURNER.

"OH DEAR! I'm sure I like to please myself." It was a very deep sigh that passed Mabel Leslie's rosy lips, and something very like a tear sparkled in her blue eyes as she bent over her painting. As her fingers filled in the letters of the text she was colouring, the words went home to her heart, and over and over again she repeated to herself, "Even Christ pleased not Himself."

Mabel and Gertie Leslie had been at some children's seaside services during their happy summer holidays, and the two young sisters had then heard that the children's Saviour invited them to come to Him. First one and then the other accepted his loving invitation, and they returned home rejoicing in his love.

Christmas time came round, and the two little girls were very busy preparing their Christmas presents. Mabel had bought two outline texts, which she meant to colour, and then make straw frames for them. Illuminating the letters was a serious business, and very seriously the little girl set to work about it. But the words of the text filled her mind.

"It is like what Mr. James said at the children's service last Sunday, when he was speaking about self-denial," she said, half aloud. "I know I like to please myself, and have just what I like." And then she added very reverently, "I must pray about it."

That very day some cousins were spending the evening with them, and there was a little difficulty as to the choice of games. Mabel begged for "musical chairs"; none of the others cared for it, but she overheard the whisper, "Let's give in, and have it, or Mabel will be so vexed."

"No," said Mabel brightly, "I would much rather you chose," and she entered most heartily into the game of French blind man's buff, though she did not like it; for suddenly the words "Even Christ pleased not Himself" had shot into her mind, and when she determined to copy Him, it had been easy for her to give up her own way about the games.

A few days afterwards, the two sisters went out to tea, and heard that there was much disappointment among the inmates of a small orphanage close to them, because the lady who had always provided a Christmas tree for them was dead.

"How many children are there in the orphanage?" asked a lady who was present.

"Only ten," answered her hostess; "it is quite a small affair, but a most valuable institution."

"Someone is sure to give them a Christmas tree and treat," said the first speaker, and there the matter seemed to end.

But one little girl pondered over what she had heard. "Ten little boys and girls, who had no fathers and mothers, were feeling very sad, and expecting to have a dull Christmas." That was the way Mabel Leslie put the matter to herself. Could nothing be done? Could she not ask someone to give them a treat? Then another thought suddenly flashed into her mind; but it was not quite a pleasant one, and she thrust it away. But again it came, and to something of the following effect:—

"You know that you and Gertie always have a nice Christmas party and lovely Christmas tree. Suppose that you two agree to ask your father and mother to let the Christmas tree and party be for those ten orphans."

Mabel pondered much over this idea, and before she had finished painting the words "pleased not Himself" in her illuminated text, her resolution was taken, and she took Gertie into her confidence.

"Oh, yes, Mabel," answered her sister, "that would be delightful. How glad I am that you have thought of it! I did wish something could be done for the orphans, but never thought of your plan."

"It is your plan just as much as mine, if you agree to it," said her sister pleasantly. "Now let us go and talk to mother about it."

Mrs. Leslie entered heartily into the idea, but asked the children if they realised that it would cost them real self-denial to carry it out.

"You know, darlings, that we are not rich," she said, "and if your father and I buy presents for the orphans, we cannot afford to give them to you too. I know that Mrs. Reece has given nice things to the children that they would find useful in after life, Bibles, and workboxes, and writing cases, for they have no one to give them such things."

"Yes, mother, we've talked about that," said Mabel, "and we don't a bit mind going without, if they may have them; and we want to dress some dolls for the little ones, and to make some needlebooks and pincushions for the workboxes of the bigger ones; then we can have a share in it all."

"So you shall," answered their mother. "And now put on your things, and we will go to the orphanage, and you shall give the invitations yourselves."

Great pleasure did that visit give to Mabel and Gertie, and they were delighted to see the joy of the little orphans.

Each spare moment was devoted by the sisters to the making of little presents. And when Christmas week arrived a splendid lot of things was ready.

The Christmas tree looked lovely, and never before had Mabel and her sister so enjoyed the arrangement of their pretty things. The breakfast room was given up to it, and the two little girls seemed as if they could scarcely keep out of the room; and they have never forgotten the pleasure of the afternoon and evening of their party. The orphans declared they had never had such a treat before. As one of them expressed it, "it was ever so much nicer to come to a private house, to have tea and supper in a dining-room, and to use real silver spoons and forks, than to have the treat at the orphanage as they had always done before."

It is four years now since Mabel and Gertie tried that Christmas experiment of not pleasing themselves but trying to please the Lord Jesus, and so successful was the first experiment that they have repeated it for the last three years.

What say you, my reader, to trying something of the same kind this Christmas season? I leave to your own ingenuity the exact form the idea shall take. But do try to do something, for the sake of Him who came down to this earth one Christmas season, and has now ascended into heaven, "leaving us an example that we should follow his steps." And remember that "Even Christ pleased not Himself."—Our Own Magazine.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Dec. 21, Isa. xxix. 1—8; Mon., Dec. 22, Ps. xxv. 1—22; Tues., Dec. 23, Ps. xxvi. 1—12; Wed., Dec. 24, Ps. xxvii. 1—14; Thurs., Dec. 25, Matt. i. 18—25; Fri., Dec. 26, Ps. xxviii. 1—9; Sat., Dec. 27, Ps. xxix. 1—11.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. H. Hutchinson, Selby, Jan. 10—17. Mr. T. L. Sayer, Presbyterian Church, Clapton, Jan. 4—9. Mr. J. Tyler, Sale, Cheshire, Dec. 27 to Jan. 2.

BOARD SCHOOL CHILDREN'S DINNER FUND.—The eighth annual report of this fund contains many sorrowful facts of child want, which largely account for non-attendance. It is forcibly pointed out that social prudence at least should lead to the provision of food, as well as teaching and training, to fit the children for earning a decent livelihood in time to come. The Fund's balance for the year ending October last is lower than ever before, whilst the work has been increasing. Touching details of the work are found in the report obtainable from the hon. sec., Mrs. Pennington, 5, Alexandra-road, South Hampstead, N.W.

ZENANA BIBLE & MEDICAL MISSION.

THE work of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission is growing rapidly both at home and in India. The committee are most anxious to raise the income of the Society as soon as possible to £20,000, and they are encouraged to find that, comparing the first nine months of the present year with the corresponding period of 1889, there is a very substantial increase in the receipts.

That a blessed work is being carried on by the Society in India is shown by the reports. The schools and scholars are rapidly increasing, and zenanas are being opened up faster than they can be visited, and Christian teachers are being carefully trained in the Normal Schools, though, unhappily, not in such numbers as to keep pace with the demand. The hospitals and dispensaries are crowded from day to day with hundreds of sick and suffering, who overtax the resources of the buildings and the strength of the lady doctors and their assistants. So great is the necessity for better accommodation for the medical work at the various centres that improved buildings are now being erected. At Benares the new Victoria Hospital has been built at a cost of nearly £3000, and at Lucknow the Lady Kinnaird Memorial Hospital is in course of erection on a site given free of charge by the Government.

Arrangements are being made at Patna for the opening of a medical mission there, to be presided over by a fully qualified lady medical missionary. The need of such a work in Patna is very great. There are 90,000 women, but not a single hospital to minister to their special needs. Friends have given or promised £1000 towards the necessary premises, but £2000 more is needed before the building can be commenced.

Turning to the direct spiritual results of this work, there is much cause for praise and thanksgiving to God. Letters from India tell of many genuine conversions during the last few months. At Sultanpur (the last station opened by the Society) we hear of the baptism of Lydia, a young woman of twenty, who, after much cruel persecution, came out boldly for Christ. From Benares comes the intelligence of a convert who confesses to having been led to the knowledge of the Saviour by the teaching of Sundri, the girl who was rescued at Patna by Miss Abraham. From Allahabad comes news of nine cases of conversion, and an interesting account of the baptism of several of them. Converts and many earnest inquirers are reported from Faizabad, Bombay, Poona, Nasick, Lucknow, &c.

Ten missionaries were sent out in October; some have already left, while others will shortly proceed to their stations. A new station is to be opened at Ghazipur, in the N.W.P., while four more lady doctors are being trained who will eventually be placed at the head of hospitals in various parts of India. Further particulars may be obtained from the office of the Society, 2, Adelphi-terrace, London, W.C.

"LAMB AND FLAG" SCHOOLS AND MISSION.—The forty-fourth annual report tells of much interesting endeavour among the poor of Clerkenwell. The Sunday-school is attended by over 600 children, and it is held three times every Lord's Day. There are 136 names on the mothers' meeting book, and a large majority of them attend the gatherings. Open-air meetings on Clerkenwell-green are held twice a week, and much good has resulted from them. Young and old have been fed when hungry, and cheered in a truly Christian way; moreover, the Gospel has been presented in the spirit of love, and with manifest blessing following. So far only a small sum has been received towards the erection of new premises, which are sadly required in order that the work may expand and more adequately meet the needs of the district. The manager is Mr. J. C. Sherrard, 7, Oxford-square, Hyde Park, W.

Just Ready. Of all Booksellers.

S. W. PARTRIDGE & CO.'S

Illustrated Monthly Magazines

FOR JANUARY, 1891.

"All as good as they can be."

Among their Contents will be found the following:—

THE BRITISH WORKMAN contains a large full-page engraving, drawn by S. T. Dadd, "THE LAST LOOK AT AN OLD ENEMY," to which Rev. C. Courtenay has written a vigorous article. It also contains: Illustrated Biographical Sketch of W. D. Stephen, J.P. (ex-Mayor of Newcastle-on-Tyne)—"Where did you get your Religion?"—The Heroes of Colwyn Bay—Light for Darkest England. With original Illustrations of scenes in one of General Booth's Shelters.

ONE PENNY.

THE BAND OF HOPE REVIEW contains a Full-page Picture, "JOSIAH DESTROYING THE FALSE GODS," and an interesting article by the Rev. John H. Grubb—The New Year—Prize Bible Questions—Take the Safe Path—Band of Hope—A Great Scourge—"Keep the Jug a'Whoam"—Band of Hope Motto for 1891.

ONE HALFPENNY.

THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND, with a beautiful coloured Picture, "THE BOAT BUILDERS," and fifteen Engravings, contains: Phil's Frolic (Serial Story)—Ten little Men—Behind the Wall—Katie's Pumpkin—Board and Lodgings for Tits—Simple Scientific Pleasures—A New Year's Treat—Fourteenth Prize—Competition Award—New Competitions—Our Letter Box—Puzzles—Music Page, "New Year Bells."

ONE PENNY.

A Delightful Magazine for Young Folks.

THE INFANT'S MAGAZINE, with a magnificent Coloured Picture, "A TERRIBLE FRIGHT" (given away), and charming Picture Stories for the Little Ones—Dick and the Sugar—Mending Day—The Cats' Evening Concert—The Robin—A Happy New Year—Jesus and Simeon—Dolly's Diary—A Tale of a Rat—Music page, "The Little Soldiers."

ONE PENNY.

An invaluable help in the Nursery.

THE FAMILY FRIEND, with Serial Story by ALICE PRICE, "UNA BRUCE'S TROUBLES"—Quiet Meditation—Web-footed Men—"Mother made it!"—Children's Voices—The Phosphorescence of the Sea—"What She Could"—Hints for Mothers—Music page, "Hope On."

ONE PENNY.

THE FRIENDLY VISITOR, with six Engravings, contains: Stopped on the Brink—New Year's Thoughts—Night Dews—"Where art Thou?"—A Poacher's Simple Story—Light—"My presence shall go with thee"—Why not To-day?—A Cornish Cobbler's Sermon—Subjects for Bible Readings, &c.

ONE PENNY.

This Gospel Magazine is printed in specially bold type, so as to suit the aged as well as other classes.

THE MOTHERS' COMPANION. Full of Interesting reading for the Family Circle. Several Illustrations. Serial Story by Ethel Heddle, entitled "MARTIN REDFERN'S OATH"—A Holiday Run in Brittany—Old Love-Letters—Hints to Wives, by a Man who has One—The Sweetest Song—Kith and Kin in the Outer Circle (The Grandmother)—A New Year Chime—Dress and Dressmaking.

ONE PENNY.

A Specimen Packet, containing one of each of the above, will be sent post free by the Publishers on receipt of 7d. in stamps.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Reduced Price.—Sixth Edition (10,000), 1/. In cloth, 1/6

STEPPING STONES TO HIGHER THINGS.

By Major SETON CHURCHILL.

Suited for Clergymen and Laymen engaged in Mission Services or Evangelistic work of any kind. Also for Candidates for Confirmation, Sunday School Teachers and District Visitors, or for Parents who want to give their grown-up children an attractive-looking book, which will help them to a right understanding of the simple plan of salvation.

Christian.—"This book has been written specially for the purpose of bringing home the Gospel to those who are unsaved. We trust that it may be circulated among educated people, for which class it is more especially suited."

Record.—"It is a great comfort to find a distinctly evangelistic book sound on the nature of sin, sound on substitution, sound on holiness, sound on regeneration, sound on conversion, sound on the means of grace. We are glad to know of a book like this to put into the hands of those who are seeking 'the way of the tree of life.'"

Church Missionary Intelligencer.—"The book will be a capital one to give to those who have come under the power of the Gospel at parochial missions, and are asking their way to Zion; and it may also be profitably used by speakers and teachers."

London: J. NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.

CAPITAL BAZAAR ENTERTAINMENT.

THE DAIRYMAIDS' SUPPER.

By Mr. and Mrs. L. R. LEWIS.

Amusing characters, Pump, Chalk, and Milkcans. Dairymaids' March and Milking Stool Drill.

PRICE SIXPENCE.

J. CURWEN & SONS, 8 and 9, Warwick-lane, London, E.C.

EYRE AND SPOTTISWOODE'S NEW BOOKS.

THE FOUNDATIONS OF THE BIBLE.

Now ready, price 3s. 6d., cloth boards, red edges, Crown 8vo.

THE FOUNDATIONS OF THE BIBLE.

STUDIES IN OLD TESTAMENT CRITICISM.

By R. B. GIRDLESTONE, M.A.,

Hon. Canon of Christ Church, late Principal of Wycliffe Hall, Oxford; Author of "Old Testament Synonyms," &c.

THE BATTLE OF THE STANDPOINTS

Price 6d., paper, Fcap. 8vo.

THE BATTLE OF THE STANDPOINTS.

THE OLD TESTAMENT AND THE HIGHER CRITICISM.

By ALFRED CAVE, B.A., D.D.,

Author of "The Inspiration of the Old Testament Inductively Considered," "The Scripture Doctrine of Sacrifice and Atonement," "An Introduction to Theology, its Principles, its Branches, its Results, and its Literature," &c; and Principal and Professor of Systematic Theology of Hackney College.

A SELECT GLOSSARY OF BIBLE WORDS.

JUST PUBLISHED.

A SELECT GLOSSARY OF BIBLE WORDS.

INCLUDING A

GLOSSARY OF IMPORTANT WORDS AND PHRASES IN THE PRAYER-BOOK:

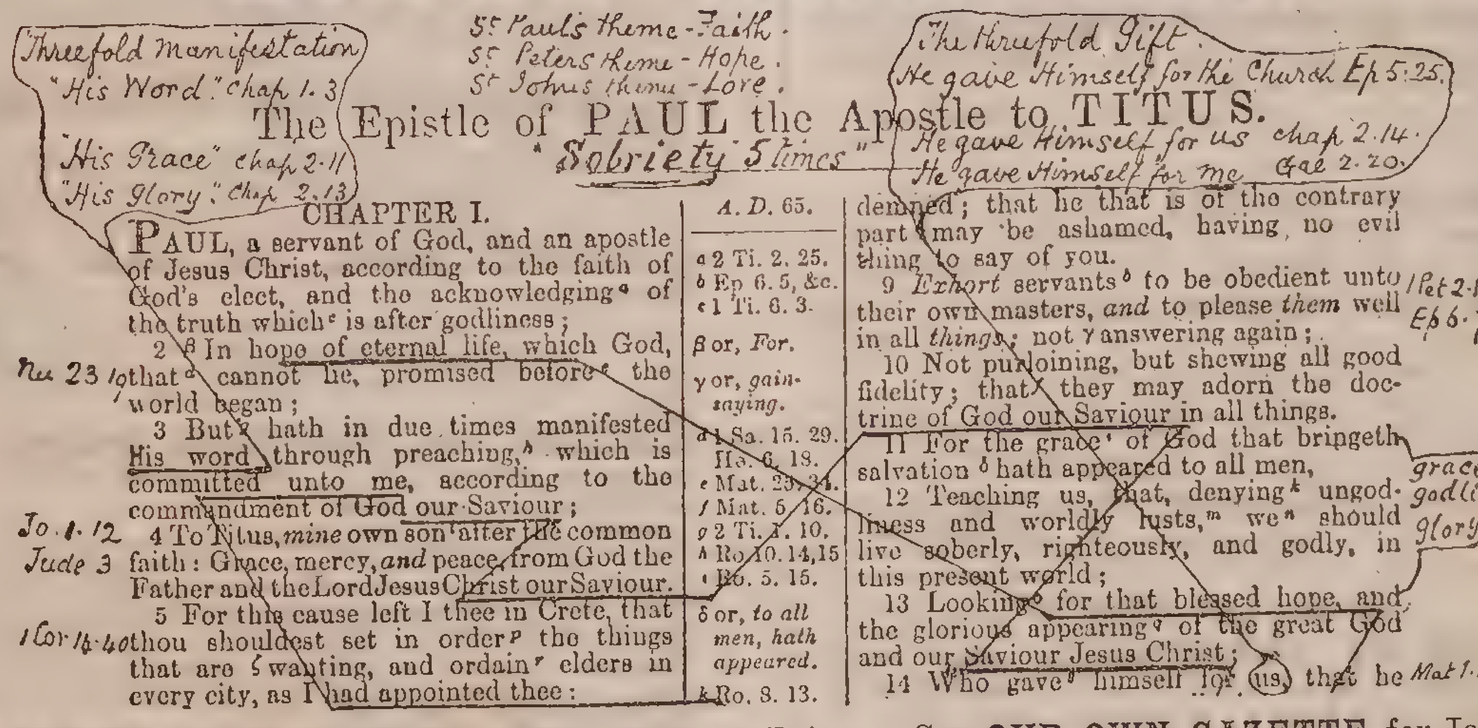
WITH REFERENCE TO THE TEXT AND ILLUSTRATIVE PASSAGES FROM ENGLISH CLASSICAL AUTHORS, CONTAINING OBSOLETE EXPRESSIONS (ESPECIALLY IN PSALMS) AS WELL AS THEOLOGICAL, ECCLESIASTICAL, AND LITURGICAL TERMS, WITH EXPLANATIONS AND ETYMOLOGIES.

By REV. A. L. MAYHEW, M.A., Chaplain of Wadham College, Oxford.

PRICES.	s.	d.
CLOTH, gilt edges	2	0
PASTE GRAIN ROAN, gilt edges	3	0
MOROCCO LIMP, gilt edges	7	6

EYRE & SPOTTISWOODE, Great New-street, London, E.C.; and at Edinburgh, Glasgow, Melbourne, and New York.

BIBLE MARKING.



BIBLE MARKING COMPETITION. £6 6s. in Prizes. See OUR OWN GAZETTE for January (Now Ready). First Number of a New Volume. Also contains New Stories: A Trip to the Remotest Stars, by Dr. THAIN DAVIDSON; Bible Notes; How to Re-cover Sofas and Chairs, &c., &c. One Penny. London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., or through any Bookseller. Also from OUR OWN GAZETTE Office, 18, Paternoster Square, London.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS.

SPECIAL ATTENTION IS INVITED TO THE FOLLOWING:

THE OXFORD BIBLE FOR TEACHERS

Now issued in Twelve Sizes, from 2s. 6d., with the Text arranged in each so as to correspond, page for page, with all the others.

THE "FINGER" NEW TESTAMENT

Printed on the OXFORD THIN INDIA PAPER. Brilliant, 96mo., 552 pp., 3½ by 1 by ½ inch.
In every style of Leather Binding.

It weighs, when bound in Turkey morocco, LESS THAN THREE-QUARTERS OF AN OUNCE; it is a COMPLETE NEW TESTAMENT, and contains 552 pages printed in a type which, though necessarily minute, is clear, distinct, and perfectly legible.

"No more dainty or compact Christmas gift will be found in the publishing world. It is the essence of neatness and legibility."—CHRISTIAN.

"A perfect triumph of the printer's art."
MANCHESTER GUARDIAN.

"A marvellously delicate piece of work."
CHRISTIAN WORLD.

TASTEFULLY PRINTED IN RED AND BLACK, ON INDIA PAPER.
In 32mo., extra superfine cloth, 3s. 6d., and in various superior Bindings,

MY COUNSELLOR

HOLY SCRIPTURE ARRANGED AS MORNING AND EVENING MEDITATIONS THROUGHOUT THE YEAR.

"I have put 'My Counsellor' into my breast pocket for personal use, for I can see that it is meat and medicine for the soul."—Rev. C. H. SPURGEON.

"No prettier and more useful gift-book has been published this season.—RECORD.

"Admirable alike in arrangement and in collocation of texts, most happily suited for its purpose."
Principal FAIRBAIRN.

"The selection is made with skill, the texts being aptly chosen and well arranged."—SCOTSMAN.

London: HENRY FROWDE, Oxford University Press Warehouse, Amen Corner, E.C.

Mark Guy Pearse's Books

ELIJAH, the Man of God. Fcap. 8vo., cl., 1s. 6d.

SHORT TALKS FOR THE TIMES. Seventh Thousand. Crown 8vo., gilt edges, 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 1s. 6d.

THE CHRISTIANITY OF JESUS CHRIST—IS IT OURS? Royal 16mo., red line round page, 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 19th Thousand, Demy 16mo., 1s.

PRAISE. Meditations in the One Hundred and Third Psalm. Royal 16mo., red lines round page, 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 19th Thousand, Demy 16mo., 1s.

SOME ASPECTS OF THE BLESSED LIFE. Royal 16mo, red lines round page, 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 29th Thousand, Demy 16mo., 1s.

THOUGHTS ON HOLINESS. Royal 16mo., red lines round page, 2s. 6d. Cheap Edition, 63rd Thousand, Demy 16mo., 1s.

THE FERNLEY LECTURE OF 1890. The Mission of Methodism. By Rev. RICHARD GREEN. Demy 8vo., 3s.

"A PIECE OF AN HONEYCOMB." Meditation for each Day in the Year. By H. G. McKENNY. Crown 8vo., red lines round page, cloth, red edges, 4s.

"An exquisite volume in every respect; 'A rich storehouse of beautifully short and practically helpful thoughts of just the kind that intelligent and earnest Christians need for daily refreshment and guidance."—Wesleyan Methodist Magazine.

BY CANOE AND DOG TRAIN AMONG THE CREE AND SALTEAUX INDIANS. By EGERTON R. YOUNG. Sixth Thousand. Photographic Portraits of the Rev. E. R. and Mrs. Young. Map, and Thirty-two Illustrations. 3s. 6d.

"As we turn page after page of this book, we meet with crisp and even humorous incidents, thrilling escapes, privations patiently borne, graphic sketches of native life and character, and, best of all, evidences on all hands of the power of the Gospel."
Illustrated Missionary News.

EMINENT METHODIST WOMEN. By ANNIE E. KEELING. Crown 8vo., with Four Portraits Engraved on Steel. 2s. 6d.

"We should like to see this book placed in the hands of all young women, to whom the record of lives so beautiful ought to be an inspiration."—Methodist Times.

THE HAPPY VALLEY: Our New "Mission Garden" in Uva, Ceylon. By the Rev. S. LANGDON. Cr. 8vo., with Map and Numerous Illustrations. 2s.

AMONG THE PIMENTO GROVES. A Story of Negro Life in Jamaica. By Rev. HENRY BUNTING. Crown 8vo. Six page Illustrations, 2s.

"Rich in local colour, and contains such genuine bits of Negro life that the interest of the reader is carried from page to page without a moment's break. Get Under the Palms, and you will not care to put it down till the end comes."—A 1 Magazine.

NOON-DAY ADDRESSES, Delivered in the Central Hall, Manchester. By the Rev. W. L. WATKINSON. Crown 8vo., 1s. 6d.

By the SAME AUTHOR.

LESSONS OF PROSPERITY; and other Addresses, Delivered at Noon-day, in the Philosophical Hall, Leeds. Crown 8vo., 1s. 6d.

MISTAKEN SIGNS; and other Papers on Christian Life and Experience. Fifth Thousand. Crown 8vo., 1s. 6d.

"His comparisons are charming, his statements are clear, his convictions are strong, and his whole work goes to nourish an honest, healthy, heavenly, inner life."—Sword and Trowel.

LONDON: CHARLES H. KELLY, 2, Castle-road, City-road, E.C.; and 66, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Crown 8vo., 3s.

From Heart to Heart.

SERMONS BY THE REV. ARTHUR SOWTER, M.A.
(Vicar of St. Silas, Bristol).

"A sheaf of arrows, well pointed, gracefully feathered, and skilfully aimed."—Christian.

JAMES NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.

ITALY FOR CHRIST.

THE SPEZIA MISSION Report and Balance Sheet are now ready. Any Subscribers who may have been overlooked, or any in sympathy with or desirous of information concerning the Mission, will have one immediately forwarded on application to Rev. H. H. PULLEN, Deputation Secretary to the Mission, Iona, Ferme Park, Hornsey, London.

There are just now most marvellous openings for the advance of the work, but the funds are not adequate for the urgent present needs. Who will Help? Subscriptions received at THE CHRISTIAN Office.

Some of the Works of Robert Brown

1. THE AWAKENING SOUL'S COMPLAINT, with Christ's loving Answer and the Soul's Surrender. 4d.

"Perhaps as useful a thing as you have written for the Master. Will be a 'word in season' to many, I doubt not."
From Editor of "Sabbath Hour."

2. SPIRITUAL BLESSING. 6d.

"One of the most admirable arrangements we have ever met with."—Church Association Monthly Intelligencer.

3. REAPING IN DUE SEASON. 1s. 6d.

"A record of skilful dealing with an individual soul."
The Same.

London: THE BOOK SOCIETY, 28, Paternoster-row.

4. THE HIDDEN MYSTERY; or, The Revelations of the Word. 10s. 6d.

"To many Biblical students, and those who delight in the teaching of types and symbols, the work will be of the highest value."—Word and Work. "We have great pleasure in recommending to our readers the volume before us, which is full of profitable instruction and great interest."—Gospel Truths or Old Paths. "A work of great ability and extensive practical application."—The Sun.

London: JAMES NISBET & Co., 21, Berners-street, W.

5. BABYLONIANISM. 6d.

"A most admirable treatise on the subject."—Gilead. "An able and timely exhibition of the impious abominations of Rome."—Christian Miscellany.

6. JESUITISM. 1s.

"One of the best synopses of the Romish controversy."—The Press and St. James' Gazette. "Contains many telling points."—Record. "We have never read a book on the subject which contained so much in so small a compass."—Voice of Warning.

London: Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.

7. RITUALISM AT BARTON-ON-HUMBER, &c. 1s.

"An excellent and vigorous pamphlet against ritualistic innovations."—British Messenger. "Specially deserving of notice on account of its sterling merit."—The Rock.

London: MARLBOROUGH & Co., Old Bailey.

8. DEMONOLOGY AND WITCHCRAFT: with especial reference to modern "Spiritualism" so called; and the Doctrines of Demons. 5s.

"A masterly and comprehensive treatise on the subject."—The Rock. "A curiously interesting book, and one in which Sir Walter Scott would have delighted."—Public Opinion. "This work at present is one of the best on this somewhat difficult theme."—Brighouse and Rastrick Gazette. "His tenacious hold and his fearless declaration of the 'Old Gospel' is refreshing."—Christian.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row.

9. THE PERSONALITY AND HISTORY OF SATAN. 4s.

"A most valuable book, especially suited for our own times."—English Churchman. "The book is sound, scholarly, instructive, and spiritual."—Rock. "A very remarkable work on a deep and very important subject."—Gospel Advocate.

10. GLEANINGS FROM THE BOOK OF RUTH. 4s.

"An interesting and remarkable work."—Christian. "We have seldom read a book which more commends itself to our mind."—Silver Morn. "A very valuable contribution to sound, if not intensely strong, doctrinal literature."—Gospel Advocate.

11. OUTLINES OF PROPHETIC TRUTH; viewed practically and experimentally in the light of the Divine Word. 12s.

"The familiarity with Scripture it displays is marvellous."—Evangelical Christendom. "A valuable contribution to literature and prophecy."—Christian Progress. "Accurate in fact, Scriptural in doctrine, and persuasive to practical holiness."—Clergyman's Magazine. "His acquaintance with, and insight into the Word of God strike us in every page."—Record. "Ought to be called a Treasury of Prophetic Truth."—Life of Faith. "The entire work is an illustration of the vast comprehensiveness of Holy Writ."—The Sun.

12. OUTLINES OF PROPHETIC TRUTH: Second Series. From Redemption to the Final State. Lately published. 12s.

"Contains a vast amount of exposition of Scripture; . . . brings out clearly much precious truth regarding the present and future position of the believer."—Christian Progress. "Of this book we can say what Adam Clarke said of Richard Baxter's 'Christian Dictionary,' that 'it is impossible that any person can read it without having his understanding enlightened, and his heart affected by its weighty and solemn truths."
Christian.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.

NEW BOOKS
By CAPT. DAWSON.

LATE INNISKILLING DRAGOONS,

Author of "Notes and Thoughts on Psalm xxiii.;" "Thoughts in the Valleys;" "Communion and Conflict;" "The Story of Jonah;" "Gracious Words and Glorious Works;" &c., &c.

THE GOSPEL OF GRACE FROM THE GOD OF GLORY.

SCRIPTURE STUDIES.

Leather, 2s. 6d.; Cloth, 1s.; Paper, with Picture, 6d.
Suitable as a Gift Book.

The Story of the "Calliope" in the Hurricane at Samoa.

WITH PICTURE OF THE SHIP. 6d. per doz.

SUITABLE FOR DISTRIBUTION.

London: JOHN F. SHAW & Co., 48, Paternoster-row; MARSOM, Mildmay House, Bournemouth;
Or through any Bookseller.

THE STIRLING PUBLICATIONS.

LOYAL TO TRUTH. By SYDNEY WATSON. Crown 8vo., well Illustrated, Cloth extra, 1s. 6d.

ZIONWARD! Help on the Way to the Better Land. By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A. Third Edition. Cloth, 1s.

ASSURANCE; or, How to Attain to Assurance of an Interest in Christ. By Mrs. ROBERT PEDDIE. Tinted covers, 6d.

YEARLY VOLUMES FOR 1890.

THE BRITISH MESSENGER. Price 1s. Also in Stiff Boards, with Lithographic Cover, 1s. 6d.

THE GOSPEL TRUMPET. Price 6d. Also in Stiff Boards, with Lithographic Cover, 1s.

GOOD NEWS. Price 4d., by post, 5d.

NEW YEAR ADDRESSES.

32 pp. One Penny, or 1s. per dozen.

"COLD WATER, O YE THIRSTY." Illustrated. By Rev. GEORGE EVERARD, M.A.

ENROLLED ON EARTH, ENROLLED IN HEAVEN. By Lady BEAUJOLOIS DENT.

BE TRUE. For the Young. Illustrated. By J. FORBES MONCRIEFF.

FOUR STRONG ANCHORS. (Jewel Series, No. 7.) By EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE. Richly Illustrated. Printed in two colours, 16 pp. 1s. per dozen.

"SHUT THE DOOR." (Jewel Series, No. 8.) By EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE. Same style as above. 16 pp., 1s. per dozen.

DRUMMOND'S TRACT DEPOT, Stirling.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.

NOW READY.

Price THREEPENCE. Free by Post, 4d. Six Copies, Post Free, 1s. 7d.

AM I UNFIT?

BEING A VERBATIM REPORT OF

DR. BARNARDO'S SPEECHES IN DEFENCE in the RODDY CASE,

Delivered on Monday, Nov. 9; Tuesday, Nov. 10; Wednesday, Nov. 11;

BEFORE

Lord ESHER, Master of the Rolls; Lord Justice LINDLEY; and Lord Justice LOPES: Judges of the Court of Appeal.

WITH SUMMARY OF THEIR LORDSHIPS' JUDGMENT, AND AN INTRODUCTION BY DR. BARNARDO.

Office of the Homes: 18 to 26, STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, LONDON, E.

AMERICAN BAPTISTS AND THE SECOND ADVENT.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

THE great subject now discussed by the secular and religious press is the pre-millennial coming of our Lord. The recent impressive Convention in Brooklyn is the immediate cause of the wide-spread publicity given to this phase of eschatology. For four days the Centennial Baptist Church at Brooklyn (Dr. Samuel McBride, pastor) was crowded with eager listeners. More than a score of addresses were given on various themes, several of them directly on pre-millennialism. At the final meeting, when Rev. Geo. C. Needham, secretary of the executive committee, requested that all who accepted the pre-millennial teaching as the true interpretation of the prophetic Scriptures to arise, one thousand persons stood on their feet declaring this to be their hope—the promised return of the Lord from heaven.

The previous Prophetic Conferences have been of an inter-denominational character, but this was exclusively Baptist. Not that the Baptist brethren had any controversy with other denominations, but rather that they wished to assert their method of Biblical exegesis as a protest against post-millennial Baptists, who have by voice and pen denounced this wing of the Church as fanatical and visionary. The Examiner, a leading Baptist weekly, has never ceased ridiculing all Baptists who advocate the pre-millennial faith. It was therefore deemed advisable that all Baptists who held to the literal fulfilment of prophecy should meet and give a reason of the hope that is in them. The great meeting exceeded the most sanguine expectations. The influential New York papers, secular and religious, gave full reports of the addresses, while The Sun, one of the ablest of all the dailies, published leading editorials of unquestionable ability.

To us on this side of the ocean such an endorsement is astonishing. The character of The Sun, its prominence in journalism and in politics, its enterprise and influence as a leading daily, would not ordinarily qualify it as a favourable or discriminating eschatological critic. Permit me, therefore, to append some of the fervid utterances of this great political newspaper, one of the editorials being a double-leaded leader. The Sun gives the subject in hand a prominence unreached by any of our religious journals. Referring to the distinctive faith of those who organised the Conference, it discriminatingly remarks:—

> They are pre-millennialists, as contra-distinguished from the post-millennialists, who believe that the Second Advent will follow the thousand years of peace and happiness, during which all mankind will be brought into the way of truth and godliness. Their argument is that sin and iniquity were never more powerful than now, though Christian activity is greater than ever, and that the time has come when the Lord must appear in person to gather out from the prevailing wickedness his hard-pressed and sorely-tempted followers, and to take them up with them into the air. The dead in Christ will be translated first, and then the living saints.

Having fairly stated the position of the pre-millenarians the editorial in question thus summarises:—

> This is a time when vital and unquestioning faith in Revelation stands out against cold theological and scientific criticism of Scripture as never before in the history of Christianity. On the one side there is more belief than ever, and on the other, what amounts to total denial. Professor Briggs, Mr. MacQueary, the Andover school of theologians, German, Scotch, and English Biblical critics, even speakers at the late Episcopal Church Congress, pursue a course of reasoning and investigation which destroys the old-time belief in the literal inspiration of the Scriptures. They treat the Bible rather as a history of religious development, often of doubtful authorship, than as a Divine revelation and absolute standard for all time. So proceeding, they have stimulated the firm believers in inspiration to greater trust in its promises and more precise obedience to its commands as the Word of God and the only fountain of truth. Science denies the possibility that men can be carried up into the air to float about the seat of Christ at his second coming. Faith replies that all things are possible with God, and that He has declared that the translation is to take place. The more science ridicules, the more faith clings to the letter of Scripture.

Were The Sun an ordinary newspaper, and the articles mere reports of correspondents, I would not further occupy your valuable space with added quotations. The following extract is, however, worthy of reproduction:—

> This sentiment [belief in our Lord's Second Advent] once denounced as the expression of infidelity and impiety, is now prevalent among Congregationalists, Episcopalians, and Presbyterians, and it affects, though to a less extent, the Baptists themselves. It is undoubtedly bringing about a complete theological revolution, which must radically transform the motives and methods of religious effort. Philanthropic exertion for the amelioration of the condition of humanity is totally different from religious enthusiasm for the salvation of souls and their rescue from the flames of hell. It destroys the animating force upon which Christianity has so long relied, and substitutes the shadow of ethics for the vital illumination of religion.
>
> It is manifest that the Brooklyn pre-millennialists regard this modern tendency as an obstacle in the way of the conversion of the world, which makes necessary the speedy coming of the Lord Himself to give personal direction to the campaign. They think it vain to look for the bringing of all men to Christ before the second advent, and hence they are pre-millennialists. So believing in the literal fulfilment of Scripture, they denounce the present attempt to abolish hell as the latest work and one of the most dangerous artifices of the devil, for ever going about to deceive and destroy men and undermine the labours of the true followers of Christ. Therefore they cry out, "Lord, come quickly!" And the theological revolution now in progress gives them hope that their appeal is to be answered by the speedy appearance of Christ.
>
> Thus we see that doubt and denial are serving to stimulate simple faith. The expectation of the speedy advent of Christ is also wonderfully inspiring to the popular imagination. We shall probably hear more of this movement, for it has in it the elements of growth.

At the conclusion of the Brooklyn Conference the young Society retains its name as "The Baptist Society for Bible Study." Its object is to hold a summer Bible school, and a winter conference for the deepening of spiritual life through the study of the Word and prayer. All classes of people of every name are welcome to the meetings. Dr. A. J. Gordon was re-elected president. Five vice-presidents represent the different sections of the country. There is a general committee, and an executive committee, of which Rev. G. C. Needham is secretary. Dr. Gordon's journal, The Watchword, will become the organ of the Society, with Mr. and Mrs. Needham as associate editors and managers. Nearly two hundred Baptist parsons are enrolled on the list, besides an increasing number of business men, who earnestly advocate the blessed hope of our Lord's second advent who comes to rule in righteousness, and to reign in power.

A Convention on the Second Coming of the Lord has been held among the Baptists at Brooklyn. Leading ministers from different parts of the State have given addresses, and it has proved a time of great blessing to God's people.

TOWER HAMLETS MISSION.—We are sadly disappointed, says the last record of the Mission, that our "Rescue Home" has not received more support and sympathy from our kind readers; surely no work can be more important than lifting up the fallen before they fall too low to be rescued from a life of indescribable misery and sin. In order to reduce our expenditure, we have removed to No. 57, Stepney Green; but, unless friends lend us their interest and help us, we fear we shall be obliged to close it altogether. We therefore commit the cause of the young, the fallen, and the destitute, who wish to retrieve their character, to your prayerful consideration.

THE BIBLE IN PORTUGAL.—Some time ago we called attention to the fact that Mr. H. Cassels, of Oporto, anxious to promote a wider knowledge of the Scriptures throughout Portugal, had arranged for the preparation of an illustrated edition of the Bible, to be issued in cheap weekly parts. The first number was published in July, and the reception accorded to the work has been full of encouragement. The text is that of Figueiredo, and the Latin Vulgate is given in smaller type at the foot of each page. The undertaking will cost £3000, towards which some English friends have made contributions. If the large towns of the country are canvassed, the circulation would be thousands where so far it has only been hundreds. Information respecting the work may be had from Miss de Havilland, 8, Vanbrugh Park-road West, Blackheath, S.E.

THE GIRLS' BRIGADE.

"WHAT is a 'Girls' Brigade'? Does it do any good? Hasn't the name rather an unmaidenly ring about it?" Such questions often meet us; and we always wish we could take the querists to our mission-hall one of these dark, stormy winter nights, and let them find the answers for themselves.

May we take some readers there just now? It is 7.30 on a Thursday night, and across the wet, grimy pavements of the Grassmarket, Edinburgh, streams a welcome lustre from one well-lit, well-ventilated hall. Our girls are gathering there for their weekly "drill"—some thirty or forty in number, from eight to eighteen in years. They come from aimless roamings about the streets, where lessons of evil are so rife; from poor homes and wretched lodging-houses; from cheerless dens, where fuel is scarce, but parental care and love scarcer still. Or they come from close factories and workshops, where their young frames have been cramped all too long for healthy growth and full development. For these last an hour's musical drill is rest and refreshing.

There they stand, then, in orderly rows, wearing our simple bit of "uniform"—a tidy apron of dark blue serge, bound with yellow braid; and wielding by turns our "arms and ammunition"—a store of poles, rings, flags, and dumb-bells. Watch their eager, happy faces, as they take the words of command from our "drill-sergeant" — a bright-eyed, pleasant-voiced young lady, who has a capital "way" with young people. And how gladly they keep time to the lively Scotch airs, played by another lady on an old grand piano, which is closing its days in this kindly work. Watch all this for a little, and you will feel sure that at least these girls have an evening of innocent and healthy happiness given them—and remember how they need it!

But is this all? Not quite. We do not forget that there are higher interests. Our girls begin work with a hymn—to-night's is, "O happy band of pilgrims"—and they close with another; after which all repeat the Lord's Prayer together. And it may be that some words of counsel or of encouragement are spoken—certainly individual cases have been inquired into, and various difficulties considered. For instance, one new girl, Maggie Dempster, has given as her address, "The Stairs," rather a vague residence! Yes, it is quite true! Through these cold winter nights she is huddled, with her wretched mother, into an obscure unsavoury corner of one of the long stone stairs of the West Port, the common thoroughfare of some hundred inhabitants, disturbed all night by the drunkard's staggering step, and the swearer's foul execrations!

Poor litte child! Think of the sleeping—think of the waking there! But Maggie Dempster finds friends at the Brigade, and we have visions of better things for her.

That is one little glimpse at the work which a Girls' Brigade may do. We feel sure that such agencies should be set going in the poor districts of all our large cities, and if any information from us can be helpful to ladies wishing to start one, we shall be most happy to give it. A letter, addressed Secretary, Girls' Brigade, Robertson Mission, Grassmarket, Edinburgh, will find us.

ROBINA F. HARDY.

FIELD LANE REFUGES AND RAGGED SCHOOLS.—This institution has been working among some of the poorest of the London poor for nearly half a century. Great has been the blessing vouchsafed to the labours of the committee, the staff, and the devoted band of voluntary workers. Many men, women, and children have found their spiritual birthday in "Field-lane," and will never cease to praise God for his goodness to them within its hallowed walls. Many are now workers for God who were children in the schools.

A Beautiful Life.

THE LATE MRS. WYCKOFF, BROOKLYN, N.Y.

SOME of our pleasantest recollections at Northfield were connected with our intercourse with Mrs. Wyckoff, of whom the following particulars are given in a memorial sketch published by her friends and which has reached us from America. Her biographer says: "We purpose not to dwell upon her pleasant home life, but rather to describe as well as we are able, the development of her rich Christian experience.

"She became a Christian when quite young, and, upon her marriage, entered with her husband readily into all ordinary church work. In 1840, she took part in a mission enterprise in what was then a remote part of Brooklyn. She took a place in the Sabbath-school, the sewing society and the woman's prayer-meeting, the principal church agencies of the day, thus indicating her readiness to every good word and work.

"But from these early beginnings of Christian work she was to be led into a higher sphere of influence, and to prepare her for it God took his own way. A few years later she was prostrated by a severe illness which brought her to the borders of the grave. The Spirit of God came to her in great power, through the ministration of a friend, who had just learned new lessons in the school of Christ. She was led to look more definitely than she had done into the fulness of salvation by Christ Jesus. It was a season of deep spiritual exercise, and resulted in a consecration of herself, body, soul, and spirit to the Lord. It was a physical as well as a spiritual quickening, and to the surprise of friends she at once arose from her invalid's couch, and entered with renewed vigour into domestic duties, and with newness of life into Christian service.

"There was left, however, a trace of her recent disease in her system. Emphysema, a painful struggle for breath, clung to her. She was subject to attacks which would often so prostrate her that the pulse could not be counted. Her physicians were surprised that she revived from them, and remarked that she could not endure these struggles long.

"But from this organic disease she was at length remarkably and completely delivered, during a night season of prayer, when she saw, as never before, the world and its claims in the true place, and cried, vehemently, 'I yield, I yield; I give up the world!' From that time she seemed to be lifted into a higher and purer atmosphere spiritually, and she never again had an attack of emphysema.

"In the spring of 1860 she engaged with deep interest in the Bible Mission work, one of the few survivors of which writes: 'What an inspiration Mrs. Wyckoff was to us! Her firm faith, deep consecration, quiet, unobtrusive manner, untiring zeal, and knowledge of God's Word, were a help and stimulus for us all. A poor woman converted in her Bible-class became the first Bible-reader employed in the city, connecting the cultured Christian mothers, through a loving sympathy, with their poor and disheartened sisters.'

"In 1861 she earnestly engaged in the formation of the Union Missionary Society, the pioneer Women's Foreign Missionary Society of America.

"In 1874 she enjoyed another visitation of the Spirit with increased revelation in the knowledge of Christ, and began to understand, in an enlarged degree, the nature and power of prayer. She seemed to enter into the Holy of Holies with her great High Priest, and to comprehend the meaning of the promise, 'If ye shall ask anything IN MY NAME I will do it.' 'No longer for Jesus' sake,' she once remarked, 'but in Jesus' name I offer my desires. I have the privilege of a child; am an heir of God and joint-heir with Christ.'

"In a letter written about this time she says: 'I feel as if the Lord were calling me to the special service of intercession. Perhaps I am able to do little else, being weaker in body than I seem. Perhaps my Father withholds the strength for more active ways, that my ear may be opened more attentively to his voice.'

"A little later her attention was specially called to the study of the prophetic Scriptures. Though her love for the Bible had been so marked, and her faith in its promises so simple, yet now the Word opened to her with increased light and power. The standing of the believer in Christ, and the 'blessed hope of the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ' seemed like a revelation.

"In the last years of her life she became generally interested in the Shut-in Society, an association to promote cheer and spiritual aid among invalids. This work being carried on mainly by correspondence, commended itself at once to her ready pen and loving sympathies.

"In the seven years of her connection with the society she learned to know and bless many of these suffering ones. She came as a blessing into their lonely and afflicted lives, and more than one sincerely mourns her loss.

"Her relations with the Faith Home of Brooklyn, under the superintendence of Miss A. H. Campbell, were intimate from the first. Of this Home she was a main-stay and was greatly beloved by all its inmates. The Sunday afternoon meeting was one of her delightful cares. Failing to be present on one occasion, she penned briefly the topics on which she would have enlarged.

"'The lesson from Rom. vi. with Phil. ii. 14, 15, is the surrender of the will to Him whom we serve, and making dead all the old self-life, by accepting every trial and disappointment as the Father's will without murmuring or disputings. His peace will then keep the heart and mind in the midst of daily life, no matter how distasteful or how heavy our burden.'

"A weekly meeting for ladies only was held for many years, at first in the lecture-room of Dr. Cuyler's church, and not under Mrs. Wyckoff's leadership; but it finally fell into her care, and was held for three years at her own house. Long research with other Bible students made her competent to instruct, and it was evidently her delight. She came down from her chamber as if from communing with her Lord, her countenance beaming with the joy of those who drink habitually at the fountain of living water, and with a cordial welcome to all. Before the study, fifteen minutes were given, at first to silent prayer upon our knees, then to one audible intercession. Each previously named any request or trial, or cause of thanksgiving. Love and gratitude entered largely into her prayers. There was humility, child-like freedom, simple faith and trust.

"This meeting was continued until within a year of her death. She wrote: 'I am far from well, and it seems doubtful if I can begin a little class for study of the lessons, here in my room, as I hoped to do after the holidays. I have left that and all other cares with Him.'

"But her earthly work was almost done. Disease was then preying upon her system and undermining her strength, for as early as May, 1882, the first decided manifestation of her fatal malady was noted. She expresses her feelings to a friend, thus:—

"'Discipline we must have. Heb. xii. clearly impresses that, and sickness is often the most tender and effective in result that comes to us: so it seems to me. I do not think we would choose it, but if our Father chooses for us, we would not reject it.'

"In June, 1889, her devoted husband took her to Geneva, N.Y., hoping in the change of scene and treatment she might find some alleviation of her symptoms and a renewal of strength.

"She never went out after her return to Brooklyn in September, and saw but few of her friends; and on the morning of November 26, the day before Thanksgiving, she closed her eyes on earth, and opened her spiritual vision in Paradise. She spent her Thanksgiving with the Lord she loved; we spent ours weeping for ourselves, but joying in her new-found and eternal joy.

"In the words of one of her friends we may say: 'We cannot associate death with the dear one gone from us. Hers was an ascension, not a death. She is with Christ, and this is comfort enough for us all.'

"As some rare perfume in a vase of clay
Pervades it with a fragrance not its own,
So when, O Christ, Thou dwellest in the soul,
All Heaven's own sweetness seems around it thrown."

DISTRESS IN NORTH CHINA.

DEAR SIR,—In response to the short account of the distress in North China, owing to the floods, in THE CHRISTIAN for October 31, I have received up to now (Nov. 27) £234 4s. Of this amount £200 have been sent by "wire" to Tientsin, and the balance by cheque. Further investigations show that the distress will continue until May next; and the following extracts from an appeal issued by the Tientsin Committee show that all the help that can possibly be sent will be needed to save even a part of the four million distressed people with the rigour of winter already upon them.—Faithfully yours, E. H. EDWARDS.

18, Morningside-place, Edinburgh.

"Many villages, built of mud on low ground, were completely dissolved and swept away, with the inhabitants; from other villages many people, escaped with their lives only, in boats; the more important villages, being built on high mounds, remain practically intact, while the standing crops, on which the people's living for the next eight months depends, only were destroyed. On a rough estimate, it appears that not less, and probably more, than four millions of souls in this province will, until the next wheat harvest at least, that is to say, May, 1891, be absolutely dependent on charity. The duty of keeping these people alive is felt and freely acknowledged by word and deed of the Imperial and Provincial Governments, and the most strenuous exertions are being made by them, as well as by the native benevolent societies, to gather together the needful resources,

"It is obvious that the Chinese official and civil contributions, were they many times more liberal than they are likely to be, will not raise the recipients above the preservation of bare life, and that, therefore, under the most favourable circumstances, there will be a margin of misery only too large, on which foreign benevolence may be effectively brought to bear.

"Tientsin, September 16."

DR. CUYLER has sent to press a little volume entitled, "How to be a Pastor." No one (says The New York Evangelist) is better qualified than he to give counsel of this sort, as his forty years of successful service proves.

Indo-Burmese Opium Pestilence.

CALCUTTA.

STATISTICS lately issued by the India Office in London show that there are more than 20,000 places licensed by Government in the Indian Empire for the sale of the drugs—opium, ganga, bhang, and charas. I propose in this and some following papers to give some account, from personal visits, of what this really means.

It is necessary to point out that if the pestilence is not stayed these 20,000 dens will be to India what the first glass is to the total quantity consumed in the lifetime of a drunkard. Comparatively few decades since there was only a score or so of thousands of opium dens in China. To-day they are numbered by hundreds of thousands. India has, as it were, sunk up to her ankles in the quicksands of this poisonous habit. Unless quickly rescued, she will presently be engulfed as China is. Narcotics, such as opium and ganga, are dangerous to any temperament in any climate. They are especially dangerous to the Asiatic temperament in a tropical climate.

Rather over a century ago, Warren Hastings found that there was a very small market for opium in existence in China. The Portuguese had previously carried a small portion, for medicinal purposes only, from various parts of Asia to their Chinese port of Macao. There they disposed of it to the Chinese drug merchants, with the full approval of the Chinese Government.

Hastings conceived the idea of immensely increasing this trade, by inculcating and fostering the taste for the drug as a sensual means of narcoticism, apart from its medicinal properties. To this end he obtained seeds, advanced money to native cultivators in India, bought from them the crude opium resulting, and had it manufactured for export to China in a Government factory established for the purpose. When all was ready, he had two East-Indiamen (war-ships belonging to the East India Company) armed to the teeth, and forwarded the opium in them to the Chinese coast, where it was landed without the permission of the Chinese. Quantities were given away to inculcate the taste, where it had not previously existed. Next year the same ships were sent, the drug being sold at a low rate where it was previously given; and so on, until an enormous trade was established, leading to

WAR AFTER WAR WITH THE CHINESE.

In the course of time, Chinese emigrants to India brought their English-taught vice of opium-smoking to Calcutta, where they opened the first out of many thousands of opium dens, and, in their turn, taught the natives of India the use of the drug.

As soon as a few of these dens had been established the Government licensed their existence, and, in addition, opened stores throughout the country for the sale of the raw drug; the "collectors" or chief magistrates of the district were appointed the original distributors. This would be somewhat analagous to the squire of an English village keeping the public-house, and the magistrates of a town managing the local gin-shops. It should be explained that wherever the Government had established an opium plantation, the vice of opium-eating had spread into the surrounding country. It was to supply this form of the vice, principally, that the raw-drug stores were opened.

The Chinese quarter of Calcutta is one of the "sights" of the city. It is a complete Chinese colony, with a large temple. Chinese shops and stores, three Chinese gambling dens, licensed by the State,* and last, but not least, the opium dens. Chinese boys and girls play about the streets, and every now and then a stately Chinese lady is to be seen, clad, perhaps, in yellow silk, with a coolie walking behind her, carrying her baby.

It was in the centre of this colony many years ago that the first opium-smoking den was established. I have good reason to believe that it was this very primal den of all that I visited on the 15th inst. It is divided into three separate compartments—one for the use of Chinese, one for the use of ordinary Bengalis and Mussulmans, and, hidden out of sight at the back, a compartment for Babus, native gentlemen holding the position of pleaders and Government officials!

Like nearly all the dens in Calcutta, this one was kept by a Chinaman, or rather a firm of Chinamen. Several partners in the firm were dealing out the little shells containing the drug. Inside I had a long conversation with a number of the smokers. All, without exception, said that the vice now gave them no pleasure, but that they all smoked to avoid the terrible pain of giving it up. "If we go without it beyond a certain period," they said, "our head aches, our bones ache, our muscles ache, our whole body aches from head to foot." They said that numbers of Eurasians and even some Europeans in Calcutta buy the drug at these dens, and SMOKE IT IN THEIR OWN HOMES.

This statement is not an unlikely one. I have seen quite a number of Eurasians in the dens; and, with regard to Europeans, many children of European parents are drugged with opium by their Ayahs, or native nurses, to keep them quiet, and so acquire the taste in their infancy. One man said, "Why does the Government supply me with this drug that I hate, the Government should keep it from me; the Government should help me to do right, and not to do wrong," Another replied: "Government does not care for us, they get scores of rupees from its sale; they will surely never give it up."

These words were elicited from them by my remarking that with most of them it was not a dangerous thing to give up the drug. The pain would only continue for a short time, and then they would be comparatively strong men again, or at any rate, stronger men than if they kept on with its use. I instanced the cases of prisoners in Indian jails, and for long terms at the Andaman Islands (the penal colony for India), where opium smokers, who were also criminals, eventually lost all craving for the drug. Several of them then told me that they wished that someone would lock them up in jail so that they too should be set free from their terrible slavery.

It is only the smallest part of the traffic of this den that is done at the den itself. Hundreds of Chinamen, as well as others, are supplied here, and smoke the drug in their own homes. We saw one such case where a Chinese merchant, who looked as though he was half way on the downward path, was lying smoking on a couch visible from the road, whilst his wife was hard at work doing that which he ought to have been doing, making up the accounts.

Later on I visited some of the stores in the neighbourhood, where Chinese provisions and hardware were on sale. There I saw large cupboards set apart for storing opium, pipes, and lamps, imported from China, and also quantities of packs of Chinese cards for use in gambling dens.

But even in this dark spot there is a bright light shining. A Christian Government official has spent time and means in a delightful little mission in the midst of this Chinese colony. Amidst much opposition a tiny Chinese Christian community has gathered, their chief place of gathering being a transformed opium den!

Calcutta, Nov. 17. MAURICE GREGORY.

* These are situated at 6, Blackburn-lane, 14, Damzen's-lane, and 17, Damzen's-lane, respectively. One more instance of the licensing of that which ought to be supressed.

TEMPERANCE WORK IN SWITZERLAND.—The Swiss Society of the Blue Cross is eight years old, and at its annual meeting lately at Lausanne it was reported that there are 5445 members, of whom one-fifth have been rescued from habits of intemperance.

AN AWAKENING IN SICILY.

IN a recent letter Pastor Varnier writes:—"My colleague, Signor Scuderi, and I have been out of town on an evangelistic campaign through the country. The Lord indeed is doing wonderful things in this poor land. The Gospel is spreading its beneficent and saving influence steadily among all classes of society, and a glorious harvest of souls is being prepared. What astonishes us is the readiness of people to receive our word, or rather the Lord's word preached by us, without hesitation or dispute. True, not all follow us, but all confess and witness that what we say and preach is God's own truth; and this is the case in every town, village, or hamlet we visit.

"A few years back the very name of 'Protestant' was looked upon with horror! You can understand that under the circumstances our hands are full, and that we can scarcely cope with the ever-expanding work. Signor Scuderi is still out of town carrying on the evangelisation work at Mandanici and several other places in that district, but work in Mezzina compelled me to return here. Let me give you an idea of the changes that the Lord is working in the religious views of the people of this country. We had announced to hold a series of open-air evangelistic meetings on November 1-3, at Mandanici, inviting the people of the neighbouring villages, who were desirous of hearing us. People came from greater distances than we had expected, some having never heard the Gospel before. The attention and earnestness evinced encouraged us to have three meetings on the same day. In the evening I gave a lecture on 'The principal events of our blessed Lord's ministry on earth,' illustrated by the magic lantern, my aim being to afford the people, especially the peasants, a clear and impressive outline of the New Testament.

"More wished to be present than any hall in the town would accommodate, so the meeting was held in the public square, by kind permission of the town authorities, who themselves, with their families, desired to be present. The evening and night being balmy, and proper arrangements having been made for the exhibition of the magic lantern, I had the privilege, from 8 till 11 p.m., of preaching the Gospel of the grace of God freely and boldly to an immense multitude, as well as to the authorities and the notables of the town. At times much emotion was evinced, and at the end those present vied with each other to shake hands with me and Signor Scuderi.

"But this is not all. The day following we had a visit from the venerable arch-priest of the town, who earnestly requested me to repeat the interesting lecture, illustrated by the magic lantern, on the parish church square, as many were disappointed, through having been unable to be present the previous evening. We gladly accepted the invitation, and that night I preached the Gospel in the parish church square to a crowded audience, among those present being the arch-priest himself, the notables, and the authorities of the town, with their families! Add to this the fact that, not many years ago, when Signor Scuderi visited the place for the first time, the people rose en masse to have him expelled, and he had to spend the night in a stable outside the town. What a change in a few years! 'This is the Lord's doing.'"

[1195]

Winter

"IN DARKEST ENGLAND."

BLEAK winter approacheth with snow-laden forces,
With keen-searching tempest and pitiless wind.
Far back in the past lies the fair golden summer,
A dream that is ended; it dwells in our mind.

Ah, then, how the mountains, now frowning and gloomy,
Seemed each to rejoice in its heather array!
All silent the streamlets, then dancing in gladness,
For Nature sits stern and relentless to-day.

And yet there is beauty, majestic and solemn,
And gladsome surprises, just now and again;
Of woodlands perchance, clothed in crystals resplendent,
Or wonderful fancies on frost-covered pane!

But what in the heart of our great seething cities?
Does winter bring aught that is gracious and fair
To multitudes starving, afflicted, or dying?
No, nothing to thousands, but utter despair!

He seemeth to them but a foe, strong and awful,
Who freezeth their life-blood with cold icy breath,
Who creepeth by stealth up their ricketty staircase
Unasked, on his pitiless mission of death.

"Can nothing be done," are you mournfully saying?
Do none of them try to keep winter at bay? ness
Yes, some bravely fight in their want and their weak
Unless, as a despot, he chooseth to slay!

Some poor are too poor to withstand his advances,
But you, even you, can assistance afford;
Oh, won't you immediately rise to their rescue,
And give what you can, in the name of the Lord?

You may not be able yourself to convey it,
But men there are ready your gifts to receive—
Wise stewards of Jesus, who gladly are working,
The needy, the helpless, to find and relieve.

The thanks of those hearts you shall thus have befriended
Will come when a summer for them shall begin;
'Mid blue hazy mountains of sunlight and freedom,
A freedom from horror, temptation, and sin.

Ah, then shall there sound from a chorus of voices
One grand hallelujah to God and to man,
To YOU and to all who came forward to help them,
And sought to make brighter their life's little span.

CHARLOTTE MURRAY.

BRUSSELS CITY MISSION.

LAST year's report of work in connection with the Brussels City Mission, under the direction of Pastor N. de Jonge, is full of interest. We read:—"Belgium has been visited by the Lord's message of salvation after almost three hundred years of utter darkness. One half of the people speak Flemish, the other Walloon, and in the Eastern provinces much German is spoken. In these different languages and dialects the message of God's love and grace is brought to the Roman Catholics, the most of whom, particularly in towns, have lost all faith and all knowledge of the Gospel.

"In 1874 I became the pastor of the Dutch Evangelical Church in Brussels, and had the privilege, not only to preach in my church, where it was natural that no Roman Catholics should come; but also to see that the congregation soon understood its calling by letting its light shine beyond its own circle. In 1880 some friends from London asked me to continue an independent Flemish work, quite on my own responsibility.

"The work so expanded that it became impossible for me to remain both pastor at the church and director of the City Mission. I left my pastorship in obedience to the Lord and in full confidence in his fatherly care.

"The City Mission, begun in the suburb of Etterbeek in a small room, has now spread beyond all expectation. In the suburb of Laeken we have Shiloh, which can contain three hundred people; at Anderlecht, our Mission Hall Penuel, large enough for two hundred people; at Veeweyde, our Bethlehem, and at Heysel, our Bethel. Then we have hired in a village called Ruysbroeck, a room which can certainly contain three hundred people. In all these Mission Halls the Gospel is regularly preached to Roman Catholics, many of whom have already accepted the message."

The Mission also prints and circulates religious literature. It has its Bethesda, a Home for the Sick, and visitation is regularly carried on. There are two assistant evangelists, two colporteurs, and two nurses, as well as many voluntary helpers. Mr. de Jonge reminds friends of his needs, but also says: "Without asking help or having a right to claim any, God has given us what was needed for our blessed work." His address is 344, Rue des Palais, Brussels.

KORKOOS OF CENTRAL INDIA.

THIS tribe of hill people, according to the last census of India, numbers 114,000. They belong to the Kolarian family of races. They are found in Northern Berar and Western Central Provinces. Their language closely resembles that of the Kols and Santhals of Bengal. Rev. E. F. Ward, of Ellichpur has made a good beginning at reducing their language to writing; a grammar and vocabulary are about ready for publication. Ellichpur is a good base for reaching the Korkoos and Gonds of Western Central India. For centuries it has been a strategic point in Central India. Two hundred years ago it was one of the capitals of Aurungzebe, with a population of 200,000 souls. It is located on the northern edge of the great plain of the Deccan, at the foot of the Satpoora mountains.

Work was begun among the Korkoos in 1874, and has been carried on since. Mr. Ward and wife and Miss Ranf, of the American Free Methodist Mission, now located at Ellichpur, have been doing what they could for the Korkoos for some years past. Miss Thyra Sharp and Miss Meadows have recently settled among the Korkoos at Bhaisdehi, in Betul district. Miss Mary Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher have begun work in the Korkoo jungle, eighteen miles from the nearest post-office and from their nearest white neighbour. Their station, thus taken up, is called Bithron. Miss Sharp and Miss Meadows have a post-office at Bhaisdehi, but, aside from their fellow-workers at Bithron, are thirty miles from their nearest white neighbour.

These five labourers are unconnected with any missionary society. They have gone forth to this difficult and trying work among the simple-minded hill people of India's jungles, believing that, as they had sought first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, all the things needful for their temporal welfare would be added unto them. And God is caring for them. Recently a gentleman in California, hearing of their simple faith, and of their doing their own cooking, and of their living very much after the style of the natives, ordered a thousand rupees to be sent to them. I now desire to ask Christian friends who are interested in the salvation of India's millions to pray specially for these workers now among the Korkoos.

They should also be reinforced, and ought to have a house at Ellichpur, which would serve as a hospital and base of supplies for the workers at Bhaisdehi, Bithron, and among the Korkoo villages. Any communications for these workers may be sent to Mr. A. Müller, Jabneel Missionary Training Home, 10A, Drayton Park-road, London, N. ALBERT NORTON.

N. Cohocton, New York.

THE OLD CATHOLICS IN SWITZERLAND.—One evidence of the progress of "Free Catholicism" in Switzerland is found in the fact that there are more than four thousand children attending Sunday-schools in connection with the community, a number twice as large as attended a few years ago.

Gathered Gold.

TILL a man knows himself legally lost, he ca never think himself graciously saved.—Evans.

Faith is not imagination; it is the beholdin of things otherwise not seen. There is no suc certainty as that of faith. It is a conviction. N believer need say to his brother, "Know th Lord"; he has an unction from the Holy On whereby he knows Him. Agnosticism is not modern phase of thought. Everyone is an agnosti until the Holy Ghost gives him, as a sinner, th knowledge of God in Christ his Saviour.

Dr. Adolph Saphir.

ST. JAMES THE APOSTLE.—MATT. IV. 22.

England's cottage homes may yield
Strong labourers for the harvest field,
To toil for Jesus' sake;
And not alone in learning's haunt,
And palace homes, all that we want
For the great work is found.
Bold soldiers of the cross and true
Amongst the very humblest, too,
With willing hearts abound.
O Saviour of the world! thy call,
In cottage home and palace hall,
Is wanting to supply
Those who, like James, their fisher's net,
Or Paul, their learned lore forget,
For Thee to live and die.

J. S. B. Monsell.

THE LAMB OF GOD.

From the beginning to the end, through the lon conflict, and in the midst of the glorious issue, the is still one title for Him who conquers and judg and reigns. It is the Lamb who makes war and ove comes, and from the wrath of the Lamb kings an nations flee. It is the Lamb by whose blood h servants also overcome; in whose blood they hav washed their robes; before whom they stand white raiment; and to whom they ascribe salv tion. In the Lamb's Book of Life the names the saved are written. The holy city is the brid the Lamb's wife. The Lord God Almighty an the Lamb are the temple of it and the light of i and the river of the water of life flows for ev from the throne of God and the Lamb. In th peculiar title thus studiously employed, and illu trated by the repeated mention of the slaying an the blood, we read the doctrine that the ground the personal is the ground of the general salvatio that the place which the sacrifice of the death Christ holds in the consciousness of the believer the same which it also occupies in the history the Church; and that He conquers for us, an reigns among us, and achieves the restoration all things, because He has first offered Himself f us, and is the Lamb of God who takes away th sin of the world. No view of the death of Jes which fuses it with the rest of his example cou have suggested the title by which this prophecy persistently designates the Conqueror and th King.—Canon Barnard.

SEAMEN AT FALMOUTH.—The workers he among seamen seem to leave no stone unturned do all the good they can to the seamen and harbo boys. The boys' Bible-class has steadily increas from 12 to 40. Reading and writing classes an savings club are held during the week. Th Bethel services are often times of rich blessi and the friends have been encouraged by seei one and another brought to Christ. Temperan lectures, teas, and magic lantern evenings are held keep the sailors from drifting to the public-hou and elsewhere. Miss E. M. Fox, 41, Market-stre Falmouth, is hon. secretary. Books, tracts, an Christmas cards are welcome. A VISITOR.

"THEY WENT," is the title given by Mr. M. Weylland, to his annual statement regardi the London City Missionaries' Disabled, Widow and Orphan Fund. The account given of some the departed agents of the Mission, is well wor reading. The pensions of forty-eight aged me forty widows, and four orphans, require, aft using the interest on invested money, a yearly li of contributors to the amount of £2400. The d ficiency last year was upwards of £700. "This says Mr. Weylland, "is a matter of great anxie to the Committee, to whom it would be exceeding painful to reduce the necessary sums paid to the dependents." Communications may be address to 3, Bridewell-place, E.C.

THE GOSPEL IN CEYLON.

SINCE the railway to Matalé from Kandy has been opened, Wattegama is fast becoming a largely populated native town, and the centre of all the surrounding estates. Many of the planters who, with their wives and children, would willingly attend a church situated here, find the distance to Kandy (some eight or ten miles) too far, and thus attend no place of worship. By the kind permission of the station-master at Wattegama, a service is held every Sunday afternoon at the railway station, but it is not large enough for the congregation. A Sunday-school has also been started by one of the ladies, which is well attended. Funds are now being raised to build a little church, open to all Protestant denominations. People have most generously come forward and subscribed what they can afford, but it takes a large sum to build a church, and especially, as in this case, to purchase a site as well. In many instances the offering, though a willing one, has been but small. So few of the superintendents are owners of the estates they manage, that they are not able to give largely.

Another want is a ragged school for girls, to be connected with the Church Missionary Society in Colombo. Living as I do in Colombo, I know this is a very great need, and as we work among the poor Portuguese and burghers, and see their poverty and ignorance, and their little children growing up without any education or home training, and without any knowledge of the Saviour, we feel their lot is a very sad one. Many of the parents are as degraded as heathens, and even if schooling were paid for, would make the excuse, "the children have no decent clothes." But in a ragged school this excuse vanishes.

The Church Missionary Society has a ragged school for boys only, supported from funds raised locally, but at present these do not permit of extra expenditure. Some of the lady workers hold classes twice a week, and teach the little ones themselves, but we want to raise enough money to build or rent a room and pay a teacher.

By the kind help of friends in Ceylon, a Portuguese Bible-woman is being supported, who accompanies the ladies in their district visiting, interpreting for them, and it is a ragged school for the girls of the class visited that we are anxious to provide. Communications may be sent to Rev. D. Wood (C.M.S.), 33, Jesse-terrace, Reading, or Mrs. Mackwood, 27, Longton-grove, Sydenham, S.E., either of whom will be pleased to furnish further particulars if requested.

E. B. MACKWOOD.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME at Richview, Delgany, county Wicklow, has resulted from the kindly project of ladies who desired to establish a Country Home for destitute and homeless children in Dublin. According as the new Home is prospered, help will be gladly extended to children in connection with other Homes or Hospitals. The Children's Guild has been formed for the purpose of engaging the willing help of young people in the maintenance of the work. The Rector, Rev. Canon Robinson, is warmly interested in this work in his parish. Mrs. Eustace, Clonbrone, Temple-road, Dublin, is one of the hon. secretaries.

CONNEMARA ORPHANS' NURSERY.—Fifteen girls have been admitted since the middle of July. The last was received about a month ago; she was aged five, having lost her father in the Egyptian war, and her mother some time previously. The husband of the woman with whom she had lived has declared that, "if ever she came to his door again, she should be sent to the poor-house." Two other girls are daughters of a farmer in the north, who died some months ago. Their mother tries to carry on the farm; she has a large family. This winter they have only the potatoes to depend on, and when they are finished, there is nothing but the poorhouse.

COLPORTAGE IN WHITECHAPEL.

MAJOR G. MACKINLAY, Assistant Hon. Secretary of the Christian Colportage Association, 31, Farringdon-street, London, E.C., writes:—

About twenty months ago, when the Whitechapel murders had created universal horror, the late Lady Kinnaird was led to place a colporteur in that district, and she wrote an earnest appeal in the pages of THE CHRISTIAN. This was at once warmly responded to, and a good worker was sent there, who has been steadily at his post ever since, with manifest and increasing usefulness. It now seems a fitting opportunity to give some account of the progress of this work.

It is a poor district, and a very large number of books cannot consequently be sold, but much cheap literature is in circulation. There is, for instance, a certain house in the district which was formerly used as a training institute for boys; it is now devoted to the sale of trashy literature, and the colporteur has noticed the increase of its trade, and lately the addition of a horse and cart to take round this bad reading to the houses of the people. The only way to combat this evil is to supply good reading in its place, and this the colporteur succeeds in doing; he sells a considerable amount on his rounds, and at Mr. Holland's Mission, where he has a stall every Thursday night, he is thankful to see that cheap, pure, Gospel literature is overcoming the evil and impure among the factory girls who form a very numerous and important class. Some have promised that they will never read any more novels, which are specially dangerous to young women in their independent positions.

A dear saint who was visited in her illness passed away to be with the Lord, and the colporteur came to the house just as her relatives were all assembled together after her burial, and he had a solemn time with them; he found them all converted except the daughter. He was able to present the Gospel with power, and the poor woman was brought with tears to the Lord Jesus, and joy came into her heart. She is still standing fast, and her husband, who was a drunkard, has now given up drink, and is in a hopeful state spiritually.

A faithful man in such a neighbourhood has some risks to run. On one occasion he found two women fighting, and many looking on, but no one attempting to interfere to stop them; he, however, succeeded in doing so, though he narrowly escaped a blow on the head with a quart jug. He then had an opportunity of speaking to the crowd about the way of salvation, and he sold a few books—one being taken by one of the late combatants. On another occasion, hearing screams in a house, he determined to enter, after praying for help, and found a poor woman in a most bewildered state. He tried to get her attention, but it was of no use, she went on screaming; the husband was sitting on an old box with four children crying around him. He said at last, "I will tell you what is the matter; none of us have had anything to eat for two days, and the children are nearly starved." The colporteur sent one of them for some bread, and then began to read God's Word. The man confessed that he was a Christian, but was in a cold and sinful state, and had wasted a large sum in drink; he was drawn near to the Lord again, and his wife said to the colporteur, "Thank God, you came in the nick of time, for I was about to commit suicide." Now she is not only kept from that crime, but she is also saved from everlasting punishment. The colporteur was able to give a little help; the husband got work, paid up his debts, and now he is going on rejoicing in the Lord.

I have myself accompanied the Whitechapel colporteur on his rounds, and I was surprised to find the respect with which he is treated. We visited all sorts of places, seeing many fallen women: none of them ridiculed the messenger, though some turned away in evident sorrow when the Gospel message was plainly put before them.

The Whitechapel colporteur has twice been for short periods in the summer to a district in Devonshire, with blessing to individuals; and such interest has been created there in colportage work that the way may shortly be open for a permanent worker to be established there.

Many instances of conversion and blessing could be recorded of the work in Whitechapel, which is one of the neediest places spiritually in the Metropolis; there is, however, no one on the spot who can give financial assistance, and the money collected by Lady Kinnaird is now exhausted. If help is not soon forthcoming, the committee will be compelled to withdraw a useful worker from a district where he is very much required.

CAGE-LANE MISSION, PLUMSTEAD.

ON Thursday last a meeting was held at the Cage-lane Mission-hall, in commemoration of the inauguration of the Mission work in Plumstead, with which Miss Russell has so long been associated. A very large company sat down to tea, after which a public meeting was held in the new hall recently erected. General Stirling presided.

From the report we gatner that it was lately found necessary to enlarge the borders of the work. A site was secured, and, aided especially by a large donation from a generous friend, Miss Russell and her coadjutors determined to build a new hall. The expenditure for the site and building amounted to £2574 18s. 9d., the whole of which has been raised, and a balance of £84 18s. 9d. left to be devoted to the ordinary expenses of the Mission. Thus the work has prospered, and God's name has been exalted.

Addresses were delivered by General Anderson, Captain Cleeve, Captain Tippinge, and Messrs. Paton, Paynter, and Weathley; and a collection was made on behalf the Mission.

BIBLE SOCIETY NOTES.

THE report of the British and Foreign Bible Society's Auxiliary at Calcutta says:—Looking at the millions of non-Christians in Bengal, one may be tempted to despair of the influence of the Bible ever reaching them; but if one looks below the surface, and considers the various movements that are going on among all classes, the agencies at work shaking and destroying their belief in their own religions, the many who are reading the Bible, and the numbers who are worshipping Christ secretly, the desire for something higher and better which pervades the minds of thousands; one cannot but feel quickened and stirred up to greater exertion.

The report of the Kandy (Ceylon) Auxiliary gives interesting information on the work of the Bible-women subsidised by the Society. These meet with more civility and attention than male colporteurs can ever hope for; though unable to sell the scriptures—for the people cannot be expected to buy what they cannot read—a demand is certain to arise in time, and at present the Bible-women read to their poor sisters, who are most ready to listen. During the past year valuable itinerating work has been done in the villages of Uva by the Bible-women.

THE GARENGANZE MISSION.—Letters have arrived from Mr. F. S. Arnot's party at Kwangelula, Bihé, but are dated a month previous to the recent telegraphic news that has appeared in the English papers about the war between the Portuguese and the natives. Mr. Arnot, who had been unwell, arrived back again from the coast in fairly good health. Good news had been received from those in Garenganze and from the others journeying inland. Dr. Walter Fisher visits and speaks in numerous villages. He has many patients, and has recently performed the operation for cataract successfully.

AN EXCELLENT GIFT BOOK.

"ONLY FOR JESUS."

MEMORIALS of the late WM. M. MACGREGOR, Missionary to China, by LEWIS MUNRO. With Introductory Note by Rev. J. H. WILSON, D.D., of the Barclay Church, Edinburgh.

SECOND EDITION. Crown 8vo., cloth boards, 1s. 6d.

Rev. C. H. SPURGEON in Sword and Trowel says:—"WILLIAM M. MACGREGOR was all on fire with love to the Lord Jesus. . . . This short Memoir . . . . should stimulate all young men to live for Jesus. It is nicely written. . . . Here was one who gloried in the work of the Lord, and gave himself to it in the most whole-hearted manner."

Christian Commonwealth—"Such characters as are described in this book are the real heroes of the world."

Word and Work—"To many the book will sound as a personal call, 'Why tarry ye among the sheep folds?'"

Congregational Review—"A deeply-interesting record of a short but beautiful life."

Methodist Recorder—"It furnishes an admirable illustration of self-denying missionary zeal and earnestness."

Young Men's Review—"It is of special and deepest interest."

Glasgow Herald—"Will find thousands of sympathetic readers."

Literary World—"Carries with it a contagion of enthusiasm."

Aberdeen Daily Free Press—"A beautifully touching, and admirably written Memoir, and one which should be placed in the hands of young men by the thousand. The consecration of William M. Macgregor (once the eager sceptic propagandist), to the highest Christian services whether in the London street, the railway-train, the steamship, or, ultimately among the idolatrous millions of China, is so strikingly genuine, sublimely whole-hearted, and altogether perfect, that its presentation in this striking narrative cannot fail to move noble souls to like devotion."

Extract from Introductory Note—"The last proof sheets have been sent to me for perusal while spending an autumn holiday in the Upper Engadine. I cannot well express the deep emotion with which I have read the closing chapters. It is a beautiful story of grace."—Rev. Dr. J. H. WILSON.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co.
Dingwall: L. MUNRO, Ross-shire Journal Office.

HOW BRITAIN BECAME A CHRISTIAN NATION;

OR, THE BRITISH CHURCH THE OLDEST NATIONAL CHURCH IN THE WORLD.
By A. S. Price 2d.
JAMES NISBET & CO., 21, BERNERS-STREET, W.

ALFRED HOLNESS, 14, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, has now on sale a very beautiful selection of choice Christmas, New Year, and General Texts and Scripture Motto Cards for 1891.

Very special care is taken that the words on the Cards and Booklets are such as Christian friends can circulate. He is sure that all who favour him with a visit will be delighted with h splendid assortment.

All the Mildmay, Nister's, Castell's, and other similar publications are now ready; and also many new and choice framed Wall Designs, &c.

Very liberal terms are given to trade and retail purchasers. Kindly note the address, 14, Paternoster Row. The following NEW PUBLICATIONS are now ready:—

1. "DAY BY DAY" BOOK ALMANAC
And CHRISTIAN'S REMEMBRANCER for 1891.
Edited by HEYMAN WREFORD, Author of "How Can I be Saved?" &c.
This Almanac contains many articles of an instructive character for Believers.
Price One Penny (12 copies 1s. post free); Cloth, Interleaved, gilt edges, 6d. post free. 50 copies for 3s. 6d.; 100 copies, 6s. 6d.; 500 copies, 36s.

2. THE "FAITHFUL WORDS" SHEET ALMANAC, 1d.; post free, 1s. 3d. per dozen. Beautifully Illustrated.

3. THE "SEARCH AND SEE" BOOK ALMANAC for Children, 24 Copies, post free, 1s.

4. THE "FAITHFUL WORDS" VOLUME, 1890. Price 1s. 6d., post free.

Price 4d. each. CHOICE BOOKLETS. Price 4d. each.

Sixteen kinds, as undernoted:—

ABOVE IT ALL
THE WONDERFUL STORY
SONG IN THE DESERT
TAKEN ASIDE.
"HE CARETH FOR YOU."
"IN HIM ABIDING."
MELIORA; or the Servant's Portion.
MARAH; or, Leaves of Healing.
OUT OF THE DARKNESS into the Light.
"UNTIL THE DAY BREAK."
A VOICE IN THE TWILIGHT.
COMMUNION; "A Little Talk with Jesus."
THE GOOD SHEPHERD.
RETROSPECTION.
LO, I AM WITH THEE.
COMPLETE IN HIM.

These Booklets are got up in an entirely new style, and will be found very suitable for sending to friends by post as CHRISTMAS NEW YEAR, BIRTHDAY, or other GIFTS and REMEMBRANCERS.

A Copy of each of the 16 kinds free by post for 5s.

London: ALFRED HOLNESS, 14, PATERNOSTER ROW. GLASGOW: R. L. ALLAN, 143, SAUCHIEHALL STREET.
Catalogues sent, post free, on receipt of postcard.

NEW YEAR'S LETTER BOOKLET—1891.

D. 1 LET YOUR LIGHT SO SHINE.

By Rev. W. FRITH, Editor of Consecration.

7s. per 100. Post free of Author, Harringay, N.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.
And all Booksellers

CONSECRATION.

Monthly Magazine for Culture of Spiritual Life.

D. 1

Christian: "Worthy of high commendation."
Rev. CHARLES BULLOCK: "Well adapted for the culture of the spiritual life."
Rev. F. B. MEYER: "A valuable aid to the culture of the devout life."
W. Y. FULLERTON: "Most helpful in the culture of the spiritual life."

Vols. I. and II. ready, 2s., 2s. 4d. Post free.
London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.
And all Booksellers.

INTERESTING
OBJECT LESSONS.

With Notes and Specimens. On Cards 6 by 9.

"NEEDLES" and How they are made		1s.
"PINS" and How they are made		1s.
"SEWING COTTON" and How it is made		1s.
"SILK" and How it is made		1s
"PENS" and How they are made		1s.
"PAPER" and How it is made	11 by 7½	1s.
"LEAD PENCILS" and How they are made	do.	1s.

Any of the above on Wall Cards, 12 by 18, with larger Specimens for Teachers' use, 2s. 6d. The Set of Seven, 15s. 6d.
Or the same size in Glass Case, each 7s. 6d. The set of Seven for 45s. [9872

COX & CO., 99, New Oxford-st., London.
Contractors to the London and other School Boards.

BALDWIN & WALKER'S KNITTING AND FANCY WOOLS

HIGHLAND WOOLS
FINGERING WOOLS
VEST WOOLS
SHETLAND WOOLS
In Great Variety

Special makes for Machine Knitters WOOLS

SOLD BY ALL LEADING WOOL DEALERS & DRAPERS
If any difficulty is found in obtaining, apply to Manufacturers, who will gladly send address of nearest Retailer.

WEST CROFT MILLS,
ESTABLISHED 1836 HALIFAX, YORKS.

GOLD MEDAL LIVERPOOL, 1886.

PRIZE MEDALS WHEREVER EXHIBITED

Dewhurst's Sewing Cotton

JOHN DEWHURST & SONS Ltd BELLE VUE MILLS SKIPTON

DIRECT FROM THE MILL.

POST FREE.

SOCKS. Gentlemen's Full Size, in Stripes or single colours.

BOYS' JERSEY CAPS striped or single colour, 1s. each.

STOCKINGS. In Black, Grey, Maroon, & Navy Blue. Ladies' Size.

KNEE Ladies' and Gentlemen's,

ONE SHILLING

CAPS. In Scarlet, Grey, and Pinks.

MUFFLERS. For Children, in great variety.

GLOVES. Ladies' and Gentlemen's

All Guaranteed Pure Wool.
Send P.O.O. or Stamps to

FLEMING, REID & CO.,
THE WORSTED MILLS, GREENOCK.
100 Patterns of Knitting Wools (which need not be returned) sent Post Free.
Please mention this Paper.

DR. BAEDEKER IN SIBERIA.

AFTER nine months' travelling, this veteran evangelist appeared at the Aldersgate-street noon prayer-meeting, to give thanks and to record the Lord's mercies vouchsafed to him during his long absence. Although the travelling was hard and difficult, he had lacked no good thing. His mission was to place the Word of God in the hands of the prisoners in Siberia. This was done in every prison. The prayers offered in the City of London and elsewhere had descended upon him in richest blessing throughout his journeyings. Setting out from Moscow, Dr. Baedeker travelled viâ Nijni-Novgorod, Perm, across the Ural mountains to Tumen, thence by steamer to Tobolsk and Tomsk; thence by tarantass, a carriage mounted on three fir poles, in place of springs) to Irkutsk, by a good post-road; then across to the Amoor River, on by steamer to Nikulaevsk and across to Saghalien.

Contrary to popular impression, Siberia is a most beautiful country, which fills the heart with joy; but, alas! it is vast and empty.

On reaching Perm, in the beginning of May, the Doctor had reckoned on leaving by steamer forthwith as is the usual course; but this year the river continued to be blocked with ice till June 10! This delay, and others en route, were overruled for good. At Tumen the officials were at their wits' end to know what to do with the prisoners, colonists, and exiles, who converged there, waiting for the steamer to carry them forward. On account of the unseasonable delay in the breaking of the ice, fourteen thousand of these poor souls were sleeping under straw in the fields around the town. When each steamer started there was a rush for places, and thousands left behind. On the steamer which Dr. Baedeker and his interpreter travelled there were five hundred people. They were very poor; their daily fare consisted of dry crusts of black bread soaked in tea. On one occasion the Doctor induced the cook to telegraph to the next station for them to kill a cow, out of which meat and some cabbage good soup was made, which they enjoyed with great relish.

When the prisons were reached there were many inmates who recognised their friend of former years; they don't have many visitors. They exclaimed, "Come again! so glad!"

Concerning Russian prisoners, Dr. Baedeker explained that their sufferings, of which one hears so much, arise from the system, which is thoroughly bad, and not from the character of the officials who carry it out. The Russian character is naturally amiable, and quite the reverse of cruel. The gaolers groan under the burden of the present system. The number of prisoners is ever increasing, never diminishing; and the accommodation is wretchedly insufficient. The Government of Russia is a despotism; men who come under official suspicion are ordered off to Siberian prisons by "administrative process," without the formality of any trial. A number of the prisoners are there justly, because they have been members of a propaganda against the Emperor. Others are there, enduring punishment for ordinary grave crimes, such as incendiarism, felony, &c.; others for murder and manslaughter—capital punishment not being in vogue in Russia, except in extreme cases. When once a Russian has been in prison it is recorded on the face of his passport, which is a requisite for every inhabitant. In consequence they lose or destroy their passports, or forge new ones, which customs have a disastrous moral effect.

The inmates of the already crowded prisons are largely increased by the colonists. The Government are anxious that Siberia should be peopled and cultivated. Hence they give free grants of land to the peasants, but nothing else. And so these poor deluded ones soon find themselves in absolute want. To escape starvation they commit some crime against the law, such as theft, in order that they may be consigned to prison and receive regular rations.

One of the grossest evils of the system is that these prisoners who tramp from prison to prison, in gangs (sometimes occupying twelve months before they reach their destination) have no employment whatever provided for them. Even the best disposed become perfectly demoralised before they reach their journey's end. In the absence of employment and of all reading they take to gambling. Having no money they play for their daily rations, for their more decent clothes, and even for an exchange of their terms of imprisonment; in which latter case the men change names and clothes, &c., and the transition is not noticed by the new officer in charge at their next halting-place.

Dr. Baedeker had much more to tell concerning the political exiles; and of his journey home viâ Japan, China, Singapore, &c. This we must reserve for a future occasion.

African Notes.

BY MRS. GRATTAN GUINNESS.

AFRICAN MAILS have reached us this morning bringing—thanks be to God—good news from the various parts of the field. From Mr. F. Stanley Arnot we have a letter dated Bihé, September 12, stating that the three brethren, Thompson, Lane, and Crawford, crossed the Quanza River on their march inland on August 16, and that they had safely reached Kangombi's, in the Lovale, and were "travelling well." It had been decided that Mr. Lane should remain at Kandunzu, to form a much-needed intermediate station; as also "to raise the Gospel standard for the first time in the midst of an extensive tribe which has been lying at our guilty doors in heathen darkness ever since 1854, when Livingstone first passed through that country and brought its population and their needs to the light of day."

Mr. Arnot adds that the week previous to writing he had received cheering letters from Messrs. Swan and Faulkner in the Garenganze country. They were both well and greatly encouraged by the tidings which had reached them of reinforcements on the way. Mr. Swan wrote to Mr. Arnot: "My advice is for some of you to come on here at once, even if you have to leave all goods behind, to follow slowly by caravan sent from this end. The King M'sidé falls in heartily with this suggestion, and says we can have hundreds of men as porters. What we need most is labourers, not goods at present. If the former are forthcoming, the latter will not be long in following, and we shall always have at least a plate of mush and sauce for any friends to share." This promise of caravans from the other end of the thousand-mile journey is very valuable to the Mission, and will greatly facilitate its management in future. Mr. Arnot adds that though the Portuguese are marching on Bihé, and the people are, in the prospect of war, in an excited state, they are all preserved through mercy in peace of mind, and in perfect health.

The tidings received from the missionaries on the Lulonga this morning are on the whole good, and we are thankful to hear that the steam launch Pioneer was to start on her first trip about the middle of last month. The missionaries seemed well pleased with this little vessel in every way, and anticipate the greatest advantages from her possession. A new station had been founded at the mouth of the Lulonga River.

We have also to-day the news of the arrival in England of our friend and former student, Mr. Frank Foster, from Old Calabar, with his wife. He has been long and very seriously requiring a change, and though we regret his arrival at this inclement season, we are thankful that his life has been spared in spite of very severe illness during a much longer tarriance than missionaries generally make on this unhealthy coast.

While writing on the subject of Africa, we may mention that our son

DR. HARRY GUINNESS

(who has just taken his diploma as M.D. at Brussels, "with honours," and who will in future adopt the above designation, the better to distinguish him from his father), is (D.V.) going out to Africa next March, to spend some months in visiting our mission-stations on the Congo. He has long wished to do this, but opportunity failed during his father's long absence in America. The Council feels that in view of the responsibilities connected with the management of the Mission, it is well that the Honorary Secretary should become personally acquainted with its sphere. No secretary of any of the Missions now working in the Congo basin has as yet been able to visit the country.

Dr. Mabie, the newly-appointed secretary of the A.B.M.U. (which now conducts our original Livingstone Inland Mission there) is just now going round the world to visit all the other missions of the Board, in Japan, China, Burmah, India, and elsewhere, but time fails him to include the Congo Mission. At a meeting of the Congo-Balolo Council held here last week, at which the Rev. A. G. Brown, Dr. Macrae, Mr. W. Seagram, Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Badenoch, and Mr. de Hailes were present with us, it was unanimously resolved—after a full consideration of the risks to be encountered and of the good to be accomplished in many and varied direction—that "Whereas the Council feel unable to give a formal vote on the subject, it cannot but express its fullest sympathy with, and appreciation of, Dr. Guinness's offer to go out, and its conviction that it would be in every way for the permanent advantage of the Mission."

We ask the prayers of Christian friends, not only that his life and health may be preserved, but that this visit may be made a comfort and blessing to the dear devoted workers in Africa. The expenses of the journey will not fall on the Congo-Balolo funds. These are so low just now that we should be grateful if the friends of the Mission would remember its needs, both in prayer and in practical sympathy. The numerous taxes now imposed by the Government will add two hundred a year to its expenditure; and an additional station is about to be opened.

Dr. Guinness is prepared during the two months of January and February to lecture, in the interests of the work, with his fine lantern and interesting set of specially prepared slides, on "The New World of Central Africa." Any friends who could help in arranging efficient meetings in large halls or places of worship, either in the suburbs of London or in the provinces, would render a service to the Mission by at once communicating with him at Harley House, Bow, E.

The providence of God is very evidently working on behalf of Africa, and will do so, we believe, in increasing measure. Let us all join in the prayer that 1891 may be a year of unparalleled progress in the Dark Continent.

Harley House, Bow, E., Dec. 15.

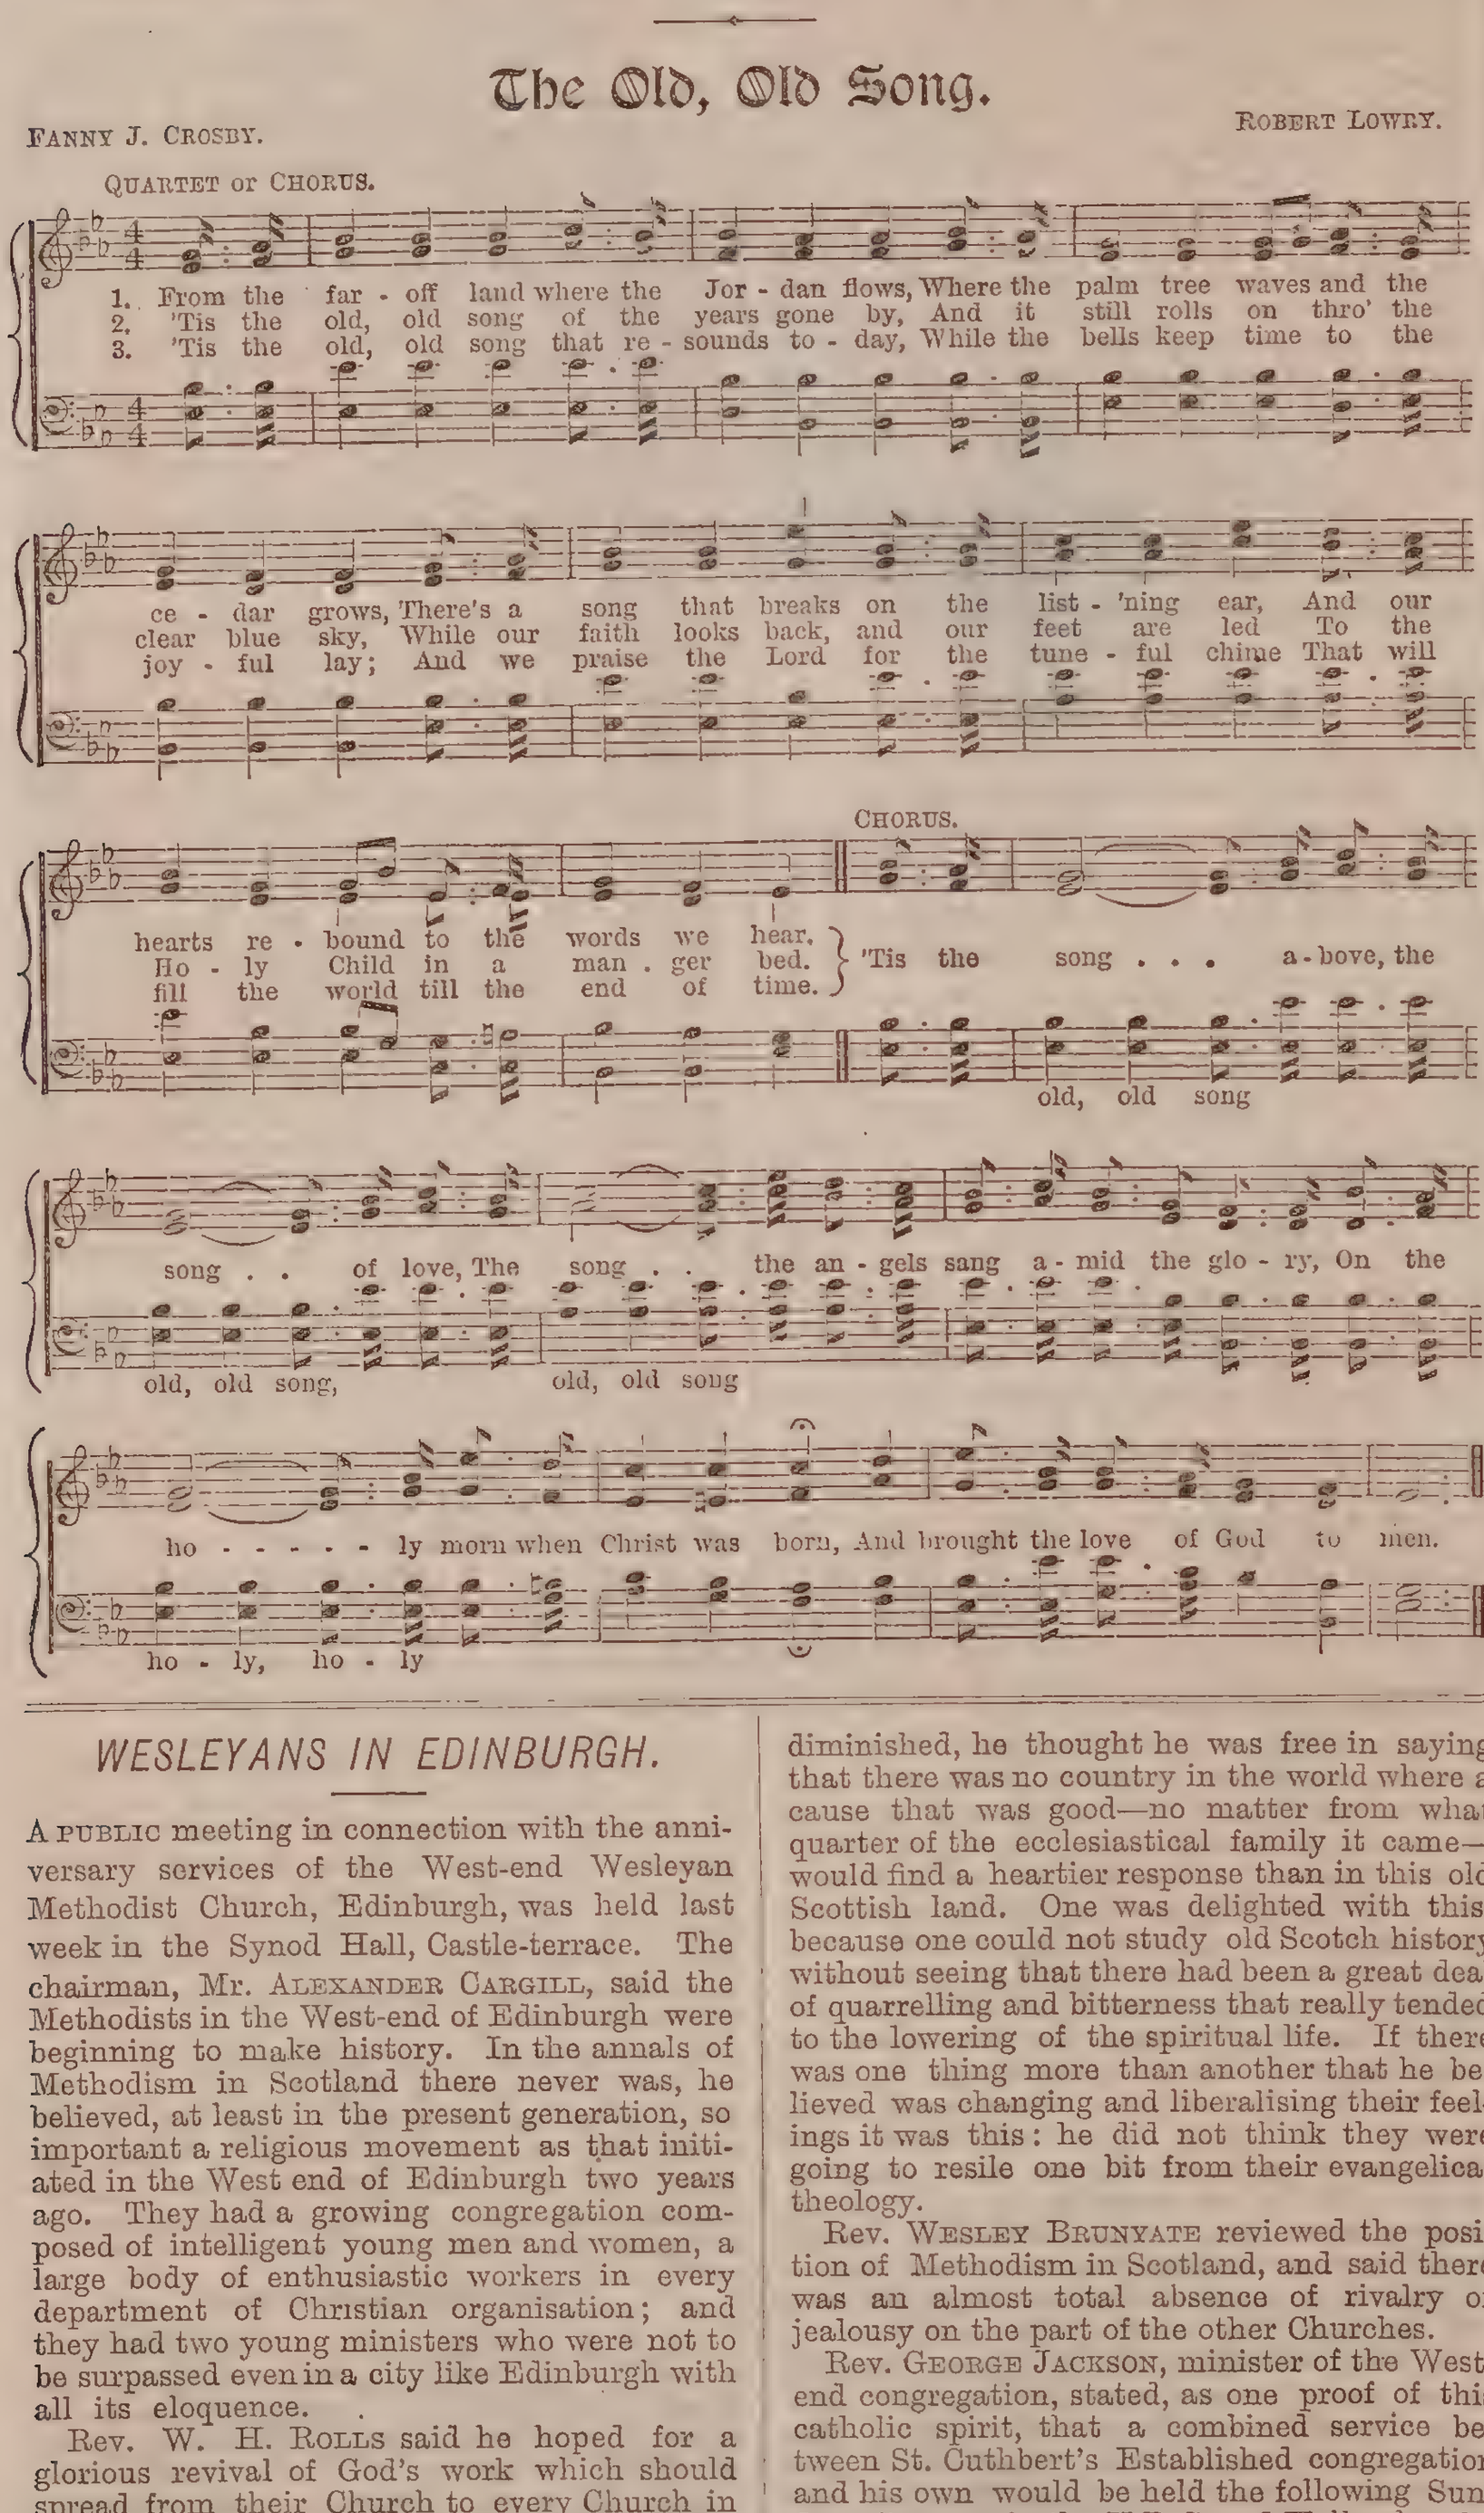
MR. F. A. BEVAN is seriously ill. In answer to inquiries on Tuesday we learned that he had passed a restless night; his strength was maintained, but there was no improvement in his general condition.

LONDON BANK CLERKS.—In the regretted absence, through illness, of Mr. F. A. Bevan, President, Mr. J. F. W. Deacon took the chair at the annual meeting of the Prayer Union of London Clerks, held last week in the Metal Exchange, Whittington Avenue. Mr. M. Kenchington, Hon. Sec., was able to report a slight increase in membership. Rev. Dr. O'Brien, Camberwell, spoke upon the essentials to profitable Bible study—namely, simplicity, sincere desire to learn, self-denial, and system. Mr. Fox Butlin, of Stratford, urged upon Christian young men the duty and privilege of being filled with the Spirit.

A CHRISTMAS HYMN.

The Old, Old Song.

FANNY J. CROSBY. ROBERT LOWRY.



WESLEYANS IN EDINBURGH.

A PUBLIC meeting in connection with the anniversary services of the West-end Wesleyan Methodist Church, Edinburgh, was held last week in the Synod Hall, Castle-terrace. The chairman, Mr. ALEXANDER CARGILL, said the Methodists in the West-end of Edinburgh were beginning to make history. In the annals of Methodism in Scotland there never was, he believed, at least in the present generation, so important a religious movement as that initiated in the West end of Edinburgh two years ago. They had a growing congregation composed of intelligent young men and women, a large body of enthusiastic workers in every department of Christian organisation; and they had two young ministers who were not to be surpassed even in a city like Edinburgh with all its eloquence.

Rev. W. H. ROLLS said he hoped for a glorious revival of God's work which should spread from their Church to every Church in Edinburgh, which should result in every Christian minister and every Christian Church in Edinburgh receiving the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

Rev. JOHN SMITH said some of the grandest things that had been done in the name of Christ had been done on Scottish soil: but while this was true they must plead guilty in the past to a great deal of narrow sectarianism. Now, while he believed their attachment to their principles had not perhaps sensibly diminished, he thought he was free in saying that there was no country in the world where a cause that was good—no matter from what quarter of the ecclesiastical family it came—would find a heartier response than in this old Scottish land. One was delighted with this, because one could not study old Scotch history without seeing that there had been a great deal of quarrelling and bitterness that really tended to the lowering of the spiritual life. If there was one thing more than another that he believed was changing and liberalising their feelings it was this: he did not think they were going to resile one bit from their evangelical theology.

Rev. WESLEY BRUNYATE reviewed the position of Methodism in Scotland, and said there was an almost total absence of rivalry or jealousy on the part of the other Churches.

Rev. GEORGE JACKSON, minister of the West-end congregation, stated, as one proof of this catholic spirit, that a combined service between St. Cuthbert's Established congregation and his own would be held the following Sunday afternoon in the U.P. Synod Hall, when he would preach, and an offertory would be taken in aid of the work in the West-end.—Scottish Leader.

JESUIT FINANCE.—Accerding to a report from Paris, "a new bank under Roman Catholic auspices is about to be founded." The Jesuits have headed the subscription with fifty million francs, and the total capital is to be double that amount.

Obituary.

MR. JOHN ANDERSON.

THIS evangelist, director of the McAll Mission a Mentone, and formerly preacher of the Gospel a Cannes and in Mauritius, peacefully departed thi life, in Paris, at the age of seventy-seven, o Lord's Day morning, November 23. His body lie buried in the Protestant part of the old cemeter at St. Germain-en-Laye, awaiting the first resu rection.

REV. DR. TYLER.

By the death of Rev. W. Tyler, D.D., Londo Congregationalism has lost one of its oldest mem bers, and the Church of Christ a devoted laboure among the East-end poor. Ordained in 1844 a Mile-end New Town, for a period of forty-si years he witnessed for Christ in the same need district. Just over a year ago we gave a sketch o his useful career. Dr. Tyler was officially connecte with many benevolent and religious institution which profited by his generosity as well as his wis counsel. He was 78 years of age.

MISS LOUISA RANF.

Much sorrow has been caused at Ellichpu province of Berar, India, by the death of Mi Louisa Ranf, of the Pilgrim Faith Mission. Re E. F. Ward thus reports the matter in The Bomb Guardian:—"While attending the English churc a lamp suddenly exploded and set her clothes o fire. The flames spread and burned all her clothin before they could be checked. For 5½ hours h suffering was intense, although we did all w could to relieve her. Death closed the scene, an left us to mourn the death of our dear Louisa. Sh was, in deed and in truth one of the saints of Go Devoted, patient, and self-sacrificing to a faul Oh, what a reward awaited her on high!" Whi neglecting no branch of mission work that opene up before her, Miss Ranf's great endeavour was t train orphan boys for the Lord. Those who we in her charge are now, sad to say, doubly orphane

REV. T. G. ROOKE.

We regret to announce the death of Rev. T. Rooke, B.A., President of Rawdon Baptist Co lege, in his fifty-fourth year. The son of a Londo solicitor, he was himself brought up to the leg profession. He early threw his heart into wo for Christ, and, on his health giving way, travell in Egypt and Palestine. Resolving upon devoti his life to ministerial work, he became a stude at Regent's Park College. After a brilliant caree and further travels in the East, he accepted a pa torate at Sheppard's Burton, Frome, which he he for about fourteen years. In 1876 he succeed Rev. Dr. Green in the presidency of the Colleg During 1885 and 1886 he was acting president the Yorkshire Association of Baptist Churche He was a promoter of the amalgamation of t General and Particular Baptist Churches, which not yet quite complete. An accomplished schola he was familiar with those questions of Old Test ment criticism which are just now to the front.

DEAN CHURCH.

This well-known ecclesiastic died on Tuesd last week, in the seventy-sixth year of his age. H had for a long period suffered from a bronchi malady, and been obliged to winter in warm climates. He entered at Wadham College, Oxfo in 1833, where he made the acquaintance of Joh Henry Newman, and became his life-long frien Becoming Dean of St. Paul's in 1871, he c operated right heartily with the Chapter in effor to enhance the religious influence of the Cathedr The Times says:—"St. Paul's, which not so lo before had been jealously guarded by a twopen fee at the door, and a path hedged in from do to choir to prevent sightseers evading the fee und the pretext of worship, was thrown open to all t world. Its services were multiplied; its nave w fitted up for worship; great preachers of eve shade of theology were invited to fill the pulpi the multiform resources of sacred music, under t direction of Sir John Stainer, were exhibited ways hitherto unthought of; every society guild that was doing any good work was heart welcomed; the disused Chapter-house was turn to good account as a place of intercourse betwe the young men of the City and the canons; and, short, the great cathedral became, as it ought to b the home and centre of the Church life of Londo Dr. Church was not a popular preacher, but e joyed a high literary reputation. His princip works related to theology, ancient and moder and he wrote monographs on St. Anselm, Spens and Bacon.

TEACHERS WANTED IN CHINA.

WE are desired to state that there is special need for additional teachers in the China Inland Mission Protestant Collegiate School at Chefoo. The school was opened about ten years, and is intended for the children of China Inland and other missionaries, and for the sons of foreign residents in China, whether in the Consular Service or in the Customs, or in business. It is a boarding school, and there are now forty-five names on the register for boys. The girls' school is in a separate building, with more than thirty pupils. More are waiting to be admitted, and plans are now under consideration for the enlargement of the buildings.

It is sought to give the pupils all the advantages of a high-class school. Some who have gone direct from the school have entered upon their University course with much credit. The spiritual welfare of the children is the first consideration.

The present need is for thoroughly competent teachers for the boys' school, men who have had practical training as teachers, and who are willing to undertake this work as another form of missionary labour, going out on the same conditions as the other members of the Mission do, without guarantee of income.

Application may be made to the Secretary of the China Inland Mission, 2, Pyrland-road, London, N.

POOR IN SOHO AND SEVEN DIALS.

LAST week the forty-second anniversary meetings of the Soho and St. Giles's Mission were held in Bloomsbury Hall, Meard-street, Soho. Special services were held on Sunday, and earnest addresses were given by Mr. William Harrison, the leader of the work. On Monday afternoon, Miss Blanche Cox had an audience of about 200 poor women, when she pressed upon them the need of decision for Christ. This was followed, in the evening, by a tea and public meeting, when the chair was taken by Mr. R. J. Moser, the treasurer of the Mission. Addresses were given by Rev. James Baillie, of Bloomsbury Chapel, Rev. W. R. Mowll, of All Souls' Church, Langham-place; Mr. John E. Jack, Mr. Wm. Harrison, and other gentlemen. Early on Tuesday evening some 200 poor women, unable to attend on Monday, listened to an impressive address by Mrs. Bishop; this was followed by a meeting for devotion and prayer.

On Wednesday 280 poor sandwich-men were invited to tea, and afterwards remained to the public service, when most earnest and loving words were spoken to them by two Christian working men as well as by other friends. The Gospel was sung very sweetly by members of the Bessborough Hall Choir, and the whole congregation seemed impressed for good. On Thursday at one o'clock the usual weekly dinner of hot Irish stew was given to between three and four hundred of the poor children of the district. On the evening of Thursday the meeting was for children, when a large number assembled.

During the past year more than a thousand meetings were held for the moral and spiritual good of the people, and at least twelve thousand of the destitute and hungry were fed, and about three thousand garments were distributed. The poor are visited and the sick attended to in their own homes. The good work is limited for want of funds. Mr. Wm. Harrison's address is 20, Merrick-square, Newington, S.E.

THE PARIS UNEMPLOYED.—The Prefecture of the Seine fills annually about 1100 situations, for which there are no fewer than 43,000 applicants. For 20 places as school caretakers there are 2643 candidates, for 54 governesses' appointments there are 7139 applicants. Attention to the constant demands for work engages much time, but what disappointed hopes the 43,000 applications must represent!

DR. WHITE IN CORK.

WHEN the Holiness Convention was held in this city early in the year, Bible-readings were given by Dr. White, of Winchester, and those who were privileged to attend them received much spiritual blessing. When it was known he was to visit Cork again to conduct a mission for soldiers, he was invited to conduct further Bible-readings, which he gladly agreed to do. These meetings he held in the Central Hall, with large and appreciative audiences. "Holiness" was the subject for the first week, and he dealt with it, as he said, in God's order—pardon, peace, purity, and power. It was a time of rich spiritual refreshment to Christians. On December 8 and 9 his subject was "The Second Coming of the Lord Jesus;" he pointed out plainly that only those who were expecting could be watching.

Dr. White delivered three addresses to young men in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, and it is believed that much blessing will result. He also spoke at gatherings for young women, nurses, &c., as well as at Gospel meetings.

SOLDIERS' INSTITUTE, PORTSMOUTH.

MISS ROBINSON writes:—"Never have we had more reason to be thankful than at present for God's blessing upon our work. Every one of our servants in the Soldiers' Institute is converted; the workers are being greatly blessed, and not a week passes without souls being brought to Christ in the meetings. Larger numbers are attending these; house-to-house and barrack visitation is earnestly carried on, and the troopship work is in full operation. Soldiers are using the Institute in greater numbers, and from among the Christian men an 'Institute Mission Band' has been formed to visit out-lying villages and speak and sing for Jesus. Our monthly penny magazine, Ready, is much appreciated; we are now preparing to send five cwt. by parcel post in small quantities to soldiers at home and abroad. Then, too, needy cases abound; the Government shirt-making has been stopped from the stores becoming overstocked, numbers of poor soldiers' wives being thus thrown out of work.

"I have now spent the whole of my private means on this work, with the exception of a small annual income not in my power to deal with. I am almost overwhelmed with the heavy financial burden caused by the special needs of the past twelve months. I urgently need £5000, and, unless friends come to my relief, I hardly know that I can continue the superintendence of this great work. My condition of bodily suffering, and the personal sorrows through which I have passed this year, make me unable to bear this burden also. Many prayers are being offered that the Lord will quickly dispose the hearts of his stewards to sustain me before I am utterly broken down. I shall be glad to write fully to anyone desiring particulars."

DISCHARGED AND INVALIDED SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.—A convalescent and training Home for discharged and invalided men of the army and navy, and for receiving men on sick furlough, has long been much needed, and Major-General Synge has exerted himself to establish such an institution. A receiving home has already been opened at 5, Roxburgh-terrace Highland-road, Southsea, and arrangements made for enlargements as required. The objects of the institution include, life provision for incurables, care of convalescents, and training and employment of discharged or reserve men. There are no salaried official appointments in connection with the work. All correspondence should be addressed to Major-General Synge, 15, Pelham-road, Southsea.

Letter to the Editor.

PRESENT AGENCIES FOR THE POOR.

SIR,—May I venture, as a constant reader of THE CHRISTIAN, to ask room for a small suggestion which I have been hoping to see made by some one else, in connection with the subject of General Booth's "In Darkest England."

Would it not be desirable, at this juncture, when so many minds are united in the desire that the help given to the unemployed and destitute poor should be enlarged, and that the wisest methods for relieving them should be employed, if a table were drawn up showing how far the work described in the various branches of General Booth's scheme is already being carried out by different societies and associations of all denominations, as well as by the clergy and ministers of regular parishes and districts? The London City Mission, the Church Army, Mr. George Holland, Mr. Catlin, and a host of others, large and small, could each furnish statistics of labour organised and already established, and with successful results, under each one of the heads which General Booth enumerates; and no doubt each of these agencies could be made far more extensive and efficient were a million of money divided among them, and £30,000 a year guaranteed in addition to what they already receive.

If the table I suggest could be arranged, with the names of the agencies, the amount expended, the work attempted, the result, so far as can be ascertained, and these placed under General Booth's own headings, the public would be able to judge whether it would be better to strengthen and support the old-established work, or to hand over large sums of money to General Booth for one gigantic effort, which would probably swamp a great deal of the work already being done, and which would be carried on under his direction by the Salvation Army alone. Of course, each of the afore-mentioned agencies has its reports and statistics, but were they all collected and thrown into one clear statement, and widely circulated, it would be more effectual.

One point should, I think, be kept clear—viz., that the work mentioned is carried on in each case among "the Submerged Tenth."—Yours,

SUGGESTION.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—For blessing on the following:—Mission in the Isle of Wight during January, by Mr. Newton Jones.——Tract distribution in the East-end of London.

WINTER IN THE RIVIERA.—Mr. E. C. Newbery (Poste Restante, San Remo) will welcome the prayers of Christians generally for his work abroad, and the co-operation therein of those who are wintering in Italy. Many believers joined him last year in praying and working for the overthrow of the Casino at Monte Carlo, the evil fruits of which make themselves painfully evident. This gentleman and his wife desire to found a Christian home in San Remo, as a protest against the Casino, and as a centre of various educational and Gospel agencies.

MENTONE.—On Monday, December 8, an interesting function took place in Mentone, the laying of the memorial stone of the Scotch church which is being erected there. The ceremony was performed by Cavaliere Thomas Hanbury, of La Mortole, in the presence of a considerable audience, which included representatives of eleven different nationalities of Europe, besides America and the Colonies. Rev. J. E. Somerville, the minister, read a statement regarding the history of the congregation, which has hitherto worshipped in various halls, but for which a church was now found to be necessary. This statement, along with various documents, newspapers, coins, and a New Testament, was deposited in a jar and placed in the memorial stone, above which the pulpit will stand. Addresses were delivered by various ministers, Scotch, English, French and German. This, before the many workmen who stood around and upon the walls, bore testimony to the unity of the Protestant faith spite of diversity of nationality, tongues, and churches. The stonework of the church is finished, and the roof is being put on. The building is very tasteful and an ornament to the place. It is much to be desired that the church should be opened free of debt. Those who in past years have profited by a visit to Mentone might help to this coveted end.

The Book World.

Old Testament Criticism.

THE FOUNDATIONS OF THE BIBLE. By R. B. Girdlestone, M.A. 3s. 6d. Eyre & Spottiswoode. Here are some valuable studies in Old Testament criticism by the former head of the translation department of the British and Foreign Bible Society. The book is an attempt to set forth the literary claims of the Pentateuch and the late historical books of the Old Testament in the light of such critical principles as are applied to other ancient histories. The result is a modification of the old view, somewhat in the direction of the new, but also a vindication of the literary fidelity of the writers and of the substantial integrity of the books. Canon Girdlestone rightly estimates modern criticism when he says that its leaders have been influenced by a disinclination to regard the Bible as unique, and a desire to associate it with what are called the "Sacred Books of the East." He deals heavy blows at some of the critics by the application of tests which they cannot repudiate. As to the Old Testament, he well says: "If any books bear the mark of fidelity, these do. If any are on the side of truth and righteousness, of God and spirit, these are. They have always had enemies, but no weapon fashioned against them has prospered." The book is intended for the ordinary English reader, as well as the student, and we trust it will assist many to gain a firm foothold with regard to the verity of Holy Writ.

THE BATTLE OF THE STANDPOINTS. The Old Testament and the Higher Criticism. By Alfred Cave, D.D. 6d. Eyre & Spottiswoode. These pages are an expansion of the paper read by the author at the meeting of the Evangelical Alliance at Manchester in October last. In a lucid statement of the critical situation, he shows the speculative character of modern "development" theories regarding the Pentateuch; and, in view of the ever-varying adjustments of the analysts, he is quite prepared for criticism to turn round one of these days, and declare that the Pentateuch was written by Moses after all! He well says: "The burden of proof manifestly lies with those who deny the Mosaic authorship of the Books of the Law. I say so because of the almost unbroken tradition, amongst both Jews and Christians, as to the Mosaic authorship. The churches of Christ are not bound to disprove every theory that men frame on religious questions; they are only bound to receive every theory which is proven." Willing that the entire facts upon which the controversy turns should be reconsidered, Dr. Cave renews his challenge of last April, in The Contemporary Review (which has not yet been taken up), that the English adherents of the development theory should state the anachronisms and contradictions which demand a composite authorship, and, among other things, give their interpretation of the constantly recurring words of the Law, "Jehovah said." This is a vigorous and useful pamphlet. We should rejoice to see it published in a still cheaper form, and distributed in large numbers.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ZIONWARD! Help on the Way to the Better Land. By Rev. George Everard, M.A. 1s. Drummond's Tract Depôt, Stirling. A trustworthy guide in spiritual affairs here develops the ways and means of the eternal life. We sincerely hope that many may be helped into that way, and likewise along it, by reading this purposeful little book.

MEMOIR OF THE LATE MRS. JULIA ADELAIDE C. DUNCAN, of Portglenone, co. Antrim, Ireland. By Rev. John Douglas, Brixton. Newport (Mon.): W. Jones, 159, Commercial-street. A simple story of a useful life. Mrs. Duncan was a descendant of the great Courtenay family, so long associated with the county of Devon. The author declares his design as to magnify the grace of God as it was so eminently manifested in the life and character of Mrs. Duncan. The book answers its purpose well.

ECHOES OF TWO LITTLE VOICES. By G. M. S., with an introduction by J. H. Wilson, D.D., Edinburgh. 1s. 6d. Hodder & Stoughton. A charming little volume, calculated to be highly useful in the proper training of children. It is not an imaginary picture of what a Christian family ought to be, but a true picture of the writer's own household, and the beautiful results of a godly mother's endeavours to bring her children to Christ. The book is suitable for presentation to parents or young people.

THE OLD TESTAMENT SCRIPTURES. By Henry Harris, B.D. 1s. Frowde. In view of present-day attacks upon the Old Testament Scriptures, Mr. Harris urges patience on the part of believers. He has more respect than we have for the temper of modern criticism. Our Lord did not regard the Old Testament as a topic for controversy, nor can we. He accepted the Book unhesitatingly, and our wisest course is to do the same.

BIRDIE'S RESOLVE, by Evelyn Everett-Green (T. Nelson & Sons), is a story for the young, describing how a little girl was the means of restoring a prodigal; but we must leave the reader to find out the "how." DULCIE'S LOVE STORY (same author and publisher) is full of love-making and mischief-making. As usual, "all comes right in the end." The tale is artificial in its particulars, and somewhat overdone.

TOHU-VA-VOHU ("Without Form and Void"). A collection of fragmentary thoughts and criticisms, by Alfred Edersheim, D.D. Edited, with a memoir, by his daughter, Ella Edersheim. 6s. Longmans. The fragments are from a manuscript book in which, with many intervals, the late Dr. Edersheim jotted thoughts on a variety of topics during the last seventeen years of his life. A wide range is covered, the notes being alternately expository and controversial, philosophical and spiritual. They are generally terse, and often pungent. The memoir is an interesting sketch of a remarkable life, and is accompanied by a capital portrait.

GENERAL GORDON. By Major Seton Churchill. 3s. 6d. Nisbet. There have been many books about General Gordon, but none so purposeful as this—"dedicated to the young men of England with the earnest desire that some of the noble, Godlike characteristics of this Christian soldier and hero may be reproduced in future generations." The events of the remarkable life are admirably brought together, the military, political, and social features being interpreted in the light of religious conviction and spiritual motive. The author well states his object to have been "to show that the stream that went forth from Gordon's heart to cheer and bless all with whom he came in contact sprang from no isolated fountain, but had its origin in the great ocean of Divine love which has existed in all ages, but was revealed more distinctly on Calvary." There is a good portrait.

WINE AND OIL FROM IMMANUEL'S LAND. By Rev. James Ormiston. 3s. 6d. Simpkin. The Bishop of Liverpool writes a hearty introduction to this attractive volume, which is well described by its author as "a series of Palestine narratives, illustrative of the Gospel of the grace of God, suggested by travels in the Holy Land." To stand within the walls of Jerusalem was the realisation of a life-dream on the part of Mr. Ormiston, who not only looked upon Bible scenes, but beheld them in the setting of history with its varied teaching and of prophecy with its abounding hopefulness. We cordially echo the words of the Bishop in the introduction: "The spiritual lessons which the author draws are all of cardinal importance, and deserve thoughtful perusal." The titles of some of the chapters raise expectations that are amply satisfied, including "Light in the Valley: or Jordan Teachings and Dead Sea Lessons"; "The Holy Land: a Genesis and a Revelation." There are copious footnotes throwing important light on the Land of the Book, also some excellent illustrations.

LIFE AND TIMES OF GIROLAMO SAVONAROLA. By Professor Pasquale Villari. Translated by Linda Villari. Two vols. 21s. T. Fisher Unwin. This is a cheaper edition of the standard work on its very attractive subject. Whether Savonarola was a precursor of the Reformation or not may be disputed, but that he was a great and powerful figure in his day, and, fearless of consequences, witnessed for God, and morality, and freedom when the bodies and souls of men were in bondage to corrupt rulers, is altogether beyond question. This work presents the fifteenth century friar as he doubtless was, its author having prosecuted long and arduous research for full and reliable information. The grandeur of the martyr consists in his "having dared to believe amid general doubt, in having upheld, against the scandals of the Borgia, and the sceptical cynicism of the philosophers, the forgotten and derided rights of Christianity, liberty, and reason." Savonarola was assuredly an earnest advocate of reform, but inside the Church of Rome this can never be possible. He stands out to the life in these volumes, which are embellished with a number of portraits and illustrations.

CLERK OR CARPENTER? a Story for Boys. B Harriett Boultwood. 1s. Charles H. Kelly. splendid boys' story it is, full of good and tru teaching, put in a most interesting form.

MARKED FOR DEATH: a Story of St. Bartholo mew. By Rev. James J. Ellis. G. Stonema We cannot have too many of these historical stori in the present flabby state of juvenile literatur Mr. Ellis cannot better use his talents than in pr viding such narratives for the boys and girls England.

LITTLE LIVES; and threads of gold to guid them. By Lady Alicia Blackwood. T. Nelson Sons. In the guise of an allegory, conceived a dream, the author sets forth the ways of li and death and the qualities that make up tru Christian character. The device of concealing anagrams the personified names will give enhanc interest to young readers.

TENERIFFE: Personal Experiences of the Islan as a Health Resort. By George W. Strettell. T. Fisher Unwin. The island of Teneriffe is grow ing in favour as a health resort. The author this book speaks from experience, and he is candi in the statement of facts, and sober in his estima of the advantages and comforts of a sojourn in th island.

INDEX ECCLESIASTICUS. Edited by Josep Foster. Parker & Co. This is a portion of a gre undertaking. Mr. Foster has in hand the pr paration of alphabetical lists of all ecclesiastic dignitaries in England and Wales since the R formation. This volume comprises the institution of the beneficed clergy from 1800 to 1840, an forms a valuable supplement to the publishe clergy lists. The work will be highly prized b biographical and literary students.

OLD-FASHIONED CHRISTIANITY. By Rev. F. Webster. 1s. Marshall Brothers. A series of sho suggestive addresses in Mr. Webster's well-know style. Such headings as "Squaring the Circle "Diana or Christ?" ought to attract the most i different. Under similar mottoes Mr. Webst points out the folly of worldliness, the misery indecision, and the blessedness of whole-heart service of Christ. We trust his little book will largely read, and that he may be spared to send o many like it.

THE INTERMEDIATE STATE BETWEEN DEAT AND JUDGMENT. By Herbert Mortimer Luckoc D.D. 6s. Longmans, Green & Co. This volum is not only largely speculative, but, coming fro the pen of one who sees authority in ecclesiastic antiquity as well as Holy Writ, it is a curiou combination of truth and error. A doctrine purgatory is recognised, and prayers for the de held to be legitimate. The "primitive sources acknowledged are very mixed, and the ease wi which the author adduces inferential "evidence is well matched by his failure to discriminate b tween that which God has surely revealed a things which men have vainly conceived.

A HISTORY OF THE JEWISH PEOPLE IN TH TIME OF JESUS CHRIST. By Emil Schürer, D. First division: vol. ii. Edinburgh: T. & T. Clar This work deals with the political history of Pale tine from B.C. 175 to A.D. 135. It is not a readi book, but a student's introduction to a great su ject. The author has made the theme his ow and there are few questions within the scope of th work that do not receive careful and comprehe sive treatment. Recent archæological discoveri are always taken into account, and the sources information uniformly stated with fulness and pr cision. This second volume, completing the wor deals largely with the Herods. There is a valuab excursus on the census of Quirinius (Luke ii. 1-5 and another as to the much-disputed passage the Antiquities of Josephus (xviii. 3, 3) with r ference to our Lord.

BIBLICAL COMMENTARY ON THE PROPHECI OF ISAIAH. By Franz Delitzsch, D.D. Translat from the fourth German edition. Vol. ii. 10s. 6 Edinburgh: T. & T. Clark. This volume of th well-known "Foreign Theological Library" con cludes a work of great value, by the late disti guished Leipzig professor. The thread of the com mentary is taken up at chap. xxviii., and every cha ter is annotated at length. The text is newly tran lated, and its peculiarities indicated; the meani is laid bare, and in difficult cases discussed with profusion of learning. Delitzsch had extraor nary talents as an expositor, and here he appears strong as in any of his many valuable works. H seems to have left no reputable source of info mation unconsulted, and the outcome of his i dustry and thought is a commentary which schola will delight to read and study.

Two story-books from the pen of Mrs. Reaney, HER TWO (2s. 6d.) and LIVING SERMONS (1s. 6d.), are marked by the pleasing characteristics of this well-known writer's tales of home life.

THAT BOY MICK, by Annie Frances Perran (Wesleyan Sunday-school Union), is a racy Irish story, illustrating at once the evils of the drink and the reward that comes to fidelity and patience.

SUNNY TEACHINGS is the title of a coloured Bible picture roll issued by Messrs. Partridge & Co. 2s. There are twelve leaves, and the contents, beautifully printed, comprise Scripture incidents and scenes, such as the young like to hear of, and whereby their interest in Bible truth may be promoted and stimulated.

DOES GOD BREAK HIS PLEDGES? or, Homiletical Germs on the Various Aspects of Prayer. By Rev. John Harries. 2s. 6d. Elliot Stock. These suggestive pages are designed to counteract the so-called scientific teaching in relation to prayer. Rev. T. Champness supplies a brief introduction, and the author has enlarged upon his original plan by adding numerous illustrations gathered from the writings of great men. The Lord's Prayer forms the theme of one half the twenty homiletical sections.

MY HEAVENLY SERVICE FOR TO-DAY. By Miss Brett, author of "Mrs. Marston's Girls." Nisbet & Co. 1s. Short readings for each day of the month, especially intended to assist members of Y.W.C.A. Such headings as "Willing Service," "Serving through Business," "Waiting Servants," "Prosperous Servants," and "Praising Servants," are in themselves full of happy suggestions. We commend this little book to the attention of Y.W.C.A. secretaries, and all who take an interest in our young women.

SOME CENTRAL POINTS IN OUR LORD'S MINISTRY. By Henry Wace, D.D., Prebendary of St. Paul's Cathedral. 6s. Hodder & Stoughton. Clear thought, cogent reasoning, and simple, deep devotion characterise these discourses. To the students of King's College they are specially adapted, and to all who desire to give a reason for the hope that is in them. The addresses on our Lord's second and third temptation, with that entitled "The Gospel of Suffering," are specially worth perusal. An excellent book for young men going to the University or preparing for the Ministry.

THE TRUE AND THE FALSE. By A. C. Dixon. 4s. Baltimore: Wharton, Barron & Co., 10, East Fayette-street. A work of sterling value, by the pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, Baltimore. Its object is to bring the light of the Gospel to bear upon the darkness of Romanism. Nine chapters set forth Christian truth in its positive aspect, and the last ten give a picture of Roman Catholicism from the Bible standpoint. We rejoice to read in the preface, "The truth as here presented has already been blessed in confirming the faith of many, and in turning not a few from the errors of Rome." Forcible in the exposure of error and superstition, this book is calculated to arrest the attention of unbelievers and secure the confidence of wavering Papists.

ANNUAL VOLUMES.

THE HOME VISITOR. Vol. xvii., New Series. Hunt. This illustrated magazine, conducted by clergymen of the Church of England, is bright and instructive. Some articles on "Old England" are an attractive feature, as also are several brief biographies on great men of the day. "Our Young Men" is the title of a series dealing with questions of an eminently practical character; and another on "Womanhood" is likewise excellent. As a district companion, this magazine should prove useful in many a parish.

THE GUIDE: A Help to Personsal Progress. Volume for 1890. 2s. Glasgow: W. Love, 226, Argyle-street. A magazine of sound instruction and timely counsels, designed to promote Christian life and work. The contents are varied and of a high order. Rev. P. A. Gordon Clark, of Glasgow, contributes a series of thoughtful articles on "The Culture of the Christ-Life." There are meditations by Rev. Dr. Fergus Ferguson, papers on "The Saviours of Society," and selections from the Puritans; also discussions on religious and moral questions. Rev. Dr. Andrew Thomson sketches the history and work of the Waldensian Church.

CHRIST'S LOOKING-GLASSES is the title of a very practical little booklet, by Rev. J. T. Wrenford, of Newport, Mon. (6d. per dozen, Partridge & Co.), containing some eminently useful lessons to the followers of Christ.

Evangelistic Notes.

Mr. William Forbes closed his services last week in North Wales. He has since been giving addresses in different districts of the metropolis.

Ireland.—Evangelistic services have been held in Manorhamilton by Rev. James Stewart, Methodist Conference Evangelist, and many professed decision for Christ.

Rev. J. F. T. Hallowes has conducted a series of mission services at Snow-hill Church, Wolverhampton. He has also held an eight days' mission at Marlborough, Wilts (pastor, Rev. H. George Fear). The meetings have been well attended, and many have received spiritual good.

Rev. R. Balgarnie has closed a successful seven days' mission at Beverley; two services for working men were held at a shipbuilding yard during dinner time. Rev. R. Shepherd, pastor, entered upon the twentieth year of his ministry at Laergate Church on the following Sunday.

Mr. J. Crofton Rainey's eight days' mission in connection with the Baptist Chapel has been very much blessed. Many have professed Christ, and a number of young people have also given evidence of being brought to a saving knowledge of the truth. SAMUEL LYNE, Pastor.

Plymouth.—A ten days' Gospel mission by Mr. Charles Cook at the Exeter Hall, Plymouth, will be remembered by not a few as a time of special blessing. The Bible-readings were greatly appreciated. The evening meetings were owned to the salvation of many. The crowning meeting of all was on Sunday, when the vast hall was crowded with a congregation of some 2200 people, who listened with a fascinated interest to an address of nearly one hour's duration. The Mayor and Mayoress of Plymouth have taken deep interest in Mr. Cook's work.

Mr. Haslam in India.—On Tuesday evening, November 18, Mr. Haslam commenced his mission in Bombay by addressing a crowded meeting at the Apollo Bunder Y.M.C.A. Rooms. The theme was "Christ receiveth sinners." On the following evening he spoke on the succeeding words, "and eateth with them" (Luke xv. 2). Among other meetings addressed was one of members of the Bombay Y.M.C.A. at the Mission House of the Church Missionary Society. Mrs. Haslam conducted a gathering of the Women Workers' Union at the Lodge, Girgaum.

Bristol.—Mr. Henry Thorne's mission at our Bristol Gospel Hall has been successful in the conversion of sinners and the edification and refreshment of saints. The afternoon Bible-readings were much appreciated, and the Gospel testimony each evening was accompanied with signs following. A good work has been done amongst the young, and this is developing more and more in our various factories, where hundreds of young women are employed. Over fifty of various ages and sexes have been dealt with in the inquiry-room, and we are hopeful that a good work has begun that will result in glory to God.

JAMES A. VICARY.

Baptist Forward Movement.—The following Missions are arranged to be conducted by Rev. F. C. Spurr, Rev. F. B. Meyer also taking part: Jan. 4-14, Poplar; Jan. 18-27, Belvedere; Feb. 1-11, Chelsea; Feb. 15-25, Westminster; March 1-11, Erith; March 15-25, Kensington; March 29 to April 7, Bexley Heath; April 11-22, Tottenham; April 25 to May 6, Forest Gate; May 9-17, Sutton; May 23 to June 3, Norwood; June 6-16, Woolwich; June 20 to July 1, Kilburn; July 4-14, Walthamstow.

"THE HOME," 2, Northcote-avenue, Kingstown, affords an open door to women wishful to leave a life of sin and shame. During last year 76 poor wanderers were received, and dealt with in various ways. Those who remained in the Homes were put to laundry work. The money earned has to be largely supplemented from without, if the institution is to be maintained. The hon. secretaries are Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Rowan, Granite Lodge, Kingstown.

CHELSEA HOSPITAL FOR WOMEN has accommodation for sixty in-patients, and there is an extensive out-patient department attached. A convalescent home in connection with the work is in course of completion at St. Leonard's-on-Sea, the institution being entirely supporoed by voluntary contributions. Annual subscriptions are specially valued. Mr. Henry E. Wright is hon treasurer, and the hospital is in the Fulham-road, S.W.

Appeals.

Christmas Cards for Soldiers.—Christmas and New Year cards are wanted for our soldiers. Parcels should be prepaid and addressed to Mr. HENRY HULL, missionary, Soldiers' Institute, Sandgate.

The Vicar and Churchwardens of St. Andrew's, Lambeth, earnestly ask for help in relieving necessitous cases in this large and poor parish. Careful investigations guaranteed. Help in money, clothing, or blankets thankfully received and acknowledged by Rev. TREVOR FIELDER, 108, Stamford-street, S.E.

Working Men's Mission, New Cut.—Funds are needed for alteration and enlargement of soup-kitchen and to carry on the winter work among the many poor who abound in the neighbourhuod of the New Cut and district.—T. and J. YOUNG, Gordon House, 1B, Vowler-street, Deacon-street, Walworth-road, S.E.

Hoxton.—Mrs. William Noble sends out her customary appeal to Christian friends for help in ministering to the comforts of the poor about Hoxton Hall, gifts of money, warm clothing, books, toys, &c., will be gratefully received. Parcels should be sent to Hoxton Hall, 134, Hoxton-street, N., and gifts of money to Mrs. NOBLE, Ringwood, Lambourne Woodlands, Hungerford, Berkshire.

Ben Jonson-road Mission.—We have begun our winter's work, and the poor of the neighbourhood will receive good soup and bread as we may be enabled to supply it. Last year 3000 poor were relieved. On watch night there will be a free supper. Garments will be given to the poor, and hungry children will be fed.—JAMES TAYLOR, founder of the Mission, Ben Jonson-road, Stepney, E.

Bermondsey.—MRS. CHESTER, 124, Southwark-park-road, S.E., appeals on behalf of the mothers' meeting she conducts in connection with the Bermondsey Ragged School. It is in one of the poorest parts of Bermondsey, held under one of the railway-arches. There are 269 members on the books, and an average weekly attendance of 200. Good spiritual work is being carried on.

Artillery-lane Mission. — The workers in this Mission appeal for help in providing food and clothing for some of the many in such great distress in this part of Spitalfields. A substantial meal to the inmates of the thirteen common lodging-houses visited could be given every Sunday evening for less than £5. Funds are much needed for general expenses also.—Mrs. S. FINN, 14, Talbot-place, St. Ann's-road, Stamford-hill, N.

Lisson-grove Mission.—The schools of this Mission, in 38, Lisson-grove, and 77, Church-street, N.W., are centres of much earnest work. The programme for December shows efforts to reach and benefit young and old, on Sundays and week-days alike. The secretary, Mr. George T. Hunt, writes:—"We are now largely in debt to our treasurer." Communications may be addressed to him at 5, St. Ann's-terrace, St. John's Wood, N.W.

Lower Clapton.—Rev. THOMAS JACKSON, 41, Powerscroft-road, Clapton, E., writes:—"A large number of families in this poor district are without fire or food. Never during the past fourteen years of our experience in mission work amongst the poor of East London have we experienced such a falling off in the contributions to benevolent work at this season of the year. Surely old and tried workers amongst the poor are not going to be forsaken by the Lord's stewards."

The Laundries of South Acton and Chiswick have been visited for short Gospel addresses while the women are at work, and it is desired to open a room where they may spend week evenings and Sundays. £50 is needed for rent and general expenses during the first year. Miss WEBSTER, Charlton, Stonebridge-park, Harlesden, N.W., who is hon. sec. of this Acton centre of the Y.M.C.A. Factory Helpers' Union, will be glad to receive furniture, or the means to purchase.

Zenana Medical College, 58, St. George's-road, S.W. —Dear Sir,—In connection with this College and the hospital for women and children, which is working with it, there are a great many sick poor women and children. The mothers of our out-patient maternity cry to us for food and warmth, and the wails of the babes ring in our ears, and the husbands answer, "Can't get work; can't pick up an honest penny." Clothes, coal, dinner, soup, and any such like tickets, will be a boon.—GEORGE G. GRIFFITH, hon. sec.

Sermon-lane Mission.—The committee appeal for £250 to enable them to carry on the benevolent operations of the Mission. At the present time (including the amount borrowed from the building fund) they are nearly a hundred pounds in arrear, and have to depend upon the response to this appeal to meet the increased expenses of their winter's work, which includes sick relief in necessitous cases, soup distribution twice in the week, dinners to the deserving poor. Contributions may be sent to Mr. WEST, 54, Liverpool-road, N.

Working Girls in London.—Gifts of ladies' left-off garments are very acceptable at any of the Homes:—Victoria House, 135 and 137, Queen's-road, Bayswater, W.; Morley House, 14, Fitzroy-street, Fitzroy-square, W.; Gordon House, 8, Endsleigh-gardens, N.W.; Woodford House, 28 and 29, Duncan-terrace, Islington, N.; Garfield House, 361, Brixton-road, S.W.; Norfolk House, 50, Well-street, Hackney, E.; Hyde House, 27, Somerset-street, W.; Lincoln House, 12, York-place, Baker-street, W.; Domgay House, 11, Fitzroy-street, Fitzroy-square, W. Address to the SUPERINTENDENT at the respective Homes, carriage paid.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Dean Perowne, of Peterboro', has been appointed Bishop of Worcester.

Rev. Dr. Stanton, Bishop of North Queensland, has accepted the see of Newcastle, New South Wales.

Rev. H. G. Daniell-Bainbridge, curate of St. John Evangelist's, Westminster, has been appointed minor canon of Westminster Abbey.

Mr. Heneage, M.P., has promised a site at Weelsby, near Grimsby, upon which the Bishop of Lincoln will build a church at his own expense.

Dr. Walsh, Prebendary of St. Paul's Cathedral, and superintendent of the London Diocesan Home Mission, has accepted the Bishopric of Mauritius.

Dr. Whipple, Bishop of Minnesota, gave an address in Westminster Abbey, the first of a series to be delivered on Saturday afternoons during this month, on foreign missions.

Dr. Harold Browne, the retiring Bishop of Winchester, has quitted Farnham Castle after a residence of seventeen years. Some local Nonconformist ministers were amongst those on the station platform to bid his lordship farewell.

The Dean of Wells has promised £100 to the Church Army Labour Home Scheme. Labour Homes will be opened in many of the largest towns in England. It is felt that the prolonged stay of two or three months under strong personal influence is more lasting in effect than casual life in shelters. The Duke of Fife has also given £25.

Rev. G. C. Grubb and Mr. Millard have returned to London from the Cape. Their mission from August 21 to November 19, says The Record, is believed to have been one of unprecedented spiritual profit. It is possible that, in answer to an invitation from the Bishop, the two missioners will leave for Melbourne early in the spring.

Intelligence has reached Zanzibar that Bishop Tucker and his party arrived at Usambiro on October 21, and are all well. They have accomplished the quickest caravan journey on record from the coast—eighty-seven days. The Bishop was awaiting Mr. Stokes's boat for transport to Uganda. Emin Pasha and Mr. Gedge were encamped three days west and east of Usambiro respectively. The former was preparing to march to Karagwe.

BAPTIST.

The trustees of Salem Chapel, Peterborough, have purchased ten cottages in the "Horse and Jockey" yard, with the intention of demolishing them. The cottages have long been a disgrace to the district.

At the missionary prayer-meeting to be held on New Year's Day in the mission-house library, Furnivall-street, Holborn, Rev. F. B. Meyer, of Regent's-park, will preside and deliver an address. The meeting will commence at eleven o'clock.

Latest accounts from Mr. Spurgeon state he is improving in health, and is able to go out daily and enjoy the sunshine at Mentone. He writes that he has had before now to be absent from friends owing to pain and weakness for upwards of three months, but hopes it will not be so again.

Calls Accepted.—Mr. S. T. Belcher, to the Strict Baptist Church, Homerton-row, London.—Mr. Marsh, of Laxfield, to Tabernacle Church, Wellingborough.—Rev. H. H. Gomme, formerly of London, to oversight of the church meeting in Birkdale Town Hall, Southport.—Rev. Kenneth Bond, Nottingham Baptist College, to Swadlincote, near Burton-on-Trent.—Rev. G. W. Oldring, to Bildesten, Suffolk.

METHODIST.

Dr. Wood, of Southport, has given £500 to General Booth, and £500 to Wesleyan Missions.

A Primitive Methodist Convention for the promotion of evangelistic work in Leeds and York District has been held at New Wortley.

A valedictory service, to bid farewell to Revs. Bryan Roe and J. Claudius May, on their departure for missionary work, bas been held at Newcastle.

A successful temperance mission was conducted last week at Wardour Hall. Over two hundred signed the pledge on the first three nights of the mission.

Bishop Thoburn, in an address to the General Missionary Committee in America, said they were making more progress now in India every three months than they used to do in ten years.

Mr. John Skidmore, the veteran Black Country evangelist, has been compelled by failing health to retire from the plan, and it is proposed to recognise his long services in some tangible form.

The Wesleyan Allan Library, a very valuable collection of books, 30,000 in number, will shortly be open to the Methodist people. The President of Conference is to open the fine suite of rooms in the city of London next year, in connection with the Wesley Memorial.

The Royal Commissioners of the Patriotic Fund have directed that orphan girls belonging to the Wesleyan Church, daughters of deceased sailors, soldiers, and marines, shall be admitted to the Royal Victoria Patriotic Asylum, and that the religious ministration of their own Church shall be afforded to them.

The restaurant at Cleveland Hall has been doing excellent service for the West London Mission. The coffee bar has been a place of rendezvous for mission workers, and has provided an evening home for many friends. Beef tea and nourishing food, sent by Dr. Barrett and Sister Frances, have been the best of medicine to many of the sick folk of the neighbourhood. Many are driven to the first wrong step by starvation.

Attention is being directed to the great difference between the number of children in the Sunday-schools (nearly a million), and those returned as belonging to the Bands of Hope, only 44,000 being enrolled in the latter. The temperance committee has decided to recommend the issue of quarterly tickets to all scholars whose names are enrolled as abstainers on a pledge book to be kept by the Sunday-school teachers. This will mean an addition of several thousands in the official returns at the next census.

At the City-road Wesleyan Chapel, on Monday morning, Dr. Parker gave an address to a large company of Wesleyan ministers on preaching. At the conclusion, he said, with great emphasis, "I bless God that if I am not a preacher, I am nothing. I love to preach. I live to preach. When Thursday comes I feel that I have two days in one, because I have to preach at noon. On Sundays I wake and thank God for the privileges of the day. When I find a minister who likes Monday morning better than Sunday morning, I give him up."

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

George Snellgrove and wife, from the Isle of Wight, have concluded a two months' mission at Chipping Sodbury, Bristol Monthly Meeting. About forty meetings have been held in the meeting-house and other places in the neighbourhood. Mr. and Mrs. Snellgrove have done a good work in visiting the peopte in their homes, and it is believed many have been led to Christ. Sodbury meeting-house was opened about five years ago, and is in a very flourishing condition.

SALVATION ARMY.

All The World is enlarged to eighty pages with the New Year; price sixpence.

Colonel McKie is holding large and successful meetings throughout the Transvaal.

General Booth's book, "In Darkest England," is to be translated into the French, German, Dutch, and Swedish languages.

A convert in Australia has given £75 to the Maori work, and an officer £195 towards the extension of Salvationist operations in Africa.

Hon. Joseph Foote has given the Army at Ipswich, Queensland, the freehold of their barracks and officers' quarters, estimated to be worth £1000.

Baroness Margarethe von Lilienkreutz, daughter of a Swedish knight, and widow of a Swedish captain, has come under the influence of the Army in Berlin. She was formerly well known in St. Petersburg, Stockholm, and Berlin.

PRESBYTERIAN.

A well-known London elder has just contributed £250 towards the Foreign Mission Fund, with a view, no doubt, to stimulate others to co-operate with him in clearing off a threatened deficit of £4000 at the end of the year.

A rumour has somehow got abroad that at the close of Rev. J. McNeill's month of Sunday evening services at Westminster Chapel there is a possibility of his deciding to accept the pastorate of that congregation; we are desired to say that this statement is without foundation.

CONGREGATIONAL.

The health of Dr. Clement Clemance, since his retirement from the pastorate at Camberwell, has so greatly improved that he will now be able to frequently place his services at the disposal of the churches.

A special service will be held in the City Temple on Christmas morning, at eleven o'clock. Dr. Parker intends to send out his Christmas messages to Mr. Gladstone, General Booth, Mr. Spurgeon, and others.

A building has been rented by Trinity Church, Glasgow, at Eaglesham, as a Home for convalescent children. A member of the Trinity congregation has promised to save this expense by giving the freehold of a house near Lanark.

Mr. Charles Fenwick, M.P., preached recently at the Morley Memorial Church, Fishponds, Bristol, special services being held to mark the fourth anniversary. Large congregations greatly appreciated the moral ring of the preacher's utterances in reference to temperance and national morality.

Promoters of Mansfield College Settlement in the East-end of London have taken a house in Barking-road for residents and meetings of committee. Two large shops have also been secured, to be converted into a centre for the activities of the Settlement. A large hall will be built on vacant ground at the back.

Resignations.—Rev. J. Fleming, the pastorate at Ilkeston.—Rev. D. Jones resigns the pastorate at Pinchbeck, Spalding, on April 5.—Rev. C. Thompson, the pastorate at Greenacres, Oldham.

Calls Accepted.—Rev. J. R. Legge, M.A., Marple, to Buckhurst-hill, Londen.—Mr. A. W. Groom, Nottingham Institute, as assistant to Rev. J. Haigh, of Nether Church, Sheffield.—Rev. J. Sidebottom, nine years pastor of Roe-street Church, Macclesfield, to Brightside, Sheffield.—Rev. T. E. M. Edwards, Southampton, to Abingdon, to succeed Rev. S. Lepine, who a short time since resigned the pastorate, which he held for forty-five years, the church generously voting him an annuity of £50 for life.—Rev. A. D. Anderson, Musselburgh, Midlothian, to Grimshaw-street Church, Preston.—Rev. Stephen Clarke, from the church at Castle-street, Abergavenny, to Broadway.—Mr. John Solon Rees, Nottingham College, to the English Church, Llanhilleth, Mon.

NOTES FROM IRELAND.

A series of "Pleasant Saturday Nights" has been commenced by Rev. R. Cole, in the Methodist Schoolroom, Banbridge, under hopeful auspices.

A two days' convention of Methodist ministers and office-bearers has been held at Clones, when such subjects as "Effectual Prayer," "Special Services," "The Duty of the Church towards the Drink Traffic," and "towards Amusements," and "What is a Christian?" were considered.

Mrs. Adair, Rathdurse, Kildare, has erected a parish church in memory of her husband at a cost of £8000.

Mr. William Mulligan has been formally appointed by the Presbyterian Board of Missions as a missionary to the Bheels and other jungle tribes of India, and has sailed for his field of labour.

Thirteen hundred and eighty-nine of the officers and men at present stationed at the Curragh Camp have signed a memorial asking that the Wesleyan Soldiers' Home at the Camp should be enlarged.

A class which promises to be a great blessing to the town has been established in connection with the Methodist Sunday-school, Enniskillen, by Mr. S. B. Humphreys, for the sake of mutual help in the spiritual life.

The Y.W.C.A. has been steadily extending its influence through all parts of Ireland. In Belfast and co. Antrim alone there are now twenty-four branches and 1500 members, while in co. Down there are 900 members. A deep interest is also taken in foreign missions, and during the year two of the members went out to China in connection with the China Inland Mission, and are maintained there by the Association.

The Irish Presbyterian Church has seven mission schemes, and, according to the latest reports, the missionaries are prosecuting their work with undiminished ardour. In Spain they are meeting with determined opposition from the Romanist priesthood; cholera is threatening the Jewish Mission in Damascus; in India and China Messrs. Blair and others are doing earnest work; and in Hamburg Mr. Aston has most hopeful openings among the Russian Jews, and has 400 children in his Sunday-school.

SCOTLAND.

Miss Jessie Scott, of Ladyloan, goes out as an agent of the Free Church Ladies' Society for Female Education in India and Africa.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Mr. Eagland Bray, J.P., well known in the commercial and religious circles of Halifax, and formerly a member of the Town Council.—Rev. A. Clayton (Wesleyan), Retford.—Mr. Samuel Rigby, J.P., deacon of the Northgate Congregational Church, Chester.—Rev. J. Thompson, for some time vicar of Christ Church, Barnston, Cheshire.—Mr. Robert Slater, a member of the Leeds Town Council, and a prominent member of the local Wesleyan society.—Rev. John Adams (Baptist), Welshpool.—Miss Lloyd, sister of the Bishop of Bangor.—Rev. John Bowman (Wesleyan), Liverpool.—Councillor Lees, Mayor of West Bromwich, Staffs.—Rev. E. T. Polehampton, rector of Hartfield, Tunbridge Wells.—Mrs. Patterson, wife of the Rev. Samuel Patterson, Methodist minister, Maynooth, co. Kildare.

MRS. ANNA SHIPTON, her many friends will be glad to hear, has just published a new book, entitled "The Hearing Heart" (1 Kings iii. 9) through Messrs Nisbet & Co. The price is 1s. 6d.

MEDICAL MISSIONS IN GLASGOW.—The annual meeting of the Glasgow Medical Missionary Society was held last week, Mr. J. C. White presiding. Dr. G. M. Connor, the superintendent of Moncur-street Dispensary, stated that during the year 25,163 consultations had been given at the dispensary, and several thousand visits had been paid to patients at their own homes. Dr. Templeton, superintendent of the Oxford-street dispensary, reported that 6076 patients had made in all 15,736 visits in person or by deputy to the dispensary. There were also some thousand consultations at the patients' homes.

CAMDEN TOWN.—Some few months ago the Royal Park Hall was engaged for Gospel services by Mr. John Myers, a young man who has for some time laboured in Camden Town, and is a speaker of some power. The Mission is characterised by aggressive work of various kinds, and the public position of the hall renders it specially suitable. The services held each Sabbath (children in the afternoon, adults in the evening) are bright, and enlivened by instrumental music. Mr. Myers started single-handed, but is now supported by a small staff of workers, earnest in their proclamation of the "old, old, story." They have been cheered by seeing conversions among their hearers. The co-operation of Christians in the work will be welcomed. We believe, too, that the weekly expense (for hire of hall, &c.) is considerable.

THE BROMPTON HOSPITALS FOR CONSUMPTION, established in 1841, have been a source of benefit to many thousands of sufferers. The parent hospital has accommodation for 210 in-patients; and a large extension building, on the opposite side of the Fulham-road, providing 137 additional beds, was opened in 1882. The new building contains a spacious out-patients' department, and is fitted with every modern appliance which can conduce to the well-being and comfort of the inmates. This important charity is unendowed, and is almost entirely dependent on voluntary contributions. The expenditure is £10,000 a year beyond the more or less permanent annual income, to which is now added the cost of maintenance of the extension, amounting to some thousands a year more. Mr. H. Dobbin is secretary of the Hospital.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas Richardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E., of whom card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, prepared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope many of our readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," and take its Monthly Notes, which of course are entirely different from these.

SUNDAY, DEC. 21.—Isaiah XXV.

THE thought of God's reign with which the previous chapter closes leads to this exquisite song of praise. We may anticipate, as we read it, the song of the redeemed, delivered from the spiritual Babylon (Rev. xix.). To join in that song may be nearer than we think.

1-5. THANKSGIVING.—When God has mightily succoured us, it becomes us to thank Him. He is the faithful God. The True or Amen (Rev. iii. 14). 3. When Babylon fell, and the Jews went free, the strong and terrible nations over whom she had exercised her tyrannous power broke out in glad expressions of reverence for Jehovah. 4. How tenderly does God suit his help to our need, whether for strength, or refuge, or shadow. As the heat of a sultry day is reduced by the delicate veil of cloud, so shall the branch (i.e., the offspring) of the terrible ones be brought down.

6-9. BLESSING FOR THE WHOLE EARTH.—This prediction has been surely realised in the Gospel emanating from Jerusalem. The choicest dainties of the spiritual life are provided for all nations in Jesus Christ. The veil here referred to may be the dread of death and of the hereafter (2 Tim. i. 10; Heb. ii. 14). The last enemy, death, shall be destroyed, and Christ shall appear a second time without sin unto salvation (Heb. ix. 28). All who wait for God shall at last rejoice in Him. The full realisation of this prediction will come, when the Jews have been restored and converted. Oh! blessed time when our God shall wipe away all tears, destroying even their fountains (Rev. xxi. 4).

10-12. SALVATION AND ITS PRICE.—"Rest," i.e., permanent protection. Moab represents all the foes of God's people. Is not the spreading forth of the hands an anticipation of the cross? By that death our Lord has laid the foundation of victory over all our foes. Compare John xxi. 18, 19.

MONDAY, DEC. 22.—Isaiah XXVI.

This song shall be sung by the restored people when the present Jew-hate has worked itself out, and, instead of being wanderers through the world, they are reinstated in their own country. It shall be sung "in the land of Judah." No doubt, when Babylon fell under Cyrus, the remnant under Ezra and Nehemiah did sing it, but that was only a foreshadowing of the singing which is yet to be.

1-6. THE RIVAL CITIES.—This contrast between the safety and blessedness of God's people and the defeat of the alien comes to a climax in the Apocalypse, where the New Jerusalem and Babylon are contrasted. 3. This "peace, peace," is one of God's double doors. Peace like a double row of sentries keeps the door (Phil. iv. 7). 4. What a combination is this of Jehovah the Redeemer with the unchanging strength of the Rock of Ages. Our trust in such a one should be as permanent as his love, "for ever."

7-15. THE CONTRASTED CITIZENS.—The way of the just is directed to a prosperous issue and levelled. 8. These desires after God are the reflection of God's desires after us. They are the drawings of his Spirit. Notice the recurrence of the word "upright." 12. "In us" should be "for us." God is the author of our peace and of our success in Christian work. 13. Happy if we can see the tyrant Egyptian lusts dead on the seashore, never again to revive.

16-19. CONTRAST BETWEEN THE PAST AND PRESENT.—Pour out prayers as a vessel empties its contents; though, as the Hebrew suggests, those prayers are but whispers. How often do we despair of all our efforts, just when they are about to be crowned with success. And it is true that, apart from God, we can work no deliverance in the earth; but, when He speaks, the dead live. 19. Surely our Lord, as the anti-typical Israel, is speaking here. His resurrection is the pledge of ours. And all who are in graves of sorrow, sin, and death, may hear this voice and live.

20, 21. A CONTRASTED FATE.—Whilst to God's people there is an invitation like that which summoned Noah to enter the ark in the days of the Flood, to the ungodly there is a terrible prognostication of coming woe, as all innocent blood shed, and other wrongs done, shall be avenged (Rev. xvi. 6). Would that all who read this page might resemble the Israelites of old in being inside the blood-besprinkled door!

TUESDAY, DEC. 23.—Isaiah XXVII.

The judgment of hostile nations, as representing the world powers of succeeding ages, and ultimately Antichrist, is the theme of this chapter, which is closely connected with the previous one. Note the recurrence of the words "in that day."

1. THE DESTRUCTION OF THE ENEMY.—Piercing may be rendered "darting from side to side," and crooked, "twisting, wriggling." Egypt and Babylon are primarily intended.

2-6. THE VINEYARD AND ITS DRESSER.—How blessed to feel that we have not to keep God, but God us; and that He does not relax his care for a moment, watering us amid the arid desert-sand. All his fury is turned away, there is none in Him. But those who oppose are as thorns, which are trampled under foot. But even the foes of God's people may flee for refuge to Jesus Christ (1 Kings ii. 28). This wondrous prediction shall be fulfilled when the Jews are the evangelists of the Gospel to the ends of the earth.

7-11. CHASTISEMENT AND PUNISHMENT.—Between these there is a great difference. The former is always "in measure"; the stroke is tempered to the strength of the sufferer; and it results in purging out iniquity. After the Captivity, altars, groves, and images, were never revived in Israel. 10. For a time the chosen city was left desolate, trodden by fuel-gatherers, instead of by busy throngs. But still none of these things would be equal to the smiting of their foes.

12, 13. RESTORATION.—The image is borrowed from the shaking or beating of fruit from trees before it is gathered. Note God's individual work, "one by one." The trump of Jubilee shall yet summon the wanderers back to God and their land (Lev. xxiii. 24).

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 24.—Isaiah XXVIII.

This chapter begins a new series of prophecies, extending to the end of xxxiii. Its burden is the approaching destruction of the ten tribes, the sins and follies of Judah, and pressing warnings against departing from God.

1-4. EPHRAIM.—Samaria is here compared to a crown or garland on the nation's head. The people were habituated to the sin of drunkenness (Amos iv. 1). 4. The Assyrian Shalmaneser would not only conquer but destroy her.

5-13. JUDAH.—A series of exquisite contrasts. Not a crown of pride, but of glory; not beauty as a fading flower, but as a diadem; the judgment and strength which others get from the flesh shall, in the case of God's elect, be obtained from Himself. 7. Drunkenness was rapidly infecting even the religious leaders. 9, 10. The ribald remarks addressed by drunkards to the prophet are here recited. They thought he took them for babes, and mimicked the repetition with which he enforced his words. 11. Isaiah replies that God would yet speak to them by the stern accents of a foreign tongue, which might indeed seem to be like stammering. 12. And all this because they would not heed the gentle accents of his voice wooing to rest.

14-22. THE ASSYRIAN ALLIANCE DENOUNCED.—The leaders of Judah in the beginning of Hezekiah's reign had made an alliance with Assyria, and they relied upon this as guaranteeing their safety, whatever might befall Israel; and even though the Assyrian armies should pass through on their way to punish Egypt (2 Kings xvii. 4). This prophecy of the precious Corner-stone was perhaps not fully understood by Isaiah at the time of its utterance, but the meaning has been abundantly revealed by the Holy Ghost (Matt. xxi. 42; Eph. ii. 20; 1 Peter ii. 7). Christ was well tested by man and devil; He is precious; and He unites. All our excuses and efforts are too short and too narrow for us, when God enters into judgment. Perazim (2 Sam. v. 18, 20). Gibeon (Josh. x. 10). The particular feature in each of these cases was that God fought for Israel against their foes. His strange act was to smite the Guiltless that the guilty might go free.

23-29. ADAPTATION OF MEANS TO ENDS.—24. The husbandman is not always engaged in ploughing and harrowing. When the ground is levelled, he begins to sow. So God's severest discipline is for a distinct reason. 27. Vetches or dill are so delicate that they are beaten out with a staff, not with the heavy corn-drag, used sometimes to cut straw for fodder. Bread-corn suffers a far severer process; thus was it with our Lord, the corn of wheat which fell into the ground to die; but even here there is a limit which may not be passed over. So does God adapt his processes of discipline to our need and strength. He will not send more suffering than He knows we can bear. The heavy judgment fell on Jesus.

THURSDAY, DEC. 25.—Isaiah XXIX.

The invasion of Judah by Sennacherib, and its deliverance.

1-8. THE SIEGE OF JERUSALEM.—Ariel means Lion of God. In the space of two years, in spite of all the temple ritual, the foe would be at the gates, and the chosen city should be brought low. But even in her extremity help would come. 6. This may have been literally fulfilled during the night of the destruction of the Assyrian hosts, or it may be metaphorical. 8. The dreamer wakes at the very moment when he expects his appetite to be appeased, and finds his expectation disappointed; so would it be with the Assyrian in his moment of expected triumph.

9-14. BLINDNESS OF HEART.—When men refuse to obey the summons of God's voice, they cease to understand it. The learned and unlearned are in the same predicament. The source of ignorance is clearly noted to be moral in ver. 13. St. Paul quotes from this passage to show how God gives up the disobedient to judicial blindness (Rom. xi. 8; 1 Cor. i. 19).

15, 16. The Jewish statesmen were bent on forming secret alliances, but it would be in vain for them to hide from God. How hopeless is the device of the hypocrite!

17-24. DELIVERANCE.—There is a foreshadowing here not only of immediate aid, but of great spiritual blessings, great as if the woods of Lebanon were turned into pasture lands. The meek and poor in spirit have reason to be glad when the accuser is cast out. We need never anticipate the waxing pale of face, for they that walk with God, and wait for God, can never be ashamed.

FRIDAY, DEC. 26.—Isaiah XXX.

In the year 714 B.C., the Jews sent ambassadors to seek help against Assyria. This was in distinct violation of God's repeated commands, and was vigorously denounced by Isaiah, as adding sin to sin. One sin ever leads to another. The Jewish ambassadors might have reached the capital cities of Egypt, and concluded an alliance, but it would not help them.

4-7. THE IMPOTENCE OF EGYPT.—The beasts of burden might traverse the deserts with presents and bribes, but it would be in vain. Little did the people of God realise that their true strength was to be still and trust Him.

8-11. SMOOTH THINGS AND DECEITS.—Men do not care to know the truth. They like the prophet to fall in with their own whims. The word "table" should be tablet.

12-17. RETURNING AND REST.—From all sin there is a recoil on the sinner, at first imperceptible as the swelling of a bowing wall (Ps. lxii. 3); but finally, utter and terrible. The true policy was to recall the ambassadors and to wait on God for help. This they refused, and clung to the Egyptians, famous for their splendid horses. It is a message for all: return to God, and rest in Him.

18-26. MERCY.—God waits as well as man, and at the first symptom of contrition He hastens to deliver, to remove his judgments, and to bring back prosperity. Peter at Pentecost is allowed still to use the keys, though so lately restored.

27-33. JUDGMENT.—Jehovah is represented as coming to avenge his people and judge the Assyrian. 29. The songs of the redeemed are beautifully described, as like those of the solemn religious feasts. 32. "And every stroke of the appointed staff, which the Lord shall lay upon him, shall be with tabrets and harps" (R.V.). Tophet was a grove or garden outside the city-walls, where the refuse of the city was burnt. And the reference of the prophet is evidently to the utter destruction, as of waste, which should light down on the gathered hosts of Israel's foes. Thus in wrath does God remember mercy, and interposes on behalf of those whom He has foreknown.

SATURDAY, DEC. 27.—Isaiah XXXI.

The alliance with Egypt is still unsparingly denounced, as in the previous chapter.

1. This is the perpetual sin of putting means before God, and of trusting in the arm of flesh. We cannot do this without departing from the living God.

2. He also, i.e., God.

4, 5. As a lion defies a company of shepherds, so would the Almighty treat the might of Zion's foes. As birds hover over their young, to protect them from the kestrel, so would God gather his own beneath his wings of protecting love. As the angel passed over the blood-stained door, so would He spare his people and destroy their foes.

6, 7. When men cast away all creature-aid for God, then they are delivered.

8. On the flower and chivalry of Assyria being laid low, Sennacherib fled homewards from the sword (xxxvii. 37). The young men, i.e., his army, should melt away.

9. The Shekinah of God's presence in the midst of his people may well strike panic into the hearts of those who would do them hurt (Ps. xlvi.).

NEWS FROM CAPE HORN.

INTELLIGENCE has been received from Mr. Leonard H. Burleigh who, with his wife and daughter, landed two years ago on Wollaston Island, in the vicinity of Cape Horn. The inhabitants were then "savages and of the wretchedest type." Much anxiety has been felt as to Mr. and Mrs. Burleigh's safety; but, though they were daily surrounded by lawless natives they have been marvellously preserved, and the Indians at the station are found to have become quiet, docile, clean people. The mission home is merely a hut, but the settlement comprises church, school, orphanage, store, and outhouses. "The missionary's presence," writes Bishop Stirling, "has been a dissolvent of many evil customs, and the means of brightening and softening dark and hard lives. Infanticide has been checked, if not wholly eradicated; and the medicine man is giving way to the power of the true physician."

The South American Missionary Society's vessel, the Allen Gardiner, arrived with supplies when the Burleigh's were baking their last flour. The crew of a shipwrecked vessel, consisting of eighteen officers and men, had been guided to the station by friendly natives and hospitably entertained.

LEYSIAN MEDICAL MISSION.—Much good work of many kinds among the poor has been done during 1889 in connection with the mission-room in Errol-street, as recorded in the report which we have received. Dr. Griffiths gives much time to the Mission and the visitation of poor patients at their homes; while Mrs. Griffiths and other ladies hold Gospel services for the benefit of those who wait for medical attention. Coal and clothing clubs and temperance meetings are among the operations, and a Bible-woman is very earnestly engaged in the endeavour to win souls to Christ, while distributing relief, which might be extended to many more needy persons, did funds permit. Additional scope has been given to the work by the loan of Rev. Styleman Herring's mission-room in Goswell-road, wherein one of the mothers' meetings, held on Tuesdays, has an average attendance of 120. The report proves that the work has grown beyond the domain of private charity and effort. Mrs. Griffiths resides at 45, Finsbury-square, E.C.

Miss Skinner, authoress of the "Friendly Letters Series," has now left Bath; her present address is c/o Mrs. J. WILLIAMS, Court-street, Madeley, Shropshire.

The New Year's Meeting of the officers and missionaries of the London City Mission will take place on January 1, at 11 a.m., in the Lower Exeter Hall. The address will be given by Rev. E. W. Moore, Wimbledon. Local superintendents of missionaries and friends of the Society who wish to be present can obtain tickets for admission on application to the SECRETARIES, 3, Bridewell-place, E.C.

Packets for Soldiers.—Mrs. EVERED POOLE, Rockholme, Southampton, writes:—"I have had thirty-four responses in answer to my appeal from friends wishing to 'adopt' soldiers as recipients of letters and occasional packets of good literature. Thirty fresh names have come in from the Clive, and still thirty remain unsupplied from the Tamar and Serapis. Who will undertake this?"

Intra, Lago Maggiore.—Miss Jane Cox writes concerning this work, of which details were given in our issue of Aug. 8. The present needs are a Christian lady who will act as a "mother" to sixteen orphan girls and another lady for the boys' orphanage. The workers are voluntary, but board and lodging would be given if required. Miss DE WET, Morley Hall Y.W.C.A., Regent-street, will gladly see ladies who may desire to serve in this way.

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, December 28.

REVIEW OF THE QUARTER'S LESSONS.

GOLDEN TEXT: HEB. v. 8.

REPEAT the Golden Text. Remember with whom these lessons deal—"Son," and recall "the things which He suffered," as described in the first eight lessons. Of "the glory which followed" we have a glimpse in the remaining lessons of the quarter. To tell the story simply and vividly is the best way to review the quarter's lessons.

The first lesson finds Jesus on Tuesday of the Passion week in the temple (xx. 9-19). He foretold the treatment He was about to receive, as a warning to his enemies. They recognised that the parable applied to them; but did they receive the warning? See ver. 19. By the Golden Text (Isa. liii. 3) show that others, besides the Jews, are rejecting Jesus.

The second and third lessons bring us to "the night on which He was betrayed," when Jesus sits with his disciples in an upper room in Jerusalem (xxii. 7-20, 24-37). His sufferings are again vividly presented in the ordinance He instituted. Memory and hope are both helped by this ordinance (1 Cor. xi. 26). He could anticipate his death with calmness, because He saw "the joy that was set before Him." What spirit is necessary on our part before we can share in his glory (Phil. ii. 5).

In Gethsemane (xxii. 39-53), we may see how severe the Saviour's sufferings were. He had no sleep that night; the anguish He had to bear was too great. Remember that it was sin that caused his anguish. Whose sin? Not his own. Was it yours?

In the next three lessons we see the unwearying activity of his enemies. Repeat the story of his arrest, and of his appearance before Annas and Caiaphas. The first meeting of the council was illegal, being held between midnight and six o'clock. Hence the necessity of another meeting when "it was day" (66). On what charge did the Sanhedrim condemn Him (70, 71)? How was He treated by the high priest's servants (63-65)? and by Peter (54-62)? His next trial was before Pilate (xxiii. 1-7); then before Herod (8-12); and back again to Pilate (13-25). Lessons are suggested by the Saviour's silence when such false charges were preferred against Him; by Pilate, knowing the right, warned against the wrong, yet not daring to act according to his judgment; and by Herod, once so promising a hearer, but now hardened beyond the possibility of impression.

Repeat the story of the crucifixion (33-47). It was preceded by scourging, and was made still more ignominious and painful by every form of insult which could be devised. Yet even this could not quench the Saviour's love for his enemies (34); and while hanging in apparent weakness, He could speak the word of salvation to the dying thief (39-43).

The remaining lessons show: (1) that the disciples were not expecting the resurrection of Jesus. They evidently considered that with his death all their hopes concerning Him were blighted. (2) That in spite of most obstinate unbelief they were at last convinced. They had abundant opportunity for knowing, for He gave them "many infallible proofs" (xxiv. 36-43). So strong was their conviction that they were ready to face death in bearing their testimony.

The whole quarter's lessons suggest: (1) A contrast between man's treatment of Jesus and God's.—Man casts Him out, seeks to cover Him with every indignity, and to visit Him with most degrading and painful torture. Don't charge the guilt of this on the Jews alone. It is sin—yours and mine—which treats the Saviour so. But God deals with Him differently. Instead of a cross, God gives Him a throne.

(2) The certain defeat of the enemies of Jesus.—There are such to-day. However, successful they appear to be, failure must surely follow (Luke xx. 17, 18).

(3) Warning against vacillation as exhibited in Pilate (Matt. xii. 30); and against resisting impressions, as in Herod (contrast Mark vi. 20, with Luke xxiii. 8-11).

(4) The sufficiency of Christ's work for us.—Death, resurrection, ascension, are not these enough? See Rom. iv. 25, viii. 34.

CONTINENTAL & FOREIGN NOTES.

PARIS.—It is said that there are thirty thousand Buddhists in Paris. Not retaining God in their knowledge, many Frenchmen yearn after the mystical.—One outcome of the recent fraternal conferences is an increased desire on the part of pastors to engage in evangelistic work.—The baptismal ordinance has of late been much discussed among French Protestants. During the past few weeks M. Saillens, the Paris pastor, has immersed several ministers on a profession of their faith.

THE Y.M.C.A. IN SCANDINAVIA.—In Sweden the Associations are inter-denominational, but in Norway they are connected with particular churches. Notwithstanding this diversity of composition, the Associations have formed a Scandinavian Alliance. During the past year the Stockholm Association has doubled its membership, which now stands at 550. It has started a section in the centre of a working-class population, providing a general secretary, and arranging a course of educational lectures. New members have flocked in, and an enlargement of the premises has become necessary.

THE RELIGIOUS ORDERS IN FRANCE.—The new legislation on the property of religious orders in France is likely to lead to one important result. In future the trustees of the properties of the Marists, Lazarists, Christian Brothers, Sisters of Charity, Sisters of Nazareth, Carthusians, and other corporations will reside in England. All available property will be transferred to English banks, and letters of administration or probate will be taken out in London. A Roman prelate has stated that nearly all the funds of Roman Catholic Christendom are invested in English securities or house property, including the reserve of the Papacy itself.

MONTE CARLO is still a habitation of sin and shame. The play-house belongs to a company with a capital of thirty million francs, on which last year's dividend was at the rate of thirty-two per cent. It is calculated that the players lost in that period fifty or sixty million francs. Every effort is made to cover up the misery which results from the wickedness enacted, but the fact has leaked out that last year there were eighty-seven suicides of persons who had lost largely at the gaming tables. The Journal Religieux de la Suisse Romande well says:—"Monaco is one of the most beautiful spots on earth, but men have made it a den of thieves."

AN IGNOBLE TRAFFIC.—Attention has been called in L'Eclaireur (Castres, Tarn) to a scandalous commerce that goes on in Paris more or less throughout the year. At certain low taverns professional mendicants are met every morning by women who let out their children for so much a day, either to beg from the passers-by, or to be carried in arms and excite pity. It is said that in the winter as many as three thousand children are thus disposed of daily, the mothers receiving payment ranging from one to five francs, according to age and sex; while for girls who will follow foot passengers and sell flowers a still higher price is paid. This infamous traffic is, of course, productive of numerous and lasting evils, physical and moral.

CHILI.—The Presbyterian Mission has five organised churches, as well as preaching halls in the principal towns of the country. Evangelists make long tours sowing the word of life. There are two schools, an elementary one at Valparaiso, attended by two hundred scholars, and a superior institution at Santiago, with eighty scholars, some of whom have come from homes in Peru and Bolivia. A young Spanish pastor, M. Francesco Diez, who studied at Lausanne, has recently settled at Santiago in connection with the Mission. At Valparaiso there is a flourishing German church, and at Traigen the Swiss pastor, M. Leutwyler, has his headquarters for work on behalf of the six thousand Swiss scattered throughout the country.

THE ROMISH PRIESTHOOD AND FRENCH INSTITUTIONS.—Far-seeing Protestants are considering with serious apprehension the changed attitude of the Romish priesthood to French institutions. There has of late been a turn towards Republicanism on the part of the Papal clergy. A writer in L'Evangeliste remarks that the change owes its origin to the fact that the monarchical spirit has been so crushed as to represent a lost cause. The conversion of the priests to the Republic is, he says, a new confirmation of the cruel saying of Cardinal Czachi with regard to the Comte de Chambord, "The Church does not side with the vanquished." While, therefore, Republicans have no reason to be astonished at the direction from which their cause has been recruited, there never was more need for wisdom and firmness in guarding the liberties which established principles represent.

MILITARY SERVICE IN FRANCE.—The incorporation of the Seminarists in France does not quite solve the question of equality of military service. In the south, particularly in the departments of Hérault and Gard, there is a small sect known as "The White Religion," or Hinschism, named after its founder, Madame Hinsch. The members of this sect absolutely refuse to bear arms. The military authorities have uniformly set themselves to break the resistance, and, as a last resource, have drafted the Hinschists to serve in the hospitals. This year, however, with the Seminarists taking their part in the service, the "Hinschist question" has become specially acute. A number of men belonging to the sect recently surrendered themselves, but declared their resolve not to bear arms. The difficulty is enhanced by the policy of equality, which, in effect, says, "We cannot treat any class more leniently than the Seminarists."

WORK AT PORTSMOUTH AND ALEXANDRIA.

£5,000 URGENTLY NEEDED

BY MISS ROBINSON.

PRESSING ANXIETIES have arisen during the past twelve months. GENEROUS FRIENDS have been removed by death. PERSONAL TRIALS have sorely taxed her strength.

BUT PRAISE be to God, His presence and power were never so manifest, souls are saved, and the workers richly blessed. Christian friends are invited to COME AND SEE.

IN ADDITION to the sum annually needed for carrying on the work, the SPECIAL EXPENSES during 1890 were:

I. Sailors' and Soldiers' Institute, Alexandria, Egypt: extensive Builders' Repairs from the WALLS SINKING, notwithstanding that the foundations were laid 12 ft. wide.

II. The ADDITION OF A WING to the Portsmouth Soldiers' Institute, for "MARRIED QUARTERS" during the Trooping Season, giving 14 more rooms, and a nice playground for the children.

III. The PURCHASE of the Freehold of One House and the Furniture of five others, known as the "OFFICERS' HOUSE," the whole forming one establishment, to be conducted henceforth on Christian and Temperance principles, and to be utilised as a SEASIDE RESORT for Christian Workers and for friends desirous of seeing the work of our INSTITUTES.

IV. The BUILDING and fittings of the "SPEEDWELL" GOSPEL HALL, Landport, with Class Rooms above, and Sleeping Cabins for Soldiers and Sailors.

V. The General EXTENSION of our Mission work, which, when fully organised, will comprise (a) The nightly preaching of the Gospel; (b) Mothers' Meetings, Children's Meetings, and similar agencies; (c) Colportage and gratuitous circulation of Gospel books; (d) Medical and Nursing Mission; (e) Invalid Kitchen, and cookery for the Destitute, including free Sunday Breakfasts; (f) Labour Yard and Sheds; (g) Rescue of lost Girls and of little Waifs. N.B.—Much of the above is already being done, and all our usual Soldier and Troopship work going vigorously forward.

MR. THOMAS HOGBEN has recently joined MISS ROBINSON, and is prepared to arrange for Drawing-room and other Meetings wherever friends desire it.

Will the Lord's stewards send IMMEDIATE HELP?

Address, MISS SARAH ROBINSON, Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth. (London Bankers: GLYN & Co.)

Many thanks for donations already remitted, also expressions of sympathy in the long continued work on behalf the

FRIENDLESS & FALLEN.

TO THE READERS OF "THE CHRISTIAN." Dec. 8th, 1890.

The year so nearly closing has been a most anxious period for funds to sustain ALL THE HOMES and OPEN-ALL-NIGHT REFUGE, nevertheless, the Work of Mercy has NOT been restricted on that account.

500 YOUNG WOMEN AND GIRLS, or thereabouts, will have been ADMITTED TO THE HOMES.

1,000, OR NEARLY SO, sheltered in the OPEN-ALL-NIGHT REFUGE, inclusive of re-admissions. NO CHARGE WHATEVER IS MADE FOR SHELTER OR FOOD. All this large number have been spoken with THE MORNING AFTER THEIR ADMISSION, and thus many have been permanently reclaimed.

The Committee are completing arrangements for improving and extending the PREVENTIVE HOMES.

3,000 GOSPEL Temperance and other Services will have been held during the year.

ONE THOUSAND DONATIONS OR COLLECTIONS AVERAGING 21s. REQUIRED BY DECEMBER 31, to meet all the expenses of the work of 1890.

DURING 1889, 51 Ladies and 17 Gentlemen collected £264 11s. 1d., and nearly the whole of this amount was gathered in by COLLECTING CARDS.

Reader, kindly contribute or collect in aid of this PREVENTIVE AND RESCUE MISSION. COLLECTING CARDS sent to any address on application.

MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT, Offices of The Christian, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C., will receive donations.

Edward W. Thomas.

OFFICES—CENTRAL HOME, 200, EUSTON-ROAD, N.W.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 5, Crown-villas, Kennington Oval, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON AVENUE, E.C.—Prayer and praise meeting, New Year's eve, address by W. R. Lane, 6.30 p.m. Bible-classes, King Edward's Institute, Suns., 3 and 7 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., 186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Sun., Dec. 21, 3.30 p.m., address to young men, by Hon. Granville Waldegrave. Thurs., Dec. 25, 8 a.m., Christmas breakfast, Mr. George Williams presiding.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Dec. 21, 3 and 7 p.m., Mr. Robinson Soultar. Young men's meetings, Sun., 3 p.m.; Tues., 8 and 9 p.m.; Wed., 9.30 p.m.

WEST LONDON CENTRAL MISSION.—St. James's Hall, Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. M. Guy Pearse; 7 p.m., Rev. H. Price Hughes. Princes Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. W. Darlow Sarjeant. Fri., 12 noon, Rev. M. G. Pearse; 8 p.m., Rev. H. P. Hughes. Cleveland Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. T. M. Taylor.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr. T. B. Miller, Sun. next, at 11 and 7; Wed., at Burlington Hall, Savile-row, W., 8 p.m. Christmas Day, Dr. McKilliam, in St. George's Hall, 11 a.m.

TALBOT TABERNACLE, Talbot-road, Bayswater, W.—Sun., Dec. 21, Pastor Frank H. White, 11 a.m.; Mr. M. C. Leite Rozas, 7 p.m. Service, Christmas Day, 11 a.m.

KENSINGTON TOWN HALL.—Sun., Dec. 21, 7 p.m., Mr. W. R. Lane.

Y.M.C.A., STAFFORD ROOMS, Tichborne-street, Edgware-road, W.—Fri., Dec. 19, 8.30 p.m., address by Captain George Clarke. Sun., Dec. 21, 3.15 p.m., Bible-class; subject, "The New Walk."

POLYTECHNIC Y.M.C.I., 309, Regent-street, W.—Sun. next, 3.15 p.m., special address to young men, by the Bishop of Marlborough; 7 p.m., evangelistic meeting, open to all, Rev. Dr. Lunn.

CONFERENCE HALL, Clapham-road, S.W.—Jerusalem prayer-meeting every Friday, 4 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street, S.W.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Sun., 3.30 and 7 p.m.; Wed., 8 p.m.

BAPTIST FORWARD MOVEMENT, John-street Chapel, Bedford-row.—Sun., Dec. 21, at 11, Rev. J. E. Shephard; 7 p.m., Rev. F. C. Spurr.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS' CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—Annual meeting, Mon., Dec. 29, Exeter Hall: prayer and praise, 4.30 p.m., address by Rev. C. Spurgeon; public meeting, 7 p.m., speakers, Revs. E. A. Stuart and W. J. Woods, B.A.

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL, N.W.—Sun. services at 11 and 7, conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer.

CLAPTON HALL, Alkham-road, Upper Clapton.—Mr. J. G. McVicker, Suns., 6.30 p.m.; Fridays, 7.30 p.m.

HOUSE OF REST, 10, Finchley-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.—Fri., Dec. 19, prayer and short addresses, 4 to 8.30; tea at 6. New Year's meeting, Jan. 2, Rev. F. B. Meyer, 3 p.m.; Mr. Reader Harris, 7 p.m. Suns., 3.30 p.m., Bible-reading for ladies and gentlemen.

OPEN-AIR MISSION.—Annual prayer-meeting, Shoreditch Tabernacle, near Shoreditch Church, Mon., Dec. 22, 7 p.m. Address by Rev. William Cuff, on "Wanted, Men; Real Men; Manly Men."

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Monthly workers' meeting, Fri., Jan. 2. Tea at 6; meeting at 7. Rev. F. B. Meyer will give a New Year's address.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sun. next, Mr. J. B. Wookey, at 11 and 7; Rev. H. Bright, 3 p.m.

MISSION HALL, Fraser-street, Chiswick.—Opening of new hall, Sat., Dec. 20, 7 p.m., by Mr. E. H. Watts, J.P.

GREAT ASSEMBLY HALL, Mile End-road, E.—Sun., Dec. 21, 11 and 6.30, Rev. W. B. Culliss.

SAILORS' WELCOME HOME, 173, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Unloading of Christmas boat, Sat., Dec. 27, 7 p.m. Muster of the "Christian Lifeboat Crew," Tues., Jan. 6, 7 p.m.

Meetings for Children.—Mr. Livesey Carrott is hoping to commence services for children and young people not attending Sunday-school, in the Camden Athenæum, on Sunday afternoons, at 3 o'clock, commencing January 4. Mr. Carrott would be glad of the help of friends interested in this work for Christ, for which he has arranged a prayer-meeting at 2.30.

[1206]

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT
TO MONDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1890.

 We would respectfully urge all our friends, when remitting to us, to make Cheques, Money Orders, or Postal Orders payable to Morgan & Scott, and to cross them "City Bank"; this will effectually prevent loss of same.

	£	s.	d.
Society for Relief of Persecuted Jews—L.W. 3s; A.B. 5s; Collected by Miss B. £1 1s	1	9	0
Mr. Eoll's Work, Port Said—Misses C.	1	0	0
Miss Arnot's Work, Jaffa—Misses C.	1	0	0
Mr. Arnot's Work, Africa—Misses C.	1	0	0
Asylums at La Force—Misses C.	0	10	0
Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, Adelphi—S.N. £5; Mrs. T. £5	10	0	0
North Africa Mission—S.N.	5	0	0
London Missionary Society—Mrs. H....	1	0	0
Misn. to Lepers in India—Mrs. H. 5s; M.L. £10	10	5	0
China Inland Mission—Mrs. H. £1; C.E.M. 5s	1	5	0
Moravian Misns. (London Association)—Mrs. H.	0	10	0
Mr. Rabinowitz's Work (Jews)—Mrs. H.	0	5	0
McAll Mission—Mrs. T. £5; Mr. H. £1	6	0	0
British Syrian Schools—Mrs. H.	0	10	0
Miss Neale's Orphanage, Calcutta—Mrs. H ...	1	0	0
Mission in Uganda—Mrs. H.	1	0	0
British and Foreign Bible Society—Mrs. H. ...	1	0	0
South American Missionary Society—M.L... ...	40	0	0
Y.M.C.A., Prague—Hon. and Rev. E.V.B. £5; Mrs. A.N.S. 10s; A Friend, £1; Rev. G.H.K. 10s; G. A. Frank K. £1	8	0	0
Church Missionary Soc.—A.M.B. 10s; A.W. £1	1	10	0
Pastor Chiniquy—P.J.B. £1; (Personal)—Mrs. T. £5	6	0	0
Rev. W. Crosbie's Church, Nottingham—M.S. ...	1	1	0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison Mission, &c.—S.S. 10s; R.V. £2 10s; Mrs. H. 10s; E.J. £2; X. 5s ...	5	15	0
Mildmay Misn. to Jews—Friend. 4s; Mrs. H. £1	1	4	0
General Booth's Scheme—Sympathy, 10s 6d; J.C.P. £1; O'C. £5; A Friend, £5; A.W. 10s; H.M. 1s 6d; X. 10s; Rev. Th.M. 10s	13	2	0
Rescue Society—Finsbury Park	0	10	0
Mrs. Smyly, Elliott Homes, Dublin—G.C.B. ...	10	0	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—J.C.P.5s; R.W. £5; R.V. £5; O'C. £3; M.L. 10s; A.H.W. 2s 6d; A.D. 2s 6d; E.F.H. £4; M.L. £5; E.W. 5s; S.F. £1; P.J.B. £1; Box at Old Hall School, 8s 4d; R.I.A. £1; A Widow, £1; C.A. 3s; M. & K.B. 5s; E.J.W. 3s; X. 10s; K.B. £1; C.C.S. 10s; Mrs. T. £5; Rev. Th.M. 10s ...	35	14	4
Dr. Barnardo's Legal Expenses—G. T., Edinburgh...	2	0	0
Central Vigilance Society—Hope...	0	5	0
Mrs. Codner (Christmas Cries, &c.)—A.B.C. £1; Finsbury Park, 10s; C., Down, 5s; M.L. £10; W.G. 10s; M.W. £1	13	5	0
Rev. H. G. Guinness (Christmas Cheer, Poor)—G.C.B. £5; R.W. £3; O'C. £2; L.W. 2s 6d; E.J. £1	11	2	6
Sailors' Welcome Home—R.I.A. £1; (Suppers, &c.)—G.C.B. £5	6	0	0
St. Giles Christian Mission—J.C.P. 5s; R.W. £5; R.V. £5; Mrs. H. £1; M.L. 10s; P.J.B. £1; Florence, £2; R.I.A. £1; A.M.B. 10s; A.T. 10s; K.B. 10s; M.W. 10s...	17	15	0
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—J.C.P. 5s; R.W. £5; R.V. £2 10s; O'C. £3; Mrs. H. 5s; M.L. 10s; C.E.M. 5s; P.J.B. £1; X. 10s; E.S., Paris, £1	14	5	0
Miss Sharman's Orphans' Home—J.C.P. 5s; Mrs. H. £1	1	5	0
Miss Mittendorff's Orphans' Home—J.C.P. 5s; Mrs. H. £1	1	5	0
East London Training Institute—J.C.P. 5s; Misses C. £1; Mrs. H. £1; Amicus, £1; J.G.C. 7s 6d...	3	12	6
Mildmay Conference Hall—Misses C. £1; A.D. 1s; E.F.H. £3...	4	1	0
Evangelistic Mission—Misses C. £1; X. 10s ...	1	10	0
Mrs. Wilke's Rescue Work, Poplar—Misses C....	1	0	0
Gray's Yard Ragged Church, &c.—Misses C. ...	1	0	0
Tower Hamlets Misson, &c.—Misses C. £1; R.V. £5; S.F. 10s; A Widow, £1; A.W. 10s; H.H.C.W. £2 2s; Mrs. T. £5	15	2	0
Zenana Medical College (Dr. Griffith)—Misses C.	0	10	0
Mr. Knowle's Work (Aged Poor, &c.)—Misses C.	0	5	0
Mr. H. Cook's New Vessel, "The Mystery"—Misses C.	0	10	0
Field Lane Refuges, &c.—R.W. £4; X. 10s ...	4	10	0
Home of Industry—R.V. £5; Mrs. H. 5s; M.L. 10s; C.E.M. 5s; F.F. £1; E.S., Paris, £1 ...	8	0	0
Mr. C. Cook's Prison Mission (Scriptures)—Sympathiser	5	0	0
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—O'C. £2; Mrs. H. 5s; R.I.A. £1; L.D.F. 5s	3	10	0
Robin Dinners—C. Down	0	5	0
Bristol Orphan Houses—Mrs. H.	1	0	0
London City Mission—Mrs. H. 10s; P.J.B. £1; K.B. 10s; M.W. 10s; Mrs. T. £2	4	10	0
Scripture Readers' Society, Ireland—Mrs. H. ...	0	10	0
Salvation Army—Mrs. H.	0	5	0
Royal Albert Orphan Asylum—Mrs. H.	1	0	0
Dinners for Sick Children—Mrs. H.	1	0	0
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, &c.—Mrs. H. 10s; A Widow, £1; Mrs. T. £1	2	10	0
London Orphan Asylum—Mrs. H...	0	10	0
Dr. Stephenson's Children's Home—Mrs. H. 10s; R.I.A. £1	1	10	0
George Yard Mission—Mrs. H. 10s; M.L. £5; C.E.M. 5s; F.F. £1; R.I.A. £1; Mrs. T. £5	12	15	0
Poor Shirt Makers—Mrs. H.	0	10	0
Cripples' Home, Marylebone—Mrs. H....	0	10	0
Irish Evangelistic Society—Mrs. H.	1	0	0
Home for Worn-out Governesses, &c—Mrs. H....	0	10	0
Home for Aged Blind, Crouch-hill—Mrs. Hill, 10s; H.K. 10s; C.C.S. 10s; E.S., Paris, £1 ...	2	10	0
Homes for Working Girls—Mrs. H.	0	10	0
Miss Weston's Work (R. Navy)—Mrs. H. 10s; P.J.B. £1; R.I.A. £1; (Serpent Fund)—E.F.H. £1...	3	10	0
Homes for Little Boys, Farningham—Mrs. H. 10s; X. 5s...	0	15	0
Kilburn Mission Hall (Mr. W. Martin)—Mrs. H.	0	5	0
Women's Mission to Women—Mrs. H. £1; H.H.C.W. £1 1s	2	1	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—A.H.W. 2s 6d; E.J. £2; H.K. 2s 6d; E.F. 2s 6d; Mrs. E.C. 5d; E.S., Paris, £1	3	7	11
Home for Blind Children, Hackney—E.N.Y.H...	0	10	0
Mrs. Ginever's Orphans' Home—Mrs. H. £1; P.J.B. £1	2	0	0
National Refuges for Homeless Children—M.L...	20	0	0
Church Army Fund—M.L.	10	0	0
Bishop Billing's Fund, East London—M.L. ...	10	0	0
Friendless and Fallen—L.W. 2s 6d; Florence, £2; E.J. £3; X. 10s; Mrs. T. £5	10	12	6
Gratuitous Circulation THE CHRISTIAN—Mrs. T. £2; (to Missionaries)—R.H.N. £5	7	0	0
Ben Jonson Mission—K.R.S.	0	2	6
Rev. A. G. Brown's Work—P.J.B. £1; A Widow, £1	2	0	0
Rev. T. Connellan's Work—P.T.B.	1	0	0
Miss Robinson's Soldiers' Institute—P.J.B... ...	1	0	0
Mission to Seamen—S.F....	0	10	0
Bridge of Hope (Miss Steer)—E.J. £2; R.I.A. £1; X. 5s; M.G.H. 2s 6d	3	7	6
Christian Community—C.C.F.A. 10s; J.M.F. 2s 6d; Mrs. T. £3...	3	12	6
Flower Girls' Mission (Groom)—X. 5s; M.W. 10s	0	15	0
West London Mission—R.I.A....	1	0	0
Bitter Cry Outcast London—R.I.A.	1	0	0
Rev. W. E. Hurndall's Work, East London—Mrs. N. 2s 6d; H.K. 5s; P.C. 2s 6d; M.W. £2	2	10	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—J.M.K. 5s; X. 10s...	0	15	0
Christmas Help to the Poor—H.K. 2s 6d; E.S., Paris, £1	1	2	6
Food and Fuel for Poor (Rev. J. W. Atkinson)—B...	0	2	6
Little Match Box Makers—M.G. & N....	0	2	6
Cow Cross Mission—H.H.C.W.	0	10	6
Rev. J. G. Paton Fund—A.D....	1	0	0
Rev. J. Chadburn's Work (Free Breakfasts)—K.B.	0	10	0
Pastor N. Vanstone's Work, East London—M.W.	1	0	0
Free Breakfasts—M.W.	1	0	0
London Cabmen's Mission—M.W....	0	10	0
THE CHRISTIAN Tract Fund—H.H.	0	3	0
Midnight Meeting Movement—Mrs. T...	5	0	0
Gifford Hall Mission—E.S., Paris, £1...	1	0	0
Widow of late Rev. A. Lamb—M.S.	2	0	0
Shoreditch Tabernacle (Rev. W. Cuff)—MS. ...	10	10	0
	£424	13	3

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

St. Giles Christian Mission—M. £10.
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—H.M.A.S. £3.
Deaf and Dumb Association, Dublin—M.B. £1.
Ragged School Union—Mizpah, H.M.A.S. £2.
Christmas Dinner Fund (H. G. Guinness)—Plymouth, 10s.
Rev. Newton Vanstone's Work—A Well-wisher, £1; T.C. 10s.
Bethnal Green Free Library, E.—S.P. £2 2s.
London Samaritan Society (Free Meals)—Mrs. A. £1; Mrs. S.H. 7s; Mrs. L.C. £1; Mrs. P. 5s.

Notices.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—H.W.D. W.W. C.C. M.A.H. G.M. H.T. E.N. S.H.A. R.N. D.R. H.C.W. A.J.D. A.S.W. O.M.S. S.G.B. F.L. H.C.B. G.K. J.K. W.O. H.R. W.H.D. H.B. H.O'B. A.M. R.M. W.H.M. E.S.H. S.T.S. W.C. D.W. C.B. H.A.B. T.J.H. A.F. R.R. J.J.L. L.B.W. W.M. R.W.T. J.B. J.W.W. S.L. D.I. W.H. T.J. E.T.P. F.C.A. J.H. T.C.W. J.E.S. E.M.O. F.W.N. T.A.B. C.E.P. J.E.M. A.G.B. J.H.B. T.F. E.H.K. Mrs. H. J.S.W. J.R.F. S.B. K.B. J.S.H. J.H. M.W.B. W.H.C. E.S. S.A.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS.—A. Stephenson, 50, Great Russell-street, Birmingham; Miss Bridgman, King's Nympton, Chulmleigh; W. Frost, Y.M.C.A., Derby; T. Gifford, town missionary, 2, Cheapside, Lancaster; W. Grundy, 24, Frederick-street, Rotherham, Yorkshire; W. Marshall, Hope Mission Hall, 33, Three Colt-lane, Bethnal Green, E.; G. Buckley, 9, Howard-street, Tipping-street, Ardwick, Manchester; A. Scarff, 49, Thorpe-road, Forest Gate, E.; W. Archer, c/o H. Holmes, Ibstock, Ashby-de-la-Zouch; A. Butcher, 30, Henry-street, Lincoln-road East, Peterborough; H. Free, 194, Green-street, Bethnal Green, E.; R. Williams, preacher, St. Minver, Wadebridge, Cornwall; W. Radley, 13, Park-street, Plumstead, Kent; C. Jeffs, 52, Union-street, Long Eaton, Derbyshire; H. Murch, 46, Willis-road, Kentish Town; Miss Pearson, 104, Stamford-street, S.E.; G. Hall, 15, Burdett-road, Bow, J. Page, Abbey-road, Cinderford, Gloucester; T. Glover, Grange House, Eastbourne; J. Watson, 65, Sidney-grove, Newcastle-on-Tyne; W. Seabridge, 13, Wellington-court, New-street, Longton; J. Pritchard, Crabb-street, Lye, near Stourbridge; T. Scoggins, 546, Mile End-road, E.; G. Bell, East-hill, Dartford, Kent; C. Dennison, 265, Shirland-road, Paddington, W.; J. Weston, 31, Park-street, Southwark, S.E.; A. Neale, 38, Leathwaite-road Battersea-rise, S.W.; C. Grimshaw, Chestnut Villa, Gipsy-road, West Norwood.

The "Anna Shipton" Library.

CONSISTING OF ELEVEN OF ANNA SHIPTON'S FAVOURITE WORKS, BOUND UP IN SIX VOLUMES.

Contents of the Library.

VOL. I. { TELL JESUS. / FOOTSTEPS OF THE FLOCK.

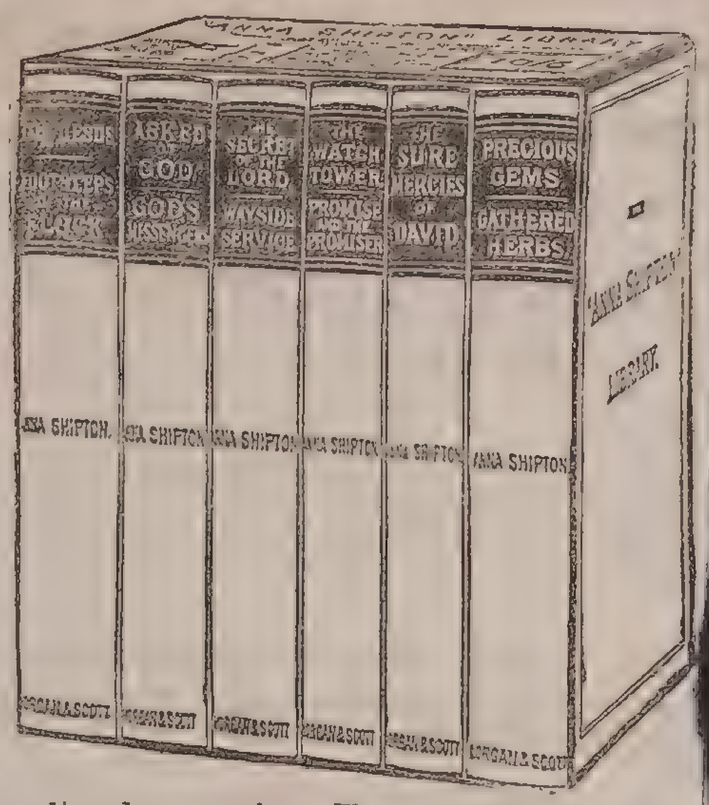
VOL. II. { ASKED OF GOD. / GOD'S MESSENGERS.

VOL. III. { THE SECRET OF THE LORD. / WAYSIDE SERVICE.

VOL. IV. { THE WATCH-TOWER IN THE WILDERNESS. / THE PROMISE AND THE PROMISER.

VOL. V. — THE SURE MERCIES OF DAVID.

VOL. VI. { PRECIOUS GEMS. / GATHERED HERBS.



IN NEAT BOX,
10/6
NET,
POST FREE.

"ANNA SHIPTON occupies a niche all her own; for, while all her chapters could be described as sermons, they are unique sermons—after the order of those of Frances Ridley Havergal. The volumes embraced in the 'LIBRARY' are simple, cultured, persuasive. They are gems; and no single reading can reveal their many and varied excellences. No more helpful present could be made to a young lady, a Sunday-school teacher, or a Sunday-school library."
Oldham Chronicle.

"Tell Jesus."

By ANNA SHIPTON.

Recollections of Emily Gosse.

"Presents us with notices of a life spent in loving, intimate, and uninterrupted communion with a personal Lord. We would that indolent professors might read the book and be quickened; and that suffering saints might read it and be comforted."—Christian Times.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth Elegant, Gilt Edges .. 2 0

Cheap Editions:
Tinted Covers 1 0
Cloth Boards 1 6

16mo Edition:
Tinted Covers 0 6

A Special Cheap Edition for gratuitous distribution, in Illuminated Covers, Imperial 8vo size, may also be had: Price One Penny, or One Shilling per dozen, post free.

"Asked of God."

By ANNA SHIPTON.

Experiences of Answered Prayer.

"A very beautiful exposition and enforcement of the power of prayer. The subject is presented in a variety of forms, and cannot fail to secure the acceptance of all who have any personal consciousness of intercourse with God, and trust in His promises. The many instances given of the success and prevailing power of prayer are very remarkable, and must confirm the confidence of all who believe in its efficacy, whilst they rebuke the doubts and unbelief of those who question its power. The book is fitted to be eminently useful."—Preacher's Lantern.

Presentation Edition:
Cloth, Gilt Edges .. 2 6

Cheap Editions:
Tinted Covers 1 0
Cloth Boards 1 6

Also by Anna Shipton.

THE BROOK IN THE WAY.
A VOLUME OF ORIGINAL HYMNS AND POEMS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.
Presentation Edition: Printed on Toned Paper, and Elegantly Bound in Cloth 2/6

WHISPERS IN THE PALMS.
A VOLUME OF POEMS AND POETIC MEDITATION.
Presentation Edition: Printed on Toned Paper, and Elegantly Bound in Cloth 2/6

THE LORD WAS THERE.
INCIDENTS FROM MY JOURNAL.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Gilt Edges .. 2/-
CHEAP EDITION: Cloth Boards, 1s. 6d.

PRECIOUS GEMS FOR THE SAVIOUR'S DIADEM.
A VOLUME OF NARRATIVES.
Presentation Edition: Cloth Elegant, Gilt Edges 2/6
CHEAP EDITIONS: Tinted Covers, 1s., Cloth, 1s. 6d.

THE SECRET OF THE LORD.
Presentation Edition: Cloth Elegant, Gilt Edges 2/6
CHEAP EDITIONS: Tinted Covers, 1s., Cloth, 1s. 6d.

WAITING HOURS.
WITH THE HUNGRY AND WEARY AND THIRSTY IN THE WILDERNESS.
Presentation Edition: Cloth Elegant, Gilt Edges, 2/6
CHEAP EDITIONS: Tinted Covers, 1s., Cloth, 1s. 6d.

THE WATCH-TOWER IN THE WILDERNESS.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Gilt Edges .. 2/6
CHEAP EDITIONS: Tinted Covers, 1s., Cloth, 1s. 6d.

WAYMARKS OF MY PILGRIMAGE.
A VOLUME OF POEMS.
Presentation Edition: Elegantly Bound in Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Side, and Gilt Edges .. 2/6

THE SURE MERCIES OF DAVID.
Superior Edition: Printed on Toned Paper, and Elegantly Bound in Cloth, Bevelled Boards, Gilt Edges 4 6
CHEAP EDITION: Cloth Boards, 2s.

FOOTSTEPS OF THE FLOCK.
A SERIES OF NARRATIVES IN CHRISTIAN LIFE.
Presentation Edition: Cloth, Gilt Edges .. 2 6
CHEAP EDITIONS; Tinted Covers, 1s., Cloth, 1s. 6d.

GATHERED HERBS.
A VOLUME OF NARRATIVES.
Presentation Edition: Cloth Elegant, Gilt Edges 2 6
CHEAP EDITIONS: Tinted Covers, 1s., Cloth, 1s. 6d.

THE PROMISE AND THE PROMISER.
OR, THE POWER AND PRESENCE OF THE LORD WITH HIS PEOPLE.
Presentation Edition: Cloth Elegant, Gilt Edges 2 6
CHEAP EDITIONS: Tinted Covers, 1s., Cloth, 1s. 6d.

GOD'S MESSENGERS.
OR, THE LOST BLESSING.
Presentation Edition: Cloth Elegant, Gilt Edges 2 6
CHEAP EDITIONS: Tinted Covers, 1s., Cloth, 1s. 6d.

WAYSIDE SERVICE.
OR, THE DAY OF SMALL THINGS.
Presentation Edition: Cloth Elegant, Gilt Edges 2 6
CHEAP EDITIONS: Tinted Covers, 1s., Cloth, 1s. 6d.

A Complete List of Works by ANNA SHIPTON will be sent post free on application to the Publishers.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C. And may be or RELIEF of PERSECUTED JEWS

ASK FOR FUNDS

grants to enable JEWS IN PALESTINE to become AGRICULs in great distress arrive in Palestine by every steamer.

CONTRIBUTIONS RECEIVED.

.. £500 0 0 | In smaller sums £43 10 9

& Co., 49, Charing-cross, S.W.; Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, TRITTON
Bank of England.

W.

E. A. Finn, SECRETARY.

THE PROBLEM OF THE POOR.

A MANY-SIDED WORK is carried on by the N.E. London Gospel Missions amongst the suffering poor, large numbers of whom are on the verge of "submersion," struggling to live decently and honestly. The paucity of help received of late gives reason for fearing how far we may continue this grateful work.

The Seaside Home for the Ailing Poor is at Lancing-on-Sea, near Worthing. There are eight Gospel Halls and Rooms, two Institutes for Rough Factory Girls, and one for Ragged Youths. About 2,000 children and young people attend the Sunday-schools.

Help in any form would be thankfully received by the EDITORS; or Mrs. F. A BEVAN, 59, Princes-gate, South Kensington, S.W.; or may be sent to the Director—

WILLIAM CHORLEY.

2, Marquess-grove, Canonbury, N.

Parcels to the last address only. Bankers: Messrs. Barclay, Bevan, Ransom & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

HOME TEACHING SOCIETY FOR THE BLIND.

TO ENABLE THE BLIND TO READ THE SCRIPTURES, &C., IN MOON'S TYPE.

The Committee hereby earnestly appeal for an increase of contributors.—RALPH TAIT, Secretary, 31, New Bridge-street, E.C. Bankers: Messrs. BARCLAY & CO., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.

Christmas and New Year's Gifts

FOR THE SHIVERING & SUFFERING POOR.

For each 10s. subscribed, 15 adults or 20 children can have a Substantial Meal. Donations for Food, Coals, and Clothing pressingly needed for a large and poor London parish. Bankers, London and County.—A. STYLEMAN HERRING (for Local Committee), Vicar (30 years), St. Paul's, Clerkenwell; 45, Colebrooke-row, N.

THE SABBATH FOR PARIS.

An earnest desire is expressed by the Committee of the

PARIS CITY MISSION

for the appointment of a specially qualified Missionary to instruct the people of that Sabbath-desecrating city in the obligations, duties, and privileges of the Lord's Day. Evangelistic work in Paris has created a spirit of inquiry about the right observance of the Day.

Particulars will be gladly supplied, and contributions received, by the Hon. Secretary for England,

J. M. WEYLLAND.

31, CARLTON HILL, ST. JOHN'S WOOD, N.W.

OPERATIVE JEWISH CONVERTS' INSTITUTION.

Palestine-place, Cambridge Heath, London, E.

Orders for Printing, and especially for Bookbinding, are pressingly needed. Periodicals cheaply and strongly bound. Special terms for Libraries. Communications about work, and contributions, gladly received by Rev. H. OLIVER ALLBROOK, Principal.

LONDON CITY MISSION

FIVE HUNDRED Missionaries now employed in beseeching the masses in the Metropolis to be reconciled to God through Jesus Christ our Lord. House to house visitation. Personal dealing. Work purely undenominational. Funds much needed. Communications to the Secretaries { T. S. HUTCHINSON, M.A. / R. DAWSON, B.A.

OFFICE: 3, Bridewell Place, E.C.
BANKERS: Barclay, Bevan, Ransom & Co., 54, Lombard-st., E.C.

MIDNIGHT MEETING MOVEMENT

ARRANGEMENTS are now COMPLETED for the PROPOSED SPECIAL MISSIONS and MIDNIGHT MEETINGS, to be held at the CLOSE of this year.

DONATIONS to meet EXTRA EXPENSES are much needed, also new VOLUNTARY WORKERS in such DISTRICTS as BARNET, WOOLWICH, STRATFORD, or BRENTFORD, who would be willing to assist the Committee by DISTRIBUTING SPECIAL TRACTS to the FALLEN in their own neighbourhoods.

£5 DONATION will defray the necessary cost of a suitable MEAL for the REFRESHMENT of poor WOMEN gathered from the streets. ARE THERE NOT MANY OF THE LORD'S PEOPLE who would be glad to spread a simple repast at this festive season for a hundred or more poor Outcast Women, compelled to come in.

Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT will receive contributions.

J. H. L. CHRISTIEN,
Organising Superintendent.

C. WILSON M'CREE,
Secretary.

Office—8A, RED LION SQUARE, W.C.

GRAND GRANULAR TEA,

FOR CATERERS, SCHOOLS, INSTITUTIONS, &c.

Also SPECIAL WHOLE LEAF TEAS in neat ¼lb. packets, appropriately labelled, for distribution as presents at home; wholesale quantities, and choice original packages for export in bond, for presents to friends abroad. Detailed price list on application.

SELECT CEYLON TEA AGENCY, 39, Lime-st., London.

BAZAARS, FANCY FAIRS, &c.

SWANAGE STRAW BASKETS.

Novel and useful, a 25s. crate for £1 1s. Tea Cosy, very handsome, 3s. 11d. 5-o'clock do., 2s. 11d. Work Boxes, 2s. 6d. Work Basket, 2s. Collar Box, 1s. Needle-book, 7d., all post free.

J. A. COLLEAU, SWANAGE DORSET.

SIX GOLD MEDALS AWARDED.

Goddard's Plate Powder

NON-MERCURIAL.

FOR NEARLY HALF A CENTURY this Powder has sustained an unrivalled reputation throughout the United Kingdom and Colonies as the BEST and SAFEST Article for Cleaning Silver and Electro Plate. Sold in Boxes 1s., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. each, by Grocers, Chemists, Ironmongers, &c.

The Most Acceptable Present at CHRISTMAS

IS A PARCEL OF

E. D. & CO.'S PURE TEA,

Prices, 1/2 to 2/10 per lb.—Samples Free.

SPECIAL SELECTIONS AT { 3-lb. Tinfoil Cases. / 6-lb. Canisters. / 12-lb. do. / 20-lb. do. } Original Half-Chests (about 50 lbs.) / Original Whole do. (abt. 100 lbs.) } STRICTLY WHOLESALE PRICES.

(Wrapped in any sized packets to suit convenience of distribution or presentation.)

E. D. & CO.'S TEAS are of guaranteed High Quality and absolute Purity. The Public save all Intermediate profits. Carriage paid to all parts of Great Britain. Write for Samples and contrast with other Teas.

ELLIS DAVIES & Co., 44, Lord-st., LIVERPOOL.

FREE

Send a Post Card for a sample of Broken-Leaf Tea at 1s. 5½d. per. lb., equal to 2s. 6d. Tea. WILLIAMSON & SONS, Tea Merchants, 139, Upper Thames-st., E.C.

COUGH CHARM VOICE TONIC

Dr. LEBAUD'S PASTILLE BRONCHIQUE

(a modern scientific remedy, free from the dangerous narcotics of old cough nostrums) by its tonic and antiseptic action upon the disordered membrane, quickly cures a harassing cough, protects the breathing organs from cold, repels disease germs, and maintains the voice in perfect condition for speaking and singing. Of all Chemists, 1/1½ per box, or (post free) from the Chief British Depôt, GRAHAM & Co., Charlemont-place, Dublin.

(Gratis and post free.)

Guy's Guide to Digestion.

Roast pork takes five hours and twenty minutes to digest, venison only one hour and thirty minutes, but fig seeds never digest. This clearly shows how important it is that all should pay attention to the digestibility of food. Guy's "Guide to Digestion" contains an interesting account of the time taken to digest nearly every article of food known, and when it is borne in mind how seriously business anxieties and harassing family cares interfere with the healthy activity of the stomach, it will be seen of what infinite consequence to happiness is this "Guide." A copy will be sent, gratis and post free, to any reader who, when writing, will mention THE CHRISTIAN, Guy's Tonic Company, 4, Ludgate Circus, London, E.C.

OLD SHIRTS

Refitted, New Fronts, Cuffs, and Collar-bands. —Fine Irish Linen, 2s.; or very best Irish Linen, 2s. 6d. each, returned free, ready to wear. Sample New White Shirt, for Dress or ordinary wear, 2s. 9d., 3s. 9d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9d., or 6s. 9d. Gent's best 4-fold Linen Collars, any shape, 2s. 9d., half dozen, post free.

Hand knit by Donegal peasantry. Warm, durable, and comfortable. Two pairs free, 2s. 6d. Men's Knicker Hose, two pairs free, 3s. 9d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9s., 6s. 9d., and 7s. 9d. WOOL PANTS and VESTS are now very cheap. Price Lists and Patterns Cambric Handkfs. and all kinds Irish Linen Goods sent free for Household or Family use, from the cheapest to the best qualities made.

IRISH SOX

B. & E. M'HUGH & CO., Limited, BELFAST.

SYMINGTON'S PEA FLOUR.

GOLD MEDAL.

For Soups, &c.

Sold in Packets and Tins by Grocers everywhere.

EASILY DIGESTED.

PATENTEES AND MANUFACTURERS—

BOWDEN STEAM MILLS, MARKET HARBORO'

ON

CONSUMPTION

AND ITS

SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, AND OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

NEW EDITION WITH

APPENDIX

CONTAINING A LARGE NUMBER OF

INTERESTING CASES.

POST FREE, ONE SHILLING.

From the AUTHOR,

MR. GEORGE THOS. CONGREVE,

Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E.

ONE RECENT CASE WILL BE GIVEN IN THIS JOURNAL EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

(THIRTY-FIFTH SERIES.)

CASE of PHTHISIS PRONOUNCED HOPELESS, with HEART AFFECTION.

The patient was 19 years of age when I first heard of him; his mother writing with full statement of his case from Newcastle, Staffordshire.

He had been in bed for three months, and was getting weaker. He had been carefully examined, and the medical attendant stated no more could be done for him. This was in July, 1888.

His illness had commenced with cold and cough in the preceding winter—which nothing had relieved, though many things had been tried. Then he became short of breath, and blood-spitting appeared. He sought medical advice, and was told that weakness of the heart was the cause. He got worse. He spat dark congealed blood;—then brighter and in larger quantity. He was ordered to bed—no relief followed. The cough grew worse, accompanied with pains and palpitations. The strength gradually diminished, there was wasting of flesh, and dropsical symptoms appeared, indicating advanced disease. He was then sounded again, with the result above named—a verdict that "no more could be done for him."

Hearing of the good derived by a patient named Evans, the mother applied to me.

The case required much attention and correspondence, several symptoms arising from time to time—especially relating to the secretions, and to the throat. Progress was slow (cases vary very much in this). It was several months before very marked improvement was seen. By then diarrhœa had ceased, and the swellings had subsided. The throat had got better, there was scarcely any blood spat up. The patient had become very hopeful now, and after that went on rapidly to recovery.

I had a letter from the mother recently (Sept. 22) in which, writing for another case, she says:—"Though this case is reported as being without hope, I feel there is hope, after experiencing what you have done for my son, who continues in the enjoyment of good health.—E. WHITTAKER, 17, Drayton-street, Newcastle, Staff."

NOTE.—Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

NOW READY. PRICE ONE PENNY.

"The Christian" Sheet Almanack

FOR 1891

A LARGE BROADSIDE SHEET (Size 20 in. × 30 in.)

Very artistically PRINTED IN COLOURS,

With NINE ORIGINAL ILLUSTRATIONS, depicting Various Scenes in the LIFE OF JOSEPH.

FOR 1891

ALSO CONTAINING

A CAREFULLY SELECTED TEXT for EACH DAY OF THE YEAR; POSTAL INFORMATION; PHASES OF THE MOON, &c.

SAMPLE COPY sent post free for 1½d.; TWELVE COPIES, post free, 1s.

100 COPIES, post free, 7s. 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.

And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

Reckitt's Blue.

WARNING Refuse all Substitutes!

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.

FOR CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, GOLDSMITHS AND SILVERSMITHS, 2, GRACECHURCH-ST., near CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C. (Established 1772), beg respectfully to announce that they accurately value, or purchase for cash if desired, valuable Diamonds, Pearls, and other Jewels, also Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. Small parcels can be sent securely per registered post, and large ditto in absolute safety per rail, insured at the small cost of 3d. per every £25 in value.

CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS & ASTHMA.

I WILL demonstrate to the whole world, and to sufferers from these unfortunate maladies, how they can be permanently cured, by an entirely New Method of Treatment, without the chance of failure. All afflicted may write with full confidence to Mr. WILLIAMS, 11, Burwood-place, Norfolk-crescent, London, who will send full particulars to any person free of all charge.

LINDSAY'S IRISH LINENS

IRISH LINEN PILLOW SLIPS, made up, from 8s. 9d. per dozen. Frilled ditto, from 1s. 3d. each. LINEN SHEETS, made up, all sizes and qualities. DAMASK TABLE CLOTHS, NAPKINS, DIAPERS, SHEETINGS, TOWELLINGS, SHIRTINGS, SURPLICE LINENS, GLASS CLOTHS, and every description of HOUSE and TABLE LINENS, of Best Quality, at Lowest Wholesale Prices.

SAMPLES AND LISTS POST FREE.

POCKET HANDKERCHIEFS

ESTABLISHED OVER SIXTY YEARS.

HEMMED READY FOR USE. DIRECT FROM OUR LOOMS.

CHILDREN'S BORDERED, from 1s. 4½d. doz. | LADIES' BORDERED, from 1s. 11d. doz. | GENTLEMEN'S BORDERED, from 3s. 9d. doz. | LADIES' HEMSTITCHED, from 3s. 9d. doz. | GENT'S HEMSTITCHED, from 5s. 11d. doz. | EMBROIDERED AND COLOURED BORDERED.

JAMES LINDSAY & Co., Limited, Manufacturers by Special Appointment to the Queen, BELFAST.

A CLEAN SWEEP

May always be obtained by using

WONDERFUL IMPROVEMENTS JUST ADDED.

"The Perfection of Sweepers . . Is a perfect gem."—LADY.

CAUTION.

Beware of cheap American Sweepers knocked together for sale at a low price, and without any of the special features of the "Ewbank." The name "Ewbank" is on every Sweeper.

From all Ironmongers, Furniture Dealers, &c., or if any difficulty in procuring, please write to the Manufacturers—

ENTWISLE & KENYON, ACCRINGTON,

Who will send Address of nearest Agent.

WHY BREAK YOUR THUMB NAILS?
THE BLADES OF THE "WILZIN"

AUTOMATIC · KNIFE

SPRING OPEN!

With a slight pressure upon a knob. Can be opened with gloves on. Entirely supersedes the old and clumsy method.

Buy one for yourself.
Buy one to present to your friend.

Sent by Post to any Address in Great Britain on Receipt of Remittance at following prices:
Plain or Fancy Embossed Designs, in real Nickel Silver or Gold Colour, 4s. 6d.; Oxydised Fancy, 5s. each; Gilt in Colours, and very handsome, 5s. 6d. each; Ivory or Stag, 5s. 6d. each; Pearl or Tortoiseshell, 6s. 6d. each; Hall Marked Silver, Plain, 10s. each; Hall Marked Silver Engraved, 12s. 6d. each.

E. YORKE & CO., 54, Irving-street, Birmingham.

BEETHAM'S Glycerine & Cucumber.

Is invaluable during Winter. PRESERVES THE SKIN from the effects of FROST, COLD WINDS

HARD WATER, &c. It entirely removes and prevents all Roughness, Redness, Chaps, Irritation, &c., and soon renders the skin SOFT, SMOOTH, and WHITE in the coldest weather.

It is the most perfect Emollient Milk for the Skin ever produced, and no lady should ever be without it, as for the Toilet and Nursery it is INVALUABLE.

Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d., of all Chemists; free for 3d. extra by the

Sole Makers—M. BEETHAM & SON, Chemists, Cheltenham

"NIL DESPERANDUM."

"89, Main Street, Pollokshaws, Glasgow, October 1, 1890.—DEAR SIR,—For three years I had been fearfully troubled with Rheumatism, and had tried dozens of remedies and consulted several doctors without any benefit. About a year ago I was told about your Nervetonine, and called and got a 2s. 9d. Bottle. At that time I could only walk with a limp, my knuckle joints were swollen and painful, and for the whole world I could not have lifted my hands to my head. Well, after taking it (the Nervetonine) a week I felt a great deal better, and before the bottle was half done the pain and stiffness were entirely gone. I continued taking it till I finished the bottle, and from that day to this I have never had a touch of my old complaint. If it only does as much good to every one as it has done to me, it is indeed a precious remedy, and cannot be too widely known.

JOHN BEATON.

NERVETONINE can be had from the Sole Proprietor, M. F. THOMPSON, 17, GORDON STREET, GLASGOW, and 97, PRINCES STREET, EDINBURGH, in Bottles at 1s. 9d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. Postage, 2d. extra. Nervetonine is a positive, safe, and permanent cure for all Nervous Affections, Nervous Debility, Sleeplessness, Nerve Pains, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Gout, Sciatica, &c., and all derangements of the digestive System, Indigestion, Constipation, &c. For further particulars see M. F. THOMPSON'S concise guide, gratis to all who mention this Paper.

Borwick's Baking Powder.

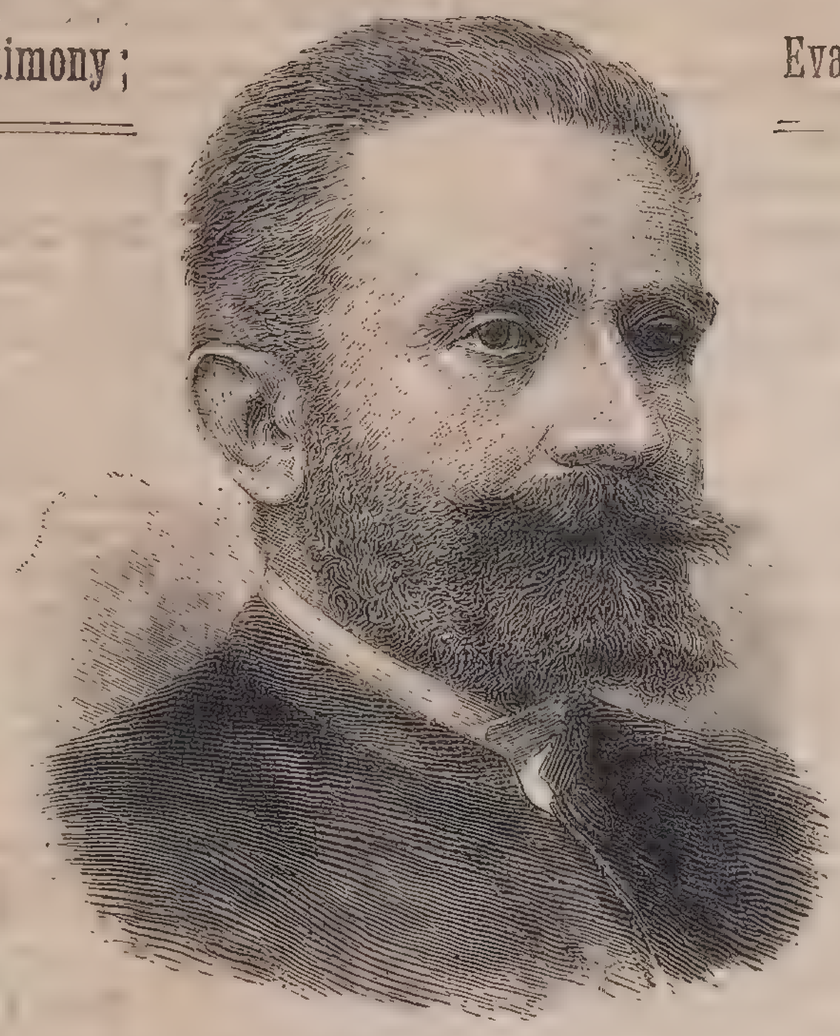
The Christian:

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED "THE REVIVAL."

Weekly Record of Christian Life and Testimony; Evangelistic Effort, and Missionary Enterprise.

PRINCIPAL CONTENTS.

Threshold Service.—2 8
The End of the Decade. Rev. W. GUEST 9
Reapers' Prayer Meeting 10
The Sent of the Father. Rev. F. B. MEYER .. 11
Revival in Ireland 12
Temperance Veteran 12
Over the Golden Bridge (Illustrated) 13
Among the Basutos 13
Dr. BARNARDO and the Slum Children 14
Church Missionary Appeal 14
Waifs' Children's Home. Mrs. EVERED POOLE. 15
Presbyterians and Temperance 15
Native Races of Palestine 16



[Count Campello.]

CONTENTS.

"Business"—a Protest from "Punch" 16
Count Campello (with Portrait) 17
American Notes 18
Mr. G. CLARKE at Inverness 19
Home of Industry 19
Orphans in Southwark 19
Young Men and Missions 19
The Figueras Mission 20
Young Men in Edinburgh 20
French Colonists in Algeria 21
Appeals for Work among the Poor 22
Notes from Chicago 24
Poem—Christmas on an Irish Farm 24

No. 1091.] FRIDAY, DEC. 26, 1890.

REGISTERED AT THE G.P.O. AS A NEWSPAPER.

LONDON: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, PATERNOSTER BUILDINGS, E.C.

[ONE PENNY. POST FREE, 2d.

MORGAN & SCOTT'S
UNABRIDGED
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE
TO THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

CHEAP "PORTABLE" EDITION. Cloth Boards. 3/6

MORGAN & SCOTT'S
UNABRIDGED
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.
THE "POPULAR" EDITION.
Printed on Superior Paper, Bound in Cloth Boards.
5/-

MORGAN & SCOTT'S
UNABRIDGED
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.
THE "PORTABLE" EDITION.
Half-Calf Binding, Marble Edges.
7/6

All the Editions described contain 757 Pages, and about 250,000 References. A special feature is—the List of PROPER NAMES, newly-translated by Rev. ALFRED JONES, M.A. This portion of the work is strictly copyright, and can only appear in these Editions.

REVIEWS.

"What a boon to poor preachers of the Gospel!"—Sword and Trowel.

"The best edition of CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE that we have seen, is the one published by MORGAN & SCOTT. Clearly printed on good paper, well bound, and with the Proper Names newly-translated."—Christian Leader.

"This is a noble book."
Gospel Magazine.

"The Publishers are to be congratulated on the way they have brought out this book; and the religious public may well consider it a boon, when CRUDEN'S valuable work can now be bought at such a reasonable price."
British Friend.

"A marvel of cheapness, compactness, and clearness."
Methodist New Connexion Magazine.

MORGAN & SCOTT'S
UNABRIDGED
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.
THE "PRESENTATION" EDITION.
Handsomely Bound in Cloth.
7/6

MORGAN & SCOTT'S
UNABRIDGED
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE.
THE "LIBRARY" EDITION.
Half-Bound in Leather.
10/6

MORGAN & SCOTT'S
UNABRIDGED
CRUDEN'S CONCORDANCE
The "ILLUSTRATED" Edition.
Containing Twelve Exquisite Steel-Plate Engravings, and Six beautiful Coloured Maps. Tastefully bound in Cloth, Gilt Edges, 10/6

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster Buildings, E.C.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

"The Christian" 1891 SHEET ALMANACK

Price One Penny.

A LARGE BROADSIDE SHEET (Size 20 in. × 30 in.)
Very artistically PRINTED IN COLOURS,
With NINE ORIGINAL ILLUSTRATIONS, depicting Various Scenes in the LIFE OF JOSEPH.
ALSO CONTAINING
A CAREFULLY SELECTED TEXT for EACH DAY OF THE YEAR; POSTAL INFORMATION; PHASES OF THE MOON, &c.

Sample Copy sent post free for 1½d.; Twelve Copies, post free, 1s.; 100 Copies, post free, 7s. 6d.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

THE
"GOLDEN TREASURY" BIRTHDAY BOOK.

In this country very few books, except the "Pilgrim's Progress," have been so largely appreciated as "BOGATZKY'S GOLDEN TREASURY."
This Edition, ARRANGED AS A BIRTHDAY BOOK, it is believed will be welcomed by many. In this BIRTHDAY Edition, four additional pages are introduced at the close of each month's portions. These extra pages are arranged with blank square spaces, one for every day. Each space is adapted for receiving four entries, consequently, the total number of names which can be inscribed in the "Birthday" edition amounts to OVER FIFTEEN HUNDRED.

With Beautifully Illuminated Frontispiece.

Elegantly bound in Cloth Boards, gilt edges, 2s. 6d.
Presentation Editions:
French Morocco, gilt edges, 3s. 6d.;
Rich Coloured Leather, Padded, gilt edges, 4s. 6d.

Each of the Leather copies is sent out in a neat cardboard box, thereby securing safety in transit.

London: MORGAN & SCOTT, 12, Paternoster-buildings.
And may be ordered of any Bookseller.

The INLAND POSTAGE of this Issue (WITH INSETS) is 1d. If the INSETS be OMITTED, ½d.

ANXIETY OF SOUL. — Any to whom the way of salvation is not clear, are invited to communicate, either personally or by letter, to W. S., care of Evangelistic Secretary, Exeter Hall, Strand, W.C.

GEORGE YARD RAGGED SCHOOLS, &c., Whitechapel, E.

George Holland thankfully acknowledges receiving from H. L. C., £2; "Friend," £'0; "Anon.," £5; M. A. G., 5s.; Clothing from A. G., "Anonymous."

"A Mother."—We have fed the children, and the parents are under visitation, all shall be done that is possible, and done for His sake.

"A Friend."—There are more than thirty missionary agencies in operation in connection with this Mission. "Christ" has the chief place in all.

Friends are invited to visit the Institution any day but Saturday.

Post-office Orders should be made payable at 66, High-street, Whitechapel, E. Letters and Parcels should be addressed to GEORGE HOLLAND, The Ragged Schools, George Yard, High-street, Whitechapel, London, E.

OLD FORD SOUP KITCHEN.—Mrs. ADAMSON, The Vicarage, Wright's-road, Old-Ford, E., earnestly requests help. The parish contains over 11,000 East Londoners, without a single middle-class family or house. We want to feed at least 200 poor children from the Board Schools, in which there are over 3,000. SIXTY POUNDS are required in addition to grants kindly made for Children's Dinners and Breakfasts.

EAST END DISTRESS.—The Rev. T. JACKSON, 41, Powerscroft-road, Clapton, E., appeals for help for respectable but destitute families, who, unless helped, must either starve or go to the workhouse. 450 quarts of soup, and 400 free breakfasts are supplied weekly.

ASHLEY MISSION, Bethnal Green, E.—Assistance is earnestly asked for, to maintain this Mission. Large Mothers' Meetings. Classes for Factory Girls, for Men and Lads. Sunday-school. Band of Hope. Tract distribution and Temperance work. All in efficient working order. Cast-off Clothing thankfully received, and the smallest contributions.—Miss BONTEIN, 22A, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, W.

SYSTEMATIC BIBLE TEACHING MISSION, 21, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row, E.C.—Definite Lessons for teaching Bible Religion in school and home. Parents, teachers, and Christian workers all need this.—Call or write,
Manager, GEORGE STONEMAN.

POOR OF ST. LUKE'S AND CLERKENWELL. — PHILIP GAST, 12, Noel-street, Islington (Minister of Spencer-place Chapel for 28 years), pleads for the Widow and Fatherless and the nearly starving Poor. Clothing, boots, blankets, and money will be gladly acknowledged.

Now Ready, in Monthly Parts.

PICTURE PORTIONS

BEING

THE GOSPEL OF LUKE.

Published under the above title, set in very large type, and Illustrated by H. A. HARPER and J. CLARK, from original sketches made in the Holy Land. Volume of Luke, attractively bound, will (D.V.) be ready middle of December, and will contain Thirty Large full-page Illustrations. Prices, post free, 2s. 6d. and 3s. 6d.

"The text is broken up in a manner which cannot but prove helpful to persons not accustomed to sustained reading. Book distributors will find these portions the best of all tracts."—The Christian.

Funds are urgently needed to circulate the Scriptures, in the above form, in the Hospitals and Infirmaries of our land.

W. WALTERS, SCRIPTURE GIFT MISSION, 79, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON, E.C.

TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS IN "The Christian"
(PREPAID).

Miscellaneous Advertisements in small type are charged at the following rates:—

Not exceeding—	s.	d.
30 Words	3	0
39 Words	3	9
48 Words	4	6

And 9d. for every additional line of nine words or under, the address being in all cases charged for.

Advertisements should arrive not later than Saturday.

Advertisements sent by Post must be accompanied by Post-office Order, not by Stamps, as the risk in transit is very considerable.

The Publishers cannot undertake to receive & forward Replies to Advertisements.

TERMS FOR SUBSCRIPTION TO "The Christian"

"THE CHRISTIAN" is published every Friday (PRICE ONE PENNY), and may be ordered through any Bookseller or Newsvendor, Or will be supplied direct from the Publishers, Messrs. MORGAN & SCOTT, London, on the following Terms, post free, and including double numbers.

ENGLISH SUBSCRIPTIONS.

52 weeks.	£	s.	d.
One Copy & Postage ½d.	0	6	10
Two Copies and Postage 1d.	0	13	8
Three Copies and Postage 1½d.	1	0	6
Four Copies and Postage 2d.	1	7	4

ZENANA MEDICAL COLLEGE, 58, St. George's-road, S.W.—Next Session opens Jan. 13. A few vacancies for paying students. Funds are urgently needed to give free training to many suitable candidates, also to extend the work.
Dr. GRIFFITH, Hon. Sec.

THE SICK & SORROWING.

Funds are very urgently needed by the Committee of the LADIES' SAMARITAN SOCIETY, NATIONAL HOSPITAL FOR THE PARALYSED AND EPILEPTIC, QUEEN SQUARE, BLOOMSBURY, for the purpose of providing Christmas comforts for the more destitute of the out-patients. Will kind friends help? Donations in money, coal-tickets, clothing, flannel (or any other material) are most earnestly solicited. — ROSA PEARMAN, Vice-President.—"He that hath pity upon the poor, lendeth unto the Lord."

STANLEY HOUSE,

HIGH SCHOOL FOR BOYS,

CLIFTONVILLE, MARGATE.

Owing to increasing numbers fresh premises have been taken, which will be opened in January.

The house stands in its own grounds, and having been built expressly scholastic purposes, is fitted with every convenience, to accommodate 40 pupils.

There is a large cricket-field at the back. Gymnasium, workshops, and laborat are provided for scientific and technical instruction.

The present premises will continue to be used as a Junior School for pu under 10.

The Principal takes a personal interest in each boy committed to his cha and no effort is spared to secure his well-being.

For prospectus, references to parents, &c., apply to A. E. COZENS, Star House, Margate.

Under the Patronage of H.R.H. the Princess Christian.

MRS. HILTON'S CRECHE, INFANT INFIRMARY, & ORPHAN'S HOME,

12, 14 & 16,

STEPNEY CAUSEWAY, COMMERCIAL ROAD, E.

Training and Convalescent Home, The Limes, Feltham.

"Oh! these children lean and small,
Spilt like blots about the city,
Quay, and street, and palace wall—
Take them up into your pity!"

DEAR FRIENDS,

We are in extreme need of Funds to maintain our large family of little ones, and to receive other distressing cases needing admission. Surely it is not a time to stay our hand, and to refuse to help these despairing ones who are anxious to place their children in safety, although they do not shrink from breasting the storm themselves. We therefore trust that you will kindly aid us, so that we may be enabled to retain all those that are sheltered in the Institution, and also to receive the most urgent of those who are looking to us for help, so that this Christmastide may be to mothers and children a time of brightness and blessing.

Yours in the Master's service,

Marie Hilton.

All communications to be addressed to Mrs. HILTON, Founder and Hon. Superintendent, Langveld House, 76, Bow Road, London, E.

HIGH-CLASS CHRISTIAN SCHOOL, for the Daughters of Gentlemen. Individual Christian influence. Home comforts. Efficient staff of professors and governesses. Language and music specialities. Large house and garden. Entire charge of pupils from abroad.—Principal, Miss PENN, St. John's, South View, Willingdon-road, Eastbourne.

THE PRINCIPAL of a well-established School for Young Ladies, for many years singularly successful, holding testimonials of the highest order from parents, evangelical clergy, and others, has been solicited to place the advantages of earnest Christian training, combined with High School modes of instruction, within reach of parents of good social position, but limited resources, who are unable to meet the usual fees, which will be reduced to 30 or 40 guineas, and made inclusive. Preparation for all examinations. The staff is composed exclusively of Christian teachers, many taking University honours. Liberal diet. Spacious residence, replete with every modern appliance to ensure health and comfort. Delicate girls, and orphaned families, receive exceptional care.
GIRTON, 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.C.

THE GROVE, CLAPHAM COMMON. Miss WINTERBOTTOM receives a limited number of young Ladies. Comfortable home. Careful Christian training. Thorough modern education. Masters and certificated governesses. Highest references. Terms on application.

WIDOW AND DAUGHTERS of Clergyman, experienced and accomplished, residing in a healthy locality near sea, with a small day school, wish to take charge of orphan children, or children of parents residing abroad, as Resident Pupils. Utmost care given to general education, and religious training. Good references. Strictly moderate terms.
Mrs. DENHAM, Kerr-street, Portrush, Ireland.

THE MISSES ROBINSON, 5, Sussex-place, Southsea, will have two vacancies at Christmas for well-connected Girls, upon reduced terms. Careful Christian training, superior and thorough education. Refined home. Highest references to officers, clergymen, and other parents of Pupils.

OFFICER'S WIDOW and Daughter can receive a few resident pupils with day scholars. Kind training. Every care. Facilities for gymnasium. Healthy situation near Bournemouth. Terms moderate.—E. BUSTARD, Poole, Dorset.

SOUTH-WEST LONDON COLLEGE.

High-class School for Young Ladies,

Carlton Mansions, Clapham-rise, London, S.W.

Principal—Mrs. HALE, A.C.P., F.S.Sc., London.—Modern system of teaching. Visiting masters, resident certificated governesses, with careful personal supervision, and home comforts. Cambridge and other examinations. Special advantages for music and languages. House pleasantly situated in one of the healthiest suburbs of London, replete with every convenience and all modern sanitary improvements. Good garden and tennis. Highly recommended by parents of pupils, Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, and Rev. D. McEwan, D.D.

Educational.

CHERTSEY HOUSE, Red H Surrey.—Miss M. B. GERDS receives the Daug of Gentlemen to educate in a course of study w shall fit them for the higher duties of life. guages, accomplishments, &c. Inclusive cha Prospectus on applica[illegible]. References.

MORAVIAN LADIES' SCHOOL, E Tytherton, Chippenham.—Christian training. paration for examinations. Moderate terms. Principal, Miss HOLL

SUPERIOR FINISHING SCHO for the Daughters of Gentlemen in an establish of long standing. The pupils have the advan of loving care and safe training while purs their studies under first-rate professors.—DE Ward's Library, 112, Kensington-park-road, W

BURLTON HOUSE, READING. High-class Ladies' School. Principal, Miss CLIFFE. Old-established. Thorough teach Modern educational advantages, examinati Finishing masters. Careful Christian train well appointed home. Inclusive terms. Hig references.

EDUCATIONAL HOME for Gi combining a first-class education, including guages and accomplishments, with systen training in light domestic work, and cook Evangelical ministry. Pupils prepared for College of Preceptors' examinations. Inclusive 12 guineas a term, payable in advance.
W. S. C., 13, Rose-street, Newgate-street, E.

ALRESFORD HOUSE
Queen's Avenue, Margate.
High-class School for Sons of Gentlemen. Spe care of Indian and delicate children. Chris home.—Address, The PRINCIPAL.

EDUCATION GRATUITOUS. — Pupil would be received in a select school. S sum for board and laundry required. Refere exchanged. Strictly confidential.—Write, MAR May's Advertising Offices, 162, Piccadilly, W.

REV. MARTIN REED, M.A. Cam late Vicar of Holy Trinity, Leicester, will rec at Eastwell Rectory, Ashford, Kent, one more p after Christmas. Most healthy neighbourh House situated in Eastwell-park. Referenc Rev. Nevile Sherbrooke, &c.

EDUCATION.—Parents who w to place their sons in a private school of mode size, where they will have the combined ad tages of careful Christian training, and effic individual teaching, are invited to write for a spectus of AVENUE HOUSE SCHOOL, Sevenoa Kent. Principal, Mr. J. THORNTON (Autho "The Book-keeping Primer," Macmillan). ferees, Revd J. Figgis, Brighton; Dr. Goodr Manchester, &c.

CLEVEDON LODGE, Coley-h Reading. Home Boarding School for Girls. paration for exams. Referees: Dr. Fairbairn, Allon, B. Priestley, Esq., M.P., &c. Terms mo rate. Vacancy for good Governess-Student.

Huntingdon House School,
TEDDINGTON Middlesex.
Thorough preparation for professional and busi life and for examinations. Rev. Evan H. Hopk Richmond, Surrey, has "much pleasure in rec mending this school to parents requiring so training and a good education at a moderate cos Principal—Mr. GEO. CUMES, F.R.G.S., F.R.A.

YOUR BOYS will have a Christi home, and sound education, with Mr. and M DIXON, Middle-class School, Kingston-on-Tha Near Richmond and Bushey Parks. Establis 1883. 18 to 30 guineas.

UPTON SCHOOL, SLOUGH, ne Windsor.—Principal: GEO. P. FISHER, M.C assisted by Resident and Visiting Masters. T rough Commercial education. Pupils prepared the College of Preceptors' and Oxford and C bridge Examinations. Cricket, football, ten schoolhouse in own grounds, four acres, gra subsoil. Schoolroom area 1000 sq. ft., well ligh and ventilated. Prospectus on application.

BETHANY HOUSE SCHOO
GOUDHURST, KENT.
PRINCIPAL—REV. J. J. KENDON.
Careful religious training, combined with a th oughly sound commercial education. In the three years 150 of the pupils were passed in public examinations at the College of Precept and the Local examinations of the University Cambridge.

DECEMBER 26, 1890.

The Christian.

☞ It is particularly requested that all letters relating to business matters should be addressed to the rm, Messrs. Morgan & Scott, and not to individual members. Communications for THE CHRISTIAN should e addressed to the Editor. Letters of a personal ature should in every case be so marked.

Notes and Comments.

NEXT week we purpose giving portrait and sketch of Mons. EUGENE CASALIS, ate missionary to the Basutos.

Owing to the intervention of the Christnas Holidays, this issue has to be sent to ress two days before the usual time.

☞ We particularly request that all readers who receive THE CHRISTIAN direct from the office by post, who ave not communicated with us during the ast six months, will kindly send their preent address plainly written — especially nissionaries and others in foreign countries.

Again Christmastide is with us, speaking f the joy and peace which come of the Gospel. Unquestionably, the origin of all hings good and hopeful in the world must e traced to God's gracious Spirit, dispensng mercy and truth, at sundry times and n divers manners. The event which Christnas brings to mind, however, stands out in istory as the dawn of hope to the world at arge, and the beginning of that eventful eneration in which the sin of man was xpiated, and reconciliation with God vrought on behalf of all who receive the Saviour. The incarnation was the necessary reliminary to that death whereby "times f ignorance" are divided from days of Gospel light among the nations of the earth. Let us, with grateful hearts, celebrate the ove of Him who "gave his only begotten Son," and the pity of Him who, though rich n his essential divinity, for our sakes beame poor by taking our human nature. Let Christmastide impress upon us the luty of faithfully serving the Lord who ought us, and the privilege of showing a oving concern for the welfare of others.

We may well mourn at this time that he spirit of sectarianism still abides, and hat internecine conflicts of different deominations still continue. There is but ne cure, and that is implicit regard to the eaching of Him who came into the world o reveal his Father's will. Alas, we seem ar from this. The traditions, precepts, and nterpretations of men are listened to, and he blessed Word is made of none effect. If t this season one utterance demands more ttention than another, it is the Divine sentence heard from God respecting the incarnate Saviour: "This is my beloved Son, hear ye Him." Until this is so, remonstrance against error must be heard. In mercy every Christmas brings nearer the Second Advent, when, one with Him, the peace and unity for which his followers sigh will eternally prevail.

General Booth continues to be favoured with a plentiful supply of criticism as to his scheme; but he has so far got the start of his critics that he must by this time have almost secured his £100,000, either in money or in promises. It rests with him now to set to work and justify the calls on the co-operation of the public that have been so freely responded to.

The services of women might with advantage be more largely utilised in various departments of public and philanthropic work; their sympathy, tact, and tenderness, eminently fit them for many such duties. Without, therefore, encroaching upon the legal merits of the case, the following extract from a letter of Miss Cons, late member of the London County Council, may be quoted as an interesting and suggestive testimony from personal experience:—

> If the ratepayers only realised the crying need of women's help on the County Council, especially in the industrial schools, the lunatic asylums, the baby-farms, and the housing of the poor, a need that makes my heart sick to think of it...if they could hear the welcome to a lady councillor accorded by the poor women in the asylums, to whom, as they say, they can speak as they cannot to a man—if the public could see all this with their own eyes, they would speedily come to the support of that large majority of the County Council who have so strenuously urged on the Government their desire for women's help. This is not a party question; it concerns the welfare of the nation at large.

These are considerations which appeal to our common humanity and carry conviction with them.

A country minister writes:—"Many country people can get no work. Young men go for soldiers, sailors, policemen, porters, and the land in small holdings cannot be got. Cottages miserable, unhealthy, unventilated. No one cares! Oh, would that the wretched system of adding house to house, and field to field, till there is no place, could be swept away, and the tributaries of the London submerged tenth be stopped. It seems to me, it is in the country that the remedy must be applied."

By no means the least difficult of the questions bearing upon the condition of our labouring poor is that of the immigration into this country of paupers from all parts of Europe, which takes place unchecked day by day. Quite recently three hundred Polish Jews landed from one ship, most of them being destitute. Such supplies of pauperised labour must of course injuriously affect the lot of our own starving poor, and the country will have to consider how far it is just to ourselves to permit other nations to shift upon England the care and responsibility of maintaining their poor. Nevertheless, God will not forget those who minister to his people, beloved for the Father's sake, in the time of their oppression.

A number of students of Trinity College, Dublin, are about to go forth as missionaries to Chota Nagpore, a district lying about twenty-five miles from Calcutta, and as large as England, with races speaking nearly a score of different languages. These young men will live in a community, and accept only £40 per annum each for their maintenance. The subscription list of this new University Mission is already filling satisfactorily. We wish it God-speed.

Professor H. E. Sawyer, who for several years has been superintendent of the Mount Hermon Schools, Northfield, is sojourning in this country. Hospitalities in Scotland, and pastoral work in Keswick, have delayed his coming to London, but he is expected here in a few days. It will be desirable to afford him opportunities of giving addresses on the progress of Christian work in America. Mr. Moody would be glad of this.

A letter from Constantinople in The Manchester Examiner and Times reports the perpetration of further horrible atrocities upon the Armenians by the Turkish governors and the Kurds. A whole family is stated to have been buried alive a few weeks since at Palu, because the father refused to embrace Mohammedanism, and to deliver up his wife and daughters to the ravishers. Young girls are said to be decoyed and carried off to the mountains and treated in the most revolting manner. Other outrages are committed, and the condition of the Armenians is described as truly pitiable, but none of them dare complain. In the face of such facts as these, is it not high time for the Christian Powers of Europe to interfere?

It is earnestly to be hoped that the true state of things, uncoloured by the prejudices of ministers and officials, with respect to the treatment of the Jews in Russia, may be brought before the Czar in time to stay the promulgation of certain further monstrous edicts said to be contemplated against this persecuted race. The Times correspondent recently reported instances of more cruelties, and it is stated that new repressive laws will probably be enforced in the beginning of 1891. By these it will be forbidden to sell, lease, or mortgage to Jews any real estate in the Empire; they will be deprived of any real property which they now possess. Jewish artisans are to be deprived of certain existing rights, and Christians assisting Jews in evading these regulations are also to be punished. The following observations in The Daily Graphic of December 11 may be quoted as a fitting comment upon the methods of social and religious persecution which a professedly civilised European Government thus employs towards its subjects:—

> It is a ghastly anachronism, that an age which boasts as one of its proudest achievements the emancipation of the negro slave should be stained by an organised and persistent oppression of the main remnant of a race which has given the Western world its whole fabric of religious and moral teaching.

We are glad to note that a protest against the persecution of the Jews in the Czar's dominion has been signed by sixty of the leading Russian savants and literary men, headed by Count Leo Tolstoï. It maintains with great force that the anti-Jewish movement is a violation of the fundamentary principles of justice and humanity, and a peril to Russia itself.

The Bishop of Salford thinks England is already half Catholic. If we are loyal to Christ and to Protestant truth, the signs from which he derives hope will inspire Christian zeal; but it will be useful to see ourselves as we are seen by a Roman Catholic prelate. Here are his words concerning the Church of England:—

Its bishops, ministers, and people are busily engaged in ignoring or denouncing those very Articles which were drawn up to be their eternal protest against the Old Religion. The sacramental power of Orders, the need of jurisdiction, the Real Presence, the daily sacrifice, auricular confession, prayers and offices for the dead, belief in purgatory, the invocation of the Blessed Virgin and the saints, religious vows, and the institution of monks and nuns—the very doctrines stamped in the Thirty-nine Articles as fond fables and blasphemous deceits—all these are now openly taught from a thousand pulpits within the Establishment, and as heartily embraced by as many crowded congregations. Even the statue of the Blessed Virgin Mary has been set up with honour over the principal side entrance to Westminster Abbey, and she has been recently enthroned upon a majestic altar under the great dome of St. Paul's.

This should convince those who would have peace at any price that there is reason to justify an open contention for our Reformed Faith.

Now and then "Anglo-Catholics" give us glimpses of their views regarding such as are outside their well-defined fold. A few days ago, at a meeting of a branch of the English Church Union at Skegness, Rev. N. Green Armytage, M.A., of Boston, in the course of an address on "The Difference between Catholicism and Roman Catholicism," after taking very "High" positions, deplored that some people are prejudiced against Church doctrine, adding:—

Nevertheless, we (the clergy) are bound to teach these things; for had we done so in former generations, Dissent would never have got hold of so many of our people. Now, let us tell them plainly that the Church with her sacraments and ministry of three orders is the only way of salvation for man, and that openly to reject the Church's teaching is to reject the offer of salvation.

So we read in The Skegness Herald. It is more easy to make such statements than it would be to answer the pertinent question: "By what authority dost thou set up such a claim?" The "Anglo-Catholic" dictum breathes the spirit of that Pharisaism which delivered the Christ of God into the hands of wicked men, and of that Romish system which has never tired of handing over to Satan those who have not allowed her utterly unscriptural claims.

By the introduction of the Religious Disabilities Removal Bill into the House of Commons, another attempt is being made to open the offices of Lord Chancellor of England and Lord Lieutenant of Ireland to Roman Catholics. In a letter issued by the Protestant Alliance, the following sentences occur:—

Under a Popish Chancellor the immense patronage of his office, exclusive of his ecclesiastical jurisdiction, might be used for the promotion of Romish influence, both judicially and politically. A Roman Catholic Lord Lieutenant of Ireland cannot represent and uphold in his person the Protestant title and dignity of the Crown, and the appointment of a Roman Catholic to the Vice-Royalty indirectly aims at the subversion of the Protestant constitution of the Empire.

The Act of Settlement secures the Protestant succession, and the coronation oath proclaims Her Majesty's fealty to the constitution as professing the Protestant religion. If, however, Romanists may represent the Crown in the highest things, is it still of any importance that the succession should be Protestant? Assuredly this form of reasoning will prevail, should the Religious Disabilities Removal Bill pass into law. The grave reasons against the proposed legislation should without delay be pressed upon the notice of members of Parliament. The blessings we enjoy as a nation have been coincident with the ascendency of Protestantism. Let the balance of power be reversed, and nothing can prevent the reappearance in our midst of the inevitable consequences of Papal domination. A Roman Catholic is essentially an alien, inasmuch as, just so far as he is a good Catholic, his first allegiance is yielded to a foreign potentate, the Pope of Rome.

Threshold Service.—3.

THE KORAHITES OF TO-DAY

The laws laid down for the Korahite were two—he was to wait; and he must be always at his post.

How often the word "wait" comes in the Bible! Instances rise up in one's memory almost without number. In the Psalms it comes over and over again. "I WAITED patiently for the Lord, and He heard me": "WAIT on the Lord, and let your heart take courage, yea, WAIT thou on the Lord." In Lam. iii. 25, 26: "The Lord is good unto them that WAIT for Him, to the soul that seeketh Him. It is good that a man should both hope and quietly WAIT for the salvation of the Lord." In Isa. xxx. 18, the two "WAITS" are very striking; the Lord's waiting till the exact time comes for the answer, and the blessedness of those who can WAIT on till it is given. It is a special training, this waiting, and is not laid on all the Lord's servants in such full measure as on the Korahites. May we not say that the reason of this peculiar election to patience is, that in the Divine economy of the Kingdom, where nothing is ever wasted, these souls are being specially prepared for some very ample, wide-scoped, active service in the New Jerusalem?

Then the post. Possibly at a north gate; a narrow, shadow-covered place; a life where outward sunshine is the exception, and a constant sense of strain or of disappointed hopes is the allotted portion. Perhaps the circumstances are very irksome, and the character cramped by unsympathetic human influences; or it may be just an ordinary life of utterly common-place duties, when the nature craves for developments peremptorily denied by stern necessity. The north gate comes into innumerable lives, and only God knows how deep the shadow is, or how much it costs the door-keeper to be brave, cheery, confident, thankful. Yes, "blessed are all they that WAIT for Him." Korahite at the north gate! good cheer! The Lord shall give thee light for ever in thy next post. The gates there are open day and night, and need no guarding; thou wilt not have to "stand and wait" in the Golden City. Thou wilt run, yea, fly as on eagles' wings, when thou are sent on the Lord's errands there!

Or, perhaps, the porter may be set to watch at the south gate, beaten upon by the fierce, hot blaze of trial, temptation, or pain. He may have what is called a "hard life," a great deal of conflict, great need for endurance, days and even years of sharp struggle against odds. Korahite! if this is thy warfare—for in the Hebrew the words service and warfare are the same—remember that the trusted sentry is ever given the place of greatest danger, and the Lord is a shield, so that "the sun shall n smite thee by day, neither the moon night." If our King is the Light of Life us, He is also "the shadow of a great Roc in a weary land," and no heated, tempte soul need fear that the difficulties will eve be too much, or the day too long. "An there shall be a pavilion for a shadow i the daytime from the heat, and for a refug and a covert from the storm and from rain (Isa. iv. 6.)

But if the door-keeper may look forwa to seeing the triumphal approach of th King, there is yet the frequent, secret, i dividual approach to the soul by Him wh says, "Behold, I stand at the door an knock." In a consecrated life there a positively no limits to the channels b which a higher spirituality, a closer int macy, is possible with Him who goes on say: "If any man open to Me, I will com in and sup with him, and he with Me." H is always knocking for further access int our natures, so as to transform them fro the base to the divine. In daily lif through friends, through books, by event surprises, losses, gains, by the great book nature, or by means of sudden flashes heaven-born insight into eternal things, H knocks. As we go on in life He seeks throw open our soul-gates to let in a floo of power and vivifying grace. He impar new faculties, so to speak, to the heart th admits Him, opening door after door of its intricate recesses to his gentle, all-pe vading Presence. A finer charity then b comes possible, instead of a narrowed an eclectic sympathy, easily checked or thwarte by rebuffs. In the wider knowledge of o human, erring nature, we may indeed lea to pass on from "experience to hope," f the more we know of man the more we hop in God, who is humanity's only Hope.

As we get to know something of th character of our God, his boundless Fathe liness, his untiring patience, his beautif forethoughts, and his personal, individu solicitude, we begin to soften our criticism to widen our judgments, and to mellow o attitude towards persons and opinions that our cruder, younger faith we held at arm length, thinking thus to do God servic This is the result of that personal conta and blessed intimacy with the Master, who knock on the door has been discerne sounding melodiously across the confus noises of daily life. For this the Korahi is specially fitted. He has time to learn t sweet secret of the Hand on the gate, wi its peculiar code of signals—vibrations th stir the hidden heart-strings. Watchin listening, waiting, the Christian Korahi has a blessed post indeed, for "He th entereth in by the door is the Shepherd the sheep. To Him the porter openeth, a the sheep hear his voice."

Who can say what a blessing to othe the Korahites of to-day may be? Who m measure the eternal results of those lives untiring patience and watchfulness, so co stantly in touch with their Lord, and co sequently of quite incalculable sympathe value to their brethren? We leave, the in thankful trust, the chosen porters their thresholds, "standing still" in t shadow, or in the glare of noon; we lea them living out the great paradox of fai the daily dying and entering into life, "u known, and yet well known; as dying, an behold, they live; as chastened, and n killed; as sorrowful, yet alway rejoicing; poor, yet making many rich; as havi nothing, yet possessing all things" (2 C vi. 9, 10).

GERALDINE M. SEYMOUR.

The End of the Decade.—2.

BY REV. WILLIAM GUEST.

BY comparing our Lord's parable in Luke xix. 11-28 and his vision of Rev. v., we learn these pregnant truths among others. Jesus has gone, in his human identification, into heaven to receive for Himself a kingdom in our alien world. Although its citizens "hate" his rule, He has in it nevertheless "servants of his" to whom He imparts endowments to hasten his purposes. He Himself appears in heaven bearing on his person marks of the sacrifice He has made on behalf of our alienated realm: "A Lamb as it had been slain"—and at the same time of one inheriting strength and majesty: "The Lion of the tribe of Juda." Twelve representatives of the Jewish, and twelve of the Gentile Church ("four and twenty elders"), along with representatives of this groaning and suffering creation ("four living creatures") bear in their hands tokens of the prayers of earth's saintly ones. They unitedly hail Him, the Redeemer, and the Mighty One, as worthy to unfold and fulfil the successive pages of Jehovah's Providential plan for the bringing in of God's reign among men. And the vision is made complete by the representation of the Saviour, as possessing in Himself immeasurable resources. In the interest, and for the succour of his own servants, he has a sevenfold fulness of strength, and a sevenfold fulness of the Spirit's grace.

We thus learn two supremely important lessons: Our glorified Redeemer and Head is, with the co-operating concurrence of heavenly ones, controlling all Providential events for the putting down of all malign "rule, authority, and power," and—"YE SERVE THE LORD CHRIST" is through all the waiting ages the one grand designation of his servants.

PRESENT DUTY.

The book called, with such simple grandeur, "The Revelation of Jesus Christ," and of which (though not the writer) He is the Author, declares in its preface that in it He shows unto his servants "things which must shortly come to pass." To faithful ones mourning over the wrongs and sorrows on the earth, and themselves baptized in sufferings, it seemed good to the Redeemer to give a revelation of his own final victory over all hostile might and machinations. Be it observed, however, before doing this the Lord turns the thoughts of his servants upon themselves, and by addresses, in most august language, to seven churches, He enforces, by alarms, warnings, and encouragements, the necessity of heedfulness and vigilance. The blessing pronounced on the readers of the Book must be, not only for those who ponder the unfoldings of the future, but for those also who keep in heart and life the exhortations addressed to the seven representative churches. The curiosity that inquires into coming events must not stop there. The risen Christ in effect says to his follower: "I encourage thy investigation into prophetic foretellings. But first of all take heed to thyself. I walk among those who bear my name; mine eye searches through and through every Christian assembly (ecclesia); I judge not by its repute or its estimate of itself; I know thy works unerringly; mine is no blind affection; I have rebukes for wrong, even among my own servants."

This, then, is our present duty: To guard, lest by any failure of fidelity, or misuse of gifts and opportunities, or shortcoming of love, we incur the Saviour's solemn warning: "I have found no works of thine fulfilled [fully done in weight and measure] before my God" (Rev. iii. 2, R.V.). May God in mercy help us to understand that these two chapters are foreshadowings to us of the discriminating judgment we shall meet hereafter, and thus may we be spared the pale-facedness of discovering, on our first interview, face to face with the Lord, that we have been something else than we took ourselves to be!

Now, if there is one truth which comes out as a beam of light from these addresses to the seven Asiatic churches, it is that the three-fold obligation is laid on Christian disciples of godly separateness, steadfastness as to truth, and faithful witnessing in relation to society around them. The question then comes, What shall we say of the society with which we are confronted? We end the year amid proofs on every hand of a more ominous upheaving than has been known for many years, and with less of satisfaction and hope in regard to public affairs. Doubtless there is heard a tone of righteousness among Christian nations that respects the commandments of God. But, with respect to vast numbers in all classes, and spite of our common Christianity, the old sentence is true, in relation to their trade, their fashions, and pastimes: "There is no fear of God before their eyes." In the matter of politics the American Senator Ingalls (reckoned a man equal to the average in morals) lately said:—

> The purification of politics is an iridescent dream. Government is force. Politics is a battle for supremacy. Parties are the armies. The decalogue and the golden rule have no place in a political campaign. To defeat the antagonist and expel the party in power is the purpose.

CAUSES OF UNBELIEF.

The imperative inquiry arises, How is it that men in so-called Christian nations are thus openly outside the Divine order? that they are sceptical as to that order? that the Christian religion, instead of dominating them, is without effect? and that a practical infidelity is everywhere so prevalent? No doubt the Gospel has powerful sway among us. Among rich and poor, learned and unlearned, there is a blessed going out of faith to the Saviour. But one who knows has just said that many churches in West London are nearly empty, and that the most wealthy people worship God nowhere. What it is elsewhere in London, and in large cities, is known to all men who have eyes to see. Places of worship half-filled, and Sunday excursion trains crowded. Vast numbers of young men defiantly irreligious; artisans scornful; the majority of the middle and upper classes totally unconcerned. And yet the evidences for the truth of the Christian revelation are multiplying. Every yard of Bible lands is testifying to the truthfulness of Scripture. Deciphered monuments in all Eastern countries are confirming Old Testament records. Destructive criticism, in relation to the New Testament, is being proved baseless. Materialistic philosophy is at a standstill. Evolutionary methods of natural development are shown to be inadequate, so that Mr. Wallace, the author of "Darwinism," and only second to Darwin himself, closes his book with the significant averment that with regard to the crowning result of Nature's work, the origin of man, we can find no adequate cause, except in "the unseen universe of the Spirit."

Infidelity, nevertheless, meets us on every side. Not an infidelity that reasons, but a deep-seated unbelief. And a foremost cause must be laid against ourselves. When we

PREACHERS SEEM TO DOUBT,

how are the people to believe? They tell us, whose observation is wide, that it is an exceptional thing to hear in churches and chapels a sermon which bears the great message of reconciliation which is entrusted to ambassadors from the Lord, or which makes manifest the tremendous peril of persisting in unbelief. There are pleas in extenuation of this, but the pleas mostly show an utterly inadequate apprehension of man's condition as having forsaken God, and of the transcendent import of New Testament revelations. Men are in Christ's estimation lost or saved. They have turned their back upon God, or they are in loyal relations. They are swayed by the god of this world, or they are actuated by the regenerating Spirit. But how unusual to witness impassioned concern as to the reception of a message which to such persons is one of life or death. The urgency and tremendousness of eternal things; the remembrance of an Apostle who, in an Oriental city, besought men night and day with tears, well justified the beseeching, compassionate importunity which formerly marked the evangelical pulpit. Alas, too often now there is no discernment between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth Him not. The converted and unconverted, the worldly and the spiritual, are addressed in a way that bridges over the infinite gulf of distinction between them. And the fearful loss is not only the abortiveness of a message which might otherwise have received the concurring grace of the Spirit of God, and not only of the legitimate influence of a preacher, but involves a loss to hearers which neither pen, nor word, nor thought can estimate, and which eternity cannot sufficiently deplore.

COMPROMISES AND CONCESSIONS

are also drifting men into a fatal unbelief. During the year a theological book has appeared which in less than the twelve months has run through ten editions, and is a remarkable sign of the modern tendency to premature attempts to conciliate opponents. "Lux Mundi" has made concessions to sceptical scientists and critics which will altogether fail of convincing, much less of winning, them. Very able is the volume, and well meant has been the purpose; but the proper attitude of Christian men just now is that of waiting, and not of conceding. In the matter of scientific development, the most eminent men have rashly adopted theories which cannot be sustained; in matters of Biblical criticism great scholars have been proved to be wrong. The learning of Europe, as distinguished writers hold, moves rather towards conservative than destructive lines. The proofs of the unique and Divine control over the writing of the blessed Book will be more manifest as the century nears its close; and the impatience shown by men among all churches in finding precipitate solutions of critical questions is adding to the objections of unbelievers, and strengthening the indifference of the half-learned in Christian congregations. The magnificent victories of the past surely ought to save the Scriptures from unguarded concessions in the days passing over us. Still more serious are concessions pointing to

ANTI-REFORMATION TIMES.

Not for two hundred years, said the Bishop of Guildford, in November, has such a judgment been given as that of the Archbishop of Canterbury in the same month in the Bishop of Lincoln case. In referring to this let it be frankly said that no one Christian denomination is justified in commenting on the action of a powerful Church party, except under the confession of the grievous failures which exist elsewhere, and except from the standpoint of Scripture.

From the time of the statesmen of Elizabeth the Established Church has recognised a Reformed, and a Roman Catholic doctrine. The drift of opinion fifty years ago was distinctly towards the former. The Reformed party was then the strongest. It neglected its opportunity. Of recent years the tide has fast and alarmingly turned. This might have been borne and each party left to itself to secure ascendency for what was held to be the truth. Most unhappily, Episcopal authority has now given the weight of its judgment in favour of practices which are abundantly capable of being interpreted as anti-Protestant. Unquestionably this is the most serious event of the year, and will certainly be followed by measureless, menacing consequences. To say nothing of the degradation of the Christian religion in the prominence now to be paid to the lighting of candles, the place where water and wine shall be mixed, the cleansing of vessels, the clerical attitude at a table, and the time when a hymn shall be sung; to say nothing of the door which is opened for a theatrical materialism in the place of spiritual Christianity; to say nothing of the wrong done in a parish where there is but one church, and devout Protestants are compelled to witness spectacular usages which are to them an offence—the distressing part of the judgment is the large encouragement it gives to sacerdotal assumptions which look away from inspired Scriptures, and are based on human traditions. For a time the Popish doctrine of the Real Presence in the Sacraments of the Lord's Supper may be masked, but with the Episcopal sanction the Mass, through the action of sacrificing priests, will be increasingly taught, and the symbolical postures and costumes, whereby this will exalt the clergy, will drive off multitudes into irreligion and scepticism. Such priestly assumptions have always been repugnant to the people of England, were once resisted by fire and by blood, and have everywhere in Europe turned men into freethinkers, scoffers, and atheists. A serious and inevitable reaction, however, is coming.

A reference is called for in relation to movements in favour of

A SOCIAL CHRISTIANITY.

No word of condemnation should be uttered here. The men who draw attention to the horrors underneath our modern civilisation are doing a most urgent and God-like work. Fifty years ago De Tocqueville declared that one of the greatest perils of the future would lie in great cities. The peril is upon us. The problem of dealing wisely with the immeasurable evils and miseries of great cities is the most perplexing which is before Christian people. With thankfulness let it be recorded that the grandest event of the closing year is the resolution to deal with this problem. Surely the pity which has been moved with such large generosity is of Him who said when among us: "I have compassion on the multitude, because they have nothing to eat."

Nevertheless, let one whose admiration has been stirred by this magnificent philanthropy convey a hint that even social betterments have a side open to serious danger. Even Professor Huxley affirmed on the first day of this month that "no reforms and improvements will go to the root of the evil among us, unless they attack it in its ultimate source—namely, the motives of the individual man." (Ah, the school of the Professor has no motives which can for one moment be compared with those of the Gospel.) Tremendous unto despair was the moral disease of the Roman Empire when Christ came into it; but, while He laid a mighty hand of healing on man, He came as Saviour rather than as a social reformer; and He taught that it was out of the heart of man rather than out of his circumstances that evil proceeded.

He solved after this manner the problem of social ethics—"Every good tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit." He taught his followers to ask first of all in their prayers for the coming of a reign of God among men, and last of all for deliverance from evil, or the Evil One. It would be a day of deeper darkness and not of brightness should the Church of God practically forget this teaching.*

THREE PARTIES.

This, then, is the condition of things as we close the decade: Three parties divide society. On the one hand is a growing number of believing men and women, caring less than of old for party ecclesiasticisms, and caring less prominently than was the case in the early period of the Evangelical Revival for personal safety, but powerfully moved by a mighty endeavour to win men from their alienation towards God, and to do battle with the Satanic forces that have wasted the world. These are yearning to drink more deeply into the spirit of man's Redeemer, and to receive more fully of his life. Their world-wide sympathies and self-denials are approaching those of Apostolic times.

A second party are those who have gone to the terrible length of voting the Christian religion old-fashioned. These include considerable numbers of the literary and upper classes of society. Theirs is all but total ignorance of the zeal, gifts, devotion, and success of earnest Christian men. Their unbelief is uncandid and unenquiring, but strongly influenced by the causes which this address has glanced at.

Between these two is a third party. Yes, between. They are neither cold nor h Their Christianity is tepid and uninfluenti They object to, and criticise, Christian fe vour. They are not merely of the world worldliness, but are coming to justify th worldliness. They cannot remain whe they are. Intensity is upon the age, ar must affect them as others. A sluggis stream between two near and strongly flow ing currents will ultimately run into one the other.

So we end the ninth decade of the centur All things are moving; all are serious. W cannot doubt that Christ on the throne hasting the final conflict. It will be betwee light and darkness, loyalty and disobedienc On one side or the other every man mus of necessity take his place, and on th closing years of the century the sign c Daniel will be more openly fulfilled. "Many shall purify themselves, and mak themselves white, and be refined; but th wicked shall do wickedly, and none of th wicked shall understand; but they that b wise shall understand" (R.V.). The dutie of the faithful at this epoch must form th subject of the New Year's paper.

Tunbridge Wells.

* I am old enough to remember an imposing and promising scheme for social and popular advancement, sixty years ago. The British workman was becoming a marked figure in the nation. Statesmen, philanthropists, and men of the highest literary fame, assisted by nobility and millionaire-capitalists, inaugurated a grand scheme on his behalf. Mechanics' Institutes, with high-class lectures and well-chosen libraries were widely founded. A Penny Magazine, with admirable papers, became a national publication. I afterwards entered, as a youth, one of the newly-formed debating classes. "Religion and politics excluded" was the forewarning to me. But anti-religion was there. The man who led that class was a glib and clever infidel. Like the phantasms of a dream that movement, with its national expectations, passed away, but it left something behind it. Illustrious men had proclaimed a social reformation with Christianity left out. It was left out, and there came unconcern about it. The grand scheme all but perished, but it left that fearful loss of the Church's hold on working men which we now deplore, and that alienation of them from Christian ordinances which is fruitful of ten thousand ills. The Christian Sociology of our day does not proceed on these lines, but the failure I have adverted to has its lessons.

LEPERS IN INDIA.

A LEPER PRAYER-MEETING

IN a letter from Chumba, Himalayas, to his wife, Mr. W. C. Bailey, of the Mission to Lepers in India (17. Glengyle-terrace, Edinburgh), writes:—

I have to-day enjoyed what I can call nothing but a little bit of heaven itself. I went down to the asylum this afternoon, and, getting them all round me, I said to Gamnú and Rodu, "Find out the fourth chapter of John." This they did without any difficulty; and then I said, "Now, Gamnú, do you read first." (An additional joy was that the translation they were reading from was the very one that Sonu and I made together years ago; this was a joy that a stranger could not share.) I then made them read alternately, and I made an occasional remark as they went on, or asked a question. They both read well, but Gamnú the better of the two, and she would help Rodu out whenever he was in a difficulty. I did not succeed in puzzling them once. I then said, "Now we shall have a little prayer; I shall pray first, then Gamnú, and then Rodu." I then offered a simple prayer, bringing in as much "Chumiyāli" as I could, and so soon as I had finished Gamnú went on, and then Rodu.

I wish you and all the friends who have prayer-meetings could have heard them; there was such a pathos, such a spiritual beauty in them, that it would be utterly impossible for me to give you any idea of it. I felt that God was in our midst, and that the place whereon we bowed together was holy ground. We were indeed, as it were, in one of the outer courts of heaven itself. When Rodu had finished, I raised my head and said, "Hor koi (anyone else)?" Dear old Kanaya repeated the Lord's Prayer in the sweet Chumiyāli that you have heard me repeat it in so often. "Hor koi?" Again the Lord's Prayer in Chumiyāli. "Hor koi?" Again the same by another, and so on, until the remaining six Christians had all repeated the beautiful words which the dear Lord Himself taught his disciples. The Lord's Prayer six times, one after the other, was it too much? Not for me, and, oh! surely not for Him for whose ear they were intended. So ended our never-to-be-forgotten prayer-meeting, the very best I was ever privileged to take part in.

In Gamnú's prayer it was most touching to hear the way in which she pleaded on behalf of the other poor lepers in the State who have no friends. In one place she asked that God would send his own Spirit and light and comfort into their hearts. We then had a talk together, and they told me of the desperate condition of the other lepers all over the State who have been driven from their friends and their homes.

LIFE, LIGHT, AND LOVE.

THE GOSPEL OF JOHN.

By Rev. F. B. MEYER, B.A., Regent's Park Chapel.

"SENT."—JOHN III. 34.

WE pass but slowly over these earlier chapters of this marvellous Gospel, because they are so thickly strewn with treasures. And we need not grudge the time or labour, because they are the seed-plot of the whole. To understand them is to have a key to the inner life of our blessed Lord, and to gain the true standpoint for understanding not only this Evangel, but the other writings of the beloved Apostle.

The word which stands at the head of this chapter is full of the music rung out by the Christmas chimes. It was one of the watch-words of Jesus; and, with the exception of the word Father, oftener on his lips than almost any other; occurring twice in this chapter and more than forty times in this book, it challenges our attention. What does it mean? "The Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world." This is an inquiry which is shrouded in deep and impenetrable mystery, dark with excessive light, before which angels are speechless; and yet it becomes us to know all we may, for employing one of his expressive parallels, on the evening of his first resurrection day, our Master said, "As the Father hath sent Me, even so send I you" (xx. 21). In so far, then, as we can understand the true meaning of the Father's mission of the Son, we shall be able to understand also the Son's mission of that little band, which included not the Apostles only, but the two who had arrived from Emmaus, together with several others not formally included in the Apostolic circle (Luke xxiv. 33); and which thus represents the entire Church, of which we are part.

I. THE ORIGIN OF OUR LORD'S MISSION.—In his Divine nature our Lord was one with the Father and Spirit in conceiving the marvellous scheme of man's redemption. In the essence of his being, the Lord our God is one God, and in the very depths of that absolute oneness, the plan of our redemption was conceived and planned, and its purpose executed. But it is also true that the whole Godhead was one with Christ in every act of his incarnation. "God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself." "God was manifested in flesh."

It is a mistake to describe the work of Jesus as if He stepped in between an offended God and a race of sinners, averting the thunderbolts which were being launched upon them, and interposing by his own action to appease an otherwise implacable wrath. It is undeniable that the holy nature of God is absolutely set against the wilful disobedience and ungodliness of sinful men. But, nevertheless, the loving nature of God yearns, with all the love that ever breathed through the being of our Saviour, over the fallen and erring children of our race.

The Roman Catholic errs in attributing more tender love and sympathy to the Mother of Jesus than to her Son, and in calling upon her to intercede with Him for sinners, reminding Him of her motherhood. This we condemn, and rightly. We turn away, in spite of their consummate art, from the pictures in which the mother pleads with her enthroned Son, as from his throne He meditates vengeance upon the race that crucified Him. But let us take care lest we fall into a similar error, and suppose that the Son is more merciful than the Father, when, in point of fact, they are one in an indissoluble unity. Just as you may analyse the ocean brine in the creek that runs far up into the land, so you may analyse the nature of the Godhead in that marvellous inlet of Deity into the life of men, which we know as the Holy Incarnation. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father."

All this lies embedded in these most precious words: "He gave his only begotten Son." "The Father sent the Son." At other times, it may be desirable to accentuate the willing-hood on the part of our dear Lord, which made his incarnation and death his own act and deed of unparalleled love. But just now it is befitting to emphasise the other side of the wondrous mystery, and to insist that the love of the Giver is not less than the love of the Given, and that the compassion of the Sender was every whit as tender as that of the Sent. And in saying this, we surely gratify the heart of the Son, who repeatedly turned the thoughts of men from Himself to Him who had sent Him, as if He would attribute to Him any credit or praise which was due for so marvellous an interposition. "Neither came I of Myself, but He sent Me" (viii. 42). Just as the Holy Spirit deprecates the concentration of attention on Himself, lest aught should be diverted from the ever-blessed Son who sent Him (xvi. 7), so does the Son pass on our love and trust, which gather around Him so fondly, to the Father whose commissions it was his meat and drink, as the Son of Man, to fulfil. To use his own words, He sought the glory of Him that sent Him (vii. 18).

We often meet with those who concentrate all their thought and love on the Lord Jesus, but who have not yet learnt towards the Father that love which casteth out fear. To Jesus they pray. On Jesus they lean. In Jesus they rest. This is natural in the earlier stages of the Christian life. But it should not be ever so, or we shall become stunted and one-sided in our growth. As the Spirit reveals the Son, so we must ask the Son to reveal the Father, as He has promised to do to the weary and heavy-laden who come to Him, and so the Father will ultimately reveal Himself to the loving and obedient heart (Matt. xi. 27, 28; John xiv. 23, xvi. 17).

II. OUR LORD'S CONCEPTION OF HIS MISSION.—We cannot tell what was in his thought when our Lord spoke so constantly of having been sent. Was there present to Him some parting scene in which the Father gave Him up to the work of our redemption? Is there an allusion in his words to a wrench, a surrender, a sacrifice, like that which rends our hearts when we give up to some necessary but distant and painful expedition, the one who is dearer to us than life? When the mother gives up her boy to the service of his country, when the newly-married bride waves her heart-breaking farewell to the husband who sails on some distant and perilous enterprise, and the chords of nature are strained to breaking, is there not some faint shadow of the yet more stupendous giving up on the part of the Infinite God? Gifts are only worth the love that makes them; an infinite gift means infinite love, and such love is capable of infinite pain (x. 36).

But whatever it was that the Lord looked back on, it is clear that the consciousness of his mission was one of the strongest and most formative factors in his human life. He realised that the Father had sent Him, not to condemn but to save the world (iii. 17); to be its Life and Light and Love; to reveal to men the hidden nature of the invisible God; to put down all rule, authority, and power, and to deliver back the kingdom to God the Father, so that God might be all in all.

He was utterly absorbed in this commission.—He had no thought of Himself, of his own glory, or of the esteem of men. To be about his Father's business; to do the works which his Father had given Him to finish (v. 36); to speak the words which He had heard from the Father (viii. 26); to fulfil the commandment enjoined on Him by the Father (xii. 49); these constituted the programme and object of his life. Dear as was the salvation of the world, and the winning of the Bride of his choice, all was subordinated to a higher purpose, and included in the sweep of a wider plan, by the accomplishment of the purpose of his Father's will. Hence his judgment was unbiassed and just, because his motive was absolutely pure (v. 30).

Surely it would be well if we were animated by the same ardent passion. We set ourselves too low an aim, hence so much of the disappointment that comes in Christian endeavour. We set ourselves to seek the conversion of the unsaved, the building up of believers, the extension of the kingdom of our Lord, and are depressed unless the special aim on which we have set our hearts is realised. But if only we could drink into the spirit of our Master, and understand that we are co-workers with Himself in his devotion to his Father's purpose, we should feel, that if only we are true to that, we are fulfilling our life-plan, even though some pet ambition remained unrealised and unfulfilled. "Though Israel be not gathered, yet shall I be great in the eyes of the Lord, and Jehovah shall be my strength." The sun includes in his march through space, the motions of his satellites; and to live to do the will of God includes all those other motives which enter into the life of men.

Our Lord believed that the Father's supplies were adequate to the needs of his commission.—God never sends us to do a work for which He does not equip and enable us. And in doing his work it is wise constantly to be falling back on his resources and supplies. The one thing of which we need to be assured, and the only thing concerning which we should be at all anxious, is the assurance that we are where God would have us be, and engaged on his work. Where this is clear we need have no care for anything beside. God is pledged to find the stuff for every tabernacle which He commissions us to build. He expects no soldier to conduct a campaign at his own charges. If we go down the mine He will hold the rope, and send down all supplies.

This was our Lord's attitude. As Son of Man He had emptied Himself of those inherent attributes which were his as the equal and Fellow of God; they were always within his reach, but He forbore to use them; and elected to live a life of complete dependence, yielding up his holy will, and receiving by faith, as we should, all the reinforcements and supplies required in the execution of his commission.

He lived by the Father (vi. 57); He was ever conscious of his Father's companionship, robbing life of its loneliness (viii. 29); He expressly denied that his works or words were his own, and insisted that they were all given, as He needed them, by Him who had sent Him forth (xiv. 10-24). Remember how He said, "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent Me" (vii. 16); and how He hastened, amid the gathering shadows, to work the works of Him that had sent Him (ix. 4). It was his sufficient justification to the accusation of his foes, that He was only working out what the Father had wrought within Him, up to that very moment of time, Sabbath though it were (v. 17).

It is a lesson which we need in this busy life to ponder deeply. There are three stages in the dying of self. First, we must die to self as being able to achieve our justification, then as being able to effect our sanctification, and lastly, as being able to accomplish any efficient spiritual work. We must learn to die to the energy of the self-life in our Christian activities. He who sent us must give us the plan, and supply us with the power. The doctrine we teach, the words we speak, the works we do, must be received by us from Him who has sent us, as his were received from the Father who sent Him. Then a great peace would settle down upon us, born of a great faith; and we should be able to say, with the saints of a former age, "Thou wilt ordain peace for us, for Thou hast wrought all our works in us." He whom God hath sent has only to speak the words of God.

Difficulties are absolutely nothing to the man who knows that he is on the mission on which God has sent him. They are only opportunities for him to show his power, problems to manifest his skill in their solution, thunder-clouds on which to paint the frescoes of his unrealised tenderness. Oh, to live as Jesus did, putting Him in the place in our lives, which his Father occupied in his own life; and to say, "The living Saviour hath sent me, and I live by Him, eating of his flesh, and drinking of his blood, depending on his help (vi. 57).

III. The Hidden Power of Our Lord's Mission.—"God giveth not the Spirit by measure." What a word is this! It is said that Solomon gave up the task of enumerating the wealth of treasure that he put into the house of the Lord; and our Father puts no limit on the supply of his Spirit to those whom He sends forth.

As the Son was sent forth to do a work unparalleled in its scope, its sufferings, and its results, the blessed Spirit was bestowed on Him to a commensurate extent. Conceived of the Holy Ghost in the pure virgin; anointed by the Holy Ghost at his baptism; driven by the Spirit into the wilderness; nerved, empowered, sustained by the Eternal Spirit in his sacrifice on the cross; raised by the Spirit of Holiness from the dead; and receiving from the Father ever new supplies of the Spirit in his ascension and mediatorial reign; let us be glad and rejoice, for if such measureless supplies came down on the head of our Aaron, we may gladly anticipate some droppings for ourselves as they run down to the fringe of his skirts.

That Spirit which rested on Him is ours. And we may have all of Him that our exigencies demand or our faith can take. There is absolutely no limit save that which we ourselves impose. The oil will go on pouring so long as we can bring vessels, and only stay when there is not a vessel more. "He is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think."

On the one hand is our life mission to do the will of Jesus, who has sent us, and who waits to show us what He wants us to do; on the other hand is the unmeasured supply of the measureless Spirit that empowered his earthly life. He is our life-blood, our inspiration, our bond of connection with our Head; nothing shall daunt, nothing overmaster us; the works that He did we will do, yea, greater works than these, because He is gone to the Father, and with added power shall do through us by his Spirit what even He, in his earthly life, could not effect.

THE NEW YEAR.

What will the New Year bring?
Will it be joy or pain?
Will it be loss or gain?
I cannot tell.

It may bring sorrows sore,
Parting from dearest friend,
Grief that my heart shall rend,
Or even death.

But this I surely know,
My Guide, my King is He
Who died my life to be,
And loves me well.

So I may trusting go,
Bearing with Him his cross,
Counting all gain but loss,
Since He is near.

Singing his faithful love
Through all the long years past,
Which to the end will last,
Nor ever fail.

Till in his home above
My ransomed soul shall rest,
In his own beauty drest,
And praise my King.

M. A. F.

BLIND IN IRELAND.

Sir,—The lamented death of Dr. Armitage has deprived the blind of one of the best earthly friends they ever had, and by none will his experienced advice and great liberality be more missed than by the blind in Ireland. Dr. Armitage was a strong upholder of the system of workshops as opposed to asylums for the blind, and had the highest opinion of the workshops established twenty years since in Belfast. There are over seventy blind men and women employed there, earning their daily bread, supporting themselves, and in many cases their families, by their own industry. These workshops have given employment to 110 persons, the wages paid being over £14,000. Blind persons of all religious denominations are admitted, and the committee is composed of representatives of the different evangelical churches.

There are upwards of twenty blind persons on the list, who cannot be admitted owing to want of space, and it is earnestly desired to have an addition made, so that admission can be given to all suitable cases. For this purpose a site has been purchased adjoining the existing premises, towards the cost of which, along with the erection of the necessary building, the late Dr. Armitage contributed £100, and further offered £500 on condition that the total amount be raised within a year. This was at once followed by a similar offer from Lady Johnson. The limit of time will expire on May 1, and there is still £1600 required before the £1000 can be claimed.

The manufactures of the blind are of excellent quality, and are easily disposed of. Basket-work of every description is made, also mattresses and upholstering. Re-seating cane chairs is a considerable item, as many as 1200 being turned out in the present year. Aid is earnestly besought from those who approve of helping these otherwise helpless blind men and women to help themselves.

Your obedient servant,
(Miss) Mary Hobson,
Hon. Sec. Ladies' Committee.
32, Royal-avenue, Belfast.

NEWPORT, MON.—The People's Mission, having for its centre the Oddfellows' Hall, Herbert-street, arose out of an effort to reach the parents of children attending a Band of Hope. Over two thousand persons are visited every week, and twenty thousand printed invitations to meetings are distributed. The hall is well filled every Lord's Day with people of a class not to be found in churches and chapels. Cottage meetings are being held in the houses of those whose hearts have been touched in the hall. Dr. Barnes, of Clytha College, who is superintendent of this unsectarian work, would be glad to hear of a Christian man and woman, with some means, willing to give their entire time to visitation.

A TEMPERANCE VETERAN.

On Thursday evening last week the Board-room of the Temperance and General Provident Institution, near London Bridge, was the scene of a most interesting gathering. There were present a number of representative temperance advocates—grey-haired veterans, who have for years been to the front in many a well-contested fight with the forces of evil; and younger men who are devoting the strength and conviction of mature years to the same struggle. All had met to do honour to one of the veterans, Mr. John Hilton, who has recently attained his 70th year, and the jubilee of his temperance labours. No man in the ranks of British total abstainers is more highly or more widely esteemed for his personal qualities, or for his zeal in the good cause. The proposal to mark this stage in a long and devoted life by a public testimonial was warmly received, and the presentation took the form of an illuminated address of congratulation, and a purse containing £400.

The gathering was presided over by Hon. and Rev. Canon Leigh, who, in the name of the subscribers, presented the address and purse to the guest of the evening. In doing so, he referred in the warmest terms to Mr. Hilton's faithful service, alluding especially to his unwearied efforts as Parliamentary agent of the United Kingdom Alliance. Mr. Hilton, in a very feeling reply, thanked his friends for their generous appreciation of what he had been enabled to do, and said he would earnestly strive in any future service to reach more nearly to the highest possible ideal that could be laid down. He made touching reference to the help and inspiration he had received from his beloved wife, who is known the world over as a friend of the poor children. Mrs. Hilton, unhappily, could not be at the meeting on account of bodily weakness. Mr. Hilton referred also with gratification to the fact that the members of his family (most of whom were present) are following in his footsteps as total abstainers, and serving the cause in various ways.

Short congratulatory speeches followed from Mr. Gill, of Guildford (son-in-law of Mr. Hilton), Dr. Dawson Burns, Dr. Edmunds (of the Temperance Hospital), Mr. R. Sawyer, Mr. J. Raper, Mr. Penny (of Brighton, Mr. Hilton's native place), Mr. William Noble, Hon. Conrad Dillon, Mr. Walkley, Mr. J. Hayward, Mr. James Bonwick (from Australia), Mr. John Kempster, Dr. Ridge, Mr. Thomas Cash, and other friends, all of whom expressed the most cordial sentiments of esteem for Mr. Hilton, and the sincerest good wishes for his long continued usefulness in promoting the temperance cause. In the course of his address the reverend chairman remarked that the opponents of temperance are declaring their bold intention to fight the battle inside and outside of Parliament. All the greater is the need for such men as Mr. Hilton, who bring to their advocacy the qualities of cheerfulness, courage, and self-sacrifice. Mr. Hughes, C.C., treasurer of the testimonial fund, said that members of the Society of Friends (with which body Mr. Hilton is connected), had been the principal contributors. One of the secretaries stated that letters had been received from many prominent friends of temperance, expressing regret at their absence, and heartily joining in the tribute of esteem to their devoted friend and fellow-worker.

CAPE GENERAL MISSION.—The first report of this work has been issued under the title "Sunny South Africa." The various agencies are reviewed, and details are given of proposed operations in Swaziland, in memory of Mrs. Spencer Walton. Copies of the report may be had from Marshall Bros., 10, Paternoster-row, who have also published a sheet almanack, named after the Mission; also Memorials of a Short but Fragrant Life, a sketch of the career and work of the late Mrs. Spencer Walton (née Dixon).

Via the Golden Bridge.

BY T. J. BARNARDO, F.R.C.S.E.

MANY people have lately had the phrase, "A Colony Over the Sea," in their mouths, and their imaginations have been caught by the possibilities of a scheme which proposes a golden bridge from penury to plenty, from the lowest slum to contentment and prosperity in some great settlement of our colonial empire. Let me briefly tell the story of one of our young colonists who a few years ago crossed the golden bridge. That story is neither without interest nor devoid of a moral.

On a tempestuous and snowy night in the winter of 1873 the attention of some of the members of a congregation in Brixton was arrested when leaving the house of prayer by the appearance of a young girl, about thirteen years of age, who was singing in the street, and endeavouring to sell ballads among the passers-by. Touched by her pathetic appearance, and by the sweet tones of her voice, several ladies spoke to the little singer (who gave her name as Eliza Green), and they learnt that the girl's mother was lying seriously ill in a Southwark slum. The ladies gave her some temporary aid and sent her home. Eliza was subsequently visited, and it turned out that her mother was dying of cancer. A subscription was taken up by those Brixton friends who had in this fashion made the little singer's acquaintance; the mother's wants were looked after, and proper clothing and food were found for the daughter. But shortly after this mission of mercy was set on foot the poor mother died, and these kind-hearted Samaritans became anxious to obtain a home for Eliza, and application was made to me by one of them.

At that time our Girls' Home was only in course of formation. The daughters of my family were then but two dozen in number, and to them Eliza Green was forthwith added. She remained under my care about two years, until, when fifteen years old, a highly-eligible situation was found for her with the wife of a merchant living at the Cape, who chose Eliza to return with her to South Africa, as nurse having charge of her two little ones. Her employers, a Mr. and Mrs. N., promised faithfully to keep up communication with me, and to let me know how Eliza did. After a few months, however, letters ceased to come, and as my communications brought no replies, Eliza fell into the background of our annals.

In the year 1878, when the girl must have been eighteen years of age, I heard quite incidently from a returned missionary that a young woman, said to have been one of my girls, had married very well in South Africa; had, in fact, made what is called "a good match." As at that time I had very few girls in South Africa, and none of them old enough to have been married, except Eliza Green, this announcement greatly interested me, and investigation through the medium of a friend followed. The fact was soon made plain that the bride was, in reality, no other than Eliza, who had been married in the spring of that year to a young farmer up country, very well to do, But I could not gain sufficiently assured tidings as to the details, nor even as to her exact address, though I wrote to two or three persons who were in a position to know.

Only a week or so ago, however, I received a letter from the girl herself, now Mrs. A., which atoned for the long silence. It is too full of private personal details to permit of publication. I may, however, say that it speaks of great prosperity and of unclouded married happiness, and it is written in such a tone that I cannot doubt but that the writer is a true-hearted follower of Christ. Enclosed in the letter was a photograph group of herself and her three bonnie children, the eldest being a fine boy of eleven years, together with a money order as a gift to the Homes.

Eliza Green is only a type of many young colonists who from the slum and the alley have been transferred through the agency of these Homes to the over-sea colony where life takes on a new meaning and possesses higher possibilities. Almost every day I am admitting to the Homes little girls as destitute, as forlorn, as miserable as was Eliza Green; and almost every day young women, qualified for their life work, trained for usefulness, with their minds and hearts stored with lessons of Divine truth, are being sent out to fill situations all the world over. Who shall say how many of these may not in days to come illustrate as great a contrast, as does Eliza's history, between the future they have attained and the miserable past which lies behind them?

It is with an absolutely empty purse, and amid the pressing claims of hundreds of unhappy "Waifs and Strays" clamouring for aid, that I write to-day.

ELIZA GREEN, AGED 13, SINGING IN THE SNOW.

I earnestly commend to the fellowship of God's servants everywhere, the large family of 3620 young people (about one-half girls) now under my care, many of whom, when fully trained and tested, will gladly cross the Golden Bridge which leads to the fair and plenteous lands "Over Sea."

18 to 26, Stepney-causeway, London, E.

THE TRAFFIC IN GIRLS.—A man arrived from Warsaw, at the Friedrich Strasse Station, Berlin, recently, accompanied by two young girls. On alighting from the train, he was immediately arrested by the police, who had received information that he was an agent for some persons carrying on traffic in girls, and that his two companions were victims, who had come from certain small towns in Russia, and were about to be sent to Buenos Ayres. It is alleged that eight other girls have been decoyed to Petrokow, in Poland.

"AM I UNFIT?"

AN ANSWER TO DR. BARNARDO'S PLEA.

NAY! but well fitted for thy arduous work,
The stray lambs seeking, and then gathering in;
Raising the lost ones from their want and woe,
And wanderings dreary in the paths of sin,
Thy labours have abundantly been blest,
Thou canst rejoice, and leave to God the rest.

For He can turn the heart of every foe,
And hush the voice of malice and of strife;
When He his blessing showers, thou canst forego
A mortal's blame amidst the storms of life.
When clouds have passed away, more bright will shine
The golden sunbeams, on this work of thine.

Thousands, perchance, across the distant main
Owe life, and joy, and peace, and home to thee;
Surely they love and venerate thy name,
Who rescued them from depths of misery;
God bless thy labours through the coming year,
Gladden thy path, and give thee holy cheer. C. P.

AMONG THE BASUTOS.

REV. H. M. DYKE, in a recent letter from Morya, Basutoland, says: "We have been much tried of late by the illness or weakness of some of our brethren, and we cannot supply the places they thus leave vacant. Mr. J. Weitzecker, from Italy, occupying till lately a most important post in this country, has been compelled to return to Europe, nervous debility rendering it impossible for him to carry on his labours. My nephew, Dr. E. Casalis, who was director of our Training Institution in this place, has also been compelled to leave us, suffering from nervous affections which rendered him quite unfit for the responsible work in which he has been engaged.

"The South African Government has for several years employed an admirable method for encouraging education. Each October an examination is held, open to Europeans and natives, and those who pass obtain certificates, which entitle them to conduct elementary schools receiving Government grants, and serve as good introductions to possessors on seeking situations in which a certain amount of education is required. Papers are issued at headquarters propounding questions on various subjects; the seals of these are all broken on a stated day by official examiners at several centres, and, the candidates having filled them in, the papers are returned under seal to headquarters. This year about 400 candidates presented themselves, and of these 230 were successful. For some years past our Training Institution has presented candidates, and several of our Basuto youths have passed each year. This year seven names were entered, and we have just received the news that five obtained right to certificates, one to a provisional certificate, one only having failed."

MISSION TO THE NIGHT CABMEN OF LONDON.—This work, in connection with the London City Mission, is superintended by Miss E. Hebert, daughter of the late loved foundress. The twenty-ninth annual report, just issued, says:—"Visitation of the cab-stands has gone on as usual, and sometimes has been encouraging. Outside theatres and other places of amusement, while waiting for fares, the men have also been found disposed to listen to the missionary and receive tracts, and tokens of the Divine blessing have been apparent. What with the influenza, and the usual chronic cases, and bronchitis and other forms of cold, there has been a good deal of sick visiting. The sick-room, we are told, has proved the testing-place of spiritual good received. One result of the work has been that cabmen speak at open-air services, telling the Gospel story out of the abundance of their hearts, in simplicity and sincerity. The Christian Cabdrivers' Association, which was started in September, 1889, is steadily progressing in South London. In various parts of the Metropolis its meetings (indoor and open-air) are held on Sundays." For the present Miss Hebert's address is Trasheaden, South Hill-avenue, Harrow.

Dr. Barnardo's Homes.

THE CHILDREN OF THE SLUMS.

THERE is evidently a fashion in public meetings, as with other things in this strange world. One would have thought that the most inclement period of the year would have been a very fitting time at which to consider the condition and the claims of the children of the London slums. It must, therefore, have been a disappointment to Dr. Barnardo that, when he convened a meeting for this purpose at Exeter Hall on Tuesday evening last week, the response was scarcely equal to expectation.

After Rev. W. TALBOT RICE had invoked God's blessing on the meeting, Sir R. N. FOWLER, M.P., as chairman, spoke very warmly of the good work that Dr. Barnardo had already done for the slum children of London.

The main business of the evening was, of course, to hear an address by Dr. BARNARDO on the theme he has so much at heart; and he began by disclaiming any idea of rivalry with the scheme of General Booth or anybody else. While much had been said by way of criticism as well as approval in reference to that scheme, he thought that nothing but good could ultimately result from public attention being directed to the deplorable condition of the "submerged tenth." The condition of that class of the community is a disgrace to Christian England. Even Mr. Booth's book does not adequately unveil the terrible state of things that prevails. How much that cannot be put into words is concealed under the simple fact that 163,000 families in London live in single rooms. Dr. Barnardo went on to say that he feared much of General Booth's good intent would fail of its purpose, because of the deadweight that comes from character fixed in that which is evil, and the tendency to relapse into sin and crime. That difficulty is removed in the case of the young people, and this brought Dr. Barnardo to his proper subject. To illustrate his point, he spoke of a woman who had spent most of her life in common lodging-houses, and, despite all efforts to lift her up, would probably die as she had lived. On the other hand, her son, who had found his way into the Stepney Homes, was now learning the trade of a wheelwright, and had before him the prospect of a useful and honourable life. The lad referred to, at the Doctor's signal, marched along the front of the platform, carrying the insignia of his trade.

Some very pathetic pictures followed of child-life in the slums, revealing almost inconceivable neglect, destitution, and suffering among the youthful members of the submerged tenth, and that even of the decent and respectable section of it. Out of such circumstances as these, said Dr. Barnardo, his Homes were able to lift the children till hope was writ large and plain and glorious on their future career. As the last and latest specimen of his "rescues," Dr. Barnardo produced and showed to the audience a dirty and ragged girl, who had that very day been received from a life of destitution and danger.

Dr. Barnardo said he had no new scheme to submit. His scheme was at least twenty-five years old, and he meant to persevere on the same old lines. These lines were to rescue destitute children everywhere and persistently; to train them up in habits of industry, and in the fear of God; to place them out in life; and to look after them till they no longer need the supervision and fostering care of his Institutions. It was a happy testimony to the success of the work, that among those sent to Canada from the Homes the absolute failures had only been two per cent. On the point of the extension of the work, the Doctor said he had not, like General Booth, been wise enough to get the money he needed before he began. He started with nothing, and went on as he could, erecting the buildings that now form the Institutions mainly out of annual income. Seventeen thousand children saved was the best proof that his methods had proved successful. As a specimen of the older lads helped by the Homes, a strapping young man in blacksmith's garb passed before the company. Coming to the practical point of increased finances for the growing needs of the work, Dr. Barnardo said he wanted to continue it with a freer hand, and a lighter heart; and he appealed to the audience whether he was not as worthy now of public help as if he had collected the money beforehand. Cogently conclusive answers to some objections raised to rescue work brought him to the close of his earnest address. As a parting word, he said that as a community we MUST support these children in some way—either as a vast and expensive army of paupers and criminals; or as an army of saved men and women, and that at a much less cost. It is best, cheapest, wisest, and most Christ-like to save and help the children before they go to swell the ranks of the submerged tenth, that may refuse to be saved at all by any possible scheme.

Mr. William Fowler and Mr. Samuel G. Sheppard added some earnest words by way of appealing for help for Dr. Barnardo's work.

THE C.M.S. APPEAL.

THE following resolutions were recently adopted by the General Committee of the Church Missionary Society:—

(1) In view (i.) of the approaching commencement of the last decade of the nineteenth century, (ii.) of the increasing calls for reinforcements for the Society's existing missions in various parts of the world, (iii.) of the multiplying opportunities for the evangelisation of lands as yet unreached, and (iv.) of the simultaneous meetings arranged by the Society for the North of England and Wales in January and February next—the Committee recognise that the time has now arrived when they must definitely express their conviction as to the great forward movement proposed in the appeal sent to them by some members of their own body from Keswick in July last.

(2) That appeal made some suggestions regarding the enlistment, training, employment, and support of missionaries, which suggestions are now being carefully considered by special sub-committees. But as these sub-committees are making wide and important inquiries, and cannot (especially in view of other very pressing committee work in which several leading members are engaged) be expected to report so quickly as had been hoped, the Committee are of opinion that they ought not to wait for those reports before dealing with the prior suggestion of the Keswick Letter, viz., that an appeal be issued for "one thousand additional workers within the next few years."

(3) The Committee feel that, looking at the immense populations in Asia and Africa still entirely untouched by missionary effort, this suggestion, so far from being extravagant, would be regarded as timid and inadequate if the Church of Christ realised her solemn responsibilities to her Divine Head, and to the world for which He shed his precious blood. And were these responsibilities duly recognised by the tens of thousands of members of the Church Missionary Society, they would not rest satisfied with sending out one thousand additional workers. Whatever number the Lord of the harvest is pleased to give the Society in answer to prayer, whether that number be large or small, the Committee will gratefully welcome, and would desire to render praise to Him alone.

(4) At the same time, the Committee must reaffirm the principle that it is of the highest importance scrupulously to maintain the high standard of spiritual character and efficiency; and they will, God helping them, never lower that standard in order to obtain larger numbers. If it be said, on the one hand, that the missionary cause calls for the very best of our clergy and educated men, and if it be said, on the other hand, that humbler workers are often specially used of God, "that no flesh should glory in his presence," the Committee would say, Both these statements are true, and both must be borne in mind. The Society needs clergymen of experience, and younger University men, and medical men, and less-educated but promising men, with a view to theological training, and lay evangelists of various degrees of educatio and godly women for many varied branches work; but all must be of undoubted spiritual e perience and energy, and well furnished in t knowledge of Holy Scripture.

(5) The Committee dare not entertain any dou that, if God should guide them to send out largely-increased number of missionary agents, H will never permit the work to be crippled for wa of the necessary pecuniary resources. In Octobe 1887, they passed a resolution declaring that, humble dependence that God would dispose th hearts of his people to provide the necessary fund they would accept all suitable offers of servic Since that resolution was passed in humble faith the supply of well-qualified candidates has gone o increasing, and, notwithstanding fears that coul not be called unreasonable, the means to send ther forth have not failed. The Committee are assure that Christian men and women are ready in in creasing numbers to consecrate to the Lord's ser vice all that He has given them, and they confi dently believe that if they go forward with fait and with careful foresight, every difficulty, so fa as funds are concerned, in the way of sendin forth large reinforcements, will be overcome.

(6) The Committee therefore feel it their privileg and duty to appeal very urgently both for men an means—that they may, in the name of the Lord o Hosts, at least make an effort to signalise the clos of the nineteenth century of the Christian era and of the first century of the existence of th Church Missionary Society, by a more adequat effort than has ever been made in the past, t occupy the field of the world for their Master, an make ready a people prepared for the Lord.

(7) The Committee have referred only to th Church Missionary Society's own needs, but they do not forget the vast regions and population which are now, or are likely soon to be, the field of other missionary societies; and they would pra God so to pour out his Spirit upon his Church, as that all organisations for the propagation of hi blessed Gospel may go forward, and that very soon the Saviour's command to evangelise all nations shall be fully obeyed, his elect people gathered out, and the way be open for his return in glory.

HINDOO WOMEN'S PETITION TO THE QUEEN.—A petition to the Queen-Empress has been signed by some 2000 women in India, and is over 60 ft. in length. The women of India ask for the age when a marriage may be legally entered upon to be raised to fourteen, while the men who memoralised for law on the subject asked for the age to be raised to twelve. The "Women of India Memorial" has been signed almost entirely by Hindoo women.

THE SHOREDITCH IRON-ROOM is the centre of several vigorous agencies in the East of London. The open-air work in Bird Fair is specially interesting. The superintendent, Mr. Knowles, tells us in the last report that this has now gone on for twenty-seven years. He says: "From the groups of 'fanciers,' these godless and ungodly men, converts are frequently won; and lips that once blasphemed, testify to the blessedness of the great salvation." Throughout the week work of some kind or other is in progress, benevolence and evangelisation going hand in hand. Mr. Knowle's address is 21, Benthal-road, Stoke Newington, N.

EAST LONDON SEWING CLASS FUND.—The following sentences are from the annual report just issued:—"During the past year the Sewing Class, meeting twice a week for three hours, has been held regularly at Sidney-street, Mile End. In the winter months it has consisted of about seventy women, most of whom are either widows or the bread-winners of their families. For the work done in the mission-room the women are paid twopence an hour, and the shilling a week thus earned often enables them to obtain some of the bare necessities of life which they would otherwise have to do without. One or more of the Committee personally superintends the work once a week, when the women are either read to, or a few simple words are spoken on a passage from the Bible, and hymns are heartily joined in by all. Although the object of the Sewing Class is to give material help to the women without pauperising them, besides this it affords an opportunity for knowing them individually, and for visiting them in their homes. Coming to the Sewing Class has been the means of bringing comfort to respectable and deserving poor. Mrs. Van Erckelens is still working under the Ladies' Committee, and her long experience in the East-end of London makes her varied services most valuable." Communications may be addressed to Lady A. Hobart-Hampden, 9, Chelsea Embankment, S.W.

For the Young.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME.

A NEW YEAR THOUGHT.

"Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling-place (home) in all generations."—Ps. cx. 1.

Who could find a better text with which to close the last page of a finished year? Who amongst you, my dear little friends, can look up to God and truly say, "Lord, Thou hast been my 'home' all through this year"? When you were troubled and weary, did you run to your Father in heaven, and pour out all your sorrow into his loving heart? When you felt cold and hungry in soul, did you nestle down in his tender arms and feel you had got "home"? Or have you been standing "outside the gate," looking in at the warmth and the welcome, and longing to be able to say, "I have a home. My home is in my Father's heart"? We sing—

"There's a home for little children
Above the bright blue sky;
Where Jesus reigns in glory,
A home of peace and joy.
No home on earth is like it,
Nor can with it compare;
For every one is happy,
Nor can be happier, there."

Now what is a home? Firstly, it is where children are born; Secondly, where they live; Thirdly, where they love to be.

All God's little ones are born of Him; they are his children, and though sent out into the school-life of this world, their hearts always turn back with love and delight to "Father" and "Home." We sing, "Heaven is our home," and true it is; but more truly can we say, "God Himself is our home, and heaven is only where God is."

Then a little child lives, or ought to live, at home. All God's children do. There are no such things as homeless or destitute children of God. Sometimes indeed we hear of children wandering from home, and getting hurt, or lost, or falling into some trouble; and this may happen to one of the Lord's little ones. The best thing to do, if you find yourself from "home," is to run back, or creep back—to get back somehow, anyhow; for you are never safe away from God, and you must not, dare not linger. Is it possible one little girl or boy is reading this who said a few weeks ago, "Lord, Thou hast been my home," and yet to-day, with the shadow of the past year falling upon you, and the light of the New Year dawning on your newly-opened path, you may be feeling that you are away, far away, from your "home," and have never even tried to get back? Oh! do not let the shadow pass before you come back again, before you lift up your heart to the Lord Jesus, and ask Him to carry you "home."

"Home" is where a child is happy and loves to be; and who is not happy with God? Who so really, heartily happy, as the little child who has made God his refuge, and found a dwelling-place in the Most High? How the angels must sing in heaven! How their hearts must brim over with joy, for God is there, and they are in God, and He is in them (Rev. xxi. 3; John xvii. 21).

But you and I can taste a little of that joy down here, and get some idea of its full enjoyment above; for do we not read, "He that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God" (1 John iv. 16)?

Then if God has been our "home" in days past, it is a sure token that He will be our "home" in days to come; so we have in our text a sunbeam to gild the New Year pathway before us, as well as to chase away the shadow of the old. For God never changes, and what He has been, He always will be. "He is the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever" (Heb. xiii. 8). So you can not only say to-day, with a backward glance of experience, "Lord, Thou hast been," but you can give a forward glance of faith and hope, and cry, "Lord, Thou wilt be my home." This year may bring many changes to you, many trials, many; joys but a child who has God on his side can stand firm as a rock, and defy storm, change, or sunshine. The Lord grant that you and I may enter the New Year trusting thus in Him!

EVA TRAVERS EVERED POOLE.

CHILDREN'S SCRIPTURE UNION.—The following are the portions for the ensuing week:—Sun., Dec. 28, Ps. xxx. 1—12; Mon., Dec. 29, Ps. xxxi. 1—13; Tues., Dec. 30, Ps. xxxi. 14—24; Wed., Dec. 31, Ps. xxxii. 1—11; Thurs., Jan. 1, John i. 1—10; Fri., Jan. 2, John ii. 1—14; Sat., Jan. 3, John ii. 15—29.

NEWPORT.—An eight days' mission, held in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, conducted by Mr. James S. Tyler, has been concluded. The services, in spite of the inclement weather, were well attended, and many are the thanksgivings going up to the Giver of all good for the rich harvest of young souls, who took the Saviour and made Him their own during the mission. At the afternoon meetings a number of boys and girls from the private schools were present, and many received definite blessing.

CHILDREN'S SPECIAL SERVICE MISSION.

Mr. E. Arrowsmith, Sydenham, Jan. 2—18. Mr. H. Hutchinson, Shenley, Jan. 6; Selby, Jan. 10—17; Bolton, Jan. 17—23; Oldham, Jan. 26—28; Rawtenstall, Jan. 29; Cloughfold, Jan. 30. Mr. J. S. Tyler, Sale, Dec. 27 to Jan. 2; Plumstead, Jan. 5—9. Mr. T. L. Sayer, Stafford, Dec. 26—28; Clapton Presbyterian Church, Jan. 4—9. Mr. G. Goodman, Somer's Town, Jan. 14—16. Mr. Livesey Carrott, Camden Town Athenæum, every Sunday in January at 3 o'clock.

Evangelistic Notes.

Mr. James Dobson, of Rev. Charles Garrett's Mission, has conducted a successful series of mission services at Brierfield. There were between two and three hundred inquirers.

The Border Counties' Gospel Tent has been the means of good work during the summer and autumn. All the larger villages have been visited, and the people everywhere came out well to the meetings.

Mr. Herbert R. Francis has held a sixteen days' mission at Chilmark, near Salisbury. He hopes to go to Dublin for meetings in Merrion Hall, in January; returning for Colchester, Bromley, and other places near London, in February. He asks prayer for all these places.

Mr. Wm. Collings, of Gosport, has been having much blessing with a prolonged series of services in the village of Lower Winchendon, near Aylesbury. Despite the severe weather, the nightly meetings were so well attended that a class-room adjoining the hall was thrown open for increased accommodation. A good proportion of young men were among the converts.

Cheltenham.—Mr. Spencer Walton has been amongst us once again, having given addresses at the Central Hall and St. Andrew's Church from December 6 to 11. Bible-readings were given at the Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Walton spoke with much power, and it was felt that Christ's presence had been a great reality to him in the fiery furnace of sorrow and suffering which he had lately been called to go through. Much interest was awakened in the Cape General Mission, with the result that some are offering themselves from here for work at the Cape. M. B.

THE LATE MR. HAKE.—It is purposed to publish letters and reminiscences of the late Mr. William Hake, of Barnstaple. Any friends who possess letters from him, or who remember words of counsel or instruction which they have heard him speak, will show kindness by sending them, carefully written out, to Mr. William Marriott, Melton Constable, Norfolk.

THE GUARDS' MISSION AND SOLDIERS' HOME, 58, Hugh-street, Ebury-bridge, Pimlico, S.W., is the centre of work of a very interesting type. Soldiers who have stayed at the Home have witnessed for Christ in stations abroad, and it has been the joy of the manager to hear of lasting fruit of his labour. Sergeant Pullinger, who has charge of the Home, throws much sympathy into this work, on behalf of those among whom he was years ago respected as a comrade who showed his Christian colours. A correspondent writes:—"The Home is open to visitors at any time, and I feel sure that anyone visiting it would quite understand soldiers saying emphatically that it is their own."

PRESBYTERIANS AND TEMPERANCE

THE English Presbyterians have entered upon what they term a Temperance Forward Movement. The temperance society sanctioned by the Synod is founded on the dual basis—abstainers and moderate drinkers. Not satisfied with the progress hitherto made, a Ministers' and Office-bearers' Total Abstinence Society has just been launched, and has revealed a strong temperance element in the denomination. Within five days of its formation, a third of the ministers in the Church, and many influential laymen, had sent in their names for membership. A public meeting to inaugurate the new society was held on Tuesday week, in Regent-square Church, and attracted a numerous audience. Mr. Hugh M. Matheson, president of the Society, occupied the chair, supported by Rev. R. M. Thornton (honorary secretary), Mr. Robert Rae, and a number of ministers.

Prayer having been offered by Rev. Dr. Mathews, the chairman, said he had nothing but good words for total abstinence. Since he adopted it he was in better health, was a stronger man, and fit for harder work than formerly. He did not say it was a sin to touch alcoholic drinks, but the present state of society was a loud call for Christians to range themselves on the side of abstinence. Rev. John McNeill, who was one of the subsequent speakers, said it was a wonder to him that teetotalers had kept so quiet as they had, for there was no other side to the question. The time had surely arrived when the matter should be more forcibly put before their fellow Christians, as the work of the churches was hampered at every turn by the drink demon.—Christian World.

TENERIFFE.—In connection with the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society's agency in North Africa some interesting work is being done in the island of Teneriffe. Scriptures have been freely distributed amongst the people, and copies in Spanish and English put within reach of visitors.

THE ARKLOW PERSECUTION.—Mr. Michael Davitt has testified his abhorrence of the disgraceful attempt of the Romanists in Arklow to put a stop to the simple proclamation of the Gospel by Protestants. Writing to Rev. Mr. Hallowes, Mr. Davitt says he had read with shame of the Arklow disturbances; and he places on record his "emphatic condemnation of such interference with the right of public meeting and of religious liberty."

GIRLS' MISSION, LEYTON ROAD, STRATFORD, E.—A crisis has arisen in this work established to benefit young girls employed in factories. The Great Eastern Railway requires the land on which the building has stood for seventeen years, and in six months it must be given up. After so long, the temporary iron building will hardly bear removal, and it is most desirable to commence at once the erection of a substantial one of brick and slate, the cost of which would be about £400. Towards this the Railway Company have given a good site close by at a nominal rental and £20. The work is in a very satisfactory condition, and was never more needed; for, in a neighbourhood where hundreds of young girls are employed in factories, it is the only direct public effort made for their special benefit. The hon. superintendent of the Mission is Mr. J. Dowding-Sansom, Hazelmere, Atherton-road, Forest-gate, E.

DUBLIN MISSION HOMES AND SCHOOLS.—In various parts of this city schools are open, where 1300 very poor little children are daily sheltered. After a good hot breakfast there is school until three o'clock; the children learn texts and hymns, some of their favourite verses being Luke xi. 31, telling that God is willing to answer prayer; and Mark x. 14, about Jesus, who blesses little ones. Whole families of these children are homeless, living in lobbies or in entries, or getting chance shelter in some poor room. Twelve girls passed out of the Home into service during the year ending March last, and are giving satisfaction to their mistresses. Others are doing well, remaining hopeful converts to God's truth; but some have gone back apparently to the darkness from which they were taken. The workers can only hope that what the children are taught while in the Home may be the power of God unto their salvation, and that of many with whom they come in contact. The outdoor boys' school keeps up the average, and the Sunday-schools, both for children and adults, are very well attended. Mrs. Smyly, 35, Upper Fitzwilliam-street, Dublin, will gladly supply full information about the work, and receive contributions.

Native Races of Palestine.

WHO are the people now inhabiting the land of the Jew? Where have they come from, and how long have they been settled in it? Such questions as these rise naturally to the mind as we see the rightful owners slowly returning to the land of their forefathers.

The mixed races at present in the Holy Land are confessedly not Israelites, nor are they Turks, the latter being the small minority comprising the governing class; the native population, who live in the cities, towns, villages, and hamlets of Palestine, are quite different in race from either.

They are probably the descendants of the old Canaanites, with a sprinkling among them of the Greek and Roman invaders of the land. The amalgam is curious, and makes the great difficulty of the missionary there. They are fortunately not a bi-lingual people; all speak the Arabic language; but in faith they are of two kinds, the Mohammedan and Christian. Both are at an equally low level, morally and religiously, and the Christians so discredit Christianity that most Christian residents in Palestine prefer Mohammedan servants to those of their own creed.

Apparently by a principle of natural selection, Christians and Mohammedans inhabit different towns and villages. They seldom, except in the case of Jerusalem or other large cities, live together, and, when they do, they live in different quarters. At first, as a looker-on, it is difficult to understand why Bethlehem should be wholly Christian, nor why Gaza should be Mohammedan, and, while Nablous should be inhabited by followers of the Prophet, that Nazareth should have a fair mixture of both. It may be that in the long fierce fight between Islamism and Christianity, the Christians clung with desperate tenacity to the spots made sacred by association with the memory of the Saviour, and so the Christian centres arose; but, anyhow, the division is not a bad one for the efforts of the missionary now; it simplifies the preaching of the Gospel to have all the hearers of one way of thinking, and makes it easier to suit them.

It is saddening to think that the land being "trodden down" of the Gentiles should not only mean its being subject to the dominion of the Turk, but that also the wounds and bruises, spiritually inflicted by blind guides, should increase its desolation.

Let us, however, encourage ourselves "in the Lord," and in "his might." In his days upon earth the confusion in the land "He careth for" was just the same; there was the struggle between darkness and would-be light. Pharisee and Sadducee were there with Romans and Greeks, and a bushel was put by the teachers of the "law" over the grace of God.

But He who came to seek and to save the lost, although He sought the Jew first, went out of his way to find jewels among these mixed races; to find a poor sinful woman, his Divine compassion made it needful for Him to go through Samaria, where they dwelt; and He walked through Tyre and Sidon that the people who sat in darkness might see a great light, and He found there the faith of the Syro-Phœnician woman to be greater than that found in Israel, as also He found the faith of the centurion of Rome. He whose compassions fail not still wants these wandering sheep gathered for Him.

Church systems are not wanted in Syria or Palestine, there are enough of them there. Religious ceremonials that do not bring within touch of the sinner a living Christ are valueless, ointment that has lost its sweet savour does no good, and dry ritual and empty forms do not commend Jesus. He is able and He is willing to do all that is needed, if only we trust Him. He says: "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me.

The feet and voice of the evangelist are wanted now on the mountains of the Lebanon and Palestine, and in their towns and villages; messengers who should proclaim the glad tidings of peace, who should publish salvation, and say, "the Bridegroom cometh," "this is the acceptable year of the Lord," believe, ere it be too late. The promise is not yet fulfilled, but it shall surely be, that the watchmen of Zion shall lift up the voice, together they shall sing, for they shall see "eye to eye" when the Lord shall bring again Zion. This time of union is not yet come, but it is coming. The churches at home have found the need of the simple preaching of truth. Missioners and services attest it, the standers without are being invited in to all churches and chapels by all sorts of agencies. This personal feature of our day is making a revival of power, praise God for it, in our own country. Shall we not seek it for the Lord's own land?

From Mount Hermon to the Jordan one hears the many lamentations over the few converts among Druses, Moslems, native Christians, or Jews. Is not God able, if we are faithful, to quicken these dry bones and make them live? The deserts are crying out for missionaries who can endure hardness as the faithful soldiers of Jesus Christ. Who is answering the call? Not one in a thousand. If they did, the work of evangelising them would be done in our day. The voices of those crying in the wilderness, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord" have not yet been heard.

The American College in Beyrout has enough students in it to make the Gospel sound be heard from the Lebanon to Yemen, if only the power of the Holy Ghost should fall on these young men and send them out, and no longer would men be needed from Western lands to preach Christ with stammering lips and another tongue.

What hinders these native Christians from being baptized with the Holy Ghost and with fire? Is it our coldness and want of faith? If so, let us repair it. This land needs praying for. Satan is using all the various side issues of Church questions to divert the Lord's praying people from this the central point of the earth, and to hide the main need of its people.

The Greek Church has for centuries held forth its very dim light. The Latin in later years has done the same. Let those who are witnessing there for Him not be content with preaching sound doctrine to small congregations, but let them pray for the "increase" promised, send out the feet and voice of the evangelist, and make the mountains and hills "beautiful" with the sound of the glad tidings of his coming. Let us lift up holy hands without wrath or doubting. Let us pray and not faint, for this land desolate for centuries, for the battle is the Lord's, and the victory is sure.

M. L.

[1216]

GAMBLING.—The Young Man for January contains a number of protests against gambling. Rev. Hugh Price Hughes says: "Gambling stands in precisely the same relation to stealing that duelling stands to murder. In both cases the consent of the victim, and the chance of being the successful criminal, does not in the least degree alter the moral character of the act. Every gambler is a thief, whether he steals 3d. or £1000. He obtains without effort, and without merit, that to which, under the circumstances, he has no claim whatever. Let us brand every gambler, whether in private houses, on the Stock Exchange, or at a bazaar, as a thief, and we have stabbed gambling to the heart." Major Seton Churchill says that the other day he saw several roulette tables at a well-known "stores." He continues: "I made inquiries about them; I was informed that ten years ago one was hardly ever sold, but that now they were sold by dozens. This shows that there must be an increasing amount of secret gambling. I was shown a table that had been returned that very morning on account of some flaw, to which cause the purchaser attributed the fact that he had lost £800. I am told that roulette tables are so made that the owner or person who acts as banker is bound to win, unless he has frightfully bad luck."

"BUSINESS."

THE keen point of Mr. Punch's satire on more pierces the inflated and cruel nonsen that is embedded in a cant popular phra Under a striking cartoon in a recent issue our comic contemporary is this little bit dialogue, followed by a poem, from which extract some stanzas:—

Sweater (to Mr. Punch).—"No use your interferi Business is business."

Mr. P.—"Yes, and uncommonly bad business, too, f them. Couldn't the large firms take a trifle less prof and put a little pleasure into the business of these po starving workers?"

["Business!" cries the Sweater, when remonstrate with for paying the poor match-box makers twopen farthing or twopence halfpenny a gross, whilst his ow profits reach 22½ to 25 per cent.—Daily Paper.]

Punch to the Sweating Shylock.

EH? "Business is business?" Sheer cant, sir! pu gammon?
Of all the inhuman, sham maxims of Mammon,
This one is the worst,
For under its cover lurks cruelty callous,
With murderous meanness that merits the gallows,
And avarice accurst.

Oh, well, I'm aware, sir, how ruthless rapacity
Loves to take shelter, with cunning mendacity,
'Neath an old saw; [si
But well says the scribe that such "business" is crim
And such would be but for gaps half the time, sir,
'Twixt justice and law.

Bah! Many a man who's sheer rogue in reality,
Hides the harsh knave in the mask of "legality."
When 'tis too gross,
Robbery's rash, but austere orthodoxies
Countenance such things as modern match-boxes
Nine-farthings a gross!

From seven till ten, and sometimes to eleven,
For "six bob" a week. Ah! such life must be heaven
Whilst as for your "profit,"
That's bound to approach five-and-twenty per cent.
That Sweaters shall thrive, let their tools be content
With starvation in Tophet.

A phrase takes the place of an argument often,
And stomachs go empty, and brains slowly soften,
And sense sick with dizziness,
All in the name of the "bosh" men embody
In one clap-trap phrase that dupes many a noddy,
That—business is business!

Business? Yes, precious bad business for them, sir,
Whose joyless enslavement you take with such phlegm
Suppose, to enhance [sir
Their small share of ease, such as you were content, si
To lower a trifle your precious "per cent.," sir,
And give them a chance!

SOUTHSEA MISSION, PORTSMOUTH

OUR ninth annual meetings in connection wit this Mission were recently held. The meeting were good and likely to produce much lastin blessing. On account of indisposition an pressure of work during the past summer, have deferred publishing my report unti March. I would ask for a continuation of th prayers of readers of THE CHRISTIAN on ou Gospel efforts during the winter months.

Tent, open-air, and Bible carriage work ar now closed up for the winter, and we ar turning our attention more especially to house to-house visitation, cottage and hall meetings and similar efforts.

We are very short of funds, especially for th extreme need of the poor. I want to commenc soup suppers as in past winters, but must wai until I receive the needed help. Parcels o left-off clothing or bedding would be mos acceptable. JOHN DENNING.

Myrtle Cottage, St. James's-road, Southsea.

MR. W. S. CAINE arrived at Bombay on Monday, November 17, and was accorded a hearty reception in the evening at a meeting in the Framjee Cowasjee Hall. Mr. Justice Telang presided ove the assemblage, made up of Europeans and natives and including many friends of the temperanc cause. An address was presented from the Indian Christian Temperance Band, together with the first issue of the organ of that association, The School Temperance Advocate. Mr. Caine is contributing a weekly letter on India to The Pall Mall Gazette, appearing every Thursday.

COUNT ENRICO DI CAMPELLO,

Ex-Canon of St. Peter's, Rome.

THE subject of our sketch this week has had an extraordinary career. On the high road to distinction in the Church of Rome, he had the courage to follow the dictates of conscience, regardless of consequences. Enjoying ecclesiastical honours such as thousands of priests dearly covet, he regarded the service of God in a humble sphere as preferable to all else in the pilgrimage of life. His name has acquired new lustre throughout the world, since it was execrated by the Pope, and those who, with him, continue "deceiving and being deceived."

Count Enrico di Campello, the champion of Catholic Reform in Italy, was born in Rome in 1831. He has no doubt that Scotch blood runs in his veins, his ancestors being some Campbells from the Highlands, who settled generations ago in the Peninsula.

When the young nobleman was twenty-two years of age, and perplexed with regard to the future, Rome was rent by political troubles. The Republic had found friends in the Campello family, and the Government Junta of Cardinals dealt very severely with the Count's father. The Pope, Pius IX., being appealed to, the harsh penalties were remitted, but a heavy price was paid. As a pledge of humble subjection and inviolable fidelity, one of the sons must enter the Roman priesthood! The choice fell on Enrico, who had quitted the Nazarene College two years previously. Cardinal Serafini having brought the young man to submission, the preparatory exercises began.

Throughout the years of study that followed, Enrico was, in an exceptional sense, the protégé of the Pope. In the Academy of Noble Ecclesiastics (all the students of which attain to high office), Campello was the only student belonging to the then existing Pontifical State. The greatest courtesy was therefore shown him, the Church being anxious that others of high birth in the same State should follow his example. After theological training in the Gregorian University, whence issue the wily preachers of the Jesuit doctrines, he was consecrated a priest in 1855. The Pope praised a panegyric he delivered in the Vatican Basilica on "the feast of the Roman chair," in which the headship of Peter was argued in a manner eminently satisfactory to the Papal claims. Taking his doctor's degree when about twenty-five years of age, the ripening ecclesiastic studied law, and gave attention to preaching, deeming that the special ministry for which he was most fitted. He soon became widely known in Rome.

In 1861 he was made Canon of the Liberian Basilica (the church of Santa Maria Maggiore), but the promotion was not an unmixed joy, for the other canons showed themselves envious and unpleasant. Seriously doubting his vocation, he gave himself more earnestly to work among the people, and succeeded in developing a night school, in which young artisans from all parts of the city were gathered for elementary instruction. In 1867 he received the appointment of Canon of the Patriarchal Vatican Basilica. This gave him a place in the most numerous and noble chapter in the Papal Church, with men who have risen through nobility of birth and importance of service rendered to the Holy See. Who would have expected one so enclosed in the net of Rome to find liberty in Christ?

Taking a church that was all but deserted, S. Maria in Vincis, by the Tarpeian Rock, the Count conducted night services which were a great attraction to the working classes. Then came the Œcumenical Vatican Council whereat the infallibility of the Pope was dogmatically affirmed. Campello watched the movements of the time with an earnest hope that something would be done to increase the spiritual power of the Church. He took occasion to discuss various topics with learned and pious hermits who, neglected by high-placed dignitaries, were little, if at all, affected by theocratic pride. In his Autobiography (Hodder & Stoughton), giving his reasons for leaving the Papal Church, the Count thus refers to these discussions at the time the Italian troops entered Rome:—

(From a Photograph by Messrs. Lombardi & Co., 13, Pall Mall East, S.W.)

> The theme of one and all was the same—the startling events that were happening every moment, their causes and probable effects. Love to the Church of Christ and to our beloved country put appropriate expressions in the mouths of each. That breath of liberty, wafted in to us through the breach of Porta Pia, brought youth to our brows, poured fresh life into our breasts, and inflamed our accents. My doubts had now become a certainty. The Catholic Apostolic Roman Church, long regarded by me, as by so many others, with unquestioning faith as the immaculate Bride of Christ, was, instead of that, the most monstrous counterfeit of Christianity. And this counterfeit, imposing itself on the universal conscience, does all it can to create obstructions everywhere, and to repress all religious and civil development. In my inmost heart, I protested against this enormous wickedness.

The hermits still believed the Papal Church to be capable of inward reformation, but Campello's conviction to the contrary continued to grow. He writes:—

> Having lost all faith in the work of man, I did not fall into the void. I gave myself wholly up to the work of the Divine Redeemer. "The Gospel," I said to myself, "is of Divine evidence, and has no need of interpreters. Jesus Christ Himself is sufficient. He is the Incarnate Wisdom, and has no need of intermediaries."

For eleven years longer Campello remained in the Church, striving for reform, and incurring suspicion and odium on that account. Seeing that no progress was made, and that the nation was drifting into indifference and infidelity, whilst the few who attended church viewed the ceremonies as empty forms, he resolved once and for ever to break with the Papacy, and raise outside the Vatican the standard of Catholic Reform. This he did on September 13, 1881, when, in a letter to Cardinal Borromeo, he placed his resignation of the canonry of St. Peter's in the hands of Pope Leo XIII. His action caused a tremendous commotion in Rome, and throughout the Catholic world. In his letter he said :—

I go forth out of the ranks of the Roman clergy to war in those of the pure Gospel of Christ, remaining thus faithful to my vocation, and persuaded that in this course I shall find peace to my soul; for, strong in the teaching of the Divine Master, neither adulterated nor counterfeited, it will be given to me with head erect to profess myself a Christian without hypocrisy, and an Italian citizen without the mask of a traitor to my country.

After ten years of mature reflection, of inward conflict, of hope deceived, I can to-day solemnly aver before God, and Jesus Christ who will judge us all, that I have been led to take this step with no other end in view but peace of conscience, and to this not a few estimable ecclesiastics can testify, for they will collect the sincerity of my intentions from not a few conversations held in confidence with them. Of course I full well know how to me will fall the lot, which has fallen to others without number, of having to support false and atrocious attacks more particularly from those public journals, subsidised by the clique which rule supreme at the Vatican, and shoot mortal darts on all sides. But, thanks be to God, their vile warfare has long ago been covered with universal contempt. I, however, shall only reply by silence, and by an inward prayer. God grant that my example may find many imitators who, deceived like me in their early years, and afterwards terrorised by the worst of systems, are at present dragging the chains of their own servitude.

As usual, the first thought of the Vatican was to win back the deserter or crush him. Seeing soon that to gain him again to their side was an impossibility, they tried to blacken his character, and even to take his life. The stories circulated against him only won him friends, as he was well known in Rome as a man of blameless character, and of philanthropic, self-sacrificing life. He, more than any Canon of St. Peter's, cared for the poor, and used to visit them in their homes in the lowest quarters of the city, and minister both to their spiritual and material wants. Having in due course had pronounced against him the anathema which, centuries before, was fulminated against Luther, he went to work delivering addresses and establishing schools under the very shadow of the Vatican. Friends from various parts rallied to his assistance.

In 1886 Campello decided to make the valley of the Valnerina, in Umbria, his native district, the centre of his labours; and there he is at the present moment working with marked success, having conference halls, Sunday-schools, and other mission agencies at five different stations, and winning many of the inhabitants to the cause of Catholic Reform. He makes periodical crusades into different parts of Italy, and has secured the hearty co-operation of evangelical workers.

The Count was in England a few months ago, and had among his supporters Canon Money and Rev. F. A. C. Lillingston. He is a man in middle life, and looks well and strong, although he suffers more or less constantly from a bronchial affection. He wears a beard; his tonsure has long since disappeared; for years prior to his leaving the Church of Rome he told his superiors that "they might mark their cattle in that way, but he would never submit to the indignity." Even now he has his trials. One of them consists in occasional reports, apparently started to harass him, declaring that he has 'returned to the fold." We rejoice to believe that such an event is never likely to take place. The Count has grown in grace and in the knowledge of Christ. He is a free man in Christ, and will not again entangle himself with the yoke of bondage.

He is probably the first who, at once a noble, a canon, and a prelate, and certainly the first who, from the Chapter of St. Peter's, has come out from the Papal Church. He seems to be a chosen vessel of God to do an important work in a dark land. We pray earnestly that it may be so, and that "Catholic Reform" may be loudly proclaimed in fair but unhappy Italy, and that her sons and daughters may be won back in large numbers to the pure and simple faith of the Gospel.

Lord Plunket, Archbishop of Dublin, is President of the Mission—styled the Italian Church Reform Association—and the hon. secretary in England is Miss Mayor, 20, Manor-place, Paddington-green, London. N.

American Notes.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

FATHER IGNATIUS has not won over the Massachusetts Bishop to his side. So he leaves Boston without being permitted to enter an Episcopal sanctuary. Crowds attended the independent meetings of the barefooted preacher; but, beyond the price of admission to his halls, he receives little American money for his monastery. While he preached some edifying and instructive sermons, somehow they did not come with the power of absolute confidence in the preacher. How frequently we find this element of weight lacking in the eloquent utterances of men whose motive and character are not free from suspicion.

The President of one of our universities has spoken his mind on College Ethics. He severely arraigns the conduct of students which outside of the campus would be considered immoral, but to the fellows who have matriculated in a college is to be considered manly and virtuous. As for instance, to boycott in Ireland is wrong, but right in a college. For a cowboy to destroy property is wrong, but for a college boy to do so is legitimate. The licence given to our undergraduates all over the world has emboldened them in villainy and encouraged them in vice. Is it not time for every college president to cry a halt?

A very unique conference was held recently in that enterprising city Chicago. It was a conference of Jews and Christians, convened by Mr. W. E. Blackstone, the well-known missionary-evangelist. Several Rabbis presented papers, and gave addresses on such themes as "Why Israelites do not accept Jesus as their Messiah"; "The religious condition of the Jews to-day"; "Post Biblical Judaism," &c. There were no orthodox Jews present. Most of our American Jews are rationalistic, and in sympathy with Unitarianism. The object of the conference was to give information concerning Jewish progress, and to promote a spirit of mutual kindness between Jews and Christians.

The Christian speakers presented addresses on "The attitude of nations, and of Christian people towards the Jews"; "Israel's Messiah"; "The mutual relation and welfare of Israelites and Christians," &c.

The Conference passed resolutions condemning the social ostracism of the Hebrew people and the attitude of Russia towards them.

As may be anticipated, this meeting was organised by men who love and look for the Lord's appearing, and who believe in Israel's supremacy in the age to come. But we cannot say as yet that any practical outcome will be the result, or that wider doors shall swing open for missionary effort among that people. Nevertheless the zeal of our pre-millenarian brethren to reach the Jewish people and bring them under Gospel teaching is most commendable.

The recent Baptist Pre-millennial Conference has called out great inquiry on the subject of our Lord's personal coming and reign. All of the leading papers, religious and secular, have contributions, pro and con., while leading pulpits give it consideration. Dr. John Hall preached on the post-millennial view, which he claims has been his belief for forty years. It has been admitted on all hands that his defence has been very weak, non-exegetical, and illogical. American preachers have tabooed the subject in the past, but now many are looking into the prophetic Scriptures, and, per consequence, are sounding out the doctrine of "The Blessed Hope."

A church on wheels is indeed a novelty. One is already in motion, while another is building. The Episcopal Bishop of Dakota has had a railway car built by the Pulmans for preaching purposes. It is drawn from town to town where churches are scarce and the population sparse. The chapel of the car will accommodate about seventy-five persons. The Baptists are placing a Sunday-school on wheels for evangelising purposes in the frontier towns. This is a practicable movement, and must result in practical results. Thousands of young and old will now hear the Gospel along the lines of railway throughout the great North West.

We have also a floating church on the Mississippi river; a two-storied ark. The lower floor is the meeting-house, while the preacher, with his family, lives upstairs. This evangelistic boat is floated down the river from town to town, where the word is preached. The services are chiefly for the boatmen along the banks, who are ordinarily an unreachable people. This Gospel craft will be towed to the Upper Mississippi in the spring, and again floats downwards towards the Gulf.

Dr. Talmage's great Tabernacle will be ready for occupancy by Easter. We had a look at it recently. It is a noble structure, whose corner tower shoots 160 feet skyward. The style of the building is Norman. Its general form is square, but its angular appearance is broken by a rounded projection over the main entrance two stories high, in addition to a series of small rounded turrets which run from ground to spire. Its interior will be amphitheatre with two galleries, and it will have 5000 sittings. In conversation with the Doctor a few days ago, I suggested that the new church building be used for a great soul-saving tabernacle, to which he instantly replied, "For that purpose it is being built and for no other."

CHILD MARRIAGE IN INDIA.—A large meeting has been held at Madras to protest against raising the age of consent in marriage. Although no public meetings on this subject have yet been held in other parts of India, the tone of the great majority of the vernacular newspapers and the inquiries among all classes of natives tend to show the existence of a strong and all but universal feeling against legislative interference.

PANTOMIME CHILDREN.—The Chief of the Inspectors of Factories and Workshops, referring to these requirements of the last year's Act, concludes his report upon their working with the remark: "One great advantage of the licences is that not only all the children under ten have the advantage of the conditions, but other children, in a more or less degree, share the conditions, for it is impossible for a manager to provide special rooms &c., for a comparatively small number of children separate from others, who may only be a few months above ten years of age."—Child's Guardian

MR. CLARKE AT INVERNESS.

REV. DR. ROBSON, Inverness, has forwarded to us the following communication:—

We have recently had a special mission in this town, in which the power of the Spirit of God was so manifest that I feel constrained to send you a brief account of it. The mission lasted over a fortnight, and was conducted by Mr. George Clarke, on the invitation of the Inverness Christian Union, and with the cordial co-operation of Revs. Dr. McLeod, Dr. Black, and Dr. McTavish, and Messrs. Connell and Terry. There were preparatory prayer-meetings, and a short one held every day at noon. But the more prominent occasions were the Bible-readings in the afternoons in my church in Union-street, and the evangelistic meetings in the evenings in the Free High Church (Dr. Black's), the largest place of worship in the town. On the three Sundays of the mission services were held in the Music Hall afternoon and evening, the latter being exclusively for men.

At all these gatherings the attendance was large from the outset, and steadily grew till the buildings were crowded. The spectacle of the Music Hall, crowded to the door on the Sunday nights with the stalwart and intelligent men of the North, in their Sunday attire, was in itself imposing; but the remarkable solemnity of each meeting, hushing the audience and riveting every eye on the speaker, made it peculiarly impressive and memorable.

This is the third mission which Mr. Clarke has conducted in Inverness, and it has differed from both the preceding missions. There was, of course, no novelty in the missioner to stir curiosity or to attract the public. There was as little as possible of personal excitement in reference to Mr. Clarke himself. His own fervent endeavour to bring the people face to face with the living God, in the hearing of his Voice and dealing with his Spirit, led the thoughts of the people away from himself, and fostered throughout the mission a feeling of awe. This feeling was strengthened by the tendency of most of his evening addresses to deepen convictions of sin. The Bible-readings were rich in instruction and helpfulness.

The result of the mission has been a much-needed quickening of many of God's people. In some cases a remarkable measure of blessing has been received and acknowledged. In the inquiry-room very many appear to have been truly brought to yield themselves to Christ. But all through the mission there was a conviction that the inquiry-room only indicated an unusually limited portion of the number who were being brought under the power of the truth. Several of the addresses were fitted rather to send men home to deal alone with God than to draw them into the inquiry-room; and the experience we have had since the close of the mission has proved that conviction to have been happily correct. Already there have been some new beginnings in Christian fellowship and in Christian work, and where these previously existed there has been an increase of spiritual life and joy. I trust this brief story of blessing received in our town will cheer many of your readers, and lead them to unite with us in thanksgiving to God, and in prayer for a constant and mighty working of the Holy Spirit in the midst of us.

REV. W. J. MAYERS has concluded a series of meetings in Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, and Dorsetshire, on behalf of Dr. Barnardo's Homes, where he has addressed sixteen meetings, in eight towns, and where the appearance of a party of lads from the Homes has afforded genuine interest, their music in public, and conduct in private, being looked upon as most satisfactory credentials of the efficiency of their training. The meetings resulted in substantial help being given to the work of the Homes.

HOME OF INDUSTRY.

THE monthly gathering on Wednesday week showed a very choice company of active workers. Best of all, there was the felt power and presence of the Lord; many went away with renewed blessing and with a determination to exalt the Lamb of God.

Mr. GEORGE HOLLAND gave a brief résumé of God's faithfulness to him and the work in George-yard these past thirty to forty years, and entreated prayer for the many agencies in full force influencing thousands of the poor. He asked visitors to "come and see." He showed that, to stem the torrent of crime and misery, the children should be sympathised with and saved. He propounded a method that, if adopted, would soon help to awaken the churches and produce workers for the heathen.

Lord RADSTOCK followed with an address founded upon Exod. xiii.—"The Lamb." His words were most strengthening, containing the very marrow of the Gospel. The simplicity and clearness of his utterance caused hearts to burn as they realised the fulness that it hath pleased the Father to provide in Jesus Christ.

Miss MACPHERSON asked prayer for the two thousand who, on and after the New Year, in detachments, are to have a happy evening; the aged and the young, the sick and dying, the rescued children and the children from around in schools. Then follow postmen, policemen, costermongers, &c., to be addressed by Mr. W. R. Lane; and, later on, a week of services for the young, conducted by T. Lewes Sayers. Our earnest sister felt thankful for the continued sympathy and help shown to the work at this season by the readers of THE CHRISTIAN. She asked both old and new friends to accept heartfelt gratitude on behalf of the many poor and needy who are being warmed by coals, fed by soup, and relieved by medicines.

A CONVERSAZIONE in connection with the recent National Protestant Congress was held last week at the National Club. The proceedings were throughout earnest and enthusiastic, and proved that the recent meetings at the Portman Rooms have not been without good results. Brief and stirring addresses were given by Rear-Admiral Campion, Professor Radford Thomson, Rev. Canon Tugwell, Captain Poulden, R.N.; Mr. Henry Atkinson, M.P.; and Rev. Dr. Hiles Hitchens. All pleaded for increased Protestant activity at the present solemn crisis, especially amongst the young.

BELFAST TOWN MISSION.—During the past year the seventeen missionaries held 3830 meetings, paid 46,730 family visits, and 10,966 sick visits; and distributed 65,683 tracts. One great drawback is the lack of suitable buildings. To be in a favourable situation the meeting-places must be in the midst of the people, and so there is often very little choice. The work in Beech-park district has of late suffered specially from this, and the Sunday-school teachers, desirous of providing accommodation for their 300 scholars, have resolved to erect a commodious building in a central situation, at a cost of £450. The population of the district is almost exclusively made up of artisans and factory workers. The missionary is Mr. D. Officer, 52, Thorndale-avenue, Belfast.

MIXED MARRIAGES.—In Austria, as in Ireland, "mixed marriages," as the unions of Protestants and Romanists are termed, seem to be productive of much trouble to all concerned. A dispute is now in progress between the Vatican and the Austrian Government respecting the baptism of the children of such marriages. The Government insists upon it that the baptism shall be in accordance with the wishes of the parents; the Pope and his bishops insist that there shall first be a marriage service in accordance with the laws of Rome. The Pope prays the Emperor not to sanction civil marriage at all without coming to a satisfactory agreement as to "the rights of the Holy See." So far it would seem that Rome will lose much by the action, as the strongest possible feeling is being evinced against her claims.

ORPHANS IN SOUTHWARK.

MISS SHARMAN'S Orphans' Home in Austral-street, West-square, London, S.E., continues to be the scene of quiet but solid work for God. It was opened in 1867 for ten destitute children, and now there are 308 orphans under its shelter. Out of the large number who have passed through the Home, a goodly number remember their old friends with grateful affection, and keep up frequent correspondence. The first aim is to train the little ones for Christ; then it is sought to give a plain English education, with the object, in most cases, of entry upon domestic service. The annual average cost of each child's support, is £15. This sum is contributed in some instances by an individual, a Bible-class, or a Sunday-school, and is a very definite form of doing good. Admission is made as easy as possible, that the most needy may have the preference.

Miss Sharman says she often longs to extend the benefits of the Home; and, looking on those who are sheltered, while thinking of those outside, she is ready to exclaim, "What are these among so many." The past year has been one of great trial, through loss of liberal supporters. The list of gifts in kind, and parcels of useful clothing, contained in the report, show how ingeniously liberal souls have devised liberal things; while a few friends sent with their gifts to the Home money to help cases of distress, for the children are a link between their foster-mother and many whose sorrows and anxieties are very real and urgent. Touching evidences of grateful appreciation have been witnessed in connection with the children's summer visits to the country branches at Gravesend, Tunbridge Wells, and Newton Abbot.

YOUNG MEN AND MISSIONS.

A VERY interesting meeting of the members of the Missionary Section of the Exeter Hall Young Men's Christian Association was held on December 18. There was a full attendance. Mr. W. H. Seagram presided. He said he trusted that in this country, and from Exeter Hall, men would be found not less willing than the young men of America to obey the parting command of the Master. A number of friends successively offered earnest prayer to God, that He would direct the workers now in the field, and incline the hearts of others to enter on this honoured service.

Mr. Gawin Kirkham gave a rapid sketch of his recent journey in Egypt and Syria, noting the different types of people inhabiting Palestina, and some of the agencies presently employed in bringing them to a saving knowledge of the truth.

Mr. Seagram urged upon his younger brethren the privilege of endeavouring to lead others to the Saviour. Mr. E. J. Kennedy besought those who felt called of God to respond to the call and go into the foreign field.

EXETER HALL Y.M.C.A.—On Monday week a large number of members of the Young Men's Christian Association met Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Tritton at a musical entertainment. In the course of the evening Mr. Tritton delivered an interesting address on "America Revisited." He referred to the fine buildings possessed by the American Young Men's Christian Association, and said he hoped before long the English Associations would put up a central building worthy of the greatest capital in the world. Later in the evening Mr. Tritton gave second address on "Precious Stones."

AN EMBARRASSED WORK AT KILBURN.—As we stated some time ago, the joy which was experienced in 1888, on the opening of the Carlton-road Mission Hall, Kilburn, was very short lived, for it was found that the building ground had been wrongly staked out, and the hall had to come down and be erected again, at an unexpected outlay of £233. The Mission is in the midst of working class and poor people, who do their utmost to support it; the annual expenditure being only £120. The missionary, Mr. W. Martin, writes: "I am sadly in want of a Sabbath-schoolroom and lecture-hall. I have already secured the land, and fenced it in. Such a building would cost £200; but I owe my treasurer £159, which must be paid before I can begin a schoolroom." The missionary's address is 142, Canterbury-road, Kilburn, N.W.

THE FIGUERAS MISSION.

MRS. RODRIGUEZ writes that, since the opening of the new hall in Figueras, forty children have been added to the school, and the attendance at the Sunday service has considerably increased. A remarkable circumstance is that the Town Council have made a grant of £5 to the Medical Mission Dispensary, or, as they term it, "The Protestant Hospital," in acknowledgment of charity rendered in the town. Mrs. Rodriguez declares this to be a thing unparalleled in the religious history of Spain. Two officers' wives with their daughters were present at a prayer-meeting, and have since removed their five children from the convent and institute and sent them to the Mission schools. English ladies can hardly conceive the courage needed for Spaniards in such a position to be the first to show themselves publicly among Protestants, and may well pray for their Spanish sisters' speedy conversion.

The printed details in the latest "Letter from Spain" enable us to give some interesting facts:—"At the close of the evening service a peasant, who had come from a distant mountain village, stayed behind to speak to the pastor, and told him that the people there much enjoy reading our monthly paper, El Heraldo, the only Gospel we can give them. He went on to tell us to our surprise that the new priest actually held up 'the Protestants of Figueras as an example to the village,' having said from his pulpit, 'They are better Christians than you, for they do not work nor dance on Sunday, but keep it holy according to the commandment, teaching the doctrina to the children, and holding cultos for worship; whilst many of you never enter the church for months.' On leaving, the peasant said: 'I hope you will be able some day to come and preach in my village.'"

Large type New Testaments, nicely bound, were sent to sixty-four priests belonging to the district. A parcel of Gospel tracts was also sent to each of the priests. One priest's letter in reply was discouraging, but the workers rely on that sure word of promise, "My Word shall not return unto Me void."

A shoemaker at Bisbal, who had long attended the meetings, boldly joined the brave little band at the Lord's table. Only a week later came the news of his death, which was calm and peaceful. His courageous little wife, who had been a convert for two years, resisted the efforts of her relatives to admit the priest for the funeral, protesting before him and the Mayor of the town that she was a Protestant, and that her husband had not only died in that faith, but had sent for the pastor from Figueras when dying, not wishing the presence of any priest Quite illegally, however, the body was seized by order of the Mayor, and taken to the Roman Catholic Church and cemetery. The poor shoemaker's dying wishes having been well known by the neighbours, general sympathy was manifested by the townspeople, so that this act of tyranny has "turned out for the furtherance of the Gospel."

A practical proof of interest in the Gospel is thus narrated:—"Our tartana having to be repaired, delayed us in starting for San Pedro Pescador, and we arrived an hour later. It was 7 p.m., and we found that the people, thinking we were not coming had gone to bed, to be up again for fishing at 1 a.m. Whilst taking supper in a little inn, the landlord remarked that we could not hope for anyone at the meeting that night. However we went to the hall as usual, and, to our surprise and pleasure, found it well filled, not an empty bench, and some standing. The people had left their beds that cold, dark night, for no other attraction than to hear the Gospel."

Among the needs of the Mission mentioned by Mrs. Rodriguez are medicines, herbs, bandages, and old clothing for medical mission, magic-lantern slides, materials of all kinds for mothers' meetings and sewing classes, old Christmas cards, clothing (new or second hand), needlework, fancy articles, game, poultry, eggs, preserves, &c., for the annual sale of work. These should be sent to Miss Lucy Smith, Fairfield House, Hampstead-hill-gardens, London, N.W., who has also kindly undertaken to send Spanish pottery, fans, baskets, and photographs, to any friends willing to aid the Mission by making purchases, either for themselves, or to help local sales and bazaars.

Rev. J. C. Stewart Matthias, Cossington Rectory, Leicester, is hon. treasurer of the Mission.

Letter to the Editor.

YOUNG MEN IN EDINBURGH.

SIR,—In your issue of December 12, it is stated that at the closing meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association, in this city, it came out that in Edinburgh alone, no less than 25,000 young men do not go to church. This must be a mistake The population of Edinburgh in 1881 was 228,373 Of these, young men from the age of fifteen to thirty, the number was 32,820. These may have increased say 10 per cent. in the last nine years, raising the number to about 39,000. Deduct from this 25,000, and it leaves only 14,000 from the age of fifteen to thirty attending church.

This is simply incredible. Our Sabbath scholars, our young men's classes, the number of young men among our Sabbath-school teachers, and the general appearance of any congregation, belies this estimate. Is there no danger of good men playing into the hands of our adversaries by overstatements of the evils existing, and of the little work that is done? J. J.

[We give the figures as quoted by an Edinburgh correspondent of a Scottish newspaper.—ED.]

The Temperance Cause.

OUT of 15,000 licensed cabmen in the Metropolis, there are at least 3000 total abstainers.

It is alleged that in the past eighteen months Boston has sent over 1,250,000 gallons of rum to Africa.

The Liverpool Wesleyan Band of Hope Union is just now developing an extraordinary amount of energy.

The Education Department, South Australia, has issued a temperance pledge-book for the use of schools.

The Church of England Temperance Society is raising a special fund for work among the young. The Duke of Westminster has promised £100 a year for three years.

We cannot too emphatically reiterate the appeal to householders not to give Christmas and New Year treats to employés, in the form of intoxicating drink.

The British Women's Temperance Association has published very useful cards with "Simple Remedies" for home treatment of common ailments without the use of alcohol.

At a certain public-house in Islington, a placard has been seen containing the announcement that the house would be closed all day on Sunday, and an hour earlier on week-days.

At a gathering of the "Students' Total Abstinence Union," held at Richmond, it was ascertained that ninety-seven per cent. of the men in training at various Nonconformist colleges are abstainers.

Rev. John Thornley, secretary to the Free Methodist Temperance League, writes that the cheering reports he has received assure him that temperance Sunday has been better observed than in any previous year.

Meetings have been held in Newry, Belfast and Portadown, under the auspices of the Women's Temperance and Christian Workers' Association, which has made arrangements for the erection of new homes for little girls at Sigoneil, co. Antrim.

The magistrates in some of the larger towns in the North of Scotland, have agreed to recommend the publicans to close on New Year's Day, the great Scottish holiday. The Perth publicans have returned a defiant answer, and will open as usual.

From Duncan's Brewery Annual, which has just been issued, it appears that the enormous amount of £82,737,984 is invested in brewery companies in this country. That only includes limited liability companies—which have grown from eighty-seven companies last year to 166 this year—and does not by any means represent the full value of brewery business.

Mr. W. S. Caine has been accorded a welco by temperance bodies and others at Bombay. a meeting of temperance reformers, he said t England had found India sober and made drunken. But as there was a band of temperan advocates in India, such as no other country in t world possessed, as there was an old proverb English that "prevention was better than cur and as England was almost past recovery, it w the duty of India to teach the western country lesson in temperance.

At the annual meeting of the Torquay branch the Women's Union, Church of England Temper ance Society, held last week, referring to t attempt now being made to establish an inebriat home for women, Archdeacon Sandford said t cost of such an institution large enough to accom modate twenty patients would be about £80 a yea but before it could be started they must ha about £500.

In the Canadian Dominion there is a statu under which the wife of an habitual drunkard ca hold a liquor seller responsible for damages if l supplies her husband with liquor after being not fe l not to do so. A Mrs. Kirby, who sued a liquo seller under this Act has been awarded, in th Supreme Court at Montreal, 100 dols. on accoun of the injury done to her and her family as a resu of the drink supplied to her husband.

In Manchester, in 1889, one publican was co victed for every fifty-one persons found guilty drunkenness. In Birmingham the number w one for every 789, but in Liverpool, with its hug array of 2510 public-house, only one publican w convicted for every 2873. How can such a diffe ence be accounted for, except upon the assumptio that in one place there is a vigorous attempt carry out the law, and that in the others there grave laxity.

Obituary.

CANON MOLESWORTH

REV. WM. NASSAU MOLESWORTH, M.A., honora canon of Manchester, died on Friday last, aged 7 He had a widespread and high reputation as writer on historical questions, and took a live interest in the great social matters which happi are to-day receiving more attention than formerl His chief works are—"An Essay on the Religiou Importance of Secular Instruction," "The Histo of England from the year 1830," and his "Histo of the Church of England from 1660." The books ran through many editions, and the late M Bright more than once commended them from th hustings.

THE JUNGLE TRIBES' MISSION.—On Mon day evening last week a farewell meeting was he in the Albert-street Presbyterian Church, Belfas to designate Mr. William Mulligan the first agen of the Jungle Tribes' Mission, in connection wit the Irish Assembly. Rev. Dr. H. M. William son presided. In the course of an explanator address, Rev. Dr. Rogers, of Whiteabbey, said "The present field of our Church in India Gujerat and Katiawas, where the number of ou missionaries is miserably inadequate—nine or te men for nine or ten millions of people. It astounding that the Church should be satisfie with such inadequate provision for the spiritu wants of that vast population. The population the jungle tribes of India amounts to eight hundre thousand or a million of souls. Here in Irelan with five hundred thousand Presbyterians, we hav six hundred ministers; but on the eastern side Gujerat for twice that number of souls we hav not a single minister, not a single messenger of th Cross of Christ. It is the intention of this Mi sion to carry the Gospel to people whom th Foreign Mission of our Church has not been ab to touch. The leading characteristic of the Mi sion is the employment of lay agents. Mr. Mull gan will go to the Surat, and remain there und the care of Mr. Shillidy until he has made th acquaintance of the people, the language, an mission work generally; then he will proceed to h proper sphere of work." Mr. Mulligan, the ne missionary, delivered an earnest address, in th course of which he said that, although entertai ing the natural feelings of regret at severing fami and other ties, he had a feeling of joyous anticip tion, and went forth with gladness of heart to th work. An address of cordial sympathy w delivered by Rev. Wm. Park, Moderator of th General Assembly.

FRENCH COLONISTS IN ALGERIA.

LE Société Evangélique de Génève has sent two ung men to Algeria as colporteur-evangelists, who ve come out of the revival in Tarn; a third is now ing and evangelising at Jizi-Mascara. Mons. ercadier, of the North Africa Mission, at Sfax, ys of these two who had reached his neighbour-od, "Send more of such men." The 300 villages French colonists in Algeria are absolutely desti-te of the Gospel, and can be best reached by this nd of agency. Mons. Dardier says, "We have ore of such men than we can employ." When en are ready thus, waiting to enter the field, it uld indeed be a pity that they should be kept ck for want of a little help. £50 would meet e expense of such humble labourers.

May it please God to dispose several friends in ngland to sustain one representative on their half in sunny Algeria, where there is such an occupied field and such good men waiting to ter it. GEORGE PEARSE.

4, Place du Théâtre Français, Paris.

A BOARD-CARRIERS' AGENCY has been added the work of the Baptist Forward Movement. r. Kenneth Bond writes to say that the co-opera-on of all employers of this kind of labour will e welcomed. Letters should be addressed to the anager, 11 and 12, Dorrington-street, Leather-ne, E.C.

REV. MARK GUY PEARSE.—In consequence f Mr. Pearse's approaching departure for Aus-alia, the Friday noon meetings in Princes Hall e stopped for the present. Mr. Pearse expects resume work in the West London Mission early ext October. His last Sunday address in St. ames's Hall will be on the morning of January 18, fter which Revs. Hugh Price Hughes and W. arlow Sarjeant will undertake these services.

BRAUNTON, DEVON.—Rev. E. R. Gotto, icar of Braunton, desires us to say that the work arried on there by the late Miss Robinson has not een suffered to fall to the ground. The opera-ions in connection with the coffee-tavern and the ission-room are being sustained. Mr. Gotto has btained the assistance of a Christian gentleman ho will reside at the coffee-tavern, and help in he Gospel and temperance work. Help will still e needed from the public for keeping up the ifferent agencies.

BIBLE TALKS TO YOUNG MEN.—Rev. F. B. Meyer closed his series of talks at Aldersgate-treet on Saturday, December 6. The attendance hroughout has been splendidly maintained, the verage number exceeding two hundred. The eetings have been marked by earnest attention nd a deep devotional spirit, and many have testi-ied to the spiritual good received. We are deeply ndebted to Mr. Meyer, says The Association ews, for the invaluable and self-denying service hus rendered to our Association. The members ill be glad to learn that Mr. Meyer hopes to com-nence a new series of Bible Talks early in the ew Year.

CHURCH UNION.—The desire for closer union mongst the Nonconformist Churches asserts itself gain in Mr. Price Hughes' leading article in last eek's Methodist Times. He urges that the repre-entatives of Nonconformity should be brought at nce face to face in a great National Council. He ffirms that the spirit of essential unity has been rowing rapidly for years, and thinks that the best ay to exhibit this fact is by a Nonconformist hurch Congress. Dr. Paton, of Nottingham, Mr. Westrope, of Leeds, and Mr. Meeson, of Harrogate, ave issued a circular inviting the evangelical hurches in different parts of the country to form ocal unions for united counsel and co-operation in ocial work.

REV. DR. A. T. PIERSON, in the December ssue of The Missionary Review of the World, refers n terms of deep sadness to the death of his devoted ssociate-editor, Rev. Dr. Sherwood. Having sked that communications referring to the ditorial department should be addressed to him t 2320, Spruce-street, Philadelphia, Pa., Dr. ierson adds: "We ask all those interested in The eview and its work to remember in prayer the urviving editor, that he may be strong for the eavy responsibilities suddenly thrown upon his ands and heart; and, likewise, may we not invoke od's blessing and the reader's sympathies and upplications in behalf of the family left without usband and father?"

The Book World.

WINNING WORDS. 1s. Holness. A series of Gospel stories for young and old. About seventy in number, these illustrated narratives have a wholesome tone and a high and definite purpose.

COME UNTO ME. By Mary B. Whiting. 1s. 6d. Nisbet & Co. These "Daily readings on the sayings of Christ" embody solemn warnings, stirring calls, as well as soothing words and precious promises.

MAD JOHN BURLEIGH: A Story of Heroic Self-sacrifice. By Mrs. Charles Garnett. 3s. 6d. Partridge & Co. All who read this study of a noble Christian character will be the better for having done so.

THE HOUSEHOLD ANGEL, by Madeline Leslie (2s Partridge & Co.), tells how a godly stepmother overcame the difficulties and trials that beset her path in the household, and won the affections of her rebellious stepchildren.

A second and cheap edition is issued of GOOD MEN AND TRUE, by Dr. A. H. Japp. It is gratifying to know that there is a demand for the record of such earnest and benevolent lives as those of Denison, Hannington, Guthrie, Plimsoll, and the others collected here. (3s. 6d. T. Fisher Unwin.)

HAZELL'S ANNUAL. 3s. 6d. Hazell & Co. The new issue of this popular guide to passing events shows an advance on previous editions. It has been enlarged, and is brought up to the latest possible date. Special attention is being paid to short biographical notices of leading public men, and altogether the work is a marvel at once of cheapness, of fulness, and of accuracy.

ILLUSTRATED MISSIONARY NEWS, vol. xxiv. Partridge. Rev. J. Hudson Taylor's portrait graces the cover of this very attractive volume. The pages record the progress of work for Christ in many lands. A specially attractive series of articles by Samuel H. Anderson, of Paris, is entitled "What hinders in France?" The contents are admirably varied; they cover a wide field, and are calculated to excite and sustain interest in the cause of missions.

ALISON WALSH: A Study of To-day. By Constance Evelyn. T. Nelson & Sons. The heroine of this cleverly told narrative somehow lapsed from faith into questionings and finally into professed unbelief. The stern discipline of life and the manifest harvest of evil in others led her back at length to a faith more real than she had at first, because she was shut up to that or to despair. A thread of romance is visible, of course, throughout, and the tale is altogether of a superior order, as tales go.

Annie Swan's story, MAITLAND OF LAURIESTON, which has run through the current volume of The Sunday Magazine, makes a handsome book, as published by Messrs. Oliphant, Anderson & Ferrier (6s.) It well sustains the author's reputation as a clever and realistic delineator of life and character. There is a special present-day interest in the closing chapters, which tell how the young professor, the hero of the tale, was guided by the hand of sorrow through the mists of doubt into the upper regions of trusting faith.

BIBLE STUDIES: ISRAEL AND JUDAH.—THE GOSPEL OF ST. JOHN. By Geo. F. Pentecost, D.D. 4s. Hodder & Stoughton.—This is the fourth volume of Dr. Pentecost's "studies," and based on the International Sunday-school Lessons for 1891. The Scripture portion is given in full, and, after a general statement of its drift and meaning, the various points are elaborated and applied. From first to last the work is well done, and no better book of its kind could be put into the hands of an intelligent and earnest Sunday-school teacher.

Three practical and pointed booklets by James Sprunt are—OUR HOPE, OUR LIFE, and OUR PEACE, all New Year addresses to believers. (6d. per dozen. Stoneman.)

The poem by Miss C. Murray, "To-Day's Desire," published by Mr. Henry Randle, Hastings, may be had, on card, at 1s. per dozen copies, post free; one copy, 1½d post free.

THE GOSPEL OF GRACE FROM THE GOD OF GLORY Scripture studies by Captain Dawson. 6d. Shaw. Spiritual and helpful, indicating Christian duty in the light of Scripture teaching.

THE RUBY ALMANACK AND TEXT BOOK for 1891 (1d. J. G. Wheeler, 88, Mildmay Park, N.) contains a text for every day, arranged under various subjects, with some choice extracts and hymns.

WALKING WITH GOD. A word for the New Year, by Rev. Robert Cowan, Elgin. 2d. Inverness: Melven Brothers. The story of Enoch forms the basis of counsels which are both spiritual and practical.

Mr. A. H. Barker, the son of Rev. W. Barker, late of Hastings, has just published a neat little tractlet of BIBLE WORDS, selected and classified, price ½d. It may be had in special covers for ministers and tract distributors, to whom special terms are given. Mr. Barker's London address is 76, Turnmill-street, Farringdon-road. The booklet is also supplied by Marshall Brothers, 10, Paternoster-row.

Messrs. R. Banks & Son, Racquet-court, Fleet-street, have published two excellent denominational almanacs and directories for 1891. That of the Baptist Churches is prefaced with a portrait (with interesting sketch) of the late Rev. W. H. Burton, of Dalston; and that of the Congregationalists, with a portrait of Rev. Pedr Williams, of Lower Clapton, also accompanied by a biographical sketch.

MADE, MARRED, AND MADE ANEW; or, Vessels and Vessels. A message for the New Year, by Pastor Frank H. White. 1d. Partridge. A precious booklet, opening with an exposition of Jer. xviii. 1-4. What the Prophet saw on visiting the potter's house is shown to be parabolic of teachings which are of the essence of the Gospel. We trust the message will prove a guide to sinners and a counsellor to saints.

CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR CARDS. Mr. E. Kaufmann, 30, Paternoster-square, has issued an attractive selection of cards for the present season. They are of a distinctly Christmas character, and will be found very suitable for circulation by our readers. Amongst the selection we commend a shilling packet entitled, "Fulness of Joy"; another, "Wells of Salvation." Among attractive sixpenny packets will be found "Victorious Love" and "Eternal Love." Lists may be had.

Among seasonable booklets published by Messrs. Partridge are:—MY CHRISTMAS STAR, by E. S. Elliott. The message is a good one for every day in the year. Each copy is accompanied by a piece of cardboard coated with luminous paint, so that in some degree it "shines in the darkness." This very pretty Christmas greeting is made the text of a very helpful homily. 6d.—LET YOUR LIGHT SO SHINE, by Rev. William Frith. Sound and stimulating.—ALL THE DAYS OF OUR LIFE, by Mrs. Coote. Based on Luke ii. 74, 75, it is a call to consecration and service.

MR. CHARLES INGLIS has returned to England after a most encouraging evangelistic tour in the United States.

EXETER HALL.—Rev. John McNeill will preach in Exeter Hall on Sunday evenings for six weeks, commencing January 4, at seven o'clock.

WORKING LADS.—A fancy sale was opened on Wednesday afternoon last week by Sir Douglas Fox at Marlborough Rooms, 309, Regent-street, W., in aid of the Red, White, and Blue Christian Institute for Lads, Cumming-street, Pentonville. The Institute, which is the outcome of four years' previous effort on a small scale among the working boys of King's-cross, is entirely unsectarian. The youths, whom it increasingly attracts in their leisure hours, are provided with the means of rational and healthy recreation, and are cheerfully taught useful knowledge by a band of volunteer workers. There are now eighty-six lads in weekly attendance.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.—We much regret to hear that the beloved and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson, late of The Priory, Islington, now residing at Cranley House, Folkestone, is very seriously ill, and that her life has been despaired of by the physicians. We are sure those who know her, and her bright, loving, Christian character, will commend her especially to the God who heareth and answereth prayer, and with whom nothing is impossible.——For blessing on the following:—Eight days' Gospel mission at Ivybridge, S. Devon, by J. Crofton Rainey, Dec. 28 to Jan. 5.——Mr. W. R. Lane's address at Kensington Town Hall, on Jan. 4.——A Conference on New Year's Day, and two weeks' evangelistic meetings to follow, by Y.M.C.A. evangelist, in Huntley, N.B.

CRUELTY TO CHILDREN.—The first annual meeting in connection with the East London branch of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children was held last week in the Lecture Hall of the People's Palace, Mile End-road. Miss Mary P. Bolton (hon. local secretary) read the report of the committee, which stated that during the first year's work of the branch the lives of 421 children had been directly or indirectly benefited. The great aim of the Society is to make parents realise their responsibilities, and through the parents themselves to secure happier lives for the children. They had in 118 of those cases endeavoured to get this increased security, not by prosecution, but by warnings and supervision, by educating thoughtless people, and deterring those who were only beginning a course of neglect; and the reforms these warnings had brought were one very encouraging feature of the work. After addresses by Mr. Spencer Charrington and Baroness Burdett-Coutts, Rev. Benjamin Waugh explained the aims and method of work.

Among the Churches.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

Lady Howard de Waldon has contributed £1000 to the Bishop of London's Fund.

The Archbishop of York is recovering. He is now able to take outdoor exercise, and has resumed some ordinary duties.

Among the subscribers to the fund, amounting to about £200, for a testimonial to Dean Perowne on leaving Peterborough to become Bishop of Worcester, are local Baptist, Congregational, and Methodist ministers, and laymen of all denominations. The executive committee includes the Methodist mayor (chairman), Baptist and Methodist ministers, and several Congregational laymen.

The London and South-Western Railway Company has extensive workshops at Eastleigh (Bishopstoke), Hants, through transfer of the carriage-building department to that place. It is believed that two years hence the population will number at least 10,000. Mr. Tankerville Chamberlayne, lord of the manor, has given the site for another church, and General Sir F. FitzWygram has subscribed £500 towards the building fund.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

Miss Ada Bewley, of Dublin, has been accepted by the Foreign Mission Association as a zenana visitor in the Central Provinces of India.

Adult school work in Leeds is improving. Commodious premises have been built at York-road, and the Burley-road Schools, the newest branch, is now used by 169 scholars.

BAPTIST.

The improvement in Mr. Spurgeon's health continues.

Rev. Archibald Brown, during twenty-four years' pastorate in East London, has received into membership by baptism 2246 persons

Rev. John Robertson, of Edinburgh, will preach again in the Metropolitan Tabernacle in the forenoon and evening of January 18.

At the annual general meeting of John-street Chapel (London) Christian Band satisfactory statistics of progress were noted. Rev. J. E. Shephard, pastor, presided. The Band now consists of eighty-seven members.

Large representative meetings have been held in Nottingham to bid farewell to Rev. H. E. Stone, who during ten years' labour has been instrumental in putting the Tabernacle Church on a most satisfactory footing, and shortly leaves to take pastoral charge of the church in Abbey-road, St. John's Wood, London.

Calls Accepted.—Rev. W. Jones, of Treharris, to Bethel Welsh Chapel, Holyhead.—Rev. Forbes Jackson, M.A., of Leith, to Sansome-walk Church, Worcester.—Rev. R. A. Burrows, of Inskip, to Drake-street, Rochdale.—Mr. F. G. French, of Nottingham College, to Chatteris.

Resignations.—Rev. J. P. Macpherson, Myrtle-street Chapel, Liverpool, at the end of March.

SALVATION ARMY.

Colonel McKie has had good meetings at Johannesberg. He speaks very highly of Salvationist prospects in Africa.

Last Friday night General Booth addressed 1200 men at the Polytechnic, who favourably received his replies to criticisms upon his scheme.

Major and Mrs. Oliphant have completed a very successful mission tour in Switzerland, and are now helping Commissioner Railton in South Germany.

A large three days' congress has been held in Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Ballington Booth, from New York, led the meetings, which were greatly blessed to many persons.

At Middlesborough Miss Eva Booth laid the foundation stone of a building which occupies the site of an old Primitive Methodist chapel. The building will cost £1950, and seat 1000 persons.

The Melbourne Salvation Army Free Labour Bureau during the first four months of its existence has supplied 40,000 meals to the needy, and found work for 2200 persons out of 3400 applicants for employment.

Mr. Bramwell Booth has written a book descriptive of the life and last days of "The Mother of the Salvation Army." The volume, which will be published in the course of a few weeks, is to be entitled, "On the Banks of the River."

CONGREGATIONAL.

With the close of the year, the editorship of The Congregational Magazine passes from Rev. A. Mearns to Rev. W. F. Clarkson, B.A.

At a social meeting of the friends connected with Craven Church, Regent-street, it was intimated that there was a prospect of having a settled pastor in a short time.

A meeting of the Congregational Church Aid and Home Missionary Society was held on Thursday, last week, at the Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, to welcome Rev. W. F. Clarkson, late of Birmingham, to the office of secretary of the society.

Ebenezer Congregational Church, the largest Nonconformist place of worship in Chatham, was gutted by fire last week. The building was restored and enlarged a short time ago, and a new organ erected. The loss, which amounts to some thousands of pounds, is covered by insurance. It is supposed that the fire had been smouldering since the use of the hot-air apparatus on the previous Sunday.

Resignations.—Rev. James Menzies, Redhill.—Rev. Evan Lewis, Brynberian, Pemb.—Rev. R. Perkins, Maenclochog, Pemb.—Rev. D. Jones, Ford, Pemb.

Calls Accepted.—Rev. H. G. Hastings to Rodborough Tabernacle, Stroud.—Rev. J. McClune Uffen, after sixty years' successful work at Queen's-gate Church, Nottingham, to Dorchester.

METHODIST.

An encouraging series of special services, conducted by "Gipsy" Smith, has been held at Trinity Wesleyan Chapel, Stockport.

Dr. Moulton, President of the Wesleyan Conference, says concerning recent visits to different parts of the country, that if he had been inclined to look on the dark side he would have been effectually cured, for every part of the work seemed instinct with new life.

Mr. Josiah Nix is once again arranging for his gathering for the lonely at Cleveland Hall on Christmas Day. During dessert Rev. Mark Guy Pearse will tell some of his Cornish stories. Persons of either sex, who can obtain a reference from some minister or clergyman, are cordially invited.

FALLEN ASLEEP.

Rev. Matthew Henry Lee, vicar of Hanmer and canon of St. Asaph.—Rev. George James (Baptist), Bewdley, Worcestershire.—The Mayor of West Bromwich, Mr. S. Lees, connected with Hill Top Chapel.—Rev. Thomas Marsden, rector of St. John's, Horsleydown, London.—Rev. John Lewis, formerly of Blaenai.—The widow of the late George Cruickshank.—Rev. Thomas Spratt, incumbent of St. John's Church, Abbeydale, Sheffield.—Rev. James Mitchell (Methodist), of Plymouth.—Mr. E. Courteney, a Methodist local preacher at Stratford-on-Avon.—Prebendary Beadon, senior member of the Wells Chapter.—Rev. Dr. Webster, rector of St. Nicholas, Cork, and Chancellor of the diocese of Cork.—Mr. Alexander Dunsmore, of Stirling, a promising student of Edinburgh University.—Rev. John Downes, rector of Hannington, Northampton.—Mr. Stephen Treverton, local preacher, Gwennap Circuit.—Rev. Joseph Amphlett, rector of Hampton-Lovett, Droitwich.

Appeals.

Battersea.—We have hundreds of poor people needing help. Some we visit, having dear little children, have nothing to eat. It will be a real joy to distribute any kind gifts. I know the good it does.—THOMAS LARDNER, 5, The Chase, Clapham.

Sailors in Trouville.—We are about to open a reading-room for the English and Scandinavian sailors visiting the port. Our stock of literature is very limited, and some of your readers may be disposed to help us by sending copies of weekly papers or monthly periodicals.—A. G. BARLEY, Repos des Marins, Trouville, France.

Army Scripture Readers.—The committee of the Army Scripture Readers' and Soldiers' Friend Society appeal for immediate and generous help. A serious deficit bids fair to cripple the work of God in the army and militia. Contributions may be sent to Mr. W. A. BLAKE, secretary, 4, Trafalgar-square, Charing-cross, W.C.

Christ Church, Everton, Liverpool.—It has been decided to try and purchase a piece of land and build a simple room of two storeys which can be used for a mission-room and for Sunday-school purposes. The parish is a poor one, and outside help is earnestly requested.—Mr. WM. GRIFFIN, 89, Walton Breck-road, Anfield, Liverpool, hon. sec.

Shaftesbury Memorial Hall, Union-street, Borough, S.E.—The present severe weather has brought great distress upon the poor people in the neighbourhood, and many of them are almost starving. In order to alleviate the distress we are opening a soup kitchen, but need funds to maintain it so long as the necessity lasts.—C. FRED. WORTERS, hon. sec.

Bethnal Green Poor.—Rev. J. STOCKWELL WATTS, for over twenty-two years a pastor in East London, desires means (1) for at once opening a soup-kitchen, which for many winters has proved a boon to thousands; and (2) for issuing bread and coal tickets to the more needy cases around Bethnal Green. Every case relieved is known to be one of real necessity. Address, "Elswick," Amhurst-park, N.

Poor French in London.—Pasteur G. BARBER writes from 10, Charlotte-street, Portland-place, W.:—"A great number of my poor people are without work, and consequently in distress. The winter is severe, and I cannot leave them to starve in their garrets. Every day I have to relieve some poor foreigners; every week 12s. or 15s. must be expended in coals. I know not in which direction to turn for help."

Ragged School Union.—We are beset by applications innumerable for money, for food, for clothes, for toys, and well nigh every kind of help from our local mission centres. If the readers of THE CHRISTIAN can again come to the rescue and assist the committee in their varied agencies to relieve the necessitous and to bring Christmas joy into sad lives, we shall indeed be grateful.—JOHN KIRK, Exeter Hall, London, W.C.

The Seaside Convalescent Hospital, Seaford, Sussex, the first institution of its kind, after thirty years' beneficial work in the relief of over 15,000 poor patients, now finds itself sorely pressed for funds. Unless help is speedily forthcoming, the usefulness of the Hospital must be greatly curtailed. A considerable debt embarrasses the work. The secretary is Mr. FRANK MAITLAND, Bank-chambers, 1, Long Acre, London, W.C.

Dock Labourers' Mission.—This mission provides free breakfasts and teas with Gospel addresses every Sunday throughout the year to the very poor; it also supplies the men with a meal at the dock gates, and provides lodgings and breakfast for the homeless. For want of funds the night shelter is closed, and unless help is forthcoming we must curtail the daily supply of food and fuel.—C. H. COLEMAN and F. W. JACOBS, 150, Boleyn-road, Forest-gate, E.

Leyton, E.—Having visited the poor in this di for six years, I know some cases of real need. I n knew so much illness; there are some heart-ren cases of want through illness.—T. MAYCOCK, 17, Bead field-road, Leyton, E.

Protestant Governesses' Fund.—The distress an poor governesses is extreme. Some are without h or money, and out of employment. The Fund ha lieved several cases of ladies delicately nurture whom poverty was intensely severe. Help will be g fully received by the hon. superintendent of the F CLEMETINA KINGDON, 8, Saltoun-road, Brixton, S.W

Abbey-street Sunday and Ragged Schools, Bet Green.—The work here is in connection with the toria Park Church. There are many benevolent op tions among young and old, including free breakf and clothing for the destitute little ones attending Board Schools. The hon. superintendent is Mr. WIRE, 57, Church-row, Bethnal Green.

Mr. W. J. Orsman, L.C.C., Milton House, Shac well-green, Hackney, N.E., hon. superintendent of Golden-lane and Hoxton Christian Mission, is in n of help to carry on his Irish stew soup-kitchen, poor children's halfpenny dinners, the free cocoa br fasts, and thirty-two other Christian and benevo operations carrried on successfully at Costers' Hall.

Maryland Point Mission, Stratford, E.—Mr. J STABB sends us details of very distressing cases of that are being brought under his notice at this ti His visitation of the poor in their homes gives him portunity of dealing with spiritual as well as temp destitution, and he pleads for help to carry on his w Mr. STABB's address is 6, Norcott-road, Stoke New ton, N.

A Berkshire Village.—Rev. J. S. Haggett, Congr tional minister, Hungerford, appeals for help to en him to provide hot dinners for the children of the p Many of the bread-winners earn only 9s. to 12s. week (weather permitting), and in some cases there as many mouths to fill as shillings coming in, apart f rent, &c. Mr. Haggett hopes, through the kindnes Christian friends, to send coals to the sick and deser poor.

The Female Orphan Home, Tangley Park, Ha ton, Middlesex.—We have now in the Home fifty children, of whom thirteen have been admitted s April 1. The majority of these helpless little ones under twelve years of age. We work very cheaply, just now we need funds; we also want to raise £10 build a play room for the children out of school ho Without play they cannot grow up bright and heal —JOHN D. COOPER, secretary, 79, Finsbury-pavem E.C.

St. Philip's, Bethnal Green.—Rev. R. W. LOVER vicar of this parish, writes:—"Last year friends he us to give a treat and a present of clothing, a book, toy, to 1840 of our school children; also a hot dinn 517 of our aged and suffering poor. Clothes blankets, new and old, as well as gifts of money wh with to buy meat and coals, will be thankfully recei We require £2000 a year to sustain our labours of and over £200 is still wanted to meet past and cur expenses."

Stepney and Bow Common.—I have done my to meet the most distressing cases of want, but now means at my disposal are completely exhausted. I anxious to supply from our kitchen, both in our di hall and in the peoples' homes, halfpenny dinners famished children, and men and women out of w Being a manager of several large Board Schools, I sh also like to continue providing a nourishing dinne children who have gone breakfastless to school.—(J. ROLFE FISHER, 26, Cottage-grove, Bow, London,

Friendless and Fallen.—Mr. EDWARD W. THO 200, Euston-road, N.W., is appealing at this seaso the help which Christian friends have in past years generously given in support of the Institution so known under this heading. If before the last day of year contributions are sent on the same liberal scal formerly, he and his committee will have the satisfac of feeling that the year's expenditure has been fully by the year's income. He has received the best couragement from the readers of this journal, and will need no new argument to induce them again to promptly and liberally.

"Robin Dinners."—The Church of England R Dinner Fund for London and the provinces writ "We are anxious to give, as in previous years, a dinner and a cheerful entertainment to the childr the poor. Last Christmas between forty and fifty t sand little ones were thus entertained. The s number of children all over London could easil found this winter. A representative committee clergy and laity has been formed, and by them the f will be carefully and economically disbursed. Co butions will be promptly acknowledged by the secretaries, Messrs. C. A. BULLOCK and J. KIR Paternoster-square, London, E.C."

Union Hall Mission.—"There are very many Christians among us to whom a little temporal would be most acceptable and cheering in these dark, winter days. My kind friends have in past y helped me to alleviate, to a considerable extent, large amount of distress always to be found in several poor districts of our Mission, and I earn hope they will again entrust me with the m whereby we may help where we know there is need. Tickets for bread, soup, coals, and groc would be very acceptable. Donations sent wil mostly used for this purpose."—ROBERT BILKE; A geldie, Greenhill-park, Harlesden, London, N.W.

NOTES ON DAILY READINGS.

These Notes run concurrently with the Readings of the "Bible and Prayer Union," founded and conducted by Rev. Thomas Richardson, Vicar of St. Benet's, Mile End-road, London, E., of whom card of membership may be had for 1d., and Monthly Notes, prepared by himself, for 1s. per annum, post free. We hope many of our readers will become members of the "Bible and Prayer Union," and take its Monthly Notes, which of course are entirely different from these.

SUNDAY, DEC. 28.—Isaiah XXXII.

A FORECAST of the blessed reign of the Messiah. The prophet had just described the fall of the Assyrian, in which he finds a foreshadowing of the destruction of all that hinders the manifestation of God's King.

1-8.—THE RIGHTEOUS KING.—The kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of One worthy to reign. "The princes" may refer to those who shall exercise authority under Him (Luke xxii. 30; 1 Cor. vi. 2). 2. It is the Man Christ Jesus, who alone can become so many blessings in his one lovely nature. There is no need in life for which the Lord Jesus is not a cure. We shall never be content with his gifts, only with himself. 3. Prophets and people shall then be right. 5, 6. Men will be revealed in their true characters, and called by their true names. 7. The means adopted by the fraudulent to increase his property are evil, and however honourable the poor man may be, he has no chance of prevailing against him. 8. But those who are princely (noble in heart) shall stand approved in the presence of their king.

9-14.—AN APPEAL TO THE WOMEN OF ISRAEL.—Before these blessed days could come, there would necessarily be a stripping off of the luxurious and idolatrous habits into which the people, and especially the ladies of Jerusalem, had fallen. 10. "For days beyond a year shall ye be troubled" (R.V.) 12. "They shall smite on their breasts in lamentation for the," &c. 13. This desolation not only referred to the Jerusalem of those days, but surely includes her, as she is to-day, and will be till the Lord come.

15-20. THE ADVENT OF THE SPIRIT.—This points forward to the coming of the Holy Spirit, not only at Pentecost, but in those glorious days with which the present era must close (Ezek. xxvii. 26; Zech. xii. 10). "The field now fruitful shall be but as a barren forest in comparison with what it shall be then." 17. Our Lord is first King of Righteousness, then King of Peace. There can be no true peace until the heart and life are right with God. Where peace is absent, it is well to see if there is any failure in the walk. 18. This is the fruit of all who abide in Jesus. 19. "It shall hail," i.e., God's judgments shall fall heavily on the hosts that shall have gathered against his people, and the proud city from which they came shall fall. 20. When the rivers had overflowed, before sowing on the waters, it was customary to send oxen or asses to make furrows for the seed. Let us sow wherever we have the opportunity (Eccles. xi. 1).

MONDAY, DEC. 29.—Isaiah XXXIII.

This final prediction against Sennacherib seems to have been given in the autumn of 713 B.C.

1. THE RECOIL OF EVIL on the perpetrator.—Men often set rolling avalanches, which sweep away their own homes.

2-6, THE PRAYER FOR HELP.—There is a notable prayer here for each morning as it dawns, "O God, be my arm this day." 3. The tumult betokens the advent of God, and its effect upon the Assyrian is graphically described. 4. The caterpillar here is the wingless locust, and the reading is thus given in R.V., "Your spoil shall be gathered as the caterpillar gathereth, as locusts leap shall they leap upon it." 5. When the Lord is put in his right place, there are untold treasures opened to the heart and Church, of salvation, wisdom, and knowledge.

7-14. THE DEVASTATIONS OF THE FOE.—The men of rank who had been sent by Hezekiah to make peace were rejected, made to stand without the Assyrian camp. 8. Hezekiah had bribed Sennacherib in vain (2 Kings xviii. 14-17). 10, 11. When God arises on the behalf of his people, He turns the proud boastings of his foes against themselves. 14. The dealings of God with the Assyrian might well startle and awaken his people to see the danger of tampering with one so holy. God Himself in his purity is here compared to fire, against which nothing evil can stand.

15-19. THE RIGHTEOUS DESCRIBED AND REWARDED (Ps. xv. 2).—16. Amid the perils of the siege, all needed supplies would be forthcoming to the true-hearted servants of God. Here is a promise for us all to avail ourselves of. It is an immutable promise. 17. In the primary sense this refers to Hezekiah, who would no longer be arrayed in sackcloth, but in beautiful raiment; and there would be no longer any obstruction to seeing the far-distances of the land. 18. The terror should only be a meditation of the past.

20-24. THE SAFETY OF GOD'S PEOPLE.—Alone among the great cities of the world, Zion was not surrounded by water, and the prophet says that God Himself would be to them all that a river was to others, without the corresponding disadvantages of being the means by which hostile ships could come under her walls. Let your life be lived in the enclosing arms of the glorious Lord. 23. The enemy's host is compared to a war-galley, shattered by tempests. This is in keeping with the imagery of the previous verse. 24. Some think this refers to the beginning of a pestilence by which the Assyrians were destroyed, but from which the Israelites were saved. No sickness, and no iniquity!

TUESDAY, DEC. 30.—Isaiah XXXIV.

Edom is alluded to here as representing the enemies of God's people. That land suffered severely under the Babylonish invasion, and so shall all who oppose the Kingdom of God be overwhelmed by inevitable destruction. (Ps. cxxxvii. 7; Mal. i. 4).

2. "He hath utterly devoted them to destruction."

3. Blood enough to wash even the mountains away.

4. This natural imagery is employed to set forth great social and political changes (Matt. xxiv. 29), and at last nature shall be convulsed in sympathy with final judgments on men (Rev. vi. 13).

5. God's purpose of judgment having been formed in heaven, it is as certain of execution as though already consummated.

7. The wild oxen (R.V.) shall come down to the slaughter. These different animals stand for different classes of the people.

9, 10. Imagery derived from the destruction of Sodom (Gen. xix. 24-28). On the S.E. of the Dead Sea there are the ruins of more than thirty deserted cities.

11. "But the pelican and the porcupine shall possess it" (R.V.). Travellers have referred to the screaming of eagles, hawks, and owls, when they have intruded on these desolate wastes.

14. "Wild beasts of the desert," i.e., wild cats shall meet jackals.

15. The arrow-snake, or darting serpent, is referred to.

17. As the Promised Land was divided among the tribes, so shall Edom be surrendered to these birds and beasts of prey.

It is an awful picture, but it has been literally and terribly realised, and the desolations of these countries are a standing proof of how God keeps his word, and now truly inspired this book is. Let us remember the destruction of Edom is a type of the desolation of the heart and life from which the love of God is persistently excluded.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 31.—Isaiah. XXXV.

An exquisite description, which includes the return from Babylon, the blessedness of the heart in the love of Jesus, and those bright days yet before us, when the evil doers shall be consumed out of the earth.

1. "Solitary" is parched, and therefore uninhabited. "Rose": perhaps the narcissus or autumn-crocus.

2. "Glory and excellency" are first bestowed to the wilderness, and then are ascribed in thanksgiving to God. Whatever God gives us, should return in ascriptions of love and praise to Him.

3. Trembling hearts and tottering knees are emblems of the fear which often overtakes the saints, but all are hushed and silenced by the thought that God will come.

4. Whatever the violence of your foes or the weakness of your heart, God is adequate to meet all emergencies. He will come and save.

5-6. However unlikely it may seem, yet is it true that what now seems the wilderness of your life shall ere long become fertile and well-watered; and your sorrow shall be forgotten in your great joy.

7. "The parched ground" is the mirage. What was a disappointment shall become a living blessing. That child, that failure, it shall ultimately be transformed. "Dragon" is jackal. Hearts and lives now haunted with evil things shall yet rejoice in holiness.

8. That highway is even now being cast up in the world, Note the better rendering of "but it shall be for those," given in the margin, for He (the Holy One) shall walk with them. What blessed companionship for us, if we walk in the light (John xiv. 23; 1 John i. 7).

9. Nothing can hurt us if we walk with God in obedience and holiness.

10. The return from Babylon, the restoration of a backslider, the home-coming to heaven of the saints, all these are the occasions of rapturous joy. Sorrow and sighing, which have hovered about our path, shall one day shrink back abashed before the light into which we shall enter. And as guests in Eastern banquets were anointed with rich and fragrant unguents, so shall joy be poured lavishly on our heads.

THURSDAY, JAN. 1.—Isaiah XXXVI.

This and the following chapters occur in 2 Kings, copied probably either from this or from "the acts of Hezekiah," which Isaiah wrote (2 Chron. xxxii. 32). Sargon was a powerful Assyrian king, who deposed Shalmaneser and founded a new dynasty. At his death Hezekiah refused to go on paying tribute. A large party of Jews urged the formation of an alliance with Egypt and Ethiopia. This was persistently opposed by Isaiah, who used every argument in his power to keep the people true to simple trust in Jehovah. Sennacherib, the son of Sargon, invaded Judah 700 B.C. His monument still stands, and the inscription remarkably confirms this narrative. The amount of the tribute in gold is the same in each. Of course the inscription does not mention the destruction of his host by this act of God.

1. The inscriptions put the cities at 46, and the prisoners at 200,000.

2. On the monument is a picture of the monarch seated in the entrance to Lachish.

3. Eliakim, as foretold (xxii. 15-20).

6. What an apt description this is of all creature-aid. It either breaks beneath our weight or pierces us.

7. The Assyrian here refers to Hezekiah's reformation, which he mistakenly thought was directed against Jehovah (2 Kings xviii. 4).

10. Had he heard through captive Jews of chap. x. 5, 6?

12. Jerusalem was to be reduced to the direst extremities of famine.

20. Like other blasphemers and liars, he contradicts himself (10). It is thus that our great tempter roars around the fold, and makes us shudder at his wild and blasphemous threats. But he cannot really harm us, for he is chained. Answer him not, but keep close within the fortifications of the love of God, looking up perpetually to Him for deliverance.

FRIDAY, JAN. 2.—Isaiah XXXVII.

1. There is no place like the prayer-closet or the sanctuary in hours of crushing calamity (Ps. lxxiii. 16, 17).

3. A proverbial expression for extreme danger which the sufferer cannot avert.

5, 6. The man of faith refuses to consider circumstances, and keeps his eye steadily fixed on God alone. What is said against God's people is appropriated by Himself, "Against Me."

12, 13. These cities were all situated in Mesopotamia and the valley of the Euphrates.

14. God knows the contents of every letter, yet He loves to be told by his own, and to have all laid before Him.

20. One of our strongest arguments in prayer is to plead for the name and glory of God (Ezek. xxxvi. 22, 23).

21. How speedy is the Divine answer and reassurance. To this time, probably, we must allot the composition of Psalm xlvi. Evidently it was an epoch of immense agitation, out of which faith raised the noblest outbursts of song and prayer. There is hardly extant a grander poem than that recited in the following verses.

24. "I will enter into his furthest height, the forest of his fruitful field" (R.V.).

26. "What seems to be wrought by thy counsel or might, was really planned by Me long ago. Thou art only an instrument in my hands."

30. Addressed to Hezekiah. For two years they had been obliged to depend on the spontaneous growth of the soil, but they might now venture to sow their crops as usual.

35. All around that city was the invisible protection of the glorious Lord. The very mountains around her were the emblems of the majestic defence of the Almighty Protector, who would not even allow the erection of forts or mounds.

36. We cannot tell the natural cause of this disaster; it is enough to know that "the angel of God breathed on the faces of the host."

37. Sennacherib lived for eighteen or twenty years after this disaster, but he never again attempted the capture of Jerusalem.

"So let all thine enemies perish, O Lord; but let them that love Him be as the sun when he goeth forth in his might."

SATURDAY, JAN. 3.—Isaiah XXXVIII.

The story of Hezekiah's sickness, introducing an exquisite Psalm, full of plaintive beauty.

1. That this announcement was altered points to no fickleness on the part of God, but to the change of attitude on the part of Hezekiah.

3. He probably referred to his earnest efforts to cleanse the Temple (2 Kings xxix.). Josephus says that Hezekiah wept so sorely because, being childless, there was no successor to his throne. Three years after this, however, Manasseh was born (2 Kings xxi. 1), who turned out to be a curse rather than a blessing, and the cause of the overthrow of Judah (2 Kings xxiii. 26, 27). Can we say that we have walked before God with a perfect, i.e., a sincere and single-minded heart?

4. An illustration of God's quickness in answering prayer is given in the additional touch of 2 Kings xx. 4.

6. This was an assurance that the Assyrians would not again attack him.

8. Josephus thinks that the degrees or hours of the day were marked by steps, and the time indicated by the number covered.

10. "In the noontide of my days" (R.V.)

12. "He will cut me off from the thrum," by which the web is fastened to the loom.

13. The sufferer could only reckon on the brief Eastern night, and expected to be crushed in the morning.

14. What a touching prayer for the oppressed believer!

15-20. Here is thanksgiving for answered prayer. What He said, that He has done (1 Thess. v. 24). "I will behave myself humbly," in remembrance of God's great deliverance. "Softly" may mean as in a solemn procession (R.V.). All our life should be a reverent, priestly march.

17. What a contrast to Ps. xc. 8! (Micah vii. 18).

20. Omit the words in italics, "Jehovah was my Saviour." This Psalm was evidently composed for public worship. We need to drink deeper into the spirit of praise, and to express publicly what we feel (Ps. lxvi. 16).

CHICAGO NOTES.

MR. D. L. MOODY is now in Chicago, holding meetings in the Avenue Church. He has not lost any of his old-time order or interest. People flock to hear him until the building is full. He is to stay there two weeks. The theological training school, near the above church, is well attended, and the workers sent out are doing valiantly for the Master.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union Temple is rising as fast as a host of skilful workmen can push it. It will be a very large building, thirteen stories high, of granite, iron, and terra-cotta. The enterprise, to cost 1,100,000 dollars, looks formidable for the "weaker sex," but they are strong in faith and good works. When completed, this will be the largest and finest building of its kind in the world.

There is a strong current of Christian thought and energy moving for closing the World's Fair on Sundays. We hope to carry the good measure, despite the bitter opposition of several secular papers. The clergy are quite unanimous, and a general meeting has been called, that it may take formidable shape.

Ministers and Jewish Rabbis have met for two days recently on a common platform, and presented their thoughts on "The Past, Present, and Future of Israel." The papers were scholarly, direct, interesting, and listened to by vast audiences. Israel has consented to meet Christians on debatable grounds, and let facts come to issue in cool reason and a Christian spirit. Full reports have been preserved.

J. F.

SOCIETE EVANGELIQUE DE GENEVE.—This society has just published the Bon Almanac, compiled by Monsieur E. Naville, which serves admirably as a Gospel tract, and will find acceptance with many who would reject a tract as such. It is issued at a very low price, 3¼ cents., and will come to only 2s. 9d. per 100. It would be well fitted for circulation amongst the thousands of French in the Soho quarter of London. Application to be made to Monsieur Dardier Oratoire. Geneva.

[1224]

International S.S. Lessons.

Sunday Afternoon, January 4.

THE KINGDOM DIVIDED—1 KINGS xii. 1-17.

GOLDEN TEXT: PROV. xvi. 18.

HITHERTO, the twelve tribes of Israel had formed one kingdom. More than once the men of Israel had manifested a spirit of jealousy towards the men of Judah (2 Sam. xix. 41-43). This feeling may have been strengthened during Solomon's reign by the employment of some of the men of Ephraim in forced labour (xi. 28). No open rupture took place while Solomon lived; but the accession of Rehoboam gives an opportunity to the disaffected ones. This lesson tells the story of the revolt of the ten tribes, leaving to Rehoboam and his successors the two tribes of Judah and Benjamin (17).

Rehoboam, in this first act of his reign, makes himself as conspicuous for his folly as his father had been famous for his wisdom. See Eccles. ii. 18, 19. So far as we know he was the only son of Solomon; and was born of an idolatrous mother about the commencement of Solomon's reign. Comp. xi. 42 with xiv. 21. The luxurious vice which marked the close of Solomon's reign left its impression on the son. Parents cannot sin without injury to their children.

Shechem, the modern Nablous, was situated in the hill country of Ephraim, and lay about midway between the two mountains of Ebal and Gerizim. It was an ancient city, dating back even to the time of Abraham (Gen. xii. 6), and had been the scene of many memorable and interesting events. It is hardly likely that Rehoboam chose this as the place of his coronation, unless he did it as a concession to the disaffected Ephraimites. Probably they chose it as being most favourable to their designs. It was one of their own cities, and had none of "the prestige of the grand buildings of Jerusalem." Bishop Hall says: "The very place puts Israel in mind of a rebellion. There Abimelech had raised up his treacherous usurpations over and against his brethren; there Gaal against Abimelech; there was Joseph sold by his brethren; as if the very soil had been stained by perfidiousness."

Of Jeroboam, who headed this revolt, we shall hear more hereafter. His name became a synonym for grossest wickedness. The circumstances connected with his flight into Egypt (2) are detailed in xi. 29-40. It is probable that others besides Solomon and himself knew of Ahijah's prophecy.

The people's request (4, 5).—No doubt there was reason for it. At first Solomon had unselfishly sought the good of his kingdom; but toward the close of his reign he had sought mainly his own personal, and even vicious, indulgence. The people were patient while Solomon lived, but were not disposed to submit to similar severities under Rehoboam. What an important issue depends upon Rehoboam's answer! A word from him is to decide whether a kingdom is to be preserved or destroyed. Have not all an equally important issue to decide? A better and more enduring kingdom depends upon your choice. Do not decide such a matter without deliberation (5).

Conflicting advisers (6-11).—Rehoboam did wisely in appealing to the old men, and they gave him wise counsel (7). They recognised that the people had some cause for complaint; and that no king can expect to have loyal subjects who is not considerate for their interests. A true king will regard his people as his flock, and will tend them with a shepherd's care. Such is the character of the Messiah King (Ps. lxii). Rehoboam went wrong, not for the want of good advice, but because he had not the wisdom to receive it (8). How many young men have repeated his folly.

The young men were Rehoboam's chosen advisers, "who stood before him" (8). He identified himself with these as he did not with the old men. Contrast "we" (9) with "I" (6). Their counsel exactly contradicts that of the old men. Instead of yielding to the people, Rehoboam was to refuse all dictation from them, and to awe them into submission by the threat of greater severity. If scourging had been used in connection with Solomon's enforced labour (11), then "scorpions" describe "some sort of lash on which metal points were fixed, so that each blow might wound like a scorpion's sting." But it is probable that the language is metaphorical.

Like many a young man to-day Rehoboam is in difficulty through conflicting counsels. Which shall he follow? Young men who despise the experience of their seniors and treat age without respect are dangerous counsellors. In deciding the question of all questions, be careful w[hich] advisers you consult.

The decision and its result (12-17).—It was the[n] of Rehoboam, yet it fulfilled the counsel of [God] (15). Solomon had violated the conditions u[nder] which God had promised to maintain the king[dom] (ix. 4-9, xi. 9-11). By means of the folly of Re[-] boam God punishes the sin of Solomon, and bri[ngs] his own purpose to pass. Comp. Acts ii. 23. [Is] any wonder that the old insurrection song (2 S[am.] xx. 1) was repeated (16), and that the people [re]fused allegiance to such a king?

LESSONS.

(1) How surely God fulfils his word.—His pron[ise] to Jeroboam (xi. 31) seemed likely to be brok[en]. A very small amount of prudence on the part [of] Rehoboam would apparently have preserved [the] kingdom. Yet Rehoboam acted freely, he ch[ose] his own course, and God fulfilled his word.

(2) The disastrous results of taking unwise advic[e]. Alas! Rehoboam is not the only victim of [the] folly. The Great Counsellor (Isa. ix. 6) spea[ks] but his counsel is unheeded (Prov. i. 25). Co[mp.] Ps. i. 1 and Hos. x. 6.

(3) The increasing severity of the yoke of sin. Rehoboam's words suggest this. How true i[s] that what is begun as a pleasure soon become[s] bondage, and even a torment. There was so[me] wisdom in rejecting such a yoke, though the peo[ple] soon became subject to one more cruel s[till]. Throw off the yoke of sin, and accept in its pl[ace] the easy yoke of Jesus (Matt. xi. 28-30).

WE ARE ELEVEN.

CHRISTMAS ON AN IRISH FARM.

WE are eleven, all healthy and strong
Two of us old and nine of us young.
Up at the dawn, if it rains, if it snows:
Nine little people to cover with clothes;
Nine pairs of feet to be washed, to be dried,
Stockinged and gartered, and booted and tied;
Nine little heads thinking more than we know
Waiting for hats to get out to the snow;
Nine chubby mouths, with teeth or with gums,
Ready to tackle the first thing that comes;
Nine restless spirits, from morning till night
Needing close watching to keep them half right;
Nine pairs of eyes growing sleepy and dim;
Nine little tongues at their evening hymn;
Nine tucked in bed, into slumber they sink;
Nine little sleepers. Now let me think.

We are eleven. The farm that we till,
Sloped on the north of an Irish hill,
Interest and bills, taxes and rent,
Eat it all up to the uttermost cent.
Then, when the year's "pound of flesh" has got de
Creditors, creditors, gnaw at the bone.
Pleasure at Christmas to them may be given.
What shall be ours? We are eleven.

Dreary and hollow the snow-winds moan,
Dark is the fire on the cold hearthstone;
Frost-leaves freeze on the kitchen pane,
Christmas, Christmas, you come in vain.
Where are your shoes for these blue, cold feet?
Where is your dish with the Yuletide treat?
After the ceaseless toils of a year,
Where, oh! where is the Christmas cheer?
Wife of my heart, ever brave and true,
Try not to smile, for the tears break through.

Hush! At the back of the cloud a King
Blesses and guards this unbroken ring;
Leads it to sing at the feast of heaven,
Still unbroken—we are eleven.

Donemana, Ireland. J. [illegible]

SELF-HELP EMIGRATION SOCIETY.—T[he] Society, whose office is at the Memorial H[all] buildings, Farringdon-street, E.C., has, during [the] present year, done an excellent work in sending [to] the British colonies carefully selected emigra[nts] from all parts of the United Kingdom, the grea[ter] portion from London. The total number of e[mi]grants sent out during the past five years has b[een] 3500. Many of these emigrants have done rema[rk]ably well in the colonies. The number of ap[pli]cants during the present year has fallen far sh[ort] of those applying in the previous two ye[ars]. Doubtless this is mainly to be accounted fo[r] consequence of the rising tide of prosperity in t[he] country. It would be well for those contemp[la]ing emigration in the early spring to apply as s[oon] as possible for information that may assist them [in] coming to a decision. The office is open dur[ing] the emigration season every day from 10 to 2, [and] on Mondays and Wednesdays from 6 to 8 p.m.

WORK AT PORTSMOUTH AND ALEXANDRIA.

£5,000 URGENTLY NEEDED

BY MISS ROBINSON.

PRESSING ANXIETIES have arisen during the past twelve months. GENEROUS FRIENDS have been removed by death. PERSONAL TRIALS have sorely taxed her strength.

BUT PRAISE be to God, His presence and power were never so manifest, souls are saved, and the workers richly blessed. Christian friends are invited to COME AND SEE.

IN ADDITION to the sum annually needed for carrying on the work, the SPECIAL EXPENSES during 1890 were:

I. Sailors' and Soldiers' Institute, Alexandria, Egypt: extensive Builders' Repairs from the WALLS SINKING, notwithstanding that the foundations were laid 12 ft. wide.

II. The ADDITION OF A WING to the Portsmouth Soldiers' Institute, for "MARRIED QUARTERS" during the Trooping Season, giving 14 more rooms, and a nice playground for the children.

III. The PURCHASE of the Freehold of One House and the Furniture of five others, known as the "OFFICERS' HOUSE," the whole forming one establishment, to be conducted henceforth on Christian and Temperance principles, and to be utilised as a SEASIDE RESORT for Christian Workers and for friends desirous of seeing the work of our INSTITUTES.

IV. The BUILDING and fittings of the "SPEEDWELL" GOSPEL HALL, Landport, with Class Rooms above, and Sleeping Cabins for Soldiers and Sailors.

V. The General EXTENSION of our Mission work, which, when fully organised, will comprise (a) The nightly preaching of the Gospel; (b) Mothers' Meetings, Children's Meetings, and similar agencies; (c) Colportage and gratuitous circulation of Gospel books; (d) Medical and Nursing Mission; (e) Invalid Kitchen, and cookery for the Destitute, including free Sunday Breakfasts; (f) Labour Yard and Sheds; (g) Rescue of lost Girls and of little Waifs.

N.B.—Much of the above is already being done, and all our usual Soldier and Troopship work going vigorously forward.

MR. THOMAS HOGBEN has recently joined MISS ROBINSON, and is prepared to arrange for Drawing-room and other Meetings wherever friends desire it.

Will the Lord's stewards send IMMEDIATE HELP?

Address, Miss SARAH ROBINSON, Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth. (London Bankers: GLYN & Co.)

"OUR STREET ARABS."

A HEARTY INVITATION

IS GIVEN TO

YOUNG PEOPLE

AT HOME FOR

THE HOLIDAYS

TO VISIT THE

Boys' Home, Southwark,

ON TUESDAY AND FRIDAY AFTERNOONS, from 2 till 4.

Mr. FEGAN will be pleased on these afternoons to receive visitors, and personally explain all that is being done to rescue homeless street-boys. Visits at other times may be made by special appointment.

The Home is quite near the Surrey side of Blackfriars Bridge.

PARENTS, TEACHERS, &c.,

Who are anxious to interest young people in Christian Work, may obtain

INTERESTING INFORMATION

OF THE WORK CARRIED ON IN

"MR. FEGAN'S HOMES,"

AND A

VERY PRETTY COLLECTING CARD,

BY APPLYING TO

THE SECRETARY,
THE BOYS' HOME,
95, SOUTHWARK STREET, LONDON, S.E.

FIELD LANE REFUGES AND RAGGED SCHOOLS,

Vine-street, Clerkenwell-road, E.C.

PRESIDENT.—The Right Hon. THE EARL OF ABERDEEN.

VICE-PRESIDENTS.—THE DUKE OF ARGYLL, K.G.
The Right Hon. THE EARL COMPTON, M.P.
The Right Hon. THE LORD KINNAIRD.

BANKERS.—Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN & Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C., and 1, Pall Mall East, W.
TREASURER.—WILFRID A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street.

THIS CHARITY IS GREATLY IN NEED OF FUNDS to enable it to continue its operations. It maintains constantly 260 DESTITUTE AND HOMELESS CHILDREN AND ADULTS, and affords them the blessing of Religious Instruction and of Industrial Training.

IT GIVES HOT DINNERS FOUR DAYS A WEEK to nearly 200 other Ragged Children during the winter months; also holds Religious Services on Sundays for Outcast Men and Women, with an average attendance of 400.

THE BENEFITS OF THIS CHARITY DISPENSED AMONGST THE POOR EXCEEDS 3,500 WEEKLY.

If these operations are to be continued, an increase of Subscriptions and Donations is essential, and therefore the Committee earnestly appeal for New Annual Subscribers (however small the amount may be).

H.R.H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT has characterised this work as:—

"A perfect network of charitable operations—an immense boon to the poor."

THE LATE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY (in his last speech for the Institution) said: "This Institution has conferred, and is conferring, an immense benefit on the Public at large."

SUBSCRIPTIONS AND DONATIONS will be thankfully received by the Treasurer, WILFRID A. BEVAN, Esq., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; Messrs. BARCLAY, BEVAN, RANSOM & Co., 54, Lombard-street; or by the Secretary at the Institution, Vine-street, Clerkenwell-road, E.C. BEQUESTS are also earnestly solicited.

HOMES OF HOPE,

4, 5, and 6, Regent-square, Gray's-inn-road, London, W.C.

THE COMMITTEE are very unwilling to press the claims of this Charity, but every day most painful applications are made for admission, and the thought of refusing a helping hand to any young woman struggling to get out of her miserable life is very distressing, especially in the case of those who have made a first false step downwards. Very sad tales of suffering and wrong are told by these young women, many of them the orphan daughters of parents who moved in a good position, but were left when young, friendless, and wholly unprovided for. We are quite sure if the readers could witness the distress and anguish in many cases of those who apply, it would give them pleasure to aid us in restoring them to positions of usefulness.

It has scarcely ever happened in the experience of the Committee that the mothers rescued have fallen a second time. We are in urgent need of FUNDS, and any help will be most opportune at the present time.

HENRY THOMPSON, Esq., Treasurer, 38, Mincing-lane, E.C.
W. HORNIBROOK, Secretary, 17, Bloomsbury-street, Oxford-street, W.C.

Forthcoming Meetings.

THE EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of England, Scotland, and Wales on due notice. Hon. Sec., 21, Surrey-street, Strand, W.C.

THE IRISH EVANGELISATION SOCIETY will send evangelists to any part of Ireland on due notice. Apply to Mr. J. Barton, Hon. Sec., Dundalk, Ireland.

THE CHURCH ARMY will send evangelists (working-men) to any clergymen on due notice, for short or long missions. Hon. Sec., 128 & 130, Edgware-road, W.

THE METROPOLITAN TABERNACLE EVANGELISTS' ASSOCIATION will send evangelists to any evangelical denomination in London. Hon. Sec., 5, Crown-villas, Kennington Oval, S.E.

THE COUNTRY TOWNS MISSION supplies qualified missionaries for work in the country. Apply to Secretary, 18, New Bridge-street, Ludgate-circus, E.C.

Y.M.C.A., WHITTINGTON AVENUE, E.C.—Prayer and praise meeting, New Year's eve, address by W. R. Lane, 6.30 p.m. Bible-classes, King Edward's Institute, Suns., 3 and 7 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL AND Y.M.C.A., Stratford, E.—Sun., Dec. 21, 3 and 7 p.m. Young men's meetings, Sun., 3 p.m.; Tues., 8 and 9 p.m.; Wed., 9.30 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., EXETER HALL, W.C.—Sun., Dec. 28, Mr. Kennedy, 3.45 p.m.; Mr. Richardson, 7.30 p.m. Mon. to Fri., Young Men's Meetings, 8 p.m. Watch-Night Service, Dec. 31, 11 p.m. Cheerful Service, Sat. 8 p.m. Prayer and Praise Meeting, Mon. to Fri.; 1 to 2 p.m. Organ Recital, Sats., 7.30 p.m.

Y.M.C.A., 186, ALDERSGATE-STREET, E.C.—Sun., 3.30 p.m., Thurs., Dec. 25, 8 a.m., Christmas breakfast, Mr. George Williams presiding.

Y.M.C.A., 172, QUEEN'S-ROAD, Bayswater, W. (opposite Whiteley's).—Special address to both sexes, Fri., Jan. 2, 8.30 p.m., by Mr. Henry Thorne. Subject—"From the Stage to the Cross."

WEST LONDON CENTRAL MISSION.—St. James's Hall, Sun., 11 a.m., Rev. M. Guy Pearse; 7 p.m., Rev. H. Price Hughes. Princes Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. W. Darlow Sarjeant. Cleveland Hall, Sun., 7 p.m., Rev. T. M. Taylor.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place, W.—Mr. T. B. Miller, Sun. next, at 11 and 7. Christmas Day, Dr. McKilliam, in St. George's Hall, 11 a.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Clapham-road, S.W.—Jerusalem prayer-meeting every Friday, 4 p.m.

CONFERENCE HALL, Eccleston-street, S.W.—Mr. C. Russell Hurditch, Sun., 3.30 and 7 p.m.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS' CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—Annual meeting, Mon., Dec. 29, Exeter Hall: prayer and praise, 4.30 p.m., address by Rev. C. Spurgeon; public meeting, 7 p.m., speakers, Revs. E. A. Stuart and W. J. Woods, B.A.

REGENT'S PARK CHAPEL, N.W.—Sun. services at 11 and 7, conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer.

CLAPTON HALL, Alkham-road, Upper Clapton.—Mr. J. G. McVicker, Sun., 6.30 p.m.

HOUSE OF REST, 10, Finchley-road, St. John's Wood, N.W.—Tues., Dec. 30, prayer-meeting, 2 to 6 p.m., Mr. Fox Butlin, and others. New Year's meeting, Jan. 2, Rev. F. B, Meyer, 3 p.m.; Mr. Reader Harris, 7 p.m. Suns., 3.30 p.m., Bible-reading for ladies and gentlemen.

STRANGERS' REST, 163, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Monthly workers' meeting, Fri., Jan. 2. Tea at 6; meeting at 7. Rev. F. B. Meyer will give a New Year's address.

EDINBURGH CASTLE, Limehouse, E.—Sun. next, Mr. J. B. Wookey, at 11, 3 and 7.

SAILORS' WELCOME HOME, 173, St. George's-street, Ratcliff-highway, E.—Unloading of Christmas boat, Sat., Dec. 27, 7 p.m. Muster of the "Christian Lifeboat Crew," Tues., Jan. 6, 7 p.m.

Notices.

COMMUNICATIONS RECEIVED WITH THANKS.—E.J.W, T.L. C.K. J.C.B. R.M. J.K.W. W.S. E.A. W.E. T.M. J.P.H. E.R.G. W.W. J.T.D. H.B. J.E.L. J.G.C. W.G. J.D.C. J.E.P. W.E.L. M.A.F. L.M.B. S.F. M.E. A.H.G. M.B. J.K. J.R.H. E.S.I. C F.W. H.R. F.C.S. D.B.G. E.A.S. M.H. R.D. S.E.R. F.A.N. W.J.O. D.J.E. J.T.E. C.W.P. F.R. D.W. R.L. T.R.F. A.J.S.M. J.H.L. E.M.P. J.W.S. B.H. J.C. E.K.J. C.J.P. W.A.B. H.B. G.K. A.J.S. E.H. J.F.M. H.T.R. A.W. E.C. J.R.M. H.W. G.B.M. J.T. F.J.T. J.W. E.S. G.B. J.S.P. E.S.N.

APPLICANTS FOR TRACTS. — Miss Rhodes, Steeple Claydon, near Winslow, Bucks; Mrs. Brenton, Glyn-terrace, Llantrisant, South Wales; Rev. T. Halliday, Wesley House, Tranquillity, Port of Spain, Trinidad; J. Davies, Mount Pleasant, Mow Cop, Cheshire; H. Welch, 27, Wolseley-street, Toronto, Ontario, Canada; R. Piper, evangelist, Chapel-street, Camelford, Cornwall; T. Lees, Lydgate, Lees, near Oldham; S. Williams, 15, Station-road, Hirwain, Aberdare.

[As it is found that infidels and others send tracts to the persons whose names are inserted here, it is most desirable that all books and papers received should be carefully read before being given away.]

[1226]

DONATIONS
RECEIVED BY MESSRS. MORGAN & SCOTT
TO FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1890.

In consequence of the Christmas Holidays, our donation list is made up two days earlier. Donations received after Friday, December 19, will appear in the next number.

	£	s.	d.
Mr. Eoll's Work, Port Said—M.S.	3	3	0
Paris City Mission—M.S...	2	2	0
Mr. Bright's Work, Mexico (late Pascoe)—M.S...	3	3	0
Poor Jews, &c. (Mrs. Finn) — E.T.L. £2; H.N.D. £1...	3	0	0
Jaffa Agent for Oppressed Jews—A.E.T. 2s 6d; Mrs. M.K. £1; Miss W. £1	2	2	6
Pastor Cremer's Work, Brive—M. & L.H. £4; F.E. £1	5	0	0
China Inland Mission—C.B.M. £3; A Young Christian, 2s 6d; A.P.F. £1; G.K. 7s 6d; A.T. 5s	4	15	0
Miss de Broen's Work, Paris—C.B.M....	1	0	0
Church of England Zenana Missionary Society—C.B.M. £1; (Medical)—V. £1	2	0	0
Mr. D. C. Joseph's Work, Jerusalem—R.C. £10; W.S. 19s	10	19	0
Punrooty Mission—R.P.	2	2	0
Mr. Wilmot Brooke's Work, Africa—Penrith C.M.S. Gleaners	0	17	0
Mrs. Lewis's (née Leigh) Home, Paris—Unprofitable Servant	1	0	0
Mrs. Ahok's Work, China—B., Edinburgh... ...	0	2	6
Society for Relief of Persecuted Jews—H.H. ...	1	0	0
Gibraltar Soldiers' Institute—V.	1	0	0
London Missionary Society—H.M.A.S.	1	0	0
Church Missionary Society—V. £1; H.N.D. £2	3	0	0
British and Foreign Bible Society—H.N.D. ...	1	0	0
Captain Bruce Moorhouse's Work—M.S.	2	2	0
Home for Working Boys (Mr. Hill)—H.N.D. ...	1	0	0
Cripples' Home for Girls, Marylebone—H.N.D.	1	0	0
National Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children—M.S. £3 3s; H.H. £1	4	3	0
Baptist Chapel, Stoke-road, Gosport—M.S... ...	0	10	0
General Booth's Scheme — T.V.C.B. 10s; A Young Christian, 2s 6d; B.J. 5s; A.T. 2s 6d	1	0	0
Dr. Barnardo's Homes—E.B. 5s; W.Y. 10s; Oundle, 5s; J.P.P. 2s 6d; Lancaster, 5s; E.P. 2s; E.S.L. £10; Indian N. Officer, 10s; B., Edinburgh, 2s 6d; H.H. £1; W.S. 19s; M.W. & E.E. 5s; S.E.W. 2s 6d; L.H. £1; Wm.B.G. 10s; B.J. 5s; G.K. 7s 6d; J.J.W. £3; S.C.B. 5s; H.H. 10s; C. & E.S.M. 10s; Sympathy, 10s; A.C. 2s 6d; Tavistock, £1; A.G.M. 6s; A.T. 5s; A.R. £1 1s; M.E.B. £1; H.N.D. £2	27	0	6
Blue Ribbon Mission, Hoxton—M.S.	2	0	0
North-East Hospital for Childn., Hackney—M.S.	1	1	0
Noonday Prayer Meeting—M.S.	5	0	0
National Temperance League—M.S.	2	2	0
Newspaper Press Fund—M.S....	2	2	0
North-East London Gospel Mission—M.S.... ...	5	0	0
North Bow Help-Myself Society—M.S...	1	1	0
Old Ford Mission (Mr. Farnan)—M.S...	2	2	0
Princess Mary's Village Homes—M.S....	5	5	0
Mrs. Wilkc's Rescue Work, Poplar—M.S. £5; H.B.S. 10s...	5	10	0
Christmas Help to Poor—A.B. 5s; M.S. £20; S.A.U. 10s; J.H.J. 5s; J.B.S. £2; Girls I. School, Cosham, £1 15s; P.A.D. 10s; J.J.W. £5; H.B.S. £1; H.H. £1	32	5	0
London Samaritan Society, &c.—Wm. G. £1; H.H. £1; J.B.S. £2	4	0	0
Homes for Aged Blind, Crouch-hill—M.A.G. 10s; E.R.T. 5s; H.M.A.S. 10s; O.P.T. 4s	1	9	0
Mildmay Mission to Jews—E.C. 10s 6d; C.B.M. £2; Indian N. Officer, 10s; A Friend, 5s; Lt. M. £1 1s; A.C. 2s 6d	4	9	0
Rev. W. E. Hurndall's Work (Christmas Dinners, &c.)—E.C. 2s 6d; G.P. 5s; J.P.P. 2s 6d; A.A.C. £1; A Young Christian, 1s; Miss M. 2s 6d; E.J. 5s; B.J. 5s; L.H.R. 11s 2d; Miss H. 2s 6d; S.E. 5s; A.R. £1 1s	4	3	2
St. Giles Christian Mission—C. & E.S.M. 10s; F.D. 10s; H.B.S. 10s; G.P. 5s; Oundle, 5s; C.B.M. £5; E., Rose Cottage, £1; A.M.M. £10; E.S.L. £10; E.R.T. 5s; A Young Christian, 2s 6d; H.H. £1; E.C. 5s; J.J.W. £3; H.M.A.S. £1; Captain J.P. £1; S.C.B. 2s 6d; Sympathy, 5s; N.H.B. 10s; E.M.C. 5s; E.W. 5s; E.W. 5s; R.B.J. £10; H.N.D. £2	48	5	0
George Yard Mission—G.P. 5s; A.A.C. £2; E.S.L. £10; E.C. 5s; H.B.S. 10s; R.B.J. £10; C. & E.S.M. 10s; H.N.D. £1	24	10	0
Destitute Children's Dinner Society—G.P. 5s; J.P.P. 2s 6d; Lancaster, 2s 6d; H.H. £1; E.C. 5s; H.M.A.S. 10s; H.B.S. 10s; A.E.L. 5s; A.W. 5s; H.N.D. £1	4	5	0
Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society—Oundle, 2s 6d; J.P.P. 2s 6d; J.B. 5s; Mrs. L.M.C. £1; J.C. 5s; V. £5...	6	15	0
Mrs. Codner (Christmas Cries, &c.)—J.P.P. 2s 6d; Indian N. Officer, 10s; A.T. £1	1	12	6
Tramcar and Scripture Text Mission—J.P.P. ...	0	2	6
Mr. Fegan's Boys' Home—J.P.P. 2s 6d; E., Rose Cottage, £1; E.S.L. £10; J.B.S. £2; E.C. 5s; J.J.W. £5; E.J.P. 5s; H.H. 10s; Sympathy, 5s	19	7	6
Free Breakfasts, &c.—J.P.P. 2s 6d; A.B. 5s; A.H. 1s 6d...	0	9	0
Cow Cross Mission—Lancaster, 2s 6d; E.S.L. £10; J.J.W. £3; H.B.S. 10s; R.B.J. £3; H.N.D. £1...	17	12	6
Field Lane Refuges, &c.—Lancaster, 2s 6d; H.H. £1; H.M.A.S. £1; J.J.W. £3: A.R. £1 1s; H.N.D. £2	8	3	6
Christian Community — Lancaster, 2s 6d; E.W. 5s	0	7
Home of Industry—M.E.R. 10s; C.B.M. £1; E.S.L. £10; J.M. £2; Captain J.P. £1; C. & E.S.M. 10s	15	0
Rev. A. G. Brown's Work—A.A.C. £1; E.C. 5s; V. £5; H.B.S. 10s...	6	15
Rev. W. Cuff, Shoreditch Tabernacle, &c.—E.B. 10s; A.A.C. £1; E.M.C. 5s	1	15
Friendless and Fallen—S. £1 1s; C.B.M. £1; Indian N. Officer, 10s; E.R.T. 2s 6d; H.H. £1; M.E.T. £1; H.B.S. £1; C. & E.S.M. 10s; S.C.B. 2s 6d; E.D. £4; R.B.J. £5... ...	15	6
Midnight Meeting Movement—S. £1; Belford, 5s; H.B.S. 10s...	1	15
Rescue Society—S. £1; J.J.W. £3; S.C.B. 2s 6d	4	2
Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen—R.B.J. £5; C. & E.S.M. 10s; C.B.M. £1; Indian N. Officer, 10s; T.P. & F.M. 5s; Unprofitable Servant, £1; Lt. M. £1 1s; H.H. 10s	9	16
Miss Weston's Work (R. Navy)—C.B.M. £1; C. & E.S.M. 10s	1	10
Miss Daniell's Work (Soldiers)—C.B.M.	1	0
Somers Town Blind Aid Society—C.B.M.	1	0
Mrs. Meredith's Prison Mission, &c.—C.B.M. £1; H.M.A.S. £1; Capt. J.P. £1; C. & E.S.M. 10s	3	10
Homes of Hope, Regent-square—C.B.M. £1; J.J.W. £2; N.H.B. 10s	3	10
Mrs. Hilton's Crèche, &c.—E., Rose Cottage, 10s 6d; H.H. £1	1	10
Miss Mittendorff's Homes—E., Rose Cottage, £1 1s; A.P.F. £1	2	1
London Aged Christian Society—M.A.V.	5	0
Cancer Hospital, Brompton — Unprofitable Servant	1	0
Gifford Hall Mission—E.R.T...	0	2
Marylebone Medical Mission—H.H. £1; Mrs. L.M.C. £1...	2	0
Bird's Nest Mission, Dublin—Lt. M. £1 1s; C. & E.S.M. 10s	1	11
Samaritan Free Hospital—Mrs. L.M.C.	0	10
Hospital for Paralysed and Epileptic—H.N.D...	2	0
Mr. Orsman's Work (Soup and Cocoa)—V. £5; H.M.A.S. 10s	5	10
Free Scotch Church (for Medical Missions)—V...	5	0
Dr. Laseron's Work—V.	2	0
Latymer-road Mission—H.M.A.S...	0	10
Kensal New Town Mission—H.M.A.S....	0	10
Working Men's Mission, New Cut—H.M.A.S. 10s; H.N.D. £1	1	10
Mildmay Conference Hall—A.H. 2s 6d; (Medical Mission)—H.M.A.S. 10s	0	12
Watercress, &c., Mission—H.M.A.S. £1; E.W. 2s 6d	1	2
Hospital for Diseases of the Heart—H.M.A.S...	1	0
Home for Blind Children, Hackney—H.M.A.S...	0	5
Bible and Colportage Society, Ireland — H.M.A.S.	1	0
Indigent Blind, &c. (Christmas Coals)—H.M.A.S.	0	10
Destitute Widows' Society—H.M.A.S...	1	0
Distressed Irish Ladies—H.M.A.S.	0	10
Chelsea Hospital for Women—H.M.A.S.	0	10
Church Army—H.M.A.S....	1	1
R. Naval Scripture Readers' Society—H.M.A.S.	0	10
Irish Evangelical Society—H.M.A.S.	1	0
Stockwell Orphnge.—J.J.W. £3; C. & E.S.M. 10s	3	10
Tower Hamlets Mission—H.B.S. £1; H.N.D. £2	3	0
Ragged School Union—H.B.S.	1	0
Bitter Cry of Outcast Poor—H.B.S	1	0
Old Ford Soup-kitchen (Mrs. Adamson)—H.B.S.	0	10
Rev. P. Gast's Work, St. Luke's, &c.—H B.S. ...	0	10
London Samaritan Society, &c.—H.B.S. 10s; M.E.B. £1	1	10
Dock Labourers' Mission—G.G.	1	0
Gray's Yard Ragged Schools, &c.—C. & E.S.M...	0	10
London City Mission—C. & E.S.M.	0	10
Gratuitous Circulation THE CHRISTIAN—C. & E.S.M.	0	6
Barbican Mission to Jews—E.D.P.	1	0
Blackdown Hills Mission—Tavistock	1	0
Bridge of Hope (Miss Steer)—N.H.B....	0	10
Salvation Army—A.T.	0	2
Mr. Boyer's Work (Cripples)—A.E.L.	0	5
Rev. J. W. Atkinson's Work—A.R....	1	1
East London Training Institute—A.R.	1	1
Evangelistic Mission—M.E.B. £1; R.B.J. £2 ...	3	0
Poor Shirt Makers—E.W.	0	5
Match Factory Girls—E.W.	0	5
Mr. E. Wright's Work—R.B.J.	1	0
Portsmouth and Gosport Seamen's Misn.—R.B.J.	3	0
Sermon-lane Mission—R.B.J....	3	0
King Edward Ragged Schools—R.B.J....	3	0
London Factory Lads, 331, Kentish-road—R.B.J.	3	0
Samaritan Institute, 59, Mile End-road—R.B.J.	2	0
Relief Poor, Bethnal Green—F.P....	0	7	6
	£435	18	2

[ADVERTISEMENTS.]

The Rescue Society—W.S.B. 10s.

St. Giles Christian Mission—W.S.B. £1.

London Samaritan Society (Free Meals)—E.B. 5s; N. 5s; L.M.DeG. 2s 6d; E.G. 3s 6d; A.E. £1.

Christmas Cries (Mildmay) — Sympathisers, Sidcup, £2 2s; M.W. £1; F. & R.V. £2; S.A.Y. (Two Sisters) 5s; W.D.H. 5s; Anon. 10s, 5s, 1s; Irish Friend, 1s; Friend, Stirling, 5s; Love and Pity, 10s; A.M.G. 1s; Readers of THE CHRISTIAN, 15s, 5s, 6d.

Learning by Heart Union.—Will members notify any change of address at once to the secretary, Mrs. W. MAY, 36, Glebe-road, Bromley, who will send the new cards before January 1?

"ELECTRICITY IS LIFE."
(TRADE MARK.)

PULVERMACHER'S

WORLD-FAMED

GALVANIC BELTS,

FOR the CURE of NERVOUS DISEASES,

HAVE RECEIVED TESTIMONIALS from over FIFTY MEMBERS of the

ROYAL COLLEGE of PHYSICIANS of LONDON, including

THREE PHYSICIANS to

HER MAJESTY the QUEEN.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

GALVANISM v. INDIGESTION and NERVOUS DEBILITY.
Peterborough, November 28, 1890.

GENTLEMEN,—I am pleased to tell you that I have felt much better since wearing your combined band, and I believe it is invaluable in cases of indigestion and nervous weakness such as mine was. My health has greatly improved in every way, and I can strongly recommend your treatment to sufferers. Please use my initials only, but you can give my full name and address to any inquirer.—Yours faithfully, G. A.
Messrs. J. L. Pulvermacher & Co., 194, Regent Street, W.

GALVANISM v. NERVOUS EXHAUSTION.—SORE THROAT.
1, Wilding Street, Barton-on-Irwell, Manchester, November 26, 1890.

GENTLEMEN,—I write to inform you that your treatment has proved so effectual in my case that I no longer need to wear the belt. I lent it to a friend who suffered with pains in the back, and it cured her in one day, and I have now lent it to our minister for the same complaint. Your treatment completely cured my sore throat in less than 24 hours; and if you will send me some pamphlets I will distribute them.—Yours faithfully, RICHARD HUGHES.
Messrs. J. L. Pulvermacher & Co., 194, Regent Street, W.

GALVANISM v. NERVOUS WEAKNESS.
Ashfield, Martock, Somerset, 26th Nov., 1890.

DEAR SIR,—I feel very much pleasure in being able to tell you that your spinal and waist electric appliances have greatly benefited me. After wearing them three months I feel quite strong and in good health, and can sleep remarkably well.—Yours truly, (Mrs.) L. BRADFORD.
Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent Street, W.

GALVANISM v. RHEUMATISM.
Throop, Christchurch, Hants, Nov. 25, 1890.

DEAR SIR,—Some time ago I was suffering from severe rheumatism in the knee, and could not walk. I sent for one of your Galvanic Belts, and after wearing it for a short time the pain gradually decreased, until it left me, and I can now strongly recommend your treatment to others who may be suffering from this complaint. Yours truly, (Mrs.) C. MEADEN.
Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent Street, W.

GALVANISM v. NERVOUS EXHAUSTION AND DEBILITY.
Minehead, Somerset, Nov. 19, 1890.

DEAR SIR,—I am pleased to inform you that both my wife and myself have derived great benefit from your combined belt, and our general health is better now than it has been for years. Yours very truly, E. A. JONES.
Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent Street, W.

GALVANISM v. INDIGESTION.
7, Herbert-terrace, Clevedon, Nov. 6, 1890.

DEAR SIR,—I am glad to be able to tell you that my nerves are very much stronger, and the indigestion that I suffered from is quite cured, in fact, I am a different person altogether.—Believe me, yours truly, (Miss) R. L. PARSLEY.
Mr. J. L. Pulvermacher, 194, Regent Street, W.

IF YOU ARE SUFFERING from any NERVOUS or WASTING DISEASE, that threatens CONSUMPTION or PARALYSIS, write, in the fullest confidence, to Mr. J. L. PULVERMACHER, 194, Regent-street, London, W., whose name has been blessed by thousands of sufferers during the past thirty years.

ADVICE PERSONALLY, or by LETTER, free of charge.

FOR FURTHER TESTIMONIALS, both Medical and Private, see new Pamphlet "GALVANISM: NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER of IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY," post free on application to

J. L. PULVERMACHER & CO.,
GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT,
194, REGENT STREET, LONDON, W.
Established over Forty Years.

NEW YEAR'S LETTER BOOKLET—1891.

1D. LET YOUR LIGHT SO SHINE.

By Rev. W. FRITH, Editor of Consecration.

7s. per 100. Post free of Author, Harringay, N.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row.
And all Booksellers

CONSECRATION. 1D.

Monthly Magazine for Culture of Spiritual Life.

Christian: "Worthy of high commendation."
Rev. CHARLES BULLOCK: "Well adapted for the culture of the spiritual life."
Rev. F. B. MEYER: "A valuable aid to the culture of the devout life."
W. Y. FULLERTON: "Most helpful in the culture of the spiritual life."

Vols. I. and II. ready, 2s., 2s. 4d. Post free.

London: S. W. PARTRIDGE & Co., 9, Paternoster-row
And all Booksellers.

ACTION SONGS FOR THE CHILDREN'S HOUR.

Village Minstrels—The Chinaman—The Japanese Fan—Castles in the Sand—Waggoner's Chorus—Sweeping-brush Brigade.

ONE SHILLING EACH.

J. CURWEN & SONS, 8 and 9, Warwick-lane, London, E.C.

GRAND GRANULAR TEA,

FOR CATERERS, SCHOOLS, INSTITUTIONS, &c.

Also SPECIAL WHOLE LEAF TEAS in neat ¼lb. packets, appropriately labelled, for distribution as presents at home; wholesale quantities, and choice original packages for export in bond, for presents to friends abroad. Detailed price list on application.

SELECT CEYLON TEA AGENCY, 39, Lime-st., London.

BAZAARS, FANCY FAIRS, &c.

SWANAGE STRAW BASKETS.

Novel and useful, a 25s. crate for £1 1s. Tea Cosy, very handsome, 3s. 11d. 5-o'clock do., 2s. 11d. Work Boxes, 2s. 6d. Work Basket, 2s. Collar Box, 1s. Needle-book, 7d., all post free.

J. A. COLLEAU, SWANAGE DORSET.

OLD SHIRTS Refitted, New Fronts, Cuffs, and Collar-bands. —Fine Irish Linen, 2s.; or very best Irish Linen, 2s. 6d. each, returned free, ready to wear. Sample New White Shirt, for Dress or ordinary wear, 2s. 9d., 3s. 9d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9d., or 6s. 9d. Gent's best 4-fold Linen Collars, any shape, 2s. 9d., half dozen, post free.

Hand knit by Donegal peasantry. Warm, durable, and comfortable. Two pairs free, 2s. 6d. IRISH SOX Men's Knicker Hose, two pairs free, 3s. 9d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9s., 6s. 9d., and 7s. 9d. WOOL PANTS and VESTS are now very cheap. Price Lists and Patterns Cambric Handkfs. and all kinds Irish Linen Goods sent free for Household or Family use, from the cheapest to the best qualities made.

B. & E. M'HUGH & CO., Limited, BELFAST.

SYMINGTON'S PEA FLOUR.

For Soups, &c. Sold in Packets and Tins by Grocers everywhere. EASILY DIGESTED. GOLD MEDAL.

PATENTEES AND MANUFACTURERS—
BOWDEN STEAM MILLS, MARKET HARBORO'

(Gratis and post free.)

Guy's Guide to Digestion.

Roast pork takes five hours and twenty minutes to digest, venison only one hour and thirty minutes, but fig seeds never digest. This clearly shows how important it is that all should pay attention to the digestibility of food. Guy's "Guide to Digestion" contains an interesting account of the time taken to digest nearly every article of food known, and when it is borne in mind how seriously business anxieties and harassing family cares interfere with the healthy activity of the stomach, it will be seen of what infinite consequence to happiness is this "Guide." A copy will be sent, gratis and post free, to any reader who, when writing, will mention THE CHRISTIAN, Guy's Tonic Company, 4, Ludgate Circus, London, E.C.

ON CONSUMPTION

AND ITS SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

ASTHMA, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, AND OTHER CHEST DISEASES.

NEW EDITION WITH APPENDIX

CONTAINING A LARGE NUMBER OF INTERESTING CASES.

POST FREE, ONE SHILLING.

From the AUTHOR,

MR. GEORGE THOS. CONGREVE,

Coombe Lodge, Peckham, S.E.

ONE RECENT CASE WILL BE GIVEN IN THIS JOURNAL EVERY WEEK.

CASE FOR THIS WEEK.

(THIRTY-FIFTH SERIES.)

DISEASED LUNGS WITH HÆMORRHAGE —CASE of MR. GEO. H. STUBBS, of WINSFORD.

This patient is a captain of a river steamer, and came up to Coombe Lodge in September last year.

His health had failed for some time, especially during the last six months. Cough had become more frequent. The phlegm was mixed with a great deal of blood. The breathing had become short; there were pains in the chest and side and night perspirations. For two months he had been laid aside.

In three weeks after his visit he writes that he has followed all the instructions given, and that the pains had left him, and his expectoration was less.

In six weeks he came again to London, and again in the spring, when the signs of Phthisis, which were at first well marked in the upper part of the right lung, were nearly gone. He was advised to persistently continue with the balsam and liniment. Some auxiliary treatment was ordered. The result being that he finally got thoroughly well.

Sept. 9, 1890 (twelve months to a day since he first came under my advice), he writes:—"I feel it my duty to express my utmost thanks to you for the kind treatment I have received at your hands. Your valuable medicine, of which I have taken nine large bottles, has quite restored my health. Now all my symptoms have disappeared for two months. I feel a strong man. I have gained forty pounds in weight! I am now following my occupation once more. You can make what use of my letter you please.—G. H. STUBBS, 222, Weys Green, Winsford, Cheshire."

NOTE.—Days of Consultation.—TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY Mornings ONLY, at Coombe Lodge, Peckham. Patients from any long distance should choose either of the two former days. Everyone is expected to have seen the book first.

COUGH CHARM VOICE TONIC

Dr. LEBAUD'S PASTILLE BRONCHIQUE

(a modern scientific remedy, free from the dangerous narcotics of old cough nostrums) by its tonic and antiseptic action upon the disordered membrane, quickly cures a harassing cough, protects the breathing organs from cold, repels disease germs, and maintains the voice in perfect condition for speaking and singing. Of all Chemists, 1/1½ per box, or (post free) from the Chief British Depôt, GRAHAM & Co., Charlemont-place, Dublin.

SELLING JEWELLERY, SILVER PLATE, COINS, &c.,

For CHARITABLE PURPOSES.

SPINK & SON, Goldsmiths and Silversmiths, 2, GRACECHURCH STREET, near CORNHILL, LONDON, E.C., respectfully announce that they VALUE or PURCHASE for CASH valuable Diamond and other Jewellery, Silver Plate, Coins, Medals, &c. [ESTABLISHED 1772.

THE DEAF HEAR

WHEN THE DEAFNESS IS CAUSED BY SCARLET FEVER, COLDS, MEASLES, CATARRH, &c., BY THE USE OF THE INVISIBLE SOUND DISC which is the same to the ears as glasses are to the eyes, and may be worn months without removal. Sold only by H. A. WALES, Imperial Mansions (corner of Oxford Street and Tottenham Court Road), London.

FREE Send a Post Card for a sample of Broken-Leaf Tea at 1s. 5½d. per lb., equal to 2s. 6d. Tea. WILLIAMSON & SONS, Tea Merchants, 139, Upper Thames-st., E.C.

BY SPECIAL ROYAL AND IMPERIAL WARRANT!

Under the direct Patronage of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN and the Royal Families of Europe.

FASHIONABLE DRESS MATERIALS

For Ladies, Children, and Gentlemen.

Unsurpassed for Beauty, Novelty, and Sterling Value.

Prices for Ladies—from 10½d. to 5s. 6d. per yd.

PATTERNS POST FREE.

REGISTERED. Egerton Burnett's Royal Serges REGISTERED.

WINTER PATTERN NOW READY.

Any Length of Material Sol

Carriage Paid on Orde of £1 in value to an Railway Station in th United Kingdom.

Goods Packed for Exportation.

CAUTION—NO AGENTS. NO REPRESENTATIVES. NO BRANCHES

Address—EGERTON BURNETT, Serge Warehouse, WELLINGTON, SOMERSET.

DIRECT FROM THE MILL.

POST FREE.

SOCKS. Gentlemen's Full Size, in Stripes or single colours.

BOYS' JERSEY CAPS striped or single colour, 1s. each.

STOCKINGS. In Black, Grey, Maroon, & Navy Blue. Ladies' Size.

KNEE CAPS. Ladies' and Gentlemen's, In Scarlet, Grey, and Pinks.

ONE SHILLING

MUFFLERS. For Children, in great variety.

GLOVES. Ladies' and Gentlemen's

All Guaranteed Pure Wool

Send P.O.O. or Stamps to

FLEMING, REID & CO.,

THE WORSTED MILLS, GREENOCK.

100 Patterns of Knitting Wools (which need not be returned) sent Post Free.

Please mention this Paper.

KNITTING.

HOW TO KNIT AND WHAT TO KNIT.

1s. per Set of Eight Large Cards, Post Free.

THE "VICTORIA KNITTING CARDS"

Are compiled so that beginners may knit from the first STRIP to a full-sized stocking or quilt without the aid of the Teacher.

FIRST SET, Nos. I. to VIII., contains remarks on Knitting for Standards I. and II.—Muffatees, Scarves, Socks, and Stockings, ribbed and plain, thickened heels and toes, &c.

SECOND SET, Nos. IX. to XVI., contains Knitting for Examination Day for Girls and Pupil Teachers—Baby's Boots—Knee Caps—Muffatees (with thumbs)—Ladies' Vests—Child's Vests—Boys' Vests—Child's Quilt—Large Quilt—Diagonal Pattern Quilt, &c., with quantities and kind of Yarns needed for each article.

THIRD SET, Nos. XVII. to XXIV., contains easy Directions for Knitting Infants' Vests—Gloves—Hood or Helmet—Beaded Cuffs—Mat or Rug—Child's Gaiters—Shoulder Cape—Shawl—Tam o' Shanter, &c.

FOURTH SET, Nos. XXV. to XXXII., contains complete Directions with description and Quantity of Wool or Yarn needed for Knitting Jersey Suit—Petticoat with Bodice—Child's Bootakins—Bead Trimming—Bedroom Slippers—Infant's Jacket—Baby's Hood—Lady's Petticoat—Body Belt—Sleeping Socks—Cloud, &c.

COX & CO., 99, New Oxford Street, London.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR

Is a Household Requisite of Constant Utility.

That BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR possesses ver valuable qualities as a food for all classes, at all periods o life except earliest infancy, has been attested by eminent dieteti authorities, as well as by universal public experience durin over thirty years.

Interested attempts to set aside these facts in favour o other foods can only appeal to ignorance and prejudice, and remains true that no other kind of food can serve the specia purposes of Corn Flour.

RECKITT'S BLUE.

WARNING—

Refuse all Substitutes!

Fry's Pure Cocoa

To secure this article ask for

FRY'S PURE CONCENTRATED

REFRESHING. ✣ NOURISHING. ✣ STRENGTHENING.